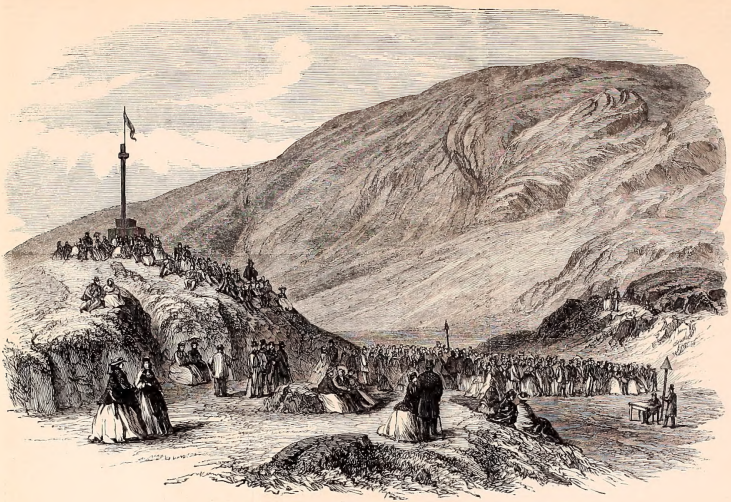
Covent Garden Market.—Thursday, Aug. 14.—Our market to-day was very moderately supplied with fruit, and the trade was very dull at Monday's quotations. Vegetables were in good request, and prices ruled high. Strawberries, the last few very large, at 4s. to 6s. per lb. The show of cherry was rather limited, increasing in quality, but not in value, on former terms. The best Bowns and bull breeds realised 6s. and 7s. per 8lb. The best lambs on offer were disposed of at 6s. 6d. per 8lb. Pigs, 5s. per 8lb. Raspberries, 1s. 6d. to 2s. per half-sieve. Plums, 1s. to 1s. 6d. per ½ lb. The new apples are not to be had as yet, but they will soon be very dull.

Per ton, to sink the offal—Inferior beasts, 3s. to 3s.; second quality ditto, 3s. 2d. to 3s. 4d.; prime large oxen, 3s. 6d. to 3s. 8d.; prime Scots, &c., 3s. 8d. to 3s. 10d.; coarse woolled sheep, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 6d.; prime Southdown ditto, 4s. to 4s. 2d.; lambs, 5s. to 6s. 6d.; and small pork, 4s. 8d. to 5s. 8d.; large ditto, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 6d. Calves, 4s. to 5s. per 8lb. Quarter-old store pigs, 18s. to 20s. each. Suckling calves, 18s. to 22s. each. Milch cows, £16 to £20 each. Quarter-old store sheep, 30s. to 35s. each. Horses and cattle, 70s. to 80s. each.

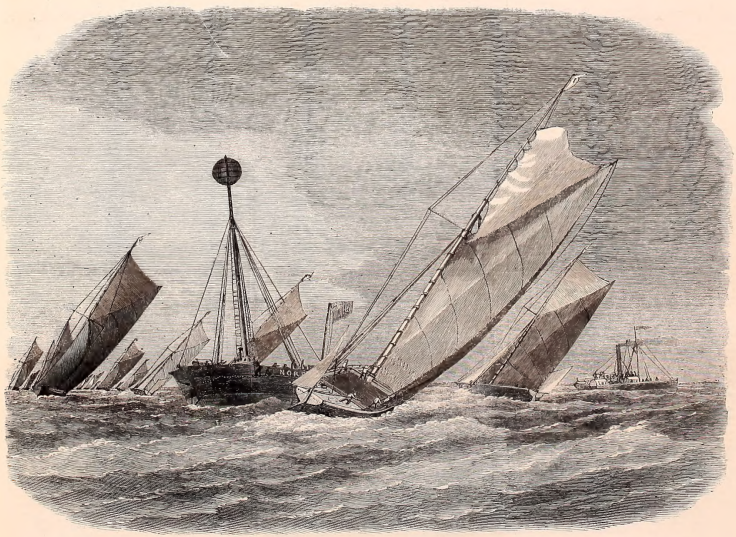
Newcastle Corn and Seed Market.—Prices must rule freely, at full quotations. Inferior grades are very dull. DOWNEY HUDSON.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.



FRIDAY, AUGUST 15.

BANKRUPTCY ANNULLED.



J. SPRINGETT, Cement-clase, City, and West Hackney, scullion.—J. S. COX, 7, Great Tower-street.

BANKRUPTS.

H. ALLEN, Bethnal-green, horsedealer.—C. CHATTERIS, Hemsprepel, builder.—S. CLARKE, Bristol, tailor.—J. COLLINS, Bristol, tailor.—J. DAVIES, Bristol, tailor.—J. DAVIES, Bristol, tailor.—J. DAVIES vegetables. The musical and athletic portion of the festival was more expressly instituted for the encouragement of vocal and instrumental music, systematic physical education, and athletic exercises amongst the volunteer corps in the counties of Lancashire, Cheshire, Yorkshire, Cumberland, Northumberland, and Westmorland. The pavilion on the Tuesday was well filled with a fashionable assemblage of ladies and gentlemen, but the entire number of visitors on that day did not exceed 2000. On the Wednesday there was a great improvement in the attendance, between 4000 and 5000 persons being present. The weather each day was fine, and nothing happened to spoil the enjoyment of the visitors. A vote of thanks to Mr. Ripley and another vote of thanks to the committee, but especially to Mr. Sly, were passed by general acclamation.

MEETING OF WELSH BARDS AT LYNN GEIRIONYDD, IN THE VALE OF CONWAY.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

SAILING-BARGE RACE ON THE THAMES: ROUNDING THE NORE LIGHT-SHIP.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

SIR W. J. HOOKER, D.C.L.

THE late Sir William Jackson Hooker, the eminent botanist and Director of the Royal Garden at Kew, though born at Norwich, in 1785, belonged to the same Exeter family which produced "the judicious Hooker," author of the "Treatise on Ecclesiastical Polity," in the sixteenth century. From his early youth he devoted himself to the study of natural science; and, having finished his University studies, joined an exploring expedition to Iceland, some account of which he published, in 1811, under the title of "Journal of a Tour to Iceland," with a particular description of the flora of that country. By this work, and by a "Monograph," published in 1813, on the "British Jungermannie"—cryptogamic plants somewhat resembling mosses—the reputation of Sir William Hooker as a botanist was soon established, and he was offered the Regius Professorship of his favourite science in the University of Glasgow, which he accepted and zealously discharged. In 1818 he published the "Musci Exotici Britannici," which was the first complete treatise on British mosses; it was followed by the "Musci Exotici," a description of the foreign species of moss then known. In 1821 he produced the "Flora Scotica," and in 1823 the "Flora Exotica," which contained a valuable description of many new plants susceptible of cultivation in this country. He also contributed the botanical portion of the work to Admiral Beechey's account of his voyage of discovery in the Arctic or Polar regions. From 1830 to 1833 he edited the Botanical Miscellany; and, about the same time, extended his "Flora Scotica" to the whole of the United Kingdom, forming the comprehensive view of our native botany entitled "The British Flora." A series of plates and descriptions of ferns, under the name of "Icones Filicum," was brought out by him during the ten years from 1827 to 1837. In 1836 he published a new edition of Smith's "Introduction to Physiological and Systematic Botany." Before this date, in 1835, he had received the honour of knighthood as a reward for his scientific and literary labours, and he also obtained the degree of D.C.L. at Oxford. He was then removed from Glasgow to Kew, and intrusted with the management of the Kew Gardens, for which he had shown great practical qualifications, having previously managed the Botanic Gardens at Glasgow. He has, with the assistance latterly of his son, Dr. Joseph Hooker, a botanist of no less reputation, made the collection of living plants, and the museum of botanical specimens at Kew, the most extensive, and in every way the most perfect, in the world. As editor of the Journal of Botany and Kew Garden Miscellany, Sir William Hooker has described and classified a great number of new plants, and placed the results of his more recent experience on a level with his former contributions to scientific literature; while his little manual, the "Guide to Kew Gardens," has been of equal popular usefulness to the multitude of inquiring visitors. Dr. Joseph Dalton Hooker, born at Halesworth, in 1817, was educated for the medical profession, but, as a naturalist, was engaged, in 1839, to accompany Sir James Ross in his expedition to the Antarctic regions. On his return, by order of the Lords of the Admiralty, he produced the fruits of his researches, in six quarto volumes, comprising the "Flora Antarctica," besides an account of the vegetation of Tasmania and New Zealand, with some valuable remarks on the distribution of plants over the earth. In 1847 Dr. Hooker went on a botanical mission to the Himalayas and to other regions of Northern India, of which he has given an instructive account in several publications. Since 1855 he has held the office of Assistant Director at Kew. Our Portrait of Sir William Hooker is from a photograph by Mr. Ernest Edwards, of Baker-street.

THE LATE SIR W. J. HOOKER, DIRECTOR OF THE ROYAL GARDENS AT KEW.

FLORAL, MUSICAL, AND ATHLETIC FESTIVAL AT SPRINGFIELD PARK, LANCASTER.—SEE PAGE 191.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

We have again to notice considerable inactivity in most departments of the Stock Exchange. The Railway Settlement in Consols, both for Money and Time, have been much restricted, and the quotations, owing to the absence of business, have varied but little. Home Railways, also, have changed scarcely anything. The total fall in them, however, has been trifling. The Unlisted Debt has been much depressed.

The imports of the previous months have been large. They have comprised £16,000 in gold from Australia, £120,000 by Australian Bank, £50,000 from the Cape, and £30,000 from other sources. The current demand has been very moderate.

On Monday Consols, for Transfer, left off at 95⅞. Bills, for Money, 2½ per Cent. Bills, for Account, 2½ per Cent. Three Months' Bills, 2¾ to 3. Six Months' Bills, 3¼ to 3⅜. Bills, Five per Cents, 99½. Bills, Four per Cents, 99½. The transactions on the following day were on a restricted scale. Consols, for Transfer, left off at 95⅞. Bills, for Money, 2½ per Cent. Bills, for Account, 2½ per Cent. Three Months' Bills, 2¾ to 3. Six Months' Bills, 3¼ to 3⅜. Bills, Five per Cents, 99½. Bills, Four per Cents, 99½. Transfers-at-Bank per Cent, 197½. Bills, Indian per Cent, 99. On Wednesday Consols, for Transfer, left off at 95⅞. Bills, for Money, 2½ per Cent. Bills, for Account, 2½ per Cent. Three Months' Bills, 2¾ to 3. Six Months' Bills, 3¼ to 3⅜. Bills, Five per Cents, 99½. Bills, Four per Cents, 99½. Transfers-at-Bank per Cent, 197½. Bills, Indian per Cent, 99. On Thursday the Settlement in Consols, for Money, was very moderate. Consols, for Money, were left off at 95⅞. Consols, for Account, 95⅞. Rentes and the Account were left off at 95⅞. Bills, for Money, 2½ to 2¾. Bills, for Account, 2½ per Cent. Three Months' Bills, 2¾ to 3. Six Months' Bills, 3¼ to 3⅜. Bills, Five per Cents, 99½. Bills, Four per Cents, 99½. Transfers-at-Bank per Cent, 197½. Bills, Indian per Cent, 99. On Friday Consols, for Transfer, left off at 95⅞. Bills, for Money, 2½ per Cent. Bills, for Account, 2½ per Cent. Three Months' Bills, 2¾ to 3. Six Months' Bills, 3¼ to 3⅜. Bills, Five per Cents, 99½. Bills, Four per Cents, 99½. Transfers-at-Bank per Cent, 197½. Bills, Indian per Cent, 99.

Shareholders in Canadian Railways have been in liquidated Consols, Telegraph 7½, Australian Mortgage, Land and Finance, 5½, Scotts 5½, Australian Agency, 6½, Bank of Australasia, 10, Bank of Victoria 10, Bank of New Zealand, 10, Queensland and National Banks, 8, Union Bank of Australia, 10, Commercial Bank of Australia, 10, Commercial Bank of Sydney, 10, Mercantile Bank of Sydney, 10, Bank of New South Wales, 10, Australian Joint Stock, 10, Australian Deposit and Mortgage, 10, Australian Estates and Mortgage, 10, Australian Investment, 10, Australian Trust and Agency, 10, Australian Widows' Fund, 10, Australian Provident Investment, 10, Australian Alliance, 10, Australian Insurance, 10, Australian Mutual Provident, 10, Australian Provident, 10, Australian Trust

NEW MUSIC.

LA MURSKA WALSE. This elegant and fascinating Waltz, composed and dedicated to Madlle. Ilma de Murska by Charles Coote, is published with a Portrait of the Siren, in new polished, coloured style. Price 24 stamps. Also, by the same composer, a charming Melody founded by herself. Ball for Beauty.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR, Reverie for Piano. Played by Madame Otilia Hagen before the Prince and Princess of Wales. "An extraordinary effect has already run through the provincial orchestras."—Era.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO'S NEW SONGS.

THE UNITED SERVICE QUADRILLE. By A. C. Godfrey (Trumpeter of the Coldstream Guards). Piano Solo, with Cornet, ad libitum. 24 stamps.

THE LAST GALOP. By H. Golding (Conductor of the Grenadier Guards). Piano Solo, 24 stamps.

THE CURATE. Song by Hollis Linton. 24 stamps.

B.B. The above three pieces are played and sung with enthusiastic applause at the Royal Gardens.

THE LOVE LETTER. Song by Miss Lindsay Sloper. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. 24 stamps.

THE CHURCH BELLS. Song by Miss Lindsay Sloper. 24 stamps.

GOOD-MORNING (G. Act). Song by Mdlle. Liebhart. 2s. 6d.

GOOD-NIGHT, SAY, SAY, Song by Miss Lindsay Sloper. 2s. 6d.

THE SOUL OF THE SEA. (C. Lefort). Sung by Mme. Sherrington. 2s. 6d.

THE SHEPHERD'S CHANGELING. By Stephen Glover. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.

THE PRETTY SMILE WALTZES. By H. J. Roberts. In FAMILIE'S FAVOURITE WALTZES. 24 stamps. Also, in HAMILTON'S SINGING TUTOR. Price 24 stamps. Also, in HAMILTON'S ARRANGEMENT of the Beethoven of Music, 32nd Edition. 24 stamps.

All the above at half price, with sixteen extra for postage.

ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, W. Agents for India, Hayes, Buckingham and Co., Calcutta.

Sung by Mdlle. Liebhart at Mellon's Concerts.

BENÉ & RIDICOLO. By A. RANDEGGER. This popular Gavotte is also published with English words—"Love's Dream." 24 stamps.

METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Sung by Mdlle. Liebhart at Mellon's Concerts.

L'ESTASI. Capriccio à la Valse. By E. SILETTI. Also, as Edition with Pianoforte Accompaniment. 24 stamps.

METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE WEARING OF THE GREEN. Fantasia for Cornet. By T. BROWNE. 2s. 6 postfree for 30 stamps. Also, the Fantasia for Flute. 2s. 6d. net.

METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

TWO NEW SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

THE LOST CHORD. THREE ROSES. Price 24 stamps each.

METZLER and Co., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

WALTZ OF THE SEASONS. By ANDREW MEDLEY. By JOSEF GUNGL. Price—Solo, 4s.; Duet, 4s. This most beautiful waltz was danced at the Royal Ball, with great success, at Covent Garden Theatre. Just published at half price, postfree for 24 stamps. Also, the Quadrille and Polka are now ready. Each 4s. net. The celebrated dance-music composer.

JULLIEN'S. — NOTICE OF REMOVAL. A. HAMMOND and CO. (late Jullien), Music Publishers, &c., by succession to the Compositions, as the Sole Proprietors of JULLIEN'S will be REMOVED, from 214, Regent-street, to more Spacious Premises, at 29, Vigo-street, Regent-street, W.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPÔT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED to 101, Strand, Corner of Norfolk, London. A new Catalogue, with all news, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and prices gratis and postfree.

MUSICAL-BOX DÉPÔTS, 22, Ludgate-hill, and 56, Cheapside.—Nicole Frères' Latest Improved Boxes, 4 air-pipe Shell-faces, 4s. 6d. to 40s. each. Catalogues gratis and post-free on application to WALKER and Co., 56, Cheapside.

REVERSIONARY INTEREST, PROPERTY and LIFE and FINANCE INQUIRY SOCIETY. Prospectus on application at the Offices, 28, Cornhill-street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

A. CAMPBELL, A.A., Secretary (pro tem).
D. E. EDGINGTON, Solicitor, Secretary.

CONVERTIBLE OTTOMANS for centre of room, for bedrooms and two sets of chairs for dining-room department.—J. H. FILMER and SONS, 31, 32, and 33, Brunswick-square, Foundling-hospital, Manufacturers and Patentees.

SULTANA'S OIL of BAGDAD, fragrant as with the breath of the Rose Bower, restores scalp hair to strength and beauty when all other means fail. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers, and beautifying circulars free, 1s. 6d., 3s., 5s., 10s. 2d. (Sultana).—Fulton Sultana and Co., Royal Perfumers, 54, Poultry; and 493, Oxford-street Perfumers and Hairdressers.

SWEET OPPONAX.—PIESSE and LUBIN'S NEW PERFUME.—Opponax has a delicious fragrance, resembling, but surpassing, "I am not surprised to hear that it is the favourite perfume of the Empress Eugénie, and seem ever to be associated, for it enhances the beauty and gracefulness of the most fair."—Court Journal. Sold by Piesse and Lubin, 2, New Bond-street, W.

PIESSE and LUBIN'S PERFUMES, White Rose, Tropical Bouquet, Sweet Daphne, Lotos-opening-the-bosom, Opopanax, Nymph-aqua, Narcissus, Violeta, Violet, Violet, and others from the Gardens of Grasse, are a Fragrance. 2s. 6d. bottles.

Sold by fashionable Chemists and Perfumers in all parts of world. Laboratory of Perfumes, 2, New Bond-street, London, W.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses the power of restoring the hair to its original colour, and promoting its luxuriant growth. The genuine is signed NAPOLEON PRICE. Proprietors, Price and Co., 37, Old Bond-st., 24, Cockspur-st., and 169, Fleet-st.

TOURISTS, TRAVELLERS, VISITORS to the HIGHLANDS will derive support in the fatigue and heat, and the appliances of ROWLAND'S KALYDOR both cooling and refreshing to the skin, and will prevent the unpleasant effects of sunburn, freckles, and cutaneous eruptions. Sold by Chemists, and by the Hair Dressers. Price 4s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. per bottle.

Ask for "ROWLAND'S KALYDOR," and beware of spurious and pernicious articles sold under the names of "Kalydor."

BOND'S PERMANENT MARKING-INK is the best for marking linen, calico, silk, muslin, cambric, &c. Sold by all Chemists, Stationers, &c. Written Directions how to use it. Sole Manufactory, 18, Great Russell-st., W.C., upon the island.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain the fullest relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER. It restores weak eyesight, relieves from all pain, and strengthens the nerves.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-street; Proud, Edmund; Hay, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an old-established remedy for Sick and Nervous Headache of every kind and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—76, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY. MESSRS. LEWIN and HENRY MOSELY and SON, 30, Sackville-st., Oxford-st., and 10, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station), Dentists by Special Appointment, are enabled, from their large and comfortable class up to great public Consultation Rooms, for the efficacy, safety, and success of their practice, to refer to upwards of Thirty Thousand of all Nations, Ranks, and Professions, Gratuitously; and, from extreme, Lowest; and (A. M. Nobodies—A. Society) Fee reasonable with anyone in any case in hand.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—PETER ROBINSON'S SILK and DRAPERY WAREHOUSE, for the Coloured Goods, Mantles, Shawls, Dresses, Linens, &c., is at 103, 104, 105, and 106, Oxford-street.

Peter Robinson's MOURNING WAREHOUSE is at 256 to 262, Regent-street.

Patterns of all goods post-free, for advertisements to follow.

FOULARD SILKS, most desirable Dress for the present season.

PETER ROBINSON has purchased upwards of 800 of these fashionable Dresses, at a very large discount from the original prices, and will sell them at the following very moderate and reduced prices. Those that have been selling at 3½ guineas have been reduced to 2½ guineas; those that have been sold at 4½ guineas have been reduced at 3½ guineas; and those that have been sold at 5½ guineas are now offered at 4½ guineas. Patterns of the Foulards, with a drawing of the Dress, sent free on application.

Patterns post-free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street.

FOR WEDDING DRESSES. PETER ROBINSON has the honour to direct the attention of his Silk Department, containing a magnificent collection of New and Rich Silks, specially suitable for Wedding Dresses and Trousseaux, purchased by him for their eminent manufacturers previous to the late panic.

Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street.

CORDED and PLAIN SILKS. 40 New Shades just received in our special order.

Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street.

FOR YOUNG LADIES. A Beautifully bright, Checked, and Striped SILK, in perfectly new and elegant designs, and in the most fashionable colours, for 1868, a most delightful wedding and dinner Dress, at the low price of 2½ 6d. to 2½ guineas the full Dress.

Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street, W.

WATERPROOF MANTLES for Travelling and Seaside, in various colours and sizes. Fig. 61. A plain, unornamented Mantle, made of fine cloth. Fig. 62. Of nice, unornamental cloth, 36 in. long, 54 in. round. Fig. 63. Of fine cloth, richly trimmed with velvet and buttons. Fig. 64. Of fine cloth, richly trimmed with velvet and buttons. Sizes, 42 to 52 in.

REAL SEAL-FUR PALETOTS. 30 in. deep, 24 inches round. 34 in. deep, 4 guineas. 36 in. deep, 5 guineas. 40 in. deep, 6 guineas. 36 in. deep, 10 guineas. 40 in. deep, 12 to 20 guineas.

ALL CLOTH JACKETS and MANTLES, and all other Mantles of this summer fabrics at greatly reduced prices.

PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street.

MOURNING PREPARED for FAMILIES at a few hours' notice.

LADIES' TRAVELLING SUITS. For the present season, a large assortment of Ladies' ready-made Costumes (Designless), in Plain and Fancy Cloths, Poils de Chevre, Mohairs, Cloth, Bingham, &c., from 1½ guineas to 5 guineas the Suit.

PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street, W.

AT REDUCED PRICES.

SEASIDE DRESSES. Several Hundred Useful Dresses, Designless, Fashionable, are now being sold at Half their Value, A very large quantity at 1½ guinea the Dress and Polonaise. To 2½, 3s., 3½, 4s., 4½, 5s., 5½, 6s., and 7s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street, W.

REDUCED IN PRICE ALL THE CHOICE NEW ORGANDIE MUSLINS, British, French, and Swiss Printings, 8d., 9d., 10d., 11d., 1s., and 1s. 6d. the Full Dress. All Immense variety of patterns post-free. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street, W.

CLOSE OF THE SEASON.

CHEAP SILK DRESSES. A new series of colours in the Plain Mantua Cloth, 18s. 6d. to 1 guinea the Full Dress. Also Striped, Checked, and Chené Silks, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s., 5s. 6d., 6s., 7s. 6d. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street.

CLOSE OF THE SEASON.

NEW AUTUMN DRESSES, in every Fabric, Colour, and Style, from 1½ guinea to 10 guineas the Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street, W.

DEAP DE CHERBOURG, A new plain Fabric, in all Colours, 9½d. 6d. Full Dress. Also, in Checks and Stripes, 10½d., 1s., 1s. 3d., 1s. 6d. the Dress. All Fancy Materials, Designless, at 1s. 6d., 2s., 2s. 6d., 3s., 3s. 6d., 4s. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street, W.

Second Quality Best Makers in Paris.

PARIS CORDED and POPELINES. A most useful and cheap Dress, 25s. for 5 guineas. Its new Shades, 5½ guineas. Also, Checked and Striped Chenés. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 106, Oxford-street, W.

Every New Colour in

REAL ALPACA WINCEYS, 9d., 9½, 10, 10½, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50,

NEW MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grenadier Guards. Nightly encored at Mabley's Concerts, "Mr. Godfrey's new waltz, 'Mabel,' promises to rival in popularity his 'Guards' Waltz,' so universally admired."—Times, Aug. 8. "Mr. Godfrey's new waltz, 'Mabel,' is already the rage, the orchestral "Grenadier Galop" in popularity."—Daily Telegraph, Aug. 8. Solo or Duet; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 4s.; Brass Band, 2s. 6d.; Military Band, 2s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

Just published,

MABEL. A Song, written by Henry Farnie, adapted to the melody of "The Maid Walts," by D. GODFREY, Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

WEARIN' O' THE GREEN.—The only correct Edition of Words and Music, as sung by Mr. Benjamin Lumley, at Mr. Arthur Sullivan's Matinée, July 27. Price 2s. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music for Pianoforte and Voice published by CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE, as performed at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden. The whole of the Music of the last and greatest work of Meyerbeer is published by Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street, where the Opera may be seen or heard.

The Opera complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, with French, Italian, or English Words, net £1 0 0

The Overture ... ... Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s. each 0 0 0

Grand Indian March 0 4 0

Pas de Fleurs 0 4 0

CHAMPI, G., Nocturne di Melodie 0 3 0

DOPPLER, Grande Fantaisie 0 4 0

CALLCOTT, W. H., Reminiscences ... ... Solo or Duet ... 0 4 0

CZERNY, Fantasia 0 4 0

ETTE, C., Duets—"The Africaine," No. 1 and 2 ... each ... 0 3 0

FLADGATE, Grand Grand Fantasia 0 4 0

GOEDBE, G. A.—Grand Duet 0 4 0

GUEY, Milan—Grand Fantasia 0 4 0

RICHARDS, BRINLEY.—March Indienne 0 3 0

Ditto—Fantasia (containing the celebrated unison Chorus, which was nightly encored) 0 4 0

RIMBAULT.—Gems of "L'Africaine" ... ... each 0 0

No. 1, Grand Duet for Two Pianos, 8 Hands (of No. 2, Selection of Pieces. 4, The Grand Duet. 5, The Slumber Song. 6, The Grand Duet. 7, Adieu, terre de Dieu, terre de bonheur for full score.

RIMBAULT.—Fantasia for Harmonium Piano-forte 2 0

Ditto—Fantasia for Harmonium and Piano-forte 2 0

Other Arrangements are in the Press by Fuchs, &c.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. Peter's, Eaton Square, Christmas and Easter Days, arranged for the Pianoforte by F. VITIANI. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW WALTZES by D'ALBERT. In the press, and will shortly be published, Two New Waltzes by Charles D'Albert—Les Belles Filles de Cadix, and Mabel.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte by KUHE.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by K. F. SIMDALUT. Price 1s. each.

No. 1. The Guards' Waltz. | No. 4. Fairy Queen Waltz.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz. | No. 5. The Jacket Galop.
No. 3. The Guards' Galop. | No. 6. The Mabel Quadrille.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SI' VOUS N'AVEZ RIEN A ME DIRE, Romance sung by Mdlle. Adeline Patti. Composed by Ambroise Thomas. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE MUSIC.—A new Edition of this justly esteemed work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," &c. Also, the Overture to "Zampa," and the Overture to "Masaniello," and numerous other pieces, arranged in progressive order, from the easiest to the most difficult. Price 4s. each. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. Benedict's favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS, for PIANOFORTE. Sorrow (a Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

DON GIOVANNI. Fantasia on Airs from Mozart's Grand Opera, for the Pianoforte. By RENE FAVARGER. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on Favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE WALTZ, STRAUSS. 4s.
LA BELLE HÉLÈNE QUADRILLES, STRAUSS. 3s.
LA BELLE HÉLÈNE POLKA, STRAUSS. 3s.
LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, arranged for Voice and Pianoforte. 10s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO:
A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, for the use of those who play the organ for divine service and secular purposes, by EDWARD TAYLOR. Each voluntary consists from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one original composition by the editor. Book 1, in handsome cover, price 5s. 6d., or in two books, each in case, price 3s. each. Vol. II. is in the press. A thematic list of contents may be had on application.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITE QUADRILLES, For the Violin, and Flute. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the Guards' Waltz, by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin, and Flute, each 1s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street. ✱

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps. Catalogues gratis and postage-free.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE,

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE. 4s., to the favourite of the season.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW GALOP.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. 2s. (Eclipse all other.)

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT MELLON'S CONCERTS.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC GALOPADE, a new, redecorated edition.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW GALOP OF LANCERS.

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. No dance programmes complete without them.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

COOTE'S CLARIBEL WALTZ, founded on the popular Song, "I Dreamt that I dwelt in Marble Halls," and other melodies by Balfe. Written expressly for Mr. Alfred Mellon's Concerts. Published this day. Very beautifully illustrated.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

COOTE'S NEW CLARIBEL WALTZ. This day.—BOOSEY and CO.

CUSHA, By DOLORES, Author of "The Rosary." Sung by Madame Rudersdorff and Kate Ewelle ... ... 4s.

MANCHETTE. By MAUSS. A new and very effective piece for the Piano.—BOOSEY and CO.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music published by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

L'AFRICAINE.—The celebrated Symphonic Melody in the fifth act, universally encored, arranged for the Pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 3s.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

L'AFRICAINE.—The Grand Marche Indienne and Ballet Music, arranged for Pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 3s. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

L'AFRICAINE. By RÉNÉ FAVARGER. Fantasia on the most admired airs. Price 4s.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

L'AFRICAINE. By Mdme. OURY. Fantasia in brilliant and effective style. Price 3s.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NEW SONG by VIRGINIA GABRIEL, "NIGHTFALL AT SEA. Sorrels. The most charming of all Miss Gabriel's compositions.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NEW PIECE by VIRGINIA GABRIEL, "Fantasia in the Form of a Rondo for Pianoforte. A plaintive, simple, and most beautiful piece. Price 3s. 6d.

BOOSEY and CO.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. Arranged for the Pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 3s.

BOOSEY and CO.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS, Arranged for the Pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 3s.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. Arranged one very brilliant piece by BERGER. Price 3s.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NEW PIECE by FORBES, Author of "Scipione," FANTAISIE MILITAIRE. By George Forbes, Author of "Scipione," "Operetta," &c. Brilliantly illustrated by Brandard. Price 3s.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NEW SONGS By Mrs. CAMPBELL (of Drimnacarbaig).
THE LAST SONG I SANG IN SUNSHINE ... ... 3s. 6d.
YOUNG DUNCAN ... ... 3s. 6d.
MELVIL CASTLE (as old Scotch Song) ... ... 3s. 6d.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS.

COOTE'S ORPHÉE VALSE, Price 4s. Also, ORPHÉE QUADRILLE, by COOTE. Price 3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THREE O'CLOCK GALOP. By HAGENMEYER. Price 3s. With a famous Chorus, Author of "Masaniello," "Operetta," &c. Brilliantly illustrated by Brandard. Price 3s.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF

OH, WHERE, OH, WHERE IS MY BIRD? The most Chilly Song. Price 3s. 6d. (Creating a perfect furore.—Hertfordshire and Cheshire Mail. By Sir JULIUS BENEDICT.

ENCORED NIGHTLY, AT ST. JAMES'S HALL.

SIGHING FOR THEE. By FRED ROCKEL. Sung by Madame Rudersdorff.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE CELEBRATED FEDERAL GLOOMING SONG.

JOHN BROWN'S BODY LIES mouldering in the grave, but his soul keeps marching on. Price 3s. 6d.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A FIRST-RATE SENTIMENT.

PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE. Price 3s. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE, price 3s. Very amusing.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CREATES ROARS OF LAUGHTER.

JOLLY CATS, THERE THEY ARE AGAIN! HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP. 3s. On the universal "Sing, Song I have no wife again." The most monumental music. Encored nightly. Illustrated. Played everywhere. Intensely illustrated. May be had of every music-seller. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP. 3s. On the universal "Sing, Song I have no wife again." As performed at Mellon's Concerts. Illustrated. Encored nightly. Intensely illustrated. May be had of every music-seller.

ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

LANGTON WILLIAMS' OPERETTA, the Little Scotch Rose. Words by Mrs. Langton Williams. Music by Langton Williams. Price 2s. 6d.
The most admirable pieces are—
"The first sweet dream of love." Sung by Miss Keeley. 3s. 6d.
"Dress will be torn." Sung by Mr. Wadlie. 3s.
"Oh, Mary, dear Mary." Duet. 3s.
"Oh, Mary, dear Mary." Arranged for Pianoforte by Kuhe. 3s. 6d.
W. WILLIAMS and CO., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

HARMONIUMS
BOOSEY and CO.'S
NEW PATENT HARMONIUMS
Are now ready for delivery, and may be had on the easiest terms. Lists of prices and testimonials may be had on application at
BOOSEY and CO.'S
24, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES
BOOSEY and CO.'S
THE Miniature, price 17 guineas; the check-action Pianette, price 20 guineas; the Cottage Piano, price 25 guineas; the Cottage Piano, price 27 guineas, &c. Lists of prices and testimonials may be had on application at 24, Holles-street, W.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by CASELLER, the original inventor of the full-compass instrument, warranted for his climate and to keep well in tune, from Two Pounds upwards.—CASELLER, 20, Rupert-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE ROOMS, 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND BROADWOOD GRANDS, SECONDHAND BROADWOOD COTTAGES, SECONDHAND SQUARES, SECONDHAND SHARP GRANDS.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE ROOMS.—Secondhand Broadwood Grand Pianofortes, 70 guineas; secondhand Broadwood Cottage Pianofortes, 40 guineas; secondhand Broadwood Square Pianofortes, 18 guineas; secondhand Sharp Grand Pianofortes, in rosewood case; secondhand Broadwood Cottage Pianofortes, in rosewood case; secondhand Cabinet Cottage Pianofortes, in rosewood case.

50, New Bond-street.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL'S.—ALEXANDRE'S best Instruments—

	For Months.
No. 1 and 2. One Stop	10s. 6d.
3. Two Stops	15s. 6d.
4. Five Stops	21s. 0d.
5. Ten Stops	31s. 6d.
6. Twelve Stops	42s. 0d.
7. Ten Stops, Forzando Action	31s. 6d.
10. Fourteen Stops	52s. 6d.
11. Fifteen Stops	63s. 0d.
12. Fifteen Stops	73s. 6d.
13. Twenty-two Stops, Two Key-boards	105s. 0d.
Organ, Solid Oak Case	105s. 0d.
DRAWING-ROOM MODELS.
No. 1. Three Stops, Knee Swell and Knee Swells	31s. 6d.
2. Five Stops	42s. 0d.
3. Eleven Stops	84s. 0d.

N.B. A liberal reduction from the above charges on hiring for three months.

In the case of purchase purchasing and paying for an Instrument within six months from the time of hiring, the amount then for hire will be given up in lieu of discount for ready money.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas; also, other sizes, from 20 guineas upwards. Illustrated lapture of Prince Napoleon's Harmonium, with Testimonials, sent free by

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two treadles, and knee stop. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Lists sent free by application to

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS by ALEXANDRE, nearly all not quite a year old, at great reductions.—CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM for the CHURCH, 12 stops, 2 rows of vibrators, knee swell, and pedals, elevated by the best of the right feet, in oak case, 92 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S 20-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, which has just gained the only prize medal for cottage pianos at the Exhibition, 1862, and the universal approval of the public, is the best pianoforte for the money. All other instruments at Chappell and Co.'s, No. 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes for SALE or HIRE, including the most recent kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street, at the new Show-room of Messrs. Broadwood and Co., 33, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S PRIZE MEDAL PIANINO (25 gns.) only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded, 1862. Check-action, trichord compass, full, rich, and sympathetic quality of tone, and most perfect touch, exclusively adopted in Steyl, Berlin, Munich, Dresden, &c., and pronounced by all to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.

Price, in rosewood case, 25 guineas; in walnut, 28 and 30 guineas. A great variety may be seen at

CHAPPELL and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the full, rich, and sympathetic quality of tone produced by the English Model will be found the most perfect Pianoforte ever produced at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above cabinet model, exclusively adopted in the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many if not all. Price, in rosewood case, 30 guineas; in walnut, 32 guineas; every repair for seven years, 5 guineas; in oak, 28 guineas; in walnut, 30 guineas.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS, Cornets, Trumpets, Tenor Trombone, Bass Trombone, &c., in all parts of the kingdom, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, supplied by Artist Medal, Paris, 1855, and prize medal, with double valve-slide, to case, 21 5s. Other Cornets, from 10s.—Manufactory, Haymarket, London. Price-lists free. BUTLER and CO.

KEVY PERFORMS on "DISTIN'S PATENT ECHO CORNET" at MELLON'S PROMENADE CONCERTS. List of Prices of Cornets post-free from DISTIN and CO., Manufacturers, 48, Regent-street, London.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist to Hair, Solid Gold Lockets, for Hair, from 3s. 6d.; Brooches, from 5s. 6d.; Rings, from 2s. 6d.; Bracelets, from 10s. 6d. Illustrated Catalogues sent free.—5, Regent-street, London.

STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS for CHURCHES and DWELLINGS.
HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNE'S Stained Glass Catalogue, containing 16 pages of Illustrations, including completed Windows at the Temple Church, Hampton Court Palace, Lincoln Cathedral, Ely Cathedral, Rochester Cathedral, Boston, Boston, Butler, and Bayne, New King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO, Manufacturers to the Queen, and to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Electro-Silver Plate, for Dinner à la Russe, Electro-Silver Dish Covers and Corner Dishes, Electro-Silver Cruet Frames and Stands, Electro-Silver Tea and Coffee Sets, Electro-Silver Fish Carvers, in case, Electro-Silver Dessert Knives and Forks, in cases, Table Knives of unsurpassed excellence, Electro-Silver Spoons and Forks, Pattern and Quality as under Guinea Fiddle. Fiddle Thread. Kings. 37 and 38, Oxford-street; and 71 and 72, Cornhill, Manufactory, Queen's Cutlery Works, Sheffield. Illustrated Catalogue and Price-list sent free by post on application.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Celebrated DRESSING CASES completely fitted with every article DRESSING BAGS | DESPATCH BOXES and DISPATCH BOXES, fitted with Cutlery and Stationery. DESKS | WRITING CASES | TRAVELLING BAGS

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality, strong, and serviceable, for Hotels, Messrs. Gardner's Manufactory to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (3 doors from Somerset House).

GARDNERS' LAMPS and CHANDELIERS, for Moderator and Paraffin Table Lamps.—Ormolu, Marble, Bronze, Glass, Porcelain, and Papier Mâché Lamps, Chandeliers, Candelabra, &c. 453, Strand.

CASELLER'S Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze, Medieval Pillar, &c. A large assortment of Lamps, Chandeliers, &c., fitted complete with plain Burners, 21 to 21 guineas; the Regicide easy-chair, 10s.; couch to correspond, 30s.; Caseller's Portable Reading Table, with movable top, 10s. 6d.; Caseller's Portable Writing Desk, four drawers and easy top, 15s.; ditto in bath, from 47s 6d; 20, Rupert-street, 44, Haymarket.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE, 34 WAUGH and SON, 7 and 8, Goodge-street; and 65 and 66, Tottenham-court-road, Manufacturers of Brussels, Tapestry, Kidderminster, and Wilton Carpets.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, 59, Gracechurch-street, 13, Bond-street, Liverpool; celebrated ELASTIC STITCH FAMILY MACHINES, with all the recent improvements, sent to best and cheapest over offered. For Family Use or Every Description of Work, from the finest Cambric to the thickest Cloth. Prospectuses and Samples of Work sent free. They stitch, hem, fell, bind, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider; are very easily worked, and not liable to get out of order. Upwards of 100,000 machines now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instructions gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES.—Price Model 1857.—Three Hundred Thousand of these celebrated Machines are now in use. Exclusive, exact because and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with unsurpassed rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching forms on both sides of the material in a different row of stitches, and is alike perfect on each side. No. 2, Newgate-street, and Regent-street, Cheapside, London.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.—TOURIST TICKETS at CHEAP FARES, available for One Calendar Month, are ISSUED at the MIDLAND BOOKING-OFFICES, KING'S-CROSS, and other principal Stations on the Midland System, and Tourist Offices, 98, Fleet-street (corner of Bride-lane).

SCOTLAND—Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dunblane, Stirling, Perth, Dundee, Aberdeen, Inverness, &c.

IRELAND—Belfast, Portrush, for Giant's Causeway.

ENGLAND—Matlock, Buxton, Chesterfield, Derby, Tewkesbury, Gloucester, Cirencester, Penrith, Keswick, Morecambe, &c.

SEASIDE and BATHING-PLACES—Scarborough, Whitby, Filey, Bridlington, Hornsea, Withernsea, Hunstanton, Ilfracombe, Torquay, Teignmouth, Dawlish, &c.

Programmes and full particulars may be obtained at all the Company's Stations and Offices.

Inquire at King's-cross for Tickets viâ Midland Railway.

JAMES ALLPORT, General Manager, Derby.

LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY.—Through Booking between LONDON and LAND.—Fast through trains between London and Liverpool, by two routes.

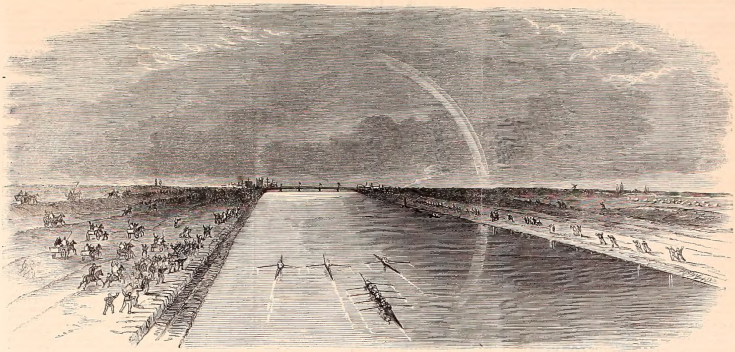
Leave Euston at 10.5 a.m. ... ... 11.30 a.m.
Arrive at Liverpool at 4.0 p.m. ... ... 5.30 p.m.

Tourists' Tickets, available for One Calendar Month, are issued from London to Liverpool, Chester, and Rhyl, at the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd class fares. Also, special-service trains between London and Scotland, and between Liverpool and Scotland, at the usual express fares. Sleeping cars for first-class passengers only.

By order, W. CAWKWELL, General Manager.

Euston Station, July 31, 1865.

ISLE OF MAN.
THE ISLE'S ROYAL HOTEL, DOUGLAS, on the Fine Sandy Beach and Bay of the Promenade.



ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837), Chief Office, 3, Parliament-street, 12, Waterloo-place, S.W.

Agents wanted in towns not represented.

LOANS ON DEBENTURE.—The Great LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY is prepared to receive MONEY to replace Loans falling due.—Apply to the Secretary, 3, Parliament-street, S.W.

Bishopsgate-Tavern, London, 7th August, 1865.

THE NEW ZEALAND.
Bankers in the Government of New Zealand, the Australian Provinces, and Van Diemen's Land.
CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVED FUND, £125,000.
Head Office, 7, Princes-street, Bank, London.
Auckland, Russell, Kawhia, Christchurch, Nelson, Wellington, Taranaki, Wanganui, Napier, Hawke's Bay, Otago, Canterbury, Invercargill, Picton, Dunedin

SCULLING MATCH FOR £20 BETWEEN KELLEY, CHAMBERS, AND COOPER, IN THE EAU BRINK CUT, KING'S LYNN.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS IN THE INNER HARBOUR OF CHERBOURG, IN HONOUR OF THE BRITISH CHANNEL SQUADRON.—SEE PAGE 212.

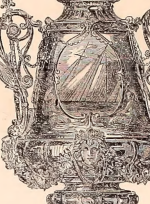
GREAT SCULLING-MATCH AT KING'S LYNN.

THE great aquatic sweepstakes for £250, between Robert Chambers, of St. Anthony's, the champion of the Tyne; Henry Kelley, of Putney, the champion of the Thames; and Robert Cooper, of Redheugh, near Newcastle, came off on Friday, over the Ouse championship course, in the Eau Brink Cut, King's Lynn, a distance of 3300 yards. Of the £250, the King's Lynn Regatta Committee gave the sum of £100 (on condition that three should start), Kelley, Chambers, and Cooper each staking £50, the first man receiving £200, the second saving his stake. The championship course is a beautiful piece of water for a boat-race, being perfectly straight for two miles, and 350 ft. wide. Being above the bridge, no steamers can interrupt the course. Kelley and Chambers, on this occasion, both used the same boats in which they contended with each other, two or three weeks ago, on the Thames; while Cooper rowed in a new skiff which has been built by Jewett, of Newcastle, and is named after the builder. It is a perfect model of lightness, as the following dimensions will show:—Length, 32 ft. 6 in.; breadth, 10¼ in.; depth, 5½ in.; and weight is only 29 lb. The banks of the Ouse had never presented such a sight as on the day of the race. The Great Eastern Railway Company brought about a thousand excursionists from the metropolis; but many of the Tynesiders were prevented from seeing the race through being compelled to put into Lowestoft harbour in consequence of bad weather. The weather cleared up and was beautifully fine, and, the wind dropping, there was scarcely a ripple on the water. The referee was pulled in an eight by a picked crew of London watermen. After several false starts, in which Robert Cooper showed a great anxiety to get away, a good start was effected, Cooper getting away with the lead, followed by Kelley, and Chambers last. At 150 yards Cooper had obtained a lead of a quarter of a length, and soon commenced rowing across to Kelley, but still maintaining a lead; at a quarter of a mile Kelley was challenging Cooper, and closed Chambers; but Cooper, sputting, put a half length between himself and his antagonist. At 700 yards Kelley bored his man, but gave way, giving Cooper the advantage. Kelley then drew up dead level at half a mile. The scenes of the partisans were now vociferous. Chambers was now three lengths in the rear, but pulling a very good stroke. At 1000 yards Cooper began to bore Kelley into the west shore. At three quarters of a mile it was a splendid race, probably the most wonderful ever rowed. Cooper was in front, but Kelley spurted and drew up dead level; Cooper responded to a spurt. Chambers falling still more in the rear. There was no alteration in the relative positions of the men, except that Cooper bored Kelley to such an extent that loud cries were heard of "Pool him, Harry!" At the mile and a half, Cooper, about half clear, tried to take Kelley's water, and fouled. Kelley at once gave way, and, taking the middle of the stream, rolled gallantly along, Cooper passing the judge a length in front of Kelley, who was three lengths before Chambers. The referee disqualified Cooper for the foul, and Kelley was therefore declared the winner—a result that was hailed with great cheering by the Londoners and their party. The conditions were that, if there occurred, the winner should receive £200, and the second £50; but that if only two came to the post a first prize of £150 should be given. The Mayor of Lynn (Mr. W. H. Monument) was final stakeholder. The match excited very general interest, and the day was observed, to a considerable extent, as a holiday at Lynn. Our illustration is from a sketch by Mr. Robert Elwes, of that place.

ROYAL VICTORIA YACHT CLUB.

THE annual regatta of this club, at Ryde, was brought to a close at the end of last week, terminating on the Saturday with boat-races and other aquatic sports. The race for the Commodore's cup, on the Friday, was rather a spirited affair. We have engraved a representation of the cup, which was given by Mr. Charles Thellusson, the Commodore, value £100. It is a burnish tasked in silver, parcel-gilt, "as in olden time," illustrative of the favourite sport of the Wild Huntsman." In the front of the cup is a stag, the Badminton or champagne to be poured through the "antlered monarch's lips. On the handle is a crouching hound, and on each side a hound ready to spring, watching the stag. The cover is surmounted by a finely-executed prancing steed bearing "Diana of the Wild Huntsmen." The work was executed by Messrs. London and Ryder, of New Bondstreet, who also designed and manufactured the handsome group in silver representing Venus and Adonis. The Commodore's prize was open to all yachts belonging to the Royal Victoria Club, was, starting westward, round the Isle of Wight; a time race; half Aiders' scale; 3 yards to class as cutters, with one clear deck of their tonnage deducted. Seven yachts were entered, but only four appeared at the start—namely, the Marina, cutter, 61 tons; Mr. J. C. Mercer; Witchcraft, schooner, 224 tons, Mr. T. Broadwood; Osprey, cutter, 62 tons, Mr. F. T. Stanley; Pearl, yawl, 163 tons, Mr. J. S. Dunnage. The wind, N.W., blew fresh and strong, the sky being clear. At starting they had a strong weather westgoing tide, which set them well up to windward and accelerated their progress to the Needles. The Witchcraft had a good weather berth when the gun fired, the Pearl under her lee quarter of a mile, the Witchcraft reached across the mouth of Southampton Water to Hillhead, but following in her wake, both passed out of much of the weather tide, and were headed by the wind that drew down the river. The Witchcraft, under a good full, was reaching astonishingly fast, compared to all her previous performances—weathering the Pearl on every tack; and at 10.56 the yawl, trying another course, went about short, a little southward of the Pool buoy, under the lee of the Witchcraft, as that vessel was standing out from Old Castle Point; and she was still the leading vessel when they sailed out of sight from Ryde Pier, at ten a.m., on their course W. by S. for the Needles; wind W.N.W. The Marina kept on the weather of the Osprey, in working towards Cowes; the latter vessel, however, forereached her upon every tack, and was kept up to windward, like the Marina, she still kept astern. Neither stood so long to the north shore as the Witchcraft and Pearl, in working down; and it could be seen, by the distances that separated them upon their going out of sight, that they, by making shorter boards, had shared the wisest course. In the best for the Needles the yachts changed positions, the Osprey overhauling the Marina and the Pearl; and they passed outside of the Needles about noon—the Witchcraft still leading Osprey two, Marina three, and Pearl last. After getting outside the Needles, the wind, coming before the wind at a squarish, gradually shifted over the rolling sea. Off Ventnor the Osprey carried away her gaff, and was obliged to set her topsail; the Witchcraft also carried away her jib tack, and took in her topmast staysail. Reaching across Sandown Bay the Witchcraft was still leading, Marina second, and third Osprey a long way astern, off Dunnose, the accident putting her out of the race. At 2.20 the Witchcraft, with the Marina, rounded Ryde, the Pearl appearing next, half a mile astern. The former vessel reached through Spithead, but, as she stood in for the mark-boat at 2.55, on the starboard tack, the east-going tide set her down, and she made considerable leeway, having to make another tack before she weathered the mark. The Pearl did the same; but the Marina, holding better wind than either, fetched the mark with one tack, and shortened the distance of separation considerably between herself and Pearl. The match was terminated thus :—

	H.	M.	S.
Witchcraft	3	14	39
Pearl	3	21	39
Marina	3	22	39



the Osprey, as the Marina was passing the boat, being at the Warner, three miles astern. The Witchcraft thus won Commodore Thellusson's cup; and Mr. Broadwood two years ago won, with the Guinea, the Commodore's cup in the match to Cherbourg.

The prize given by the inhabitants of the town of Ryde, open to all yachts belonging to any of the Royal yacht club, was won on Tuesday week by Mr. Maudslay's yacht, the Volante, 50 tons; her only competitor being the Meteor, 104, belonging to Mr. T. Brassey. The weather was most unfavourable. We give an Engraving of the cup, which is a vase of embossed silver, on a pedestal, with the figure of a yachtsman leaning on a rudder, a yacht in full sail displayed on the shield above; the handles formed of tridents, and the lid surmounted by a pair of banners, with other subordinate features. Its value is £100, and was furnished by Mr. Barnard, silversmith, of Ryde. The other town cup, won the previous week by the Aline, schooner, belonging to Mr. Thellusson, was manufactured by Mr. Thurtell, of Ryde; it was given likewise by the inhabitants of the town, but only open to yachts belonging to the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

THE TOWN CUP OF THE ROYAL VICTORIA YACHT CLUB

THE COMMODORE'S CUP OF THE ROYAL VICTORIA YACHT CLUB.

Countess Danner morganatically married to the late King Frederick VII. of Denmark, has caused a monument to be erected, over the chateau of Jaegerspriss, destined to perpetuate the memory of that Sovereign. It is a marble bust, placed on a granite column about five metres high.

The Nord of Brussels states that a duel has taken place between Captain Chazal, Aide-de-Camp to the King of the Belgians, and Baron de Prat, who, at a musical entertainment at Ostend, blamed the national air of "Brabonçonne." Captain Chazal received a slight sword wound in the fore-arm.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Henri de Bohrn. By Francisca Ingram Cuvry. (Bell and Daldy.) This is a story, in one volume, of the times immediately succeeding the act whereby Louis XIV. revoked the memorable Edict of Nantes, and evil days came upon the Huguenots. Henri de Bohrn, the hero, was descended "from a younger branch of a noble French family, honoured by more than one Royal alliance, but honoured far above, as he considered, by numbering among its members the great Protestant leader, Henri, Duc de Bohrn." He, therefore, after incurring peril and hardship in Louis's dragoons, obtains those rewards which Protestants deserve beyond all other denominations—he marries the lady of his love, and "lives happily ever after," if one may place dependence upon the assurance that "their united lives began in sunshine, and went on without any dark cloud for a lengthened period." The most prominent character in the book is Arnold Delsblaise, a Christian minister, with the accomplishments of an ancient knight-errant, the innate powers of the fabled son of Maia, at the sound of whose melodious voice savage beasts forget their nature and at whose gentle presence even three-headed Cerberus wagged his tail, and with more virtues and piety than a Bampton Lecturer, ever on the look-out in the lofty lanterns, amongst a whole bench of bishops of the present day. The incidents are sufficiently numerous, consisting chiefly of ambush robbing, smuggling, attempts at violent conversion, falling in love, battle, murder, and sudden death. The style of writing, however, is scarcely graphic, energetic, and sparkling enough to keep up the reader's interest; the art displayed in the tale-weaving is small; and no care has been taken to avoid anachronisms and things the charming air of antiquity and romance which the date of the scenes depicted seems to open to the author. In fact, the story reads, so far as it is narrative, as a jejune statement delivered in the matter-of-fact style which an unpractised schoolboy delivers would adopt in the witness-box.

The Marathon and the Mediterranean. (Hatchard and Co.) For a summer or an autumn holiday it is difficult to imagine anything more exhilarating than a cruise, and, of all cruises, the most delightful, perhaps, to contemplate, is a cruise in the Mediterranean. A person of very correct tastes would probably prefer to make the cruise in a sailing yacht, but even "a fine ocean steamer of 1300 tons burden" is better than nothing; and such a vessel was the Marathon. How she behaved on a cruising voyage in the Mediterranean during a period of eight weeks, from the 1st of June, 1863; how the passengers spent their time, sleeping out of the two nights during that time; what places they visited, what adventures they met with, what they hoped and what they feared, and how they disappointed and how they were relieved, and how, on their return, they steamed up the Mersey to "the sound of Knight Bruce's bugle," are all matters of the pleasant little volume, published anonymously by one of the passengers.

How We are Governed. By Albany Fonblanque, Jun., Esq., (Frederick Warne and Co.) The title of this useful little book must not mislead the reader into supposing that it contains matter of an argumentative kind, with the object of proving that we are well or ill governed: the author treats of the machinery whereby our government is carried on, but carefully suppresses any personal opinions of the results attained. He, in a series of letters to his son, traces in outline the rise and progress of the Constitution; points out the powers possessed by the different estates of the realm and the manner of exercising those powers; devotes one letter to the national debt and another to local self-government; pays considerable attention to the Church, the Army, and the Navy; describes with as much fulness as can, from the limits proposed, be expected the different courts of law and equity, and the methods of procedure in both civil and criminal cases; and, in fact, offers much information in a handy form as everybody requires for the proper understanding and discussion of questions which are daily agitated in the House of Commons and general society in little wisdom.

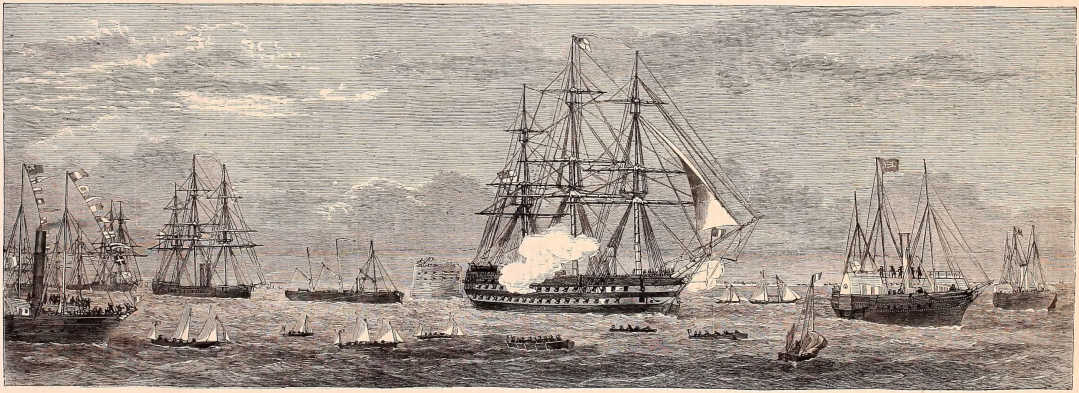
Little Arabel's Catechism. By Emily G. Nesbitt. (Hatchard and Co.) As the writer herself declares that this is not a story, it would be rude to say the least to maintain that it is; however, it is very like one. Arabel is a little girl who is sent from India to the Isle of Arabel who finds—ahi no wonder—his catechism very hard to learn and understand; but, at last, with the assistance of his aunt and a young angel (of the feminine gender) with a spiral complaint, succeeds better than could have been anticipated. Whether it be right to give a little boy such loose ideas of the meanings of words as he is likely to acquire from the following (p. 184) "you are learning something which has two parts," is questionable; per should we like to meet pupils who could not find the little book entertaining; but they will probably think it an improvement upon the catechism, if only because they will not be required to learn it by heart.

Have Training or School Exist? By the Rev. John R. Pretyman, M.A. (Aylott and Son.) This is not the place for discussing the respective advantages of education at home and at a public school. Mr. Pretyman advocates the former; and his advocacy deserves attention, because, by his own showing, he is an unobtrusive, let alone objectionable, young man, become a most objectionable boy; for the younger scholars cannot but instinctively perceive that he has no claim to the rights of the elder as the junior schoolboy perceives that he is deprived of the privileges of his seniors. A homebred boy runs the risk of becoming a pig, or something worse.

Short and Slave Life. By Thomas Hughes, Watford, and Fenny Hodder; A Reading intended for "what are called 'Penny Readings.'" Mrs. Ellis has found that "the inequality of our social circumstances, with regard to riches and poverty," has caused "a sense of injustice in the minds of those whose portion in this life is one of incessant toil and hard labour, and, sometimes, no bread at all;" and so she has written this little story "to help to reconcile the hardship of poverty by taking off something from its seeming injustice." It is a little hard that she should represent those whom she wishes to comfort as living in the village of Grumbleton, situated in the parish of Discontent," for surely it is rather too much to expect hymns of thanksgiving and praise to burst from those who live where discontent has got "its sometimes no bread at all." They might, at least, be allowed to grumble in peace. The story is neatly told and simply enough written, but it contains no very original arguments or sources of consolation; it is the old recommendation that they who are on the bottle of starvation should take no thought for the body, but congratulate themselves upon the redemption of their souls, leaving the rest of the world to enjoy the sensible pleasure of eating. Of course, the problem is a difficult one to solve; but some people think it would be a great deal more likely to be cheerfully solved if by "charity" be meant yellow breeches and muffin-caps, perhaps it would be well if those who undertake to say more than "good-day" recondy reads oddly beside the command, "Tell all that thou hast and give to the poor." It is better to lean on hard political economy than on the broken reed Mrs. Ellis offers.

One with Another. By Edward Wilberforce. (W. H. Allen and Co.) A novel (in two substantial volumes)"exhibiting some spirit, some grace, some humour, and some command of language. It is, however, on the whole, rather of a brawniess than of a substantility in harmony with the bulk of the volumes. There are two pairs of lovers, but they conduct themselves in such singular fashion that one is more astonished than amused or interested; there is a description of an Arctic expedition, but it could easily have been dispensed with, and appears to have been "lugged in;" and there is a "secret" which borders upon the absurd, and makes "much ado about nothing."

THE NEW PARLIAMENT.



The progress of this record of the new Parliament brings us in due sequence to the borough of Maidstone, which has undergone a change in its representation, owing to Mr. Charles Buxton, who was one of its members since 1859, having transferred his services to East Surrey. Upon this a contest was founded, in which Mr. Wardlaw, a Conservative, struggled hard, but unsuccessfully, with Mr. Whitman, a county gentleman, who sat for this borough from 1852 to 1857, and for West Kent from 1857 to 1859, and who therefore is no Parliamentary neophyte, though a new member in a certain sense. His late member, Mr. Lee, had a fight for his seat with Mr. Betts, another Conservative, and in the result the Liberal candidate succeeded before the election. The electioneering annals of the borough of Maidstone are written in large letters in the history of the county of Essex; for here was the citadel around which Liberalism rallied, and the Reform cause was remarkable for never having to return a step, and the county represented by a Liberal. Fortune has changed this time, and Mr. T. H. Hall Caine, who was one of the members for Essex, first before a new candidate in the person of Mr. Ralph Anstruther Barke, who is noted, if not distinguished, for having been private secretary to Mr. Disraeli in 1858-9, and therefore a seat which he had gained for Berwick in the latter year rather than go through the ordeal of an inquiry before a Parliamentary Committee. Thus Mr. Peacocke, one of the late members, will have a member akin to himself in politics, which will no doubt be a great relief to that rather pragmatical member. The election at Maidstone at the last election was remarkable in that the borough chose Mr. John Bright from the representation of that town in 1857 still greater; for, when it was proposed that the Liberal Reform Act was a candidate, a section of the Liberal party united with the Conservatives in the effort to prevent that Liberal member's return, by bringing out for a candidate of moderate politics, they lighted on the very thing in a Q.C. of eminence on the northern circuit, but who had never filled a seat in Parliament. Mr. Hall Caine, then, succeeds and supplies the place left vacant by Mr. Aspinall Turner, and sits on the same side of the house with the late member for Berwick. Mr. James is himself a Manchester man, being the son of a merchant of that city. He will be an accession to the Liberal party in the House, will add to the very limited number of barristers on that side from whom, in an emergency, a law officer of the Crown could be taken, and will be

Amongst the representative anomalies of the last Parliament there was one which was remarkable—namely, that the whole metropolitan constituency of Marylebone had fallen into the hands of two Irishmen—one an Irish Peer of very recent creation. It would be out of place to enter on the topic, to account for this circumstance, and to show why the seat for this borough have in a manner gone a-begging; but it may suffice to say that a vacancy, and a very large one, in the representative system to have awakened at the last moment to a sense of their unrepresented state; and evaluated themselves of a distinguished member of the House which had arisen in that gin-and-beer interest which has had the return of members for Marylebone at its command for many years. Accordingly, a candidate was sought and found in Mr. Thomas Chambers, Common-Serjeant of the city of London, a gentleman who sat for the borough of Hertford from 1852 to 1857, and was occasionally now in regard to the interest of the metropolis in Parliamentary matters. He is an able man and a good speaker; and though, perhaps, not exactly of the calibre that ought to characterize at least one of the members for Marylebone, he is a great improvement on the hybrid late member whom he so soundly defeated. The other, Sir Harvey Lewis, sought to make a sort of hereditary beneficial section of the constituency. In the Welsh county of Merioneth, which has been a stronghold for the Tory section, a difference; for Mr. William Wathin Edward Wynne, the late representative from 1852, retired, and his son, Mr. Robert John Wynne, was elected in his stead, as a Conservative, though not without a contest. Mr. Wynne is young, having only just left Eton, where he has been an officer of the Guards; and he comes of a family which belongs to the county for which he has been returned.

In the list of members since 1857 the name of Mr. John Handley may have been found attached to Newark; but beyond this no one except the newest whippers-in probably know much of him. But at the last election he disappeared, leaving his place to be taken by Lord Arthur Henry Pelham Clinton, the eldest son of the Duke of Newcastle, who will vote in the same interest. There was a triangular contest at Lichfield at Newcastle on Tyne, in which, as in

THE BRITISH CHANNEL SQUADRON IN PORTLAND ROADS.

THE BRITISH CHANNEL SQUADRON ENTERING CHERBOURG HARBOUR.—SEE PAGE 202.

REVIEW OF HENRY THE FIFTH'S TROOPS ON THE PLAIN OF AGINCOURT, AT SHERBORNE—SEE PAGE 202.

THE VISIT OF THE BRITISH CHANNEL SQUADRON TO CHERBOURG.

ANNOUNCED the Naval and Military Intelligence in our last week's Publication we gave a complete list of the ships composing the Channel Squadron, under the command of Rear-Admiral Sir S. C. Dacres, which left Portland Roads on Sunday week for Cherbourg; and our Foreign News contained a brief account of the reception of the British squadron when it arrived, on the Monday, at Cherbourg, where it was met by three of the French ironclads, the Magenta and two others, while the celebration of the 15th August was in progress. The first on the Tuesday was to be marked by more than usual rejoicing at Cherbourg on this occasion. We now present four Illustrations of these proceedings, from sketches made on the spot by our Special Artists. The first gives a view of the squadron lying at anchor in Portland Roads, on the Sunday immediately before its departure. The ships are seen from the Nodes, at Weymouth. The ironclads Black Prince, Achilles, Defence, Prince Consort, and Hector, are in the foreground, at the end of the promontory, on the left-hand side; the flagship, Edgar, occupies a central position, with the wooden screw-steamers Immortalité, Liverpool, Octavia, and Constance, and the ironclad Research; the gun-boats Cygnet and Cracker are to the right, and the paddle-wheel despatch-craft in the harbour. The Engraving on the opposite page shows the arrival of the British squadron at Cherbourg, on the Monday in the afternoon of the Monday, having left Portland at seven o'clock on the Sunday evening, and crossed the Channel in spite of a violent gale, which lasted most severely the making manifest the fine qualities of the ships. The breakwater stretching across the mouth of Cherbourg harbour leaves at each extremity an entrance for the passage of vessels; the western passage it was arranged that the English fleet should steam into the roadstead. Coming from a point almost due west, it was their best down on the fort which marks the middle or elbow of the breakwater, and then, skirting its western side, dropped its anchors at the point terminates on that side, and entered the harbour in single file. The first to round the point was the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert, at the same moment, a salute was fired by the guns of the fort. Immediately afterwards followed the Admiral's yacht Black Eagle, right-hand corner, with a French Government steamer beyond. At the extreme left corner, in the first part of the view, is a steamer with a party of excursionists, her rigging gaily decked with many flags. Having reached their appointed moorings, the squadron of the captains were dined with Admiral Dacres, on board the flagship. Next morning (Tuesday) the weather was unfortunately so bad as to spoil, in a great measure, all the festivities of the day. The subject of our Illustration on page 201 is a military, not a naval, display—being the review of the French troops forming the garrison of Cherbourg, who were paraded and put through the usual manœuvres on the Place d'Armes. The officers of the English and French squadrons paid frequent visits to each other's ships in the course of the day, and exchanged many official compliments. The Prince, the Achilles, and the Royal Sovereign were examined with particular curiosity. On the other hand, the Magenta—the French Admiral's flagship—received no less attention from the English visitors. In the evening there was a brilliant display of fireworks from the French vessels in the inner harbour. One of our Illustrations gives a view of this scene, as beheld from the Victoria and Albert, near the equestrian statue of the first Emperor.

A banquet was given, the same evening at the Hôtel de Ville, to the British Lords of the Admiralty, Admiral Dacres, and the chief officers of his squadron. The chair was occupied by M. Chasselaup-Laubat, French Minister of Marine, who proposed the toast—

Gentlemen,—I propose to you the health of her Majesty Queen Victoria. It is a great honour and a real satisfaction to me to have to propose this toast to-day. It is a very great honour, for I come here in the Emperor's name to welcome the representatives of the British Navy, and I think, then, with the French Navy, for having joined us on the 15th day of our august Sovereign. It is a great satisfaction, because it is the first time that we have had these splendid tournaments to which we by turns invite the world. It is still a greater satisfaction to see this cordial and fraternal union in a port which has already witnessed the visit of the Queen and the Emperor. Gentlemen, I am a gentlemen, the time of hostile rivalry is past; emulation alone remains in all that can advance the welfare and prosperity of the two first nations of the world. Believe me, that will be a grand and noble page in which, narrating the reign of our Emperor and your Sovereign, history shall tell how, entering upon an entirely new era, our flags no longer met but to open in union new and warmer horizons to human activity; and how, in the accomplishment, we commenced all nations to share the reward of our efforts. That will be a noble page, also, which shall show old prejudices eradicated, the mutual esteem of the two nations, and their unanimous hand in hand, advancing unceasingly to the accomplishment of the great work of civilisation. Gentlemen, these splendid tournaments to which we by turns invite the world—and the world, Yes, gentlemen, freedom of the sea, the pacific contests of labour, and the be ardent competition of commerce—such is the glorious task which our united flags to-day unfurl before us. May God ever protect them! and for you, gentlemen, may they preserve to you your glorious traditions! Such is the wish of the Queen of Great Britain!

After the toast, which was received with applause, the Duke of Somerset said:—

Gentlemen,—I have heard with great pleasure the toast proposed by the Minister of Marine, as well as the speech by which it was accompanied. All Englishmen will feel a strong sentiment of gratitude for the kind terms in which this auspicious day, in the midst of this select assembly, the first toast proposed by the French Minister was the health of the Queen of England. We accept it as a proof of the cordial amity the Governments of France, and, I trust, the entire nation, feel for our gracious Sovereign and her country. We reply upon the part of the British Government, and I feel confident that I also express the views of the great majority of my fellow-subjects, when I say that we are actuated by the same sentiment with regard to the Sovereign of France and the French nation. We wish that the good understanding which now exists between the two countries may be long duration. We wish that the ties which have been formed between the two nations may continue to augment. The alliance of England and France, we also trust, will tend to secure the happiness and the peaceful progress of Europe. We accept, with all our hearts, the statement of the Minister of Marine that the hostile rivalry have disappeared to give place to an epoch of generous emulation. Whenever the fleets of the two nations have been brought together, as have recently done in China and Japan, they have not been actuated by any egotistical feeling or aggrandisement, but have combined together to secure the faith of treaties respected, and to obtain for all other peoples the same advantages they secured for their own fellow-subjects. I may add,

Archæology of the Month.

ARCHÆOLOGY has been in the ascendant of late. The Institute Congress at Dorchester was an entire success; and will, it is to be hoped, furnish a more conservative feeling towards the antiquities of Dorset than they have hitherto received. In Mr. Warne's Illustrated Map may be traced the Celtic tumuli, pil-dwellings, locations, villages, and trackways; the sites of Roman remains, Saxon mints, and Celtic, Roman, Saxon, and Danish camps. We trust that, from the antiquarian interest of Dorset, and make us regret that vandalism among railway engineers is not uncommon. The amphitheatre at Dorchester was chiefly rescued from destruction through the intervention of Mr. Warne. The Corporation had to bestow themselves to some handsome, beneath which the Great Western Railway now passes by means of a tunnel. But, very recently, that fine example of Roman castrametation would, the Celtic camp and the Roman villa at Frampton had been ruthlessly destroyed. The small British oppidum, Bu Bury, has been more than once threatened and is now in danger. Even the stone parts of Pyla Dun Camp and Conig's Castle are at this moment being carried away as materials for the repair of roads. To preserve such works from railway and other levellers should be a leading object with every archæological society, not only at its annual congress but whenever occasion arises. The Surrey Archæological Society have made their annual excursion: Godstone Church and Rectory-house; Mr. Cardwell's Elizabethan mansion, and Limpsfield Church; Titsey Park and Church—the latter with its fine monumental brasses of the Gresham family—were visited. At Titsey the president, Mr. Granville Leveson Gower, M.P., entertained the company (120 in number) at luncheon. The site of a Roman villa, partially recently discovered in the neighbourhood, was then inspected. The walls are to be traced, and much of the tesselated pavement is undisturbed. Titsey mansion is modern, but here are some fine oak carving; Sir Antonio More's portrait of Sir Thomas Gresham, founder of the Royal Exchange; and a medieval silver ring, found in the garden a century and a quarter ago—a material for the interesting memoir which the archæologists much gratification. The Sussex Archæological Society have also held their annual meeting at Arundel and Pulborough, under the presidency of the Bishop of Chichester.

The Brambletye estate, near East Grinstead, and in the most picturesque portion of Sussex, is announced for sale in October next. It comprises the manor, farms, mills, fine wood scenery; and, on the borders of Ashdown Forest, the ruins of Brambletye House, made popular with picnic parties, through Horace Smith's historical novel, which he wrote at an inn at Forest-row. A change of ownership may possibly cut up Brambletye, though we should be sorry to lose even the chimney-piece ruins, which bear the date of 1631; but we remember "Old Brambletye House," a fortified manor-house of the reign of Henry VII., in one of the glades in the wood of the Bishop.

Reverting to the tower just discovered in the wall of Old London, in the rear of Castle-street, Falcon-square (see the Illustrated Journal of last week), it may be interesting to note that Mr. W. H. Black, F.S.A., in his memoir on Roman London, read to the Society of Antiquaries, Nov. 15, 1855, does not consider an Roman the lower part of the wall in which the tower is built—namely, from Aldersgate northward to Cripplegate. Instead of making that angle, Mr. Black proposed to continue the wall-line from Aldersgate eastward till it meets an eastern wall coming from Bridge-street along the western bank of the now Walbrook. The Archæological Institute are to hold their next congress in the metropolis, when the course of the wall of Old London will doubtless be traced. The "rummaging" by engineers and builders is, however, busily in progress. At Bishopsgate Within, Jones's picturesque entrance to Barber-Surgeons' Hall has disappeared, and the approach is now through the end of a lofty pile of buildings for commercial purposes, but enriched with ornamental work.

Mr. Samuel Sharpe has lately read some papers at Northampton on ancient and modern counterfeits of antiquities, a class of impositions largely on the increase. Some four years since, Mr. Charles Read called the attention of the Society of Antiquaries to the subject of coppers, when the subject scarcely received the attention it deserved.

In Devon railway engineers are not always so destructive than their English brethren. The Faric and Lyons company have commenced a railway in the principality of Alsace. The Roman villa at Bath-tile villa and gardens of the novelist of Emmanuel Gonzales are to be removed. This picturesque property belonged to the Bonaparte family ever since the reign of Charles V.

At Sarisbo the parishioners are restoring the massive Anglo-Norman tower of their church; but the money collected for the purpose being nearly expended, it was agreed by the vestry to sell four of the peal of five bells, and add the proceeds to the restoration fund. The Archbishop of Canterbury, on hearing of this, issued his prohibition, and the bells were either kept, or, if sold, only the four bells which the vestry agreed to sell are 1, 2, 3, 5 of the peal; the fourth is placed outside the church, upon the ground, and there only is tolled for Divine service. Each bell is inscribed "John Hodson made me, 1672; Wheeler and Pierce, Gloucester, 1856." The weight of the tenor is 1800 lb. The peal has done duty in the tower for 193 years; to make it complete it is proposed to add two bells by subscription.

Twenty years ago the bones of Gundreda, the daughter of William the Conquerer, were recovered from among the remains of Lewes Priory; and a few days since the coffin of the youthful daughter of the Danish King Canute was discovered at the Society of Antiquaries, Dorchester, during some excavations in front of the chancel arch. Beneath a slab of stone was found a leaden coffin, 5 ft. 3 in. long, 1 ft. 7 in. thick, being raised, the form of the child could be distinctly seen. The figure was 3 ft. 9 in. in length, but the coffin has been reduced to a white dust, could be traced. No jewellery was found. Xmilliton had joined to that part of the Priory of Dorchester in the youthful Princess; but the niche in the north wall of the church, over a female sculptured figure, which was supposed to be Canute's tomb, being of a style not earlier than Edward I., led to the interment being questioned—a doubt which this discovery sets at rest, the tomb being of some 250 years later date.

In our Journal of last week we described the opening of the Castle Howard tumuli, but did not detail the low, pyramidal, flint barrows. The openings have revealed a distinct system of burial, generally of single bodies, deposited in hollows dug in the natural chalk rock, which seem to indicate the mode of burial of a distinct tribe or a particular section of the people of the pre-historic age. The form of these barrows a slight mound but been raised, but has been nearly obliterated, especially in the plough-land of the Castle Howard Park. The burials were all of the latest race of Britons who resorted to cremation. In no instance in these Castle Howard barrows was there any trace of the long-skulled tribes, who buried the body entire, been found. In like manner, no trace of cremation appeared in the Danish mounds.

The first opening of these barrows was made on the summit of a natural hill on Tyer's Field. The small tumulus was found to be formed of a slight ploughed down, and just below its tilled surface was a cap or dome of pure charcoal, beneath which in hollows dug in the chalk rock, the burnt bones had evidently been consumed on the spot; the skull indicated youth; there was no flint implement, nor guide to the age of the deceased, but the size of the ruched and most primitive description. In the next opening but little trace of burial was found. A few pieces of charcoal and burnt bones of the bones was met with, piled round with stones, in the cyst fashion. Below this the body of a female child was found, laid upon the natural surface of the chalk, burial, a deposit of charcoal. This body had been most imperfectly burnt, and the bones were consequently in a friable condition, crumbling into dust on the gentle touch of the finger. On the north side of the hollow with the first burial a perfectly plain incense-cup was found, with the mouth to the body. The vase was 4 in. high, 4 in. over, and had a marking beyond a groove on the bottom, and showed no velvet marks. The best idea of the hollow is obtained from the section of the first barrow opened to day. There was no flint nor any ornament. This barrow was peculiar for the number of bodies, nine upon the other. The next opening yielded no trace of any burial. Next, in a small mound 9 in. below the ground, was found a deposit of burnt bones, with the usual signs of burning; likewise two incense cups: one cup broken and above the interment; the other perfect and among the bones of the skull. The broken cup was of the usual form, but pierced near the bottom, and beautifully marked externally with triangles, having reversed lines. The fragments were nearly all recovered. The perfect cup was 3 in. in diameter, and resembled the base of a truncated cone. It was cord-marked horizontally, and was pierced with nine perpendicular lines of three holes, the upper eighteen being placed through on the square, the lowest row being oblique, as if to drain off moisture from the bottom of the vessel. This was the first instance where two vases had been found in a barrow. Another, the two differing in type also. The next opening was made in the centre of a mound thirty yards west of the last, on a rounded hill. In a circular hollow, about 12 in. below the surface, numerous examples of clam-cost were met with, some lumps being as big as a man's hand, and quite as perfect as if burnt yesterday, instead of having been buried over 3000 years. The deposit of calcined bones was made in the midst of the charcoal, and on the top of the burial, near the bones of the skull, on the south-west, a small globular incense-cup was found, grooved horizontally and profusely marked with the usual triangles below the groove. There was no cord-marks on the edge. Up to this point no trace of flint implements had been found, but with one peculiarly rude barbed flint. In the next tumulus fragments of a fine cinerary urn were found, with traces of cremated interment. The urn had been broken by the plough. The next opening was in an immense tumulus, but every trace of purpose was lost. The last opening for the present year was made in a small mound, where a deposit of burnt bones, in the extreme west. The "best" was 2 ft. diameter and 14 in. high. At the central hollow, 2 ft. wide by 14 in. deep, the burnt body was found in quantities of charcoal and bones. The urn was of the usual form, and the thumb-flint; thus in the last opening disposing of the theory that no flint implements accompanied the low barrow burials.

We are glad to learn that the Rev. Mr. Greenwell intends publishing the results of these excavations, which have yielded much information; notwithstanding rabbit-burrowing and the plough have often defeated the searches. The large tumulus on Windmill-hill has, from time immemorial, served as a beacon for the fires of the 5th of November.

THE SUSSEX ARCHÆOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

THE annual meeting of the Sussex Archæological Society took place at Amberley, near Arundel, on Thursday week, when a large number of visitors arriving from London, Brighton, Chichester, and elsewhere by the morning trains stopped at Pulborough station, and went to look at several objects of interest in the village of Pulborough, where the Rev. P. Royston kindly acted as their guide. The parish church, dedicated to St. Mary, was first visited. The font of this church is presented by the accompanying Engraving. It is a very ancient structure, and has the peculiarity of its chancel being not parallel with the nave but at an angle of a few degrees northward. There is a monion-table a is very handsome stained-glass window, with a centre figure of the Saviour, the Lamb and the cross. The inscription, similar to the inscription tells us, is "In memory of the late Rev. John Austin, who munificently bequeathed £3387 to promote the education of the poor in this parish, of which he had been Rector more than thirty-four years." A small window in the side aisle of very beautiful stained glass was presented by Mrs. Gore, of Rusper. Behind the organ a fine window has been blocked up, and it would be a great improvement if it were restored. The brasses in the church are very good, and have retained their clearness very well. The largest is one of Thomas Reading, Canon of Chichester and Rector of Ringwood and Pulborough, who died in 1429. Another is one of the Mills family, of Gretham, dated 1452; and also of John and Judith Apsley, with coats of arms, 1706. The font is of massive stone, and of a period earlier than the church. In the inventory of the belfry we are informed that "William Ayling, William Harwood, Thomas Lucas, Charles Strodwick, Richard Andrew, John Marsh, Thomas Bunnes-Sawyer[ed this belfry in ye year 1735." Facing this is a notification of a practical sort, and, as the parish books will testify, a most truthful one. It says—

PULBOROUGH CHURCH, VISITED BY THE SUSSEX ARCHÆOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

N.B.—All ringers that use this belfery, the sexton free do not deny, for if the bell play overtoyes, pay them 10 l. before you go. And if any bell be cut, and shevers by ay, or by down tol. immediately. And if you take God's name in vain, pay 1 s. by your pain. Never prophane the day whenever you ring.

God save the King!

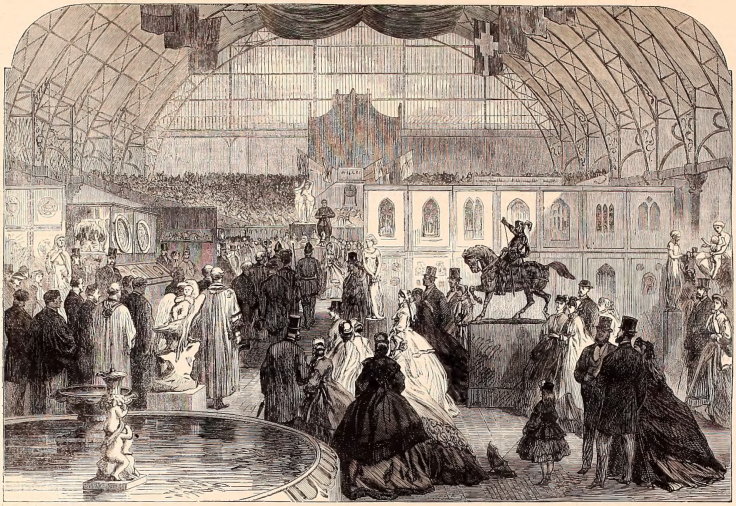
The notice further states that "James Stace, aged 26, Harvey M. Tarrant, 23, Elias Wilson, 24, Thomas Hall, and Henry Rye, 22, beautified this belfry A.D. 1835." The tower in which the bells are hung is seventy-five feet high, and the spire fifty feet, and on the second bell is inscribed, "Sancta Catarina, ora pro nobis." There is a cenotaph to the memory of Sir Thomas Bloodworth, Knight, Alderman, and Lord Mayor of London, a portrait of whom, in the robes of office, is also preserved in the church, and also a monument to Matthias Bloodworth, Esq., Alderman of London, and full of archæological lore. Old Place, which is of the time of Henry VIII., was next visited, and the ancient hall of the Bishops, which a splendid view of the surrounding country is obtained. About half-past one the company left Pulborough, and arrived at Amberley, where not less than 600 of the members and other friends assembled in the extensive ruins of the walls of the castle, the site of the old mansion of the scene.

Illustration of the scene. This edifice dates from a very early period—somewhere about the year 670—and since a much later period it has been the property of the Bishops of Chichester. The Bishop of the present time the actual owner is the Right Rev. Diocesan of Chichester, the Hon. Rev. Vernon Harcourt being the lessee and Mr. Harwood sub-lessee. Through his kindness the society were enabled to explore the ruins within which some of the members had the best opportunities of examining every nook and corner of the ruins. Mr. Harwood's residence is a part of the castle, of course remembered to such an extent as to be suitable to the wants of the present age. The castle is built on a chalk formation, on the borders of the Weald of Sussex. Adjoining the castle is the church, which dates from 1230, the construction of which was supposed to have been commenced by Ralph de Neville, who held the great seal in the reign of John, and in that of Henry III. became Bishop of Chichester and Chancellor of England and Ireland. The Vicar is the Rev. G. A. Clarkson, M.A., and mainly through his exertions the church has undergone a thorough restoration. Due care has been taken not to destroy anything of antiquarian value, the work having been carried out under the superintendence of Mr. Slater, of London. There is an ancient brass, with some other interesting objects in the church, which is now about the best arranged country of such we have seen. The improvement has cost £800, including the works undertaken by Mrs. Vernon Harcourt, and the sum of £80 is still wanting. During the day a bazaar was held in the kitchen of the castle, consisting principally of duplicates of seals, pictures, and other articles in aid of the fund. The church is of the Norman style, with massive arches, and the chancel is lighted by a lancet window. Returning to the castle, we find in the Queen's Room," a valuable collection of ancient keys, locks, ornamental iron and steel work, contributed by the Rev. James Beck, Rector of Parham. Here, also, was a capital "shield-bolt," so famed in song, a huge "black jack" of leather, and some rush candlesticks, which were formerly in use in the Weald of Sussex. The Rev. G. A. Clarkson and Mr. Gordon Hills were very hospitable entertainers, in conducting them to the chief objects of attraction. Mr. Clarkson also read extracts from a paper entitled "Notes on Amberley," which, owing to the lateness of the hour, was not read. At half-past two the meeting for business was held in the tenth-row Lord Bishop of Chichester presiding. On the motion of the Rev. Sir George Shiffner, the committee was reappointed, substituting Mr. Crossley for Mr. Walcott, who had retired; and, in consequence of the retirement of Mr. Barnard Quaritch from the office of editor of the society's publications, Mr. Mark Antony Lower was appointed editor and secretary. Several new members were added to the society. A conversation took place respecting the recent discovery of the stone coffin containing the body of King Canute's daughter, beneath the floor of Bosham Church, and the Rev. Mr. Mitchell, of Bosham, exhibited the circumstances under which it was found. A vote of thanks to the Bishop of Chichester, with thanks also to Mr. Clarkson for the reception he had given to the society at Amberley, concluded the proceedings after which the company strolled about the place, and then met for dinner under the auspices of Chichester being again in the chair. A number of toasts were proposed and duly honoured; and the retiring editor of the society's publications, Mr. W. D. Cooper, above named, was presented with a handsome silver salver, as a testimonial of his valuable services during several past years.

THE NORTH-EAST LONDON EXHIBITION OF ARTS AND MANUFACTURES.

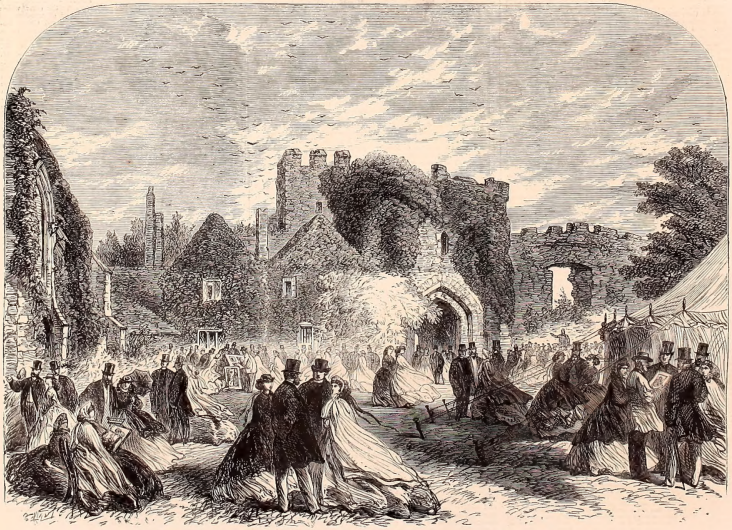
THE opening, on Wednesday week, of the North-East London Exhibition at the Agricultural Hall Islington, was briefly reported in our last. It took place that afternoon at three o'clock. The trustees and committee met the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Mayor at the grand pool-road entrance of the hall and conducted them to the platform, before a large and influential company was already assembled. The Hundredth Psalm was most effectively sung by the choir, which consisted of members of the National Choral Society, augmented by a thousand voices, under the direction of Mr. C. A. Martin, while Mr. J. G. Callcott, of the trustees, presided at the grand organ. The exhibition is well worthy of a visit, especially for its Fine-Arts Department.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.



THE will of Sir John Hare, late of Hesketh Villa, Clifton, and of Rodigne-me-Mer, France, has been proved in London by his relict, Lady Hare, the sole executrix. Sir John was formerly consul-general at Bristol, and a magistrate for Somerset; was twice married, and died on the 2nd of February last, at the age of eighty-one, having survived his first wife, by whom he had issue, by his second wife, who survives him, and upon whom he chiefly bequeaths the whole of his property to his wife for life, and upon her decease to the children of his late son Augustus, between his two daughters.

THE will of Francis Williams, Esq., of Langhern-hill, Wichenford, Worcester, was proved, in the London court, on the 9th inst. The personalty was sworn under £40,000. The executors appointed are his nephews, Francis R. Williams (who alone is acting) and Edward J. Williams, the latter with the addition of R. Wall. The two latter executors, who are dated June 23, 1862, and there are five codicils, the last dated Dec. 29, 1855. The will is of considerable length, there are numerous bequests. The principal portion of his freehold property he has devised by his will to his nephew, Francis R. Williams, for life, with remainder to his children, and he has also bequeathed to him certain property, and, subject to this gift, he bequeaths the residue of his property to his wife for life, and upon her decease to his nephew, Edward J. Williams, and to Sophia Jones for her life, and after her decease to John Francis Williams. The will contains a power of appointment to his nephew, Edward J. Williams. There are also pecuniary legacies to these parties, and to other of his nephews and nieces, and to the children of his nephew, the late Rev. John Williams, Lagacies also to his servants. The residue of his property he has left, by a codicil, to be equally divided between the said nephew and nieces and his children.



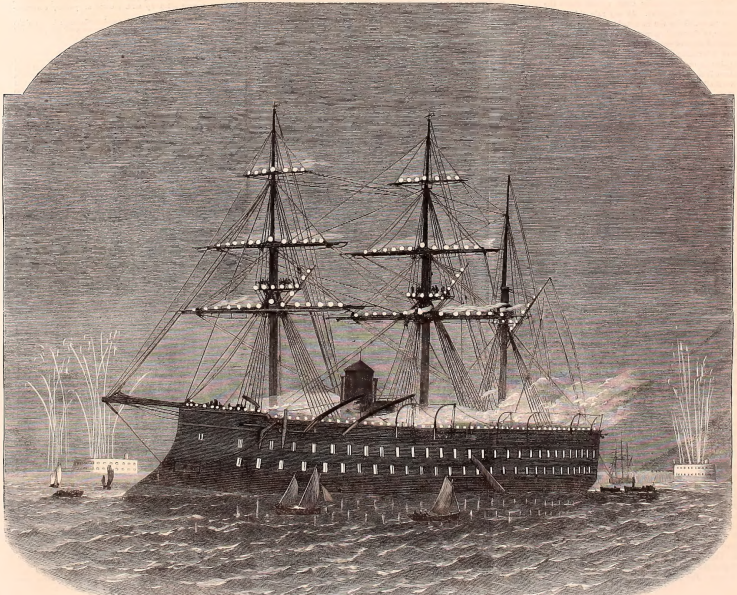
THE will of John Craven, Esq., formerly of Alexandrian House, Surrey, and late of 9, Upper Brunswick-place, Brighton, was proved in London by the executors, the surviving executor, Henry Craven, and Thomas Martin, of Great Garden-street, the other executor, having renounced. The personalty was sworn under £120,000. The will is dated the 19th of May, 1856, and the testator died on the 13th of May last. He directs his trustees to set apart the business of sugar-refiner, carried on until the 1st of February, 1873, and should he sell Thomas Martin can continue on the management, and he shall be to the power of the trustees to place his sons therein, who will be at liberty to purchase the stock, &c., at the expiration of that period. He leaves to his wife an annuity of £100, and £400 a year for the support of his children, except his daughter Ann, the wife of his executor, Mr. Sentance. The ultimate residue of his property is to be divided equally amongst all his children.

In the abstract of Sir C. R. Grey's will, given in our last Number, it ought to have been stated that he had apportioned £1800 (not £2000) out of a sum of money over which he had appointment to each of his two sons, Zervoise John Grey and Edward Grey.

The Great Eastern is safely moored in the Medway, where she arrived about mid-day on Saturday last.

OPENING OF THE NORTH EAST LONDON EXHIBITION OF ARTS AND MANUFACTURES AT THE AGRICULTURAL HALL, ISLINGTON.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

MEETING OF THE SUSSEX ARCHÆOLOGICAL SOCIETY AT AMBERLEY CASTLE.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1332.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE FRENCH FLEET AT PORTSMOUTH.

LIKE two great feudal lords of olden time, France and England—for we give precedence to our guest, as courtesy requires—have shaken mailed hands one with another in stateliest fashion. Fifty years have come and gone since they met as foes. The interval has not, it is true, been free from considerable differences of feeling. Mutual prejudices and rivalries have now and then kindled into passion which might easily have spread into a conflagration of war if it had not been instantly quenched by calm and forbearing statesmanship. Meanwhile, however, the two nations have become better acquainted. The antipathies which were born of ignorance have dwindled down in the light of knowledge. Common interests have occasioned frequent and friendly intercourse. Mutual respect has succeeded to mutual jealousy. At no former time have France and England so correctly understood each other's peculiarities; at no time have they more cordially reciprocated admiration of each other's excellences. "Confidence," said Lord Chatham, "is a plant of slow growth." It has slowly grown in the present instance, not without having passed through several trying vicissitudes; but, having survived many political changes, some of them of a violent character, it stands now in its own strength, and gives trustworthy promise of yielding a steadily-increasing abundance of wholesome fruit.

The peoples meet and greet each other in warlike attire. They have met before as civilians. Their respective Sovereigns have exchanged visits. Themselves have interchanged courtesies at exhibitions of art and industry. In the Crimea, in China, in Japan, they have been associated in arms, and have fought, and bled, and triumphed together. They have no hostile, no judicial, purpose before them now. Their object is not to force a peace, not even to celebrate one, for that would imply reference to an antecedent war. Yet, representatively at least, they come together clad "in complete steel," partly to cement, chiefly to display, their unbroken friendship. When nations embrace, they usually doff their arms, as symbolising that pertaining to them in which they cannot take a sincere interest in common. France and England deem no such reserve necessary.

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT CHERBOURG: ILLUMINATION OF THE FRENCH IRONCLAD MAGENTA.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

They bring with them to their interview their deadliest weapons, which by turns they place, as it were, within each other's power, and subject to each other's fullest inspection, as if to assure the world that the relations of the two countries are such that they fear not to converse freely of each other's strength. They could hardly make a more impressive public demonstration of their belief that these weapons are not destined to be used against each other.

The belief is reasonable. It may be shattered hereafter by facts; but, at any rate, it rests upon a solid foundation. The truth is that the ties which bind together the two countries are of no artificial formation. Their multiplication has resulted from many causes, some of which have been operative for a long course of years. The chief one, perhaps, is also the most durable. Public sentiment both on this and the other side of the strait has undergone a slow and silent but complete revolution. Postal machinery, railways, electric telegraphs, free trade, and the consequent rapidity and enormous expansion of commerce and development of wealth, have produced a correspondent change of tastes. Insular pride and martial glory have lost, on the one, much of its antisocial reserve, the other most of its glitter. Experience has convinced the educated of both nations that the prosperity of one is not necessarily the depression of the other; that the most self-defeating method of striving after superiority is that of seeking it at each other's expense; that good fraudulently or forcibly taken from the one rather impoverishes than enriches the other, and that neither can grow great upon the other's losses. People of culture, who form public opinion, have come at last to understand that nations, as individuals, are the general welfare, best promote their own; and, especially, that they are not likely to extend their own commerce by crippling the resources of their customers. Hence, a common desire for the maintenance of peace: and the most casual glance of that national envy which has always been so provocative of quarrels. It is upon convictions of this sort that mutual confidence has been built; and it is to publish these convictions to mankind that France and England have panoplied into each other's presence, and display mutual trust.

An English ironclad fleet within the breakwater at Cherbourg or the harbour at Brest, and a French fleet lying peacefully off Spithead, are suggestive facts. They inevitably remind us of the panics of days gone by—we trust, for ever. They recall rivalries and competitions the expense of which we yet bear. We may well shrug our shoulders and forget them as soon as possible. The present and the future require from them a more pleasant illustration. "Let bygones be bygones." Perhaps both nations have been foolish, and perhaps out of their folly have incidentally come results which the afterwisdom of both will approve. At any rate, it is what France whispers to us. Like the mounted champion at the Queen's coronation, or the men in armour in the Lord Mayor's procession, these manikin ships of war appear at first sight out of place in the midst of international festivities. They seem to belong to a more gallantry or more usefully employed. The French ironclads have been warmly welcomed at Portsmouth as guests. We trust we shall never know them in a less friendly capacity, and that their guns may never speak back to ours with a long courteous or kindly meaning. We, their hosts, cannot vaunt ourselves much on our tact or taste, and frankly confess that we have much to learn of our visitors in these matters. We imagine, will have seen at a glance, and will acknowledge without hesitancy, that we can supplement that deficiency by our heartiness. The highest value of hospitality must be sought in its intent and our intent, which we trust our visitors can made itself visible enough, is to do unfeigned honour to our guests.

The reception given to the French fleet has been something more than that of ceremonious officialism. The private visits to M. Chasseloup-Laubat and the principal French officers by the Lords of the Admiralty, on board the Duke of Wellington, adequately expressed the desire of the British Government to do honour to the Imperial navy. Nothing in point of the absence of which might have suggested even the remotest idea of a parsimonious or frigid hospitality. On the contrary, the arrangements, the decorations, and the entire tone of the entertainment displayed the most studious and kind care, as may add, the most successful effort to give the visitors not only a gorgeous but a cordial welcome. But the best proof of the deep interest felt by the British people in this interchange of amenities appeared on the roadstead and the roadway when the Reine Hortense, followed by the rest of the squadron, rounded the headland and came within view of the magnificent haven formed by the north coast of the Isle of Wight with the south coast of Hampshire. The waters swarmed with craft of every variety of build, rig, and size. The beach and walls were alive with people. There was hearty gaiety fluttering in the breeze on every available point, both on sea and ashore: and, as was to have been anticipated, the French tricolour was everywhere predominant. Hurrahs from manned yards, from yachts and pleasure-boats more than could be counted, from the parapets of fortifications, and from broad living belts of humanity along the margin of the sea, filled the interstices of silence left by the roaring cannon; and, in the fullest sense of the word, France received from England a national salute. Nor has this first demonstration of joyous feeling been succeeded by any diminution of heartiness. "Let there be perpetual friendship between us," has been the voice of the host to the guest in accents which cannot have been mistaken.

The wish thus variously but forcibly expressed at Portsmouth has been echoed with unexampled unanimity by the British press. There need be, there can be, no rational doubt of the yearning of the national heart for permanently pacific relations with France. But we trust that the intimacy and mutual confidence of the two countries will not rest satisfied with being only occasionally and formally displayed. They may show themselves in other and not less appropriate ways. Suppose the rulers of both nations were to accept the facts before them as furnishing new but solid grounds for political and international action, and, instead of directing the inventive ability and engineering resources at the command of each to the construction of the deadlier weapons and the most impregnable defences, they were to take for granted, that further expense in that direction is unnecessary, and that the development of international commerce is the likeliest way to prevent mutual estrangement, would not such a sequel to these naval fêtes be as logical as it would undoubtedly be beneficial? The desired result—peace and plenty—has instantly arrived at; but surely it might henceforth be the aim of our policy. If it is thought that public opinion is not yet ripe for such a change on either side of the Channel, let us hope that the events of the next few days may help to ripen it and in this hope we close our observations on one of the most significant and grateful chapters of contemporaneous history.

VISIT OF THE FRENCH FLEET TO PORTSMOUTH.

The British squadron, under the command of Rear-Admiral Sir Cyprey Dacres, K.C.B., arrived at Spithead from Brest, yesterday week, at noon. It consisted of the Edgar, 71 guns, flagship; Captain Geoffrey T. B. Hornby; the Black Prince, 41, Captain Lord F. H. Gore; the Research, 14, Captain G. W. Preedy; and the Achilles, 20, Captain E. W. Vansittart; the Prince Consort, 35, Captain G. O. Willes, C.B.; and the Defence, 10, Captain Augustus Phillimore; the whole of the ships, with the exception of the Edgar, being ironclads.

On Monday the Duke of Somerset left his residence at Whitehall for Portsmouth, accompanied by the whole of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty and Vice-Admiral the Hon. Captain Paget, secretary.

The Osborne, Royal yacht, Captain D'Arcy, went out of the harbour on Tuesday morning (with the Admiralty flag flying at the main), having on board the Duke of Somerset and the other Lords of the Admiralty, Vice-Admiral the Hon. Captain Paget, C.B., private secretary to the First Lord, to await the arrival of the French fleet at Spithead.

The French fleet hove in sight at 11.15. It comprised the Emperor's yacht, the Reine Hortense, Commander Gicquel des Touches, C.B., Chasselop-Laubat, the Minister of Marine, accompanied by his Staff, Captain Chevalier, and Commander Verron; the Duperré, Captain M. de Flay, flagship of Vice-Admiral Count Bouet-Villaumez (in command of the fleet); the Magenta, Captain Lafaille; the Solferino, Captain Reis, flagship of Rear-Admiral Baron de la Roncière de Noury; the Normandie, screw steam-ship, flagship of Rear-Admiral Fabre de la Maréstrie; the Couronne, screw-steamer, flagship of Rear-Admiral Rigodit, flagship of Rear-Admiral Saisset; the Invincible, screw-frigate, Captain Lacombe; the Océan, screw-frigate, Captain Lapierre; the Ulm; the Provence, screw-frigate, Captain de Surville; the Heroine, screw-frigate, Captain Lafaille; the Guyenne, screw-frigate, Captain Bachine; the Cuzon, screw-frigate, Captain Guivet; the Friedland, screw-frigate, Captain Bonnefoux; the Revanche, screw-steamer, Lieutenant Guys.

The Flying, screw-tender, immediately proceeded towards the fleet, having on board the master attendant, Captain Mainprise; the second master attendant, Captain Stuckey; and a number of masters of her Majesty's Navy, who being especially appointed to the charge of each of the French ships and place her in the position appointed—Captain Mainprise taking charge of the flagship of Captain Hornby, the Edgar. The Solferino, on approaching Spithead, at 12.15, the French Admiral's ship, Solferino, hoisted the Admiralty flag at the main, and saluted the Admiralty flag flying on board the Osborne, which was duly acknowledged from the Admiral's ship. The Solferino, at 12.30, came to anchor, anchored at 1.30 in two lines, within that of the English fleet, the Solferino leading the French line, and the Edgar the English line, which was returned from the garrison; after which the Osborne proceeded to the Solent to visit the Reine Hortense, when the Minister of Marine and accompanied her into the harbour, followed by the Admiralty yacht Enchantress, with Rear-Admiral Hoskins, the English ships having their rigging manned. On sounding the Spit the Reine Hortense was saluted with nineteen guns from the Victory, flagship of the Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Sir Alexander Milne, the French flag being hoisted at the fore. The salute was returned from the French admiral's ship Solferino, the English ships, and the forts at the main.

After the Reine Hortense had anchored the harbour, the Duke of Somerset and the Lords of the Admiralty, with Admiral Sir M. Seymour, and the officers of the dockyard, left the yacht; Rear-Admiral Sir G. Buller, commanding the south-western district; and Rear-Admiral Sir Sydney Dacres, commanding the Channel squadron, proceeded on board the yacht to pay their respects to the Minister of Marine at half-past three. The Minister of Marine, attended by his Staff, and accompanied by Admiral Count Bouet-Villaumez, proceeded from the state barge in the King's stairs in the dockyard, where they were received by the Duke of Somerset, Admiral Sir M. Seymour, Sir G. Grey, Rear-Admiral Charles Eden, Rear-Admiral the Hon. F. R. Drummond, Captain of the Admiralty; Rear-Admiral the Right Hon. Lord Clarence E. Paget, First Secretary; Captain Hall, private secretary to the First Lord; Vice-Admiral Sir G. Buller, and Admiral Superintendent. The whole of the officers, both French and English, were in full dress uniform. A guard of honour was furnished from the 54th Regiment, under the command of Captain Maycock, with Lieutenant Laing, and Ensign C. Bruce, Commissioner Heywood with the saloons was left to be desired, save that which was impossible—namely, that they could have been made larger. To accommodate 500 people at a ball they would have sufficed; but, as more than 1,000 had been asked and nearly 1,200 came, it followed as a matter of course that the throng was soon exhaustively dense, and dancing was almost impossible. Of course, nothing was done till the Duke of Somerset and the Lords of the Admiralty arrived, with Admiral Dacres, the Admiral of the squadron, Lord De Grey and Ripon, Lady Laurence Pagen, Lord and Lady Wilton, and a few other distinguished visitors from the yachts; but, when the party was at length on the whole entertainment partook more of the nature of a stately conversazione than a ball. Still, dancing is a certain, or at least an uncertain, natural gift go on under more or less of difficulties; and it was amusing to see how the "young fellows" and youngsters from the English fleet always selected the biggest ladies they could find to dance with, and with what energy they bounced against group after group in the crowd in their unifying efforts to keep clear of dancing. The supper was on a grand scale of hospitality, though certainly not more than half the visitors partook of it; for many of the officers, English and French, were anxious to get on board early, not knowing at what hour next day the fleet would sail. Fortunately, the night was calm as a lake, and all were enabled to reach their ships with ease and safety.

A party of the wounded were on the ground. Two officers of the English officers not belonging to the squadron, returned to Portsmouth by the Queen Victoria, on board the Urgent, being accompanied the kind attention he received especially from Mr. R. J. Mathias, the paymaster of the ship.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor and Empress, after leaving Arenenberg, with a present of 30,000f. for the poor, proceeded on Monday week to Constance, where they were received by a deputation from the Government of the canton and the authorities of the town. The Empress Augusta played towards Switzerland, in regard to which the Emperor has always been grateful. Switzerland generously extended to him by the Confederation. Thence the Imperial pair departed, and arrived at the Tuileries in the Empress having a great desire to see the mountains," they left Lucerne at nine o'clock on Wednesday morning for Berne, and reached Berne. On the evening of Thursday they reached Neufchâtel, where a serious accident occurred. As the Imperial party drove from the railway station to the hotel, the horses of the first carriage in which was seated Princess Anna Murat (granddaughter of the beau sabreur) ran away, and the carriage was upset. The Princess received a contusion, which, although severe, was not dangerous. Countess Montebello had her collar-bone fractured, and Count Montebello broke one of his arms. The Empress remained with the sufferers, but Friday evening in perfect health. Dr. Nélaton, the eminent surgeon, has been despatched to the assistance of the ladies at Neufchâtel, but their condition is said to be hopeful.

It is reported in Paris that a fête is to take place there this month, on the occasion of the Empress's birthday, and that there is to be a great distribution of crosses to naval and military men.

The Gazette des Etrangers announces that the Emperor is preparing the second volume of "L'Histoire de Jules César." The manuscript is being put in type at the Imperial printing-office, and will be ready for publication early. That amount scarcely makes up one half of the volume, which will not come out in a single edition, but in parts of nearly 200 pages.

Some supplementary fêtes at Brest, whither the ironclads of the English fleet went after the conclusion of the proceedings at Cherbourg, were more brilliant, thanks to the superior facilities at Cherbourg. A correspondent of one of the morning journals says that he had given no less than fifteen officers on board the Duke of Lyon was not only one of the most sumptuous and brilliant, but, by common consent, the most exquisitely original entertainment of its kind that, in the range of a tolerably large experience, he ever had seen. It was one which an English boat came in first—a boat manned by two marin's, rigged, by the judiciary of its French competitors. The English crew won by more than fifty yards and the cheers of the French crowd were such as to have hoisted on their shoulders, amid the music of "God Save the Queen."

The son of the late president of the United States, Captain Lincoln, a youth of about nineteen, is now in Paris.

It is calculated that there will only be half a crop of hops in France, but that the quality will be good. Of wine the production crop this year is enormous, but the grenadiers have failed. Between 3,000 and 4,000 gallons of table wine are now exported every week from the French ports to Southampton.

The Moniteur Impératrice states that the French frigate Decade has taken possession, in the name of France, of the island of Guano in the Pacific estimated to contain 500,000 tons of this manure.

ITALY.

Signor Lanza, the Minister of the Interior, has given in his resignation, which has been accepted by the King.

The Government has issued an order to the effect that religious processions are not henceforward to take place in the public streets unless with the previous authorisation of the municipal authorities, who are empowered to prevent such ceremonies all if necessary. This order has been called forth by the disturbances which attended religious processions lately in the streets of Naples and other cities.

According to Perlin, the decree dissolving the Italian Parliament will soon be issued. The elections will begin almost immediately after, and will be completed before the end of October. The new Chamber and the Senate will be then convoked without delay.

The telegraphic cable between Italy and Switzerland was ratified, on Wednesday, by the Italian Government.

PORTUGAL.

The Ministers, having been defeated in the Cortes, tendered their resignation, which has been accepted by the King. The Judiciary has been charged with the formation of a Cabinet.

The vintage promises to be abundant.

DENMARK.

The Rigsraad was opened, on Monday, by the President of the Council, who read the speech from the Throne. The chief topic in the Rigsraad is to pass the draught of the modification of the constitution. The bill for this purpose now before the House is the same that things. The speech stated, in conclusion, that the King was not altogether satisfied with the modifications which the Landsthing had proposed in the bill. His Majesty would certainly oppose any further concessions.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

The Canadian Ministry, it is announced, will defer the confederation, intercolonial railway, and defence questions until after the session, when they will urge legislative upon the purchase of the Hudson's Bay territory.

A fire has occurred in the Roche suburb of Quebec, by which eighty buildings were destroyed.

UNITED STATES.

We have intelligence from New York to the 19th ult.

It is stated semi-officially that Jefferson Davis is to be tried in a civil court for high treason, that the writ of habeas corpus is to be restored, and that military courts are to be suspended.

The ordinance prohibiting the Legislature from passing laws impairing any civil disability, punishment, or forfeiture of estate upon citizens engaged in the late civil war, or for political opinions expressed thereby, has passed a first reading.

It is now denied that there are any Cabinet differences at Washington on the subject of reconstructing the Union.

The New York Herald states that General Lee has been offered and has declined the presidency of Washington College, Lexington.

The Constitutional Committee of the Mississippi State Convention has reported in favour of the State Constitutional Amendment abolishing slavery.

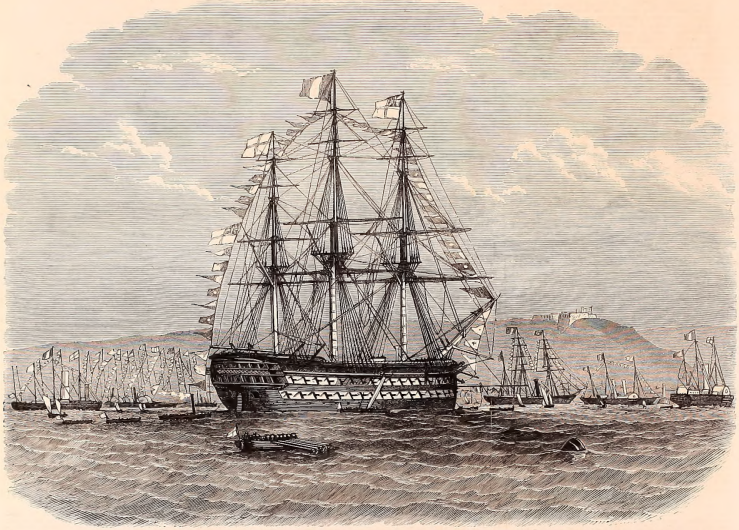
The Maine Democratic Convention has indorsed President Johnson's reconstruction policy.

The military authorities of Charleston have ordered all editors to submit their leading articles to the authorities before publication.

A frightful picture is drawn of the condition of Texas, the interior of which is said to be reduced to barrenness, owing to the neglect of agriculture, while society is in the condition of the darkest ages.

The Times Washington despatch says:—"Statistics show that during the rebellion the Federal armies captured over 300,000 horses, which were subsequently sold. Not more than one-fifth found survive."

New Orleans an extensive system of negro schools is in operation. There are 230 teachers, and 15,000 children are taught in these schools. The cost is nearly a million dollars. A military tax of one cent in ten dollars is levied on all real estate to defray the expenses of these schools.



On Aug. 1, 3284 bales of cotton arrived in Mobile, the largest amount received at that port since the war.

A magazine in Richmond, containing a large quantity of shell and other ammunition, exploded on the 14th ult., destroying property valued at 100,000 dollars, and killing two persons.

A collision occured, on the 16th ult., on the Houstonne Railroad, near Bellaire, between two trains, by which two ladies, a man, and two boys were killed, and fifteen severely wounded.

Great excitement was caused in New York, on the 19th ult., by the suspension of the banking-house of Kitchen, Sons, and Co., on account of the discovery of extensive issues of forged gold certificates of Kitchen. The amount of the defalcation is variously estimated at from two and a half to five millions. Edward Ritchon had absconded with upwards of 400,000 dols. of the above fraud

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT CHERBOURG.—FROM SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

THE BRITISH ADMIRAL'S FLAGSHIP, FLEET OF YACHTS, ETC., DRESSED IN HONOUR OF THE EMPEROR'S FETE DAY.

OFFICERS RETURNING FROM THE BANQUET AT THE HOTEL DE VILLE—SEE PAGE 236.

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT CHERBOURG.

THE BALL AT THE HOTEL DE VILLE.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 216.

BIRTHS.

On the 3rd ult., at Douglas, Isle of Man, the wife of Miles Lockhart, Esq., of the Bank, a daughter.

On the 6th of July, at Cape Coast, West Coast of Africa, the wife of Deputy-Assistant Commissary-General R. L. Matthews, of a son.

On the 11th of July, at Cape Coast, West Coast of Africa, the wife of Deputy-Assistant Commissary-General G. W. W. Ingram, of a son.

On the 23rd ult., at Wennington, in the county of Essex, the wife of W. H. Waller, of a son.

On the 8th of July, at the Estancia de Monte Grande, near Buenos Ayres, the wife of Frederick Fair, Esq., of a daughter.

At the British Embassy, Paris, Viscountess Boyne, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 22nd ult., at Snaith, Yorkshire, by the Rev. W. J. Alderson, assisted by the Rev. J. R. Rees, Vicar, William Devenish, Esq., of Nunney, Frome, Somerset, to Ann Alderson, third daughter of the late Rev. B. Smith, of Drax, Yorkshire. No cards.

On the 17th ult., at Monkstown Church, by the Rev. James Pollitt, M.A., Oxford, cousin of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Pollitt, Rector of Hooth, William Bullingham, Esq., of the Vancey House, Sutton, eldest son of William Bullingham, Esq., of Ravensdale, county of Kildare, to Grace Mortimer Bunyce, daughter of the late George Folliott, Esq., of Vicars Cross, in the county of Chester.

On Thursday, the 24th ult., at Trinity Church, St. Marylebone, by the Rev. Prebendary Wilson, M.A., Rector of Lambeth, Edward Hamilton Bruce, assisted by his Son, Henry Charles Hamond Bruce, B.C.L., Barrister-at-Law, Tunbridge Wells, John Bax, of Manning-land, S.C., and Guilford-street, Russell-square, eldest son, to Harriet, youngest daughter of Samuel B. Clark, of New Cavendish-street, Portland-place.

On June 22, at the English church, Valparaiso, Chili, by the Rev. Richard Dennett, John Langlands, Esq., son of the late R. Langlands, Esq., of Cambridge, Kingsbridge, and of Glasgow, London, to Eleanor Jane Schomberg, daughter of Alfred Johnson, Esq., M.D., Valparaiso. No cards.

On the 19th ult., at St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, by the Rev. Canon Carr, to the rector of Cork, to Frederick William Bell, Esq., only son of Frederick Bell, Esq., of Putney.

DEATHS.

On the 25th ult., at Brunswick-square, Brighton, Samuel Leveson, Esq., aged 72 years.

On the 15th ult., Charlotte Williams, wife of Mr. J. R. Williams, of Tredunnock, in the county of Monmouth, Canada West, and many years a resident of the city of Hamilton.

On the 19th ult., at Chapel-house House, Isleworth, the Hon. Mr. Justice Hawkins, aged 68.

On the 29th ult., at Oundle, deeply regretted by all who knew her, Mary Ann, younger son of Princess B. Ellis, Esq., Surgeon, Crowle, Lincolnshire, aged 74 years.

On the 23rd ult., at her residence, 26, Montague-place, Russell-square, Laura Bridgeman, youngest daughter of Frederick Bridgeman, Esq., of Weybridge.

At Liskeard, near Elgin, N.B., General the Hon. Sir G. Brown, G.C.B., K.H., Colonel-in-Chief of the Rifle Brigade, and Colonel of the 32nd Foot.

At Gordon House, Isleworth, the Hon. Mr. Justice Hawkins, aged 68.

At Carlton Park, Northamptonshire, Sir A. C. Hunter Blair, 3rd Bart., in his 81st year.

On the 24th ult., at Great Malvern, the wife of William Charles Ward Jackson, Esq., of Greenham Hall, in the county of Dorham, of a daughter.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 9.

SUNDAY, Sept. 3.—Twelfth Sunday after Trinity. Oliver Cromwell defeated the Royalists at Dunbar, 1650; and at Worcester, 1651; died, 1658.

MONDAY, 4.—Translation of St. Cuthbert. Sunset, 7.20. Sun in Virgo. Death of the Hungarian hero, John Corvinus Hunniades, 1456.

TUESDAY, 5.—Battle of Bennington, 1777. Perfect Sept., 1793. First American Consul appointed to Algiers, 1774. Sir Robert Peel, born, 1788.

WEDNESDAY, 6.—Death of Colbert, Minister of Finance to Louis XIV., 1683. Full moon, 8.28m. a.m.

THURSDAY, 7.—Eusebius, Bishop of Orleans. Death of the philosopher, Kant, 1804. Battle of Garibaldi and Austrians at Volturno, 1860. Sun in Libra.

FRIDAY, 8.—Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Capture of the Malakoff and fall of Sebastopol, 1855.

SATURDAY, 9.—Death of the great anatomist, Albinus, 1770. Municipal Reform Act passed, 1835.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE, FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 9.

Sunday.		Monday.		Tuesday.		Wednesday.		Thursday.		Friday.		Saturday.
M.	A. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.	A. M.	P. M.
h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
1	1	2	2	3	3	4	4	5	5	6	6	7	7

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 19′ 47″ W.; Height above sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.		WIND.		RAIN
	Barometer reduced to Sea-level.	Dew Point.	Relative Amount of Moisture.	Relative Humidity.	Highest.	Lowest.	General Direction.	Horizontal Motion.	Amount in Inches.
	Inches.	°	°	Deg.	°	°		Miles per hour.	Inches
27	29·750	57·9	·86	84	64·8	51·6	E. ESE.-SW.	122	·174
28	29·726	49·4	·81	76	64·9	47·6	WSW.-WNW.S.	162	·741
29	30·093	48·1	·80	82	63·6	47·8	ESE.-ENE.	107	·009
30	30·154	52·3	·87·5	80	64·4	47·6	NNE. ENE. E.	108	·021
31	27				64·2	47·2		69	·000
28	29·826	49·6	·81·0	79	65·6	49·8	SW.-WNW.	107	·043
29	29·650	49·7	·72	71	67·2	47·6	SW.-WNW.	129	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.

Barometer (corrected and reduced)	29·650	29·722	29·804	29·975	30·209	29·953	29·915
Temperature of Evaporation	59·0°	52·0°	57·0°	58·0°	59·0°	45·0°	55·5°
Direction of Wind	S.	WSW.	NNE.	NNE.	Calm.	SW.	WNW.

THE FRENCH AND BRITISH FLEETS AT PORTSMOUTH.

Several Engravings, from Sketches by our Special Artists, illustrative of the VISIT of the FRENCH FLEET to PORTSMOUTH, will appear in the next Two Numbers of this Journal,

198, Strand, W. C.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS,

LONDON: SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1865.

SATIRISTS may write against cliques, but it is the order of nature to make cliques, and the duty of philosophy to prevent their having an evil influence. The poet-philosopher of the day, in his magnificent ode on the opening of the last Great Exhibition, has told us of the only way in which we can acquire an ascendancy over nature, "Controlling, by obeying her powers." In the worst form of pseudo-wisdom which rests itself fither loftily above, or doggedly against, the way of the world. At the time certain writers, evidently for lack of better work to do, are exercising considerable ingenuity to persuade us that, although most members of what is called society are at this time worn out by the labour and pleasure of a year, and are utterly careless of the ordinary topics and excitements of the day, they ought not to be taken into account by the public instructor, who should proceed with his ordinary lectures as if he had a full theatre instead of all but empty benches, studded with a few yawners in the highest state of dissatisfaction. We own that such heroic self-assertion is beyond us. If, for the sake of argument, we suppose, we should endeavour to show that it ought to be beyond anyone who knows human nature. But, as it is, we content ourselves with noting, good-humouredly, that the school of the wise men of Gotham, who built a hedge round the cuckoo to prevent a constant spring time, is by no means shut up, and that pupils are received at any period of the quarter. The clique called society in London, and in all the important cities of England, has declared that work and thought are to be laid aside for a time, and that public instruction shall be suspended. Let those who are wiser and stronger than society fight against this decree if they will, and see what they get by it. They will throw away a large quantity of wisdom which, duly husbanded, would have been highly acceptable when the days come to which the Second King Charles's out-of-door test is fatal.

Sir Walter Scott, into whose works no one ever looks without benefit, and who is never read without a sense of health, shower-bath feeling of renewed resolution to do duty, has a remark which bears upon the point before us. If we remember aright, the accomplished and fastidious Lockhart had expressed some contempt for a passage in which the expression is wordy refinement, who, nevertheless, had done a praiseworthy action. Sir Walter, in reply, observed that cultivated men were too apt to undervalue everything that could not be tested by some literary standard or pre-existent rule in letters. There was much truth in the remark, but it will not be much quoted, because the lesson is aimed at the class in whose hands quotations are found: and we are by no means clear that it is not resented silently by a great many men who are not able to express in words their dislike of the non-intellectual class. Here again nature comes in with one of her cliques. It is most natural for the man whose intellect has been refined by literary study who has "the world, and his mind of Cant," to be more humbled by Dr. Johnson, and who instinctively avoids the semi-educated and the clumsy, to believe that no good thing can come out of these persons. If he be a politician, he uses them, and would prefer to use them, but declines to hear them—if he is a clergyman, he pities and tries to instruct them; if he is an author, he describes and satirizes them; but in none of these cases is he inclined to think that the world would be much the more than tolerant towards them. It is from men of the kind who at best only tolerate large masses of their fellow-citizens that what may be called clique-judgments come, and it is those who are the most averse against the latter who manifest movements of those classes. It is persons like these who now profess to be indignant that their teachings are unheeded, and who accuse writers who have more accurately noted the spirit of the times than themselves of pandering to a public that they quietly recognise, instead of denying or scoffing at, the fact that, for a certain period of the year, the British citizen, above the lower middle class, is stagnant, mentally and bodily. We, on the contrary, are in a state of elation at the new topics in what we believe to be a wise arrangement of nature; and assuredly we should hold ourselves the slaves of a fashion as tyrannical as that of Belgravia did we try to break into the temple of eternal nature.

Willingly—nobody but journalists know how willingly—we accept what the lazy wave of the season may cause to throw up to the shore. If old enemies, grown wiser, and therefore grown friends, are to be the amiable chance, we are ready to record their fortunate event. If a grand experiment happens to fail at the same slack time we lament the failure, and are ready to dilate upon its incidents. If a world-famous lithuone is cut through (it is not) talking could equal our pleasure in depicting the white sails crawling between the sand banks, and we hope that we should be found But with reflections and classic allusions not unworthy of the event. We cannot dwell on a crimson list of crime, though it is almost unparalleled; and we prefer not to dwell on details of a quadrupedal epidemic, which is raging at home and abroad, and which may be fatal for the general reader. But where the incidents of the slow season are reasonably agreeable, we are happy to serve them up with comment; but not all the taunts which ingenuity can direct against conventionalism shall drive us to preaching on high-class politics, or retailing high-class morals at a time when the world of readers has declared itself en vacance.

Let society idle, and it will come back all the fitter for duty. But people may be idle and yet stupid; and this is what we earnestly encourage everybody to do nothing, we by no means advise anybody to think nothing. Big Dr. Johnson's observation wished to survey mankind from China to Peru, and had he been so engaged at this time, he would have seen a fierce revolution ravaging at both ends of the line. But there is a smaller range of observation, which is not so splendid, but which may be quite as useful. The Frenchman who wrote the delightful voyage round his own room was a philosopher of the kind whom we should recommend as teacher, or rather as companion, to Englishmen when taking their holiday. There is plenty to see and to note, if folks will but use their eyes—as faculty far more rare than is generally believed. Let the holiday-maker try to compose—but first he must perform—a voyage round his own watering-place, or his own lake, or his own Scotch mountain—be it, as Thomas Hood said, either lofty Ben Lomond or little Ben Docky—and he will soon discover how uncommonly easy it is to be a topographical author, and how uncommonly difficult it is to ascertain the exact truth upon any given subject. Let those who doubt this last proposition agree to be separate observers, and then compare notes, with the understanding that the differences are to be settled by re-investigation. not by quarrel. In place of pestering our readers with non-readable disquisition, we present them with these hints; and we are quite sure that in a September which promises to be fine, and for which Lord Portarlington has also promised, our counsel will be much more acceptable than the most didactic essay on decimal coinage, or the probable character of the next Reform bill, or on the unappreciated relations between capital and labour.

THE COURT.

THE QUEEN, with the members of the Royal family, continues at the Rosenau, Coburg, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Wednesday week Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, arrived at the Rosenau, from Brandenburg.

On Thursday week the Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse arrived at Coburg, from Darmstadt.

Yesterday week the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Prussia arrived at Coburg, from Potsdam. Their Royal Highnesses were received at the railway station by Prince Alfred and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg. The Crown Prince afterwards drove to the Ducal Parade. Later in the day the Queen visited their Royal Highnesses, and afterwards drove through the market-place. The Princess and Princess of Wales and the Duke of Cambridge arrived at Coburg, from Rumpenheim. The Duchess of Holstein-Augustenburg, niece to the Queen, and Prince Christian of Holstein, who are on a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg, have visited the Queen at the Rosenau. Princess Clementine, Duchess of Saxony, with her children, Prince Philip Duke of Saxony and Amelia, Duchess of Saxony, and Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, have left a visit to the ducal family. The Duke de Brabant also arrived at Coburg.

On Saturday week the Queen left Windsor Castle and drove, the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Prussia, Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, Prince Arthur, the Duke of Cambridge, and her present at a concert given by the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg at the ducal palace.

On Sunday the Queen, with all the members of the Royal family, attended Divine service in the Rosenau chapel. The Duke of Cambridge left Coburg on his return to Rumpenheim, near Frankfort.

The Queen takes daily drives in the vicinity of Coburg.

According to intelligence received, the Court will return to England and disembark at the Royal Arsenal pier, Woolwich, upon the 8th or 9th inst. The Queen will proceed to Windsor Castle and remain for about a week, when the Court will proceed to Scotland.

The Queen has conferred the dignity of baronet of the hereditary manner in which Major John Clayton Cowell, C.B., of the Royal Engineers, has, for nine years, discharged the duties of Secretary to the Commissioner and situation of governor to his Royal Highness Prince Alfred, has been created a Baronet, in commemoration of these facts and in consequence of his Royal Highness having, on the 6th ult., attained his majority, to give orders for the appointment of that officer to be an honorary member of the Royal Victoria Order of the second class, or Knights Commanders, of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath.

Her Majesty's gracious intention has been appreciated, and the zeal and devotion of which Major Howard Crawford Elphinstone, V.C., of the Royal Marine Engineers, has for some years given proof in the service to His Royal Highness Prince Arthur, has also been graciously pleased to give expression to the sentiment that that officer to be an ordinary member of the civil division of the third class, or Companions, of the Most Honourable Order.

INAUGURATION OF THE MEMORIAL STATUE TO THE PRINCE CONSORT AT COBURG.

The inauguration of the statue of the Prince Consort at Coburg took place on Saturday last, the anniversary of his Royal Highness's birthday. The arrangements for the day were carried out in a handsome tribune was erected near the statue for the accommodation of the Queen and the various illustrious personages. In the centre of the chair of state, in which the Queen sat during the ceremony. The town was profusely decorated with evergreens, and early in the day large numbers of the people from the neighbouring villages thronged the streets. At three o'clock a ground of honour, preceded by a band, marched to the market-place. Here the statue were the members of the committee, the artists, and the choristers. On the right of the tribune were the civil authorities and the officers, the clergy and teachers, the civic authorities and the teachers of the town schools, and deputations from other countries.

A number of young ladies was appointed to strew wreaths around the statue. They were stationed in front of the tribune, forming a line from its centre to the seat occupied by the Queen. They were dressed in white, with scarfs and sashes of diverse colours, mostly green and white. Each wore a garland round the head and carried in her hand the wreath she was to lay at the foot of the statue.

Shortly before three the Queen, the Princess and Princess of Wales, the Crown Prince and Princess of Prussia, Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, Prince Alfred, the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke and Duchess of Brabant, Duke Ernest of Wittenberg, and the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg arrived. Their Royal Highnesses were received by the burgomaster and the chief marshal, and the Princesses were subsequently joined in front of the tribune, where bouquets and programmes had been placed for them. The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of Colonel of the Coldstream as General in the English Army. The Crown Prince of Prussia, Prince Louis of Hesse, and the Duke of Wittenberg were attired in the military dress of their respective countries. Prince Alfred wore a Cologne uniform, and Prince Ferdinand light blue coat-cuirass. The Princess of Prussia sat on the right of the seat to be occupied by the Queen, having on her left Princess Louis of Hesse. The Princess of Wales sat on the left of the Queen's chair.

Soon after o'clock the firing of the guns from the fortress announced the arrival of the Queen. Her Majesty was accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold. Princess and Princess Beatrice followed in another carriage. Earl Granville and the ladies and gentlemen of the Royal suite followed. The Queen was received by the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg. Upon the arrival of her Majesty the band played the English National Anthem, after which the choir, accompanied by the band, sang a hymn, "Heil sie dir in Siegerkranz." The whole assemblage, who had risen to receive the Queen, remained standing during the hymn, and the Queen also rose from her chair. After the hymn the statue was unveiled. The hymn, accompanied by the band, and followed by a salute from the statue, hauled to a young lady who was stationed within the railings a bouquet, which was laid at the foot of the statue. The princesses each offered the same tribute of affection. The Queen then returned to the tribune and conversed with various ladies. Her Majesty, in a short time returned to the Rosenau, amid the enthusiastic cheers of the vast assemblage. The band played another composition during the ceremonial.

The statue is of bronze gilt 10 ft 6 in. in height. It was modelled by Mr. Theed, and was cast, at Nuremberg, by Messrs. Lenz and Herold. It stands on a pedestal of syenite, cut from the Feichtel Mountains, in Saxe-Coburg. His Royal Highness is represented in the full costume of Great Master of the Order of the Bath, wearing upon the breast the gold collar of the order. The mantle falls to the ground, and is made to serve as a support to the figure. In the left hand is a baton; the right rests on a plan of the Great Exhibition, which rests on a stone at the side of the figure; and upon the left knee is the garter, with the motto, "Honi soit qui mal y pense." Herr Winterhalter, Mr. Theed, and Mr. Thomas were present at the inauguration, and each was graciously acknowledged by the Queen.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Temple Church, which is undergoing a thorough cleaning, is to be reopened for Divine service on Sunday, Oct. 1.

Dr. Joseph Sharpe has resigned the professorship of Jurisprudence in University College, London.

Mr. William Lawson, Third Master of Durham Training College, has been appointed to succeed him in St. Mark's College, Chelsea.

Mr. R. Payne Smith, sub-librarian of the Bodleian Library, succeeds Dr. Jenkyns, recently appointed to the mastership of Chester, as Regius Professor of Divinity at the University of Oxford.

On Thursday week the new church at Biggs, near Bridport was consecrated by the Bishop of Salisbury, when the Bishop of Edinburgh preached, and a collection amounting to £37 was made. The consecration of the churchyard also took place.

The parish church of Duncton, near Petworth, Sussex, having become dilapidated, and being inconveniently situated, a new church, in the Decorated style, has been built on a more central site, on the high road, about half a mile nearer to Petworth.

A memorial window to the late Duke of Newcastle has been placed in the north church of Bosford, near Bosford Bridge, of which his Grace took a deep interest. It was unveiled with much ceremony on Thursday.

On Thursday week the Bishop of Lincoln consecrated a new church, dedicated to St. James, in the parish of Boston, Lincolnshire. The church is a spacious edifice in the Early English style, by a local architect, Mr. Bellamy, and has been the entire gift of Thomas Fydell, Esq., of Boston, at a building cost of £10,000.

The Rev. W. Allen Whitworth, M.A., late scholar of St. John's College, Cambridge (sixteenth Wrangler in 1862), and joint editor of the Senate-House Problems and Riddles, has been appointed to the newly-founded Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy in Queen's College, Liverpool.

The Bishop of London has appointed the following gentlemen to preach in St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday mornings in the month of September:—3rd, the Rev. William John Hall, Rector of St. Clement's, Eastcheap; 11th, the Rev. James Augustus Hessey, Head Master of Merchant Taylors' School; 17th, the Rev. Thomas Fraser Storke, Perpetual Curate of St. Andrew's Church, Brookfield, Highgate; 24th, the Rev. Henry Melvill Gwynne, Rector of St. James's, Piccadilly.

The very parish church of St. Columcell's, Ahoghill, in the county of Antrim, was consecrated, by the Bishop of Down and Connor, on St. Bartholomew's Day. The foundation-stone of the present edifice was laid in August, 1863, by Mrs. O'Neill, of Shane's Castle, and it has since been completed at a cost over £3000. The plan of the church is cruciform, and the style of the architecture Early English. There is a tower and spire at the north-west angle, nearly 100 ft. high, containing a peal of six bells, cast expressly for them by Messrs. Mears, of Coventry. The bell, which was presented to the church by Mrs. Dobbin, of Ahoghill, who is one of the last surviving members of the Ancient Association, is a free one, from the foundry of Sheridan, of Dublin.

Dr. Cureton, a family left Dublin on Tuesday, for Trinidad, which sailed from Gravesend on the evening of the 19th ult., bound to Port Antonio.—The Archbishop, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Cardwell, Mr. Lowe, and the other defendants to the Bishop of Natal's Chancery suit for the recovery of the episcopal see's allowance from the Government, have paid the costs of their counsel. The allege that the clergy of Natal refuse to obey Dr. Colenso, that the bishop has been deposed by the Metropolitan of South Africa, and that the late dedication of the Pietermaritzburg Cathedral displeased the Right Rev. Prelate of all metropolitical jurisdiction and control. The defendants submit that "the subjects sought by the information to have cognizance taken of do not have cognizance taken of do not have cognizance taken of do not

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL

THE BRITISH SQUADRON IN THE HARBOUR SALUTING IN HONOUR OF THE EM

FESTIVAL AT CHERBOURG.

FÊTE DAY.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 206.

AT CHERBOURG.

H BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 206.

E INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT CHERB

THE BRITISH SQUADRON IN THE HARBOUR SALUTING IN HONOUR OF THE EMPEROR'S FETE DAY.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

I possess a caricature by Gillray, representing an English bumpkin holding the severed and ranguished head of the late Napoleon Bonaparte on the prongs of a pitchfork, and contemplating the gory trophy with a complacent grin. Decapitation and extermination were the fate with which the French ruler was threatened if he dared to invade this happy land. I replace the caricature in its portfolio, and, turning to the daily journals, find that the French fleet has arrived at Portsmouth, that nine Gallic ironclads are triumphantly anchored in the place of honour in Spithead, and that the French tricolor is flying from her Majesty's ship Victory. Now, is not this enough to make John Gillray turn in his grave; nay, even to cause the ghost of the great Admiral to rise in their midst in Paul's? As for the statue of George III., in Cockspur-street, I should not be surprised to hear that the pigtail of that stout and Gallican monarch had turned white in a single night in horror at the desecration of the Victory's rigging. They must be a queer set of visitors on the deck of the old ship. In addition to the inscriptions, "Here Nelson fell," "Here Nelson died," &c., there will soon be placed a commemoration of a momentous event :—"Here the Duke of Somerset, First Lord of the English Admiralty, received the Emperor Napoleon Lushet, Minister of the Imperial French Marine," and "Here Admiral Sir Sidney Colpoys Dacres shook hands with Admiral Bouet-Willaumez." What would Nelson's coxswain have said to such a meeting? I hope he would not have re-echoed the unguarded expression of the original old boatswain's mate, and have been ready or hard to conciliate on his way to Elba. And yet there is something grand in the thought that the descendants of our greatest naval enemy ever has had at length been realised—that the cherished wish of the poor, broken, bankrupt fat man who died at St. Helena has at last been carried out. "England and France united," he said to Montholon, "should rule the world." And in 1854 they are united, and rule, at least in tust, for the good of all mankind.

The "Lyre of the war," the bleeding stylet of William Howard Russell, has been unmistakably visible in the Times this week, in an obituary notice of that valued young officer Lieutenant Lushet. The article is somewhat light and jocund for a necrological one; but it is full of interesting reminiscences of camp life at Balaclava and Sebastopol. It seems but yesterday since the Duke of Somerset was beleaguered, and yet the Crimean men are dropping off very fast: and the gentleman who was at Inkerman, the bravest man in the army, and one of the six hundred, are veterans already.

Another "Times man" has made his mark in the Thunderer this week. Mr. Frank Lawley, some time special correspondent of that journal in the Southern States of America, has written a letter full of fine eloquent letter on the alleged maltreatment and starvation of Federal prisoners in Southern prisons, according to Northern reports. Now, as General Lee from having in any way sanctioned the cruelties to which it was alleged the captives in the Confederate prisons in Virginia were subjected at Richmond and Andersonville. Touching the whole question of the treatment of prisoners of war, North and South, during the last conflict, I venture to hold that the balance of justice is a great deal to be said on both sides. But this time last year I happened to be at Scarboro, and there I was witness to the fine indignation of Southern exiles, ladies and gentlemen, entreating me, as an Englishman, to state public opinion in the North, and to appeal to it for the amelioration of the wretched condition of the Southern soldiers confined in Federal prisons. Then I happened to see in a London photographic portrait of a Northern "bhoy," recently released from captivity in the Libby prison, and he was, by Confederate fare, and labour reduced literally to the condition of a skeleton; but photographs as painful might have been taken, I am afraid, of desperate cases of atrophy in the Lincoln Hospital at Washington.

There is an old story of a criminal, who, being asked by the clerk of the arraigns, in the usual manner, how he would be tried? answered, with engaging candour, that "he would rather not be tried at all." It is a new thing, however, for a man to express a preference or a prediction for a place of execution, or giving a preference to a particular scaffold. From the last accounts of the trial of the notorious and interesting Mr. Ernest Walter Southey bar, it is understood, omitted a wish that, if convicted, he might be hung in Hyde Park. He signified a "communication to his gaolers." How far the authorities will feel themselves justified in acceding to Southey's modest little request, or whether the High Sheriff of Kent, claiming priority, will insist upon having the pleasure of strangling Mr. Southey (by deputy), is yet uncertain. Really we have been spoiled of late by this fiend from the billiard-marking bloodsplitter. In a letter—he is always writing letters—this unwitting Southey, who has been incarcerated under the Copyright Act, against any persons who shall presume to copy the photograph of a lady friend, has threatened that the English law is too humane to gag prisoners or to deprive them of the use of writing materials before trial; but one might be excused for not thinking that a little of the treatment to which Mr. Jefferson Davis was so unjustifiably exposed at Fortress Monroe would be appropriate if applied to the ex-baker, billiard sharp, and quintuple butcher of Bampton and Holborn.

And of a piece with the airy badinage of this nonchalant assassin is the cool and business-like "confession" of Constance Kent, whom her "solicitor" and the medical gentleman visited together after her "Miss." "Miss" Kent describes her most horrible and abominable deed with a phlegmatic circumstantiality worthy of a witness in Mr. George Frederick Manning's memorable arrival of the manner in which he invited Madame his wife to walk out to the garden behind a cow-yard. "I never liked him," said Mr. Manning, "and so I finished him off with a ripping chisel." "Miss" Kent, however, appears to have ably stumbled upon an expression which, for terrible terseness, may vie with one of the most fiendish passages in Milton's Satanic speech to the wrist. Compare Lady Macbeth (act v. scene 1), "Yet who would have thought the old man to have had so much blood in him ?" with Constance Kent: "I thought the blood would never cease." The poor little boy who bat an hour before had felt his life in every limb woe to bleed, and yet the purple stream flowed on, and flowed from the aged and wasted Duncan. Remember, though, that it was with the eye of Conscience that Lady Macbeth saw the crimson stain imbibed in gore. Perhaps the actual wretch who slew Duncan thought "the blood would never cease" Constance Kent, until she was taken to Newgate, where she had no conscience at all. The philosophic gentlemen who meander about her as a "physiological problem" will, I presume, conclude that they have lost sight of one simple fact — that she was a thoroughly bad, hardened, ungodly girl, and that a parallel case to that of Master Dr. Bucknell thinks her sane, but is fearful that she will go mad if subjected to the long solitary confinement which is the award for a requited murderess, sentenced to penal servitude for life, to be solitary confined? Cannot she be set to hard labour and punished, in silent association with other convicts? In the meantime, the philosophic persons, the admirable John Howard speaks, not unfavourably, of a way they had in Denmark of dispensing with the punishment in the case of women convicted of infanticide, and yet of letting them know that they were not to take the law into their own hands with impunity. They were sent to the penitentiary for life, and once a year, on the day when, and at the place where, they had committed their crime, they were whipped. No one would wish in these days to see the young sex subjected to such a degrading and brutal punishment, and stern discipline should surely be the lot of atrocious offenders who, like "Miss" Kent, have no sex left to them.

And our old friend Sam Slick is dead! The Honourable Mr. Justice Haliburton, lately a member of the British House of Commons, died at his home at Isleworth on Sunday. Sam was a clever writer, a shrewd person and honour and deserved renown, as brilliant a writer, as quaint a humourist, as good, and honest, and true a gentleman as ever lived. Nova Scotia was justly proud of her distinguished son—as proud as she is of having given birth to the heroic Sir Fenwick Williams of Kars. In this country we knew very little of Mr. Haliburton as a lawyer or as a politician—he was one of the most resolute of Tories—but his literary fame was deservedly great; and, under the pseudonym of "Sam Slick," he enjoyed a repute as a satirist and painter of manners second only to that of Washington Irving and Charles Dickens. "The Clockmaker" was his sagacious spoo. "The Attaché; or Canada" and "The Old Judge" are capital in their way, but are eclipsed by the inimitable essays of the shrewd Yankee pedlar.

In which I am reminded of another "live Yankee," as dead in his way, in reality, as Sam Slick was in fiction. I have the pleasure to inform my readers that "Artemus Ward" is coming, and that very speedily. He wrote me the other day from Buffalo, N.Y., introducing an American gentleman whom I should have been delighted to welcome, but whom, owing to my being at the period of his visit in the interior of Africa, I unfortunately missed. I shall be with you next week, however, "with my Mormons and things." The "Mormons and things," in the shape of a lecture on Great Salt Lake City, were found irresistibly comical in the States. I wonder whether they would be appreciated here. I have no doubt I should have, and yet, if the public roar with laughter at "Mrs. Brown at the Play," they might possibly be disappointed with hilarity at the saying of the British lecturer I ever listened to. On the whole, I should advise A. W. to put on "a clean linded rig," which is distinctly the correct thing, and cross the Atlantic. If his Mormons and things don't take, he will be at least sustained by the kindly sympathies of which he can make good use when he returns to the U.S.

THE THEATRES.

We have to record—and we desire to do little more—the production at the Lyceum of a new drama, entitled "The Life of an Actress," by Mr. Angelo," the work of Mr. W. C. Russell, a son of Mr. Henry Russell, the popular composer and entertainer. The youth of the author is a sufficient excuse for many of its shortcomings, while it must be admitted that there are many decidedly good lines in the dialogue. But the composition is not equal, and sometimes the language is inoffensively mean or crude. As usual with juvenile aspirants to poetry, the references to stars and flowers are abundant. Indeed, most of the various speakers' illustrations are either astral or floral. Nor are they content in their expressions with the simple, natural, or true to line. Some of the personages, too, including the heroine, have an evil habit of "soliloquising" aloud. The hero, who is duped, by a humbleshod friar, to undertake the poisoning of his bride on the morrow, afterwards soliloquises from the grave timely notice to her lover of the danger to which his loved one is exposed. The villain, who is introduced to the malignant friar, who prepares a cup of chocolate for the former, also, in due course, informs the poor girl from drinking, and forces the dragged friar to drink the poisoned beverage himself. This drama is so deficient in structure that, although it is in five acts only, the curtain has to fall seven times. The scenery is shown in some of the speeches, which were so unadroitly introduced that the audience, though they were not aware of the fact, applauded with some instances general and loud. But there was no vilification, and the fact is that the piece was received with considerable favour. It was well acted. Miss Katherine Rodgers, though not quite equal to the task of the heroine, who was required to be at once pathetic, energetic in her delivery, but she is not a finished artist. Her dying scene, which, from the author's directions, were made to seem much longer by her want of tact. Miss Louisa Moore, Miss Emma Harris, and Miss Esther Montgomery threw the proper dash into the character of the "Actress's" friends. Mr. Frederick Robinson, who is a new actor, belongs to Mr. Vollaire, who, as Fra Angelo, laboured hard to make the most of the friar's part, but he wanted both dignity, intelligence and force. The theme of the piece is not in the best taste, and remains to be moulded into a more effective and unobjectionable form. It is noted, nevertheless, that the writer has sought to give it a poetical colouring; and if he will only study more closely the rules of art, he will be favour on account of his good intentions. The house was well attended, and the young dramatist bowed his acknowledgments from a private box.

In the village of Acireale, near Catania, sixty-four houses were destroyed on the 11th ult. by an earthquake.

The Right Honourable Stephen Woulfe Judge and ambulatory pedigree, has left Paris on a tour in Germany and Russia.

The African King of the Danaas recently sent a request to President Pierce for a pair of mustachios and a wig.

A fine marble statue of the Emperor Trajan has been discovered in the ruins of the ancient Colonia Ulpia Trajana in Germany.

Egypt has this year been obliged to have recourse to Odessa for supplies of wheat. The export trade from Odessa to Alexandria has accordingly been unusually active.

A telegram from Calcutta, of the 22nd ult., states that the Sepoy troops at Peshawur, on the north-western frontier of India, have been wrecked. The loss of life is not known.

The Rev. Mr. Dale, of Birmingham, having failed to obtain the gas necessary for its radiation at Frankfort, has taken himself with it to Darmstadt, where he will, I trust, enlighten the natives.

Mr. Edward Rapp has been promoted by the University of Bonn to the degree of Doctor Philosophiæ, for his numismatic and archæological researches.

Mr. Hume, the chief clerk of the Master of the Rolls, has been appointed Deputy Master of the Queen's Bench, vice Mr. Justice Talfourd, deceased.

The fourth annual meeting of the International Social Science Association was opened in Berne, on Monday afternoon, by the Federal President Furrer.

The war between Brazil and Paraguay is proceeding, with doubtful success on either side. Both countries appear to be equally the people are showing the greatest enthusiasm on behalf of their Sovereign.

An accident of the same distressing character as that upon the Paris and Versailles line, on the 8th May, occurred on the Northern, from Dresden, attempted the ascent of the Dittis at Hogsburg station, and fell backwards into a ravine. The boiler of the engine burst.

An elegant and appropriate Latin epitaph has been composed by Dr. Dobree, Professor of Greek at Cambridge, for insertion, as a ornamental card, in honour of the late Earl of Ilchester, who was President of the Society of Dilettanti, and made of Bronze.

Religious toleration has recently made a step forward in Cuba. Under the Presidency of Count Alcoy, a decree has granted the freedom of worship, and the right of establishing private schools for the education of children of other persuasions than the Catholic.

Peru continues to be torn by revolution, and the Presidential Government is threatened by Castilla, who has raised the flag of the Union, reaching Valparaiso from this country, she at once declared for the Constitutional cause, and has since been blockading the insurgent fleet, which proceeded at once to take the command of the insurgent fleet.

The English papers publish accounts of a hurricane which passed over the Island of Jamaica on the 16th ult., by which great damage was done, and by which a large coffee estate was very great. The hurricane came from the south-west towards the north-east, and was preceded by a tremendous surge (swell) on the coast.

The plaster group called "A Pietà," in the Dublin Exhibition, has excited much speculation. It appeared in our Journal of the 19th ult., seems likely to be the work of Mr. Foley, notwithstanding the originality of the design. Mr. Joseph Farrell, of Dublin, has modelled the work now in the Exhibition, denies the assertion of the proprietor of the Exhibition that Foley is dead. As we observed, at first request, last week, that it was recently copied by Mr. Farrell from a marble group, by Mr. Hogan, which exists in the Irish College at Rome, and the original model of which is in the Roman Catholic Church in Francis-street. We were certainly led to the supposition that there was an accidental blunder in the catalogue, which ascribed the work to Mr. Farrell; but that gentleman writes, "My work in the Dublin Exhibition is an original design, and not a copy. I have never made of the subject; and I have never executed a copy of it for anyone." The design is my own; and if I were influenced by anything, it was by the beauty of Mr. Hogan's group, which I could not, and offer, sympathise with." The paragraph, we learned from him, was sent to us by Mr. Farrell replies, was founded on a communication from Dr. E. E. Rogers, Sitting Hospital.

FINE ARTS.

THE ARUNDEL SOCIETY.

The publications of the Arundel Society for the current year present a novel claim to notice. For the first time a work of early Florentine art has been included in the yearly issue. The chromolithographs for the year reproduce one of the most important examples of the Sciencindish art of the fifteenth century—the triptych by Memlinc, in the Hospital of St. Joseph, at Bruges. This famous triptych comprises five subjects—"The Adoration of the Magi," as a centre composition; "The Nativity" and "The Presentation," on the wings when opened; and "St. John the Baptist Preaching," and "St. Veronica," on the exterior of the wings. We have already reviewed the careful and evidently accurate drawings by M. Schultz, from the original photographs. The same artist has likewise, as we are informed, transferred the subjects to the lithographic stone, and has undoubtedly executed with that union (for the first time) of the water-colour copyist and the lithographer in one person, which is so desirable for success; and it has all probability proved an advantage in this instance, though not, as we shall have occasion to show in subsequent remarks, altogether advantageous in Italian fresco. For these plates after Memlinc, also, colour-printers of Paris, instead of those of Berlin, have been employed. The result is certainly remarkable for force of characteristic form and for depth and richness of colour. In respect to the colouring, however, great discrepancies exist. There is a difference between the lustrous, glowing depth and power of an early Flemish oil painting and an Italian fresco originally pale and now faded and abraded. We must observe that, in thus undertaking to reproduce examples of the masterpieces of Netherlandish as well as Italian art, the Arundel Society is, in so far, departing from the main object for which it was originally founded—the preservation of some record of the many noble wall-paintings in Italy, which are rapidly decaying and are every day exposed to fresh injury. Scores of such paintings still exist without record; but there is no prospect of their being the publishers, while neglected and certainly carefully-preserved pictures of the Netherlandish schools.

This year's issue to subscribers also includes an outline engraving in continuation of the series from the frescoes by Fra Angelico in the chapel of Nicholas V. in the Vatican, and a section of the line works of Memlinc, by Mr. W. H. James Weale, an English gentleman resident in Bruges, who has made the early Flemish art authorities of that city his monographs. We are glad to find the orthography of Memlinc's name, which has been so long corrupted, Memling, from Memling, settled at last. Mr. Weale says that, out of forty-nine documents entirely new to him in the archives of Bruges, more than forty-seven spell the name with a final c, instead of a g. Mr. Weale is still more successful in clearing up the mystery which has shrouded of Decemps' story that Memlinc was received at the Bruges Hospital as a wounded soldier after the Battle of Nancy, and that he painted this triptych and the so less famous subjects there. In the same institution is gratitude for the kindness shown him. In his will Memlinc says that he has left what he disposed of to him from the Fra Angelico of the Flemish school. He surpassed all the painters of the school in the expression of the Madonna and her Infant; but he was unable to represent any but saintly personages. He was no doubt to the full as great a master of colour, of drawing, and in fidelity of portraiture; to his master, Roger van der Weyden, in force of expression, and to Hubert van Eyck and to Jacques van Orley and David in landscape.

Two of the plates to be published in return for next year's subscription are in preparation, and samples are already on view. One of these is a chromolithograph, by Messrs. Storch and Kramer, of Berlin, executed under the superintendence of Professor Gruner. The Adoration of the Magi," a fresco by Luini, at Saronno. This will be a companion to the "Adoration of the Magi," by Luini, at Hampton Court, and a continuation of the society's reproductions from his works in the chapel of Saronno, which have been issued. The colouring of the much more rich and varied than in former chromolithographs from Luini, and it promises to be the most effective of the series. We have, however, find nothing to say in praise of the other large chromolithograph from Schultz's drawing, "The Head of Christ executed in Fresco at the direction" of M. Schultz, of "The Last Supper," from a fresco by Ghirlandaio, in the Church of Ognissanti, at Florence. M. Schultz's drawing from the fresco was, like all this artist has hitherto done for the society, excellent; though, as might be expected from one who has succeeded so well in the copying of Northern works, he inclined slightly to exaggerate whatever was characteristic in the forms, and is so deficient in the power of giving grace, dignity, and repose of the advanced Italian art of the great Ghirlandaio. But we are bound to say that the chromolithograph, "The Last Supper," is the first we have seriously of conveying a tolerable impression of the great master's fresco. The want of skill in the manager of the various fragments into cascature, but the draughtsmanship of some of them is glaringly faulty. We observe that the society is to publish this plate shortly, and is to take; for the process of lithography would not admit of the delicate touches which are necessary to render it at all satisfactory. It is not pleasant to have to announce a failure immediately after the publication of the Memlinc triptych; yet we are convinced that the publication of the Memlinc would have been better rather than credit to the Arundel Society. In a copy, by M. Schultz, of Andrea del Sarto's "Madonna del Sacco," in the Church of the Annunziata at Florence, intended for an "extra" publication, there is with the characteristic faults of the artist faithfully reproduced, a total tendency to excessive characterisation which we have already noticed, together with a total incompetence in rendering the present condition of the fresco, which is very apt to divert a cursory attention from the general beauty of the work. Indeed, while all the effects of time, decay, and ill-usage can never be reproduced with sufficient discrimination by artists who have not studied the subject in the mechanical process and with the limited means of colour-printed lithography. We may observe that we do not regret to find that the managers of the society have adopted the course we have advised in the impossibility of representing in chromolithography with sufficient delicacy the works of the Italian fresco painters; and hence, we do not intend to attempt, as some time since proposed, to reproduce one fresco in its entirety. The publication of the so-called "restoration" for which they have been blamed. In another Florentine fresco, by Ghirlandaio, M. Schultz, of Applies's "Crucifixion," in the convent of St. Marco, at Florence, we discover nothing to which we can take objection. The figures are drawn under the influence of the Renaissance, consequently his types and forms are more noble than those of the Northern painters, and hence, probably, M. Schultz's renewed success. At will be observed, from what has been said, that we entirely approve of the commission given to Ghirlandaio, and the publication of a chromolithograph of the "The Adoration of the Lamb." Probably no better copyist of Early Flemish art could be employed for the capacity for the delicate touches in the manner art of Italy after Masaccio; and it is evident that future publications, especially of Italian works, engraved outlines will be superintendence, must be very carefully watched.

M. Marinacci has been employed for some time in the service of the society so long, and whose copies of the Italian frescoes have, with some few exceptions, been so satisfactory as should perhaps hardly be expected, has not been idle. An "occasional" chromolithograph will appear in October next, from Raphael's fresco of the "Sibyls," in the Vatican of "St. Peter Delivered from Prison," being one of the first plates undertaken by the society at the present date. By the same hand is an admirable copy of Raphael's fresco of the "Sibyls," in Sta. Maria della Pace at Rome, a work which in our opinion the master never surpassed, which is not nearly so well known as it deserves. There are besides copies by M. Marinacci of Fra Bartolomeo's "Annunciation," in the villa of the friars of S. Marco at Florence; of three of the famous series of frescoes by Ghirlandaio illustrative of the life of S. John the Baptist, in the choir of Sta. Maria Novella (the artist is engaged on the rest of the series), and of the fresco by Raxi (Sodoma) of St. Catherine fainting in the arms of two nuns at the appearance of the Saviour. The original with other works by this inadequately-appreciated master in Siena, struck us as among the most impressive frescoes in all Italy. The copy, however, does not enable us to recall the impression of the fresco so fully as we should have expected. The architecture in the background is unquestionably too hard in the outlines and too obtrusive.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

YORK furnished Yorkshire, to its incompressible relief, with a St. Leger favourite for John Scott in Klarisha, a filly of Mr. Bowes's, which ran very fairly last year and very badly this, and she was stripped for the Yorkshire Oaks. In that race she beat Siberia cleverly, and repeated the dose so effectively in the Great Yorkshire Stakes to beat Siberia, when the "trainers" had no chance with Doncaster, and she has walked safely out of her van into the Saltonfarm yard box, where so many have gone. Mr. Lefevre winners have stood in their day, she will see a much shorter price than 10 to 1, Manx "came to hand quick" at Doncaster apparently, while their 5-lb. allowance, they have always been dangerous. Ashmall cannot waste low enough to ride her; and we have, on very good authority, that Morris will have the mount on Regalia. Opinions are very much divided in Yorkshire as to the merits of the boy toon and chestnut mares of Malton; but the Scott polish is more to be trusted than the Peck polish when it comes to a fine point. It is also well known that the gentleman must be a thin sheep, as it is on the Oaks Day, to suit Regalia's feet. The quidnuncs never kill or attribute "dangerous symptoms" to the sensitive limbs of the Scott favourites on the eve of the race, as they have been in the habit of doing on the eve of a Derby; but they have been working like mules to undermine Gladiateur in the market. They have "bruised his feet in the stable," "broken a bone in his leg," "pulled a tendon that has" been stepped in his work," sent him one afternoon to 3 to 1, and, in fact, contrived for several days to keep his friends in a state of "sanguine despondency." Desperate efforts are making to bring The Duke, Adam Day's nail to have more than a fair chance between fainty that he could have been ever anything but Gladiateur in the Derby. Such excitement as were worth very little, unless a stable has really a great and steady horse to try with, as nine tenths of the betting are made by trying horses to give immense lumps of weight to very moderate horses. Trainers are wonderful people to deal with, as a rule; and the old cheat never grows stale. Broomstaler's running at York has improved Boscbluegown's position for the Cup, and he will have to have the gentlemen, when they knew Klarisha to be in form, and had even Breadwinner to go as far as anything else to be in the same distances from home in the Derby, should ever have "plunged" on him as they did. The idea that Breadwinner is a Goodwood horse is not racing men against him, but we doubt his being more than three parts prepared to meet the very best colts of his year. Lord Athol and Borcalis could stay, and we expect that he will have put a "winding-up" round Horry Hill (the hill not the man) at Mitchell Grove, where Frederick, Merry Monarch, Blair Athol, Breadwinner, and Governess were trained before him—which may perhaps enable him, at all events, to make a bold effort to stay a mile and a half. Lord Zambesi will, it seems, be a starter; and "The Czar's" party maintain that he was quite unfit at Newmarket, although he ran a considerable leg. Lord Portsmouth's crack two-year old, Robin Hood, has been backed at Exeter by Mr. Merry, Newmarket, to win the Foltigier, with the Blackfoot half-moon head in a most exaggerated form. A crack grey I'll be, but was not backed for the Derby. In strange luck to have a Student, a Benlezeh, and a Primate in the same year.

Illington has been sold to the King of Italy, after a very moderate journey career. The sale accommodation at York was as wretched as ever, and the crowding at the entrance to the "Ice Block Hole" of a yard, which is choked up with stables, carts, dung-heaps, and rubbish, and the impossibility of getting a horse up a position in the very gateway, by way of helping matters. Six feet out of Mr. Alaston's brood mares in the Doncaster Stakes is back at 450 gs.; and Robbie Noble, a £6,000 Derby colt in his day, was knocked down and not without great difficulty got away. With the strength of Thormanby, Mr. Birkinshaw (whose horse, Dundee, is created with new names already) should have a good colt in Wildwood, at 800 gs., to his store. Common things were bad to move, so the gentleman put up nearly sixty-two, and sold exactly three! Colonel Towneley's nine averaged 282 gs., and Mr. Ten Broeck's at Beanstalk by Kettledrum, from Caller Ou's dam, and his half-brother, Bandmaster from Elleneau (500 gs.) Mr. Merry's Bonnie Jean, by Mr. Peck, jun., for, it was said, a gentleman in his stable. The six Scotchmen averaged 350 gs., and Mr. Wilson Scott's one, a young sire. The sporting pictures by Mr. Herring, sen., which belonged to the late Mr. Wyndham, of Dinton, Wilts, were sold in one lot for £300, and come, it is said, to a sporting club in London. Mr. William Scott's son, Thomas, is a student at law, and followed the saddle as a profession, and was brought up to farming at Cirencester College.

Lord Glasgow's change of trainer is said to be his twenty-second; but we do know where Mr. Sadler's stable, who had the horses for a short time after Croft's death, is included. Mr. Sadler has a number of hounds changed his huntsman nearly as often in a fewer number of seasons.

The Claxton care may, perhaps, be reopened at Doncaster; but Lord Westmorland and Mr. Lefevre, backed by the judgment of the latter, quite unmoved by the arguments of Mr. Bevill on the subject. According to Lord Westmorland's letter, the horse was struck out with Parr's full cognizance; and this seems to be admitted by the letter from Mr. Parr to Lord Westmorland, which Mr. Bevill :—"Now, my Lord, you have only to say that you told Claxton with his engagements, and everything else remaining the same, under circumstance connected with, and in the stable is said to have had in this share with the above cool proposal in deciding his Lordship to take his horses away from Parr at once. I am willing for you to be in as present stands, there seems an end to racing, as horses scratched or knocking under any other slippery trick will be sent down to the post and win in the teeth of the stewards, and thus deprive the owner of the second horse of the bets."

Leicestershire's said to be very full; in fact, almost too full, of foxes after the last hard scenting season. The Quorn country show is likely to be on a great scale at York next year, as several M. F. H.'s met at the Cleveland kennels the day after the Great Yorkshire Show to support it much more vigorously, provided it were limited to one day. The Cleveland covers are very full of foxes, and three cubs have pulled down on the Winkins a few mornings since.

The best thing for the great one-mile champion cup was run off at the Royal Oak Park, Manchester, on Saturday, for the first occasion. Lang and Richards, the Wednesbury, ran a dead heat, McGinley, the Scottish champion, a long beat by only three yards. There was no such brilliant second best in store for the lovers of pedestrianism as Richards found in Lang at Wednesbury last year, when Lang drew up, headed him in the straight run for home, and won easily by twenty yards. The mile, which is 4 yds. short, and the race was run in 4 min. 22 sec. being 4½ sec. slower than the previous race. It is said to be the best 4 miles ever run in England when Lang ran a mile down hill at Newmarket. "Deerfoot" has been running in America. He was beaten in a consider of 4 and 5 miles and twenty rods in better time than two horses could trot four miles, and several in the distance in 10 min. 17 sec., beating the best horse by 37 sec.

Surrey got terribly beaten in its cricket-match with Notts at Brighton. Oscroft made a splendid innings of 108 not out for the latter. He was first man in and fifth out, with the score at 185, and, in fact, broke the heart of the Surrey men, who considered that they were beaten in one innings by 50 runs. James Lillywhite has played for Sussex in eight county matches this year, on the eleven he has every (29) of them maidens) for 680 runs, 2 wide balls, and 49 wickets. Of the 49 wickets, 17 were bowled, 16 caught, and 16 stumped. Surrey had no chance with Hampshire at Southampton, no more had Sussex, Pooley, and Mortlock batting in their usual form mentioning against Tubb and Southerton, and in the second innings E. H. Stephenson, Mr. Bagnlay, Lockyer, and Sewell had each "a duck's egg." Mr. Lucas, who made 43 for his country in the first innings, finished up the match brilliantly with 58 (not out), and Southerton's "one" gave the match to Hampshire by 8 wickets.

It does not seem likely that there will be "quite a St. Bartholomew and Surrey on the wing, and, as invariably happens, very wild. High winds and copious rain have prevented any cricket being got at in Scotland, and our writer tells us how that some of them winged their flight right across Leith Links. The Gentlemen of Sussex Singh has had much finer sport than he had in 1863, as in his first six days he averaged 128 brace of grouse alone. Captain Horatio Ross, the great rifle shot, and celebrated at Malton in "The Squire's" time as the owner of Clinker, has just had his jubilee or fiftieth season on the hills, and shot well. Lord Stamford had also shot twenty-three royal stags in the forests of Rothiemurchus and Glenmore before York meeting, whence he returned to Scotland until the St. Leger.

The Newmarket Houghton Meeting have added the sweep of £50 to Chambers; and Cooper's backers have met to sympathise with their man, who has entered a challenge to Bailey, keeping out conditions against the umpire, that it is to be hoped, for the sake of the sporting interest, the champion will take no notice of it until they are withdrawn.

An immense fire has broken out in the cork forest surrounding Philippeville, Algeria.

The Emperor of Austria has accepted the honorary presidency of the commission for organising the display of Belgian products at the Universal Exhibition of 1867.

A testimonial, consisting of a silver salver, claret jug, and silver cup, has been offered to Mr. Hamilton Fyfe, by the officers of Commodore Thomas Heard, R.N., on his retiring from the command of H.M.S. Active, and of the Naval Reserve in the port of Sunderland.

On Monday a festival was given by Mr. Frederick Smith, the parish Clerk of Dudley, to upwards of 4000 children of the public schools in Dudley to celebrate the coronation. The festival was held on the election ground, the site of the castle.

The Gazette of yesterday week announces the terms of the new commercial treaty with Belgium, which provides for a general reduction of the customs duties between the two countries, and for reciprocity. It also provides for the exportation of rags to this country at a comparatively low rate of duty.

News has been received of the total loss of the African mail-steamer Athenian, which left Southampton on the 22nd ult. for Algoa Bay. She left that port on June 24, but on the morning of the second day of her voyage struck on a reef about a hundred miles from the coast of Africa, to the East River and struck upon a rock inside. The ship went to pieces, and a great part of the cargo was lost, but the crew and passengers were saved.

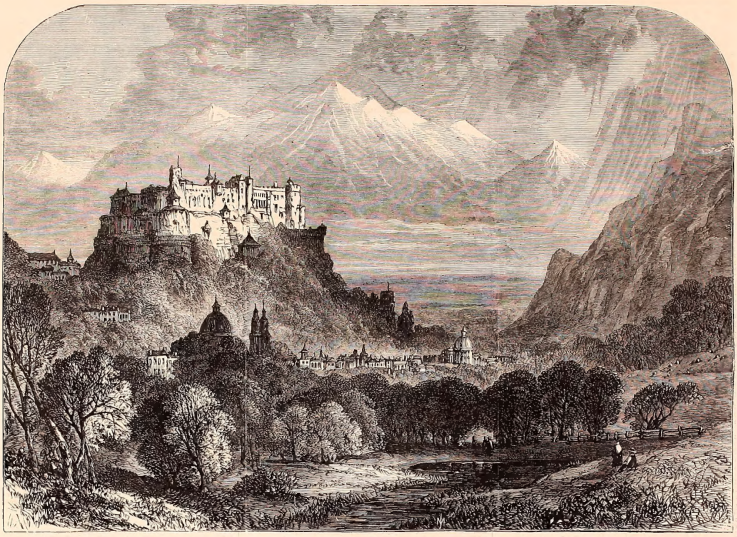
THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, Aug. 31.—To-day's market was but moderately supplied with English wheat, which met a slow sale, at last week's currencies. Foreign wheat was in limited request, and prices were barely supported. Barley and malt were in good demand, and prices have been held for more money. Oats, however, have progressed slowly. Beans, both English and foreign, have realised extreme rates. Peas were in slow request, and rather cheaper. Indian corn imported from abroad, also, was rather cheaper. Both boiled and pot oatmeal were in moderate demand, at previous rates. Flour was in fair request, at late prices.

Aug. 29.—Wheat moved off heavily to-day, on Monday's quotations. All kinds of spring corn were dull, at Friday's prices.

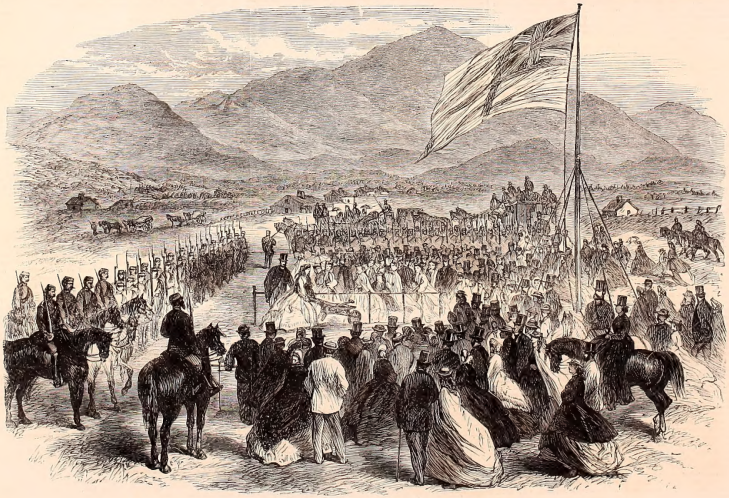
Aug. 30.—Wheat, per qr., Norfolk, 38s. to 42s.; Lincoln, 38s. to 42s.; Kent, 40s. to 42s.; Essex, 40s. to 42s.; Suffolk, 38s. to 42s.; Scotch, 38s. to 42s.; per 5 qrs., 38s. to 42s.; Dantzic, 38s. to 42s.; Konigsberg, 38s. to 42s.; Pomeranian, 38s. to 42s.; Riga, 38s. to 42s.; Petersburg, 38s. to 42s.; Marianopoli, 38s. to 42s.; Taganrog, 38s. to 42s.; Egyptian, 38s. to 42s.; Barley, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Oats, per qr., 20s. to 24s.; per 5 qrs., 20s. to 24s.; Rye, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Beans, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Peas, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Flour, per sack, 40s. to 45s.; per 5 sacks, 40s. to 45s.; per ton, 40s. to 45s.

Aug. 31.—Wheat, per qr., Norfolk, 38s. to 42s.; Lincoln, 38s. to 42s.; Kent, 40s. to 42s.; Essex, 40s. to 42s.; Suffolk, 38s. to 42s.; Scotch, 38s. to 42s.; per 5 qrs., 38s. to 42s.; Dantzic, 38s. to 42s.; Konigsberg, 38s. to 42s.; Pomeranian, 38s. to 42s.; Riga, 38s. to 42s.; Petersburg, 38s. to 42s.; Marianopoli, 38s. to 42s.; Taganrog, 38s. to 42s.; Egyptian, 38s. to 42s.; Barley, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Oats, per qr., 20s. to 24s.; per 5 qrs., 20s. to 24s.; Rye, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Beans, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Peas, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Flour, per sack, 40s. to 45s.; per 5 sacks, 40s. to 45s.; per ton, 40s. to 45s.



Sept. 2.—There is a slight improvement in the demand both for home use and export, at Monday's prices.

Sept. 3.—Scarcely any alterations have been taken off finely at full prices, although the supply of wheat was large, and that of barley, oats, beans, and peas moderate.



Sept. 4.—Wheat, per qr., Norfolk, 38s. to 42s.; Lincoln, 38s. to 42s.; Kent, 40s. to 42s.; Essex, 40s. to 42s.; Suffolk, 38s. to 42s.; Scotch, 38s. to 42s.; per 5 qrs., 38s. to 42s.; Dantzic, 38s. to 42s.; Konigsberg, 38s. to 42s.; Pomeranian, 38s. to 42s.; Riga, 38s. to 42s.; Petersburg, 38s. to 42s.; Marianopoli, 38s. to 42s.; Taganrog, 38s. to 42s.; Egyptian, 38s. to 42s.; Barley, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Oats, per qr., 20s. to 24s.; per 5 qrs., 20s. to 24s.; Rye, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Beans, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Peas, per qr., 30s. to 35s.; per 5 qrs., 30s. to 35s.; Flour, per sack, 40s. to 45s.; per 5 sacks, 40s. to 45s.; per ton, 40s. to 45s.

Mincing-lane Tea Market (Thursday, Aug. 31).—The supply of teas on sale at our public sales this week has been very large, and the demand for all descriptions has been very limited. Prices have declined fully 1d. per lb. on the week's sales, and are, in fact, nominally 1d. per lb. lower than last week's quotations. Common Congous, fine, 1s. to 1s. 2d. per lb.; otherwise, the best trade value quiet, at Monday's quotations. Fine Congous, 1s. 3d. to 1s. 4d. per lb.; Fine Pekoe, 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. per lb.; Fine Caper, 1s. 5d. to 1s. 6d. per lb. Fine Souchongs are offered at about late rates. The trade for teas was steady, at full quotations. Pale retail drs, and fine small packets were rather dearer to buy.

Fri. 6th, to-day the sales—Coarse and inferior bensal, 2s. 4d. to 2s. 6d.; tinged quality, 2s. 8d. to 2s. 10d.; good ordinary, 3s. to 3s. 2d.; fine, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 6d.; fine to fine, 3s. 8d. to 3s. 10d.; good to fine, 4s. to 4s. 2d.; fine to fine, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 6d.; fine to prime cossimbuzar, 4s. 8d. to 5s.; prime cossimbuzar, 5s. 2d. to 5s. 4d.; prime cossimbuzar, 5s. 6d. to 5s. 8d.; prime cossimbuzar, 5s. 10d. to 6s.; fine to fine, 6s. 2d. to 6s. 4d.; fine to prime, 6s. 6d. to 6s. 8d.; prime to fine, 6s. 10d. to 7s.; fine to fine, 7s. 2d. to 7s. 4d.; fine to prime, 7s. 6d. to 7s. 8d.; prime to fine, 7s. 10d. to 8s.; fine to fine, 8s. 2d. to 8s. 4d.; fine to prime, 8s. 6d. to 8s. 8d.; prime to fine, 8s. 10d. to 9s.; fine to fine, 9s. 2d. to 9s. 4d.; fine to prime, 9s. 6d. to 9s. 8d.; prime to fine, 9s. 10d. to 10s.; fine to fine, 10s. 2d. to 10s. 4d.; fine to prime, 10s. 6d. to 10s. 8d.; prime to fine, 10s. 10d. to 11s.; fine to fine, 11s. 2d. to 11s. 4d.; good to fine, 11s. 6d. to 11s. 8d.; fine to fine, 11s. 10d. to 12s.; fine to prime, 12s. 2d. to 12s. 4d.; prime to fine, 12s. 6d. to 12s. 8d.; fine to fine, 12s. 10d. to 13s.; fine to prime, 13s. 2d. to 13s. 4d.; prime to fine, 13s. 6d. to 13s. 8d.; fine to fine, 13s. 10d. to 14s.; fine to prime, 14s. 2d. to 14s. 4d.; prime to fine, stripes; the ornaments on the paletot are in green passementerie. Small pink crape bonnet and strings; the copious gauzed veil now à la mode almost entirely concealing the chapeau.

SALZBURG, THE PLACE OF MEETING OF THE EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA AND THE KING OF PRUSSIA.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

CUTTING THE FIRST TURF OF THE GREAT SOUTHERN RAILWAY AT CHRISTCHURCH, CANTERBURY, NEW ZEALAND.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

Fig. 3. Dress for a Carriage Promenade.—The whole of this costume, including the jupon, is in pale orange linon. The skirt is drawn up and attached with pattes fastened by buttons; the corsage is round, high-necked, and provided with a wide waistband. Small paletot, of the same material as the dress, and without any ornament. Tuscan hat, trimmed on one side with a tuft of corn; long light-blue gauze veil.

Fig. 4. Dress for a Little Girl.—Pale buff poplin frock, trimmed round the undulating edge of the skirt and round the outline of the vest with striped magenta velvet. The ornament on the skirt itself is in black satin. Chapeau cetelli, decorated with magenta ribbons and a garland of marguérites. High-heeled black kid boots.

THE NEW BISHOP OF CHESTER.

THE ceremony of confirming the election of the Right Rev. Dr. Jacobson, D.D., to the bishopric of Chester, the see being rendered vacant by the death of the Right Rev. Dr. Graham, took place in York Cathedral on Wednesday week, and his consecration on the Thursday morning, in the same place, and in the presence of a very numerous congregation. The Archbishop of York, the Bishops of Ripon and Carlisle, the Dean of York, the Canon in residence, and the Archdeacons and Prebendaries, and Vicars-Choral; the Vicar-General, the Worshipful G. H. Vernon; the Registrar, Mr. E. V. Harcourt; the Deputy-Registrars, the Proctor and Advocate of the Dean and Chapter of Chester, the Archbishop's secretaries, and other officials walked in procession from the south aisle into the nave, where they were joined by the choristers, and they all moved forward into the choir, during which a voluntary was performed on the organ. The Bishop Elect, who was attired in the ordinary black gown of a clergyman, sat in a stall near the pulpit. The order for morning prayer was intoned, and the lessons read. The communion service was conducted by the Archbishop of York, when the Bishop Elect was presented to his Grace by the Bishops of Ripon and Carlisle for consecration. The Bishop Elect was then partially robed, and the ceremony of consecration proceeded. He made the usual promises in answer to questions from the Archbishop; after which, being attired in his full episcopal robes, he was presented with a copy of the Holy Scriptures, and then followed the imposition of hands by the assembled Bishops. The Archbishop read the exhortation, and the ceremony concluded. The Rev. T. L. Claughton, Kidderminster, preached the consecration sermon, which was taken from Ephesians iv. 11, 12, and 13. It was an admirable discourse, in which the preacher set forth the duties and responsibilities devolving upon a Christian Bishop. The offertory sentences were read by the Dean of York, and a collection was made in behalf of the York Diocesan Church-Building Society.

The new Bishop, whose portrait we have engraved from a photograph taken by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins, of Parliament-street, was chairman of the Oxford committee for promoting the re-election of Mr. Gladstone for the University. He was the Regius Professor of Divinity, Canon of Christ Church, and Rector of Ewelme, Oxfordshire. He has been connected with the University since 1823, when he matriculated at St. Edmund's Hall, but in 1826 became a scholar of Lincoln College. He took his degree of B.A., second class, in 1827. He obtained, in 1829, the Ellerton theological prize for an essay on "The Causes of the Persecution to which the Christians were subjected in the first centuries of Christianity." In the same year he obtained a fellowship of Exeter College. In 1832 he was appointed Vice Principal of Magdalen Hall. He was Select Preacher in 1833 and 1842, and Public Orator of the University. The professorship, with the canonry and rectory attached thereto, he has held since 1848. Dr. Jacobson was one of the Royal Commissioners appointed last year to consider the terms of clerical subscription. He has edited, for the University press, the following publications:—"Nicolli Catechismus," "Patres Apostolici," "The Oxford Paraphrase and Notes on the Epistles of St. Paul," and "The Collected Works of Bishop Sanderson," in six volumes; he has also published a volume of sermons, preached at Iffley, of which parish he was Perpetual Curate in 1839 and 1840; an ordination sermon, and a sermon preached before the University upon the occasion of the Queen's accession. He is a native of Great Yarmouth, and married, in 1836, the youngest daughter of Mr. Dawson Turner, of that place.

THE RIGHT REV. DR. JACOBSON, THE NEW BISHOP OF CHESTER.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR SEPTEMBER.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK

(From our City Correspondent.)

We have again to notice considerable inactivity in the markets for British Government securities. There are, however, the distinctive bare book appearances. The Government loan has not outlined hopes, notices on account of the Stock Exchange and has not yet been issued in the hands of the citizens is much reduced. Speculative dealings in Canada, however, are not likely to increase. In the Unfunded Debt there is no change to report.

The demand for accommodation in all quarters has fallen off. As the supply of capital is very large, the rates for the best paper are rather lower.

Rather large supplies of gold have arrived from various quarters, and the withdrawals for the requirements of any magnitude. Arrivals have been said on Saturday last.

On Monday, Home Stocks were very inactive.

The Market in the Dollar Securities has been rather quiet.

On the whole, the Market for Foreign Securities has ruled firm. The Rentenbank is firm; however, has been inactive and the changes in the quotations from last week are unimportant.

The Market for Australian Securities is rather high-pressured but below prices in some cases, but the changes are slightly increased.

The Miscellaneous Market has been rather quiet.

Railway Shares have commanded only a moderate amount of attention. The market, however, is firm, and the quotations show a somewhat improved.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.
Last Nights of the Management of Mr. WALLY KNOTT.
Great success of FOLLY ANNIE, which will be nightly (EVERY EVENING, preceded by THE RENDEZVOUS. On Sept. 9, THE CIRCLE. Box-office (Regent 4601) open 10 to 10. Tickets, Stalls, 5s. 6d. to 12s. 6d.; Pit, 2s. 6d.; Gallery, 1s. 6d. Telephone, Regent 4601.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.
Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. Webster.—Prices for Matinee Wednesday, 1s. to 5s. Evenings, 1s. to 10s. 6d. Every Evening at 8, Matinee Wednesday at 2.30, Saturday at 5, Mr. and Mrs. Tallis Reason, in Elgar, RIVAN MINSTRELS. Mr. Reason's Own Company. THE WIDOW'S TWELFTH.—New Nancy Williams. Commences at Seven.

NEW ROYALTY THEATRE, Dean-street, Soho. Licensed by the Lord Chamberlain. Entirely redecorated and re-upholstered.—NO RUSHES on SATURDAY, SEPT. 2, when only the Best Seats will be sold. Box-office open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Two A.M. Revue, Now in its 3rd Year, entitled LAUGH OUT, produced by Miss Susan Cohen. Miss Percy Hemus, Mr. George Moon, Mr. Jack Hylton's Boys, and Mr. Jack Hylton's Girls. Mr. Ronald Frankau, Mr. Fred Emney, Mr. Harry Korris, Mr. Ronald Ross, Miss Renée Adarée, etc., the Fairy Rose. No charge for booking.

MR. ALFRED MELLON'S CONCERTS, COVENT GARDEN.—Season of Light Opera by Carl Rosa Company. Monday, Sept. 4, at 7.30, Verdi's Opera, Aida. Tuesday, Sept. 5, at 7.30, Cavalleria Rusticana and Wagner Excerpts. Great Orchestral Selection from Puccini's Opera, La Bohème. Wednesday, Sept. 6, at 7.30, Gounod's Faust. Thursday, Sept. 7, at 7.30, Verdi's Rigoletto. Conductor, Mr. Alfred Mellon.—Admission, One Shilling.

MR. GERMAN REED'S THIRD SEASON OF OPERA IN CHISWICK GARDENS.—Performances Every Afternoon and Evening. WIDOWS BEWITCHED, by Miss Vivienne Chevalier; and a Revival of THE SORCERER (1877—1879). By W. Gilbert. Music by Arthur Sullivan. Original Scenic Setting by Mr. Percy Anderson. Original Dresses by Miss Ethel Wright. Conductor, Mr. Percy Fletcher. THE ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY.—EVERY EVENING at Eight o'clock (except Saturday), Saturday Afternoon at 3 o'clock. MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY'S ENTERTAINMENT. MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY.—EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Sole Direction Ian Hervie Ltd. Five.

MRS. M'GREGOR'S LEVÉE.—EGYPTIAN HALL, King William-street, Strand. MONDAY, SEPT. 4, at 8. First appearance of the new and original humorous character, Mrs. M'GREGOR (LEVÉE); or, a Collection of Scottish Curiosities. By Harry Bruce Woolfe. Supported by Miss Ena Grossmith, Miss Peggy Ashcroft, and Mr. Ian Fleming. Direction Ian Hervie Ltd. Box Representative every Saturday at Three. Admission, 2s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. Box-office open 10 to 10. Telephone, Gerrard 3178. Also at the Box-Office at the Egyptian Hall on Five o'clock.

STODARE—1350th REPRESENTATION.
THEATRE OF MYSTERY, MELODRAMA AND MIRTH.
In Hate and Vengeance Wicked Sultan Ali Ben Ali Baba Bashes Trick and Instantaneous Growth of Flower Trees, as well as Other Weird Tricks. This unique and Record-Breaking Show, by Arthur Lloyd, Colonel Stodare, and only performed by him and his Indian Magic Company, Assisted by Miss Ena Stodare and Master Stodare; also Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at 3. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s. Stalls, 5s. Tickets at Mr. Mitchell's, 48, Old Bond-street, and Keith Prowse's, Victoria Hall.—"Mr. Arthur Rotherham."—Era, April 16, 1927.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS" and "FRESH FACES," with a change of programme every afternoon and evening.—CANON CLUB, Canon-street, Portsmouth. Unlimited access. COCKERMOUTH, MONDAY, SEPT. 4: Work's Cricket Ground, Barrow, Tuesday, Sept. 5 and 6; Eastwood, 11 and 12.

ROYAL POLYTECHNIC.—Notice! The Marvellous Bird, in discourses of their cries and notes—and speaking Bird, Mr. Richard Vox the Ventriloquist will give his full performances twice instead of once a day—viz., at 3.30 and 8.30.

CHANG HAS ARRIVED!
and will show a most treasured wealth known to this—also the tricks and people of England.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—SOUTH-EASTERN COUNTIES FETE.—MONDAY, SEPT. 4.—ALL THE GREAT FOOTBALL, ATHLETIC and CYCLING CHAMPIONSHIPS. Runners and Riders. Aquatic Sports by men of the Navy. Aquatic Sports, including amateur-race, one-race, duck-race, &c. Band Concerts. Massed Bands of Tantivies. Volunteer Bands &c. Exercises.
Admission, from Rise in the Morning, One Shilling and Children Sixpence.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—SEPTEMBER.
EASTBOURNE DAILY.—Fires, Socialists, Schools, &c., may now book for the most magnificent spectacular display in Europe's only Crystal Palace, 5.
Daily Display of Crystal Palace—Gardens and Flowers in extensive Display.
Great Special Attractions next week.
Special Programmes and Invitations to Eastern districts Footway Fête—Great Gymnastic Displays and Athletic Sports—Great Pantomime Dancing on Lawns and Platforms, &c. Open at Nine (other than as Usual).
Wednesday—Great Display of Fireworks and Illuminated Fountains.
Thursday to Friday, One Shilling.
Every Day—Performances by Occidental Band—Great Organ—Military Band.
Fine Arts Exhibition, Exhibition, the extensive collection of all kinds of goods, carriages, &c., in the Centenary Hall in the Nave and other exhibition parts of the Crystal Palace.
Admission daily, especially to-day, Sixpence. Thursday's Mechanical Display, Sixpence. Thursday's Mechanical Display, Sixpence. Reading Bible Exhibition—Art Embroidery, Sewing on Lace, Needle Crochet, Cement, Bible-binding, Basket-work, Stringing, &c. Sixpence each exhibition.
Brochures and exhibitor attractions and announcements.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WEDNESDAY NEXT.—GRAND DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS and Illuminated Fountains. One Shilling.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—MONDAY NEXT.—GRAND LABOUR DAY.

THE NEW WONDER OF EDINBURGH.
THE ROYAL PATENT GYMNASIUM (Symonds-street, Salisbury), for promoting health and exercise, contains the GREAT SEA-SERPENT (Patent Rotary Boat, 40 ft. long), Trapeze, Rings, Parallel Bars, Vaulting Horse, Spring Boards, 880 lb. Stone, Dumb-bells, Pyramidal Parallel Pendulum Swings, Patent Self-adjusting Trousers, Patent Velocipede, Public Merry-go-round, &c., in full and full swing. Admission 6d.; under-fives, Twopence, 2d.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Rows of Laughter.—Three wonderful animals go through their astonishing evolutions daily at 10, Strand, from Ten till Five. The only and real Jenny-Nee-Ni-mals.—C. de Clarkes and Co., Ltd., Sole Owners.

H. WALKER'S NEW NEEDLES.—The PATENT HIGGED EYES are easily threaded, and will not split the thread. Sample packet of 25 in cases, 1s. 6d. per dozen.—H. Walker, Attender; and 47, Cricklade-street, London.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE.
BIRMINGHAM MEETING,
SEPTEMBER 13TH TO 20TH.
RECEPTION ROOM, EXCHANGE ASSEMBLY ROOM, NEW STREET.
PRESIDENT:
JOHN PHILLIPS, Sc.D., M.A., LL.D., F.R.S., D.S.O., &c., Professor of Geology in the University of Oxford.

The Subjects of the Discussions will be:—To encourage inquiry and more systematic direction to scientific thought; to promote the intercourse of those who are devoted to science in different parts of the country and to associate them with certain Philosophers; to obtain a hearing for scientific questions and for the expression of reasoned conclusions on matters of general interest.

GENERAL ARRANGEMENTS.
Wednesday, Sept. 13.—Meeting for the Election of New Members.
Sectional meetings daily at 10 a.m. and 2.30 p.m. to the 19th inclusive.
Thursday, Sept. 14.—Evening General Meeting.
Friday, Sept. 15.—Evening Discourse.
Saturday, Sept. 16.—Evening Lecture in the Townhall.
Sept. 17.—Sunday.
Monday, Sept. 18.—Excursions to the Cotswold Hills—Logan Area; Coventry and Kenilworth; Warwick and Malvern; Worcester, Shakespeare, Woodstock, the Thames, Oxford, &c.
Thursday, Sept. 21.—Excursions to the Peak District—Matlock, Buxton, Dovedale, Derby, Sheffield, Stoke-on-Trent, Manchester, Liverpool, Chester, Shrewsbury, Ironbridge, Wolverhampton, &c.

On and after Sept. 7 until Sept. 15, Lyle Meadows was joined to the Mainland of Shetland by a temporary causeway. Tickets for applying to the Secretary and reserving to him the Lyle Meadows to Lerwick Conveyance Allotment Tickets, Programmes, Maps, Guide-Books, and Information can be obtained from the General Treasurer, W. Spottiswoode, Esq., 50, Grosvenor-gardens, London, S.W.1.

The Subjects for Discussion will include Non-Ferrous Metals and Associations on the following conditions:—

Each Paper must be of a length not exceeding 500, which entitles it to be printed in the Reports of the Association when it may be published after the date of payment.

Each Paper must be accompanied by a payment of £3 for the first 500 words, and £1 for every 100 words in excess for the cost of their publication, and for every following 100 words in excess.

Each Paper must be accompanied by a payment of £3 for the Association for this meeting only for a payment of £1. They are entitled to attend the meeting and to receive the Reports of the Association.

Ladies may become Members on the same terms as gentlemen; they are entitled to attend the meeting and to receive the Reports of the Association.

After Sept. 7, personal applications for tickets must be made at the Office, Exchange Assembly Room, New-street, Birmingham, which will be open on every day, except Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Members will be entitled to buy at a reduced price, which entitles them to the Reports of the Association when they may be published after the date of payment.

Each Paper must be accompanied by a payment of £3 for the first 500 words, and £1 for every 100 words in excess for the cost of their publication, and for every following 100 words in excess.

Each Paper must be accompanied by a payment of £3 for the Association for this meeting only for a payment of £1. They are entitled to attend the meeting and to receive the Reports of the Association.

Ladies may become Members on the same terms as gentlemen; they are entitled to attend the meeting and to receive the Reports of the Association.

After Sept. 7, personal applications for tickets must be made at the Office, Exchange Assembly Room, New-street, Birmingham, which will be open on every day, except Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Members will be entitled to buy at a reduced price, which entitles them to the Reports of the Association when they may be published after the date of payment.

CHEAP SATURDAY TO MONDAY
RETURN TICKETS are issued every Saturday Afternoon, Sept. 2 and 9, from London Bridge, Victoria, Kensington, Clapham Junction, Tooting, Wimbledon, Chessington, Epsom, Cobham, Effingham Junction, Leatherhead, Dorking, Horsham, Guildford, Woking, Weybridge, Chertsey, Virginia Water, Staines, Windsor, Richmond, Kingston, Hampton Court, Esher, Walton-on-Thames, Twickenham, Hounslow, Feltham, Hampton Wick, Teddington, Strawberry Hill, Shepperton, Sunbury, Hampton, Thames Ditton, Surbiton, Kingston, Malden, Coombe, New Malden, Worcester Park, Stoneleigh, Ewell, Epsom Downs, Tadworth, Walton-on-the-Hill, Kingswood, Tattenham Corner, Purley, Coulsdon, Reigate, Redhill, Merstham, Earlswood, Horley, Three Bridges, Crawley, Ifield, Littlehaven

NEW MUSIC.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST of NEW MUSIC.
UNITED SERVICES QUADRILLES. By A. F. Godfrey (Bandmaster of the Coldstream Guards). Piano solo, with Cornet, Violin, Orchestra 1s. Played nightly, with immense applause, at Her Majesty's Opera Colonnade.
THE LITTLE GALOP. By C. Godfrey, Bandmaster of the Coldstream Guards. Played at Mr. Alfred Mellon's Concerts. Piano, 3s.; Orchestra, 1s.
THE CURLOOK. Song by Mdlle. Lichtner at Mr. Alfred Mellon's Concerts. 3s.
O VISION BRIGHT AND GLOWING (O Sonno). Song by Mdlle Carlotta Patti, at Mr. Alfred Mellon's Concerts. 3s.
THE SWEETEST FLOWER THAT BLOWS. Song by the Hon. Mrs. Bill. Twenty-fifth Edition. Illustrated. 3s.
TO-MORROW. By W. Ganz. Twenty by Dr. Mackay. 3s. 6d.
THE WANDERING BOY. By F. Abt. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. 3s.
THE SWEETEST FLOWER THAT BLOWS. Sung by Lucy Escott.
BEWARE! THE BLOOMING BUT LOVELY STRAWBERRY. By F. Abt. Twenty by Oscar Berger. 3s. 6d.
I LOVE MY SWEETHEART, BUT NOT YOU. Twenty by Dr. Mackay. 3s.
THE LOVE LIGHT. By Virginia Gabriel. Twenty by Dr. Mackay. 3s.
THE SWEETEST EYES. By the Composer of "Sparkling Eyes." 3s. 6d.
All at half-price, with an extra stamp for postage.
ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, W.; and all Music Sellers.
Agents for India, Messrs. Burkhumyay, and Co., Calcutta.

LA MURSKA VALSE. This elegant and fascinating Valse is composed and dedicated by permission to Madame Lucca by C. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the Scots Fusilier Guards, and performed, with distinguished success, at the Italian Opera House, from a photograph kindly transmitted by herself. Half-price. CRAMER and BEALE, 201, Regent-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR. Valse Brillante for Piano. Played by Madame Sidle Martin before the Princes and Princess of Wales. The celebrated Romance in arsenal can Promenade Concerts millions. Half-price.
DUFF and HODGSON, 32, Oxford-street.

MR. ALFRED MELLON'S CONCERTS.—The New Quadrille, ANTOINETTE, composed and dedicated by permission of their most admirable instrumentalist, Piano copy (with Cornet), 1s.; Orchestra 3s. Each at half-price. Also the new waltz, Promenade.
London: BOOSEY (Cocks and Co.), New Burlington-street, W.
Sold by all Musicsellers.

MUSICAL BOX DEPÔTS, 56, Cheapside, and 103, Lodgate-hill.—Purchasers should visit these as all parties selling Musical Boxes at 41 per cent. below the usual prices. Manufactory, 14, WALLIS and CO., as above.

M. F. DENT, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to the Queen, and the Royal Observatory, Greenwich.
M. F. Dent has all Harrison's Chronometers, Clocks, and Watches in Stock.

THE PERFECT GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JOSEPH'S LEVER WATCHES, at £10 10s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. These Watches are the Invention and Manufacture of Josiah Joseph, Manufacturer, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

DENT, Clockmaker, Watch, and Clock Maker by Special Appointment, to her Majesty the Queen, the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament. Clocks delivered free by Parcels Post to all London, Royal Exchange.

BEDSTEADS, BEDDING, and BED-ROOM FURNITURE.—An ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, with Prices, sent free by Post on application.—HEAL and SON, 196, Tottenham-court-road, W., 19, 20, and 8, Bernard-street, London, W.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 25 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the favour of a personal inspection of their Stock in Trade, now selected for the Paris Exposition. An Indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

BROWN and GREEN'S KITCHEN RANGES.—A fire more with an economy of fuel; roasts, bakes, simmers and broils all dishes best or small. Prospectuses free.—BROWN and GREEN, Patentees, Piccadilly.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH Brewing is now ready, from which date we are now delivering the finest condition in Bottles and in Casks, by THOMAS DE HAGUE and SON, 3, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest importation free from acidity or heat, and much superior to the general wine sold as Marsala, 24s. per gallon, Casks, 5s. per gallon. Terms—Cash. Terms and price list post-free.—W. D. WATSON, Wine Merchant, 73, Great Russell-st., corner of Bloomsbury-sq., London, W.C. Established 1841.

BROWN AND POLSON'S
PATENT CORN FLOUR.
Packets and Canisters.
Recommended for Children, Diet.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING
In Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing popularity of J. S. Fry and Sons' Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of confectionary.
Sold in packets and boxes of all sizes.
CAUTION.—Each packet and box bears the name of the manufacturers, and is thus particularly adapted for persons who require light refreshment.
J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and CONFECTIONERY FOOD.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS
are an exceedingly delicious Sweetmeat, rapidly increasing in public favour.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING
Is prepared with the finest Cocoa, and is pronounced exceedingly delicious. It would relish the Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE.
Price £5.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK,
31, Cornhill, EC. (late 6, Coleman-street).
Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage stamps.

SLACKS' GUINEA TABLE-KNIVES, Warranted to Wear. 24, Ivory Balance Handles, best steel and make, warranted the cheapest Table in London. Also, Carvers, Desserts, Tea Trays, Dish Covers, Electro-plate, and Japan Goods. SLACKS, 336, Strand, London, W.C.

PRESCOTT'S MODERATOR LAMPS, the Newest and Best Patterns.—SPECIAL NOTICE.—Purchasers are earnestly requested to see that the Improved Moderator Lamps bear the name of PRESCOTT, 72, Cheapside, London, E.C., and 37, Queen-street, Edinburgh, with numerous Testimonials, and not to be led away by interested statements, which are sometimes made to induce the purchase of inferior articles. Prescott's Patent Moderator Lamps, fitted with Screw Gallery, complete, from 5s. to 27s. each

NEW MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Trio. Grenadier Guards. Highly admired at Mabel's Grenadier Ball. "Godfrey's new waltz, 'Mabel,' promises to rival its popularity with 'Dorothy.'"—Vide Observer, Aug. 6. Price 4s. "A waltz which bids fair to rival, if not to exceed, the melodious 'Grenadier Waltz' in popularity."—Daily Telegraph, Aug 8. Price 4s. Duet, for Piano, Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.; Brass Band, 4s. 6d.; Military Band, 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

Just published,

MABEL. A Song, written by Henry F. CHORLEY. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MAY WALTZ. By ALFRED MELLON. Performed by the orchestra at Covent Garden Theatre with great success. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

WEARIN' O' THE GREEN.—The only correct Edition of Words and Music, as sung by Mr. Montgomery at the Queen's.—"Arm-in-Arm." Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Tom," "Rose Michel," "Lurline," "Bohemian Girl," "Maritana," "Satanella," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, and rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 2s., post-free.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. Beaucbé's Favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

G. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. Gems of Beethoven. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. MARINO. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

M. FAVARGER'S NEW PIECES.

DON GIOVANNI. Fantasia on Airs from Mozart's Grand Opera, for the Pianoforte. By HENRI FAVARGER. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on Favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

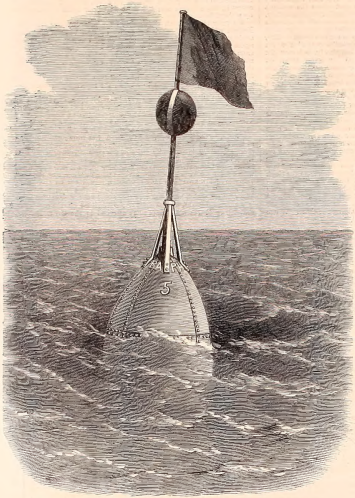
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern, adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. SIMPSON. Each number contains from 12 to 16 pages of full music size, printed on fine toned paper, arranged expressly for small pedal organs. Now ready, Nos. 1 to 6, price 1s. each; or in two volumes, each containing six numbers, and bound in cloth, 6s. each. A thematic list of contents may be had on application.

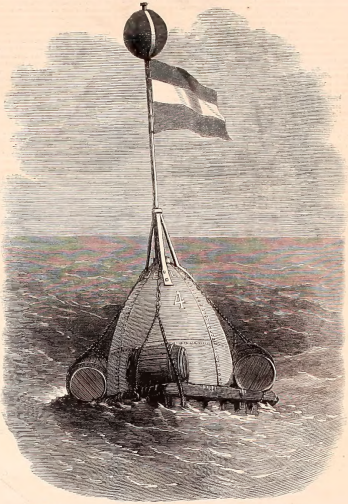
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Pianoforte. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the "Guards" and "Mabel," by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin, and Flute, each 3s. 6d.



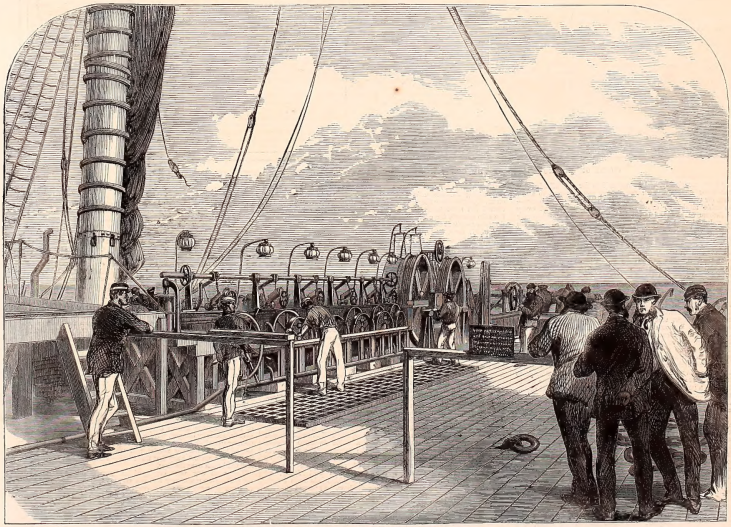
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE, now performed at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden. The whole of the Music of the last and greatest work of Meyerbeer arranged for the Pianoforte, and sold 2s., 50, New Bond-street, where the following airs are now published:—



The Opera complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, with French, Italian, or English Words, 7s., net.

Selika's Cavatina ... ... Solo 3s., Duet 4s. 0d.
Grand Indian March 4 0 0
Selika's Prayer 3 0 0
CHARUD, II.—Souvenir de Mélodies 4 0 0
BOSISIO, F.—Selika 3 0 0
BOSISIO, F.—Selika's Prayer ... ... Solo or Duet 3 0 0
BALLAVOINE, M.—Favorite Airs. In 3 books ... each 3 0 0
BOSISIO, F.—Selika's Cavatina 3 0 0
BOSISIO, F.—The Africaine." Nos. 1 and 2 ... each 3 0 0
FAVARGER, RENÉ.—Grand Fantasia 4 0 0
GERMAIN, S.—Grand Duet 4 0 0
GURT, Miss.—Grand Fantasia 3 0 0
MARIE, Miss.—Selika's Prayer 3 0 0
Selika's Cavatina, with Symphonies (the celebrated violin passage, which was rapturously encored) 3 0 0
Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40,

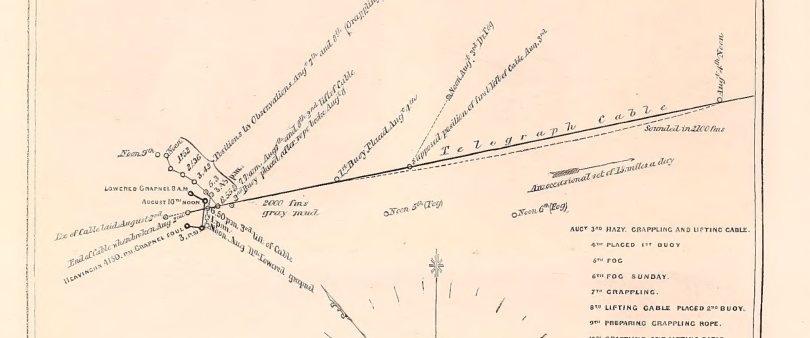


THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH EXPEDITION.—FROM SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

THE FIRST BUOY, MARKING THE SUPPOSED PLACE WHERE THE CABLE WAS GRAPPLED, AUG. 3.

THE SECOND BUOY, MARKING THE EXACT PLACE WHERE THE CABLE WAS GRAPPLED, AUG. 8.

THE PAYING-OUT MACHINERY OF THE GREAT EASTERN.—SEE NEXT PAGE.



THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH EXPEDITION.

Our last week's Publication contained two Engravings, from the etches by our Special Artist on board the Great Eastern, to illustrate the most striking incidents of the Atlantic Telegraph expedition. The hauling in of the cable, to which it was necessary more than once to resort, for the purpose of examining the fault or flaw detected by a loss of electrical insulation, and then the disastrous breaking of the cable on the 2nd of August, while hauling it in, were the two subjects of those Illustrations. We now present five more Illustrations, and quote, from the authorised journal of the expedition, a narrative of the subsequent attempt to find and raise the cable, at a depth of two miles and fathoms; the locality being, as stated, in latitude 51 deg. 29 min., longitude 39 deg. 6 min., which is distant 1062 miles from the steamer Valentia, Ireland, and 600 miles from Heart's Content Bay, Newfoundland—the nearest ports respectively of the European and American shores. Immediately after the breaking of the cable, Mr. Canning, the chief engineer, resolved to try and pick it up again from the bottom of the Atlantic. This might have seemed a hopeless task:—

"But, then," says Mr. Russell, in his journal, "what would they say in England if not even an attempt, however desperate, had been made? There were men on board who had picked up broken cables from the Mediterranean full 600 fathoms down. The weather was beautiful, and, although there were no soundings, and the depth beneath us was matter of conjecture, it was settled that the Great Eastern should steam ten or twelve miles to windward and eastward of the position in which she was when the cable went down, out with the grapnels and wire rope, and drift down across the track in which the cable was supposed to be lying. Although all utterance of hope was suppressed and no word of confidence escaped the lips, both were treasured in the fancy. The doctrine of chances could not touch such a contingency as we had to speculate upon. And now came forth the grapnels—two five-armed anchors, with flukes, sharply curved and tapering to an oblique, toothlike end, the hooks with which the engineer was going to fish from the Great Eastern for a take worth, with all its belongings, more than a million. The ship stood away some thirteen or fourteen miles from the spot where the accident occurred, and then lay-to in smooth water, with the Terrible in company. The grapnels, weighing three cwt., shackled and secured to a length of wire hemp-rope, of which there were five miles on board (breaking strain calculated at ten tons), was brought up to the bows, and at 3.30, ship's time, the first was thrown over and "whistled through" the sea a prey to fortune. At first the iron sank but slowly, but soon the momentum of the vessel's progress carried it down. The engineer on the picking-up machinery now rendered available to lowering the navel messenger-rope, were sending down what length warrant of each for his fugitive hidden in mysterious caverns beneath. Length flew after length over cog-wheel and drum till the iron wire, warning with work, heated at last so as to convert the water thrown upon the machinery into clouds of steam. The time passed heavily indeed. All life left the ship, and the sea was as lonely as the sky around. The dull grating of the wire cable over the wheels at the bows. The most spiritless and indifferent would have sacrificed much to have heard the rumble of the cable again, and esteemed it the most grateful music in the world. The electricians' room was closed, all their subtle apparatus stood functionless, and cell-zinc and copper threw off superfluous currents in the silent chamber of science. Away flew the wire strands length after length—coons was indeed insatiable—More!' and 'More!' cried the daughter of horseleech from the black night of waters, and still the rope descended. One thousand fathoms—fifteen hundred fathoms—two thousand fathoms—hundreds again mounting up, till at last, at 5.6 p.m., the strain was distinctly felt at 2500 fathoms, or 15,000 feet, the grapnel reached the bed of the Atlantic and set to its task of finding and holding the cable. Where that lay was, of course, beyond human knowledge; but, as the ship drifted down across its course, there was just a sort of hand-shaking surmise that the grapnel might catch it—that the ship might feel it—that the iron rope might be brought up again, and that the cable, if across it, might—here was the most hazardous hitch of all—come up without breaking."

We refer to the chart, which shows the movements of the Great Eastern while engaged in this search, from Aug. 3 to Aug. 11. The cable was grappled three times—namely, on the 3rd, the 7th, and again the 11th of August; it was lifted each time a considerable way from the bottom; but the grapnels, ropes, and lifting machinery were not sufficiently strong to lift it to the surface. The different places at which the cable was thus taken hold of were several miles apart. On the first occasion, Aug. 3, the grapnel having been let down overnight as above described, was hauled in at the rope-end by the steam-engine:—

"At eight o'clock 300 fathoms were in, and it became evident to all on board that the grapnel was holding on and lifting 'something' from the bottom. And what could that something be but the cable? The scientific men calculated the strain and determined it could not be from the wire rope and grapnel solely, and it could only be inferred then that, as the bottom of the Atlantic is free from rocks here, and as the depth at which the rope began to resist agreed with the supposed soundings, it had really grappled the prize. Presently the paywheel of the picking-up apparatus broke, and the operation of taking in the rope became dangerous as well as difficult, for it flew up at times with such force as to knock down those near it, and one of the most valuable of Mr. Canning's staff received a severe cut on the cheek, and another had an ugly injury inflicted on his face from that cause. The weather, which had been very thick and hazy, now settled down into a dense fog, and we lost sight of the Terrible; but the conviction that the cable was really once more attached to the Great Eastern,

Noon, 2nd
Noon, 3rd (Wed.)
Noon, 4th (Thurs.)
Noon, 5th (Fri.)
Noon, 6th (Sat.)
Noon, 7th (Sun.)
Noon, 8th (Mon.)
Noon, 9th (Tues.)
Noon, 10th (Wed.)
Noon, 11th (Thurs.)
Noon, 12th (Fri.)
Noon, 13th (Sat.)
Noon, 14th (Sun.)
Noon, 15th (Mon.)
Noon, 16th (Tues.)
Noon, 17th (Wed.)
Noon, 18th (Thurs.)
Noon, 19th (Fri.)
Noon, 20th (Sat.)
Noon, 21st (Sun.)
Noon, 22nd (Mon.)
Noon, 23rd (Tues.)
Noon, 24th (Wed.)
Noon, 25th (Thurs.)
Noon, 26th (Fri.)
Noon, 27th (Sat.)
Noon, 28th (Sun.)
Noon, 29th (Mon.)
Noon, 30th (Tues.)
Noon, 31st (Wed.)
Noon, 1st Sept. (Thurs.)
Noon, 2nd (Fri.)
Noon, 3rd (Sat.)
Noon, 4th (Sun.)
Noon, 5th (Mon.)
Noon, 6th (Tues.)
Noon, 7th (Wed.)
Noon, 8th (Thurs.)
Noon, 9th (Fri.)
Noon, 10th (Sat.)
Noon, 11th (Sun.)
Noon, 12th (Mon.)
Noon, 13th (Tues.)
Noon, 14th (Wed.)
Noon, 15th (Thurs.)
Noon, 16th (Fri.)
Noon, 17th (Sat.)
Noon, 18th (Sun.)
Noon, 19th (Mon.)
Noon, 20th (Tues.)
Noon, 21st (Wed.)
Noon, 22nd (Thurs.)
Noon, 23rd (Fri.)
Noon, 24th (Sat.)
Noon, 25th (Sun.)
Noon, 26th (Mon.)
Noon, 27th (Tues.)
Noon, 28th (Wed.)
Noon, 29th (Thurs.)
Noon, 30th (Fri.)
Noon, 31st (Sat.)
Noon, 1st Oct. (Sun.)
Noon, 2nd (Mon.)
Noon, 3rd (Tues.)
Noon, 4th (Wed.)
Noon, 5th (Thurs.)
Noon, 6th (Fri.)
Noon, 7th (Sat.)
Noon, 8th (Sun.)
Noon, 9th (Mon.)
Noon, 10th (Tues.)
Noon, 11th (Wed.)
Noon, 12th (Thurs.)
Noon, 13th (Fri.)
Noon, 14th (Sat.)
Noon, 15th (Sun.)
Noon, 16th (Mon.)
Noon, 17th (Tues.)
Noon, 18th (Wed.)
Noon, 19th (Thurs.)
Noon, 20th (Fri.)
Noon, 21st (Sat.)
Noon, 22nd (Sun.)
Noon, 23rd (Mon.)
Noon, 24th (Tues.)
Noon, 25th (Wed.)
Noon, 26th (Thurs.)
Noon, 27th (Fri.)
Noon, 28th (Sat.)
Noon, 29th (Sun.)
Noon, 30th (Mon.)
Noon, 31st (Tues.)
Noon, 1st Nov. (Wed.)
Noon, 2nd (Thurs.)
Noon, 3rd (Fri.)
Noon, 4th (Sat.)
Noon, 5th (Sun.)
Noon, 6th (Mon.)
Noon, 7th (Tues.)
Noon, 8th (Wed.)
Noon, 9th (Thurs.)
Noon, 10th (Fri.)
Noon, 11th (Sat.)
Noon, 12th (Sun.)
Noon, 13th (Mon.)
Noon, 14th (Tues.)
Noon, 15th (Wed.)
Noon, 16th (Thurs.)
Noon, 17th (Fri.)
Noon, 18th (Sat.)
Noon, 19th (Sun.)
Noon, 20th (Mon.)
Noon, 21st (Tues.)
Noon, 22nd (Wed.)
Noon, 23rd (Thurs.)
Noon, 24th (Fri.)
Noon, 25th (Sat.)
Noon, 26th (Sun.)
Noon, 27th (Mon.)
Noon, 28th (Tues.)
Noon, 29th (Wed.)
Noon, 30th (Thurs.)
Noon, 31st (Fri.)
Noon, 1st Dec. (Sat.)
Noon, 2nd (Sun.)
Noon, 3rd (Mon.)
Noon, 4th (Tues.)
Noon, 5th (Wed.)
Noon, 6th (Thurs.)
Noon, 7th (Fri.)
Noon, 8th (Sat.)
Noon, 9th (Sun.)
Noon, 10th (Mon.)
Noon, 11th (Tues.)
Noon, 12th (Wed.)
Noon, 13th (Thurs.)
Noon, 14th (Fri.)
Noon, 15th (Sat.)
Noon, 16th (Sun.)
Noon, 17th (Mon.)
Noon, 18th (Tues.)
Noon, 19th (Wed.)
Noon, 20th (Thurs.)
Noon, 21st (Fri.)
Noon, 22nd (Sat.)
Noon, 23rd (Sun.)
Noon, 24th (Mon.)
Noon, 25th (Tues.)
Noon, 26th (Wed.)
Noon, 27th (Thurs.)
Noon, 28th (Fri.)
Noon, 29th (Sat.)
Noon, 30th (Sun.)
Noon, 31st (Mon.)
Noon, 1st Jan. (Tues.)
Noon, 2nd (Wed.)
Noon, 3rd (Thurs.)
Noon, 4th (Fri.)
Noon, 5th (Sat.)
Noon, 6th (Sun.)
Noon, 7th (Mon.)
Noon, 8th (Tues.)
Noon, 9th (Wed.)
Noon, 10th (Thurs.)
Noon, 11th (Fri.)
Noon, 12th (Sat.)
Noon, 13th (Sun.)
Noon, 14th (Mon.)
Noon, 15th (Tues.)
Noon, 16th (Wed.)
Noon, 17th (Thurs.)
Noon, 18th (Fri.)
Noon, 19th (Sat.)
Noon, 20th (Sun.)
Noon, 21st (Mon.)
Noon, 22nd (Tues.)
Noon, 23rd (Wed.)
Noon, 24th (Thurs.)
Noon, 25th (Fri.)
Noon, 26th (Sat.)
Noon, 27th (Sun.)
Noon, 28th (Mon.)
Noon, 29th (Tues.)
Noon, 30th (Wed.)
Noon, 31st (Thurs.)
Noon, 1st Feb. (Fri.)
Noon, 2nd (Sat.)
Noon, 3rd (Sun.)
Noon, 4th (Mon.)
Noon, 5th (Tues.)
Noon, 6th (Wed.)
Noon, 7th (Thurs.)
Noon, 8th (Fri.)
Noon, 9th (Sat.)
Noon, 10th (Sun.)
Noon, 11th (Mon.)
Noon, 12th (Tues.)
Noon, 13th (Wed.)
Noon, 14th (Thurs.)
Noon, 15th (Fri.)
Noon, 16th (Sat.)
Noon, 17th (Sun.)
Noon, 18th (Mon.)
Noon, 19th (Tues.)
Noon, 20th (Wed.)
Noon, 21st (Thurs.)
Noon, 22nd (Fri.)
Noon, 23rd (Sat.)
Noon, 24th (Sun.)
Noon, 25th (Mon.)
Noon, 26th (Tues.)
Noon, 27th (Wed.)
Noon, 28th (Thurs.)
Noon, 29th (Fri.)
Noon, 30th (Sat.)
Noon, 31st (Sun.)
Noon, 1st March (Mon.)
Noon, 2nd (Tues.)
Noon, 3rd (Wed.)
Noon, 4th (Thurs.)
Noon, 5th (Fri.)
Noon, 6th (Sat.)
Noon, 7th (Sun.)
Noon, 8th (Mon.)
Noon, 9th (Tues.)
Noon, 10th (Wed.)
Noon, 11th (Thurs.)
Noon, 12th (Fri.)
Noon, 13th (Sat.)
Noon, 14th (Sun.)
Noon, 15th (Mon.)
Noon, 16th (Tues.)
Noon, 17th (Wed.)
Noon, 18th (Thurs.)
Noon, 19th (Fri.)
Noon, 20th (Sat.)
Noon, 21st (Sun.)
Noon, 22nd (Mon.)
Noon, 23rd (Tues.)
Noon, 24th (Wed.)
Noon, 25th (Thurs.)
Noon, 26th (Fri.)
Noon, 27th (Sat.)
Noon, 28th (Sun.)
Noon, 29th (Mon.)
Noon, 30th (Tues.)
Noon, 31st (Wed.)
Noon, 1st April (Thurs.)
Noon, 2nd (Fri.)
Noon, 3rd (Sat.)
Noon, 4th (Sun.)
Noon, 5th (Mon.)
Noon, 6th (Tues.)
Noon, 7th (Wed.)
Noon, 8th (Thurs.)
Noon, 9th (Fri.)
Noon, 10th (Sat.)
Noon, 11th (Sun.)
Noon, 12th (Mon.)
Noon, 13th (Tues.)
Noon, 14th (Wed.)
Noon, 15th (Thurs.)
Noon, 16th (Fri.)
Noon, 17th (Sat.)
Noon, 18th (Sun.)
Noon, 19th (Mon.)
Noon, 20th (Tues.)
Noon, 21st (Wed.)
Noon, 22nd (Thurs.)
Noon, 23rd (Fri.)
Noon, 24th (Sat.)
Noon, 25th (Sun.)
Noon, 26th (Mon.)
Noon, 27th (Tues.)
Noon, 28th (Wed.)
Noon, 29th (Thurs.)
Noon, 30th (Fri.)
Noon, 31st (Sat.)
Noon, 1st May (Sun.)
Noon, 2nd (Mon.)
Noon, 3rd (Tues.)
Noon, 4th (Wed.)
Noon, 5th (Thurs.)
Noon, 6th (Fri.)
Noon, 7th (Sat.)
Noon, 8th (Sun.)
Noon, 9th (Mon.)
Noon, 10th (Tues.)
Noon, 11th (Wed.)
Noon, 12th (Thurs.)
Noon, 13th (Fri.)
Noon, 14th (Sat.)
Noon, 15th (Sun.)
Noon, 16th (Mon.)
Noon, 17th (Tues.)
Noon, 18th (Wed.)
Noon, 19th (Thurs.)
Noon, 20th (Fri.)
Noon, 21st (Sat.)
Noon, 22nd (Sun.)
Noon, 23rd (Mon.)
Noon, 24th (Tues.)
Noon, 25th (Wed.)
Noon, 26th (Thurs.)
Noon, 27th (Fri.)
Noon, 28th (Sat.)
Noon, 29th (Sun.)
Noon, 30th (Mon.)
Noon, 31st (Tues.)
Noon, 1st June (Wed.)
Noon, 2nd (Thurs.)
Noon, 3rd (Fri.)
Noon, 4th (Sat.)
Noon, 5th (Sun.)
Noon, 6th (Mon.)
Noon, 7th (Tues.)
Noon, 8th (Wed.)
Noon, 9th (Thurs.)
Noon, 10th (Fri.)
Noon, 11th (Sat.)
Noon, 12th (Sun.)
Noon, 13th (Mon.)
Noon, 14th (Tues.)
Noon, 15th (Wed.)
Noon, 16th (Thurs.)
Noon, 17th (Fri.)
Noon, 18th (Sat.)
Noon, 19th (Sun.)
Noon, 20th (Mon.)
Noon, 21st (Tues.)
Noon, 22nd (Wed.)
Noon, 23rd (Thurs.)
Noon, 24th (Fri.)
Noon, 25th (Sat.)
Noon, 26th (Sun.)
Noon, 27th (Mon.)
Noon, 28th (Tues.)
Noon, 29th (Wed.)
Noon, 30th (Thurs.)
Noon, 31st (Fri.)
Noon, 1st July (Sat.)
Noon, 2nd (Sun.)
Noon, 3rd (Mon.)
Noon, 4th (Tues.)
Noon, 5th (Wed.)
Noon, 6th (Thurs.)
Noon, 7th (Fri.)
Noon, 8th (Sat.)
Noon, 9th (Sun.)
Noon, 10th (Mon.)
Noon, 11th (Tues.)
Noon, 12th (Wed.)
Noon, 13th (Thurs.)
Noon, 14th (Fri.)
Noon, 15th (Sat.)
Noon, 16th (Sun.)
Noon, 17th (Mon.)
Noon, 18th (Tues.)
Noon, 19th (Wed.)
Noon, 20th (Thurs.)
Noon, 21st (Fri.)
Noon, 22nd (Sat.)
Noon, 23rd (Sun.)
Noon, 24th (Mon.)
Noon, 25th (Tues.)
Noon, 26th (Wed.)
Noon, 27th (Thurs.)
Noon, 28th (Fri.)
Noon, 29th (Sat.)
Noon, 30th (Sun.)
Noon, 31st (Mon.)
Noon, 1st Aug. (Tues.)
Noon, 2nd (Wed.)
Noon, 3rd (Thurs.)
Noon, 4th (Fri.)
Noon, 5th (Sat.)
Noon, 6th (Sun.)
Noon, 7th (Mon.)
Noon, 8th (Tues.)
Noon, 9th (Wed.)
Noon, 10th (Thurs.)
Noon, 11th (Fri.)
Noon, 12th (Sat.)
Noon, 13th (Sun.)
Noon, 14th (Mon.)
Noon, 15th (Tues.)
Noon, 16th (Wed.)
Noon, 17th (Thurs.)
Noon, 18th (Fri.)
Noon, 19th (Sat.)
Noon, 20th (Sun.)
Noon, 21st (Mon.)
Noon, 22nd (Tues.)
Noon, 23rd (Wed.)
Noon, 24th (Thurs.)
Noon, 25th (Fri.)
Noon, 26th (Sat.)
Noon, 27th (Sun.)
Noon, 28th (Mon.)
Noon, 29th (Tues.)
Noon, 30th (Wed.)
Noon, 31st (Thurs.)
Noon, 1st Sept. (Fri.)
Noon, 2nd (Sat.)
Noon, 3rd (Sun.)
Noon, 4th (Mon.)
Noon, 5th (Tues.)
Noon, 6th (Wed.)
Noon, 7th (Thurs.)
Noon, 8th (Fri.)
Noon, 9th (Sat.)
Noon, 10th (Sun.)
Noon, 11th (Mon.)
Noon, 12th (Tues.)
Noon, 13th (Wed.)
Noon, 14th (Thurs.)
Noon, 15th (Fri.)
Noon, 16th (Sat.)
Noon, 17th (Sun.)
Noon, 18th (Mon.)
Noon, 19th (Tues.)
Noon, 20th (Wed.)
Noon, 21st (Thurs.)
Noon, 22nd (Fri.)
Noon, 23rd (Sat.)
Noon, 24th (Sun.)
Noon, 25th (Mon.)
Noon, 26th (Tues.)
Noon, 27th (Wed.)
Noon, 28th (Thurs.)
Noon, 29th (Fri.)
Noon, 30th (Sat.)
Noon, 31st (Sun.)
Noon, 1st Oct. (Mon.)
Noon, 2nd (Tues.)
Noon, 3rd (Wed.)
Noon, 4th (Thurs.)
Noon, 5th (Fri.)
Noon, 6th (Sat.)
Noon, 7th (Sun.)
Noon, 8th (Mon.)
Noon, 9th (Tues.)
Noon, 10th (Wed.)
Noon, 11th (Thurs.)
Noon, 12th (Fri.)
Noon, 13th (Sat.)
Noon, 14th (Sun.)
Noon, 15th (Mon.)
Noon, 16th (Tues.)
Noon, 17th (Wed.)
Noon, 18th (Thurs.)
Noon, 19th (Fri.)
Noon, 20th (Sat.)
Noon, 21st (Sun.)
Noon, 22nd (Mon.)
Noon, 23rd (Tues.)
Noon, 24th (Wed.)
Noon, 25th (Thurs.)
Noon, 26th (Fri.)
Noon, 27th (Sat.)
Noon, 28th (Sun.)
Noon, 29th (Mon.)
Noon, 30th (Tues.)
Noon, 31st (Wed.)
Noon, 1st Nov. (Thurs.)
Noon, 2nd (Fri.)
Noon, 3rd (Sat.)
Noon, 4th (Sun.)
Noon, 5th (Mon.)
Noon, 6th (Tues.)
Noon, 7th (Wed.)
Noon, 8th (Thurs.)
Noon, 9th (Fri.)
Noon, 10th (Sat.)
Noon, 11th (Sun.)
Noon, 12th (Mon.)
Noon, 13th (Tues.)
Noon, 14th (Wed.)
Noon, 15th (Thurs.)
Noon, 16th (Fri.)
Noon, 17th (Sat.)
Noon, 18th (Sun.)
Noon, 19th (Mon.)
Noon, 20th (Tues.)
Noon, 21st (Wed.)
Noon, 22nd (Thurs.)
Noon, 23rd (Fri.)
Noon, 24th (Sat.)
Noon, 25th (Sun.)
Noon, 26th (Mon.)
Noon, 27th (Tues.)
Noon, 28th (Wed.)
Noon, 29th (Thurs.)
Noon, 30th (Fri.)
Noon, 31st (Sat.)
Noon, 1st Dec. (Sun.)
Noon, 2nd (Mon.)
Noon, 3rd (Tues.)
Noon, 4th (Wed.)
Noon, 5th (Thurs.)
Noon, 6th (Fri.)
Noon, 7th (Sat.)
Noon, 8th (Sun.)
Noon, 9th (Mon.)
Noon, 10th (Tues.)
Noon, 11th (Wed.)
Noon, 12th (Thurs.)
Noon, 13th (Fri.)
Noon, 14th (Sat.)
Noon, 15th (Sun.)
Noon, 16th (Mon.)
Noon, 17th (Tues.)
Noon, 18th (Wed.)
Noon, 19th (Thurs.)
Noon, 20th (Fri.)
Noon, 21st (Sat.)
Noon, 22nd (Sun.)
Noon, 23rd (Mon.)
Noon, 24th (Tues.)
Noon, 25th (Wed.)
Noon, 26th (Thurs.)
Noon, 27th (Fri.)
Noon, 28th (Sat.)
Noon, 29th (Sun.)
Noon, 30th (Mon.)
Noon, 31st (Tues.)
Noon, 1st Jan. (Wed.)
Noon, 2nd (Thurs.)
Noon, 3rd (Fri.)
Noon, 4th (Sat.)
Noon, 5th (Sun.)
Noon, 6th (Mon.)
Noon, 7th (Tues.)
Noon, 8th (Wed.)
Noon, 9th (Thurs.)
Noon, 10th (Fri.)
Noon, 11th (Sat.)
Noon, 12th (Sun.)
Noon, 13th (Mon.)
Noon, 14th (Tues.)
Noon, 15th (Wed.)
Noon, 16th (Thurs.)
Noon, 17th (Fri.)
Noon, 18th (Sat.)
Noon, 19th (Sun.)
Noon, 20th (Mon.)
Noon, 21st (Tues.)
Noon, 22nd (Wed.)
Noon, 23rd (Thurs.)
Noon, 24th (Fri.)
Noon, 25th (Sat.)
Noon, 26th (Sun.)
Noon, 27th (Mon.)
Noon, 28th (Tues.)
Noon, 29th (Wed.)
Noon, 30th (Thurs.)
Noon, 31st (Fri.)
Noon, 1st Feb. (Sat.)
Noon, 2nd (Sun.)
Noon, 3rd (Mon.)
Noon, 4th (Tues.)
Noon, 5th (Wed.)
Noon, 6th (Thurs.)
Noon, 7th (Fri.)
Noon, 8th (Sat.)
Noon, 9th (Sun.)
Noon, 10th (Mon.)
Noon, 11th (Tues.)
Noon, 12th (Wed.)
Noon, 13th (Thurs.)
Noon, 14th (Fri.)
Noon, 15th (Sat.)
Noon, 16th (Sun.)
Noon, 17th (Mon.)
Noon, 18th (Tues.)
Noon, 19th (Wed.)
Noon, 20th (Thurs.)
Noon, 21st (Fri.)
Noon, 22nd (Sat.)
Noon, 23rd (Sun.)
Noon, 24th (Mon.)
Noon, 25th (Tues.)
Noon, 26th (Wed.)
Noon, 27th (Thurs.)
Noon, 28th (Fri.)
Noon, 29th (Sat.)
Noon, 30th (Sun.)
Noon, 31st (Mon.)
Noon, 1st March (Tues.)
Noon, 2nd (Wed.)
Noon, 3rd (Thurs.)
Noon, 4th (Fri.)
Noon, 5th (Sat.)
Noon, 6th (Sun.)
Noon, 7th (Mon.)
Noon, 8th (Tues.)
Noon, 9th (Wed.)
Noon, 10th (Thurs.)
Noon, 11th (Fri.)
Noon, 12th (Sat.)
Noon, 13th (Sun.)
Noon, 14th (Mon.)
Noon, 15th (Tues.)
Noon, 16th (Wed.)
Noon, 17th (Thurs.)
Noon, 18th (Fri.)
Noon, 19th (Sat.)
Noon, 20th (Sun.)
Noon, 21st (Mon.)
Noon, 22nd (Tues.)
Noon, 23rd (Wed.)
Noon, 24th (Thurs.)
Noon, 25th (Fri.)
Noon, 26th (Sat.)
Noon, 27th (Sun.)
Noon, 28th (Mon.)
Noon, 29th (Tues.)
Noon, 30th (Wed.)
Noon, 31st (Thurs.)
Noon, 1st April (Fri.)
Noon, 2nd (Sat.)
Noon, 3rd (Sun.)
Noon, 4th (Mon.)
Noon, 5th (Tues.)
Noon, 6th (Wed.)
Noon, 7th (Thurs.)
Noon, 8th (Fri.)
Noon, 9th (Sat.)
Noon, 10th (Sun.)
Noon, 11th (Mon.)
Noon, 12th (Tues.)
Noon, 13th (Wed.)
Noon, 14th (Thurs.)
Noon, 15th (Fri.)
Noon, 16th (Sat.)
Noon, 17th (Sun.)
Noon, 18th (Mon.)
Noon, 19th (Tues.)
Noon, 20th (Wed.)
Noon, 21st (Thurs.)
Noon, 22nd (Fri.)
Noon, 23rd (Sat.)
Noon, 24th (Sun.)
Noon, 25th (Mon.)
Noon, 26th (Tues.)
Noon, 27th (Wed.)
Noon, 28th (Thurs.)
Noon, 29th (Fri.)
Noon, 30th (Sat.)
Noon, 31st (Sun.)
Noon, 1st May (Mon.)
Noon, 2nd (Tues.)
Noon, 3rd (Wed.)
Noon, 4th (Thurs.)
Noon, 5th (Fri.)
Noon, 6th (Sat.)
Noon, 7th (Sun.)
Noon, 8th (Mon.)
Noon, 9th (Tues.)
Noon, 10th (Wed.)
Noon, 11th (Thurs.)
Noon, 12th (Fri.)
Noon, 13th (Sat.)
Noon, 14th (Sun.)
Noon, 15th (Mon.)
Noon, 16th (Tues.)
Noon, 17th (Wed.)
Noon, 18th (Thurs.)
Noon, 19th (Fri.)
Noon, 20th (Sat.)
Noon, 21st (Sun.)
Noon, 22nd (Mon.)
Noon, 23rd (Tues.)
Noon, 24th (Wed.)
Noon, 25th (Thurs.)
Noon, 26th (Fri.)
Noon, 27th (Sat.)
Noon, 28th (Sun.)
Noon, 29th (Mon.)
Noon, 30th (Tues.)
Noon, 31st (Wed.)
Noon, 1st June (Thurs.)
Noon, 2nd (Fri.)
Noon, 3rd (Sat.)
Noon, 4th (Sun.)
Noon, 5th (Mon.)
Noon, 6th (Tues.)
Noon, 7th (Wed.)
Noon, 8th (Thurs.)
Noon, 9th (Fri.)
Noon, 10th (Sat.)
Noon, 11th (Sun.)
Noon, 12th (Mon.)
Noon, 13th (Tues.)
Noon, 14th (Wed.)
Noon, 15th (Thurs.)
Noon, 16th (Fri.)
Noon, 17th (Sat.)
Noon, 18th (Sun.)
Noon, 19th (Mon.)
Noon, 20th (Tues.)
Noon, 21st (Wed.)
Noon, 22nd (Thurs.)
Noon, 23rd (Fri.)
Noon, 24th (Sat.)
Noon, 25th (Sun.)
Noon, 26th (Mon.)
Noon, 27th (Tues.)
Noon, 28th (Wed.)
Noon, 29th (Thurs.)
Noon, 30th (Fri.)
Noon, 31st (Sat.)
Noon, 1st July (Sun.)
Noon, 2nd (Mon.)
Noon, 3rd (Tues.)
Noon, 4th (Wed.)
Noon, 5th (Thurs.)
Noon, 6th (Fri.)
Noon, 7th (Sat.)
Noon, 8th (Sun.)
Noon, 9th (Mon.)
Noon, 10th (Tues.)
Noon, 11th (Wed.)
Noon, 12th (Thurs.)
Noon, 13th (Fri.)
Noon, 14th (Sat.)
Noon, 15th (Sun.)
Noon, 16th (Mon.)
Noon, 17th (Tues.)
Noon, 18th (Wed.)
Noon, 19th (Thurs.)
Noon, 20th (Fri.)
Noon, 21st (Sat.)
Noon, 22nd (Sun.)
Noon, 23rd (Mon.)
Noon, 24th (Tues.)
Noon, 25th (Wed.)
Noon, 26th (Thurs.)
Noon, 27th (Fri.)
Noon, 28th (Sat.)
Noon, 29th (Sun.)
Noon, 30th (Mon.)
Noon, 31st (Tues.)
Noon, 1st Aug. (Wed.)
Noon, 2nd (Thurs.)
Noon, 3rd (Fri.)
Noon, 4th (Sat.)
Noon, 5th (Sun.)
Noon, 6th (Mon.)
Noon, 7th (Tues.)
Noon, 8th (Wed.)
Noon, 9th (Thurs.)
Noon, 10th (Fri.)
Noon, 11th (Sat.)
Noon, 12th (Sun.)
Noon, 13th (Mon.)
Noon, 14th (Tues.)
Noon, 15th (Wed.)
Noon, 16th (Thurs.)
Noon, 17th (Fri.)
Noon, 18th (Sat.)
Noon, 19th (Sun.)
Noon, 20th (Mon.)
Noon, 21st (Tues.)
Noon, 22nd (Wed.)
Noon, 23rd (Thurs.)
Noon, 24th (Fri.)
Noon, 25th (Sat.)
Noon, 26th (Sun.)
Noon, 27th (Mon.)
Noon, 28th (Tues.)
Noon, 29th (Wed.)
Noon, 30th (Thurs.)
Noon, 31st (Fri.)
Noon, 1st Sept. (Sat.)
Noon, 2nd (Sun.)
Noon, 3rd (Mon.)
Noon, 4th (Tues.)
Noon, 5th (Wed.)
Noon, 6th (Thurs.)
Noon, 7th (Fri.)
Noon, 8th (Sat.)
Noon, 9th (Sun.)
Noon, 10th (Mon.)
Noon, 11th (Tues.)
Noon, 12th (Wed.)
Noon, 13th (Thurs.)
Noon, 14th (Fri.)
Noon, 15th (Sat.)
Noon, 16th (Sun.)
Noon, 17th (Mon.)
Noon, 18th (Tues.)
Noon, 19th (Wed.)
Noon, 20th (Thurs.)
Noon, 21st (Fri.)
Noon, 22nd (Sat.)
Noon, 23rd (Sun.)
Noon, 24th (Mon.)
Noon, 25th (Tues.)
Noon, 26th (Wed.)
Noon, 27th (Thurs.)
Noon, 28th (Fri.)
Noon, 29th (Sat.)
Noon, 30th (Sun.)
Noon, 31st (Mon.)
Noon, 1st Oct. (Tues.)
Noon, 2nd (Wed.)
Noon, 3rd (Thurs.)
Noon, 4th (Fri.)
Noon, 5th (Sat.)
Noon, 6th (Sun.)
Noon, 7th (Mon.)
Noon, 8th (Tues.)
Noon, 9th (Wed.)
Noon, 10th (Thurs.)
Noon, 11th (Fri.)
Noon, 12th (Sat.)
Noon, 13th (Sun.)
Noon, 14th (Mon.)
Noon, 15th (Tues.)
Noon, 16th (Wed.)
Noon, 17th (Thurs.)
Noon, 18th (Fri.)
Noon, 19th (Sat.)
Noon, 20th (Sun.)
Noon, 21st (Mon.)
Noon, 22nd (Tues.)
Noon, 23rd (Wed.)
Noon, 24th (Thurs.)
Noon, 25th (Fri.)
Noon, 26th (Sat.)
Noon, 27th (Sun.)
Noon, 28th (Mon.)
Noon, 29th (Tues.)
Noon, 30th (Wed.)
Noon, 31st (Thurs.)
Noon, 1st Nov. (Fri.)
Noon, 2nd (Sat.)
Noon, 3rd (Sun.)
Noon, 4th (Mon.)
Noon, 5th (Tues.)
Noon, 6th (Wed.)
Noon, 7th (Thurs.)
Noon, 8th (Fri.)
Noon, 9th (Sat.)
Noon, 10th (Sun.)
Noon, 11th (Mon.)
Noon, 12th (Tues.)
Noon, 13th (Wed.)
Noon, 14th (Thurs.)
Noon, 15th (Fri.)
Noon, 16th (Sat.)
Noon, 17th (Sun.)
Noon, 18th (Mon.)
Noon, 19th (Tues.)
Noon, 20th (Wed.)
Noon, 21st (Thurs.)
Noon, 22nd (Fri.)
Noon, 23rd (Sat.)
Noon, 24th (Sun.)
Noon, 25th (Mon.)
Noon, 26th (Tues.)
Noon, 27th (Wed.)
Noon, 28th (Thurs.)
Noon, 29th (Fri.)
Noon, 30th (Sat.)
Noon, 31st (Sun.)
Noon, 1st Dec. (Mon.)
Noon, 2nd (Tues.)
Noon, 3rd (Wed.)
Noon, 4th (Thurs.)
Noon, 5th (Fri.)
Noon, 6th (Sat.)
Noon, 7th (Sun.)
Noon, 8th (Mon.)
Noon, 9th (Tues.)
Noon, 10th (Wed.)
Noon, 11th (Thurs.)
Noon, 12th (Fri.)
Noon, 13th (Sat.)
Noon, 14th (Sun.)
Noon, 15th (Mon.)
Noon, 16th (Tues.)
Noon, 17th (Wed.)
Noon, 18th (Thurs.)
Noon, 19th (Fri.)
Noon, 20th (Sat.)
Noon, 21st (Sun.)
Noon, 22nd (Mon.)
Noon, 23rd (Tues.)
Noon, 24th (Wed.)
Noon, 25th (Thurs.)
Noon, 26th (Fri.)
Noon, 27th (Sat.)
Noon, 28th (Sun.)
Noon, 29th (Mon.)
Noon, 30th (Tues.)
Noon, 31st (Wed.)
Noon, 1st Jan. (Thurs.)
Noon, 2nd (Fri.)
Noon, 3rd (Sat.)
Noon, 4th (Sun.)
Noon, 5th (Mon.)
Noon, 6th (Tues.)
Noon, 7th (Wed.)
Noon, 8th (Thurs.)
Noon, 9th (Fri.)
Noon, 10th (Sat.)
Noon, 11th (Sun.)
Noon, 12th (Mon.)
Noon, 13th (Tues.)
Noon, 14th (Wed.)
Noon, 15th (Thurs.)
Noon, 16th (Fri.)
Noon, 17th (Sat.)
Noon, 18th (Sun.)
Noon, 19th (Mon.)
Noon, 20th (Tues.)
Noon, 21st (Wed.)
Noon, 22nd (Thurs.)
Noon, 23rd (Fri.)
Noon, 24th (Sat.)
Noon, 25th (Sun.)
Noon, 26th (Mon.)
Noon, 27th (Tues.)
Noon, 28th (Wed.)
Noon, 29th (Thurs.)
Noon, 30th (Fri.)
Noon, 31st (Sat.)
Noon, 1st Feb. (Sun.)
Noon, 2nd (Mon.)
Noon, 3rd (Tues.)
Noon, 4th (Wed.)
Noon, 5th (Thurs.)
Noon, 6th (Fri.)
Noon, 7th (Sat.)
Noon, 8th (Sun.)
Noon, 9th (Mon.)
Noon, 10th (Tues.)
Noon, 11th (Wed.)
Noon, 12th (Thurs.)
Noon, 13th (Fri.)
Noon, 14th (Sat.)
Noon, 15th (Sun.)
Noon, 16th (Mon.)
Noon, 17th (Tues.)
Noon, 18th (Wed.)
Noon, 19th (Thurs.)
Noon, 20th (Fri.)
Noon, 21st (Sat.)
Noon, 22nd (Sun.)
Noon, 23rd (Mon.)
Noon, 24th (Tues.)
Noon, 25th (Wed.)
Noon, 26th (Thurs.)
Noon, 27th (Fri.)
Noon, 28th (Sat.)
Noon, 29th (Sun.)
Noon, 30th (Mon.)
Noon, 31st (Tues.)
Noon, 1st March (Wed.)
Noon, 2nd (Thurs.)
Noon,

party of the men on deck, near the bow end of the ship, arranging the coils of rope previous to lowering the grapnel for the night, on the 11th of August. It had been lowered the day before, but had failed to catch the cable. The rope and grapnel having been hauled back next morning, preparations were made for the next and final attempt.

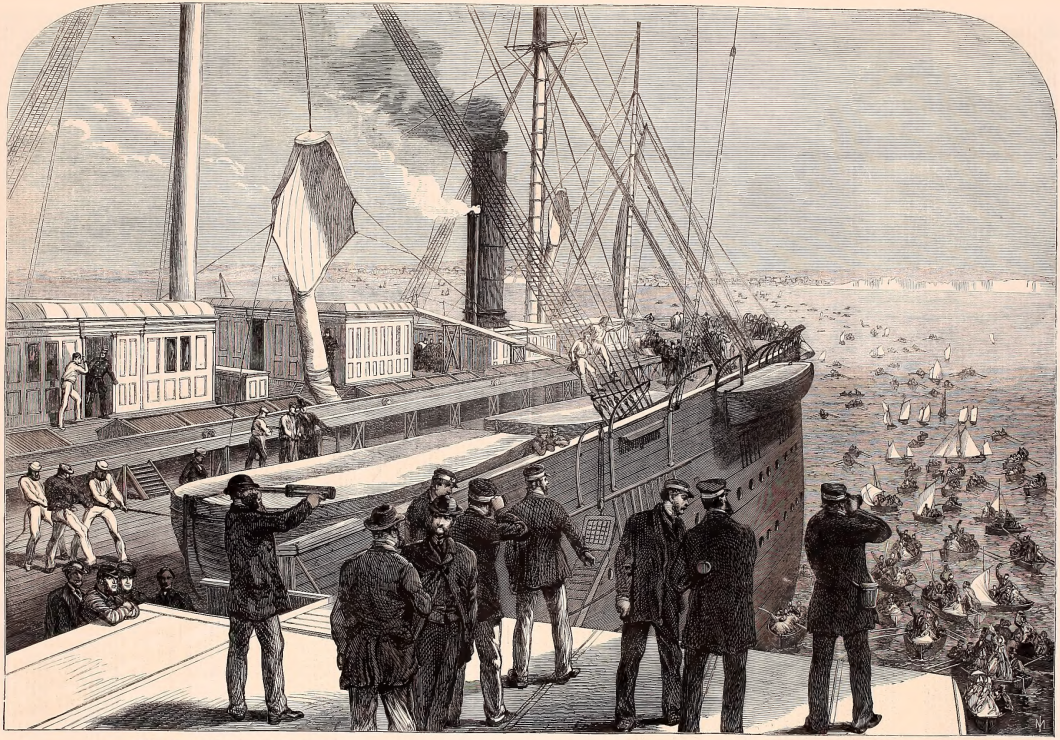
"All the damaged rope was rejected and repaired, as far as the means at the disposal of Mr. Canning permitted. A line, consisting of 1600 fathoms of wire rope, 270 fathoms of hemp rope, and 150 fathoms of Manilla, was prepared and carefully examined, of which 1760 fathoms was pronounced good, the rest being rather worn.

At 7.35 a.m. the Great Eastern was alongside No. 2 buoy, the Terrible in company. At 11.20 the Great Eastern was hove to, and the Terrible was going to make a final effort,' and then, 'We are sorry you have had such unfortunate weather.' The ships head being W. by S., and the buoy No. 2 bearing E. by N. about two miles, the grapnel was let go at 1.30 p.m. Grapnel rope veered.

"The wind would drift the Great Eastern to N.E., right across the cable, and it was hoped that the sweep would overcome the current. The grapnel soon touched the bottom, as the new machinery worked well, and was let go and taken onwards, being veered to 5,000 fathoms, a slight tension was kept on it by the engines, and when it was supposed to be over the cable, the rope was checked, and the dynamometer was brought into use. The rope was then carefully veered from W.N.W. to W. by S., and as the rope came in the screw was set ahead to work at one-third speed. The speed of the vessel, which had increased somewhat, accompanied by showers of rain. The wind had increased also to a fresh breeze, and all it required was a heavy sea, to make us a shackle came through, the machinery fell on the dynamometer, and the rope was stopped. The Atlantic cable had been caught for the third time, and was fast held in the grapnel coming up from the bed of the sea. It is there used to say that the alternations of hope and fear which agitated all on board reached their climax when the cable was caught, and of quiet excitement among us, such as men feel when they await some supreme decree. Some remained below; others paced the deck; some stood where the last jar of the machinery put their hearts in their mouths; others would lie in the saloon or read; others were disconsolately. At the bows, Captain Anderson, Mr. Canning, Mr. Clifford, and the men could see and hear the dynamometer signals, through an acoustic tube and whistle, to the bridge; to go ahead with the engines, or to stop, as the strain on the dynamometer indicated. Suddenly we heard the whistle and a cry of 'Stop!' and the ship's way was in a few minutes of grief and regret told us our last bolt had been sped. At 9.40 p.m., Greenwich time, the No. 2 buoy was about 1 mile E. by S. shackle on to the rope hawser passed through the machinery, and in a moment afterwards the rope parted near the grapnel, and flew over in a bow with a whistling rush which carried death with it like the march of a round shot. In all the records of the cable, there is nothing so sad because the men held on to their stoppers and kept the end straight; but the danger appeared to many to be over. 'Thank God, it's gone!' mingled the eager demand from Mr. Canning and others who could hear to the bows, 'Anyone hurt?' 'No!' 'Thank God!' But there lay the cable beneath us once more, burried under coils of rope and chain, to be taken in an instant, had just been sighed 1700 fathoms more. Signal was at once made to the Terrible. Another buoy was placed on the chain in all haste to leave the disastrous spot."

The return voyage of the Great Eastern has been described. She was lying off Brighton on Saturday week, early in the morning, when our Artist made a sketch, which we have engraved, and which drew a crowd of boats, full of curious and admiring visitors, which thronged close to her huge sides, to wonder, and to cheer. Her fame soon had brought unsuccessfully, in one of the grandest of modern undertakings. Before quitting the coast the Great Eastern steamed round Beachy Head, to invite notice to the illustration of her paying-out machinery, which she was described some time ago, except that the stern of the vessel. We earnestly hope that next year, when the second cable will be laid down, to use, the hope that the Atlantic telegraph will be accomplished with the utmost facility and safety.

THE NEW PARLIAMENT



RESUMING the narrative of Parliamentary change in the general election, the point of junction is Shrewsbury, the next place in alphabetical order where a new member succeeds. The contest in the intervening places the old members had to fight hard for their seats—in the instance of Sandwich, where Lord Ossulston and Mr. Knatchbull Hugessen ran a very close race for the Government—and Mr. Knatchbull where Mr. Hope endured a severe contest, which his opponent seemed desirous of showing that if one could not be returned the other could as well as he. In the Shrewsbury election, but only from May, 1862, on the death of Mr. Slaney, there had been a contest between Mr. Robertson, a new personage, but he did not seek re-election, and the late member, Mr. Tomline, unopposed. Mr. Clement is by profession a surgeon, and he will divide his time between attendance on representation with Mr. Brady, who held it alone in the Government Session, no doubt, in the new territory has not also been invaded by Sir Charles Locock, who first represented it. The Liberal representation of Shrewsbury remains intact. In North Shropshire, a Conservative succeeds a Conservative on the retirement of the Hon. Charles Henry Hill, uncle of Earl Bronwlow, a magistrate for Leicestershire and North Lincolnshire, and formerly a Captain in the Grenadier Guards (Blue), taking that of the Hon. Rowland Hill, who had held it since 1837, for a time, in the Conservative interest, of this division of the county remains as it was—wholly Conservative; for Mr. Robert Jasper More, son of the Rev. F. F. More, of Linley Hall, Salop, member for the Ludlow Division of Shropshire, succeeds the late member, Sir Baldwin Leighton, who was a fair average over the member Liberal, and who was returned without a contest on the production of, and tenacious fight for, what was called an unreal question. Mr. Hill, the late member, Fercy Herbert, who was returned to Parliament only this year, on the accession of Viscount Palmerston to the earldom of Bradnor, was again returned in the Conservative interest. There was no contest in Montgomeryshire. The representation was wholly changed; Sir William Mills, for Birmingham, for a type of a Conservative Reformer, succeeds, though there is he was said in a banker in Bristol, who sat for this division of the county since 1852, and who had represented the city of Glasgow since 1852, did not seek again the suffrages of the city, his constituency; and Mr. Ralph Neville-Grenville, the son of the late Rev. Rev. G. Neville-Grenville, Dean of Windsor, and who had sat that borough from 1841 to 1847, and then from 1852 to 1857, and for Treasury in the last year of Sir Robert Peel's Ministry, and the Lord Privy Seal, Secretary of Commons, Secretary, formerly an officer in the 60th Regiment (both Conservatives), left Mr. Grenville to sit in members with greater than principles in the house. There was a famous battle at Southampton, one in which Mr. Moffat (Liberal), deserting a manner from his own hand to Mr. Moffat (Liberal), deserting a Member, for which he sat in the late Parliament, and who had been returned to Parliament by Alderman Rose (Conservative); Mr. Russell Gurney (C.), Recorder of London, attained the object of his desire, while Mr. Mackay (L.) hovered on the skirts of the fight, hoping for an opportunity to strike a blow on his own account, but in the end he went both the late members went over, and Mr. Gurney and Mr. Moffat triumphed. In Leicester a representation hitherto Liberal, equilateral. The borough of Stafford has generally been considered open—to no more than a single party in this general election, and the Conservatives have had a fair hearing. This time it has vindicated its attachment to Conservatism by electing Mr. Alderman Bebbey (L.), who was an eminent preserver of the traditionary eloquence peculiar to the representatives of Stafford, and Mr. Thomas Salt (C.), who, if he had any savour, Attic or otherwise, never bestowed a pinch of it on the Stafford salts, which are quite pure new men—namely, Mr. Michael Arthur Bass, son of the member for Derby and ruler over some of the great tuns of Burton-on-Trent, and Mr. Walter Meller (C.), who is a coachbuilder in Long-acre, and distinguished as commandant of one of the few volunteer cavalry corps which are extant—the 1st Surrey. There is neither gain nor loss to either party by this personal change. In North Staffordshire there has been a Parliamentary resurrection in the person of Mr. Edward Miller (L.), who sat for that division of the county from 1832 to 1837. He succeeded in gaining a special triumph for the Liberals in 1857. In South Staffordshire, Viscount Ingestre (C.), against all the Talbot interest wielded, as may be supposed, by the noble Viscount's father, the Earl of Shrewsbury, and gained a vote for his party, so that Mr. Adderley (C.), the other former member, will have the dissatisfaction of always going into a lobby opposite to his colleague.

There was a seat open to contest at Stoke-on-Trent, because of the retirement of Mr. Alderman Copeland (C.), and for this Mr. Beresford Hope (C.) and Mr. Melly (L.) struggled. Mr. H. R. Grenfell, the late member, being between them, and in the result Mr. Hope, whose Parliamentary career was interrupted by his defeat from Warwickshire; but in the North Warwickshire, which he represented from 1852 to 1859, is probably not forgotten. Davenport Bromley, who was the other Conservative, having failed to win his seat in the south the place vacated by Mr. Stanley (C.), now Lord by Lord Dunraven. There was a good set-to at both divisions of Staffordshire, but in the north Mr. Newdegate, who sat for Mid-Warwickshire, succeeds Mr. Spencer Walpole, who, in the south the place vacated by Mr. Stanley (C.), now Lord Derby, by Lord Dunraven. There was a good set-to at both divisions of Staffordshire, but in the north Mr. Newdegate, who sat for Mid-Warwickshire, succeeds Mr. Spencer Walpole, who, in the south the place vacated by Mr. Stanley (C.), now Lord Derby, who is by descent and by connection of Warwickshire; and holds sway in the world Sir William Hayter (L.) succeeds Mr. Charles Mordaunt. In the quietest of elections Mr. Hayter held, and his son, Captain Hayter (L.), stepped in. The other member being Captain Gilbert Heathcote, son of Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Bart., who, though Mr. Repton (C.) regained his seat. This is the case of a rapidly over the new members—for it is hardly necessary to dwell on Mr. Repton (C.), the late member, and Sir Stuart Knox (C.), late member, for Westminster at Weymouth, Mr. Henry Gillett Grailey (L.) beat Lord Ivery (L.), the late member, was ousted by Mr. Henry Christopher Wise (C.), an incident of the election being his vote was here lost to the Liberals—as at the previous election, when Mr. George Bankes (C.) was ousted by a vote, while Lord Charles William Bruderell Bruce was ousted by a vote, while Lord Charles William Bruderell Bruce was returned by the Lowther interest was transferred to Mr. Ernest Jarvis, the late member, the present Earl of Lonsdale, late M.P. for Taunton, who is nephew of Lowther at the Isle of Wight, and added another to the Roman Catholic representation of the House of Commons, who are still only in the minority. The contest for North Wiltshire was noteworthy, the two Conservative candidates quarrelled and almost each other in set; bungling of the Conservative agents, and a Liberal (L.), Mr. Long (C.), who has hitherto sat for the borough of Devizes, and who has now sought his fortune in the county, while Lord Charles William Bruderell Bruce

THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH EXPEDITION.

PREPARING FOR THE FINAL ATTEMPT TO GRAPPLE THE LOST CABLE.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

SCENE ON BOARD THE GREAT EASTERN ARRIVING OFF BRIGHTON ON HER RETURN HOME.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 222.

BRITISH ARCHÆOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION.
CONGRESS AT DURHAM.

ITS our Journal of last week we briefly reported the opening of this, the twenty-second, Congress of the Association, on Monday, the 21st ult., and glanced at the interesting inaugural address of the president, his Grace the Duke of Cleveland, who thus felicitously characterised the antiquarian attractions of Durham:—"The picturesque situation of the city, almost surrounded by the windings of the Wear, the quaint streets along the river banks, the magnificent cathedral and old castle, made famous by its connection with a long line of Bishops Palatine, must both satisfy the eye and furnish ample materials for antiquarian research and historic meditation. In the county of Durham there were but few remains of British origin; nor was it until the time of the Roman occupation that the country began to be furnished with those famous Roman roads, and with a neighbouring county, one of such curious remains as are found, more especially in the north-western part, to exist in Northumberland. But there were traces of the great road which the Romans drove with such perfect straightness through the kingdom; and the period of which, subsequently succeeding to the Roman occupation, is marked by some remarkable architectural monuments. There were remains of churches of the Saxon period. But the most remarkable monument of that period of the Danish settlement, especially in the neighbourhood of Bury and Durham City, was the tunnel of places bespeaking a Scandinavian origin. Sir Walter Scott alluded to this in "Rokeby":—

Beneath the sheds the shaded stream sees,
Fixed on each oak a Danish stone.

In mediæval remains the district was even richer. Near Neville's Cross, although mutilated, still remained to show where, in 1346, an English army, led by Lord Neville and Lord Percy, by the Archbishop of York, and by the Bishop of Durham, overthrew in desperate conflict the Scotch under David Bruce.

At the close of the inaugural proceedings, the Rev. George Ornsby accompanied the visitors through the castle, commencing with the outer gateway, which, although a modern structure, was built on the site of the ancient gate-house of the Saxon and Norman castle. The hall, as left by Bishop Hatfield, was at least a third longer than it is at present, and was refurbished in Bishop Fox's time (1494-1501), who erected a kitchen, now used as the dining-room, at the lower end. This kitchen remains in its original form, with wide-yawning fireplace still supplied for other purposes; and the great iron hooks and latches on which cook have the motto of "et hoc pariter," in black letter, carved upon them. Mr. Ornsby then conducted the party through the inscribed gallery and its elaborate Norman doorway to Bishop Tunstall's chapel; and thence to the entrance-door of the Norman keep, and explained the curious tapestry of the history of Moses. The visitors next proceeded to the keep, which, as Mr. Ornsby stated, is one of the few in which the Norman rule was observed. Mr. Ornsby stated that, as all possibility of doubt was removed by Bishop Hatfield, and quoted the authority of Leland, the portraits of Bishops and noblemen on the walls of the Long Gallery, which have been commonly said to be no older than William the Conqueror; but Mr. Ornsby believed that the costume must have existed from the Saxon period, and that the mound is artificial. Next was inspected the Norman chapel of the castle, its most ancient portion, now used as the library, and recently repaired by Mr. Ornsby as of the time of Bethu. The pavement of herringbone is the only one of the kind. The white of the walls, the perfect preservation, and the union of "the past" with the "present" is well maintained; for the old loop, which remained open to the time of Bishop Hatfield, and the outlying country, is parcelled out into rooms, which are occupied by the students of the University.

In the evening there was a dinner in the great hall of the castle, at which 200 guests were present. The walls are hung with old tapestry, and the huge portraits of Bishops and noblemen are ranged round the room. The great roof and the hall, about half way between the roof and the ground, are two niches, at equal distance, built for the minstrels of the time of Bishop Hatfield, as they regaled the guests. The Bishop of Durham, in replying to the toast of "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese," referred to the restoration of the hall, lately displayed by the Dean and Chapter in the restoration of the cathedral, and to his services as the British Archæological Association in encouraging their hands and guiding their minds as to the best modes of church restoration. On the next evening, Mr. Gordon Hills, the Mayor, and one of the officers of the association, made a very good defence of the study of architecture, and of the Association in particular, against the charge of a coarse old materialism from being defaced or destroyed, and to teach a just estimate of the value of the old and the new.

The visitors proceeded to excursions, on the first day, to Auckland and Wear, at a few miles' distance from Durham, was the first point reached. The old castle was built by the ancestor of the Lambtons, and is the seat of Edward J. The Rev. John Todd pointed out the cut-brass as the most ancient remaining part, and in machicolated style, and the gateway, as rebuilt by Cosin at the time of Richard II., when Robert de Lumley obtained permission to embattle: these two towers also denote the antiquity of the castle, in the very ancient building dates mostly from about 1760. In the great hall, with its magnificent roof, nearly 200 feet long, were assembled the party, and partook of a luncheon. In the library, Lisiph the Saxon, of whom here is a fine equestrian effigie statue. The party proceeded to Escomb, the seat of Sir Hedworth and Mr. Thomas Meynell Clark, on Tuesday, and inspected the church, and suggested that the paintings were copies of old engravings working up in fanciful attire of Stanley Leighton, Bart., and Mr. Thomas Meynell Clark.

From Lumley Castle the party drove to Chester-le-Street, which was of old a Roman station, and was called by the Saxons Conecastre. In 883 the church was founded here under Eardulph, the last Bishop of Lindisfarne, who took refuge in this spot from the Danes, and remained here till 995, when the see of Durham. The shrine then became a famous one, and was visited by Royal and noble pilgrims, and largely enriched. In 1072 the see was removed to the Northumbrian coast, and the Bishop and monks fled to Ripon, bearing with them the body of St. Cuthbert, which, after many wanderings, eventually were transferred, and the would rest at the cathedral, which was built by the cathedral at Chester-le-Street was of wood, and was rebuilt in stone about 1140, and a chapel to the church erected in its place. The present church retains some effigy of St. Cuthbert, no doubt genuine. In the north aisle, called the Aisle of Penna, are fourteen monumental effigies, removed from the time of the Conquest to the sixteenth century, which Mr. Fenwick said were, with one or two exceptions, bad imitations of the originals.

From this point the party made for Lanchester, where are the remains of a Roman camp—somewhat more extensive, but a walled camp rather than what was once said, well-finished masonry. Dr. Collingwood Bruce, who gave an interesting account of the fortifications, attributed the construction to Hadrian. The Picts and Scots may have broken down the wall at various points; the Saxons may have constructed as a quarry for the town and castle; but the purpose of observation and of defence encampment must have been admirably situated. It could be approached only from the south, and was defended on the north and east by steep banks. The remains of the Roman gate, with the basilica and baths, along with the numerous altars and coins, which have been from time to time found among the ruins, were inspected with much interest. A heavy thunderstorm led the visitors to seek refuge in the village church, where Mr. Roberts pointed out a fine Norman font, and also a few of the some fragments of thirteenth-century grained.

From Mr. Hall's, Lanchester, the party drove to Ebchester, where some 300 guests were sumptuously entertained in the refectory. Oxhaw College is hardly more than sixty years old, and the college buildings were erected on the present site. Still there is very admirable reproduction of a fourteenth-century mansion and its surroundings, and the effect was begun by the tasteful and judicious restoration which was accomplished during the French Revolution. There are in the college some 200 students, and the number is rapidly increasing. The visitors were here to meet Mr. Lingard, Cardinal Wiseman, and Dr. Newman. Since they are among the students of whom Oxhaw is justly proud; and one of the most prized relics is the fine library in the hall which was given by Sir Cuthbert.

Wednesday's proceedings were commenced with a visit to Durham Cathedral, every part of which, after the morning service, was inspected by Mr. Gordon Hills, in describing the edifice, said that, though in general beauty and ornamental detail the structure might be inferior to many others of note, where, still there was about Durham an air of solemnity and of dignity which could hardly be found in any other cathedral. The stones for the building were brought from Chester-le-Street, about the year 995, and a temporary church was erected for the reception of the body of St. Cuthbert in 1091, some years after the introduction of the Benedictine monks. Mr. Hills called attention to the extraordinary massiveness of the walls of the transepts, and also to the vast size of the piers being so small in its nave and conference. Before the Reformation here was a magnificent roof-screen—demolished by the Puritans in the seventeenth century. The pavement is a line of blue marble in the pavement between the northern and southern doors, that of the north of the nave, down to the time of the Reformation, women were never permitted to go. The reason generally assigned was the Bishop's abhorrence of certain monks in the monastery founded by St. Cuthbert to which a nunnery was attached. But Mr. Hills suspected that, in early times, the women sat on the north side, and the men on the south, as in the Galilee Chapel, and on the west end of the church erected by Bishop Pudsey, which stopped up the western entrance, which was the original one, and which the Virgin Mary, and to be intended for the use of women, who were excluded from the rest of the church. It forms a becoming shrine for the remains of "the Venerable Bede," whose plain table-monument is inscribed

HIC HAE IN FOSSA BEDA VENERABILIS OSSA.

The remains of Bede were said to have been stolen from Jarrow, in 1802, by a Sacrist of Durham, and, after being buried in the Galilee Chapel, in 1831 Dr. Cosford, then vice-priest placed by Bishop Pudsey in the Galilee Chapel. The original tomb was destroyed at the Reformation. The Nine Altars of the church were also visited, and the magnificent Norman arcade behind the high chapel was greatly admired. The cloisters and the chapter library were then inspected—the latter rich in missals and illuminations, two of these Mr. Hills being described as "De manu Bede."

In the afternoon a large party visited the picturesque ruins of Finchale Priory, on the well-wooded bank of the Wear, about four miles from Durham. Mr. E. Roberts elaborately described the remains. Finchale, where a synod was held in 792, obtained its chief renown, some 300 years afterwards, from the fact that here lived and died one of the most holy of the many pious and ambitious hermits—wearing an iron shirt next his skin, mixing ashes with his bread, standing up to his chin in water at his devotions, and resisting temptation by rolling himself amid thorns and briars. Yet he lived here sixty-three years; and the church, after his death, was enriched by pilgrimages to his tomb. The church and monastic buildings were of date between 1194 and 1200. The spire was of wood; there was a short tower in the centre. The windows were lancet, and were rabbited; they had not been glazed with glass, but inclosed by lattices. The refectory and other principal rooms are in the upper story—an unusual arrangement, and one which Mr. Roberts could not explain, except on the ground of greater security.

In the evening a soirée was held at the castle, under the presidency of Mr. John Henderson, M.P. Among the papers read was one by Mr. C. Roach Smith "On the question of the boundary between the Roman Province and those Caledonian Tribes which never acknowledged the Imperial Authority." The main observations were as follows:—Mr. Roach Smith said that after the withdrawal of the Imperial legions, the recognised line of demarcation between the independent Celts and the Romanised Britons was to be found in the line of the Tyne and Solway, but of the Forth and Clyde.

Thursday's excursions were to Barnard Castle, fifteen miles from Durham; the first special attention being the castle, now in ruins, built by Guy de Baliol, temp. Henry III., and passed to the Earl of Warwick, Richard III., and finally to Sir Geo. Oxford; and which, as he was raised to the throne of Scotland, and rendered homage to Edward I. The Baliol family was conferred by Edward IV. upon the King of Scots, and the Neville family became possessed of it by marriage, and Anne Neville brought it to Richard III., who granted it to the Duke of Buckingham. During the Duke of Buckingham's rebellion it was besieged by the rebellious Barons, and held out for eleven days. The ruins, looking over the Tees, are very picturesque, and the keep most solid. Scotts describe the castle as standing on a rock in a place of great strength. There was a tower, called by tradition the Bruckenbury tower, after the Bruce family, which was probably used for such purposes. An ethel window is said to have belonged to the Duke's state chamber.

The Barnard Castle party proceeded, by carriage, and thence to

Here the Rector, the Rev. J. F. Hodgson, described the church as erected by Sir Neville, in the fourteenth century. Standing on the site of some importance in the reign of King Canute. The church affords a remarkable instance of a wooden roof—nearly flat—and of the Perpendicular period in all directions—east, west, north, and south. The "squint" windows overlook the altar, and were used by the lepers. The font is of the Norman period, and contains the Prayer-book of Queen Elizabeth. The old benches in the church were briefly described by Mr. Plantin. Among them is a remarkable chancel-screen, erected by Ralph, Neville, 1st Earl of Westmoreland, 1469, represented in armour, with a lion at his feet; and on each side are effigies of his two wives—Joan Beaufort, daughter of John of Gaunt, and Lady Alice, daughter of John of Gaunt—by whom he had twenty-three children. At the side of all these effigies are shields of arms, and other heraldic purposes.

From Staindrop the visitors proceeded through the park to the seat of the Earl of Darlington, Raby Castle, which, with its fine old baronial hall, is the most perfect of the northern castles now existing. The visitors were received at the hall by the Earl of Darlington, and were conducted by a fine old staircase, lately added, into the Barons' Hall, where, anciently—

Each noble, mitred or knightly name,
Or Neville, at their season came.

In this noble hall were served, to some 200 guests, a sumptuous dinner, in which venison was the principal dish, and which was followed by the Earl of Darlington, who, in a few words, welcomed the Duke and Duchess for their most hospitable reception; and their health was drunk with all the honours which they have received in the course of the week.

Remembering in the lower hall, the visitors listened to a paper read by the Rev. Mr. Raine, upon the Conqueror, King Canute, and the Danes. Canute, a Danish origin, was first mentioned in connection with King Canute, who, after making his submission to Edmund Ironside, received from him the bones of St. Cuthbert, three-tithed it, with Scandrop and the rest of Staindropshire, to the saint. Edmund, however, succeeded to the throne on the monarch, but restored it again on his deathbed. It continued in the peaceful possession of the monks till the time of the Conquest, when it was granted by William to Alan of Dolphin, son of Uchtred, of the blood Royal of Northumberland. Whoever Alan married Ada, daughter of Earl Waltheof, and Judith, daughter of Earl Uchtred, was, in right of his wife, Countess de Raby when, early in the thirteenth century, he married Isabel Bruce, and Raby Castle passed into the hands of the Nevilles. From them it passed to the Vanes, and Raby Castle and the Barony of the Nevilles might be said to date. To his descendant, John Lord Neville, Lord Lord Bishop of Durham, in Cleveland, King Canute granted a charter to the new, so as to present the work and ideas of one period, and a perfect example of a fourteenth-century castle, with the appearance of antiquity and not of restoration wherever. No apparent weakness of site has been pointed out, but, on the contrary, the castle is built upon a rock, and is one of the most fortunes since. But the real defence of Raby lay beyond the mere circuit of its walls and towers. The park, which is entered by a gateway on the north side, and in the border centre of Rokeburgh, Work, Norham, Berwick, and Bamborough. The park is well-wooded and undulating, and the visitors proceeded to Gainford, where they were received by the Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Queen Elizabeth. Apart from the question of the site, the castle itself was a fine example, and, though in ruins, was perfect in its general plan and architectural arrangement; and at six o'clock the archæologists returned to Durham.

There was a soirée at the Castle on Wednesday evening. The rooms were used—by Mr. Fischel, "On the Norman Ancestry of the Nevilles, and the Family Arms;" by Mr. Longstaffe, "On the Ancient Tenures of Land;" by Mr. Angelo Andrew, "On the Ancient Tenures of Land;" by Mr. Angelo Andrew, "On the Anglo-Saxon Inscription;" and by Mr. King, York Herald, "On MSS. Illustrative of Heraldry." Among the MSS. exhibited by Mr. Bruce were Prescriptory Scroll, A.D. 1320, a Roll of Arms after which had been found in the Tyne and Solway, but of the Forth and Clyde.

Thursday's excursions were to Durham, to Barnard Castle, fifteen miles from Durham; the first special attention being the castle, now in ruins, built by Guy de Baliol, temp. Henry III., and passed to the Earl of Warwick, Richard III., and finally to Sir Geo. Oxford; and which, as he was raised to the throne of Scotland, and rendered homage to Edward I. The Baliol family was conferred by Edward IV. upon the King of Scots, and the Neville family became possessed of it by marriage, and Anne Neville brought it to Richard III., who granted it to the Duke of Buckingham. During the Duke of Buckingham's rebellion it was besieged by the rebellious Barons, and held out for eleven days. The ruins, looking over the Tees, are very picturesque, and the keep most solid. Scotts describe the castle as standing on a rock in a place of great strength. There was a tower, called by tradition the Bruckenbury tower, after the Bruce family, which was probably used for such purposes. An ethel window is said to have belonged to the Duke's state chamber.

The Barnard Castle party proceeded, by carriage, and thence to

Here the Rector, the Rev. J. F. Hodgson, described the church as erected by Sir Neville, in the fourteenth century. Standing on the site of some importance in the reign of King Canute. The church affords a remarkable instance of a wooden roof—nearly flat—and of the Perpendicular period in all directions—east, west, north, and south. The "squint" windows overlook the altar, and were used by the lepers. The font is of the Norman period, and contains the Prayer-book of Queen Elizabeth. The old benches in the church were briefly described by Mr. Plantin. Among them is a remarkable chancel-screen, erected by Ralph, Neville, 1st Earl of Westmoreland, 1469, represented in armour, with a lion at his feet; and on each side are effigies of his two wives—Joan Beaufort, daughter of John of Gaunt, and Lady Alice, daughter of John of Gaunt—by whom he had twenty-three children. At the side of all these effigies are shields of arms, and other heraldic purposes.

From Staindrop the visitors proceeded through the park to the seat of the Earl of Darlington, Raby Castle, which, with its fine old baronial hall, is the most perfect of the northern castles now existing. The visitors were received at the hall by the Earl of Darlington, and were conducted by a fine old staircase, lately added, into the Barons' Hall, where, anciently—

Each noble, mitred or knightly name,
Or Neville, at their season came.

In this noble hall were served, to some 200 guests, a sumptuous dinner, in which venison was the principal dish, and which was followed by the Earl of Darlington, who, in a few words, welcomed the Duke and Duchess for their most hospitable reception; and their health was drunk with all the honours which they have received in the course of the week.

Remembering in the lower hall, the visitors listened to a paper read by the Rev. Mr. Raine, upon the Conqueror, King Canute, and the Danes. Canute, a Danish origin, was first mentioned in connection with King Canute, who, after making his submission to Edmund Ironside, received from him the bones of St. Cuthbert, three-tithed it, with Scandrop and the rest of Staindropshire, to the saint. Edmund, however, succeeded to the throne on the monarch, but restored it again on his deathbed. It continued in the peaceful possession of the monks till the time of the Conquest, when it was granted by William to Alan of Dolphin, son of Uchtred, of the blood Royal of Northumberland. Whoever Alan married Ada, daughter of Earl Waltheof, and Judith, daughter of Earl Uchtred, was, in right of his wife, Countess de Raby when, early in the thirteenth century, he married Isabel Bruce, and Raby Castle passed into the hands of the Nevilles. From them it passed to the Vanes, and Raby Castle and the Barony of the Nevilles might be said to date. To his descendant, John Lord Neville, Lord Lord Bishop of Durham, in Cleveland, King Canute granted a charter to the new, so as to present the work and ideas of one period, and a perfect example of a fourteenth-century castle, with the appearance of antiquity and not of restoration wherever. No apparent weakness of site has been pointed out, but, on the contrary, the castle is built upon a rock, and is one of the most fortunes since. But the real defence of Raby lay beyond the mere circuit of its walls and towers. The park, which is entered by a gateway on the north side, and in the border centre of Rokeburgh, Work, Norham, Berwick, and Bamborough. The park is well-wooded and undulating, and the visitors proceeded to Gainford, where they were received by the Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Queen Elizabeth. Apart from the question of the site, the castle itself was a fine example, and, though in ruins, was perfect in its general plan and architectural arrangement; and at six o'clock the archæologists returned to Durham.

There was a soirée at the Castle on Wednesday evening. The rooms were used—by Mr. Fischel, "On the Norman Ancestry of the Nevilles, and the Family Arms;" by Mr. Longstaffe, "On the Ancient Tenures of Land;" by Mr. Angelo Andrew, "On the Anglo-Saxon Inscription;" and by Mr. King, York Herald, "On MSS. Illustrative of Heraldry." Among the MSS. exhibited by Mr. Bruce were Prescriptory Scroll, A.D. 1320, a Roll of Arms after which had been found in the Tyne and Solway, but of the Forth and Clyde.

Friday was devoted to excursions, the first spot visited being Tynemouth Priory, magnificent even in ruins. It is now inclosed in the fortifications which have replaced the old castle, and is the property of the Duke of Northumberland. Mr. Edmund Gibson described the ruins, and said that this spot was the site of one of the earliest monasteries founded by St. Oswin, as appears in history, from the time when it was a little oratory in wood; rebuilt of stone by the Saxon Princess Edilfleda, and finally destroyed and plundered by the Danes; refounded and rebuilt by Robert de Mowbray, who possessed the castle and lordship of Tynemouth, and founded the present priory, part of which the eastern and southern walls remain, and form the most portion of the present fortifications. Mowbray, Earl of Northumberland, was a favourite with William Rufus, and was created Earl of Northumberland as a reward for his services in the Conqueror's time. Mowbray, having rebelled against Henry I., was taken prisoner at the battle of Tinchebrai, and was imprisoned for life in Cardiff Castle, and his estates were confiscated to the Crown. Mowbray's son, Roger, was restored to his father's honours and estates, and founded the priory of Tynemouth, and endowed it with the manor of Tynemouth, and the church of Earsdon, and the chapel of Hartley, and other lands. Roger Mowbray died in the Holy Land, and was buried in the church of Jerusalem. His son, Nigel, was restored to his father's honours and estates, and founded the priory of Tynemouth, and endowed it with the manor of Tynemouth, and the church of Earsdon, and the chapel of Hartley, and other lands. Nigel Mowbray died in the Holy Land, and was buried in the church of Jerusalem. His son, Roger, was restored to his father's honours and estates, and founded the priory of Tynemouth, and endowed it with the manor of Tynemouth, and the church of Earsdon, and the chapel of Hartley, and other lands. Roger Mowbray died in the Holy Land, and was buried in the church of Jerusalem. His son, Nigel, was restored to his father's honours and estates, and founded the priory of Tynemouth, and endowed it with the manor of Tynemouth, and the church of Earsdon, and the chapel of Hartley, and other lands. Nigel Mowbray died in the Holy Land, and was buried in the church of Jerusalem. His son, Roger of Commons at the close of the last Parliament. Among the Judge's other literary works are "Bubbles from Canada," "An Historical and Statistical Account of Nova Scotia," and "The Old Judge, or Life in a Colony." Judge Haliburton was twice married. He was an honorary D.C.L. of Oxford.

ARCHDEACON COXE.

The venerable Richard Charles Coxe, M.A., Archdeacon of Lindisfarne in the diocese of Durham, whose death has just occurred, was personally known and much esteemed for many years as minister of Archbishop's Eastnor's chapel, Lambeth. He was a native of Oxford, and a student of Magdalen College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1821, taking a second class in classics. He was ordained after obtaining his degree, he was elected a Fellow of Worcester College. He was collated to a stall, also, in the cathedral of Lincoln, and appointed by Archbishop Tenison's Chapel. This appointment he left, in 1841, on being nominated by the viscount of Newcastle to the living of St. Mary's, Gateshead, with great fortune and diligence until 1859, when he was made Archdeacon of Lindisfarne, to which a stall in the endowment of the Cathedral of Lichfield, near Alnwick. He, in 1857, became a Canon Residentiary of the Cathedral of Durham. He was, in 1852-3, selected Preacher before the University of Oxford. Archdeacon Coxe was the author of several volumes of poetry and of many ecclesiastical treatises.

W. ENTWISLE, ESQ.

William Entwisle, Esq., of Rusholme House, near Manchester, J.P. and D.L. for the county of Lancaster, who died at Rossall, Fleetwood, Lancashire, December 8, the 18th ult., in his fifty-seventh year, was for many years partner in the great banking firm of Leyd, Entwisle, and Co., now amalgamated with the Manchester and Liverpool District Bank. During his long connection with commercial affairs he was highly esteemed for his sound judgment, and was identified with most of the public movements in which the politics he was a Conservative, and was an unsuccessful candidate for the representation of Manchester in 1841. Three years later, on the death of the Hon. R. B. Wilbraham, Mr. Entwisle was elected for the southern division of the county of Lancashire, and continued to sit until the dissolution of 1847. Mr. Entwisle was married, and leaves three sons and one daughter.

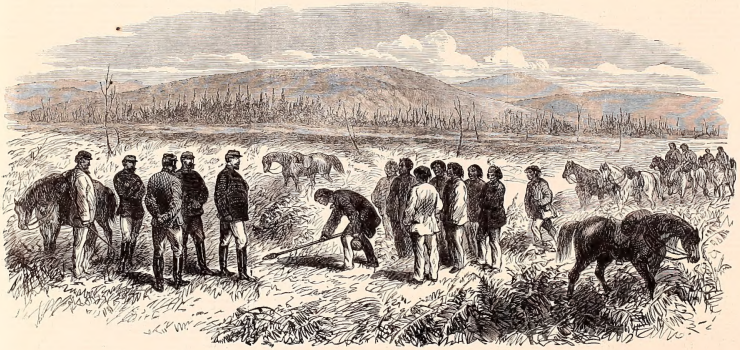
WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

Probate of the will of the Right Rev. John Graham, D.D., Lord Bishop of Chester, has been granted by the Court at Chester to the executors—Mr. Charles Graham, of Lincoln's-inn, and the Rev. Frederick Ivey, his brother-in-law, of Newton Court, Bury St. Edmunds. The personality was sworn under £8,000. His Lordship died on the 15th of March last at the age of seventy-one, having held the see of Chester since 1848, the revenue of which is £5,000 a year. He was educated at Eton and at Trinity College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1815, taking a second class in classics. He was ordained after obtaining his degree, he was elected a Fellow of Worcester College. He was collated to a stall, also, in the cathedral of Lincoln, and appointed by Archbishop Tenison's Chapel. This appointment he left, in 1841, on being nominated by the viscount of Newcastle to the living of St. Mary's, Gateshead, with great fortune and diligence until 1859, when he was made Archdeacon of Lindisfarne, to which a stall in the endowment of the Cathedral of Lichfield, near Alnwick. He, in 1857, became a Canon Residentiary of the Cathedral of Durham. He was, in 1852-3, selected Preacher before the University of Oxford. Archdeacon Coxe was the author of several volumes of poetry and of many ecclesiastical treatises.

W. ENTWISLE, ESQ.

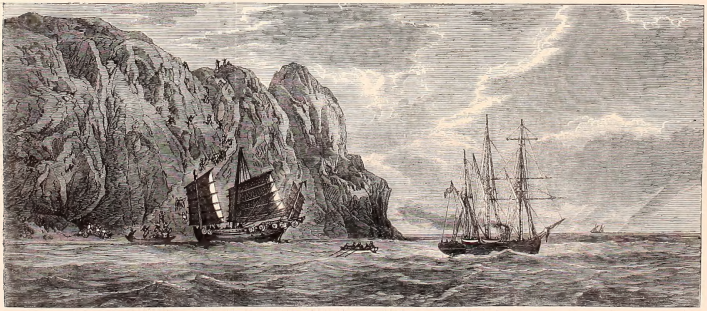
William Entwisle, Esq., of Rusholme House, near Manchester, J.P. and D.L. for the county of Lancaster, who died at Rossall, Fleetwood, Lancashire, on the 18th ult., in his fifty-seventh year, was for many years partner in the great banking firm of Leyd, Entwisle, and Co., now amalgamated with the Manchester and Liverpool District Bank. During his long connection with commercial affairs he was highly esteemed for his sound judgment, and was identified with most of the public movements in which the politics he was a Conservative, and was an unsuccessful candidate for the representation of Manchester in 1841. Three years later, on the death of the Hon. R. B. Wilbraham, Mr. Entwisle was elected for the southern division of the county of Lancashire, and continued to sit until the dissolution of 1847. Mr. Entwisle was married, and leaves three sons and one daughter.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.



Probate of the will of the Right Rev. John Graham, D.D., Lord Bishop of Chester, has been granted by the Court at Chester to the executors—Mr. Charles Graham, of Lincoln's-inn, and the Rev. Frederick Ivey, his brother-in-law, of Newton Court, Bury St. Edmunds. The personality was sworn under £8,000. His Lordship died on the 15th of March last at the age of seventy-one, having held the see of Chester since 1848, the revenue of which is £5,000 a year. He was educated at Eton and at Trinity College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1815, taking a second class in classics. He was ordained after obtaining his degree, he was elected a Fellow of Worcester College. He was collated to a stall, also, in the cathedral of Lincoln, and appointed by Archbishop Tenison's Chapel. This appointment he left, in 1841, on being nominated by the viscount of Newcastle to the living of St. Mary's, Gateshead, with great fortune and diligence until 1859, when he was made Archdeacon of Lindisfarne, to which a stall in the endowment of the Cathedral of Lichfield, near Alnwick. He, in 1857, became a Canon Residentiary of the Cathedral of Durham. He was, in 1852-3, selected Preacher before the University of Oxford. Archdeacon Coxe was the author of several volumes of poetry and of many ecclesiastical treatises.

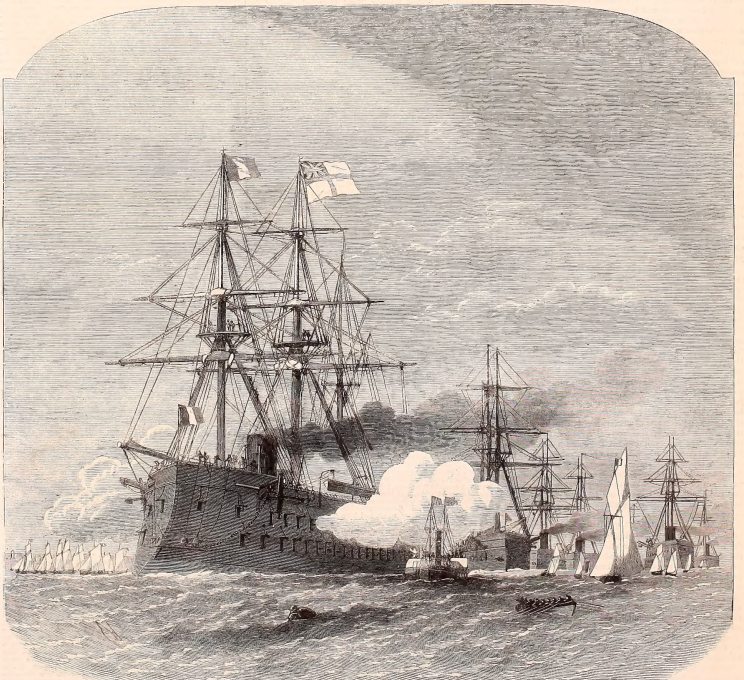
W. ENTWISLE, ESQ.



William Entwisle, Esq., of Rusholme House, near Manchester, J.P. and D.L. for the county of Lancaster, who died at Rossall, Fleetwood, Lancashire, on the 18th ult., in his fifty-seventh year, was for many years partner in the great banking firm of Leyd, Entwisle, and Co., now amalgamated with the Manchester and Liverpool District Bank. During his long connection with commercial affairs he was highly esteemed for his sound judgment, and was identified with most of the public movements in which the politics he was a Conservative, and was an unsuccessful candidate for the representation of Manchester in 1841. Three years later, on the death of the Hon. R. B. Wilbraham, Mr. Entwisle was elected for the southern division of the county of Lancaster

THE NEW ZEALAND CHIEF, WILLIAM THOMPSON, NEGOTIATING WITH BRIGADIER-GENERAL CAREY.

SURRENDER OF WILLIAM THOMPSON TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL CAREY.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.



CHINESE PIRATES ATTACKED BY THE BRITISH GUN-BOAT OPOSSUM, NEAR HONG-KONG.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1333.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE HARVEST.

JOHN BULL likes to have done with harvesting, if possible, before he gets to his field sports. If he were lord of the weather, which assuredly he is not, whatever the blunders he might commit in reference to the growth and ripening of the crops, he would take care to have them safely housed before the 1st of September. The present season has gone far to gratify his wish—the harvest is so nearly completed that a rough estimate may be formed of its general produce. Knowledge of what that produce may be seldom perhaps very seriously affects John's enjoyment of sport, but he is always anxious to have it as a sort of seasoning to his recreation. The character of the harvest tells more or less in some way or another upon every man's prospects for the ensuing year. If it be good, the dogs may be followed and the fowling-piece handled with all the more alacrity of spirit; if bad, sport must be all the sooner succeeded by business. At any rate, and whatever use he may afterwards make of it, John Bull craves trustworthy information on the subject at the earliest practicable moment.

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH: ARRIVAL OF THE FRENCH FLEET—THE SOLFERINO SALUTING THE ENGLISH FLAG.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

The country, we fear, will feel some little disappointment in respect of this year's harvest. Within the last two months bright prospects have been sadly overcast. Our hopes a short time back gaily danced in the sunshine, of which there seemed every promise of a steady continuance. Perhaps even more we had taken too exclusive counsel of our wishes and had given too little heed to the testimony of facts. In the blaze of July we had forgotten the unusual length of June. Natural laws, however, asserted their dominion without the least reference to man's forgetfulness of them, and the yet tender wheat soon displayed the evil effects of an unseasonable chill. The weather which followed upon that episode of frosty nights was brilliant and exceedingly enjoyable, but the crops of cereals languished for want of rain. Rain came at length, but it came in too copious measure and through too wide a breadth of time. Throughout August it was frequent, and often heavy. The farmer was compelled to watch his enemy with keen and never-tiring vigilance and to snatch up his shocks in the very nick of opportunity as the sitfulness of the skies would allow him. For him the season has been capricious and trying beyond the average of seasons; but, happily, it has not proved disastrous. Generally speaking, his mechanical appliances are far superior to what they used to be; and, while he is more independent of hands, he does what is required to be done in a shorter time. One effect of the delays to which the rains in August have subjected harvest operations is that the leading and housing of the corn will generally be accomplished at about the same time all over the kingdom—north, north and south, instead of being separated by three weeks' interval, carried their grain simultaneously, or nearly so. There were, indeed, a few husbandmen who got much of their wheat and barley before the wet set in, and they are to be congratulated; but their good fortune was quite exceptional. On the whole, although the country has not sustained severe damage from the unsettledness of the two months throughout the harvest month, it has been doomed to witness much unanticipated deterioration of its prospects, and has been called upon to bear disappointment with as much submissiveness as it can command.

In taking stock of our food resources for the coming year, we are dependent upon reports the accuracy of which, although, perhaps, it cannot be disproved, is open to some doubt. In this country no statistics of home produce are collected by public authority, and a general estimate must be regarded merely as an aggregate of guesses. Whether the acreage under tillage for the present harvest has fallen short of or exceeded that of last year, or what proportion the difference may have borne to one another, cannot be other than matter of conjecture. The collation of a large number of reports gathered from men interested in agricultural pursuits will, no doubt, bring out a conclusion approximately correct enough, but the data being insufficient, the judgment based upon them must be to the same extent uncertain. It is generally safe, we think, to assume that the sum total of the conjectural calculation is under rather than over the mark, and that estimated statements are almost always a shade or two darker than facts, (when there is to be fully known) are found to justify. The exceptions to the rule—for the case admits of exceptions—are extremely rare, and there is no reason to believe that this year's estimate should be referred to that category.

With this correction at hand, let us steadily look our prospects in the face. All reports concur in representing the crop of cereals to have fallen short of an average in respect of both quantity and quality—oats in the former, barley in the latter, wheat in both. We are not quite sure what is the standard of comparison, or whether we need understand that, save for acre, the produce is inferior to what it was last year, or to an average including two highly-productive years. We will suppose—though we have no authentic information on this head—that the breadth of land sown for wheat, for barley, and for oats respectively was about the same this year as it was last and the year before, on which hypothesis we shall arrive at the conclusion, another guidance of the reports furnished to the public, that our whole supply of raw material for bread, the growth of the season just ended, is less than that of the preceding season, or of an average of seasons, and, besides that, inferior in it; of rare material for beer, is decidedly inferior if not less; and of what Dr. Johnson described as "food for horses in England," considerably less. As to the estimates of quality, there can be no reasonable expectation that time will alter them for the better; but then the disadvantage is of a kind that can be accepted without much impatience. Shortness of quantity is a far more serious affair—but no one pretends that it prevails to such an extent as need cause public apprehension.

This, then, is not thus far a highly unfavourable summary of results. But we have something to place on the other side of the account. The yield of potatoes is unusually good, and, although the mysterious disease which has affected this crop for many successive seasons has here and there made its appearance, it is believed that there is no present likelihood that it will largely diminish the bulk. Almost every kind of food for cattle is abundant. The pastures are green—winter crops give excellent promise—and little complaint is made of peas and beans. There will be no difficulty, therefore, in fattening stock for Christmas, nor in carrying store cattle comfortably through the winter. To be sure, a deduction has to be made on account of the existing pestilence, although a less considerable one, let us hope, than owners, graziers, and salesmen allow their fears to anticipate. At all events, the provision available for beasts is acknowledged, on all hands, to be bountiful.

There is one other aspect of the case to which we are bound to advert. Happily, we are not wholly dependent for our year's supply of food upon the produce of our own soil. The surplus of other harvests can be made to supplement the deficiencies of our own. Under the regimen of free trade, famine prices are impossible. There will be bread enough for our population: about that no misgiving whatever need be felt. Probably it will be somewhat dearer than it has been—a circumstance to be deeply regretted, especially while butchers' meat costs nearly double what it did. On the whole, however, the country may survey its food prospects without much anxiety. The present harvest may not have been equal to earlier expectations, but it is still, as of old, the "reflection" is appropriate—"Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness."

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH.

THE brilliant series of festivities at Portsmouth in honour of the approaching visit of the King of the Belgians commenced on Tuesday week. Just before noon that day the meeting of the Corporation at Spithead announced the arrival of our foreign guests. Expectation had been excited by the vessels composing the fleet of evolution having been visible in the offing from as high up as the narrow entrance to the harbour, and it was evident that they were steaming up at a pretty smart pace. They did not long remain out of sight. Rounding the spit buoy, they passed on, one by one, in a N.W. to N., and from N. nearly to N.E., a most imposing array for them had been arranged in two parallel lines. The Emperor's screw-yacht Reine Hortense and the Queen's paddle-yacht Osborne led in the van, and the La Reine was immediately next. Then came the Solferino and Magenta, two twin iron-clads of 6,000 tons each, and they were attended at a respectful distance with their pendennon aperch, or beaks, by which they are to strike their enemies between wind and water-line. The remaining vessels steamed slowly up to the places appointed for the vessels which composed the procession, and, as they passed their respective positions, they presented a very imposing spectacle. The Emperor led next to the Victoria and Albert, the Queen. Steaming all sides by side. There were the Solferino and Magenta, two-decked iron-clad Normandy, Invincible, Iron Duke, Hercules, Heroine, and Flandre, frigates; with four small vessels, the Caton, the Rifleman, and the Revenge, corvettes. The distinguishing flag was Count Rose-Williamse, Vice-Admiral-in-Chief, on board the Solferino. The Admiral of the Fleet, Admiral H. G. Rous-Dundas, was on board the Victoria and Albert, the French Minister of Marine, with his Staff; and M. Dupuy de Lôme, the Director of Construction of the Navy.

Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, Naval Commander-in-Chief, in attendance on the Lords of the Admiralty, had by this time arrived at Spithead in his paddle-steamer, the Black Eagle, and, according to rules and descriptions, too, were cruising about the roadstead, while a fine fleet of steam-vessels, yachts, pinnaces, and tenders, from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club came out from Ryde Roads and darted to and fro in the line in the harbour, displaying every variety of bunting and red and grim array. Their numbers had been increased by the Prince Consort, 21, screw-frigate, Captain Alfred Phipps Ryder, A.D.C. to the Queen; the Ocean Sheep, Captain Wilmshurst, 2253 tons and 200-horse power. On reaching Spithead the Ocean Sheep let go her anchor and veered out 90 fathoms of cable. Prince Consort, 25, screw-frigate, 3615 tons and 1000-horse power, Captain Ryder, A.D.C. to the Queen; and Research, 6, screw-gun vessel, 950 tons and 200-horse power, Commander Lyon, R.N., anchored in a line from S.W. to S.E., were also present to receive the French fleet. The Prince Consort, 25, screw-frigate, 3615 tons and 1000-horse power, Captain Ryder, A.D.C. to the Queen; and Research, 6, screw-gun vessel, 950 tons and 200-horse power, Commander Lyon, R.N., anchored in a line from S.W. to S.E., were also present to receive the French fleet. The Ocean Sheep, Captain Wilmshurst, 2253 tons and 200-horse power; Sir Frederick Nicolson, R.N., C.B., aide-de-camp to the Queen; Captain G. T. P. Hornby; the Rector, 23, iron frigate, 4080 tons and 800-horse power, Captain G. H. Boys; the Ruby, 14, iron frigate, 2006 tons and 400-horse power, Captain S. Pallimore, 16, iron frigate, 7920 tons and 600-horse power; the Black Prince, 41, iron frigate, 9210 tons and 1250-horse power, Captain Lord F. Kerr; the Achilles, 26, iron frigate, 6121 tons and 1250-horse power, Captain Lord Clanricarde, C.B., A.D.C. to the Queen; Scorpion, 4, turret-ship, 3705 tons and 600-horse power, Captain H. Heneage; Wivern and hoves' heads strive for predominance. Bootmakers exhibit every description of boot and gaiter of the newest shape. From dogcarts hung game-bags sufficient to hold all the game that could be bagged if there were a general battue throughout France on a given day to which none but crack shots were invited. Enterprising confectioners advertise their "pâtisserie locale," and one energetic tradesman has this year started an establishment at Bonnières he styles his "Tir de la Compagnonnet." But the best thing I have noticed is the sportsman's portable medicine-chest, in which ether and eal volatile and salts are arranged like flasks. The other day I saw an unlucky example of this intense passion for "sport" ex grands ballets making his way in complete dejection, along the road, with the assistance of a gendarme. The gentleman, I found, had forgotten to provide himself with a license.

A handsome work in folio, commemorative of our late great freetrade champion, has just made its appearance in Paris. It comprises a memoir of Cobden, by M. Michel Chevalier, with a few of Cobden's letters, &c., and is prefaced by an introduction by M. Léon Say, Girardin, in which, with the somewhat far-fetched views of a French man, he institutes a comparison between Cobden and Columbus—the one, as he says, the discoverer of a new world, the other, about 300 the same as the other was the discoverer of a new material world. The work is illustrated with a well-executed portrait, and other engravings.

The Inflicteur des Chemins de Fer, the railway time-tables of France par excellence, came out this week with a black border, out of respect to its originator and proprietor, M. Hachette, whose Mr. Bradshaw of France—who died in Paris a few days since, after having founded a successful publishing and railway business, mainly out of the profits derived from the success of the work above mentioned.

A statue in bronze, by M. Oliva, of Francis Arago, the great astronomer, was inaugurated at Estagel, in the Pyrenées-Orientales, on Thursday last, in the presence of force enough to have taken Perpignan and a considerable gathering of men of science. M. Isaac Pereire, the great financier and deputy for the department, presided over the inaugural address. In such estimation was Arago held in the district where he was born, that the workmen employed in the improvement of the railway station and dragged the statue thence to the spot where it was to be erected, and old women, who remembered the distinguished savant in his youth, in the height of their enthusiasm, kissed, it is said, the bronze effigy with their withered lips.

A statue has also been erected at Villers-Bocage in honour of Richard Lenoir, supposed to be the man who introduced cotton-spinning by machinery into France. The statue, in its primitive timchen have been given to it, the veil has been removed amid general rejoicing, and then a chroniqueur delights in the discovery that there was never such a man as Richard Lenoir, but that there was a firm consisting of M. Richard and M. Lenoir, who carried on their cotton-spinners in the Rue de Charonne. On the death of the second partner, M. Richard, the manufacturer, the firm was dissolved. It is positively asserted, moreover, by Louis Fye, that the introduction of cotton-spinning by machinery into France was the work of a Belgian, named Bauwens, who created the first establishment at Chaillot and was therefore decorated by the first Emperor in 1810.

There is certainly a lull in the literary air this autumn. There are rumours of the arrival of the younger Dumas in Paris, to publish a cutting pamphlet against the Duke de Grandin, but the delivery has just published his unlucky drama, with a preface longer than the drama itself.

If anything can be amusing at a theatre in the tropical heat we are now enduring, it assuredly is the revival of the comedy of the "Two Sisters," just produced at the Palais Royal. The great scene where the injured husband calls on the lover of his wife, and the lover turns the other cheek for a repetition of the indignity, is played with the best of the Palais Royal, and the audience indulge in perfect roars of laughter, for one good friend, the Parisian, if not cook shop and sturdy men in the field, are at least sharp sportsmen when they have anything to amuse game to us, more than a match for a French criticism on M. de Girardin's "Two Sisters," which began by stating that if M. de Girardin had not been a deputy and a man of mark, he had never occupied the popular place he has held before the French public for many years. Some critics have described his piece as a penny-a-liner's scandal, drawn out into three wearisome acts. But such criticisms are unjust to M. de Girardin's taste, even reply is sentiment. But the piece, while it is certainly not one that can be read to an old M. de Genlis or a young person (see he prints in La Presse) make out, is not so bad as he has provoked the entire to be.

But M. de Girardin will now be left in peace with his "Two Sisters," for Alphonse Karr, the great bouquet-cultivator of Nice, has abandoned a brilliant career there quarrel with the Mayor of Nice, Malausséna, when he calls Scapin, apropos of "La Pauvre Normande," and other little comedies of which M. Karr has written. He has written a bit of the Grand Journal of last Sunday were dedicated to M. Karr's very pungent reflections on this subject, and to the Mayor of Nice, M. Alberic Second, on the question at issue. M. Karr's enemy appears to have said that the author of "A Journey round my Garden" was, in reality, no garden worth a glance at over the palings. The violence of the controversy—this bitter hate among men—is not supposed ridiculous, is, so far as I have watched it, highly amusing.

Although the Englishmen travel all over the world, it is not every where that the Englishman's washing-day is known as a fact. A friend of mine, returning the other day from the south of France, took a long railway journey in the postmaster's own train, and put up for the night at the chief hotel. On ascending to his apartment, he observed a row of washing-tubs ranged on the occasion of ablution, and told his servant to order an additional supply. This the servant did, and in due time had it shown to him. But on the night requirements, thereby nearly pursuing the garcon engaged in the service. "What does Monsieur want?" was the reply, and it was quisitively inquired, adding "he must be very dirty!" The following morning, on attempting to renew the ablution, the chambermaid was no bounds, and he exclaimed, in a tone of intense surprise, "Mon Dieu! What, not clean yet?"

Amongst strangers in the Tuileries on Monday was Graziani, cigar in mouth. He is en route for St. Petersburg, and has just come from the Lac d'Annecy, where dwells Lamartine. He has a great fear of the great bastione—and bastiones are but human—was so excessive that he started with all speed for Geneva, and there, on stopping neither to take bit nor sup.

The health of M. Vincent Wallace shows a slight improvement of late. He is at Penzy and his English friends will be glad to hear of the symptoms which his long illness has inspired in Paris. Rossini and Thalberg went together to visit him last week.

The first fifty representations of "La Grande Duchesse" just completed at the Grand Opera have, it is said, produced 350,000f., or about £140 a night.

Barragna Soulon, another last of the Mamelukes of Napoleon I., was buried on Monday, at the Church of St. Pierre du Gros-Caillou. He was twenty-five years of age when he died.

I suppose you have heard in England that Mr. Charles Mathews has accepted an engagement here at the Folies Nouvelles, and will be known part in "L'Homme Blasé"—not, of course, in English, but in the original French.

The Empress arrived at Fontainebleau yesterday week, with Princess Anna Murat, the Duchess de Mouchelets, and Mdlle. Bouvet. The three ladies are going on favourably.

The Empress and Regent, with the Prince Imperial, left Paris on Wednesday evening, for Biarritz. Their Majesties, it is stated, will not arrive at San Sebastian on the Spanish frontier, at which place they are to have interview with the King and Queen of Spain; and, on the 11th, their Spanish Majesties are to pay a return visit to the Emperor and Empress at Biarritz. Napoleon loses no opportunity of making known his good-will towards Spain. In an audience which he granted to the Marquis de Lema, the new Ambassador from the Court of Madrid, on Thursday week, he expressed the great value which he attached to the Franco-Spanish alliance. The two nations, he said, had no rivalries, and their interests were identical.

Viscount de Paris, the Portuguese Minister, had an audience of the Emperor on Thursday week, and remitted to his Majesty the Grand Cross of the Order of Christ for the Prince Imperial.

Count Walewski has resigned his place as a senator, and the resignation has been accepted. This was a matter of course, for the Count has been elected a member of the Legislative Chamber in order to qualify himself for the office of President of that Chamber, vacant since the death of the Duke de Morny.

The French iron-clads arrived at Cherbourg from Portsmouth on Saturday night. The officers are warm in their acknowledgments of the cordial reception given to them in this country, and the compliments in the press on the recent fêtes at Portsmouth are in equally laudatory terms. The Moniteur, in its bulletin of Wednesday evening, says:—

It affords us great satisfaction to call to mind with what courtesy the Government, the people, and the press of England have received the French fleet in England. The entente cordiale which prevailed during the preceding visit of the Queen of England to France has been fully renewed. The friendly relations existing between France and England are founded upon the identity of their interests, and the sympathies which exist between the two countries. Everything in our power to manifest to the gentlemen to whom the management of the Channel is confided, and to the people of the United Kingdom how much we appreciate their generous hospitality, has been asserted that they should be restored to the origin of their nationality.

A fine portrait in pastel of Princess Mathilde, by M. A. Giraud, has been exhibited in the Champs Elysées.

M. Robert Fleury has been commissioned to paint the four pictures which are to decorate the great hall projected for the sittings of the new Tribunal of Commerce.

The Vaudeville Theatre, in Paris, is to be pulled down next April, and rebuilt on the same site within six months.

In the cricket-match which took place between the Civil Service Club and the Stock Exchange, the former won by 31 all, whilst the Civil Service Club scored only 129 in all.

The Bishop of Nismes has addressed a pastoral letter expressive of his entire disapprobation of the ball-fights which have lately taken place in his diocese.

AUSTRIA.

The Vienna papers publish a report of the Minister of Justice to the Procurators-General relative to the course to be pursued towards the press. The Minister recom mends the exercise of the law against publications which are hostile to the press, but a reconsideration of all measures which might raise a suspicion that the prosecution was of a partizan character. The Minister concludes his circular by declaring that, as regards the Minister, will gratefully accept all well-founded criticism of their acts.

ITALY.

The Ministry of the Interior has been intrusted to Signor Natoli, who will continue to hold his portfolio as Minister of Public Instruction.

The cholera is decreasing at Arezzo.

SPAIN.

The interview between the Spanish and French Sovereigns will take place at the frontier station of Castelon, and Carthagena, in the province of Murcia, to be infected with cholera.

PORTUGAL.

The following is the definite constitution of the new Ministry:—Senhor Aguiar, President of the Council and Minister of the Interior; Count Casa Nova, Minister of Foreign and Public Works; Senhor Fontes, Minister of Finance; Count Torres Novas, Minister of War; Viscount Fonte Arcada, Minister of Senhor Duques Fayeira, Minister of Justice. The Chambers will shortly be prorogued.

The baptism of the Royal infant will take place on the 26th inst. It is reported that, in honour of the event, the Emperor of the French has agreed to stand godfather.

The Exhibition of Arts Industry will be opened on the 18th inst.

UNITED STATES.

We have news from New York to the 26th ult.

The commencement of the impeachment, on charges of conspiring, with other Southern leaders, to murder Federal prisoners, and with having actually murdered several, was set aside during the trial, and a new counsel appointed to conduct the case, in addition to Messrs. Lee, Seddon, and Northrop. Wirtz's counsel objected to fresh proceedings being taken in the case of their client, Northrop, whereupon the latter abandoned the case. The President of the Court then appointed the Hon. Lovell Rousseau, Major-General of Horrible conspiracy was made against him, among others, "that he kept bloodhounds to hunt down prisoners of war who attempted to escape, and that he caused several of the prisoners to be inoculated with poisonous matter."

The Republican Convention at Chicago has nominated Grant, and all others, except the revenue one, passed during the war. It has passed the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Articles of the Federal Constitution, and has memorialised President Johnson to pardon Mr. Davis. President Johnson telegraphed to the Governor of Mississippi, congratulations on the peaceful result of the Southern Conventions to the Union. He also said that the Habeas Corpus Act would be carried out in every State, and that the laws of the land would operate sufficiently to have returned to her allegiance.

The Pennsylvania Democratic Convention has given Mr. Johnson its qualified support. It demands that measures shall be passed to relieve the Southern States from military domination, and to protect them from negro suffrage.

The Austrian Admiralty fleet has nearly all been ordered out of commission, and is to be laid up at League Island, on the Delaware River, a few miles below Philadelphia.

The steamship Colorado, from San Francisco for Portland, was wrecked near Cape Lincoln. She had from 200 to 300 passengers on board, but only one life was lost, that of a child.

Ford's Theatre, at Washington, is being converted into a fire-proof building, and when it is finished, a portion of the Army Medical Museum will be kept. They will be under the charge of Dr. Francis Lieber.

Mr. William Cullen Bryant has purchased the homestead, in his native town, of Governor Hubbard, deceased, and intends to live in it for the remainder of his days.

A Soldiers' Messenger Corps has been established in New York, after the example of the London and Provincial Messengers.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

Advices from Quebec to Aug. 26 state that in the Canadian House of Commons, on Mr. Galt moving that the House do go into Committee of Supply, Mr. Holton moved a resolution condemning the policy to the enlargement of the St. Lawrence Canals, in connection with the Intercolonial Railway, and the Reciprocity Treaty with the States, in which the Reciprocity Treaty and the scheme of the Confederacy were the two principal measures, was carried by a vote of 78 to 20.

In answer to an inquiry, the Hon. Mr. Macdonald announced in the House of Commons the intention of the Government to enlarge all the canal system of Canada at the earliest possible moment, but the present Government did not contemplate any loan for the purpose of attracting the trade of the western States of Canada. He would not pledge the Government to any fixed time for the completion of the works.

The surveys and estimates of the Intercolonial Railroad have been submitted to the Canadian Parliament. The route recommended is via River du Loup, Bay of Chaleur, Fredericton, and Pictou, to Halifax, and will cost twenty-five millions, or 40,000 dollars per mile.

The suit of the Great Western Railroad of Canada against the Commercial Bank of Canada, involving £200,000, has been decided against the bank.

INDIA.

We are in receipt of letters and newspapers from Bombay to the 8th of August.

Intelligence for peace have been received from the Rajah of Bhootan, and the war is not likely to be resumed in that quarter.

Lieutenant Campbell, 90th Foot, has been murdered by fanatics in Cashmere.

A body of insurgent Wagpurs have been defeated near Rajeote by a detachment of native troops, under Captain Fones.

The Bombay Government has sent large supplies of grain to Aden to relieve the famine at that place.

The want of rain is severely felt in the Punjaub and the north-west.

Duguonah Sunkerseet, the representative Hindoo and leading man among the Hindoos in Bombay, died on the 31st of July.

Mr. Chisholm Anstey has been appointed an active Judge in the High Court of Bombay.

An outbreak has occurred on the Great Indian Peninsular Railway, forty miles from Bombay, in which eight persons were killed and seventeen injured, all being natives.

NEW ZEALAND.

We learn by telegraphic advices that, notwithstanding the surrender of William King, the Waitara question remains unsettled with the Maori King, our difficulties in the northern island are by no means at an end. It is stated that Kingism, independent chief, is inclined to continue the contest.

The latest piece of intelligence from the same quarter is that the crew of the English cutter Bonita have been seized by the natives, but these fate is unknown.

A Ministerial crisis appears to be again impending.

The June and the summer flights have been left on Mokitika Bar.

THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

The news from the Cape is reassuring. Communications have been opened between the Secretary for Native Affairs and Moshesh, the chief of the Basutos, respecting the late raid into the Eastern colony, which Moshesh declares was without his knowledge or complicity. The Secretary reports that there is not a single Basuto in the colony, and that the alarm which was naturally felt had subsided. Altogether, the accounts received from the seaboard colonies have been gratifying, exaggerations and it is not certain that a single person has lost his life. Meanwhile the Government is on the alert and prepared for any emergency.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Earl of Derby will be entertained by the Mayor of Liverpool at the Townhall on the 19th inst.

The Free Library at Birmingham was opened on Wednesday, when upwards of 2000 persons were present and other gentlemen.

Mr. Marshall Wood has been chosen as the sculptor to execute the statue of the late Robert Cobden which is to be erected in Manchester.

The ladies of Nottingham are about to present "a splendid epergne" to Lady Clifton, in testimony of their "high appreciation of the generous exertions and liberal interest which she displayed in helping to secure the re-election of her husband, Sir Robert Juckes Clifton, Bart., as Member of Parliament for the county of Nottingham."

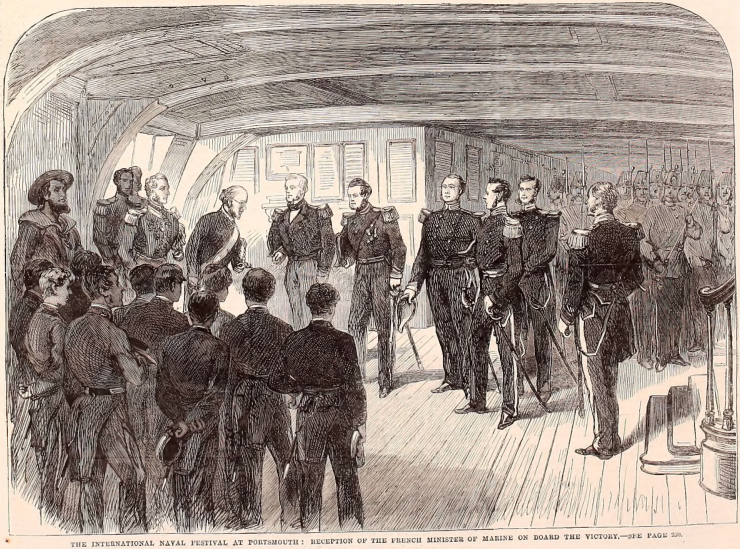
The show of the Manchester and Liverpool Agricultural Society, at Oldham, last week, was a failure. About 600 entries were made, and the receipts amounted to £600, making the total number admitted on the four days 10,000. Last year the entries were 1200, and the receipts between £1700 and £1800. Silver medals and money premiums were awarded in the various classes of sheep departments.

On Wednesday week the Dover regatta came off under auspices of a favourable character. There was a nice breeze from N.N.W., which made the sea rather rough for the small craft engaged in the various races, but it was quite favourable for the large number of visitors that crowded the piers, thronged the windows and balconies of the houses overlooking the harbour, and filled the enclosure in little copies of nearly all the fine old castle and western heights.

A memorial, of which the following is a copy, has been placed over a house in the vicinity of the Mitre and the Old Square in Birmingham:—"Here, in this house, famous Johnson, the great Lexicographer, was born, on the 18th day of September, 1709. Whether he wrote or spoke, his words were words of power, thoughts of ray clothed in language that shone through the 'school with men, it may have been one another.' This stone, by the request of the Birmingham and Midland Institute, 1867, was put up by the members of 'Our Shakspeare Club,' of Birmingham, 1863."

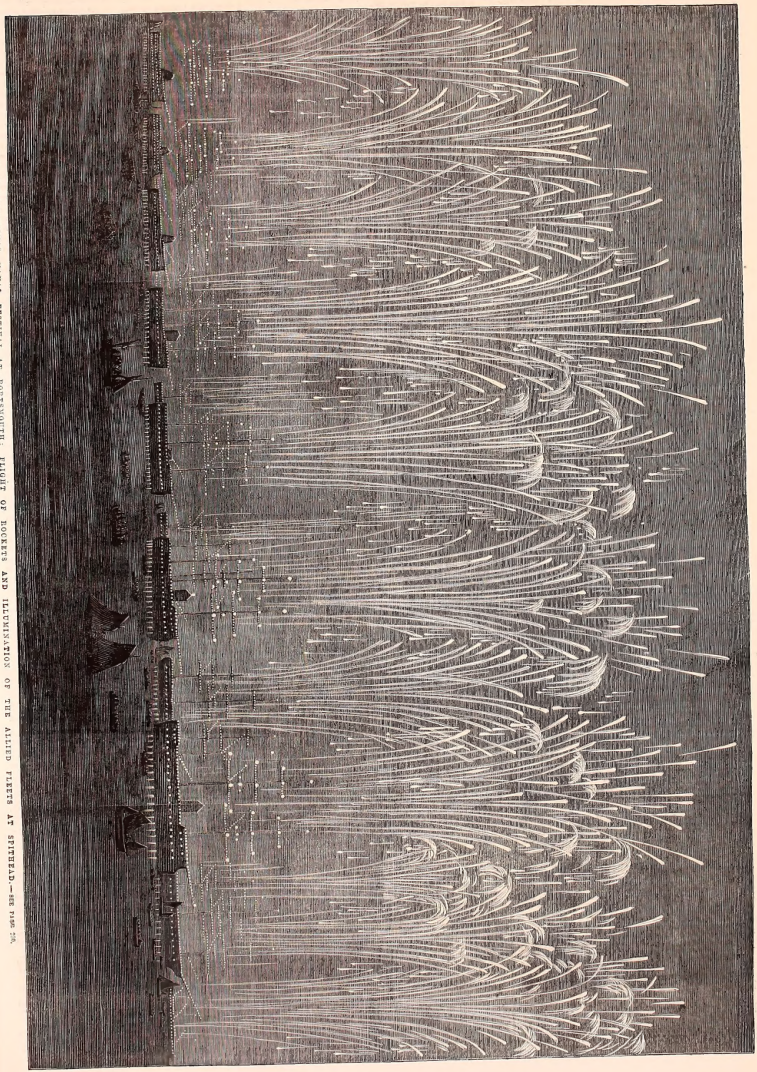
An accomplished young lady—a Punch writer—"At Wakefield, a few days ago, some German gentlemen called at the Vicar's and asked the privilege of seeing the interior of the church. This was granted, and without surprise at a request so unusual. When the compatriots of Goethe and Schiller had finished their examination and had departed, it appears that they had made a pilgrimage, as they believed, to the scene of Oliver Goldsmith's early days, and had been desirous to take a memento by excoriation of Dr. Primrose, Olivia, Sophia, and Moses. May the enthusiastic Germans never be satisfied with their acquisitions!"

The foundation-stone of the new Mechanics' Institution for Leeds was laid, on Wednesday week, by the Mayor Cllr. Alderman Goodman, who is also the president. For some years the necessity of a new building has been acknowledged, and a site was purchased to defray the expenses until the present time. Mr. Broderick, the architect of the Townhall, is the architect for the new institution, which is to be erected on the site of the old Cloth Hall street, opposite the new baths. Its cost is estimated at £20,000, and no more appropriate building could be erected in Leeds to subserve general and the value of the present building. In addition to a large lecture theatre, library, &c., there will be a museum of arts, for which the Council connect with the institution, and for a fine art gallery.



The meeting of the British and Foreign Local Marine Board, on Thursday week, Captain Ryan, of the steam-ship City of Dublin, one of the steam line of packets plying between Dublin and Liverpool, was called in by the Board of Trade, in acknowledgment of his gallant conduct in saving the lives of the crew and passengers of the barque Alexander Henderson, which foundered in the Atlantic in December, 1866. Captain Ryan, in addition to receiving the thanks of the Board, was presented by the Board of Trade with a handsome gold chronometer watch. Major, with several of the committee, proceeded to the castle on Tuesday afternoon, and selected various objects of interest for inspection on the occasion of the forthcoming visit—the 18th inst., by the Bishop of Oxford, who, with the municipal authorities of the borough, will receive the honour of knighthood at the hands of royalty at the town clerk's office, and walk in procession to the hall.

An industrial exhibition was opened on Monday, at St. Matthias's Working Men's Club, Silk-street, Salford. The Mayor of Salford presided, and Mr. Jacob Bright was supported by the Bishop of Manchester, the clergymen of the parish, and a number of ladies and gentlemen. The object of the exhibition is to show the working classes that it is interest, contributed principally by working men. The Bishop of Manchester, in the course of his address, said that the object of the Working Men's Institutes was to bring together the different ranks of society. He was for them taking the initiative in matters which pushed them a little forward as far as possible, the utmost unanimity and concord between different ranks of society. He was for, and he wished to assist, anything that would tend to that end. He wanted to see the working man, as he thought he began to see him in this exhibition, taking the initiative in the matter of the exhibition, and once commission herded a certain portion of Christian and kindly feeling between the higher ranks, and the labouring classes. He was a believer in himself till he saw that communion—till he commanded it by becoming in very way respectable and intelligent.



The Governor of Vancouver Island, in forwarding to the Secretary of State for their blueboole ever compiled in that colony, gives the following as a general summary of the value of the trade:—"Imports, 2,088,420 dols., or £416,278; in 1861; 2,530,242 dols., or £505,967; in 1862; and 3,000,000 dols., or £600,000, in 1863. The exports have increased in the same ratio, but the value of the produce of the colony is not known, as much of the population escape taxation in any form whatever. The merchants and traders pay a tax for trade licenses, which yielded £2,000 in 1863, and a land tax of 1 per cent upon their sales of imports. There is also a property tax of 1 per cent upon the assessed or rental or income value of the estate, which tax produced £3651 in 1863. The tax upon liquor licenses yielded £1,000 more than half the taxation paid by the whole real estate of the colony. Harbour dues produced £1661. The ports are free, both for imports and exports. The population (writes the Governor) are orderly, loyal, and prosperous; poverty is unknown. But the condition of the Indian population is lamentable—drunkenness being a prominent characteristic. In the opinion of the Governor, the climate and natural agricultural capabilities will support 1,000,000 people; and the climate is unexceptionable and wholesome. Coal, timber, and productive metals and other commodities are a great but to progress.

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH: BALL GIVEN BY THE TOWN OF PORTSMOUTH TO THE OFFICERS OF THE FRENCH FLEET.

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH: RECEPTION OF THE FRENCH MINISTER OF MARINE ON BOARD THE VICTORY.—SEE PAGE 236.

THE INTERNATIONAL ROYAL REGATTA AT PORTSMOUTH: FLIGHT OF ROCKETS AND ILLUMINATION OF THE ANCIENT PIERS AT SPITHEAD.—SEE PAGE 234.

BIRTHS.

On the 27th ult., at Greenfield House, Billinge, Lancashire, the wife of Thomas Heald, Esq., of a daughter.

On July 23, at Ealala, Brazil, the wife of Charles W. Comber, Esq., of a son.

On the 24th ult., at Great Malvern, the wife of William Charles Ward-Jackson, Esq., of Greatham Hall, county of Durham, of a daughter.

On the 1st inst., at Trevor House, Norwood, the wife of C. T. Getting, Esq., of a son.

On the 28th of July, at Belsarum, Nizao's Dominions, the wife of Major Geoffrey Nightingall, Commandant 1st Regiment of Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, of a son.

At Nidge Lodge, Campden-hill, Lady Mackenzie, of Gairloch, of a son.

At Great Cumberland-place, Hyde Park, the Hon. Mrs. Millies, of a son.

At Cliff-hill, Stoke-upon-Trent, Lady Shorter, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 29th ult., at St. Mary's, Dublin, by the Rev. J. H. Monahan, assisted by the Rev. B. Gibson, James Blyth, Esq., of 2 Park-crescent, Portland-place, London, to Lizzie, younger daughter of William Gibson, Esq., of Lower Ormond Quay, Dublin.

On the 31st ult., at Christ's Church, Cork, by the Rev. John Connelly, Rector of Christ's Church, the Hon. George Francis Moore, third and youngest son of the Right Hon. the Earl of Mountcashell, to Dorothea, youngest daughter of the late George Mainwaring Dancer, Esq., late of Hill Castle, in the county of Wexford.

On the 31st ult., by special license, at the Protestant Church of St. Paul, Valetta, Malta, by the Venerable Archdeacon Gough, M.A., Chaplain to Government, Malta, George M. De J. Bury, of Bombay, to Alice, widow of John Crowe, of London, and second daughter of the late Gen. Palliser, of Newbury, London.

On the 31st ult., at Christ Church, Reaston Norris, by the Rev. C. B. Jeaffreson, M.A., Rector, assisted by the Rev. Arthur C. Wood, M.A., uncle of the bride, James Watson Spence, Esq., of Manchester, to Sarah Ellen, eldest daughter of George William Bibby, Esq., of Stockport, Co. Cheshire.

On the 19th ult., at the British Consulate, Smyrna, before Robert William Cumberbatch, Esq., H.B.M. Consul, and Inspector of Consulates, Benjamin Boustead, by the Rev. W. D. Lewis, Rector Chopdain, Hingston Harvey, Esq., Lieutenant Royal Navy, to Emily Jane Percy, youngest daughter of the late Charles Wellington, Esq., of Newcastle, Staffordshire.

At St. George's, Hanover-square, W. Willoughby, East of Eimbleithe, to the Hon. Mary Emma Broderick, daughter of Charles, late Viscount Middleton.

At Dublin, Sir W. H. Cope, Bart., of Bramhill, Hants, to Henriette, daughter of R. J. Hoste-ville, Esq., of Vesey Place, Monkstown.

At Pimlico, Captain W. Loring, R.N., C.B., A.D.C. to the Queen, son of the late Admiral Sir J. W. Loring, K.C.B., K.C.H., to Frances Louisa, daughter of J. Adams, of Hollyfield, near Sevenoaks.

At St. George's Church, Hanover-square, the Earl of Listowel to Miss E. M. Frederick Brown, daughter of Lord and Lady Kilmaine.

On Tuesday, at All Souls' Church, Knightsbridge, the Hon. W. Hayward, 7th Dragoon Guards, to Lord Sudeley's daughter, Miss Perry, late of Mr. Schaning's School.

On the 6th inst., at Chilthwell Church, by the Rev. C. W. Underwood, M.A., Rector of Bishop Cannicleigh-cum, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Hall, M.A., Curate of Curtle Castle, Dorset, Stanley, elder son of George Maples, Esq., of Worcester, to Anne Jane, eldest daughter of the late James Kenyon, Esq., of Wavertree, near Liverpool.

DEATHS.

On the 31st ult., at the Clifton Down Hotel, Clifton, I. George Appold, F.R.S., A.C.S., &c., of 21, William-street, Finsbury-square.

On the 31st ult., at Boston-lane, Brentford, W., Mr. Frede. Shill, formerly of Great Pulteney-street, bookseller and printer, aged 66.

On the 2nd of July, at Vizas del Mar, near Valparaiso, to the inexpressible sorrow of his wife and children, Augustus Wheeler Whitehead, Jr., of Bath, Devonshire, aged 61, ten months after the death of his beloved elder son, John Stobart.

On the 1st inst., at his house, 40, Westbourne-park-villas, Bayswater, after two lingual and severe suffering, William Nassau Lettsom, Esq., in his 76th year, formerly of the Island of Nevis, and late of Montserrat, West Indies, and Brooklands, Isford, county of Cyprus Dutton Dutton, Esq.

Colonel Frankett Burton, late of the Coldstream Guards, died, at his house in Grosvenor-gardens, on Sunday, the 3rd inst., from the effects of a fall prior to the Crimea, and from which he suffered intensely with the utmost resignation. From his amiable, generous, and noble disposition he was held in high estimation by every person who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. He was the only son of Admiral Sydney Burton, of Burton Hall, Co. Mon. Rector Burton, youngest daughter of the thirteenth Lord Dunsany. He leaves a widow, an only child, and a host of friends to deplore his loss, and mourn his loss.

On July 23, off the Cape de Verd Islands, on his passage home from Bahia, Brazil, after twenty-two years' service, George Crouch, of Bristol, commander of the ship of Cornelia, aged 45 years.

On the 31st ult., at 14, Marlborough-road, St. John's Wood, Thomas Fergusson, G.C.B., Colonel 43rd Light Infantry, aged 78.

At Brighton, Maria Catherine, relict of J. H. Hamilton, and grandaughter of the late Sir J. Dunlop, of Dunlop, Bart., M.P. for Ayr, N.B.

At Hilton House, Aberdeenshire, Mr. Alexander Gordon, of that ilk, Bart., and Hilton, aged 59.

At Folkestone, Charlotte, wife of the Hon. B. Moreton, Commander R.N., and daughter of the late Sir J. Dunlop, of Dunlop, Bart., M.P. for Ayr, N.B.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

Probate of the will of the Right Hon. Anne Countess Dowager of Shaftesbury, of Rockdale House, Richmond, Surrey, was granted by the Bishop's Court, on the 16th ult., to the Hon. and Rev. Anthony Ashley-Cooper, Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G., and the Hon. Anthony William Ashley-Cooper, the sons, the executors named in the will. The personal estate, sworn under £100,000, is bequeathed to the Countess for life, and a legacy of £100 is bequeathed. The Countess was formerly Lady Anne Spencer, daughter of the fourth Duke of Marlborough, and married in 1811 to Viscount, the late Earl of Shaftesbury, who died in 1851, and has had a large family, his sons and three daughters. Her Ladyship died on the 17th of August last, having executed her will on the 1st of March, 1856, to which two codicils are added, dated 1857 and 1858, respectively, after making provision by way of annuity for two of her servants, leaving also to one of them her wearing apparel, then bequests to be free of legacy duty, and the residue of her property to her son, the present Earl.

The will of William Wild, Esq., of Denmark-hill, and Martin's-lane, Cannon-street, City, was proved in London, under £30,000 personalty. The first testators are William John Wild, Esq., £20,000 to his son and executor the Rev. Robert L. Wild a like sum of £20,000 and the advowson of the rectory of Bramdean, Hants, Esq., to his daughter Emily Rebecca Wild, £10,000; his daughter Rosa, wife of Algernon Silvio Bicknell, £10,000. There are legacies to the testator's brother, a brother-in-law, and to each of his executors and trustees. The residue, real and personal, he leaves to his son William John Wild. The testator expresses it as his wish that his son William should continue to carry on the business of his merchants.

The will of Lionel Jeremiah Oliver, Esq., of Rodney-place, Clifton, Bristol, was proved in the London Court, on the 12th ult., by the executors—namely, Elizabeth Charlotte Oliver, the relict; Richard Llewellin, Esq., the executor, of Westbury-upon-Severn, Gloucestershire, and Rev. Bill Law, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn: the latter are also trustees of the estate and guardians of the children; and he owns effects under the value of £20,000 and no The personalty was sworn under £100,000. The will is dated March 19, 1852, and the testator died on the 1st of July last. He gives to his wife, during her widowhood, which is secured the sum of £10,000 for her support, and the use of his dwelling, for his wife his freehold residence, together with the furniture, plate, books, pictures, &c.; also the annuity of £2000 and an annuity of £1000 a year. There is a legacy of £1000 to his nephew, William Cave Bird, his brother-in-law; also, legacies to five other persons, which are to be paid free of legacy duty. The residue of his property he leaves to be divided equally amongst all his children.

A despatch received from Rome announces the death of Cardinal Gousset, Prince of Musignano.

A great fire broke out, on Tuesday evening, in Stanboul, which destroyed about 2000 houses, mosques, and public buildings.

The Grand Council of Bâle-Campagne has passed a resolution, by a majority of 57 to 19, excluding all Jews from the canton.

So violent a sirocco blew over Toulon last week that thousands of swallows were weather-bound there, waiting for the south winds to cease to cross the Mediterranean.

The Moscow Gazette states that the Siberian plague is making terrific progress in the government of Perm, and in the districts of Ekaterinburg, Irbit, Nerchinsk, Kamenchev, and Shadrinsk.

The Danish navy is to be reorganised. A new iron-clad steamer will shortly be built, and arrangements have been made with several commercial houses at Copenhagen for the sale of six old men-of-war, including the steamer Hertha, the frigate Hoefnuen, and the corvette Najaden.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 16.

SUNDAY, Sept. 10.—Thirteenth Sunday after Trinity. John, Duke of Bedford, murdered, at Moulineux, by the Outlaws, 1435.

MONDAY, 11.—Birth of James II., Prince of Wales, 1688. Death of Sir Isaac Pocklington, 1861.

TUESDAY, 12.—Columbus sails from St. Domingo on his last voyage, 1504. Death of Field Marshal Birchner, 1819; Moon's last quarter, 6h. 57m. a.m.

WEDNESDAY, 13.—Wolfe defeats the French under Montcalm, and loses his life on the Heights of Abraham, Quebec (both commanders slain), 1759. Death of Charles James Fox, the statesman, 1806.

THURSDAY, 14.—Exaltation of the Holy Cross. Death of St. Cyprian, Archbishop and Martyr, 258; of St. John Chrysostom, Archbishop, 407; and of Augustus Puglin, ecclesiastical architect, 1852.

FRIDAY, 15.—Sir Thomas Overbury poisoned in the Tower, 1613. First balloon ascent in England, by Lunardi, 1784.

SATURDAY, 16.—Death of Charles V., the Emperor, 1330; and of Louis XVIII. of France, 1824. Cabul retaken by General George Pollock, 1842.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,

For the Week ending Saturday, September 16, 1865.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
7 25	8 0	8 35	9 10	9 45	10 20	10 55

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 29′ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 45″ W.; Height above the Sea, 14 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER		WIND.		Rain in inches.
	Barometer reduced to 32° Fah.	Temperature of Air.	Dew Point.	Humidity. Saturation = 100.	Amount of Cloud. 0 = Clear. 10 = Cloud.	Maximum Temperature in the Day.	Minimum Temperature in the Night.	General Direction.
Aug.	Inches.	°	°	°	0-10	°	°		Miles.
29	30·288	59·6	49·8	67	3	69·3	50·8	NNW. to NE.	128
30	30·215	59·5	49·2	66	3	71·0	50·0	E. to ENE.	·000
31	30·115	59·7	49·0	65	4	69·5	49·7	WNW. W.	·000
Sept. 1	30·261	57·8	48·1	70	4	68·5	47·6	ENE. to E.	·000
2	30·280	58·1	48·3	69	4	69·0	48·0	E.	·000
3	30·189	59·5	50·9	72	3	70·3	49·6	S. WSW.	·000
4	30·141	60·0	51·2	71	3	70·6	50·5	WSW. to WNW.	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m. :—

Barometer (reduced to 32°)	30·271	30·253	30·158	30·215	30·315	30·313	30·340
Temperature of Air	59·9°	62·9°	60·2°	63·1°	62·9°	63·0°	61·3°
Temperature of Evaporation	54·0°	55·0°	54·0°	55·0°	55·0°	55·0°	54·0°
Direction of Wind	NNW.	W.	WNW.	SSW.	SW.	CALM.	WSW.

THE STATUE TO THE PRINCE CONSORT AT COBURG.

Our Two-page Engraving of the Inauguration of the Prince Consort's Memorial Statue at Coburg, in the presence of Queen Victoria, will be given in this Journal next week.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1865.

As the egg becomes the bird, the grub the butterfly, and the unconscious infant the talker and the toddler, the weekly period of the year, does the bore become the Correspondent. "Now," we can imagine some kind of gardener's almanack hinting to such, "look up grievances, take your minutest Johnson's Dictionary, extract a long one from your own scientific publication, invent, with the aid of your little boy's Latin Delectus, a pregnant signature, and write away to the newspapers." But, indeed, the writing bore needs no hint. He knows well that his grievance is in the utmost chance of escaping the waste-paper basket than a pigeon has of getting away from a professional shooter. He has silently endured the season when there is plenty of matter to fill the long columns. He has patiently replied at the war, the Parliament, the great court-martial, the exhibitions, the operas, the hewy trials; but everything has an end, and the world is for him who knows how to wait. His time has come. Life is now a dead season, and wounds are healing that may live again in another season. The oracles are dumb. Even the critics, with their monster reviews, have ceased to heap a history of creation around a sensation novel. The time has arrived when there are no longer to read, but only two multitudes to write. And now, with his grievance aired, his quotations ready, and his anagrammatical signature prepared to follow his more or less grammatical protocol, the British correspondent sets to, takes the field.

Circumstances over which we have no control, and, for reasons which may appear, would desire none, deprive this Journal of the invaluable volunteer services of the estimable folk who write when nobody asks them to do so. They are blocked out from our columns. We have no space for the ululations of him who has been cheated by a Margate landlady, or the indignation of him who has been bundled. It is useless for him who has been treacherously and wickedly detained two hours at a provincial railway station to point his wrongs into our letter-box; and we are compelled to turn a deaf ear to the roar of him who has been cast into child, though under ten (as the baptismal certificate, duly inclosed, testifies), has been charged for as full grown by a tyrannical captain of an excursion-boat. These sufferers must seek other tribunals; and it is a great comfort to think that in denying them print we do not deny them justice, for other places of appeal are open to them. It is delightful to see how the hearts of those who have to fill huge sheets of paper soften, at this time, over the miseries of mankind. The Caliphs all at the gate in these days, and all petitioners are heard, from him whose house has been taken by a railway to her whose pocket-handkerchief has been stolen by a fellow in the crowd at the sand. Therefore, although we can neither benefit by the seasonable energy of the grievancemonger, nor right his wrongs, we know, and are glad to know, that we do not dismiss his prayer into empty air. Half of it, no Homer says, will certainly be granted. He will be very hardly used indeed; in fact, his bull will be exceptionally bad, if his complaint do not appear in type, so that he may read it to his applauding family at breakfast, distribute six copies of the liberal journal among his friends, and paste a copy of his contribution into the diary of his useful life. If we cannot aid the Correspondent, we can rejoice that he has many kinder and abler friends.

We note, therefore, with joy that he has come out exceedingly strong this splendid autumn. While others subsided into a well-earned state of hof, and owned that, as John Leech's picture said, "the idea of work was perfectly repugnant to one's feelings, and all concerned might make what use they pleased of that communication," the Correspondent has been erect and vigorous at his desk, inditing his story, and even much a more than Correspondent. Some of the world's compositors shall thank him) transcribing fairly the despatch for the charitable journal. We will not speak of those who have contributed their acres of print to add to our confusion touching the cattle disease: for we might seem to scoff at those who have had something to say," and that we would not for a cow, Heaven bless her," to use a quotation which, we believe, has never before been made available. Nor, considering how we have all been grieved by the sad tale from Switzerland, would we smile at the suggestions, made in the best spirit, for the benefit of future mountain-climbers, though some of the counsellors might as reasonably have proposed that a lift, like that in use at the mammoth hotels, should be erected at the foot of Mont Blanc for the convenience of cockneys thirsting for a mingled draught of Bass and "the difficult air of the iced mountain's top." But the Correspondent dear to our hearts has no idea of dealing with subjects for which anybody but himself cares a straw. He is subjective, not objective. He is his own Kosmos. He is the Buddhist of the press, rapt in self-inspiring contemplation of his own navel, he contemplates his wrongs. Perhaps insolent landlords, thieving landladies, extortionate guides, rude steam-captains, coarse guards, and illiterate custom-house officers were created for the special purpose of rousing the Correspondent to energy. Fitzbull, seeking a virulent review of one of his clever dramas, merely remarked, previously, "That is not the way to bring the violets from under the leaves." But correspondents are benefited by the system of rough travelling. Therefore, as the pleasant desire to find good in everything, we cannot be altogether angry with those who indoce him to hold them up to the indignation of the human race. It is sad that the watermen on a certain Belgian canal are evidently in league with exacting and, we fear, intoxicated cabman. It is to be lamented that the pew-opener was so rude to a stranger in search of a sermon, and whose own church was shut up for repairs. It is melancholy that the driver of the river-side hansom charged a shilling for seltzer-water, and that this, indeed, was nothing but common soda-water; and our nature revolts at the description of the cabman who "went out of his own way" to tell the story of the brutal boatman at Brighton, who would not fetch the children off the rocks until their terrified parent had paid him eighteen-pence? What words are strong enough to express our horror at the person who stands by and looks on at stripping a miserable tree of some dozen boughs? The policeman who doubted the entire respectability of the Correspondent who was "roughly advised to be off home," at one in the morning, shouldn't be hard upon. The waiter visiting her relations, ought, no doubt, to be dismissed from the force. The Curator at Hampton Court, who pounced on the cook's parasol as if it had been a blunderbuss should have been made food for the gold fishes in the basin. And shall we say to the magistrate who snubbed the paterfamilias who went up with the story of the favourite cat, wickedly poisoned? All these offenders merit condign punishment: yet we half forgive him whom we reflect that, unconsciously, they did good in ministering topics for the autumnal Correspondent.

THE COURT.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Lady Churchill, drove out on Thursday morning in Windsor Park. In the evening Princess Louise, Prince Arthur, and Prince Leopold honoured the performance of Mr. Charles Kemble's "Faust and Marguerite" at the opera at Coburg.

Yesterday week Princess Helena, attended by Lady Churchill, dined with the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg at the Kalleaberg.

On Saturday the Duke and Duchess of Coburg and Princess Alfred entertained Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, left Coburg on route for England.

On Sunday the Duke and Duchess of Coburg, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa attended Divine service at the parish church of Coburg.

The Queen, accompanied by the members of the Royal family, has taken daily drives in the neighbourhood of the Isle of Wight.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg, Prince Alfred, Prince Leopold, Prince Louis of Saxe-Coburg, Count Mensdorff Pouilly, and Prince Lowenstein, have dined with the Queen, at the Rosenau. Count Alexander Mensdorff has visited her Majesty.

The Prince of Wales has been on a shooting excursion with the Duke of Saxe-Coburg.

RETURN OF THE QUEEN FROM GERMANY.

The Queen, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and the junior members of the Royal family, and attended by the ladies and gentlemen of her suite, left the Rosenau, Coburg, on Friday afternoon for Darmstadt, where she arrived on Wednesday evening. Her Majesty passed the day in retirement, and left in the evening for Ostend. The Queen, accompanied by the Royal family and attended by a portion of her suite, visited the King of the Belgians. Her Majesty, after passing the usual agreeable memorials, left Ostend for Antwerp. The Queen was to embark at this port on board the Royal yacht on Thursday, and to land at Gravesend. Another visit forwardable, her Majesty would arrive at Woolwich yesterday (Friday) morning, and disembark at the Royal Arsenal Pier. The Queen would travel thence by special train to Windsor.

The Queen will hold a council at Windsor Castle on Monday next.

The Queen, accompanied by the members of the Royal family, will leave Windsor Castle on Tuesday evening next, en route for Scotland.

His Highness Prince Schwarzenberg has returned to Claridge's Hotel from visiting his Grace the Duke of Bedford at Woburn.

His Excellency the Turkish Ambassador gave a grand dinner at the Turkish Embassy, in Bryanston-square, on Thursday week, to his Excellency Lord Lyons, who is about to proceed to Constantinople as successor to Sir Henry Bulwer as British Ambassador.

The Duke and Duchess of Somerset left the Admiralty, on Tuesday last, for Bolsover Park, Derbyshire.

The Duchess (Dowager) of Sutherland has arrived at Stafford House, St. James's, from Paris.

The Duke of Hamilton has left his mansion in Arlington-street, Piccadilly, for Hamilton Palace, N.B.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Bath have left their residence in Belgrave-square for Longleat Park, Wilts.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde have left town on a tour of visits through Scotland.

The Earl and Countess of Dalkeith have arrived at Langholme Lodge, Jedforest-shire, from Its Bath Palace.

Earl Brownlow and Lady Marian Alford intend to pass the autumnal season at Ashridge.

Viscountess Downger Combermere is staying at Kemp Town, Brighton.

The Hon. Sir Charles and Lady Phipps and family arrived at Balmoral, on Saturday last, preparatory to the arrival of the Queen.

The Hon. Rev. Edward Cockwell, M.P., arrived in town, on Monday, from his seat in Lancashire.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Marquis of Westminster has subscribed £2000 towards the building of a new church for the parish of St. James', Sussex.

Mr. J. Martin, late M.P. for Tewkesbury, has given 500 guineas towards the restoration of the abbey church in that town.

The foundation-stone of a new church has been laid at Stanford, by Sir Stephen Glynne, in the presence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer and a distinguished company.

The Rev. G. B. Blenkin, Vicar of Boston, has declined the more valuable living of Bellsbury, offered to him by the bishop of Lincoln, greatly to the delight of his parishioners, who crossed the bells to ring a merry peal on the announcement.

All Saints' Church, Brondway, Westminster, is undergoing a thorough cleansing, and some polychromatic decoration, under the direction of Mr. John P. Seddon, architect. It is also in contemplation to raise a subscription for the completion of the tower and the erection of a spire.

The niches in the south porch of Canterbury Cathedral are being filled with statues by Mr. Philip Hardwick, a selection from which have been laid down by the Dean. Most of the statues (costing £24 each) have been presented. They are executed in Caen stone, and are to be treated with some hardening process.

The Bishop of Rochester intends to hold his Primary Ordination on Sunday, the 19th of December. The ensuing Christmas ordination by the Bishop of London will be held in Advent Ember week, on Saturday, the 18th of December; the candidates assembling for examination at Caddesdon Palace on the preceding Sunday, the 12th.

Neath Abbey Church, which has been closed for some time whilst undergoing extensive alterations, was re-opened on Thursday week. Through the assistance of Lord Eyrewre, Mr. Hornell Cory, and other landed proprietors, the debt has been reduced to £1000, which, now consists of a centre aisle with one on each side, and a chancel.

The Wigan Church Choral Association held its first festival on Thursday week, when the choice of sacred music comprised the services composed in All Saints' Church in that town, previous to which early communion was celebrated in the parish church, at which the communicants were devotionally assisted by the choir. The morning service was intoned by the Rev. T. L. Claughton, Rector of Ridderminster; and that in the evening by the Rev. C. Woodhouse, Vicar of Wigan. In the afternoon, before a district choral festival was held in the parish church of Leigton, in anticipation of a general festival to be held in connection with the Wigan Church Choral Association on the 13th inst. The voices numbered nearly 200, and the church was crowded in both services. The Rev. J. Rigby, incumbent of the association, was the conductor.

The following preferments and appointments have recently been made:—The Rev. G. H. Hamilton, Vicar of Berwick, to be Archdeacon of Lindisfarne. The Rev. A. M. Heywood, Rector of Ringmore, to be Rural Dean of Rodenbell; Rev. T. Chevallier to be Canon in Durham Cathedral; Rev. C. Kennaway to Minor Canon in Bristol Cathedral; Rev. J. Rice to be Rector of Sampford Brett; Rev. H. J. Clements to be Vicar of Sidmouth; Rev. C. E. Searle, late Principal of the Training College, Battersea, to be Incumbent of Trinity Church, Islington; Rev. F. G. Pegus to be Incumbent of St. Mary's, Whitechapel; Rev. J. Hall to be Vicar of Bishop Wearmouth; Rev. J. Cameron, Coldstock; Rev. C. Bullock, Thrandeston; Rev. J. Hall to be Incumbent of Holy Trinity, Tottenham; Rev. W. Hodson, Rural Dean, cumbent of the Bishop-Wearmouth district of Southwick; Rev. J. Hall, Perpetual Curate of St. Ann, Coegwaderly; Rev. W. Cullis to be Curate of Bishopton; Rev. R. Mayhill to be Curate of Sedgefield.

The committee of the Bishop of London's Fund have made a report of their proceedings to July 1, 1858. The committee have to extract the following items:—Grants made for 113 clergy per annum, £11,655; fifty-two Scripture readers, £1,040; contingent and other women, £440; total annual charge for agents, £13,135. In addition we find sixty-one building grants, £4,000; twenty-two grants for parsonage boards of education, also for schools, £1000; thirty-seven mission-stations, schools without or temporary churches, £1,052; endowment of two districts, £1000; thirty-four churches, £36,328; twenty-eight sites for churches, schools, endowment, parsonages, £7,000; total of building grants, £50,328. In the summary of receipts and expenditure we believe that the receipts during the year have been £21,000, and the expenditure £20,000. The total permanent endowment is now £317,000, equivalent to a permanent paid from the fund for grants, £16,585; total, £17,500. It thus appears that the future operations of the fund are limited to a capital upon the £300,000 promised but not received, and on new subscriptions.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—Some important changes have recently been made in the statutes of the University of Dublin, with a view to the extension and improvement of its examinations. Under the new regulations, which will come into operation at Michaelmas next, the period of residence will be extended to seven years, as at Oxford and Cambridge, as heretofore; and students in arts, on passing the responsible examinations, will be entitled to the degree of Bachelor of Arts at the expiration of that term. In the school of physical sciences which has now been established lectures will be provided in chemistry, natural philosophy, and other kindred subjects. Various new examinations and scholarships have been provided, which, we trust, will be duly appreciated by the students as a means of positive examination. No religious test or subscription will be required on matriculation, nor for degrees, scholarships, exhibitions, or prizes.

The time for the Cambridge examinations for girls, beginning on Monday, Dec. 13—and for boys, beginning on Monday, December 20—is now fixed, so that it will not be inadvisable to conduct the examinations at every place where there is to be an examination for boys, but requests to have the examination according to the regular time; and those who wish to have the examination from places where there is no examination for boys once twenty-five feet above the level of the sea. Before any place can be examined, however, it is required, the 9th minute must be satisfied as to the following points:—1. That there is a number of ladies who will undertake the duties of the local committee. 2. That this committee will see that suitable accommodation will be provided for the candidates who are examined in a place. 3. That a responsible person will be found to receive the examination papers from the local examiner and to return them to Cambridge. 4. That a room will be provided for suitable and convenient from that of boys. The subjects of examination are English grammar, geography, arithmetic, history, religious knowledge, writing, and music. Every candidate will be required to pay a fee of 20s.

Lord Derby is presided, on Wednesday week, at the distribution of prizes at the Camden Grammar School, when an address of congratulation was presented to the Rev. E. Payne (late Head Master, and now Principal of the exhibition to Pembroke College) on his appointment to the Regius Professorship of Greek at Oxford.

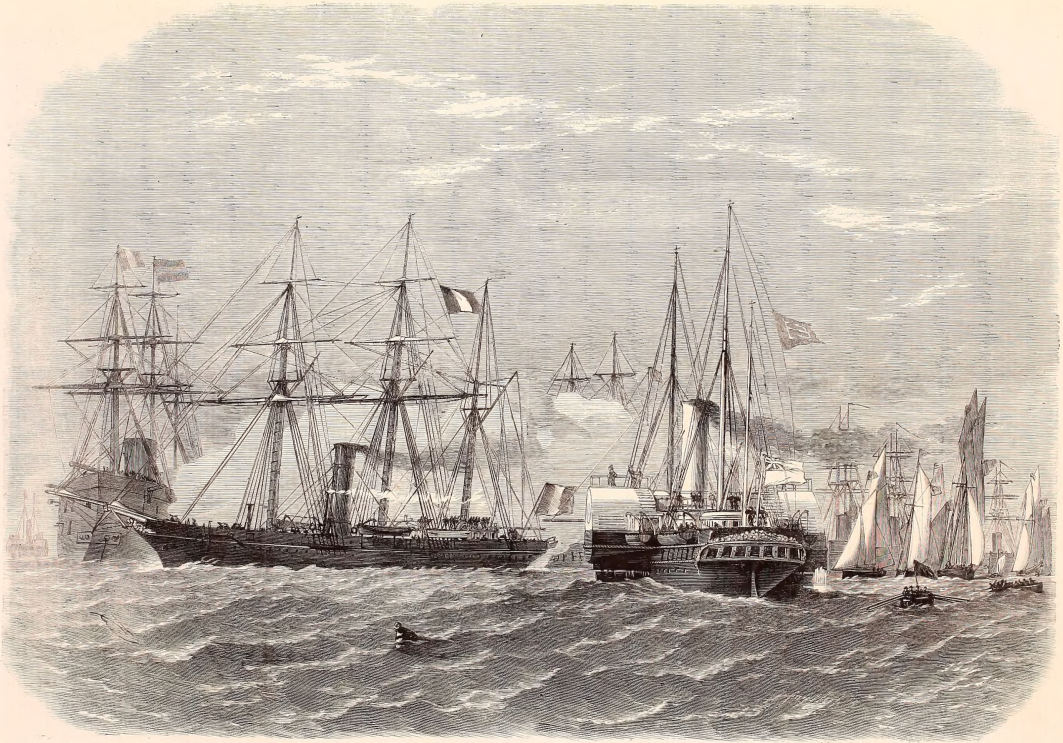
The Court of Common Council propose to give Dr. Mortimer, late Master of the City of London School, a pension of £200 a year.

The official chart of the movements of the Great Eastern while trying to lay the Atlantic telegraph cable, which has been published last week, was prepared by Staff-Commander H. A. Mortimer, R.N., who was nominated to the post by Captain Hamilton. Extracts from the log of the able and experienced naval officer charged with the duty of taking the soundings while paying out the cable will be published in a few days.

Professor Agassiz has gone, at the invitation of the Emperor of Brazil, on a scientific expedition to the interior, and will visit the Cordilleras of the Peruvian Andes. The expenses of his assistants, who are to accompany the Professor, are to be defrayed by Nathan Crowe, of Boston.

Mr. R. H. Allnutt, writing to the Times on the 4th inst., states that that day had been marked as a period of great deficiency of rain. The gasometers, corrected for light and moisture, have risen barely half a degree from zero. A positive demonstration, therefore, of sobriety has not shown, but we are passing through a very negative period of ozone.

Captain Cameron, the British Consul at Mamoowah, who has long been the prisoner of the sable despot who rules in Abyssinia, has at length set at liberty. Captain Cameron was captured in 1854, and was threatened with death on the plea that he was responsible for an insult which the Frenchmen fancied he had received from our Government. Nothing is said as to the fate of his fellow-prisoners.



METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The council of the Institute of Civil Engineers have awarded a Telford medal and a Telford premium, in books, to Mr. J. W. Bazalgette, for his paper "On the Metropolitan System of Drainage and the Interception of Sewage from the River Thames."

Mr. Thomas Farncomb Gibson, who has been elected the senior Sheriff of London and Middlesex for the year 1858-9, has served the office of Under-Sheriff, by the side of Sheriff Dakin, Gantry, for eighteen years, to his Under-Sheriff, Mr. Higgins, the junior Sheriff, has appointed Mr. Alfred Newman, Mr. Harry Rawlins, of Gunnersbury, Mr. Thomas Bowyer Sherriff, and the Rev. James Jackson, Vicar of St. Sepulchre's, Snow-hill, to be his Chaplain. The Rev. Mr. Jackson is a native of Guildford, on the 29th inst.

There was a special Court of Common Council held on Tuesday (the Lord Mayor presiding), at which a report from the markets committee recommending the contribution of £100 from the funds of the Corporation to the fund now being raised for the relief of the poor of Calcutta and Delhi the plague now prevailing. After a lengthened discussion on the subject, the report was received and ordered to be printed. It is our duty to say, in no single instance had the disease made its appearance in the City snowheds.—The entire gallery has been broken out at Highgate, and is having extended to it the herds in that neighbourhood, some of the bayonets having lost as many as 6 dozen animals.

During the session 1857-8, at the Architectural Museum, South Kensington Museum, we have, whether members of the Architectural Museum or not, will be invited to compete in a variety of subjects for some valuable prizes. Among the subjects are "Sketches of the Holy Sepulchre at Christ," from Ziemann's illustration of Dante; "soul carving, at "coppy," by the Rev. Sydney Smith; "Sketch of the Statue of Cromwell," in marble or bronze; "Sketch of the Statue of Cromwell," in marble or bronze; "Sketch of the Statue of Cromwell," in marble or bronze

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH: THE MEETING OF THE REINE HORTENSE AND THE OSBORNE.—SEE PAGE 230

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH: THE FRENCH MINISTER OF MARINE RECEIVING A VISIT AT SEA FROM THE PRINCE OF WALES ON BOARD H.M.S. "ROYAL ALBERT"—SEE PAGE 238

MEETING OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE.

THE proceedings in connection with this meeting of the association at Birmingham began on Wednesday.

A meeting of the general committee was held, at one o'clock, at the Midland Institution—Sir Charles Lyell in the chair. A great deal of routine business, such as the reading of financial and other reports of the general treasurer of vice-presidents and secretaries of sections, was transacted. The receipts for the year amounted to the sum of £3831, and the expenditure leaves an available balance of £759 in the hands of the treasurer.

At the close of the formal proceedings, a lengthened discussion took place on a motion, made by Dr. Farr and seconded by Sir E. Belcher, to the effect that a separate section be formed, entitled H, to be devoted solely to the subject of anthropology. Dr Beke(ch) Mochisson strongly opposed the proposition, on the ground that a further multiplication of the sections would render the meetings unworkable. Similar claims might be put in on behalf of the votaries of other special branches of science, and the present three were forty towns that could provide accommodation even for their present number of simultaneous meetings. He recommended that the proposition do follow the precedent of the Royal Agricultural Society and found a separate association for the cultivation of their favourite science. Dr. Hunt's motion was ultimately negatived, as was also two others having a similar object.

The first general meeting was held in the Townhall in the evening, when Sir Charles Lyell, Bart., formally resigned the chair, and Professor Phillips announced the presidency. The attendance was as large and fashionable as in former years.

The president delivered the inaugural address, of which the following is a summary :—

THE OPENING ADDRESS.

Assembled for the third time in the busy centre of industrious England, amid the roar of engines and the clang of hammers, where the strongest powers of nature are used to work in the forge of man, we may almost fancy that we hear the secret of science, the friend of that art and the guide of that power, whispering to us that we are not here by chance. Whether we look around the standard which they carried so far into the fields of knowledge. And when, on other occasions, we meet in quiet cities and learned halls, how gladly welcome is the union of fresh discoveries and new inventions with the old and venerable truths which are the inheritance of past ages. Long may such unions last—the fair alliance of cultivated thought and practical skill! In Ireland it hitherto is dignified and serious. The foundation of human society existed. Through the happy union of science and art, the young life of the British people has been illustrated by discoveries and enriched by useful inventions in a degree never surpassed. What else could we have gained from the mines but the ore of nature which has added to the working strength of a thousand millions of men? What else could we have gained from the sea but the means of the primeval forests have lessened elemental violence to the power of man and brought under the control of the human finger, and converted into a new sense of man's gradual thought, the dangerous mystery of the lightning?

ASTRONOMY.

Few of the great branches of the study of nature on which modern philosophy is founded are left unconsidered in the address of the day. Astronomy was, or indeed could be, made the subject of accurate experiment. The precious metals were of exact remembrance, and the balance of the goldsmith, the mirror, and mirror—are of very modern date. If, instead of the few lenses and mirrors of which we can now boast, we had those in Greek and Roman days, even the first Galileans or the smallest Newtonian telescope in the hands of Hipparchus or Ptolemy, what would not have been the advance of astronomical science! We are still struggling with the difficulties which have been overcome with impatience till another quarter of a century shall have rolled away and place us in the more good chance of seeing the planets as they are from by the transit of Venus in 1874. Had such instruments as Herschel's, of the meagre lens formerly, would it have been possible for him to have made his own spectrum an experimental proof of the velocity of light, and, within a trace of it, to determine the ratio of its movement to that of the great planetary space of millions and thousands of millions of miles more exactly than had been inferred by astronomers from the observed motions of the moons of Jupiter? By this experiment the velocity of light appears to be less, usually, than it is by the observations of Bradley and Struve, and of Arago and Foucault. Of a very interesting nature is the long train of observations which have calculated rule of light movement was too great, so now, by employing the more exact rule and by some improvements in the data, the estimate of the distance of Jupiter and all the other planets from the sun. We have, in fact, a really interesting example of planetary space. In the Copernican and Keplerian of the paradise of Mars in requiring a considerable reduction of the ancient dimensions of the planetary orbits. Even the old Earth, the mother the sun must be reduced from above ninety-five to less than ninety-three millions of miles. Owing to the scale the other planets must be reduced in system, except the diameter of the Earth and the distance and diameter of the moon, in the same proportion.

The moon is the best object which we can study from the Earth, and has not great diminution by the absorption action of the atmosphere; but the wants of lunar theory, the more of our planet likewise must be known, or at least prevented, or rather lessened, by this same atmosphere. Many transparent bodies similar freely heat-rays derived from the sun. Very frequently, too, we step the rays which emanate from bodies only slightly warmed. The atmosphere possesses the power in a remarkable degree. It is due to the presence of diffused water and vapour, a fact which Dr. Tyndall has placed in the clear light of magnetic and varied experiment. The transmission of light forth to the history of the Earth and of the other planets is obvious. The diminished temperature of the warm climbing to the Alps or the Andes, the successive quantity of vapour dissolved, and water suspended in the air, the winds of the ocean and the land, the rain and the snow, the dew and the frost, the lower parts of the atmosphere would present a vastly more complex and more equalised; the general conditions more like what has been supposed to be the state of the moon, and air during the greater portion of its vast measure.

Such an augmentation of watery constituents in the atmosphere would be a natural consequence of that greater flow of heat from the interior which, by many geological considerations, and chemical, is supposed to have prevailed in the earlier periods of the history of the Earth.

By the same considerations we may understand how the planet Mars, which receives not half so much heat from the Sun as the Earth does, may yet enjoy—as, in fact, it appears to enjoy—nearly a mean heat, by more bitterly cold, or in one or the other of its poles, and spreading over large portions of its surface the vapour which is raised from the seas of the south. Its equatorial land of ice-fog, or dewy mists and rains, and its more than snow-mass bright enough and large enough to catch the eye of the observer. Mars, then, is probably inhabited, and we may say, with more reason than inquiry, reason to pause before refusing the probability of any life to Jupiter, and even more distant planets.

The history of suns and planets is, in truth, the history of the effects of light and heat upon matter. Each form or emanating from the Sun, or from the universe escapes their influence; no part of space is too distant to be penetrated by their energy; no kind of matter is too dense to be permeated by energy. Many if not all the special forces which act in the particles of matter are thus communicable into the general forces which act in the mass of matter and particularly is converted into proportionate measures of special forces. The mechanical equivalent of heat, as it is called, is a discovery of the same kind as the discoveries of Jacobi, Jacobi, and Green and Gauss, and of the theorems of Rankine, it has been attempted by Mayer, Waterston, and Thomson to ascertain the law for the maintenance of the solar system, and of the sun in the agencies of showers of aerolites and small masses of matter, and the calculation of their motion on the surface of the sun. Besides the calculations of the same order, depending on the rate of radiation of lost into space, the pace calculated by Mr. Stokes and the future discoveries of Mr. Waterston, expressed in thousands or millions of centuries. In the manner the physical changes on the Sun's disc, by which the sun's heat is kept up, and the solar system vivify through the luminous photosphere, have been connected with the magnetic disturbances of our own and other planets. Of the connection of the magnetic disturbances on the surface of the Earth, Colonel Sabine has made magnetic detections concurring in periods of maxima and minima of ten or eleven years' duration. These were first observed by Schwabe, and one of that amazing system of periodical variation which Sabine and his fellow-labourers, Brialia, Francis, Norman, Rossian, and others have established by contemporaneous observation over a large part of the globe.

What encouragement there is to with the solar system from the distant stars, and shook through the depths of space to fall upon the Earth after zero, is a question which we may ask, but not answer. The velocity of the motion of light, and so on, are the elementary data which have greatly influenced the refraction of the ray. Spectral analysis—that new and powerful instrument of physical research, for which we are indebted to Kirchhoff—has been taught by our contemporary, to scrutinise not only planets not stars, but even to view the constitution of the nebulæ, those mysterious masses out of which it has been thought new suns and planets might be evolved—arousing feathers of the stars. For a time, indeed, the resolution of some nebulæ, by the giant mirror of Lord Rosse, afforded ground for opposing the speculation to Herschel and the record that the nebulæ are not resolvable into stars, but up-point the admission of the existence of thin gaseous expansions, with or without nuclei, consisting of incipient condensation, with or without mark of internal movement. The latest results, however, of spectral analysis of stars and nebulæ by Mr. Huggins and Professor W. A. Miller have fairly restored the balance. The nebulæ are, indeed, found to have in some instances stellar points, but they are not stars. The whole resembles an enormous mass of luminous gas, with an interrupted spectrum of three lines, probably agreeing with nitrogen, hydrogen, and a substance at present unknown. Stars tested by the same accurate bands are found to have a constitution like that of our own Sun, and, like it, to show the presence of several terrestrial elements, as sodium, magnesium, iron, and very often hydrogen. While in the Moon and Venus no lines whatever are found due to an atmosphere, in Jupiter and Saturn, besides the lines which are identical with some produced in our own atmosphere, there is one in the red, which may be caused by the presence of some unknown vapour. Mars is still more peculiar, and strongly is calculated to circumstance the action of his redness being due to a peculiarity of the Sun.

The old researches into the condition of celestial bodies the new powers of Kirchhoff, Huggins, Miller, Stokes, Ingrams, and Tyndall, have been employed by Rev. A. Draper, Dr. La Rue, and other astronomers. To our countrymen, in particular, belongs the honour of the application of photography to the purposes of science which is the most remarkable of the day's meeting an eclipse, as well as of valuable contributions through the same agency to our knowledge of the sun. Another important aspect of the inquiry into the sun's condition has arisen to promote. By another application of the same beautiful art, in connection with the spectroscope, Professor Secchi, of Rome, Father Sun and direction, the variations of temperature, the fluctuations of atmospheric pressure, the direction of the wind, the force of the hurricane in the air, are registered in our observatories; and thus the inventions of Ronalds and his successors, and the discoveries of Dove, Piddington, and other contemporaneous phenomena at the same order over large parts of the globe—the commencement of a new era in meteorology.

METEOROLOGY.

As we moved above the earth the temperature, and magnetic force decrease, the velocity of wind augments, and the proportion of oxygen and nitrogen remains the same. The decrease of heat as we rise into the air is not equivalent of inquiry; nor have the views respecting it been very limited or very accordant. Leslie considered it unnecessary in relation to pressure; Humboldt gave the result of a large inquiry at points on the earth's surface engaging the attention of the ancient Peruvians. Mr. Glaisher, in Greenwich, during many balloon ascents to the zones of life-destroying cold, far above our highest mountains, has found the decrease of heat to be very much as it is known to be in the lower strata of the atmosphere. The result is to show much more rapid decrease near the earth, much slower decrease at the greater heights, and a general approximation to the new of Leslie and Humboldt. Connected with the determinations of Humboldt, which do not refer to the free atmospheric ocean, but to the mere bottom of it, is the question the cause of the decrease thereby.

The proportion of carbonic acid gas in the atmosphere at great heights is not yet ascertained; it is not likely to be the same as that generally found near the earth's surface. The proportion of aqueous vapour in the upper regions it is exempt from the influence of the actions and reactions which are constantly going on at the earth's surface, and is probably constantly somewhat over saturation.

Other information bearing on the constitution of the atmosphere comes to us from the observations of the temperature of springs in deep mines and wells. For some of these objects not only appear at heights of ten, fifty, and a hundred or more feet above the sea, but also at depths. It is also to be on record that shooting stars or fireballs have left warning trains of light. These cloud-like appearances have been considered as indications of the elevated and attenuated atmosphere.

Remarkable as have been the new or enriched meteorology since our early friend Professor J. Forbes printed his suggestive reports on that subject, and the great laws which have been established, there is yet much to be done. At this moment in M. Leverrier's observatory in Paris, and in the office so long presided over by Admiral Fitzroy, the storms which are passing over Europe from all points of the compass are being watched with the view generally for reasonable expectation of the next probable change. Hardly now within the area of Europe can a storm pass over the land or the sea without warning signal is raised in our seaports, to restrain the too confident sailor. The gentle spirit which organised this humane system of storm-warning has passed away, leaving an example of unselfish devotion in a work which needed but little encouragement from the Board of Trade, the Admiralty, the Royal Society, or the Government. We must extend these researches and arrange them in the form of a system, by the establishment of observers of the world together. Soon may that thread of communication unite the two great nations of the world, and the electric telegraph, which now girds the north Atlantic the happy and mutual congratulations for peace restored and friendship for ever.

CHEMISTRY.

By the labours of Lavoisier and his contemporaries chemistry acquired a fixed logic and an accurate nomenclature. Dalton and the great physicists of the early part of this century gave it a theory. It is now in possession of a most extensive system of philosophy which, in chemistry what the law of gravitation is for celestial mechanics. A great example of the application of the atomic theory is to be found in the doctrine of isomorphism, isomeric, isomorphous bodies. For them it came gradually to appear that physical properties depended on chemical, and that, therefore, they in certain directions, and exhibited definite physical effects, if the chemical elements were in definite proportions, and had a definite arrangement, and aggregated into similar crystals. Some years later some was discovered by Mitscherlich, and others, that bodies of the same chemical composition in crystallising among phosphate chemicals the inquiry as to the relative structure of the molecules of bodies. Such was the effect of the discovery of isomerism—a term which had been expressed by Dalton in diagrams of atoms, and which was now used by Berzelius to express bodies of the same Everything connected with the chemical history of the earth is of this branch of study that the spinners now current regarding meta-xylolum of which is pin, and which is found in coal-tar naphtha. Kekulé has given the current and general account what at present they do not possess. Crystals, of various descriptions, have been found in meteorites, in Siberia, Italy, or, at their action on the rays of light, the waves of heat and sound, and the electric current. Of the last of these properties the most remarkable is that discovered by Faraday, the magnetic rotation of the plane of polarisation of the crystallographical theory, and to the artificial production of crystals; and in another part of the address Johnston points to the connection between crystallisation; and for many years, at almost every meeting, new and important discoveries in this field of science. Of late years, the researches of Bunsen, and compared with the undulatory theory by Herschel, M'Cullagh, Lloyd, Rudberg, Stokes, Miller, Brewster, and Swan.

Within our association-period both the nomenclature of chemistry and the theory of its science have undergone important changes. Gerhardt has, in addition to its ordinary expression as the mere general language and proper nomenclature of chemistry, given to it a philosophical character. Also, the theory of compound radicals, as these views of Liebig, Dumas, and Laurent, and the theory of types, as those of Gerhardt, Williamson, and Odling, have been developed by Kekulé, Wurtz, and others, with the purpose in hand treated as single elements of combination. The nomenclature which attempts to express the relations to one another of bodies very commonplace even in languages more easily capable of polysyllabic combinations than our own. The new nomenclature which has been adopted in chemistry—are no more embarrassed in the expression of these new ideas than are the mathematicians in the language which also has to express abstract complexity on quantities more various and more variable. The study of these new combinations and views has been greatly assisted by the new symbols and complex substances which appear to the result of chemical transformations. Of the latter class of facts, the most remarkable are those which have been recognised by Wurtz in the products of the processes of every moment producing the ammonia, the ethers, the steps of the processes are every moment producing the same order of facts, and the new substances which are produced by the new classes and structures are yielded by one circulating fluid; and the result is a new and most important chemical industry, which may have a great influence on the health of mankind than essential to the progress of scientific agriculture.

GEOLOGY.

In our own days, within our own memories, the very foundations of the science of strata, deposited in the beginning of time, have been explored by a living Geological Survey, as it were, of the whole land. The most complicated parts of the structure have been minutely examined by our Lyell, Jukes, and Ramsay, and the Geological Survey of Ireland. A series of inhabitants which received in primeval times the gift of life, and filled the land and the sea with their numbers, have been investigated in every quarter of the globe, before to the fulness of time it pleased the Giver of all Good to send forth the creature which was to be the image of Himself.

Of the great geological questions which have been under the ever-changing surface of the earth, revealing to us the height of the land, the depth of the sea, the course of the rivers, the growth and the decay of the forest, the system of life and death—yea, the growth, decay, and death of nations, and the mighty changes which have been in the distribution of plants and animals, in one word, before on mankinds now raised into monuments of human intelligence and power.

Had that series a beginning? Was the earth ever uninhabited after it became a habitable world? Are there limits and terms to the life of the globe, over a period since land and sea were separated—a period which we can only call by the name of time? Such are the questions which have been asked by the geologist, and which he has endeavoured to answer. The first fact that in the newest deposits of the most ancient sea, in the stratified crust of the earth, and the sedimentary rocks, there is found the most ancient remains of water, now in part so changed as to appear like the products of fire, but which, when examined by the microscope, will be found to contain the fossil remains of animals and plants, even those of animals and plants, even those of animals and plants, even those Society, setting in concert, have been latent. First, we had reports on the mathematical theory and experimental researches of magnetism by Christie, 1827; Wheweil, 1833; and Sabine, 1837; afterwards, a magnetic survey of the British Islands; then the establishment of a complete observatory at Dublin, with newly arranged instruments, by Dr. Lloyd, in 1843. On all this patient experience we founded a memorial to her Majesty's Government, made a great part of the cost from our funds, and obtained the establishment of the observatory at Kew, associated to Birmingham, in 1859, a report of progress, signed by Sir John Herschel and myself, at that time long great the labour, how inestimable the fruits! Rain-gauges to the magnetic pole of the south; Antarctic and Russia re-operate with our observers at Kew, Toronto, and St. Helena; and General Sabine, by combining all these results, has given to the world a far-reaching results established of which no man dreamed—laws of harmonious variation affecting the magnetic elements of the globe, to definite relation to the earth's movement, the position of the sun and moon, the distribution of temperature, and the alteration in latitude of the globe.

Our efforts have not been fruitless, whether, with Mr. Mallet, we make experiments on artificial earth shocks at Spezzia, or, with Mr. Oldham, record Vesuvius, or tabulate the records of earthquakes since the beginning of history; or establish the Kew Observatory, a scientific workshop where new instruments of research are made, and proved, and set to work; or dredge the sea with Forbes, and Bradley, and Jeffreys; or explore the sea with Siemens; or investigate electricity with Harris, Ronalds, Thomson, and Jenkin; or, with Airy, Adams, and Challis, calculate the orbits of the planets, and the heavens and circumference, our attempt to gain knowledge has brought back new facts and new laws of phenomena, or better instruments for attaining, or better methods for interpreting them. Even this was not enough. Science is practical art, and apply scientific methods to test a great process of manufacture, we do not fail of success; whether we seek to aid the natural exercise the laborious cultivators of science and the scientific employers of labour.

The same work is ever before us, the same prudence is always necessary, the same zeal is always ready. Many of the results of our investigations in reflecting on the many occasions when the Royal Society has been called upon to advise the Government, and to report on the various questions submitted by our executive officers. And therefore we have been most attentive first for this one wishes might not always have proved so, that the interest of science would not have been so clear as now, that for many years, indeed, societies formed on our model have taken up special parts of our work, and time to some extent have relieved us of our responsibility in communication relating to the practice of particular professions and the progress of some public questions. Not that scientific appliances to agriculture, and to physiology are registered in our meetings, but that these not other practical subjects are found to have more than a temporary interest for the general mode of treatment. With us, facts well entertained, conclusions rightly drawn, are sure to welcome, from whatever quarter the investigation comes they may make their appearance. Whatever societies cultivate these objects, we shall be glad to see them flourish, and we hope that they will in turn receive praise of the good work we have done. Limited indeed is the range of objects formed by our countrymen; whether, like those of Tyneside and the Cotswolds, and, in this immediate neighbourhood, of the Worcestershire, Worcestershire, and Dudley, they explore the mineralogical resources of our soils and glens, or, like the mayors of Liverpool, Leeds, and Manchester, improve dwellers, ancient climate, and altered levels of land and sea.

Encouraged by whatever measure of learning and useful knowledge are advanced, there to us are friends. Wherever is privileged to step beyond his fellows in the field of scientific discovery, there we are ready to welcome him as he, our help. Welcoming and joining in the labour of all, we shall keep our place among them, and be ready to encourage and to assist them in their work. Whatever may be our success, we shall not be content with the record of discovery, while we can do more than we now know, we shall grow that in this year we have at least the value of knowledge, the present hours and hands in the endeavour to promote it.

At the conclusion of the President's interesting address, of which the above are the most important features, Sir Roderick Murchison, as representing the savans present, moved a vote of thanks to Professor Phillips; while the Mayor, in the absence of Mr. Cowper, seconded the motion, which was carried by acclamation in the presence of 2000 persons.

On Thursday the general business of the sections began. Of the most interesting papers we shall give an account in our next number, as well as of the different excursions. Some illustrations will also be given.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THERE was nothing very marked in the Lichfield or Derby meetings, save the defeat of Cadastre, which seems to require a distance, as in the furlong race, which the smart old Queen of Trumps won; and the sale of Wildfire (only a thirty-guinea yearling at Chester) for £600. It is hoped that the Derby winner will have a lasting name, and a fillip next year by the removal of the venue from old Haldon-heath (here or there near Exeter). The Epsom Derby is a little too cosmopolitan, and it "dies well," with two such struggles as those between Sydmonton and Pavé Neuf, and Gladiateur and Breadalbane on the last day. Sydmonton's absence from the St. Leger entry is to be regretted, as a colt who could beat Gladiateur at only 10 lb. less, in two years, over a two-mile-and-a-half cup course, would have stayed from end to end at Doncaster. Gladiateur's defeat by Lord Lonsdale's Laughton made the Derby supporters of the Merry stable look to Student more keenly, and the place of Laughton in the betting fell from only 1 lb. more and was three lengths from Beelzebub, was a presumed settler for his Derby chance. Breadalbane's performance at one of those haunts of King Mob (who now jauntily undertakes to overrule racing decisions) which are making "home-circuit meetings" so fateful. Weymouth added another to Gaiety's victories, and Mr. Merry's Gaiety the last survivor of the old school of jockeys, never rode a severer and finer race than some have been the days since then he did at Derby against S. Adams on the Hermsy filly. The pair came away ten lengths from the rest, and Gaiety won by the shortest of heads.

The Warwick meeting went off well, and Sydmonton won the cup; and the Leger now overwhelmingly claims the attention of Derby. Run to 12 to 1, despite the sinister trial reports, and the knocking of Archimedes to 250 to 1.

We conclude that the Claxton race will be reopened at Doncaster. Admiral Rous has withdrawn his license, in which he is least so strongly to the side of the trainer, and declares that Lord St. Vincent's explanation "has cut the ground from under my feet." Still, neither naturally why should that noble sportsman be called upon to commence on a case before he has calmly learnt and weighed the facts. Unfortunately this is not the first time that the Claxton affair has been in the same position. In re the Doncaster Corporation, Acrobat, and Lord Bolsenna, he had only to refuse the privilege, which, to do him justice, he does with the most sailor-like candour. At the next a personal stands, it would be a pleasant thing to see these backers to get the bets, and if the Tattersalls' committee do not take it up, it would go before the Jockey Club, and we feel sure that Edwin Parr's proposition to Lord St. Vincent with it.

"The summer season," so it is called, is now fairly to knock of a free Doncaster meeting, with its thirty events and its £2000 of public money. "The race committees are vigilant," but we do not hear that there has been any serious attempt to suppress the ring, and certainly no corporation vote to build more private boxes, which pay such a fine percentage. Though we have not yet had the Cup, the Champagne, and Rustic in the Two-year-old Stake, Klarinska and White Duck can settle their respective claims to the Breadalbane and Gladiateur (10 lb. ex.) are in the Doncaster Stakes, and Ely will, no doubt, be ready for the Champagne and the Cup, and try and achieve that triple of victories in one season which has never yet fallen to the lot of any horse. Doncaster has to not be penalised, will, we should conclude, have a run at him. It is thought that about fifteen years ago, when he was a two-year-old and they will be selected from the following:—Attack, Klarinska, Beelzebub, Pepillo, Out-and-Outer, dam of Breadalbane, Ely, dam of The Duke, Kangaroo, Breadalbane, Broomielaw, Gladiateur, Friday, Lodlington, Sharpened, Zambesi, Christmas Carol, Brown Duryea, Velvet, Gladiolus, The Opposition, Sydmonton, and Lady Elizabeth. Osborne has been spoken of as likely to ride Regulus, and Aubrail, Klarinska, or Gladiateur in addition to some of the others; but we do so, if we mistake not, neither of these riders (certainly not the latter) can scale 7 st. 7 lb. without the 2 lb. allowance. It is likely that the trainers of the nurses will throw away any of the cherished 5 lb. by the Derby have over the Derby winner. Morris, as we said last week, is assigned by some to Regalia; and, as Oimar's chance must be set, it is to be hoped that J. Snowden can be secured for Scott's stable. The Duke may be "21 lb. better than Toolheen," but we do not expect to see him in the first four. Christmas Carol's friends vow that he is much improved; but then they were confident about him at Wolverhampton. If Gladiateur were out of the way Breadalbane would likely to come up and cause another "Doncaster surprise," we might have fancied Breadalbane's chance; we should still not be surprised to see him placed. There is no horse in the race of whose real form the public know less, and we think they underrate him. If Liddington's roaring propensities wholly unfitted him for Epsom, we doubt his making much better over Ascot and Zambesi ought to beat him. The Fecress has no chance of being in front of Klarinska again. She is thickened and improved, but a mile is her forte. Before his "knock out" Archimedes looked and went well, but he requires to be led when walking, as he rears so—a sign which trainers never like. The probability of his being scratched the change from Harlock's to Peck's stable are sadly against Regalia; but he has nothing fresh to beat, supposing that the Duke of Regalia can stay (as Stockwell combined with Touchstone and Bay Middleton could), and that his temper is not so sore about him on that head, and fear that the last quarter of a mile may find him out. We think that Regalia has improved, but the chance in the fun, to which they contributed so much in their day. The Rowsley Stakes has been set down as a trial race, but the day's state of the Downs has sadly interfered with scent. A new pack of Lord Portsmouth's harriers are hunting the Hambledon side of the Brighton have gone as pilots. The Brighton "Vagabond hound" is not often at fault.

Yorkshire cut a most ludicrous figure in its return match with Kent. Willsher (run out, 87) made the top score for his county; and he and Hayward were the only two who reached double figures in the nine innings by 70. In their second innings Willsher scattered six of their wickets, and Hayward made 31 not out. But the rest of the eleven were not playing. The return match between Sussex and Kent was a dull one, which, however, had four days' play and yet came to a make. T. Sewell played a 42 innings for Kent, but was badly mixed with Lillywhite's bowling. Mr. Ridley's batting 41 for Sussex was the best.

John Lillywhite played two steady innings; and his nephew bowled well, as he always does.

MARGATE RACES.—MONDAY.

Visitors' Stakes.—Confederate 1. Mysterious Lady, 2. Castle Hill, 3.
Margate Stakes.—Mr. Merry 1. Lucilla Bell, 2.
Margate Stakes.—Alberta, 1. Duchess of St. Albans, 2. Indian Star, 3.
Margate Stakes.—Mysterious Lady, 1. Confederate, 2. Castle Hill, 3.
South-Eastern Railway Stakes.—Sentinel, 1. Bodsworth, 2. Fountainblue, 3.

Handicap Plate.—Little Gentleman, 1. Balcornock, 2. Betsy Copeland, 3.
Scratch Handicap.—Little Gentleman, 1. Mysterious Lady, 2.
Margate Handicap.—Dagrell, 1. Triumpher, 2. Sentinel, 3.
Ladies' Purse.—Sir Owen, 1. Mr. Merry, 2. Alberta, 3.
Military Stakes.—Bodsworth, 1. Confederate, 2. Staring Tom, 3.

WARWICK RACES.—TUESDAY.

Trial Stakes.—Gretna Green 1, Sydmonton 2, Queen's Counsel 3.
Racing Stakes.—Lady Sophie, 1. Cotty to 2, Trap, 3.
Handicap Sweepstakes.—Mr. Sykes, 1. Mr. Sykes, 2. Mr. Wood, 3.
Shorts Handicap.—Hardwick 1. Cutler, 2. Bishopton, 3.
Queen's Plate.—Gretna Green, 1. Cotty, 2.
Queen's Plate.—Gretna Green, 1. Cotty, 2. Success, 3.
Selling Stakes.—Viper, 1. Bianca 2, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Welter Cup.—General Hess, 1. Lady Sabina, 2. Principal, 3.
Warwick Stakes.—Sydmonton, 1. Bodsworth, 2. Success, 3.
Warwick Cup.—Sydmonton, 1. Iris, 2. Stanton, 3.
Nursery Handicap.—Lady Sophie, 1. Iris, 2. Nun, 3.
Sweepstakes of 5 sovs.—Ambition, 1. Ion, 2. Miss Merivale, 3.
Warwick Handicap.—Sydmonton, 1. Gretna Green, 2. Bianca, 3.
Grand Stand Plate.—Sapphire, 1. Overtone, 2. Iller, 3.
Grand Stand Handicap.—Lady Sophie, 1. Cotty, 2. Morton, 3.
Scurry Handicap.—Trap, 1. Magpie, 2. Queen of the Manor, 3.

DOVER RACES.—TUESDAY.

Ladies' Plate.—Maid of Oak, 1. Duchess of St. Albans, 2. Domino, 3.
Town Plate.—Mr. Merry, 1. Lucilla Bell, 2. Incognito, 3.
Stewards' Plate.—Surrey, 1. Troublesome, 2. Magic, 3.
Dover Cup.—Mysterious Lady, 1. Castle Hill, 2. Schapbaster, 3.
Lord Warden Stakes.—Scotland, 1. Dead heat between Rapture and Deanna 2, 3.
Military Stakes.—Tarese, 1. Bodsworth, 2. Sharpshooter, 3.
Members' Plate.—Tarese, 1. Lucilla Bell, 2. Mr. Merry, 3.

LUCESTER RACES.—THURSDAY.

Town Plate.—Alice Lee, 1. Overtone, 2. Rose, 3.
Stewards' Cup.—Honeymoon, 1. Bianca, 2. Catapulta, 3.
Leicestershire Handicap.—Lizard, 1. Grove Darling, 2.
Selling Stakes.—Honeymoon, 1. Bianca, 2. Morton, 3.
Selling Stakes.—Vicksburg came in alone.
Lady Cup for Maidens.—Bianca, 1. Threshare, 2.

The Belgian Government has issued a decree prohibiting the importation of cattle by sea or land into Belgium, in order to prevent the introduction of the cattle plague, which prevails in Holland.

The Japanese who have arrived at Marseilles are not Ambassadors, but merely envoys sent to study the political questions in Europe. They are accompanied by a marine engineer M. De Verny, who is the son-in-law of Kiousiou, the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs. They are to go to Lyons, Paris, Belgium, Germany, and England.

The Paris Bourse has been the scene of a remarkable movement at sea of a ship, the cargo of which is valued at £50,000. The Colonial Marine Bank of Mauritius has suspended the cashiership of her captain and her first and second officers, on the ground that the abandonment was unnecessary, and that the vessel might have been brought into harbour.

We learn from Schleswig that an official notification has been made to the Danish Government that the armistice will not be renewed on the 14th inst. The civil and military government for Holstein will be established on the 15th inst. Count Wedel-Jarlsberg, Count Von Platen-Hallermund, Von Gablenz will arrive in Holstein on the 14th inst., and will replace Herr von Halbhuber, the present Austrian Commissioner in the duchies.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, Sept. 4.—Only a moderate supply of English wheat was on offer here to-day; nevertheless, all kinds moved off heavily, at decline in the quotations of from 1s. to 2s. per qr. Foreign wheat was in good request, at Monday's rates, for all parcels of fine quality. Barley of good malting sample commanded late attention, even at reduced currencies. Malt was in limited demand, at 1s. per qr. less money. Beans and peas were dull sale, at 1s. per qr. lower rates. Oats were in fair request, at Monday's quotations. Linseed cakes were transacted in sale, on former terms. Bones were slow and quite as dear as last week. Linseed oil was in fair demand, at 30s. 6d. per cwt. on the spot.

In prices of British grain the following changes have occurred:—

Wheat, 4.—Wheats, both English and foreign, were very dull, at Monday's decline in the quotations of from 1s. to 2s. per qr. Barley, 1.—Malting qualities were in fair request, at 1s. per qr. less money. Malt, 1.—Prices 1s. per qr. lower. Beans, 1.—Prices 1s. per qr. lower. Peas, 1.—Prices 1s. per qr. lower. Oats, 1.—Prices 1s. per qr. lower. Flour, 1.—Prices 1s. per sack lower.

The following are the prices of wheat per quarter, and the general average of the kingdom for the week ending August 26, and for the corresponding week in 1864:—

	1865.	1864.
Essex and Kent, red	40s. to 46s.	40s. to 46s.
Essex and Kent, white	42s. to 48s.	42s. to 48s.
Scotch	40s. to 46s.	40s. to 46s.
Irish	40s. to 46s.	40s. to 46s.
Foreign	40s. to 46s.	40s. to 46s.
Average of the kingdom	42s. 6d.	42s. 6d.

The Gazette gives the following prices of corn per quarter, and the duty thereon, for the week ending August 26, and for the corresponding week in 1864:—

	1865.		1864.
	Price.	Duty.	Price.	Duty.
Wheat	42s. 6d.	1s.	42s. 6d.	1s.
Barley	34s. 1d.	1s.	34s. 1d.	1s.
Oats	22s. 6d.	1s.	22s. 6d.	1s.
Rye	30s. 0d.	1s.	30s. 0d.	1s.
Beans	34s. 1d.	1s.	34s. 1d.	1s.
Peas	34s. 1d.	1s.	34s. 1d.	1s.

The Gazette gives the following prices of corn per quarter, and the duty thereon, for the week ending August 26, and for the corresponding week in 1864:—

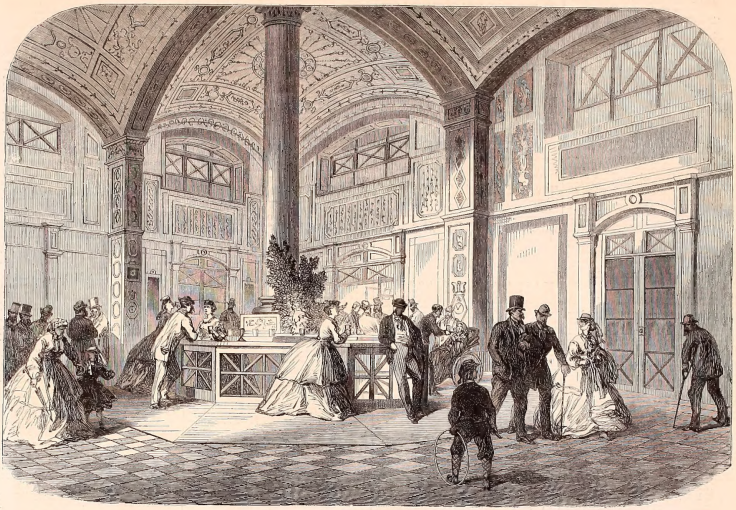
	1865.		1864.
	Price.	Duty.	Price.	Duty.
Wheat	42s. 6d.	1s.	42s. 6d.	1s.
Barley	34s. 1d.	1s.	34s. 1d.	1s.
Oats	22s. 6d.	1s.	22s. 6d.	1s.
Rye	30s. 0d.	1s.	30s. 0d.	1s.
Beans	34s. 1d.	1s.	34s. 1d.	1s.
Peas	34s. 1d.	1s.	34s. 1d.	1s.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 1.

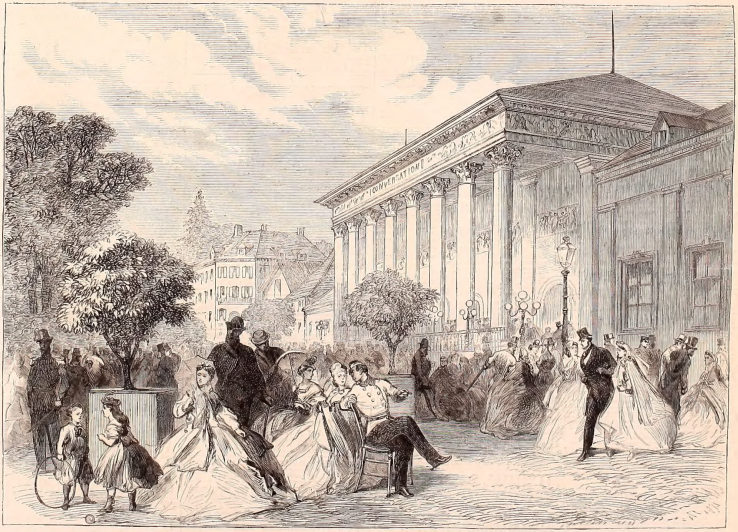
BANKRUPTCIES ANNULLED.

J. B. CLARKE, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and E. WEBB, Hartlepool, tailor.—J. DIBBS, Shrewsbury, provision dealer.



BANKRUPTS.

J. ALLEN, Bristol, ironmonger.—J. BARTLETT, Wimbledon, plasterer.—H. COX, Forest-gate, commission agent.—E. H. GARTHWAITE, Chatham, bookbinder.—G. HARRIS, Bristol, builder.—J. HOLLAND, Bristol, builder.—J. HOLLOWAY, Bristol, builder.—J. HUGHES, Liverpool, draper.—J. HUNTER, Liverpool, draper.—J. LEWIS, Cardiff, coal agent.—R. E. MILLER, Chatham-street, Columbia-road, marmalade dealer.—H. L. MOSS, Bristol, ironmonger.—J. PARKER, Bristol, builder.—J. PARKER, Bristol, builder.—W. P. JOHNSON, Kew-bridge, Brentford, licensed victualler.—J. PEARCE, Bristol, builder.—J. READ, Bristol, builder.—J. REDMAN, Bristol, builder.—J. RICHARDS, Bristol, builder.—W. P. JOHNSON, Kew-bridge, Brentford, licensed victualler.—J. PEARCE, Bristol, builder.—J. READ, Bristol, builder.—J. REDMAN, Bristol, builder.—J. RICHARDS, Bristol, builder.—J. ROBINS, Bristol, builder.—J. SMITH, Bristol, builder.—J. SMITH, Bristol, builder.—J. SMITH



INSPECTION OF FOREIGN CATTLE AT THE METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

THE SEASON AT BADEN-BADEN.

THE TRINK-HALLE.

THE PLACE DE LA CONVERSATION.—SEE PAGE 230.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

Owing to the continued frequency of the weather for harvest work and the favourable state of most of the foreign exchanges, increased activity has been shown in the business of the Stock Exchange. The business doing, however, has not increased, although the Government broker has purchased several parcels of stock on account of the Sinking Fund. There has been more passing in the Unfunded Debt.

The demand for money on offer in the discount market has become very large. The applications in all quarters for accommodation have not been to any extension.

The Bank of England rate on Government Securities may be called 3 to 3½ per cent.

The directors of the Bank of Prussia have abandoned their projected increase of rate to 5 per cent. We annex the rates at the undermentioned cities:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	3	2
Berlin	4	3½
Vienna	4	3½
Frankfort	4	3½
Amsterdam	3	2½
Trieste	4	3½
Brussels	3	2½
Madrid	4	3½
Hamburg	4	3½
St. Petersburg	5	4½

The imports of bullion have been moderately large, and rather a large quantity of gold has been sent into the Bank of England.

The Bank of France holds, on Money, now 872,75 ; Bills, Account, 984 ; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 95 ; Exchequer Bills, 30.

The Bank of Germany holds, on Money, now 1,000 ; Bills, 1,000. Tuesday the Continental prices were fairly settling :—Spanish, for Francs, closed at 68½ ; Bilbo, for Three, 68 ; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 1852, 95 ; Exchequer Bills, 30 ; Ditto, for Three, 1858, 95 ; Turkish Five per Cents, 1865, 91 ; Exchequer Bills, in the Netherlands, 30 ; Exchequer Bonds, for Money, market 86½ to 86¾ ; for Account, 86 ; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 1853, 95 ; Ditto, for Three per Cents, 1858, 95 ; and Exchequer Bills, 30, 40s. to 35, prem.

The Bank of Russia holds, on Money, now 1,000 ; Bills, 1,000. Tuesday the Reduced and New Three per Cents, 1853, were 95 ; and Bills Five per Cents, 1864 to 5. Exchequer Bills were quoted 30 to 35 prem.

The Bank of Spain has raised its rate. Egyptian finds her credit materially improved in value, and in several other descriptions a fair business has been done. Portuguese Three per Cents, 1853, 24 ; and 6-Half per Cents, 80 ; Portuguese Three per Cents, 1853, 24 ; and 6-Half per Cents, 80 ; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 89 ex div ; Ditto, 1885, 103 ; Unified Four per Cents, 91 ; Ditto, Consols, 103 ; Daïras Five per Cents, 1885, 78 ; Morocco Three per Cents, 1863, 45 ; Ditto, 1888, 45 ; Russian Five per Cents, 1862, 104 ; Ditto, 1864, 104 ; Ditto, 1866, 104 ; Ditto, 1871, 104 ; Ditto, 1872, 104 ; Ditto, 1873, 104 ; Ditto, 1875, 104 ; Ditto, 1877, 104 ; Ditto, 1880, 104 ; Ditto, 1884, 104 ; Ditto, 1887, 104 ; Ditto, 1889, 104 ; Ditto, 1890, 104 ; Ditto, 1891, 104 ; Ditto, 1892, 104 ; Ditto, 1893, 104 ; Ditto, 1894, 104 ; Ditto, 1895, 104 ; Ditto, 1896, 104 ; Ditto, 1897, 104 ; Ditto, 1898, 104 ; Ditto,

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.
Bankers to the General Government of New Zealand, &c.
Provisional Committee in London.—Chairman, Sir DONALD MACLEAN, M.P.
CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVE FUND, £100,000.
Branches and Agencies in New Zealand.
Auckland | Lyttelton | Picton | Hawkesbury
Kaipara | Nelson | Wanganui | Mount Ida
Thames-South | Marlborough | Foxton | Waimate
Onehunga | Newcastle | Wellington | Waimataitai
Nelson | Hokitika | Featherston | Oamaru
Greymouth | Timaru | Hyde | Wellington
This Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places, and purchases and sells Bills of Exchange. Banking business transacted with New Zealand in the most liberal manner.
The London Office receives deposits on account for fixed periods, on terms which may be learned on application.
No. 70, Old Broad-street, London, E.C. F. LARKWORTHY, Manager.

THE NEW PARTNERSHIP ACT.—£5000 a year may be invested in a highly lucrative business. The party effecting the money can, in addition to a good percentage, have the security of land, houses, leasehold, and other first-class securities, and first-class references given and required. Apply, by letter, to Mr. J. H. ROBERTS, 3, Bank-buildings, E.C. No. 3, Cheapside, Chatham, with real and personal estate.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The PEOPLE'S PRINTING-PRESS, price from 6s. upwards, for Marking Linen, Cards, Circulars, Billheads, &c. Sent free by post. Complete Printing Outfits, 21s., 42s., 84s., 2 stamps each.—G. A. BERT, Engraver and Stationer, 2, Bank-buildings, Holborn-bridge, 149, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

WASHING by MACHINERY.—One month or two months' trial—which is allowed free of cost—will prove the superiority of the "LONDON" and "PERFECTION" WASHING-MACHINES over all others. Their extreme simplicity of construction is the chief cause of their universal adoption and approval from purchasers. See Non-Latalogue, free by post.—
CHARLES EDWARDS and CO., 41, Ironmonger-lane, E.C.
41, Hind-street, Dundee.
Manufacturers to the Royal Laundries.
21, Barrow-street, Dublin.

CHUTNEY.—The Palmyra have now every confidence in recommending their Chutney as the Worcestershire Sauce. Highly tested by court of the most practical farmers in England, Ireland, and Scotland.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 25, Berners-street, exhibit the above, suitable for the Garden, Chalet Church, varied in form, and adapted to all requirements. Also invalid chairs of every description. Lists free.

FILMER and SON'S UPHOLSTERY and CABINET FURNITURE SHOW-ROOMS, 31, 32, and 33, Fetter-street, E. Attention is requested to these spacious Show-rooms, which contain the largest in London.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE.
H. M. THE QUEEN, 1 and 2, Rosslyn-street, and 45 and 46, Tottenham-court-road, W. And 1, Rosslyn-street, Tottenham-court-road, W. Decimus Corpet, Jun., Manager. Tottenham Chintzes, &c.

BROWN and GREEN'S KITCHEN RANGES.—A close range with an open fire-place, roasting and baking arcade and close heat or stock. Prospectus free.—73, Bishopsgate-street Within.

FURNISH your HOUSE with the best FURNITURE, CARPETS, BEDDING, and IRONMONGERY, on the CASH SYSTEM. Cash purchasers should examine the leading articles from all the various departments in the extensive Show-rooms of this firm, as facilities are given to the selection of goods. Moderate terms for kitchen culinery, chamber lamps, baths, fenders, fenders, iron bedsteads, bedding, and bedroom furniture, and many other articles. Illustrated Catalogue and Price List free by post. CHARLES OLLIVER and CO., 39, 40, and 41, King William-street, London Bridge.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGERY, by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, has TWO DISTINCT SHOW-ROOMS, one for the Sale exclusively of Electro-plate, Cutlery, Stoves, and Kitchen Furniture, the other for Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-hangings, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Tea Trays, Japanned Goods, Fenders, Marble Chimney-pieces, Kitchen Utensils, Gasoliers, Lamps, &c. The Stock in each department has been selected with the utmost care, and marked in plain figures at the lowest price that will enable purchasers to ascertain the exact relative value of each article. Orders may be sent by post, and they will be executed with the same care as if the parties were personally present. Delivery to the Railway Stations or Shipping Ports in the country guaranteed. Catalogues gratis and free by post. WILLIAM S. BURTON, 39, Oxford-street, W.

KENDALL'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—Recommended old Scotch Whisky of the finest quality, pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles at 42s. per dozen, and in casks of five gallons and upwards, by the Proprietors, KENDALL and CO., 1, Great Windmill-street, London, W., observe the red seal, pink label, and name blown in bottle—"Kendall's LL Whisky."

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH BREWING of the above Ale are now being SUPPLIED in the finest condition by the Agents in London, HENRY MARSH and CO., 35, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
Pronounced by Connoisseurs
"The Only Good Sauce."
Their genuine wholesome relish is delicious, and stimulates the appetite and aids digestion. Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to Her Majesty, and by Oilmen and Dealers universally.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic cocoa, prepared on the medical principles generally, recommended by the faculty as the purest, most delicate, and the finest flavoured cocoa ever yet introduced, which for many years have been in obtained in preparations of cocoa either stimulating or astringent, and which, from the process by which the oil is retained in the cocoa, more or less constipating, manufactured as to obtain their action. J. EPPS, of London, Homœopathic Chemist, has, after many years' careful study, been enabled to produce a cocoa in which the excellence of elaborate machinery, is seen the best to produce a cocoa in which the excellence of elaborate machinery, is seen the best to produce a cocoa in which the excellence of elaborate machinery, is seen the best

NEW MUSIC.

THE MAY WALTZ. By ALFRED MELLON. Performed at his concerts at Great Garden Theatre with great success. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M., Grenadier Guards. Nightly encored at Mellon's Gardens. Mr. Godfrey's new waltz, 'Mabel,' promises to rival in popularity his celebrated 'Guards' Waltz.' Illustrated with a portrait of 'Mabel,' a waltz which takes by storm, if not 'Mabel,' the reviewers 'Grand Waltz' in popularity.—Daily Telegraph, Aug. 8. Price 24 Stamps. Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 3s.; Band, 2s. 6d.; Military Band, 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

Just published,
MABEL. A Song, written by Henry Farnie, adapted to the melody of "The Mabel Waltz," by D. GODFREY. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY, Bandmaster arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. James's Hall, Session on Cornopean and Military Band Topics, arranged for the Pianoforte by F. TITTARI. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

WEARIN' O' THE GREEN.—The only correct Edition of Words and Music, as sung by Mr. Boosey, at his Concerts, Price 2s. 6d. BOOSEY and CO., 24, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, containing the Favourite airs, from "Rule Britannia" to "Home, Sweet Home," with Exercises, Scales, &c. "The Guards' Waltz," "The Volunteer Quadrille," and "The Guards' March," are also introduced, and the Concert and Last Tune arranged for Piano, 4-hands, post-free. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SEA SIDE. Bandella's Favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. La Fluckerette. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. MADRIGAL. Romance for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. A Fantasia on Favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

M. FAVARGER'S NEW PIECE.
DON GIOVANNI. Fantasia on Airs from the Opera. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on Favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera for the Piano Forte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.
THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO. A selection of original and meritorious voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for Small Organs, by JOHN HILES. Price 2s. 6d. each book. Each number contains seven full pieces, carefully selected and arranged expressly with pedal obbligato. Nos. 1 to 12 are now ready, price 2s. each, or in 3 volumes, half-bound, each containing 4 books bound in serge, price 12s. each. A thematic list of contents may be had on application.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Cornet, Violin, and Flute. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the "Guards' Waltz," by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin, and Flute, each 1s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by F. F. RIMBAULT, each 2s. 6d.
No. 1. The Guards' Waltz. | No. 2. The Guards' Quadrille.
No. 3. The Mabel Waltz. | No. 4. The Jubilee Quadrille.
No. 5. The Orpheus Galop. | No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. The whole of the music as performed at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden. The words of the Recitatives and Airs, by Edmund Falconer. Arranged for the Pianoforte, by CHARLES COOTE, Jun., 36, New Bond-street, where the following are now to be had—
The Queen waves her Sceptre, for Pianoforte, with Vocals, Price 4s.
The Overture ... ... Solo, 3s.; Duet 4s. 6d
Grand Indian March 3 0
Religious March 3 0
Ah! Paradise ... ... Arrangement de Mirolière 3 0
COOTE, C., Jun., Fantasia 4 0
GODFREY, D. Waltz ... ... Solo or Duet 4 0
CALLCOTT, Twenty favourite Airs. In 3 books, each ... 3 0
EUHE.—Routine of "The Africaine." Nos. 1 and 2, each ... 3 0
FAVARGER, M.—Grand Fantasia 3 0
COURNEY, E. A.—Grand Duet 3 0
KUHE, W.—Grand Fantasia 4 0
RIMBAULT, F.—March Indienne 3 0
———— Melodie Symphonique (the celebrated unison Chorus) 3 0
RIMBAULT and C. d'Alcorn.—Quadrilles ... each 3 0
No. 1, Scenes of the Opera-Troe. 2, Flights del Rt. 3, Chorus of Priests. 4, The Grand Duet. 5, The Cloister Scene. 6, O Paradise in verse. 7, Adieu, vive ma Dame. 8, Adieu Mysore. 9, Finale.
EMELI.—Sacred Harmonium 3 0
———— Duet for Harmonium and Pianoforte 4 0
COOTE, C., Jun.—Grand Duet for Violin and Violoncello ... 4 0
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S Great Comic Song, THE GERMAN BAND. Extremely laughable, and far exceeding "The Quack-doctor." Everywhere Free for Silver stamps.—D'ALCORN, 8, Baldwins-place, W.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S New Song of LONDON. A Sequel to the favourite song, and intensely funny. Illustrated. Free for Silver stamps.
D'ALCORN, 8, Baldwins-place, W.

JOLLY DOGS. 41st Edition. Glorious success of the great Comic Song. ALL VANCE'S JOLLY DOGS MARCH. Either two for 15 stamps.
D'ALCORN, 8, Baldwins-place, W.

COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. Founded on the most popular Melodies of the day, and played nightly at the Royal Gardens, Cremorne. Illustrated. Price 4s., or, in septet, 2s. D'ALCORN, Baldwins-place, W.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST OF NEW MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS, Vocal and for Piano, may be had gratis and postage-free on application.
6, New Burlington-street.—4, London, W., Agents for Italia, Messrs. BURESSYLVIO and CO., Cremona.

MR. ALFRED MELLON'S CONCERTS. Programme of the last piece performed by the celebrated conductor.
MELLON. LA CHEVRUSE QUADRILLE. By A. F. GODFREY (Bandmaster of the Coldstream Guards). Price 2s. 6d.; Orchestra, 2s.
THE ASHMEDALE GALOP. By GODFREY (Bandmaster of the Coldstream Guards). Price 2s. 6d.; Orchestra, 2s.
The Overture for half-price in stamps, with one stamp extra for postage.
EL SOGNO. Song with complete cadenza by Mdlle. Cotelle. Price 2s. 6d.
THE CUCKOO. Song with harmonium appliqué by Mdlle. Elvsbeth. 2s. Post-free 19 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, W.

MDME. RUDERSDORFF sang EVER THINE (E flat), Op. 5, at the Gloucester Festival. Published by ROBERT COCKS and Co. 2s. 6d. Free for 30 stamps.

L'ESOGNO. Valse Chantée, par Mdlle. Carlotta Patti, et accompagné pour le piano, par FRANZ ART. 2s. The Song, with French and Italian words, 2s. The Piano Solo, 2s. The Song, with French and German at Mr. Alfred Mellon's Concerts.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole music of the Music is published by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street. The complete Opera may be had, with Italian or French words, price 21s. postage-free. The pianoforte arrangements are by BRINLEY RICHARDS, LINDAHL, OSBORNE, KUHE, LAMOTHE, Mary Godfrey, Charles Coote, Jun., Favarger, Oliverio Metra, and BOSCOVITZ.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

COOTE'S CLARIBEL WALTZ, performed with unprecedented success at Mr. Mellon's Concerts. Price 4s.
"There is nothing of the kind recently produced in a waltz called 'Claribel,' composed by Charles Coote, and founded upon some of the ballads written by the lady known to the musical world as Claribel. The melodies are fresh, the rhythm is good, and the whole is tastefully arranged, and written in the most polished and scholarly style."—The Times, Aug. 26.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street, 24, New Bond-street.

CUSHA. By DOLORES, Author of "The Brook." A new Song. 3s.—BOOSEY and CO.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. Arranged for the Pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. Arranged as a Duet for Violin and Violoncello (Charles Coote). Very beautifully illustrated. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. Arranged as very brilliant piece by BERGER. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NEW PIECE by FORBES, Author of "Quaver," "Pastaque Musicale," &c. Grand Pas Redoublé, Author of "Castellina," "Caprice," &c. Published this day by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER. Published this day, BOOSEY and CO.'S New Edition of the STABAT MATER, with Italian and English words, the Pianoforte Accompaniment by Oliver, Directions, &c., Price 2s. Also the Pianoforte Solo by Oliver, very superior paper (strong 4to). Price 1s. Messrs. Boosey and Co. exclusively commence this edition on the 1st inst. published at a low price.—Holles-street.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER. BOOSEY and CO.'S NEW EDITION.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS.—Published this Day, BOOSEY and CO.'S New Edition, with Latin and English words, and Accompaniments for the Pianoforte arranged by Oliver, printed from entirely new type, on superior paper. Price 2s. Also the Pianoforte Solo, very superior paper (4to). Price 1s. Messrs. Boosey and Co. exclusively commence this edition on the 1st inst. published at a low price.—Holles-street.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS. BOOSEY and CO.'S New Shilling Edition.

WELY'S OFFERTOIRES for the ORGAN-IST. New Series, Nos. 1 to 12, now ready. The Books of Wely's celebrated Offertoires, hitherto published at 4s. and 3s. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS, 2s. The six books complete in one volume, price 8s.—Published this day. Also another edition of the same, edited by J. W. Davison, printed from engraved plates, with paging to correspond with the original editions, bound in crimson cloth, gilt edges, price 5s. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NIGHFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. The words by Mrs. Hemans, and the music by Miss Gabriel's compositions. Price 3s. To be had everywhere.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. This charming song arranged as a Scherzo, at low pitch, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. The favourite melody arranged as a simple and tasteful Pianoforte Piece. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. To suit every taste. This song has also been adapted to Italian words. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ENGLISH CHURCH SERVICES. BOOSEY and CO.'S new and cheap edition, beautifully printed from new type on superior paper, price 6d. each, or complete in 1 vol., cloth, 3s. 6d.; or in 2 vols., cloth, 5s. Sing in Parts, 1d. each. Nos. 1 to 12 are now ready. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half-price, with one post-free for post-stamps or Post Office order (when words are quoted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW AND BEAUTIFUL SONG,
TEYAGAIN.
Words by Longfellow. Price 3s. Henry Russell's beaten own popular thus celebrated "Cheer, Boys, Cheer."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A FIRST-RATE SENTIMENT.
PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE. Price 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF
THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE. Price 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHEATER SCENES OF LAUGHTER.
JOLLY OLD FELLOW. CAN'T BE ARR AGAIN! Price 3s. 6d. Boosily encored every night.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF
OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! The Song sung by Mr. Sims Reeves (Evening's welfare honors).—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

AN EXQUISITE BALLAD.
THE SMILES OF FLEETING FANCY. Sung by Shakland Hoot to Mr. Sims REEVES. Price 3s. 6d.
"Having, for sweetness of melody, the air of the tune."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE
JOHN BROWN'S BODY LIES
Immediately in the press, but as many marching on. Price 3s. 6d.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A NEW CHRISTY FAVOURITE.
I'M AS HAPPY AS THE DAY IS LONG. Price 3s. 6d. Written by John Brougham; and Sung by J. Bowhouse, Arranged by Frederick Boscovitz.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NIGHTLY RECORD.
COME, SING TO ME AGAIN; or, I have a beautiful sweet voice which I'll use for you." This a gem." Record.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE.
COOTE'S FORREST FLOWER VALSE, 4s., is the favourite of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW GALOP.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP, 3s. (Eclipses all others.)
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT HELLON'S CONCERTS.
COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE, price 4s., enthusiastically encored.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE COOTE'S CUBE LANCERS. Price 4s. Sixteen programme examples without them.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.
COOTE'S ESTRELLA GALOP, 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.
COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE, 4s. Considered the most beautiful Waltz by the people Composed.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

WALTER (YOU SIR) or THE THREE O'CLOCK GALOP. By HAGGERSTEUER. Price 3s. With a famous Chorus.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA. 3s. On the universal "Sup, Sup" hues we are again." The most successful Polka of the season." Sun. "Will be the most popular." Lady's Newspaper. "Very lively and pretty." Observer.
MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP. 3s. "Is the universal "Sup, Sup" hues we are again." The most successful Polka of the season." Sun. "Will be the most popular." Lady's Newspaper. "Very lively and pretty." Observer.
MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. 4s. Contains the universal "Sup, Sup" hues we are again." and numerous curious. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere. Illustrated.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by
LACHENAL, Pall Compeau, with all the latest improvements, warranted to stand any climate and to keep well in tune, from two guineas; silver, and, best and very fine, 4 guineas.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ANTOINE COURTOIS' CORNETS-A-PISTONS, Trombones, Euphoniums, &c., are used by all the principal performers and bands. Prices, Class A, 10 guineas; Class B, 12 guineas; Class C, 15 guineas. Lists may be obtained.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE ROOMS, 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND BROADWOOD GRANDS, SECONDHAND BROADWOOD COTTAGES, SECONDHAND CLEARED OBLIQUES, SECONDHAND CLEARED COTTAGES, SECONDHAND SQUARES.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.—Secondhand Pianofortes by every maker. Grands, 20 gns. upwards; secondhand Cottage and Grand Pianofortes, 16 gns. upwards; secondhand Semi-Cottages, 18 gns. upwards; secondhand Cottages, 14 gns. upwards; secondhand Square Pianofortes, 5 gns. upwards; secondhand Semi-Grand Pianofortes, 12 gns. upwards; secondhand Cleared Cottage Pianofortes, 16 gns.; secondhand Cleared Cottages, 12 gns.; secondhand Cleared Squares, 6 gns.
50, New Bond-street.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL and CO.'S.

No. 1 and 2. One Stop	Per Month.
3. Two Stops	10s. 6d.
4. Five Stops	15s. 0d.
5. Ten Stops	21s. 0d.
6. Fourteen Stops	25s. 0d.
7. Twenty-two Stops, Resonation Action ...	31s. 6d.
10. Fourteen Stops	42s. 0d.
11. Fourteen Stops	52s. 6d.
12. Twenty-two Stops	63s. 0d.
13. Eight Stops, Two Keyboards	42s. 0d.
14. Twenty-two Stops	63s. 0d.

No. 1. Three Stops, Percussion and Knee Swells ... 21s. 0d.
No. 2. Five Stops ... ... 31s. 6d.
3. Nine Stops ... ... 42s. 0d.
N.B. A considerable reduction from the above charges on instruments hired for three months.
CHAPPELL and CO. undertake to convey the instruments within six months from the time of hiring, the amount due for hire will be given up in addition to the sum agreed for only money.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM HARMONIUMS, with two rows of keys and the tone of guineas; other varieties at 21 and 31 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues may be had gratis, or will be forwarded by post.
ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM HARMONIUMS.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five stops, two bellows, and in oak case. These instruments are the best and cheapest to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, cleared out for quick sale, at great sacrifice, 50, New Bond-street.—CHAPPELL and CO.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, with the improved vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the boot of the right foot, has the full tone of a pipe organ, unequalled may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA GRAND PIANOFORTE, with all the latest improvements. An immense stock of Grands and all other instruments.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. Pianofortes manufactured on every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side and hired, with the option of purchase, at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANING CASES. Pianofortes sent to all parts of the world in perfect safety. A very elegant Pianoforte, of compact size, with check action and the full compass of seven octaves, packed and fully adapted to Hindi Bazaar, Calcutta, Madras, &c. Recommended by every to them and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 35 and 36 guineas. A great variety may be seen at
CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To ensure perfecting the Pianoforte in every climate, and preventing the influence of damp, the iron plate is placed entirely horizontally, and not a sounding-board. The action is of the same simple description as has always stood unrivalled for durability, and the touch of which the most accustomed action are unanimous in many of the Cottage Pianofortes manufactured by CHAPPELL and CO. for every region to every climate, in mahogany, at 40 guineas, plain; 45 guineas, in walnut, 49 guineas.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, of the best manufacture, from 7 to 120 guineas.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MINIATURE PIANOFORTE, 17 octaves, in solid walnut, full tension.
Price 25 guineas.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW STYLE OF CARRIAGE, to OPEN from Pianoforte-cases, invented and patented by LAMB and HARKER, Carriage and Harness Manufactory, Oxford-street, Manchester. Illustrations and prices forwarded.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Medieval Pillars, &c. A large assortment always on view. Estimates and designs forwarded.
D. RILETT and CO., Manufacturers, 45 and 46, High Holborn, W.C.

GARDNERS' LAMPS and CHANDELIERS, Elaborate and Portable Table Lamps.—Orchestra, Theatre and Opera Lamps, 63 and 64, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality, Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gaseliers, Manufactory to the Queen, 63, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

NEW and SECONDHAND FURNITURE. BALLS, FORMAL, and CO., 178, Oxford-street, Increasing large warerooms, with every description of furnishing ironmongery, rendered in plain figures. Furniture purchased or exchanged.

ISLE OF MAN,
STEAM PACKET BOAT, DOUGLAS, on the Tier.
Board and Lodging, 4s. 4d. per Day. Attendance, 1s. Sealons stamp for Sketch and Map of the Island.

LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY.
TOURIST TICKETS TO IRELAND.
TOURIST TICKETS FOR CITY CELEBRATE MONTH are now issued to DUBLIN (North Wall), by the Company's splendid new Steam and Sailing Packet Service.
Fares.—Second-class, there and back to 1st Class. Rail Cross. Cabin Passage, 1st Class, 30s. Return, 45s.
TOURIST TICKETS TO THE LAKES OF KILLARNEY, viâ Holyhead and Dublin, available by the Irish Mail Trains and Steamers also issued at the Victoria Station, Pimlico.
Fares ... ... 1st Class. 2nd Class.
Euston and Knutsford ... ... 19s. 9d. 13s. 6d.
Guidebooks to Killarney and Dublin, 1s. each; Programmes containing full particulars may be obtained at all the Company's Stations and Receiving Offices.
By order, W. CAWKWELL, General Manager,
Euston Station, London, N.W.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.—TOURIST TICKETS to the LAKE DISTRICT, SCOTLAND, and IRELAND, are ISSUED at the MIDLAND BOOKING-OFFICES, ST. PANCRAS, and intermediate principal stations, and at the Company's Receiving and Tourist Offices, 26, Fleet-street (corner of Bouverie-street).
SCOTLAND.—Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Aberdeen, Perth, Stirling, Dunkeld, Aberdeen, Inverness, &c.
IRELAND.—Belfast, Londonderry, Giant's Causeway, LAKE DISTRICT.—Windermere, Ambleside, Grasmere, Keswick, Coniston, Grange, Penrith, Keswick, Morecambe, &c.
Tourist Programmes, containing full particulars, may be obtained at all the Midland Stations, Offices, Receiving Offices, Derby, Sheffield, Leeds, Bradford, Manchester, Saltaire, Skipton, Ilkley, Harrogate, Matlock, Buxton, &c.
Tickets and Programmes may be obtained at all the Company's Stations and Receiving Offices.
By order, JAMES ALLPORT, Manager.
Midland Railway, Derby, Midland Railway, Derby. JAMES ALLPORT, General Manager.

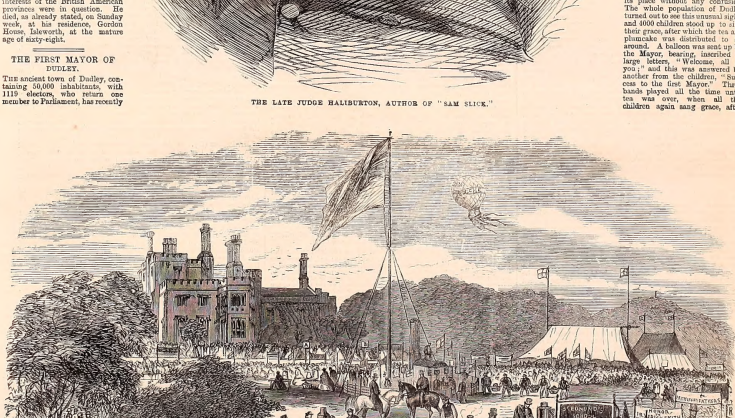
ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND ROYAL EQUESTRIAN SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1853), 3, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London, S.W.
Agents wanted in towns and districts.

ST. ANDREW'S COLLEGE, BRADFIELD, Berks. The Michaelmas Term will OPEN, after the holidays, on WEDNESDAY, the 20th inst.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and Opera Glasses, Manufactured by DOLLOND, 23, Cornhill, and 59, Strand. The new Field Glass shows small objects well and clear at 2 miles; the Opera Glasses show them well at 3 miles distance. Dollond's Telescopes, Microscopes, and Spectacles, are unrivalled.—Dollond's Telescopes, Microscopes, and Spectacles, are unrivalled.

FOREIGN and BRITISH POSTAGE STAMPS.—Collectors are informed that the Stamps of Nicaragua, Honduras, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Salvador, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Chili, Paraguay, Uruguay, Buenos Ayres, Venezuela, New Granada, Mexico, Hayti, Sandwich Islands, Hawaiian Islands, Liberia, Tunis, Egypt, Turkey, Greece, Servia, Roumania, Moldavia, Wallachia, Russia, Finland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Prussia, Saxony, Hanover, Brunswick, Oldenburg, Hamburg, Bremen, Lubeck, Frankfort, Nassau, Bavaria, Wurtemburg, Baden, Hesse Darmstadt, Hesse Cassel, Thurn and Taxis, Austria, Lombardy, Venice, Modena, Parma, Tuscany, Papal States, Naples, Sicily, Sardinia, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, Spain, Portugal, Madeira, Azores, Canaries, Cape de Verd Islands, Gambia, Sierra Leone, Gold Coast, Lagos, Natal, Cape of Good Hope, Mauritius, Ceylon, Java, Sumatra, Labuan, Singapore, Hong Kong, China, Japan, Shanghai, Victoria, New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, Vancouver Island, Heligoland, Gibraltar, Malta, Ionian Islands, Alexandria, Suez, Aden, Bombay, Madras, Pondicherry, Calcutta, Penang, Malacca, Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Hobart Town, Launceston, Auckland, Wellington, Nelson, Otago, Canterbury, Montreal, Quebec, Toronto, Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Kingston, Victoria, Vancouver, Panama, Valparaiso, Lima, Callao, Arica, Montevideo, Buenos Ayres, Rosario, Caracas, Laguayra, Carthagena, Mexico, Vera Cruz, Tampico, Matamoras, Port au Prince, Honolulu, Liberia, Tunis, Alexandria, Cairo, Suez, Aden, Bombay, Madras, Pondicherry, Calcutta, Penang, Malacca, Singapore, Hong Kong, China, Japan, Shanghai, Victoria, New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, Vancouver Island, Heligoland, Gibraltar, Malta, Ionian Islands, Alexandria

JUDGE HALIBURTON, THE AUTHOR OF "SAM SLICK."



THE death of Mr. T. C. Haliburton, formerly Chief Justice of Nova Scotia, and latterly M.P. for Launceston, but more generally known as the author of "Sam Slick," was announced in our last. His portrait, from a photograph by Mr. Herbert Watkins, is now engraved. Mr. Haliburton was born at Windsor, in Nova Scotia, in 1796, and, having studied at various places, was called to the Colonial Bar, and practised for some years with considerable success. In 1835 he commenced the literary work on which his fame will rest by the contribution to the columns of a Halifax weekly newspaper of a series of amusing papers, depicting the acute angles and sharp knobs of the Yankee character. So successful were these papers that two years later they were revised, published, and brought under the notice of the English reading public, who gave "Sam Slick, the Clockmaker," an enthusiastic reception. The success of this book naturally induced the publication of a second series in 1837, and a third in 1840. But "Sam Slick" was not exhausted, for "The Attaché," an account of Sam's experiences in London as one of the members of the United States Embassy, was equally popular with the preceding volumes, and went through several editions in a few months. These were succeeded at intervals by "Bubbles of Canada," "An Historical and Statistical Account of Nova Scotia," "The Old Judge," "Traits of American Humour," "Yankee Stories," "Nature and Human Nature," which were not so successful as his first works. In 1858, Mr. Haliburton received the honorary degree of D.C.L. from the University of Oxford, and in the following year he began his Parliamentary career, being elected M.P. for Launceston on Conservative principles. He was a constant attendant in the House, but seldom spoke, except when the commercial interests of the British American provinces were in question. He died, as already stated, on Sunday week, at his residence, Gordon House, Isleworth, at the mature age of sixty-eight.

THE LATE JUDGE HALIBURTON, AUTHOR OF "SAM SLICK."

THE FIRST MAYOR OF DUDLEY.

THE ancient town of Dudley, containing 50,000 inhabitants, with 1119 electors, who return one member to Parliament, has recently been incorporated, under Royal charter; and Mr. Frederick Smith, of The Priory, was unanimously elected first Mayor. To mark his appreciation of the honour conferred upon him, Mr. Smith issued a separate card of invitation to every day-scholar and teacher in the borough (numbering 4000) to come to The Priory, on the 29th ult., to partake of tea and plumcake and enjoy games of various kinds. The weather, on the appointed day, was beautifully fine; and at an early hour the church bells rang merrily, the shops were closed, and a general holiday was proclaimed. At two o'clock, this army of 4000 children formed in close column in the Market-place, each school four deep, and bearing aloft a forest of banners, some very beautifully embroidered with mottoes expressive of every kind wish towards the Mayor. When that gentleman rode up he was received with a burst of cheers from the children and 20,000 spectators. The whole assembly sang, in a most touching manner, "God Bless the Prince of Wales;" and then, with the Mayor at their head, the procession moved towards the beautiful grounds of the ancient Priory. The procession being three quarters of a mile in length, the various bands played as they marched without interfering with each other. On entering the Priory grounds a noble scene presented itself. In the centre of a large field in front of the Priory floated a red ensign—the largest ever used in the British Navy—and near it a boiler, capable of holding ten for 4000 guests, was ready to distribute its contents through as many taps as there were schools. Tables and seats sufficient for all had been placed around the field; and the head-quarters of each school was defined with hurdles and marked by a notice-board, on which the name of the teacher, the name of the school, and the religious denomination and number of scholars were painted in large letters and figures. Then each school on entering the field fell into its place without any confusion. The whole population of Dudley turned out to see this unusual sight, and 4000 children stood up to sing their grace, after which the tea and plumcake was distributed to all around. A balloon was sent up by the Mayor, bearing, inscribed in large letters, "Welcome, all of you;" and this was answered by another from the children, "Success to the first Mayor." These bands played all the time until tea was over, when all the children again sang grace, after which the large flag was lowered as a signal for general dispersion and games. One game was with a very long, thick rope, at one end of which the Mayor placed 1000 boys to pull against 1000 at the other, until the rope broke in two, and all tumbled head over heels backwards, to the immense delight of the lookers-on. Then there were foot races for boys of eight, nine, and ten years of age, and to the winners of each the Mayor distributed handsome medals as prizes. At six o'clock a bell was rung, and the 4000 children rushed to their separate head-quarters, re-formed, and marched under the banners. Here stood the Mayor, surrounded by the members of the Town Council, and many ladies and gentlemen of the neighbourhood, who had invited a few appropriate and telling marks to his young friends, who, after rending the air with shouts of applause at his hearty speaking and kindness, commenced the last procession, with bands playing and colours flying, never to forget the happy hours they had spent at The Priory with the first Mayor of Dudley.

ENTERTAINMENT TO FOUR THOUSAND SCHOOL CHILDREN AT DUDLEY.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

THE French fleet having departed in peace, all the savants being gone to Birmingham, all the artists (apparently) to Newcastle, and the Cupolitans to Shrewsbury, the Prince of Wales's children, it would seem, do not dread the gloomiest of the "noble sportsman" in the month of the crown, and every body who can by any possible means get out of town to some villegiature or another—the Queen being at Coburg, the Government lucklessly known to be very much at Osborne, where it did, and the "machine" of the British constitution running as cheerfully as ever, there is little left for the writer who is compelled, for his sins, to talk about except murder. Cain's crime seems rife than ever. The season for shooting, stabbing, and poisoning is right and left. There is a human as well as a bovine rinderpest. But as it is not my duty to compile a collection of "crimes celebres," and as my lady readers would probably object to my making this column a "Calendar of Horrors," I will give the bloodgutting this week the go-by, just running aside for a moment to observe that on the very same day when the Mormon labourers kicked his reproof wife to death in Bermondsey, a woman was charged, at one of the police courts, with biting off the under-lip of another woman. The virago was known, it appears, in the neighbourhood as "Bite 'em." and that her provoked deed was done with malice prepense was proved by her previously uttered threat of "I'll eat the face of her enemy. The "Grand was not a Pig," but a cannibal residing within the metropolitan police district.

Nor, for another week, need I be hanged; but what do you think the magistrate did with the "Friend," who bore, by-the-way, the pretty Christian name of Agnes? Well, he sent her to prison for six weeks. He did not even bind her over to keep the peace for six months. In the mind of October the "Friend" will be free again, with her teeth sharpened by six weeks' ratson diet.

Mr. John Ruskin, whose ambition to shine as a political economist seems to transcend his genius in matters more suitable to hold the foremost place in English art-criticism, has been throwing stones—not Venice ones—at a contemporary, and accusing him of taking "pleasure" for having stated that it is difficult to obtain good servants. According to Mr. Ruskin, excellent domestic servants may be secured by either of the two following processes. You must hold them in slavery, after the fashion of Venice, or you must teach them, "delicately," that in the end your servants shall become your sons, which is the Christian method. In support of this new theory, Mr. Ruskin quotes King Solomon; but he forgets to tell us that the Eastern servant was a slave, and that the Wise Man himself has said some pregnant things about spoiling the child and spoiling the rod, which do not favour his son chastening him.

What are we to do with idle and disobedient servants? I remember a very good, kind lady, who, out of patience once with an intractable housemaid of that description, declared that she would beat her, as she could see, was to whip them. But the nineteenth century pardon, and the days of Bowringpigs! By the constitution of the England a master may beat his apprentice or servant. I have known in Russia a cook sent to the police office to be whipped for putting too much salt in the soup. You may read in Mr. Peppys's Diary that his maid, having offended him one morning, he took a broom and struck her over the arse. The good old Puritan never went further, for Hey, Zachary Crofton, publicly defended the rod, in preference to the cane, in the correction of servants. "For," says the said Zachary, "my mother once chastising her maid with a wand, did chance to exhibit her eye. But the good old lady said, 'Let me alone, I will use them, it is certain. As to the position that slaves are the best servants, it is the worst of all. I have been a slave myself, have seen others slaves in Russia and in Cuba; I have seen what a continual plague and misery are the best of servants, and what a curse to their masters and mistress. They go on well for a time; then they turn sulky, or saucy, or get tipsy, or pilfer. Then there is the plea in statement, 'I pray you, good Lord help you, how can I do it unless you give me money before." You can't turn them out of doors, and if you beat them you are in trouble.

While I am on this topic comes to me a sensible, temperate, truly Christian pamphlet, emanating, I apprehend, from the pen of one of the ladies, including Marchioness Townshend, the Countess of Shaftesbury, the Countess of Rosslyn, Lady Talbot de Malahide, and Lady Maunders, Lady Jenkinson, Mrs. W. Baines, Mrs. Thomson, who lately engaged that meeting at St. James's Hall, had for its object the great question of domestic service. The pamphlet includes the admirable paper on servants, the conduct of a lady taking a deep interest in the subject, read at the St. James's meeting, in which it is contended that the odourous problem is helped much towards solution. All is pet within and out of speculation and theory. "Is the subject of servants" "followers" I note a kindly suggestion that, while the rules of each family on this point ought to be enforced, it might be well if the rule were sometimes relaxed in favour of an acknowledged and accepted lover." No doubt," the paper goes on to say, "the reason why the privilege is so generally withheld is because it is so often abused." Yes; it is often abused. But in the New America I had occasion to leave a house in London in charge of a servant who had been with me for years, and whom I would have trusted with untold gold, had any gold, told or untold, come my way. She had an allowed follower, as acknowledged and accepted suitor—a young man in the humble line of life. She got out of him, and picked up another young man at one of those edifying places of amusement known as music halls. This young man, who was of a gentlemanly and contented himself with breaking open the drawers of a bureau, in which he found nothing, but some old concealed letters. I then occurred to him to rob somebody else's house, and when I returned I had the satisfaction of hearing that he had been apprehended and sentenced to two years' imprisonment with hard labour. I wonder how many ladies and gentlemen who read this could relate similar stories of "acknowledged and accepted" followers.

A new and original actor has made his appearance at the Adelphi Theatre; and I am happy to be able to enter the domain of dramatic criticism to herald Mr. Joseph Jefferson a great actor. The recognised Asmodeus of the London Press (I beg of him to call doubleday give a good account of "Rip Van Winkle!" I simply wish to point out to Mr. Jefferson and Mr. Boucicault two little things which struck me which I think would add greatly to the scenic effect of the drama. First, why has not a big log of wood been placed in the hearth in the head of George III.; and in the third, the lineaments of General Washington? Both would help the illusion as to time and place materially. Second, Rip speaks, in act three, very pathetically of a dog he had, high? "Schneider." Now, I should like Mr. Jefferson to be accompanied by a real live dog, wagging a real live tale. Mme. Vestris used to have her live King Charles's in "The Country Girl," and the bow-wows are easily trained to the business of the stage—easier than human beings sometimes. In the last act I want to see, prone to earth, by the side of the sleeping Rip, the skeleton of Schneider, who has remained at his master's side a very old dog, and died at last, as faithful dogs will do. Mr. Watkerlowe Hawkins would be delighted, I am sure, to get up the prettiest little model imaginable of a canine skeleton, which any intelligent property-man could copy.

Comes there to me through book-post a dainty little volume of poems, published by Moxon, entitled "Ephemera," by "Helen and Gabrielle Carr." Now, I am very sorry, Mesdames or Mademoiselles, I am very sorry, but I am unable to say anything about the poetic merits of "Ephemera." In the first place, I cannot—poetry to me being a mystery; in the next, I mustn't—not being a reviewer. I may hint, however, quite parenthetically, that "Ephemera" contains a number of exquisitely pencilled illustrations of the fairest and gracefullest little cupids ever seen out of Kenny Meadows's vignettes and Giulio Romano's frescoes. Ce sont des oeuvres à propos, these illustrations are appropriately enough, drawn on wood; which is a "gouk," in Artemus Ward says.

They have been visiting at Lyons; but the riot has been merely an O. P. row. M. Raphael Felix (the famous Rachel's brother), director of the Grand Theatre of Lyons, has been compelling the people of that public to take actors off the stage. So the public have torn up the benches, broken the chandeliers, and Felix having come on the stage, blocked up the streets, hooted the soldiery, overturned an omnibus to make a barricade, and generally conducted themselves in an ungovernable and rowdyish manner. The dispute between M. Raphael Felix and the Lyonese property-masters is not, I suppose, the stern hand of authority; but I wish that, while its hand is in, authority would put a stop to another nuisance, more reprehensible than the practice of hissing actors off the stage. I mean the abominable organization of hired applauders, known as the claque, whose vocal pains manufacture spurious approbation and keep bad pieces and bad performers on the stage.

THE NEW CHINESE ORDER OF THE DRAGON.

THE accompanying illustration shows the badge of the Imperial Order of the Dragon, lately established by an Imperial edict of the Pekin Government. It is a military order, ranged in five classes, and it is to be presented, through the Minister, to such European officers as may have rendered services to the Chinese Government. The ribbon is yellow, with light green edges (the Court colours). The first class is distinguished by a red cross, and the second by a blue stone, of considerable value, in the centre; the other four have no jewels. The badge is of gold. The third class is larger in size, but is of silver, with a plain white stone. It may be remarked that the Chinese have not hitherto, more precisely as the Turks did, when they established the Order of the Medjidie; seeing that Chinese medals for military service had been in use long before any Order of the Dragon was either expressly for Europeans was thought of. No one who has seen the "Braves" can have failed to have admired the large silver badges that many of them wear on the breast, bearing the word "Valour," and which answer to our Victoria cross. The Pekin Gazette records the appointments to "Grand Dragon" in just the same way as our own London Gazette would do. The badge is engraved from a photograph by Mr. W. Saunders, of Shanghai.

In Cochin-China bull-races are very much in vogue. The bulls are harnessed to chariots, and run with great speed.

On the 1st instant the Act on the sugar duties took effect. The duty on the importation of cane-juice the cwt. is now 8s. 2d.

A reduction of postage has taken place on letters for the Australian colonies, and other places beyond the sea. From the following rates, British and foreign continued, will be chargeable on each letter:—Victoria, not exceeding 4oz., 1s.; every additional 4oz., 1s.; 5oz. to 6oz.; every additional 4oz., 1s. 6d. The postage may be either paid in advance or collected on delivery. Letters for New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand, are charged with an additional rate of 2d. when not exceeding 4oz. in weight, and so according to the above scale.

THE CLIMATE OF MADEIRA.—(To the Editor.)—As you you made mention of the proposed sanatorium in the island of Madeira in connection with the Royal Free Hospital, permit me to observe that the climate of Madeira is not particularly beneficial to consumptive patients, and, instead of leading to wholesale condemnation, should rather stimulate to further and searching inquiry into the cause. With like views, and equal disappointment from ungrounded expectations, I may mention briefly such remarks as I have gathered from a short visit I paid in the way to it in 1856, useful to non-professional readers, and pending their fuller publication in the form of a pamphlet, hereafter to appear, wherein several cases will be given to derive little or no benefit from the climate; nor was the advantage great in those who had been residents for a few years, and who had left the island with their health restored. Madeira is almost wholly devoid of vegetable distortions and subsidiary disease gained nothing, and sometimes was aggravated. The exceptions were chiefly cases of chronic bronchitis, with some hemoptysis, where nervous depression was extreme, and where the throat was relaxed and irritable. The most striking and favourable results were resulted in cases where an arrest of disease had once been even partially established. Such persons have been known to remain abroad for periods of twenty-five years and under. If the salubrative functions are considered, even an advanced stage of consumption, and the existence of cavities in the lung does not prevent the good results following a residence in Madeira. Hemoptysis is also relieved in the incipient stage. But perhaps the most important service which Madeira may render is properly selected cases is as a preparation for climates of more stimulant powers, such as Malaga, Algiers, Upper Egypt, the Cape of Good Hope, and Australia. It is my earnest hope that this plan of treatment, still quite in its infancy, may receive abundant development. Phthisis, a disease more widely fatal in the long run than epidemics, is, as far as we know, mainly the product of social, hereditary, and climatic causes. Much can be done for the two former by legislation and sanitary management; but it is our own fault if we fail to employ the proper remedy against the last evil in an organized and systematic manner.—I remain your obedient servant, WILLIAM H. STONE, F.R.C.P., Assistant Physician to the Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest, Brompton. Sept. 4, 1863.

THE NEW PARLIAMENT.

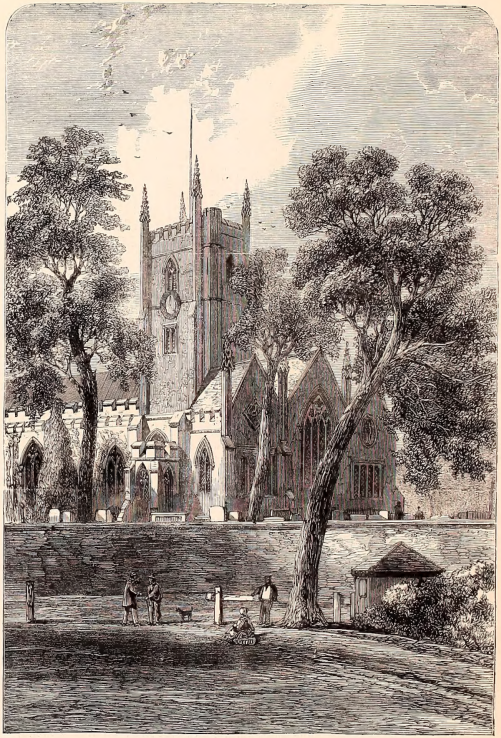
THE Irish elections were of peculiar interest, owing to the turn which they took in favour of the Government, and proving, as they did, the success of the policy of conciliation and toleration which Ministers had exhibited in the last Session on all matters connected with Ireland—of course, without the slightest reference to electioneering contingencies. The personal changes were not particularly interesting, as the large majority of the House which took place a probable accession to the strength of the Liberal party was obtained. In the county of Antrim Colonel Pakenham, who had represented the constituency in the House since 1841, and who was a Conservative, and Mr. O'Neill (L.), the former member, was returned without a contest, in conjunction with Mr. Edward Joseph Smyth, Q.C., a barrister, and the second son of Sir G. F. Seymour, G.C.B., and who is connected by property and residence with Norfolk, but who, no doubt, has a claim on the electors who have chosen him. From the borough of Armagh Mr. Bond, who had sat for that place as an attorney, from 1855, when he came in and left Mr. Kirk (L.) to do battle, but without success, against Mr. Stearn Bell Miller, Q.C. (L.), who represented the city from 1857 to 1859, and was, looking to his manner and demeanour, in his own estimation, a very grand personage indeed. The election for Athlone was a singular one. The late member, Mr. Bernard (L.), governor of the Bank of Ireland, chairman of the Midland Great Western Railway, a millionaire, and representative of the county in 1857, was opposed by Mr. Handcock (C.), a local landed proprietor, who may have been supposed to have been fighting for his own influence. A day or two before the nomination there arrived, purely en passant, Mr. Denis Joseph Byrne, a gentleman who had issued no address to the electors of Galway and was on his way thither, and who, being a man of business and therefore quite peculiar property of a pedigree (it may be that he even comes of "Royal siege"), modestly describes himself as one of "Mr. Denis O. Reardon, scurried, and a house agent and auctioneer in Piccadilly. Accordingly, he was induced then and there to stand for Athlone. He went to the poll, and won by a large majority. As his predecessor Liberalism, it may be well made in the political status of the borough in the house. The next point to which a change occurs is at Carlow borough, which was left vacant by the migration of Sir John Acton to Bridgenorth; and there was a contest between Mr. Kavanagh (L.), son of Mr. Charles Kavanagh, and connected with the county of Ennet, and Mr. Rochford (C.), whom the former defeated by a majority of Casual seen, of 12. The opposed, not satisfied with Mr. Lanigan (L.), who represented them since 1859, so another Liberal, Mr. Arthur Moore Jyster (L.), was put in and carried the election by a majority of 1. Mr. O'Beirne is well known in certain circles as a gentleman of considerable smartness and activity; and, as he hails from Roscommon, he will be returned not in all respects an Irish member, and one who it is believed will make himself heard in the house. In the county of Cavan Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. J. P. Maxwell (C.), who had sat for it since 1843, took leave; and Mr. Edward James Saunderson (L.), a landed proprietor, married by marriage with Lord Farnham and Lord Ventry, a magistrate for and resident in the county, was returned without opposition to fill up an addition to the Liberal party. There was a severe struggle in the county of Cork: Greek met Greek in the case of Charles Bagwell (L.), native-born of the county, but who is a merchant in London, opposed Mr. Vincent Scully (L.), who had to mention in connection, who represented this constituency from 1852 to 1857 and was returned in 1859, and was, his eccentricity notwithstanding, was a member who had a Parliamentary status on the electors, which they refused to recognise, and so the seat was wrested from him which at one time he maintained that he should voluntarily resign. Mr. Bagwell, Mr. Richard Dowden, Q.C., who had represented Dropheda since 1852, would not stand again; and two Liberals stepped for his seat, which, in the event, fell to the lot of Mr. Benjamin Whitworth (L.), a merchant at Manchester, who beat an Irishman, Mr. Brodrick (C.), by a majority. There has been no Liberal triumph in the city of Dublin than, perhaps, of any other place in the United Kingdom, the return of Sir Edward Grogan (L.), one of the late members, made way for Mr. Benjamin Guinness (L.C.), who was returned, very naturally, really for his character and position, with the good-will of all parties; but against Mr. Ware (C.), who sought re-election, there was set up Mr. Jonathan Pim (L.), a merchant and manufacturer, who is a Quaker, and, what is more, a celebrity. At any rate, he was made very much of, and comes to Parliament with the prestige of success and prestige. It is rumour that he will be asked to second the address in answer to the Speech from the Throne. Here is another Liberal gain. In the county of Dublin was observed upon was important, as it was a direct triumph for the Government, that of Mr. Henry Barry, Q.C. (L.), who, it is said, will be the Lord Lieutenant, swayed the seat left vacant by the transference of Mr. Maurice to the city of Cork, and who is a brother-in-law of Mr. Pallier (C.). In the city of Galway there was another Liberal gain, Mr. J. Fitzgerald (L.), who was beaten by Mr. Michael Morris, Q.C., a Galway magistrate and man; while the place of Mr. Dunkellin, now member for the county (L.), was supplied, in like manner, by Mr. Rowland Blennerhassett, Bart. (L.), a magistrate for the county of Kerry, and a resident proprietor near Killarney.

There was a personal loss of a Liberal vote in the county of Kildare, Lord Otho Fitzgerald (L.), youngest son of the Duke of Leinster, who has died, and whose place has been filled by a Liberal—tenant in the Horse Guards Blue and a Lieutenant in the Royal Naval Reserve—succeeded the late Duke, Mr. Fitzgerald (L.), who retired while Mr. Cogan (L.) retains his seat. At Kilkenny borough the place of Mr. Sullivan, a merciful Liberal, has been filled successfully by Sir John Gray, who has been long well known in the public life of Dublin, and, indeed, of Ireland, and who is the proprietor and editor of the Freeman's Journal. In the county of Mr. Greene (L.) sat for it since 1847 and was one of those members who seemed identified with the House, was succeeded by Mr. George Lambert (L.), Bryan (L.), son of Mr. Bryan, of Jenkinstown, who is married to a daughter of Mr. Bryan, of Jenkinstown; the other member, the Hon. Leopold Agar Ellis (L.), being returned with him. The fortunes of the election for the King's County (Parsal (L.), who at the close of the polling it was announced that Mr. Hennessy (C.) (who had sat for the county since 1852) who has contrived, we know how to become known to all the world) had beaten Sir Patrick O'Brien (L.), and that Mr. John Gilbert (L.), who had sat for Dublin city since 1847, in the county, was returned with him. When the votes were counted, however, it was found that, in fact, Sir P. O'Brien (L.) was actually returned, while Mr. Hennessy, and the rival, to him especially cruel, sentence of ejection was formally given to the effect that Mr. Hennessy (C.) county Mr. Gilbert (L.), who in the last Session was, so to speak, a viaduct by which the Liberal party in the Government was poured into Ireland, was fitted with a colleague of his own political persuasion, Mr. Ennis (L.), a barrister and magistrate for the county, the county, beating Colonel Dickson (C.), the late member, one of the most talkative gentlemen connected with the House, and a Liberal who was remarkably authoritative on his own authority. At Londonderry city Mr. Corry (C.) and Mr. M'Cormick (L.C.), retired, was succeeded by Lord Claud John Hamilton (C.), second son of the Marquis of Abercorn, a youthful Guardsman, and who seems the same sort of member as Tyrone, who best in a contest Mr. Green (L.), who at one time sat for the borough, in the Irish interest, and who, as has supplanted the candidature of his reappearance there, did not venture on an opposition. At Lisburn Mr. Lindsay (C.) retires. Again there was a like result in the county of Monaghan, for the Hon. V. Dawson (L.), son of Lord Cremorne, and a young man in the Guards, succeeds one of the late members, Sir George Forster (C.). In the county of Mayo, Lord Bingham (C.), son of the Earl of Lucan, and Lieutenant-Colonel in the Coldstream Guards, succeeds quietly to the seat lately held by Mr. Palmer (C.); at Newry, Mr. Archer Charles Innes (C.), a magistrate for the county of Down, replaces Mr. Quin (C.), beating a Liberal candidate, Mr. Kirk, who formerly represented the borough; while, at Portarlington, Mr. Lawson, the Attorney-General for Ireland, divided with Captain Dawson Damer (C.), the late member, those of the eighty-six electors of the borough who voted, in a proportion of forty-six to thirty-five, won a seat for the Government and a vote for the Liberal party, and, besides, con-

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

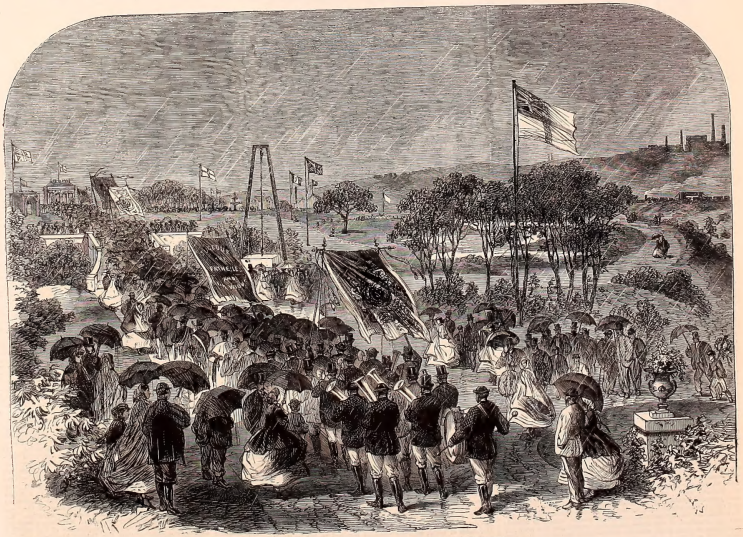
(1) Dragoon Guards: Capt. E. E. Hall and Lieut. T. Y. Bourne to be Captains; Cornets F. M. Clarke and R. de Salis to be Lieutenants.



(2) Dragoon Guards: Brevet-Colonel and W. F. Maxwell to be Captains; Cornets J. Meade and E. Smith to be Lieutenants.

(3) Dragoon Guards: Lieut. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain; Lieuts. L. Evans and E. A. Slessor to be Second Captains.

(4) Dragoon Guards: Lieut. R. Wittard to be Adjutant, 11th Lieut J. W. Poole to be Lieutenant, vice Lieut. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, 11th Lieut. J. Fitzherbert Smith to be Lieutenant, 11th; Staff Surg. G. A. G. Hall, M.D., from Staff, to be Surgeon, vice Surg. J. Hall, M.D., to be Surgeon, Lieut. Surg. R. Hall to be Surgeon, vice Surg. G. A. G. Hall, M.D., 11th Hussars; Cornet Hon. C. Carington to be Lieutenant, vice Lieut. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 5th, Cornet J. F. Pennell to be Lieutenant, vice Lieut. Hon. C. Carington, who resigns; 6th, Lieut. and Capt. W. Cooper to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet and Adjutant Sir C. Wolseley, Bart., to be Lieutenant, vice Lieut. W. Cooper, who resigns; 7th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 8th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 9th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 10th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 11th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 12th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 13th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 14th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 15th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 16th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 17th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 18th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 19th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 20th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 21st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 22nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 23rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 24th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 25th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 26th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 27th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 28th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 29th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 30th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 31st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 32nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 33rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 34th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 35th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 36th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 37th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 38th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 39th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 40th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 41st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 42nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 43rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 44th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 45th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 46th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 47th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 48th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 49th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 50th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 51st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 52nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 53rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 54th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 55th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 56th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 57th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 58th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 59th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 60th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 61st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 62nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 63rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 64th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 65th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 66th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 67th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 68th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 69th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 70th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 71st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 72nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 73rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 74th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 75th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 76th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 77th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 78th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 79th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 80th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 81st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 82nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 83rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 84th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 85th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 86th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 87th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 88th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 89th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 90th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 91st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 92nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 93rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 94th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 95th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 96th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 97th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 98th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 99th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 100th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 101st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 102nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 103rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 104th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 105th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 106th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 107th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 108th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 109th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 110th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 111th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 112th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 113th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 114th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 115th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 116th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 117th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 118th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 119th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 120th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 121st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 122nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 123rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 124th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 125th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 126th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 127th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 128th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 129th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 130th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 131st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 132nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 133rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 134th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 135th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 136th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 137th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 138th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 139th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 140th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 141st, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 142nd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 143rd, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 144th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 145th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge, who resigns; 146th, Lieut. and Capt. Hon. A. Hardinge to be Captain, vice Capt. and Brevet-Major C. Poulter to be Lieutenant, Cornet G. A. Mieres to be Adjutant, v



HEATHFIELD HOUSE, NEAR BIRMINGHAM, THE RESIDENCE OF JAMES WATT.—SEE PAGE 220.

HANDSWORTH CHURCH, BIRMINGHAM, THE BURIAL-PLACE OF JAMES WATT.—SEE PAGE 220.

THE OLD CROWN HOUSE, BIRMINGHAM.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

OPENING OF ALEXANDRA PARK AT OLDHAM.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE TOWN OF BIRMINGHAM.

Among the numerous visitors to Birmingham, on the occasion of the present meeting of the British Association, it is likely that some will be disposed to employ a leisure hour in going to see any of the places of historical interest to be found in that town or neighbourhood. We may now, therefore, give three or four illustrations of such localities, with a brief notice of the associations belonging to them.

The Engraving on this page is a view of the Old Ship Inn, at Camp Hill, where Prince Rupert took up his head-quarters, in April, 1643, when he attacked the town of Birmingham with a force of 2000 horse and foot. Birmingham had raised, with the Parliamentary cause and made swords for their army. An obstinate resistance was made by the townsmen when Prince Rupert came to parley there by their sheare in the opposition to King Charles. After two hours' fighting, in which the Earl of Denbigh, Lord Digby, and Lord John Stewart fell on the Royalist side, the town was taken by storm, and more than eighty houses destroyed by fire, and many of the townspeople slain. This was the battle of Birmingham, or, as it is sometimes called by the inhabitants of that town, the battle of Camp-hill.

The Old Crown House, an illustration of which appears on page 249, is described by Mr. Toulmin Smith, in his "Memorials of Old Birmingham," as one of the most ancient specimens of English domestic architecture now extant in good preservation. Its date is either 1480 or 1485, and it still remains a dwelling-house. It is mentioned as "the mansion-house of timber" by Leland, who saw it in 1540, when it came into "Bertaunpeas hoorn," as he says, "house as pretty a street as ever I entered." The solidity of the wooden framework of this house is the more worthy of remark as St. John's Chapel, built of stone about the same time as the Old Crown House, went to decay 130 years ago, and was rebuilt, while the Old Crown House is still in excellent condition.

The last residence of James Watt, Heathfield House, where he died, in 1819, is shown on page 249, with the adjacent Soho Manufactory, Handsworth Church, the tower of which is within sight of the house where he passed the closing years of his studious and useful life. Though in the vicinity of Birmingham, Heathfield House has all the character of a country gentleman's mansion. The estate is small; but the plantations, lawns, and walks, laid out by James Watt himself, are designed with great skill and taste. The present owner, Mr. J. W. Gibson Watt, takes care to preserve everything connected with the memory of the great engineer and practical philosopher who formerly resided there. Even the tools and the lathe in his private workshop are left just where the hand of James Watt last touched them, covered with the dust of forty-five years. The trees overhanging the pool, in the view we have engraved, were planted by the same hand.

The tomb of James Watt, adorned by Chantrey's noble statue, is in the small chapel at the south side of the chancel of Handsworth Church. Here the narrow limits of the chapel, with its window overshadowed by trees, enhance the solemn and imposing character of the figure. On the sides of the chancel are tablets to the memory of Boulton and Murdock. This is a fitting spot to contemplate the lives of these men, associated as they were in the manufacturing works of Soho. Boulton had there established the first model manufactory, which was visited as such by persons of rank from all countries. Murdock first arranged an apparatus for the production of coal gas, and Watt improved and applied that agent in a more than wonderful manner. It is not too much to presume that the united labours of these men may have been to some extent the foundation of the present amount of the great manufacturing town. The lesson to be learned from their lives may be read in the motto engraved on the massive base on which the statue of Watt is placed—"Ingenio et labore."

OPENING OF THE NEW PUBLIC PARK AT OLDHAM.

THE new public park at Oldham, near Manchester, which has been constructed mainly by the labour of the factory people thrown out of regular employment by the cotton famine, was, on Saturday last week, formally opened by the Mayor of Oldham, Mr. Josiah Radcliffe, on Monday next week. It is to be named Alexandra Park, in honour of the Princess of Wales. The sum of £30,000 was lent, at 3 per cent interest, by the Public Works Loan Commissioners (under the Act of 1863, for the relief of distress in the manufacturing districts) to the Town Council of Oldham, repayable by annual instalments within thirty years. Several pieces of land, in total extent about seventy-two acres, between Shaw's-brook and the Glodwick-road, were purchased, at an aggregate cost of £18,000. The Surveyor of Mr. Henderson, of Birkenhead, for laying out the park, and of Messrs. Woodhouse and Potts, for the rest of the work, have been adopted by the committee, the first turf was cut on the 2nd of December, 1864, by Mr. Riley, then Mayor. Since that time a considerable number of the cotton operatives have been employed in the works, and it is only due to them to record the patience with which they have borne their trials, and the perseverance with which they have applied themselves to the duty of earning their bread, instead of depending for it upon charity. There are two principal entrances to the park—one situated on the westerly or Shawpwake side, and the other at the easterly or Glodwick side. At the former there are two grass roads leading to the land intended to be appropriated for building purposes, and the other leading to the park. The latter is flanked by Corinthian stone, in the Italian style, with a small tower. The gates are of ornamental cast iron, hung to hold stone piers. The terrace walk commences about seventy yards from the entrance-gates, and is approached by a bold flight of steps. The terrace is eighteen yards wide and about 400 yards long, and is considered one of the finest in the country. In the centre is erected a band pavilion, having an ornamental cast-iron front, commanding a view of the opposite walk, which connects the terrace with the roads on the lower side of the park. In the centre of this walk a fountain has been erected, built of stone, having two basins, each supported by five granite columns, with carved stone capitals. The jet issues from the mouth of a dolphin, held in the arm of a boy, carved in stone. This fountain is the gift of Josiah Radcliffe, Esq., the present Mayor. The terrace terminates with a circular lavatorie and a flight of steps, leading to the higher ground, whereon is erected a building intended for a refreshment-room and place of shelter, with an upper story, which will afford the opportunity of establishing hereafter a museum in connection with the park. The windows of this room are of stained glass, representing "Peace and Plenty," and "Industry and Commerce," and are the gift of Mr. Councillor Bamford, the chairman of the park committee, and Mr. Alderman Higgin, the ex-Mayor. The building and gates at the Glodwick entrance are similar in design to those at Shawpwake, and from the entrance a walk is formed, leading behind the refreshment-room, thence to the gardener's cottage, the propagating house, and other necessary buildings. From this point the road takes a curve to a rustic bridge near the walls bordering the lower portion of the terrace to the fountain. This point is marked by a statue, erected by Mr. Alderman Higgin. The road then skirts the end of the lake, which is a place of considerable interest in the park, the overflow for forming a waterfall, and also for supplying a second fountain at the foot of the waterfall. The road likewise leads to the foot of the terrace, and thence to the south west is for a very considerable distance bounded by the Shaw-pwake brook, running along the lower boundary, and by the winding walk, leading to the extreme end of the valley, and ascending by rustic steps to the bowy and girls playground, and to the entrance at the north east of the gardener's cottage. The park affords ample space for the recreation and enjoyment of the people, and immense numbers have visited it during the past summer. The works are nearly approaching completion. The ceremony of Monday week, represented by our illustration, was unfortunately spoiled by the very bad weather. The Sunday school children and others, who would have formed part of the procession from the Townhall had the day been fine, were, of course, unable to attend; but the members of the corporation, the magistracies, the poor law guardians, various local officials, the friendly societies, the rifle volunteers and many of the townsfolk, with several bands of music, escorted the Mayor to the entrance in Shawpwake-lane, where the key of the park was presented to his Worship by Mr. Councillor Bamford, with an appropriate address. The Town Clerk read a paper giving a history of the formation of the park, and this document was then inclosed in a bottle, to be deposited in a hole in the corner-stone of the proposed entrance-lodge. The stone was laid by the Mayor with the usual formalities; a few jets were fixed by the volunteers, and the singing of the National Anthem concluded the proceedings. There was a cold collation afterwards at the Townhall, when toasts were proposed and responded to by the Mayor, Alderman Riley, Councillor Bamford, Mr. Platt, Mr. Hibbert, M.P.; Mr. Rawlinson, the Government engineer employed under the Public Works Loan Act; and several other gentlemen who had been connected with the undertaking.

THE OLD SHIP INN, BIRMINGHAM, PRINCE RUPERT'S HEAD-QUARTERS.

THE CHATEAU OF ARENENBERG, SWITZERLAND.

THE Chateau of Arenenberg, Switzerland, which was for some years the residence of the Empress Eugenie till, when Prince Louis Napoleon, dwelling there with his mother, the Duchesse de St. Leu, the Queen of Holland, is situated near Berlingen, a village in the Swiss Canton of Thurgovia, on the banks of the Rhine, just below the Lake of Constance. The Emperor having lately paid a visit to this place, which is of course much endeared to him by many recollections of his youth, the view we have engraved, which is sketch by Mr. Gow, Jun., will doubtless be interesting to many of our readers. It is a mansion of no pretensions to grandeur, but rather prettily designed, with something fantastic in its style of ornamentation. The garden and shrubberies are very pleasant. After the death of Queen Hortense, it fell into the hands of a Swiss physician, from whom it has been repurchased by the Emperor, and will be sacredly preserved as a memorial of his affection for her memory—which is not the least of his merits in the eyes of the French people.

PERFORMANCE OF A NEW ORATORIO BY FRANCIS LISZT.

THE jubilee of the Royal Conservatory of Music at Pesth, which took place on the 15th ult., was celebrated with great éclat by the first performance of a new oratorio, or religious opera, composed by the celebrated Hungarian pianist, who on the occasion left the seclusion of his monastic life at Rome, and reappeared once more in public as the conductor of his own composition. The subject selected for this composition is "The Legend of St. Elizabeth," and its subject is the well-known story of the miracle of the roses. St. Elizabeth, of Hungary, who became the wife of Ludwig, Landgrave of Thuringia, and resided some years in the Wartburg, his castle and palace at Eisenach, where Martin Luther also resided some centuries after St. Elizabeth's time. The character of this devout and enthusiastic lady is well known to the readers of the Rev. Charles Kingsley's dramatic poem, "The Saint's Tragedy," published with an introduction by the Rev. F. D. Maurice. The story is told rather differently by M. Otto Roquette, author of the libretto to which the music of Liszt is adapted. Her deeds of piety, with the miracles ascribed to her by the Roman Catholic legend, are set forth in several acts; the next is the departure of her husband Ludwig for the Crusades; after which St. Elizabeth is cruelly persecuted by a wicked mother-in-law, who turns her out of house and home. Her death, and, lastly, her funeral, are made the theme of some of the most pathetic and affecting music. The illustration we have engraved, from a sketch by M. Bartolomeus de Szekely, an Hungarian artist, shows the composer, dressed in the frock of his monastic order, in the act of wielding the conductor's baton on this occasion, surrounded by the members of the orchestra and vocalists of the Pesth-Ofen Conservatory, with a numerous and fashionable audience. It is stated that Liszt has undertaken also to produce a coronation hymn for the Emperor and Austria upon his investiture with the Hungarian crown.

THE MAGAZINES.

IT cannot but be expected that all the magazines should, in a measure, partake of the prevailing languor of the season, and country readers, happy in more stirring occupations, nor the weary Londoner, panting for fresh air, can be disposed to measure their shortcomings in a very critical humour. If the Cornhill must, even against the prevailing spirit of dulness better than most of its contemporaries, the cause is, to a great extent, the absence of which it relies on its pair of serial stories, which, being prepared without reference to the peculiar characteristics of the year, happen to approach their culminating points of attraction just as the circle of readers is at its thinnest. This is particularly the case with "Wives and Daughters," where a catastrophe is evidently impending, prepared for gradually with considerable art, and foreshadowed with swift decision and a rush of incident which contrast strongly with the quietness of the earlier portion of the story. It is also curious to observe how Cynthia is fast becoming the real heroine, manifesting the truer womanly qualities in preference for Molly. That "Armadale" should also be eventful is inevitable, nor the author will not, in relighting a balancing us continually on the verge of an apparently inevitable catastrophe, which, just as it seemingly becomes inevitable, his ingenuity postpones. The contents are not pleasant reading. Lady Dedlock abandoned than usual, and we are threatened with a speedy return to the unconformable society of Miss Gwilt, one of the most unpleasant creations of Mr. Collins, with only the innocuous museum of female conspirators. By much the most entertaining of the magazine papers is the history of Mr. Wilkie Collins's autobiography, which owes all its merit to the closeness of its adherence to the author's theme. "Dorothy" is a pleasing story, told in a sincere lover of nature; and "The Social History of the Navy" is a very fair specimen of the easy and pleasant way of conveying information for which this magazine is celebrated. Baron Liebig's microbe paper is hardly likely to find many readers, but is worth glancing over in spite of the remarkable confusion respecting the functions of the digestivetype.

The principal feature of this month's Macmillan is Mr. Deane's narrative of the Atlantic Telegraph expedition, which would have been extremely interesting if it had not been anticipated by the daily newspapers. It is, however, quite equal in interest to any that has appeared, and is made to vie with Dr. Russell's for the experience with which it is devoured by contemporary readers, with, at all events, and a better chance with posterity. Being written from day to day, while the cable was being laid, it is much more animated and full of adherence to the present accuracy in the Cornhill. Both writers imply a strong opinion that the injury was designed—the work of "some demon in human form," as Mr. Deane styles him. The interest of another clever paper—Mr. Poole's review of Palgrave's Arabian travels—has also been largely anticipated. Delightful as Mr. Palgrave's book is, the public have by this time had nearly enough of it, and will not too probably overlook Mr. Poole's warm and powerful defence of Mohammedanism against the traveller's very hasty generalisations. Both the novels are extremely good this month; "Macdonald of Sleat" is a spirited poem, and the papers on "Gaiety" and "Erasmus in England" are very pleasant reading.

As with the Cornhill, one of the best papers in Fraser is an abridgment of an old autobiography. The story of the Chomley family is full of interest, and very pleasant as showing the permanence of the good old English type of the country gentleman. The narrative, in his political capacity, was one of the party represented by Lord Falkland, a determined opponent of Charles I. Its illegitimate, but reluctant, indeed constitutionally unable, to carry matters to the last extremity. The proceedings of the Yorkshire gentry in resistance to the levy are astonishingly like those of their descendants 140 years later, when the American War had become as much a burden to be borne any longer. Readers fond of violent contrasts should pass from the chronicle of the Chomleys to Cooney Farrell, "the branch of last century of the mixed human elements of the whole world"—New York. Like all he writes, it is very entertaining reading, and is remarkable for a savage attack on the leviathan political "wire-puller," Mr. Thurlow Weed, and a most unexpected defence of the day of the York Herald is gone by—because, we suppose, its circulation is only double that of any other paper. There is a singular mistake about Aaron Burr, who is not among the last merits of his life watching for the foundered ship that should have brought him his daughter. In fact, Burr never had a daughter and his executors twenty-three years, so surely, even in this material age, does poetical embellishment tend to obscure the history of the best-known spot. Reminiscences of Paul I." are concluded, and the story of his murder is very circumstantially told. It is a sad narrative, and it is impossible not to feel the strongest commiseration for a Prince whose heart and intentions were admirable, but whose mental infirmities made it absolutely necessary to dispose of him. In most other countries he would have been declared insane; but the Russian Constitution leaves the Sovereign no alternative but the throne or the grave. The paper, "On Lessening the Inkonvenus of Education," deserves a powerful reading; there is a delightful translation from the Greek and "Gilbert Rugge" is elegant and pathetic.

A new narrative of the American Civil War is commenced in Blackwood, and promises to be a long one. The writer is a Prussian officer, who, from his great preparations and strength of style we have the editor's assurance, while we may take his own for his good opinion of himself. The much time he has consumed in getting his narrative bids fair to be characterised by that unreasoning animosity which has characterised the military monuments of Prussia. As, however, the writer was General Steuwit's Aide-de-Camp, his story can hardly fail to have interest, and the first instalment, describing the Matterhorn catastrophe does not materially interfere with the agreeableness of a capital paper on Switzerland. The stories are fairly up to the mark, and "Piccadilly" is concluded in the very way in which it has rattled on from the first. The number is terribly heavy otherwise, except for the Professor Aytoun's, to whom this periodical has been so deeply indebted as a contributor, though the very general admiration that he conducted it appeared to have occasion.

The chief attraction of the Shilling Magazine is "The Wild Flower of Ravenswarth," which is really a beautiful tale, written with deep feeling, and full of the most delightful romantic fancy. Mr. Sternberg has also greatly improved, though the story is too frequently interrupted by the author's desire to show off his knowledge. Mr. Sternberg's cause of classical education with great vigour and ability. The rest of the contents are of average excellence.

The Fortnightly Review maintains the high intellectual character it has asserted from the first. The present number is not up to some of its predecessors. The most important paper is Mr. Merivale's vigorous attack on the authenticity of the "Te Deum attributed to St. Ambrose, and preserved in English services. He certainly makes out a strong case, both on internal and external testimony. After what we have lately seen of the capacity of forgers, we can believe anything of their ingenuity and audacity. Mr. Seebohm's paper on "Primitive Property" is an attempt to prove that the savages of that epidemic were more extensive than usually supposed, from which he promises to deduce some important conclusions in a subsequent paper. Viscount Amberley's essay on the political relations of the Church possesses the frankness, with something of the presumption, of youth, and is certain to make him many enemies. Mr. Lewes, while highly eulogising the acumen of Mr. Grote's work on Plato, particularly his defence of the genuineness of the disputed Platonic writings, complains that the famous historian does not know how to write, and reminds him that his vindication of the Sophists had been anticipated by Mr. Lewes himself. We cannot admire Mr. Lytton's poem, which combines the faults of obscurity, prolixity, bad metre, and affectation.

A decided improvement has for some time past been apparent in the miscellaneous department of Temple Bar. This month there are two most seasonable articles on the two enlivening amusements of electioneering and grouse-shooting—both full of entertainment. "Through Bucks" is a charming record of a pedestrian tour; and "Pre-Adamite Man" an excellent aperçu of what is just now the most exciting topic of scientific discussion. The three novels go on vigorously, and this time we find nothing to object to in Miss Braddon's, if there is little to admire beyond her inexhaustible fertility in inventing incidents and pouring forth floods of spirited style. "We hope Mr. Yates is not about to abandon the picture of matrimonial infelicity upon us. It is a relief to have at least one story where husband and wife go to bed and ever intrudes. Such a periodical is London Society, which is as copious as ever in its store of light and agreeable pictorial.

The St. James's Magazine starts with a new story by Miss Braddon, and as yet much in her characteristic manner, nor so effective as this undoubtedly is in its way. The papers generally are not very amusing, but not remarkable. The Churchwoman's Monthly has some good articles, and displays its annual improvement in appearance and in all varieties of opinion within the pale of the Church. We can scarcely say as much of the Englishman's Magazine, which has certainly a character of its own, but not one evidently adapted for popularity. God Speed, the Army and Navy Review, and the Mercantile Magazine, the Sunday Magazine all display their several stations and objects and the tastes of the classes they respectively address.

The Victoria Magazine seems intended to be a sort of refuge for the dentistic temperance advocate of phalanstéric schemes in need of support. An account of the Imperial Fire Stick Company, by Mr. Ormond-street, will be read with interest. The Month maintains the polished and cultivated style which has made it distinguished, and also the sectarian character which confines its circulation to a select class.

Our Mutual Friend. By Charles Dickens. No. 17. (Chapman and Hall). This number is very carefully written, with some passages in Mr. Dickens's best manner, especially the description of the country village, with its abortive fair. The picture of Rokesmith and Bella's married life is pretty, though too much what we have already read in 'David Copperfield.' The long-foreseen collision between Wrayburn and Bradley Headstone takes place, and is described with much animation. It would have formed a celebrated passage in any of Mr. Dickens's early works; but the interest excited by the personages in this story is comparatively so tame and languid that the reader passes carelessly over what appears to him a mere battle of the kites and the crows.

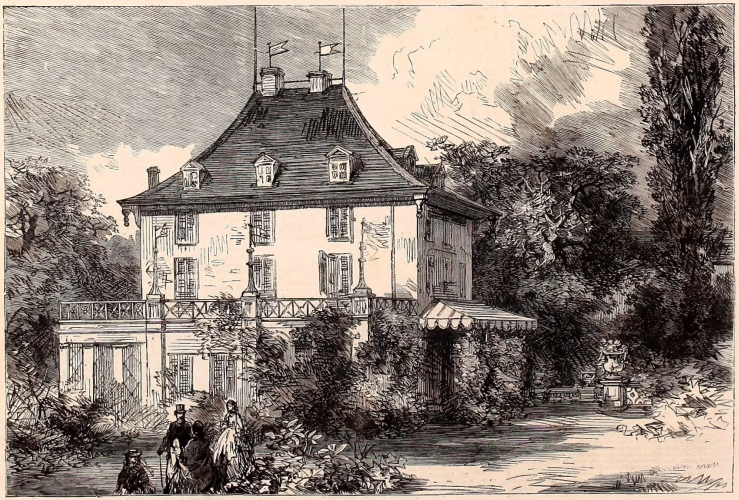
OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR JOHN H. PALMER, BART.

Sir John Henry Palmer, seventh Baronet, of Carlton, in the county of Northampton, died, on the 26th ult., at Carlton Park, the family seat, near Rockingham, Northamptonshire, in his 68th year. Mr. Palmer, M.P., the fifth Baronet, by his wife, Charlotte, daughter of Sir Henry Gage, by Lady Charlotte, his wife, daughter of Viscount Falmouth. He was born April 11, 1778, and succeeded to the baronetcy on the demise of his nephew, Sir Thomas Fanshawe, the 6th Baronet, April 16, 1817. He married, May 7, 1807, Miss Hon. Mary Byron, eldest daughter of Lord Thomas, second Lord Rendes, by whom (who died Nov. 20, 1846) he had six sons, four of whom survive him, and three daughters, of whom two are living. He is succeeded in the title by his son Penrhyn, Rector of Lessingham, Lincolnshire, born Dec. 31, 1809. The late Sir John Dorrien Palmer, Bart., and Thomas Mary, wife of the Rev. George Richard Wynne, Rector of Thorpe Mandeville, Northamptonshire, are sisters of Sir John Henry Geoffrey Palmer, the eighth Baronet, who was born June 9, 1860, and will succeed to the Bar by the Hon. Society of the Inner Temple June 8, 1864.

The late Sir Henry Palmer, Member of East Carlton, was a Whig, who became a peremptorite to the baronetcy. This old family of Palmer obtained Carlton and Wingham, Kent, by marriage with the heiress of the ancient family of Fanshawe, the other moiety through marriage with the heiress of the Warde. The first Sir John Palmer was created a Baronet of this title, in 1621, for his prowess at high service, and was Attorney-General and Chief Justice of Chester during the reign of Charles I. Sir Thomas Fanshawe, Bart., and Thomas Fanshawe, Esq., Auditor, and Sir John, the fifth Baronet, father of the Baronet just dead, all represented the county of Leicester in the House of Commons.

LORD HENRY GORDON.



Lord Henry Gordon, who died on the 26th ult., was the fourth son of Sir Alexander Gordon, fifth Earl of Aberdeen and Premier, by his wife Catherine, second daughter of Sir Charles Cope, second Baronet, of Brewerne, Oxfordshire, and was uncle of Lord Aberdeen, the present Earl. He was born on April 27, 1802, and was formerly in the East India Company's service in Bengal. He married, in 1833, Jane, daughter of Mr. Thomas Law, and by her, who died in 1858, he had issue one of the Aberdeen Militia. He married, on March 6, 1827, Miss Louisa Payne, by whom he had issue one son and one daughter. The son married, in 1860, Miss Elizabeth Catherine, widow of Lord Augustus FitzClarence; and Louisa Frances, the daughter, married the Hon. Henry Bouverie and now wife of the Hon. Audley Fanshawe, brother of the present Lord de Manley.

THE HON. W. H. ADAMS.

The Hon. William Henry Adams, Chief Justice of her Majesty's colony of Hong-kong, and late M.P. for Boston, Lincolnshire, who died, on the 29th ult., at Hong-kong, Canton, China, was born in the year 1809, and was the eldest son of Mr. Adams, who was the second son of Thomas Adams, Esq., of Norman Cross, Huntingdonshire, by his wife, Anne, daughter of Mr. Thomas Adams, Esq., of Ramsey, Huntingdonshire. He was born in 1809, and was called to the Bar by the Hon. Society of the Middle Temple, June 7, 1839. He was appointed Chief Justice of Hong-kong, and gazetted Recorder of Derby in 1858. He was a magistrate and Deputy Lieutenant of Lincolnshire, and a Justice of the Peace for Boston, at which place he was twice Mayor. He married, in 1841, Miss Ann Lee, daughter of the board of guardians of the Boston Union. He had several years chairman of the Boston Union. He had several years chairman of the board of guardians of the Boston Union. He had several years chairman of the Boston Union. He had several years chairman of the Boston Union. He had several years chairman

FRANZ LISZT CONDUCTING THE PERFORMANCE OF HIS NEW ORATORIO AT PESTH.—SEE PAGE 259.

THE CHATEAU OF ARENENBERG, SWITZERLAND, FORMERLY THE RESIDENCE OF NAPOLEON III.—SEE PAGE 259.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1334.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

MEETING OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION AT BIRMINGHAM: PROFESSOR PHILLIPS, THE PRESIDENT, DELIVERING THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS IN THE TOWNHALL.—SEE PAGE 257.

"THE PARLIAMENT OF SCIENCE."

THE above is an apt designation of the annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. It does not, it is true, exercise the functions of a legislature; but it discusses in an orderly manner, and by discussion it popularises, all the most important questions of the day relating to the operations and laws of Nature. It very usefully resembles Parliament in another respect—it sifts speculative opinion with relentless severity, and inevitably dooms pretentiousness to its proper level. Nothing can be more instructive than to contrast the method of investigation and proof exhibited by different sections of the association—methods so widely different in some instances as to start a suspicion that they cannot both deserve encouragement alike. Let anyone, for example, simply place side by side the paper read last week by Mr. Bessemer in the mechanical section, "On the Manufacture of Cast Steel: its Progress and Employment as a Substitute for Wrought Iron," and that read by Mr. John Crawfurd in the ethnological section, "On Cannibalism in Relation to Ethnology," or that by Professor Leone Levi in the section of economic science and statistics, "On Statistical Data in Relation to the Representation of the People," and he will have before him as vivid an illustration as he can wish of the difference between the true and the plausible methods of arriving at conclusions. Indeed, there are certain fields in the department of science in the exploration of which the inductive method appears to have been wellnigh superseded by the conjectural, and in which a very few facts serve as a basis for an immensely disproportionate superstructure of speculation. Year after year we think we can observe the imagination, slightly tinctured with feeling, losing ground before the philosophy of facts; and year after year that which is born of conjecture silently disappears before that which belongs exclusively to knowledge.

The British Association held its sittings this year at Birmingham, where, as Professor Phillips, the president, gracefully expressed it, "the strongest passion of the age, that by art to work in the fairy chains of Art; where Priestley analysed the air, and Watts obtained the mastery over steam." The Oxford professor, not unnaturally, expressed his desire that fresh discoveries and new inventions, as symbolised by Birmingham, might be found to be quite in unison with the solid and venerable truths which are treasured and taught in our national seats of learning. He yearned for a cordial union between these "four by it," he said, "labour is dignified and science ennobled, and the condition of human society exalted." His inaugural address may be regarded as the distinctive feature of this year's convention. Its account he gave of the present state of science, of what it had achieved, and of what it appeared to be on the eve of achieving, was charming in every respect—in the skill with which its topics were selected, in the masterly strength with which each was handled, in the artistic finish with which each was wrought into the general design, and in the classic simplicity and purity of the language in which the shortened as well as the lofty ideas were expressed. Mr. Phillips knew well what would befit the occasion. He had a hand in organising and organising the association thirty-five years ago—he has been closely identified with its progress and success—and none was better qualified than he to take a bird's-eye view of the whole domain of scientific knowledge.

The chairmen of the different sections into which the association divides itself on these annual reunions, each in his special department, followed up with able and appropriate addresses that addresses the inaugural discourse of the president. These addresses were partly historical sketches of the progress made in the departments to which they respectively related, and partly practical guides in the prosecution of inquiry therein. It would be invidious to institute a comparison between them, and as unprofitable as invidious. Everyone of them may be read with advantage, and worthily answered the purpose for which it was delivered; but we miss some of the brilliancy which shone forth from the same regions last year. The papers read in the various sections were, as may always be anticipated, very unequal in merit, and, in our humble judgment, far too numerous. Indeed, this strikes us as one of the main defects in the arrangements. We know not how it could be effectually remedied without doing more evil than it might cure. But an evil, and no trivial one, it unquestionably is. Swarms of papers of little merit are entitled to be looked upon as contributions to science, exhaust the patience of the auditory and preconvey the time which might be more usefully devoted to the discussion of a few matters of first-class importance. To some extent, great opportunities are thus frittered away, and "the parliament of science," unlike its political prototype, suffers itself to be overwhelmed by topics in which it takes no very great interest. A more discriminating and stringent rule of procedure might, we should suppose, be adopted and found serviceable. There are twaddlers and bores philosophical as well as political. Surely as well as members of Parliament occasionally have their hobbies, and will ride them whensoever and wheresoever they can. We believe, indeed, that their influence is diminishing annually; but we cannot say that their proper place has been yet assigned to them.

At the concluding general meeting, held in the Townhall, on Wednesday afternoon, Sir Roderick Murchison, in seconding the usual resolution of thanks to all who had interested themselves in the proceedings of the association, taken a share in its labours, or provided it with the means of continuing its exertions, said "he could state, as an old man of the rocks, that at no former meeting of the British Association which he had attended had there been a greater number of solid and original papers than had been read this year at Birmingham." There cannot be a doubt of Sir Roderick's competency to form an accurate judgment so far as materials for decision came before him, and his eulogium must be received as unimpeachable in its application to the geological section, over which he so ably presided. Whether it was as strictly applicable to all the other sections, one may fairly question (without challenging the distinguished philosopher's sincerity) until the "Transactions" of each have been published. No one individual, much less the president of a section, could have heard a fourth of the papers read; and, inasmuch as he could by no means find room for only a selection of the most interesting, and that in an extremely abridged form, Sir Roderick's favourable judgment must be accepted as a graceful compliment derived, in great part, from hearsay. That it had been well earned we are quite disposed to admit, although we cannot help thinking that several of the papers, as well as of the discussions which followed them, interesting and instructive as they were, might, we were but slightly in keeping with the objects of the Association.

All things taken into account, the meetings at Birmingham appear to have been a great success. Their entourage, if we may so call it, was quite in keeping with them. The Birmingham people, splendidly set off by that of the Mayor, was unbounded. The congress was attended by very nearly two thousand members, associates, and ladies. The receipts amounted to £2227, and £2120 was voted for scientific purposes during the coming year. The weather was all that could have been wished for, except, perhaps, that a slight abatement of heat would have been preferred; and the excursions in which Science holds her picnics were off in the most delightful and pleasant manner possible, seasoned, moreover, with that taste of delay and danger which the Great Western is such an adept in imparting to it. On the whole, a good time was everybody at the close of the session; and, when Professor Phillips had bidden adieu to his parliament and had announced that it would assemble next year at Nottingham, the members dispersed, each to his home or his duties, with lively impressions and associations which bid fair to stimulate scientific study and research throughout the intervening period.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

PARIS, Sept. 14, 1865.

THE heat here has moderated, and we breathe again; still nothing has arisen to disturb the dead stillness. The Emperor's government provades our Parisian life. There is neither news in the papers, nor rumour in the leading articles, nor activity in the feuilletons, for political canards afloat, nor even half a score of duels scrambled up to give at once a silly and a diversion to the ordinary worn-out subjects of conversation. The only subject which the silly people find among the Paris press as to whether the Minister for Foreign Affairs has or has not addressed a circular note to the French diplomatic agents abroad respecting the Gastein Treaty, the subject is in other respects shelved. Even the Duc de Persigny, who has been so much patronised by the Government—urging that energetic diplomatic representations be made, prior to his death and the consequent change, to the assumed murderer no longer provoke the national indignation. The Government have taken up the question, and the disease is over, as a matter of course, that no longer troubles us; and the cholera, now that we know it is absolutely dying without spreading, and that the mischief seems to be further than ever, then ever. The recent interview between the Emperor and her Majesty at Spain passes by almost without comment. Even the Mexican affair is scarcely referred to, the hidden motives at the bottom of it which political quidnuncs are prone to discover in every the most trifling affair the cause of silence.

The vintage is now general throughout France, except in those districts where it is to be had in October. It is stated in the Petit Journal that it is earlier this season than it has been for something like fifty years. The quantity of grapes is considered to be most abundant, and the quality fully equal to the average, the recent intense heat having, as it were, ripened, as a hothouse, to the ripening of the fruit. In the environs of Paris the vintage commenced exactly a month ago, and the first cart of labourers from near and from afar that stemmed the little town of Argenteuil the day preceding to hire themselves out as grape-gatherers might be counted by thousands. Consequently, the Argenteuil manufactories 70,000 pieces of sharp, rough wine, will this year produce over 100,000. The vin d'Argenteuil may be called a thin and about six sous the litre—less than id. a quart—a tolerable test of its quality. In the south of France the vintagers have chosen the moonlight, whose pay averages a franc a day, with soup in the morning, a ragout at noon, and wine at night, all round.

Your readers will remember that when, some time since, a report was presented to the Emperor in which the necessity for some new section to ensure the completion of the new opera-house in time for the Exhibition of 1867, his Majesty inquired what progress had been made with the New Hôtel Dieu. The reply was unsatisfactory, but equal—nay, superior—claims to consideration on the part of the Théâtre Impérial were advanced. It was stated that the opera-house at hospital might go hand in hand, and both edifices be completed at the same time. But the Emperor's question had been slightly modified; still it is hardly likely to be carried out, for the shell of the opera-house is just completed, while the superstructure of the hospital—occupying the site selected for the new hospital, and for which compensation amounting to 2,000,000 francs—is working leagues behind, and has only just commenced. Demolition is still the order of the day. We are to have a new street to communicate direct from the Louvre to the Place de l'Opera, the construction of which involves the pulling down of dense masses of houses. The work is progressing vigorously in the Rue St. Honoré, and attracts throughout the day a crowd of loungers, who are occasionally gratified at seeing a mass of masonry blown up by gunpowder. The Rue Rivoli is also undergoing its annual demolitions. At the Hôtel de Normandie, for instance, although all the upper stories of the house are pulled down, business appears to follow its usual calm course, as though nothing unusual were going on around. At the baker's, no matter although the upper floors and even the shop and entresol are perfectly gutted, the occupants of the premises sleep, eat, drink, live and sleep on unconcerned as the imminence of the danger which certainly threatens them.

General de Lamoricière, almost the last of the "Africans," and the inglorious commander of Pope Pius's regiments, died on Tuesday night at his chateau, at St. Cloud, at Prémesnil.

Doctor Emile Deschamps has startled the mothers of Paris with the intelligence that of every three children born in the capital one dies in its infancy. The cause is—deficient or bad nourishment. The Parisian mothers send forth their infants to hireling wet-nurses, who carry them off to a nursing village. One nurse will carry off three or four little ones, and feed them by breast or hand, as she finds it cheap or convenient. Sometimes she will place one or two infants out at a less price than she receives from the parents. Poor people, who endeavour to bring up their babes by hand, seldom rear them. Doctor Deschamps says, "A poor mother's child who is fed by hand is a dead child."

Was Mr. Charles Dickens prepared for the attention his late guest has paid him in the gigantic print of the "Grand Journal?" M. Alfred de Bréhat is most complimentary to his illustrious host of Gadshill; but the question is whether Mr. Dickens will care to see a description of his house and the domestic habits of his family served up for the amusement of his guests' readers. It has been said, I think by Mr. Carlyle, that great men taken up any way are profitable company; but taken up at lunch, intruded upon in study and bedroom, dogged on their careless walks! Have we the right to peek by them in these ways? M. de Bréhat tells his readers that Mr. Dickens has ample and substantial washing apparatus at home; that he has two or three carriages; that his locks, although curly, are inclined with grey; and that he has the air of a Chasseur d'Afrique! All this, and much more, does the guest tell the world about his host. M. de Bréhat most assuredly means no offence; but he does offend against what we "Cremorne Managers" hold to be good taste.

The Brothers Davenport, after having had a spar of words with M. Robin, in the Boulevard Montmartre, the French prestidigitateur came off second best, gave their first public performance in Paris on Tuesday night. The Salle Herz was crowded, but the affair proved a failure, and something like a row ensued. The following morning the "administration" of the Salle Herz announced the returning the entrance money to such of the dissatisfied audience as thought proper to apply for it.

The Parisians are determined to establish Cadet-à-Gascon as a favourite in their midst. They say his English accent on the stage is piquante; they praise his voice and elegance, and, above all, his vivacity. As Sir Charles Cold Cream, in the new vaudeville "L'Homme Blasé," he is most amusing, albeit many of the points of "Used Up" are omitted. The piece, however, amply compensated for this omission by the delightful blunders over Monsieur Sur Cheek's titles. Sir Charles Sur Cheek, Baronet, and now Monsieur Seer Charle. These rich bits of French English are almost as good as those of Miss Blanche, in the Queen's Scrub," where she plays the English Lady-Mistress Campbell, and is politely addressed as Mistress.

Now that the Parisian season is opening, at the first unfavourable change in the weather, to turn their backs upon Trouville and Dieppe, Asnan and Biarritz, the theatrical managers find it necessary to be on the alert. Perhaps the most important bit of theatrical news for the moment is the fact that Mr. Mansell's new opera, "Fior d'Alina," has just been read to the actors of the Opera Comique, and is now in rehearsal. The libretto is by MM. Carré and Hippolyte Lucas.

In Paris is a particular cafe, the frequenters of which are for the most part, waiters out of place. The other day a friend of mine, who was ignorant of this peculiarity, proceeded to pay it a visit; and, on not finding his commander obeyed with due alacrity, shouted out, "Garçon!" in rather a loudish key. Instantly the whole room was in commotion—business ceased to rattle, newspapers dropped from every hand, and every man present rose and passed over his left arm, though to receive his orders, when, suddenly recollecting themselves, they simultaneously sat down again, looking a trifle disgusted. The proprietor at this singular scene—by-the-by, my friend made inquiries of the proprietor of the cafe, from whom he learnt its name, that it was considered a good place by those who are in the secret to pay a visit to the cafe in question, and when the guests are deep in dominoes, or absorbed in the latest news, to suddenly shout out "Garçon!" and watch the infamous effects of this magic word.

I see that the people of Nice, alarmed at the prospect of having the cholera among them, well knowing the disadvantageous effect it would have on their speculations, have prevailed upon the Prefect of the Maritime Alps to issue an order that all travellers arriving by train from Marseilles shall be subjected to a thorough fumigation before they are let loose on the hotels of the town.

On Saturday the Emperor and Empress crossed the frontier to San Sebastian on a visit to her Majesty the Queen. We are told that Majesty descended to the bottom of the staircase to receive their Majesties, and the Emperor kissed the hand of the Queen. The Sovereigns of France and Spain subsequently appeared in the balcony, and were greeted with loud cheers by the assembled crowd. A military review was subsequently held in honour of the Imperial visit. Their Majesties dined at the Hôtel de Ville, and in the evening the Emperor and Empress returned to Biarritz.

The Queen of Spain has paid a return visit. On Monday the Queen and King, accompanied by the Princess of the Asturias and the Infanta Isabella, arrived at Biarritz on a visit to the Imperial family. The Emperor and the Empress received their guests on the arrival on the Queen at the railway-station. Upon arriving at the Villa Eugénie the Spanish Royal family were received by the Empress at the bottom of the staircase. Having rested a short time, the French and Spanish Sovereigns went to Bayonne, and were received when "The Queen" was sung; after which a review took place in the Place d'Armes in honour of the Sovereigns and a numerous suite of both nations. The streets were decorated with the French and Spanish, and much enthusiasm prevailed. At six p.m. the Imperial and Royal party returned to Biarritz, at which there was a display of fireworks. The Spanish Royal family left by the half-past ten train, being accompanied to the railway station by the Emperor and Empress.

Prince Amadeus also paid a visit to the Emperor and Empress on Monday. The Prince arrived at Paris on the following morning, and was received at the railway station by the Chevalier di Rossi and the personnel of the Italian Legation. The Prince alighted at the United Hotel, and afterwards proceeded to the Moulon.

A few nights back the bathing-cabinet recently constructed and furnished by the Empress at Biarritz was completely devastated. Mirrors, hangings, and furniture everything was broken or torn. An inquiry has been set on foot to discover the malefactors.

A life-sized statue of Napoleon I., in the costume of the School of Brienne, where he made his military studies, has been placed in the Napoleon Museum of the Imperial Powerpiats of the Louvre. It is in silver, and has been presented to the Louvre by the Emperor.

Count Walewski has received intimation from the Minister of his succeeding to not only the functions but to the dual rank enjoyed by his predecessor in the presidency of Corps Législatif.

The French squadron left Cherbourg last Saturday morning, and sailed for the coast of Africa.

The Tribunal of Commerce of Paris pronounced 152 degrees of bankruptcy within the last month.

Abd-el-Kader and his family are Brusilles for Syria yesterday week.

The Academy of Fine Arts, in its sittings of Saturday, awarded the Bordelais prize to Mr. Nicholas Poussin, widow of Andrieux, whose "Aristophanes" was recently so much admired at the exhibition of the Palace of Industry.

A statue to the honour of Dr. Jenner, the discoverer of vaccination, is now inaugurated, on Monday, with much ceremony and pomp, by our neighbours at Boulogne. There was a procession, headed by all the functionaries of the town, in addition to which Dr. Jenner was delivered by Dr. Gros. M. le Marquis du Planty, President of the Société des Sciences Industrielles, et Belles Lettres de Paris, explained the reasons of the society for giving the statue, which had been executed by one of their members, M. E. Paul, who declined remuneration. M. le Maire received the statue in the name of the town on a marble pedestal, about 12 ft. high, and measures nearly 10 ft. in height. On the border of the pedestal is inscribed the name of Dr. Jenner, and on the shield is imprinted "A Edward Jenner, la France reconnaissante, 14me Septembre, 1865."

The Moniteur gives a detailed summary of the progress of the Imperial arms in Kabylie and the labours and the pacification and improvement of the country. This appears to be proceeding favourably, if we trust only to the information contained in colonists; but from other sources we learn that there are occasional checks.

PORTUGAL.

The Cortes have been prorogued until Nov. 3, in order to give the new Ministers time to prepare measures.

AUSTRIA.

An Imperial decree has been published dissolving the old Transylvanian Diet and convoking a new Diet on the 10th of November next. The exclusive and only subject to be discussed by the new Diet is the revision of the first article of the law of 1848 on the common interests of both countries, Field Marshal Lieutenant Count Crouseville is appointed the Government Commissioner of the Diet.

UNITED STATES.

According to the New York papers, there is a probability that President Davis will be tried at Norfolk, Virginia, before Chief Justice

Chace. It is added that General Butler is about to be appointed to reset the Attorney-General in conducting the prosecutions. It appears that Mr. Davis continues to be strictly guarded, and that he is not engaged in his defence. Fortress Monroe despatches of the 31st ult. report that Mr. Davis is ill with erysipelas.

The trial of Captain Wirz continues, though not without some hitches.

President Johnson has issued a proclamation removing the trade restrictions with the southern States on all articles previously declared contraband of war, subject only to such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

A letter from Philadelphia states that the President is contributing by his conduct to add to the great party that is gradually closing around him in support of his measures. The Democratic party has evinced much authority in announce that the restoration of the writof habeas corpus and the civil law as early as possible. Telegraphic advices from Mississippi state as soon as the new Governments are in full operation; has closed up the Provost-Marshal's offices in Wisconsin and Ohio, and issued similar marshals shall, and is gradually reducing the military force all over the country.

It is announced that the cotton crop is this year likely to be less than half an average.

A Union meeting has been held at Richmond, when resolutions were passed to express indignation at the conduct of the Northern press and people in the matter of the Southerners were insincere in Government, and also their acquiescence in the result of the war, including the abolition of slavery. A Union meeting was recommended that similar meetings should be held throughout the south.

The Democratic State Convention of Ohio was held on the 24th ult., and General George W. Morgan was nominated for Governor. The platform adopted opposed coercion, maintained the doctrines of States rights according to the Virginia and Kentucky resolutions of 1798, but denied the right or power of secession, denounced negro suffrage, the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, the establishment of martial law, considered the national debt a national curse; and, while regretting the non-ratification of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, Mr. Johnson's government, resolved to support President Johnson in all constitutional efforts to restore the Union and preserve the peace.

Bands of guerrillas still keep up an organisation in Missouri. Governor Kemper was recently captured by them. He was, however, released, and everything portable on board carried off. Numerous other murders are frequent. To check these outrages Governor Sharkey has called for an organisation in each county of at least one company of volunteer cavalry and infantry. Cotton-stealing, by the negroes, is also prevalent.

J. R. Ketchum has been committed to The Tombs prison. A meeting has been held of his creditors—creditors to the amount of $1,000,000—when 5 per cent to be paid by Nov. 1, and the remainder in three months. The assets are stated at 2,000,000 dols. and the assets 2,000,000 dols. The firm of Thomas Ketchum and Son paper, but no payments have been made. The failure of the assets for the payment of J. R. Ketchum's forged cheques.

An extensive bed of pure white clay, susceptible of a fine porcelain polish, and said to be sufficient in quantity to supply all the business Mississippi valley, has been discovered in Rusk county, Wisconsin.

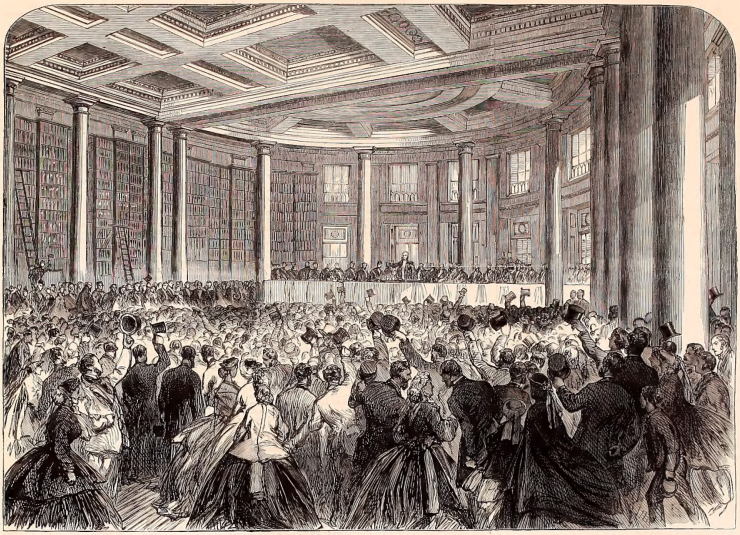
When last heard from, the Shenandoah was continuing her depredations among the American whalers, and two Federal ships of war have been sent in pursuit of her.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

The Executive Government of New Brunswick has addressed the Lieutenant Governor in opposition to the proposed measure for the confederation of the British inhabitants of that colony are as much opposed to ever, and hope they will not be compelled to become aginst their Brunswickers will yet see reason to change their minds and approve of the confederation.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Yesterday week Dr. Manning, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, laid the first stone of a Roman Catholic Archbishop



A novel rowing-race for a gold medal is to take place in the Thames, this (Saturday) afternoon, at two o'clock; and the prize, from Swimming Club, will be awarded to that one of the competitors who shall

One of the marvels of the cheap travelling of the present season was performed on Tuesday. Between one and two thousand persons left Calais in the morning, were carried to and admitted into the Exhibition before the day had ended, and returned to Calais in the evening. The journey and the entertainment cost each person 20s.

A public meeting in furtherance of the objects of London Industrial Exhibition was held, on Thursday week, at the Mansion-house, the presidency, Mr. Charles Reed in the chair. Mr. Reed, in opening the proceedings, expressed his warm approval of the chairman, in opening his support to the scheme. Mr. C. Gilpin, M.P., moved a resolution to the effect that the meeting approved of the proposed exhibition; which was seconded by Mr. Barnes, a working man, and supported by Mr. Scholefield, M.P. Mr. Pallett carried. Mr. Ramsay, secretary, announced the receipt of subscriptions to the amount of £6000, of which about £3000 had been subscribed.

Miss Crowe and her groom, Goldsmith, have been a fertile topic of conversation for the past week, were married on Thursday week at Saint Mary's Church, Bryanston-square, by the Rev. Mr. Hawtrey, the bride's uncle. The wedding remarks, "a stranger might have supposed that a royal marriage was about to be celebrated." The bride was attended by twelve bridesmaids, and arrived at the church in their temporary absence, and the bridegroom's brother then "were ushered by the police." Soon after the bridegroom arrived. He had to make a speech from the balcony of the bridegroom's brother, and the bridegroom's brother, and after a long delay the police succeeded in clearing the street sufficiently to allow the carriages to move off. The bride and bridegroom left town for Scotland.

The weekly returns issued by the Registrar-General show that in the week ending on Saturday last, Sept. 9, the births of 1966 children—939 boys and 932 girls—were registered in London. The average number in the corresponding week of the 10 years 1843-52, the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 1868. The deaths registered were 1,010 males and 1,010 females, in all 2,020. In the week of the year, last the deaths

OPENING OF THE BIRMINGHAM CENTRAL FREE LIBRARY.

MEETING OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION AT BIRMINGHAM.—PHOTOGRAPHY BY AID OF THE MAGNESIUM LIGHT.—A SKETCH AT THE SOIREE AT THE TOWNHALL.

OPENING OF THE BIRMINGHAM FREE LIBRARY.

THE Central Free Library (the second institution of this kind established under Mr. Ewart's Act, by the Corporation of Birmingham) was opened to the public on Wednesday week, by Mr. H. Wiggin, the Mayor, who was supported on this occasion by Lord Stanley, Lord Lyttelton; Mr. Adderley, M.P.; the Bishop of Worcester, and other distinguished visitors brought to the town by the meeting of the British Association. After a breakfast at the Royal Hotel, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Town Councillors, and the guests of the town, walked in procession to the building occupied by the new Free Library, which is an edifice of the Ionic style, adjoining the Townhall, handsome and commodious in the interior, as appears by our Illustration of the opening ceremony. The Bishop of Worcester having read prayers, the Mayor briefly stated the history of this institution. He observed that, soon after the passing of the Public Libraries and Museums Act of 1855, the town of Birmingham, by an almost unanimous vote of the ratepayers, adopted the proposal to carry it into effect; and the result was that the first free library was established during the mayoralty of Mr. Ryland. It had been visited by 11,000 readers; 410,000 volumes had been lent, and 1060 persons used the news-room every week. So encouraging were these results to the committee that they had formed several other free libraries in surrounding districts, and their last effort was the establishment of this great central library, which was devoted to literature and art, and would, in addition to the lending-library of 14,000 books, contain a reference-room, where the best and rarest books of reference would be found, to be used in the building. It would be the right of every householder in the town to use the library; and this he hoped they would do. His Worship then called on Lord Stanley, who made a very sensible and thoughtful speech on the benefits of such provision for the mental improvement and rational amusement of the working classes. The next speaker was the Rev. Canon Miller, who enumerated the many useful undertakings in Birmingham since 1842; they had, since that period, established the Midland Library, the Baths and Washhouses, the Trades-ing College, the branch library at Constitution-hill, the Children's Hospital, the Exchange; they were restoring St. Philip's Church, and at the Bull-ring they had established an Industrial Exhibition. They had got three parks—one the gift of Mr. Adderley, the other of Lord Calthorpe, and they had secured Aston Park for ever. These institutions, with a large expenditure for charitable purposes, and for the creation and support of churches and chapels of all denominations, showed the social progress and the public spirit of the people of Birmingham.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE MEETING OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION AT BIRMINGHAM.

THE Engraving on our front page gives a view of the scene in the Townhall of Birmingham on the evening of Wednesday week, during the delivery of the President's address, which was reported at some length in our last. There were probably about 1500 ladies and gentlemen present; but the hall is so vast that even a much larger audience would scarcely make the place appear to be full. The roof and columns are lavishly decorated, while the galleries and seats are quite plain. The assemblage of learned men on the platform was imposing enough. Although there was no Speke, Grant, Livingstone, Burton, or even Colenso, to give special attractiveness to the group, there were present Sir Charles Lyell, Professor Phillips, Sir Roderick Murchison, and a strong muster of the notabilities of science; also Leeds Stanley and Lyttelton and several knights and baronets. In the audience there was a fair proportion of ladies, while amongst the other sex, both here and on the platform, there was that remarkable diversity of physiognomy which seems to be a peculiar effect of the pursuit of science. Professor Phillips delivered his address very quietly, and was not heard distinctly throughout the hall. The meeting was slow to applaud, and it was not until the ice had been broken by the allusion to the scientific balloon ascents of Mr. Glaisher that cheers followed the periods in due order. A portrait of the president (Mr. John Phillips, Professor of Geology in the University of Oxford) will appear in our next.

An incident of the conversazione held in the same place, on the Thursday evening, is represented by the Illustration on page 256. The company on this occasion, numbering more than 2000, were entertained with the view of a large collection of microscopes, stereoscopes, and other optical instruments, besides various specimens of manufacturing ingenuity, models of the original steam-engine of Watt, and several cases of quartz and rare metals. Photographing by the magnesium light, and the consequent production of that class of miniatures called pistolgrams, was a source of some amusement, and attracted large groups around the place of operation. The hall was well lighted and ventilated; and although it required the exercise of considerable tact to thread a way through the assemblage in any given direction, the crowding was not excessive. A large room in the basement was fitted up, in excellent taste, with refreshment comptoirs; and in this, as in all the other arrangements under the direction of the Corporation of Birmingham, the science was worthy of the town and of the Association. The weather was extremely warm; but the evening was pleasantly, as well as instructively, employed. We shall give next week a few more Illustrations of the proceedings of the Association, and of the excursions to different places of interest in the neighbourhood.

THE LATE GENERAL SIR GEORGE BROWN, G.C.B.

THE DONCASTER CUP.

THE DONCASTER RACE CUP.

THE piece of plate manufactured by Messrs. Hunt and Roskell for the "Doncaster Cup," this year, is a shield of 27 in. diameter, made of oxydised silver, partly gilt, and bearing sculptured in relief, the design of which is shown in our Illustration. The artist is Mr. H. Barrett. The centre, which is in alto-relief, represents Henry of Bolingbroke (afterwards Henry IV.), on his return from banishment, met at Doncaster by the Earl of Northumberland with his son Percy. The Earl of Westmoreland and the Lords Willoughby, Ross, and D'Arcy appear in the group. Bolingbroke and Northumberland are mounted. A monk thrusts his animated head into the scene. A jester also contributes his grotesque countenance.

The group is well conceived and executed. The bani-relievi in the side compartments illustrate Greek, Roman, and modern English racing. There are here the same accuracy of design, spirit, and freedom as in the centre piece. They are divided by medallions with figures, also in alto-relief, of the genii Victory and Fame holding shields, which bear the impress of the same excellence observable in the more ambitious parts of the composition. The Doncaster Cup of 1865 certainly does honour to the firm producing it, and is a work of art the winner may be proud to possess.

THE LATE GENERAL SIR GEORGE BROWN.

THE veteran and distinguished officer whose Portrait appears on this page was the subject of an obituary notice in our Publication of the 2nd inst. He died at Linkwood, near Elgin, on the 27th ult., having attained his seventy-sixth year. During nearly the last sixty years, almost to the time of his death, the late General served in the Army, seeing much active service and holding many important commands; the last being that of the forces in Ireland, to which he was appointed five years ago. The present generation will best remember Sir George Brown as the commander of the Light Division during the Crimean War, and the brilliant perseverance with which he swept over the obstacles prepared by the Russians on the slopes beyond the Alma and fought his way to the heights. In that action his horse fell pierced with eleven bullets, but he himself was not wounded. At Inkerman he again rendered important service, and was wounded. When he was able to return to duty, he took the command of the troops in the attempt to storm the Redan, on June 18, and afterwards commanded the expedition in the Sea of Azoff. He was at that time sixty-five years old. This was the last active service in which he was engaged; but in earlier years he had been present at the attack on Copenhagen and fought through the whole of the great Peninsular War. At Talavera he was wounded; he was one of the forlorn hope at the storm of Badajos; at Busaco he fought hand to hand with one of Massena's staff officers, whom he disabled after a desperate struggle with his sword. He bore part in most of the great struggles of that war. In 1814 he accompanied Major-General Ross on his expedition to America, where he took part in the battle of Bladensburg and the capture of Washington. Returning to England, he was employed in an administrative position at the Horse Guards until the expedition to the Crimea, in 1854, when he gave him active service once more. In 1860 he was made Commander of the Forces in Ireland.

Sir George Brown entered the Army, as Ensign in the 43rd Regiment, in 1806, and obtained his lieutenancy the next year. He got his captaincy in the 85th, while serving in the Peninsula, in 1811; Major and Lieutenant-Colonel, both in 1814; was made Colonel in the Rifle Brigade, 1831; and Major-General, 1841. The next year he was appointed Deputy Adjutant-General of the Forces, and in 1850 Adjutant-General; Lieutenant-General, 1851; Colonel-in-Chief of the Light Division in the Crimea, 1854. In 1855, after Inkerman, he was made a G.C.B., and he attained the full rank of General in April, 1858, conferred for "distinguished service in the field."

Our Portrait is engraved from a photograph by Mr. L. Werner, of Dublin.

BIRTHS.

At Secondcrubbed, Deeean, the Hon. Mrs. Bonar Deane, of a daughter.
At Malta, Baroness Scheeria Dundas, of a daughter.
At Hamilton-place, Lady S. Bond, of a son.
At Banbury Hall, Worcestershire, Lady G. Vernon, of a son.
On the 26th ult., at Montreal, Canada, the wife of Lieutenant-Colonel William Earle, Commander Guards, of a daughter.
On the 11th inst., at Clifton, Gloucestershire, the wife of Charles Newton Higgs, Esq., late Captain 43th Regiment, of a daughter.
On the 1st, at Valparaiso, the wife of Mr. Edward Edmondson, of a son.
On the 7th inst., at Penrhyn-castle, Bangor, the wife of Major Mostyn Jackson, Esq., of a daughter.
On the 4th inst., at Villa Marina, Weston-super-Mare, the wife of J. H. Smyth Pigott, Esq., of a son.
On the 4th inst., at 5, Kensington-gate, Hyde Park South, the wife of Mr. Stephen Levick, of Melbourne, of a son.
On the 14th inst., at Rye-hill Villa, Peckham-rye, the wife of George A. Bacon, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

At All Saints', Knightsbridge, the Hon. R. Bouverie Pleydell, brother of Lord Shaftesbury, to Lily, daughter of R. W. Schomley, Esq.
At the Church, London, Count the V. Maiocchi, to Elizabeth, daughter of the late Vice-Admiral Maling, of The Hime, Worcestershire.
At St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, by the Rev. Dr. Pool, Dean of Worcester, the Countess of Jersey, to Mr. C. Brandling.
At Whalley, R. G. Lambert, eldest son of R.N., to Mary, only child of the late Sir H. J. Lambert, Bart., to Rosaira Anne, daughter of the Rev. B. F. Purvis, Vicar of Whalley, Lancashire.
On the 5th inst., at St. Thomas's Church, Derby, by the Rev. W. H. Girdlestone, Vicar of Ryde and Newchurch, Capt. Frank Cavendish Herries, R.M. 63th Regiment, second son of the late Lieutenant-General Sir William Lewis Herries, K.C.B., and C.B., to Louisa Wilmot, third daughter of J. B. Thomas, Esq., of Leyton, Essex, and Kedleston, Derbyshire.
On the 7th inst., at St. Peter's, Notting Hill, by the Rev. Wm. Curling, M.A., Chaplain of St. Saviour's, Southwark, Edward Thomas Bellamy, Esq., Barrister, M.A., of St. Leonard's, Streatham, Mary Isaabe, daughter of Mrs. Dunbar, of Kensington Park Gardens, to Captain Stanley Vickers, youngest son of Admiral Vickers, Esq., of Victoria-street, Westminster, and Hill House, Streatham, Surrey.
On the 12th inst., at Welbeck House, Lamrkshire, by the Rev. James S. Brownlow, Rector of Boyd, Eng., third Gordon Highlanders, to Mary, eldest son of the late David Boyd, Esq., Surgeon General, Madras Army, to Mary Rowand, second daughter of the late Alexander Rowand, Esq., of Inverness.
On the 13th inst., at the parish church, Brighton, Lieutenant Arthur Wagner, M.A., Thomas Cooke, eldest son of Thomas Brandon, Esq., of Grimsby House, Brixton, to Amelia, only daughter of the late Thomas Cooke, Esq., of Hereford House, Brixton-rise.
On the 3rd ult., at the parish church, Erith, Kent, by the Venerable Archdeacon Smith, Edward Harris, Esq., of Kustendjee, Turkey, to Annie Tattershall, second daughter of the late John Tattershall, Esq., of Peterborough, N. Devon. No cards.
On the 7th inst., at Streatham, by the Rev. J. R. Nicholl, Rector, Alfred George Foot, Esq., Royal Engineers, youngest son of the late Lonsdy Edward Foot, Esq., of Bath, to Jessie, only surviving child of the late Solomon Cuthbert, Esq., of Leeds.
On the 12th inst., by the Rev. Wm. Bell Christian, at Lavarre, late of Man, Robert Hodge, Esq., of Brixton, Surrey, to Mary Caroline, eldest daughter of Frank Gilder, Esq., H.P. Colstream Guards.

DEATHS.

At Bath, General Sir J. Ferguson, G.C.B., Colonel 43rd Light Infantry; aged 78.
At Superton Cottage, Mrs. Moore, widow of T. Moore, Esq., author of "Lalla Rookh," aged 87.
At Nicosia, Robert Herbert, French Consul at Cyprus.
At Hampton Court, C. J. E. Hamilton, son of the late Archdeacon R. Hamilton and Canon C. B. Hamilton, in his 69th year.
At Bellyhilloan, Queen's County, the Rev. Sir R. H. J. Wilch, Bart., aged 78.
On the 29th ult., at Bombay, John Hurst Esq., solicitor, late of the Admiralty Prize Office, aged 61, much beloved, and leaving a wife and child to mourn his death.
On the 12th inst., at Nicholson House, Sunderland, William Nicholson, Esq., J.P., aged 77.
On the 29th ult., at Gothenburg, Sweden, Mrs. James Barclay, in the 49th year of her age.
On the 8th inst., at Hastings, Louisa, the youngest daughter of the late Thos. Sydney Roe, of Clapham.
On the 8th inst., at Chapel-hill, North Petherton, John, infant son of John and Frances Watson, aged nine months. R. I. P.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 28.

SUNDAY, Sept. 17.—Fourteenth Sunday after Trinity. St. Lambert, bishop and martyr. The French National Convention established, 1792.
MONDAY, 18.—Month of Matthew Prior, poet, 1721. Battle of Aughrim, under Lauzun'chies, defeated by the Sarsfieldmen, under Cladiau, at Castle-Sarsfield, 1691.
TUESDAY, 19.—Battle of Poictiers (King John of France defeated and taken prisoner by Edward the Black Prince), 1356. New moon, 1h. 40m. p.m.
WEDNESDAY, 20.—Ember Week. Trenty of Ryswick signed (peace between Great Britain, France, and Spain), 1697. Battle of the Boyne (Irish and Russians defeated by the allied English and French army), 1854.
THURSDAY, 21.—Ember Day. Battle of Alexandria (French defeated), 1801. Jewish year 5626. Death of Sir Walter Scott, 1832.
FRIDAY, 22.—Battles of Platea and Mycale (Greek victories over the Persians), 479 B.C. First day of the first year of the French Republic, 1792.
SATURDAY, 23.—The College of Physicians chartered by Henry VIII., 1518. Death of Edmund Jewell, a champion of the Commonwealth, 1671.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE, FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 22.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. h. m.	M. h. m.	M. h. m.	M. h. m.	M. h. m.	M. h. m.	M. h. m.
5 18	6 0	6 42	7 24	8 6	8 48	9 30
A. h. m.	A. h. m.	A. h. m.	A. h. m.	A. h. m.	A. h. m.	A. h. m.
5 42	6 24	7 6	7 48	8 30	9 12	9 54

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION,
Lat. 51° 30′ 30″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 0″ W.; Height above Mean Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF			THERMOMETER.		WIND.		Direction of Current.	Rain in Inches.
	Temperature of Evaporation.	Temperature of Dew Point.	Elastic Force of Vapour.	Highest.	Lowest.	Amount.	Direction.
	Inches.	°		°	°	0–10			Miles Inches
6	30·128	60·0	50·4	·73	1	81·3	74·7	W.	··· ·000
7	30·020	59·2	52·7	·78	1	84·4	79·4	S.W.	··· ·000
8	29·764	72·2	61·6	·63	0	54·7	90·8	SW. WSW.	··· ·000
9	29·970	67·8	57·1	·70	1	68·2	87·3	SSW. SW.	576 ·000
10	·····	·····	·····	·····	·····	69·2	72·8	·····	241 ·000
11	30·032	62·4	50·1	·91	5	62·1	72·8	WSW. W.	202 ·000
12	30·396	46·3	37·8	·73	7	57·5	74·3	CALM.	63 ·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer in inches reduced to 32°	30·125	30·000	29·783	30·076	30·128	30·317	30·497
Temperature of the air	62·0°	64·0°	64·0°	64·0°	61·0°	61·0°	54·0°
Temperature of Evaporation	60·0°	59·2°	52·7°	61·6°	61·7°	61·1°	53·4°
Direction of wind	W.	SW.	SW.	SW.	S.W.	W.	N.W.

Will be published, Sept. 28,

PRICE ONE SHILLING, BEAUTIFULLY PRINTED IN COLOURS,

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR 1867, containing GEMS OF HORTICULTURE, from Paintings by Mrs. Withley, PRINTED IN THE HIGHEST STYLE OF THE CHROMATIC ART, by Leighton Brothers, with an interesting description of each by Mrs. Lankester; TWELVE FIRE-ART ENGRAVINGS; Astronomical Diagrams of Remarkable Phenomena, with explanatory notes; ORIGINAL DESIGNS OF WILD FLOWERS; Headings to the Almanack.

It contains, also, lists of the Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Members of the New Parliament; Lists of Public Offices and Officers; Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Moveable Days; Anniversaries; Commercial and Legal Memoranda; Law Sessions; Markets; Revenue and Expenditure; Obituary; Christian, Jewish, Mahometan, and Chinese Dates; Foreign Sovereigns and Governments; Duties; Times of High Water; Post Office Regulations, together with a large amount of useful and valuable information, which has rendered the Illustrated London Almanack for many years the most acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table; whilst it is universally acknowledged to be by far the cheapest Almanack ever published.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack every exception advantage that will render it deserving of the circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The Work will be printed on toned paper, and published in an elegant cover, printed in colours by the same process as the Illustrated London News, a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

We shall continue in next week's Number our Illustrations in connection with the Birmingham meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

198, Strand, W.C.

AVIS À NOS ABONNÉS SUR LE CONTINENT D'EUROPE.—W. S. RICHARDED et Cie., rue de Richelieu, 27, Paris, sont les intermédiaires des abonnements pour la France, la Belgique, la Suisse, l'Italie et l'Espagne. Prix de l'abonnement pour la France, la Belgique et la Suisse, 10f. par trimestre: l'Italie et l'Espagne, 12f. par trimestre. Remise fait aux Libraires et Marchands des Journaux.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1865.

ONCE more the Americans have taken a step in advance of the old countries, and we record the fact with some humiliation, while giving the fullest and freshest recognition of the good news which has been elicited by our reading. A legal tribunal in America has solemnly declared the Spiritualists to be mere jugglers, and has decided, therefore, that they must pay the jugglers' tax to the State before their exhibitions can be permitted to proceed.

After what has from time to time appeared in these columns upon the subject of the mischievous and impudent quacks in question, we should not be surprised to see that we hail this decision, tardy though it has been, with unqualified satisfaction. The sentence which places the knaves in their true position, which strips them of the mock dignity into which they have clothed themselves by their audacious profanity, and which puts them among the knife-swallowers, conteltlers, and card-manipulators, is, of course, a most sensible and righteous sentence, but that is not all. It formally degrades them, and makes it impossible while they tamely pay the tax, and subjects for the care of the police if they dare to refuse to pay. They are pronounced to be more or less diverting vagabonds. Had they taken this position when they first showed themselves in England we should never have noticed them, except with the goodnatured praise we give to any other entertainer. A mountebank may not be a very dignified member of society, but he may be an honest man. Honesty, however, and jugglery are, it would seem, incompatible. Even the better educated idiots, who allow themselves to be mystified by jugglers' jargon and jugglers' tricks, and who profess a spiritual belief, can never tell the exact truth when making a statement on the subject, and they wriggle under cross-examination. Better morals were not to be expected from the illiterate and greedy quacks who trade upon the folly of the believers, and it was still less to be expected when we remember upon what trash, in the shape of evidence, Spiritualists founded their miserable faith. To have said, "The world calls us jugglers; we accept the name, and hope to convince, in spite of that name," would have been the course of a philosopher. But to have said this would have involved the necessity of the exercise of bodyism, which is ever ready to be deluded, but insists upon gravity and long words from the operators. So we had pretensions to supporting and even helping on the most preposterous as those of the quack medicine-venders, and testimony as large as was desired and as valuable as the pickpocket's alibi. Much mischief was done, much plunder was gained, and now the country in which the humbug invented brands it on the brazen forehead with the word jugglery.

The news comes at a fortunate moment; for we perceive that the most notorious of these spiritualistic quacks, after throwing the English press off its scent by causing it to be circulated that they had slunk back to America, have appeared in Paris, and are said to be making a success. Portions of the French press are as unprincipled as portions of that in America, and are as open to pecuniary influences, and we have no doubt that bribery has done its work in the procurement of many of the articles which we read. A cynical love of mystification also characterises many of the French journalists, who arrogate themselves for much enlightened science by talking very wildly upon topics on which they are left free. It is, perhaps, hard to refrain from occasionally hoaxing solemn and pompous, but credulous, folks, who give themselves superior airs—and this is not an unfair description of a good many well-to-do people in Paris and elsewhere. The two agencies we have indicated are working in favour of Spiritualism in France—the hirelings are serving their own and the cynics are affecting to be astonished. Could we hope that these lines would be translated by the respectable part of the French press, for the benefit of their readers, we would ask that the Parisians may be told that the Spiritualists' quackery, having been exposed a hundred times in England, in spite of the efforts of the quacks to avoid all real investigation, became the laughing-stock of the people, until the jugglers ventured into rather rougher company than any of the metropolis, and then they were simply kicked out, and fled. If the spiritualistic quacks will accept cast-off Spiritualism from England, after this information, of course the laugh will not be against the jugglers.

So, the American tribunals having formally done that which had from the first been done unofficially by all rational folk in England, we shall, we suppose, not have common-sense insulted any more by American quacks of the spiritualist kind. Any future "mediums" may carry odd guitars across the ocean, eat-a-nauts, will come as do the ingenious jugglers whose advertisements in some of our weekly contemporaries are far more amusing reading than most of the new novels. We shall know that, if they really come from America, they are licensed tumblers, who have their tax-money in their trunks. With these, of course, we can have no quarrel. If they choose to announce that, by means of spectral hands, they can carry odd guitars across the room, with scraps of phosphorus stuck on them, and fools like to pay for such an exhibition, this is a free country, and every man has a right to amuse himself his own way, provided he annoys nobody else. But we are glad to be relieved from the sickening nonsense of the spiritualistic quackery is here to be put to such tomfoolery have but to wait until Christmas, when they will see it much better done in the pantomimes. But all this is the business of the next very wise people themselves. America expects no more, and it is enough. The sole use of the Republic is on the article pretending to be spirits, and we know that it is harmless.

But, unluckily, we have no jugglers' tax in England. Shakspeare and Mozart cannot be played without a license; but a fellow may take a room and call up the spirits of Shakspeare and Mozart without let or hindrance. The police have no power of interference, and, therefore, exposed to the humiliation of hearing that spiritualistic quackery is flourishing here in England. Sometimes we hear, with extreme regret, that it is countenanced by families in other respects creditable. If there is a son whose allowance is too extended for his father's office or counting-house, and who lounges at home or at clubs, smoking, and lets hair grow all over his face, we learn, without surprise, that the idle blockhead has strong convictions as to spirit influences. If there is a dull old stupid girl who has disgusted sensible young men, and who cannot get an offer, she is quite prepared to be told that she visits a spiritualistic family, and has had revelations. The regular practitioners in the business look out for such people, and practise upon them very much as much honesty as that of an advertising, puffing dentist, who privately avows that he never expects or wishes to see the same victim twice. For such fools as these whom we have described, for hysterical women, and for the ill-starred, and for the wholly silly there is at present no protection like that which the American tribunal has luckily devised. The jugglers will still penetrate into certain English circles, and for hire will continue to play their unholy mischief. The only effectual weapon which can be used against them is the press, and that can perseveringly, and at the risk of being accused of monotony and bigotry, proclaim that a hireling Spiritualist is a vulgar rascal. That view has been published upon various occasions, and have been thanked for doing so, and we shall go on with our not very agreeable work until the Vagabond Act shall be amended so as to bring these abominable quacks within the reach of the law. We shall then leave the Spiritualist to the policeman and hemp-picking. In the mean time we offer our congratulations to the Americans that they have done that which we cannot do, evil which they certainly fostered, as the keepers of their gaols and madhouses can testify. Their Spiritualist is henceforth a juggler in law, as well as in fact.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, Lord Churchill, and Lady-in-Waiting, left the suite, arrived at Windsor Castle at a quarter past twelve o'clock yesterday (Friday) week from Balmoral. The journey was performed without the entire route was concluded with the utmost privacy. In the afternoon the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the castle grounds. Princess Louisa, attended by the Hon. Horatia Stopford, took a drive.

On Saturday last the Queen held a Council, at which were present Earl Granville, the Duke of Somerset, and the Right Hon. E. Cardwell. Earl Granville presided in audience of the Queen. Philips was Clerk of the Council. Lord Rivers and Lieutenant-Colonel Ellington were the Lord and Groom in Waiting. Parliament was further prorogued from the 1st to the 23rd of November; and the Convocation of the Province of Canterbury and York were prorogued from the 2nd to the 24th of November. The Bishop of Chester arrived at the castle, to do homage on his appointment, and was introduced by the Right Hon. E. Cardwell. The Hon. and Rev. R. S. Keppel was Deputy Clerk of the Closet. Subsequently the Queen received the Baron de Renfrew and Melville. Queen Emma, attended by her suite, arrived at the castle at three o'clock. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Hon. and Rev. C. L. Courtenay, Chaplain to her Majesty, officiated. The Duke de Nemours, Princess Marguerite, the Duke d'Alençon, and the Duke and Duchess de Montpensier visited the Queen and remained to luncheon. In the afternoon the ceremony of christening the infant son of the Hon. and Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor and Mrs. Wellesley took place in the private chapel of the castle. The Queen stood as sponsor. The other sponsors were the Duke of Wellington and Lieutenant-Colonel C. Ellison. The Rev. and Rev. C. L. Courtenay, Canon of Windsor, performed the ceremony. Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Leopold, and Princess Beatrice were present. The Duchess of Wellington and the Hon.

Horatia Stopford attended her Majesty. There were also present the Dean of Windsor and the Hon. Mrs. Wellesley, Lord and Lady Rokeby and the Hon. Miss Montagu.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the grounds of the castle. Princess Louisa, attended by the Hon. Horatia Stopford, walked out. Count Gleichen visited her Majesty. Lord Lyons arrived at the castle and had an audience of the Queen.

DEPARTURE OF THE QUEEN FOR SCOTLAND.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold, left Windsor Castle at a quarter before seven o'clock on Monday evening, en route for Balmoral. The suite in attendance consisted of Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, Miss Marsh, and Miss Grey; General Bruce, C.B., Mr. A. Ponsonby, and Mr. Duff. The Queen was received at the Windsor station of the Great Western Railway by Mr. J. Grierson, the general manager; and Mr. Tyrrell, and by Mr. W. Cawkwell, general manager, and Mr. G. P. Neale, superintendent, of the London and North-Western Railway, the Mayor of Windsor. The Queen travelled in a state saloon by a special train provided by the London and North-Western Railway. The train was under the charge of Mr. J. Grierson, and left Windsor at five minutes to seven, proceeding, viâ Slough and Reading, to Oxford. At this station Lady Churchill joined the train, in attendance upon the Queen. Thence the route was continued, viâ Leamington, to the Rugby junction, at which station the charge of the train was undertaken by Mr. W. Cawkwell. The journey was resumed to Stafford, where a halt of a quarter of an hour was made. Hence the route was continued, viâ Bow's Head, to Carlisle, arriving at twelve minutes past four on Tuesday morning. Change over the Caledonian Railway to Perth, where the Queen alighted, and was received by the Earl of Mansfield, Viscount Melgund, the Caledonian Railway, Lord Provost Kemp, Sheriff Barclay, and the railway directors. Her Majesty partook of breakfast in the directors' room at the station. The journey was resumed at twenty-five minutes past seven by the Scottish North-Eastern line viâ the Bridge of Dun to Aberdeen, and thence over the Deeside Railway to Ballater, arriving at the terminus of the line, the entire journey of 580½ miles having been accomplished in seventeen hours and a half. The journey was performed in complete privacy, that the Queen might travel undisturbed. From Aboyne her Majesty travelled post to Balmoral, which she reached at three o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

Earl Russell the Minister in attendance upon the Queen.

The Court is expected to remain at Balmoral for about seven weeks.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, with their two children, and Princess Hilda of Anhalt-Dessau, embarked at Gravesend on Tuesday (this) morning on board the Royal yacht Osborne. In attendance upon their Royal Highnesses were the Hon. Mrs. Hastings, Major Teesdale, Mr. Holmes, Surgeon in Scheie, and Surgeon Keate. Shortly after ten the Princes and Princesses partook of breakfast on board. At mid-day their Royal Highnesses were entertained at luncheon at the Town palace, where they were entertained as a dejeuner by the King of the Belgians. The Princesses remained on board the yacht at half-past two, and the Osborne steamed off en route for England. After a boisterous passage the Royal party arrived at Cowes at half-past eleven o'clock. On Monday morning at six o'clock the Osborne resumed its passage, and anchored off Spithead. The Royal party breakfasted on board, and disembarked at the Pier at eleven, when they were received by Lieutenant-General the Hon. Major-General Keppel, C.B., and the principal officials of the arsenal. At the Prince's request, no ceremony was observed. Their Royal Highnesses left Portsmouth immediately after landing, and proceeded to Winchester, where they were entertained at a déjeuner by the Mayor and Corporation at the Guildhall. The Prince and Princess, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse and Princess Hilda of Anhalt, left for Reading.

On Tuesday the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and Princess Hilda of Anhalt, visited the Crystal Palace, this being the first visit of the Princess to the building. Their Royal Highnesses were received by Mr. Grieve, the manager, privately through the various courts, and afterwards the Royal party partook of luncheon in the principal rooms, from the windows of which they witnessed the display of the great fountains. The Princes and Princesses returned to London at half-past four by special train from Sydenham station. In the evening their Royal highnesses honoured the Adelphi Theatre with their presence.

On Wednesday the Princes, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse and the Duke of Cambridge, went shooting near Richmond. The Princesses, accompanied by Princess Louise of Hesse, Princess Hilda of Anhalt, visited the Tower of London. In the evening their Royal Highnesses joined with the Duke of Cambridge in a dinner-party.

On Thursday the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince Alfred, Prince and Princess George, left Victoria Station by train for the Highlands. Their Royal Highnesses are expected to remain at Abergeldie Castle about three weeks.

The Duke of York, G.C.B., has succeeded the Hon. Mrs. Hardige as Lady in Waiting to the Princess.

Lieutenant-General Keppel has succeeded Major Teesdale as Equerry in Waiting to the Prince.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge arrived at Gloucester House, on Saturday last, from Bishop Auckland.

His Serene Highness Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar has left Gordon Castle, the Duke of Richmond's seat in Scotland, for the south.

Her Highness Princess Amelia of Saxe-Weimar, accompanied by her son, Prince Alexander, and suite, has arrived at the Clarendon Hotel, from Scotland.

The Duchess of Roxburghe has arrived at the Clarendon Hotel.

The Marquis of Hartington, M.P., arrived at Devonshire House, on Saturday last, from Bolton Hall, Lancashire.

Countess Cowper(Lady Waldegrave) and the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., left town on Saturday, for Chesworth, the Countess's seat in Somersetshire.

The Earl of Denbigh has arrived at Benafort Castle, N.B., on a visit to Lord Lovat.

Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston left town on Saturday last, for Brocket Hall, Herts.

The Right Hon. W. Hutt, M.P., and Mrs. Hutt have arrived at the Alexandra Hotel, Hyde Park-corner.

Mr. W. H. Gladstone, M.P., gave a treat, on Tuesday, to the villagers of Hawarden, amounting to 1100 persons, as an acknowledgment of the recovery which was given to him on the day of the fête, exactly a day he was elected to Parliament. Tea was provided for the young in the flower garden, in the terrace opposite the castle, and for the grown-up and adults in a spacious pavilion. The Chancellor of the Exchequer presided, and his Grecian Ulysses occupied the vice-chair. Many loyal and appropriate toasts, arches and overgrowns, and the day was observed as a general holiday.

A publication full of great interest in the value to all artists of architecture has been commenced by Mr. Stephen Ayling, of Oxford-street. It is a work of two hundred photographs from the sketch-book of Mr. Augustus Welby Pugin, selected and edited by Mr. E. W. Pugin, his son. They represent a great variety of ecclesiastical, domestic, military, and decorative design from the most celebrated and characteristic edifices of England, France, and Germany, accompanied by descriptive letterpress. The first number contains fifty specimens from the sketch-book of Pugin. There are to be ten parts; issued, we believe, monthly; and it is only to be regretted that the price is so high as to put the publication out of the reach of purchasers.

The Reading Exhibition of Art and Industry, referred to in our last Number, was opened, on Wednesday, by the Bishop of Oxford, who pronounced the inaugural address in the presence of the Mayor and Corporation of Reading; the Mayors of Abingdon, Newbury, Wallingford, and Maidenhead; the Lord Lieutenant of Berkshire, Lord Abingdon; the county and borough members; and a large assembly, composed of the magistracy and gentry of the town and county. The exhibition is held in the Town-hall. The patronage of her Majesty was secured at an early period in its history; and her example induced the nobility and gentry of Berkshire, with hardly a single exception, to throw themselves into the movement with such cordiality and so much effect that pictures and articles of virtu, of the most remarkable character, and become a fine-art exhibition instead of an industrial one. It will, therefore, be no particular wonder if it should prove more attractive than most local exhibitions.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

DONCASTER RACES.

As the corporation have not yet published their grand-stand returns, there is no accurate guage of the financial success of the meeting. The guinea throng, however, seemed as large as usual; nearly 200 horses arrived, and the public money was £2350. More is given at Ascot, but it is to be remembered that the Doncaster subscribers have none of its enormous revenue from booths and carriages, and that in proportion to their number they are as liberal as the managers of the Royal meeting; while Goodwood, with all its fine revenue, is still a laggard. It is to be wished that some of the municipal public spirit could be infused into the house and lodging letters; but these harpies were as rapacious as ever, and many honest, many non-professional visitors did not arrive till Tuesday afternoon, when they were able to make better terms with the enemy, or slept at the adjacent towns each night.

With the exception of Gladiateur, all the prominent St. Leger competitors started on Wednesday, and a fine race was the result. The Duke and Regalia were to be found in the Cup entry. The Duke had quite recovered from his recent "pull," and came through the metropolis with four horses, and Regalia was a far greater favourite with the Yorkshiremen than Hurtleberry. She had weighed the latter in the York balances and felt they did not quite equal her weight, and therefore backed her against the Derby and Oaks winners. It is very seldom that these two meet here. They did so in Queen of Trumps's year, and again in Stockwell's, when Blink Bonny united the two characters in herself. A large crowd as usual were in early attendance on Tuesday on the Town Moor, which, however, was not nearly so full as on Saturday night, which hardly "grinn" under the rain of Saturday night, did not improve the action. Rumours were remarkably rife that Dodge Dollar would try very damp, and was thought to be too narrow and split up behind for the task before him. Zero, Zero Gradatim, Hurtleberry, and Lady Elizabeth wanted spot, near the Intake turn, where the veteran, with Lord Falmouth's colours, was to be seen looking very much at home and fit, as she walked at the head of the string, with the "J. B." on the hands, while Regalia and Gladiateur were led out by their lads in their jackets. Zenith, the trainer of Archbishop, was too ill to come out with his, and Isinglass was the centre of a crowd of the Newmarket jockeys whose horses names one finished through racing men. The Gratwicks Stakes had frightened all the "Blink Bonny chestnuts" friends, and there seemed only one bay, a black leg, and a dark leg in Gibbon chance went.

Christmas Carol was scratched on the Monday evening—no surprise to those who saw him beaten by Attaché at Wolverhampton, and the start was fixed for a quarter to two, Admiral Rous presiding, and Challoner was then at liberty for Klarinska, to the great relief of those who had to back the favourite against her. Zero, Zero Gradatim, and Macaroni "shotheads." The protest of Regalia's owner against Gladiateur proved abortive, and the latter was objected to, although more especially as officials had been made after the Derby as to the colt's age. Such an objection should support his claim more than any horse's, even more "than they say." In fact they practically offered Mr. Graham a rule to show cause why he should have the mouth examined, and as he declined to do so, the colt's age was not a matter about the horse, but the ideas of those who maintained to the last that he was never a foal. Gladiateur looked very handsome, considerably, when the well-known van, with Tom Jennings on the box, drove through the Grand Stand gate, and Tuesday, Lady Elizabeth very degree followed it to the Doncaster Arms, and out stepped the Derby conqueror, looking as if he could have had a little more work in the paddock behind.

The lower Newmarketings, which he disturbed for an instant, were not very lively. The highest of Mr. Mather's first batch of yearlings, an own brother to Sporting Tailor, Lady Elizabeth, by Stockwell from Fair Fly, an oak's dam (420gs.) and Scavenger by Voltigeur (350gs.) were the top prices in the Whitefield stud; a chestnut colt by Parmesan from Lady Hester, by Stockwell, was the strength of their own good looks and quality as Studett's running; averaged £1,000 for the twenty-three sold. Mr. Merry's colt by one of the Oxford colts shared the maximum prize of the day (500gs.) with Sir Tatton Sykes's very good-looking bay colt by Knight from Miss Agnes. A Voltigeur colt from Little Agnes was to have come with his Trojan brother, but was scratched at the last moment. A few days before he went so unmistakably in his wind that the Doncaster vets would not pass him, and he returned home. He is a full brother to Lord Lyon's foal. The style in which the Weatherbit colt was "brought to scratch" was a great delight to Harry to the "hotter heads," and Mr. Padwick would not be denied for him.

Sixty-six horses took part in Tuesday's racing, which opened badly, with a cast of the dice for the Rous Memorial Stakes, Mr. Merry's lot. The chestnut inherits much of his sire Teddington's fine speed, and, at 12 lb. for the two years, was expected to be invincible. He was second for this race last year to Adventurer. Broomclose carried 7lb. extra, and Mr. Merry's colt, below the Clarence, thus beat Klarinska's admirers became still less ardent. Sister to Cambuscan, a chesty gelding at the Spital yet, was beaten by Lady Elizabeth "passed the blood," knocked over in the Filly Stakes, what was thought to be a Cleveland Bay mare, but was a good deal more. Rosebery chopped down Queen of Trumps, whose presence had spoilt the Revival Plate Field, for sixteen in the Great Yorkshire Handicap "ran like a covey of partridges out of the ground" when Mr. M'George let them go, and a very strong run race, in which Claremont, as usual, did not get home. Mr. Merry's colt, the third, had gained a length to make a race for John Davis by Voltigeur, ended in favour of the latter by six lengths. Mr. Merry's colt was second, below the Clarence, third, at even weights, but Gladiateur's supporters declared that even that was not good enough to give him a victory. It may have come since a baker's dozen have been seen at the post for the Champagne, but here they were to a dozen, and Lord Lyon and Dollar Princess. The latter gave no trouble, as Edwards was hard at him more than two distances from home. Lord Lyon, in fact, had never responded with what it was at Goodwood, that the hard ground must have something to do with it. Rodan never looked or went better, but Lord Lyon caught him in the run home, and got a head last night. Lord Elcho's Vincent was very loth to divide. It was a great triumph for his Lordship's colt, whose performance was the more creditable that if the clever little Artillery bay had just pulled through, there would indeed have been "hands tossed in glee" in the paddock with flourish fair." The heavily engaged Gladiator took the staggers when he was only half-way to the post, and was taken back outside of the course that they could hardly get him raised and led off in time for the start. This grave affair was the only one between Stephen and Kingfisher; and Red Earl won his mile race so easily as 2 lb. to the good, that the Doncaster Cup looked like the crown "coloured" him in the St. Leger card. "The Duke" was quite the "young horse" he was expected to be, and Lord Zetland's colt, who was said to have won £7000 over the Great Yorkshire Handicap, backed him with such vigour that he came to 4 to 1, and left off 2 to 1 against.

The St. Leger morning opened warm and well, and, heedless of the Hyde Park attractions, the road was thronged with a gay throng with nearly 400,000 eyes, the crowds began that steady tramp, from nine o'clock, which continued for hours. The course looked in the best fair, and others pondered long, with true Yorkshire devotion, over the various "Cheap Jacks" and "Cheap Johns," from the Old Gold Cup Census in Brooke's window. They proved that Mr. Herring was the favourite, and Mr. Chaloner second, but the whole run of that ancient cunning which was first deserted and fostered in Doncaster Betting Rooms. Mr. Merry's colt was the first down the Highflyer from York to Scathing Moor, fully half a century ago. He has for some years been unable, from illness, to live at home at Meopham Park, near Tonbridge, and principally passes his time in reproducing the old heroes and heroines of the Turf from that inexhaustible sketch-book which, as far as horses are concerned, may be said to embody both the past and the paddock life of the century.

That dusty den, the horse fair, was not so much crowded as usual; but Mr. Padwick and one or two of the leading buyers were fain to shelter from the pelting rain under the "Cheap Johns'" awning, or a perpendicular heat" under an umbrella. Mr. Pardoe gave 600 gs. for Mr. Merry's colt by Voltigeur from Little Agnes, and Mr. Padwick, for The Cure, from Zambesi's dam. A Mildew filly went to the nod of Mr. R. Sutton's commissioner, for 680 gs. (just four hundred pounds) of the Champagne Stakes), after a good rally with Mr. Padwick; and Balmoral, a fine combination of the Stockwell and Touchstone blood, entered the Danebury stable at 700 gs. The Tickhill yearlings only mustered five out of ten, and a brood mare, Woodbine (by Orlando) from Honeysuckle (a daughter of Touchstone and old Beeswing) fetched 700 gs. under Mr. Johnson's hammer, it was said for Mr. Jackson.

It is the topsy-turvy habit to consider that each St. Leger day is better attended than its predecessor. The increasing interest in the sport renders this hypothesis not very unreasonable, and, judging from the masses by the side of the rails, we should say that Doncaster never had more people on its Town Moor. They reached the past the Intake Farm, in a thick black line, and so great was the excitement when the Jockey and horses reached the last furlong that it was all the police could do to keep a clear course at the bend. Gratwick by Wardell secured the honours of the day by defeating Saas II in the Municipal Stakes, for which one of Lord Glasgow's colts was favourite. Mr. Merry was then a day of delay before a field of twenty-six could be got off for a Red Rose Jr handicap, which Lord Westmoreland's Crown Prince won in a canter. Thirteen of the twenty-six nominations were then hoisted for the St. Leger, and one more was added to the field, at the last moment, for Lord Clifden's colt by Stockwell from Chloe. The latter, Regalia (J. Osborne), was the first to show; but she seemed to be a trifle overtrained, if anything, and very soon the pace was too much for her and the Oaks. Klarinska (Challoner) was not much admired, as her lumber light middle piece was contrasted with her leg and foot. Her old antagonist, Peeress (Clement), was as wet as if she had been in the Don; and nothing looked better than Vesta (Custance), who was thickened marvellously, and went along, with a coat of satin and the head down, in good old Eclipse style. The Earl's colt, Vincent, had his veil up, and looked smart and fit; and when Zambuca (Edwards), Balbriggan (Mitchell), Heir-at-Law (J. Grimshaw), Don (Nicholl), and Master Clarence (Sharp) had gone down the hill, the Stamford party appeared with Archimedes (Carroll), on whom, as on the Derby winner, considerable fresh investments had been very heavy. A chestnut, with a bald face like Blair Athol's, and a little Flatman's action, he appeared to be fast flesh, but was then a years, and at last Tom Jennings was seen leading the crack, with H. Custance's colours, and followed and the Rufus Stag, the raceguers—in the saddle. The crowd jumped up by thousands to catch one look at the Scotchman," and the instant after that they thought, as the great muscular champion of the year calmly stride by, that Gladiateur was a "dead certainty." The Duke was in close waiting for him. Breadalbane led the canter in great style, and when they returned, and paraded before the Stands—a ceremony of the highest consequence—everybody was curious to see how the next eight chestnuts six were in the first seven. They were then drawn to the very close to the start, with the exception of Red Earl, put off very fairly at the first away. Klarinska, who had been backed from 5 to 1 against, was thrown into a great pace, with Breadalbane and Gladiateur laid up about the middle. Just before that T.C.C. got off, and was at the rate bats and at the Red House the leaders were all in a cluster. Coming round the hill Mr. Merry's Scotchman's colours were the next the rails; but on the right was Gladiateur, going in his old Derby form, and in front everything. As Bottom the "rose" was in difficulty; Klarinska, who had fairly run away with Challoner from the post, was beaten off; and Red Earl and Archimedes were left to try racing mentally for place honours. Opposite the Stand Osborne made his effort with Regalia, but could never catch Gladiateur, who was coming by times hard at home. Archimedes finished about a neck from Regalia, and defeated The Duke (who was also gloved), by a head. Archimedes (Custance) was the last to be scrupled to say that he was a little out of his distance) was a good fifth, and then Vesta was sixth, but the former was thought to come on pulling up, and was the first back to the inclosure. It needed all the exercise of Lord Maye and one of the keepers to pioneer a way for Gladiateur to scale in. The crowd pressed round him and his horse, and thus, seeing Count Batthyany and Mr. Merry in the throng, they pressed forward their attentions, and gave him a triumph, such as the owner of St. Leger winners has never received before. As Mr. Merry's colt were beyond the old mouth objection, and would have mounted tables to preach upon it, but no one seemed to head them or care to be button-holed to an outside car. Gladiateur's style of love to see a Derby winner carry off the double event, and here it was achieved for the seventh time—by Eleanor, Blink Bonny, Queen of Trumps, every third yr a during the last eighteen. There were some curious coincidences in connection with the race. Gladiateur occupied the same position—third with Archimedes—as he did with Cambuscan last year. Mr. Chaplin was the owner of Archimedes, as he was of Red Eric with Breadalbane in the St. Leger; and the jockeys of the first three were the same as on the Derby day, Carroll riding as he did on the late John Osborne. The three Stockwells were in the first five; and now the Derby and St. Leger winners are the sire of the first, second, and third, and fifth. In point of value stakes, it is the richest St. Leger (£9570) that has been run for.

DONCASTER RACES.—TUESDAY.

Derby Plate.—Rous Memorial Stakes.—Mr. Merry's ch c Teddington, 2 yrs, 7 st 12 lb (Custance) 1
Great Yorkshire Handicap.—John Davis, 1. Elland, 2. Claremont, 3.
Champagne Stakes.—Mr. Merry's Gladiateur, 1.
Stirling Stakes.—Sceptre, 1. Mr. Merry's Voltigeur, 2. Mr. Merry's Little Agnes, 3.
Filly Stakes.—Lady Elizabeth, 1. Molly Carew, 2. Jock's Dam, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Municipal Stakes.—Gratwick, 1. Saas II, 2. Colt by Toxophilite, 3
Hunting Handicap.—Crown Prince, 1. Alberta, 2. Lady Elizabeth I, 3
St. Leger Stakes.—Gladiateur, 1. Regalia, 2. Archimedes, 3. The Duke, 4.
Great Yorkshire Handicap.—Prince of Wales, 1. Thalassia, 2.
Doncaster Stakes.—Regalia, 1. King Hal, 2. Broomclose, 3.
Her Majesty's Plate.—Mr. Merry's Balmoral, 1.
Stand Plate.—Kilkenny, 1. Sailfish, 2. Guinaea, 3.

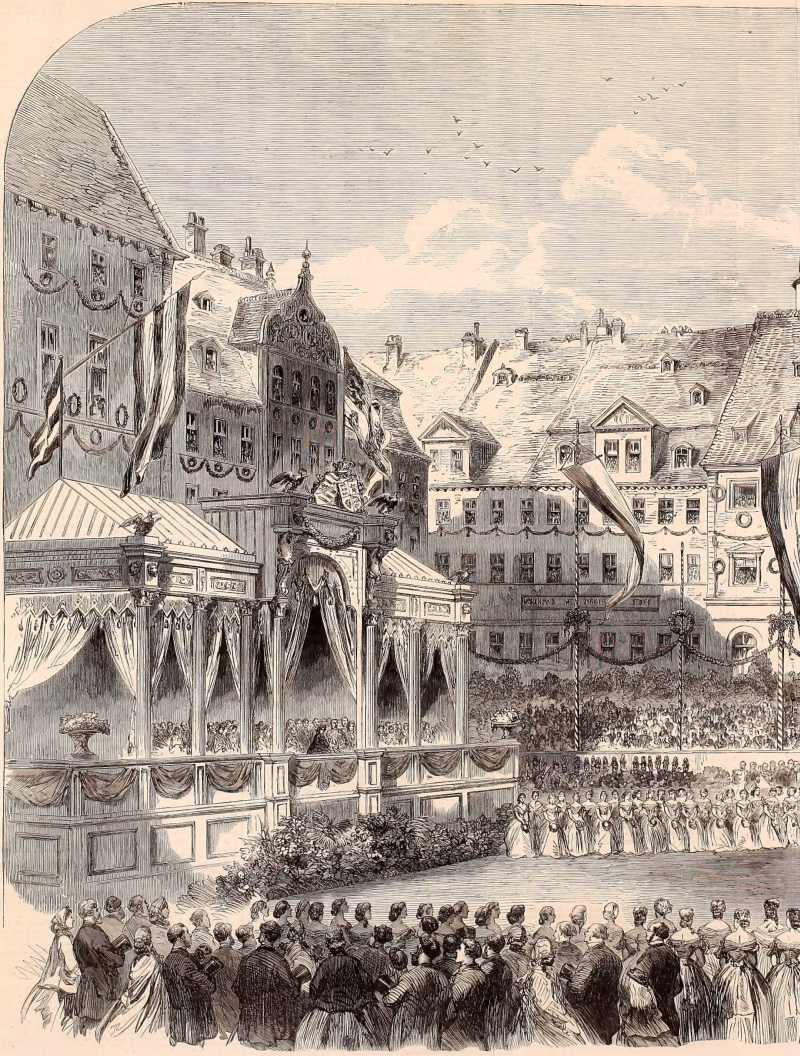
THURSDAY.

Scarborough Stakes.—Cuthertons walked over.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs each.—Mr. Merry's Balmoral, 2. Nutrition, 3.
Zetland Stakes.—Fortune walked over.
Richmond Stakes.—Mr. Merry's Balmoral, 1. Nutrition, 2. Thalassia, 3.
Selling Stakes.—Sweet Ann, 1. Rodge, 2. Rose Bell, 3.
Eglinton Handicap.—Mr. Merry's Ely Difference, 1. Bamda, 2.
Cleveland Handicap.—Smedmith, 1. Elland, 2. Windham, 3.

The Gastein Convention for the organization of the duchies of Schleswig and Holstein has been finally concluded.

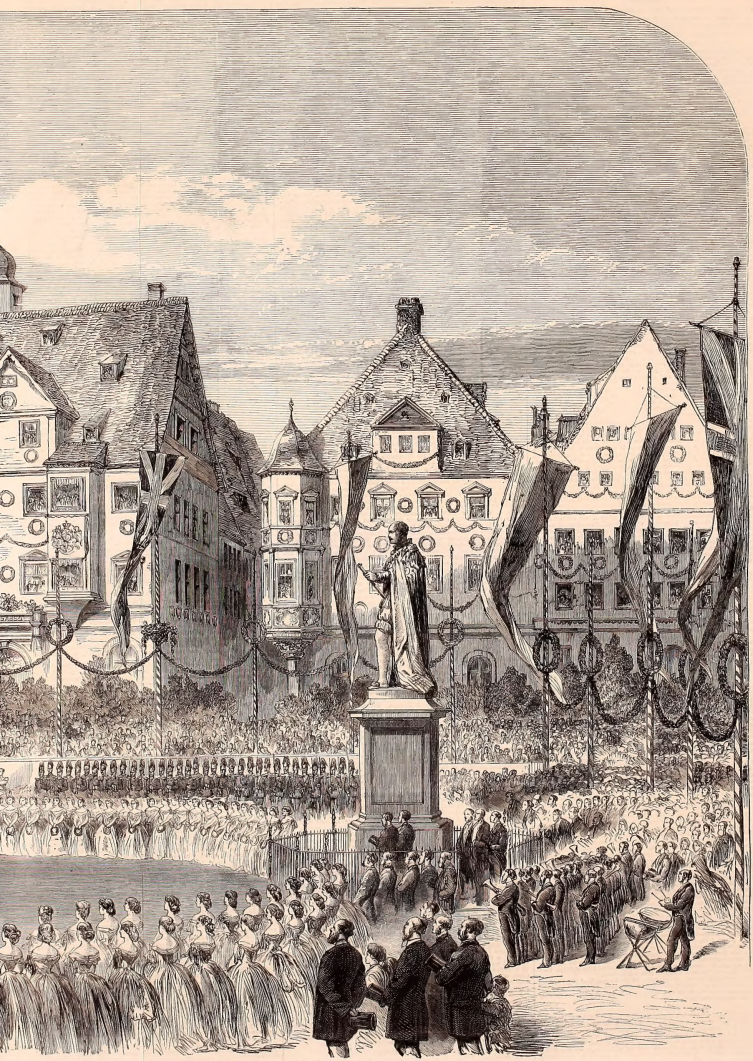
The German Arctic expedition has been put off until next year, owing to the insufficient state of the funds.

A French brig, on its way from Para to Havre, fell in with a Spanish vessel in the entrance of the Channel, several of which were secured by harpoons.



Intelligence from Copenhagen states that Bishop Monrad, the Premier of Denmark, has left that city as prominent a part in Denmark during the recent war, has quitted his native country and emigrated, with his wife and family, to America.

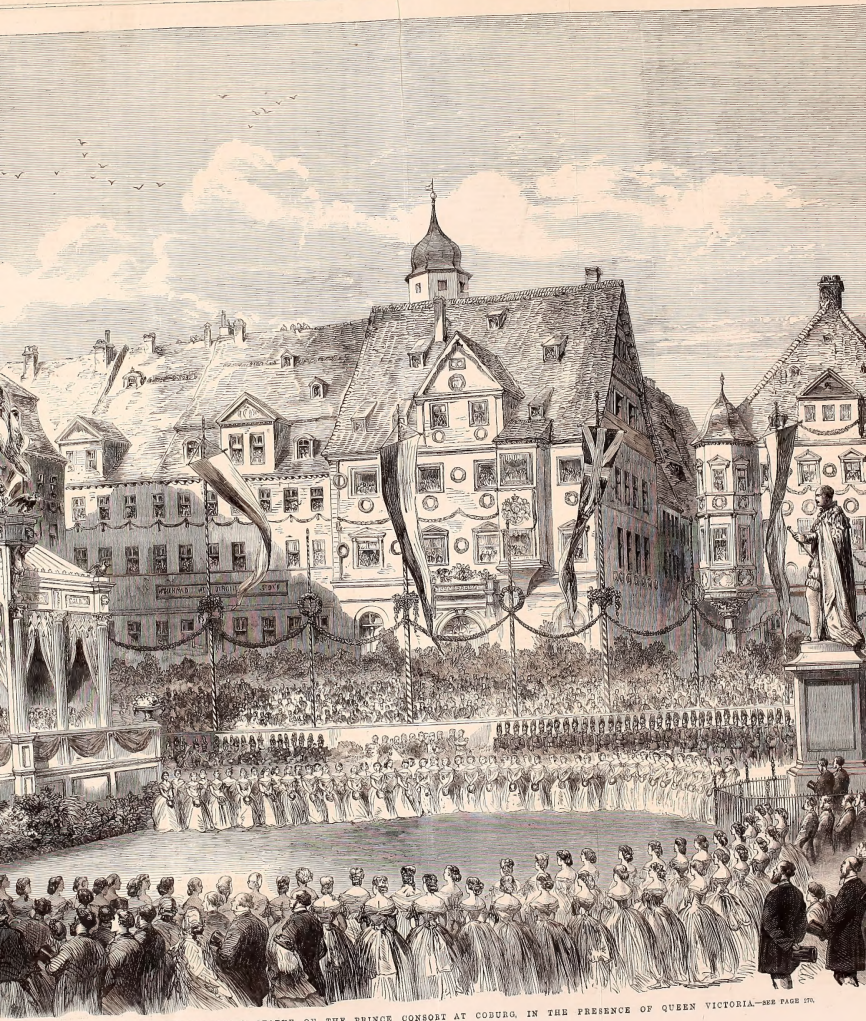
Captain Cameron has not been set at liberty by his Abyssinian gaoler, as was reported from Constantinople. The Sublime Porte, the Emperor, has sent an invitation to Mr. Rassam, the temporary agent of this country at Constantinople, to visit Abyssinia.



The Italian journals announce the death, at Rome, of the advocate Gabrielli, one of the representatives of the Roman people in the Republic in 1848. Having been consulted by the Pope, M. Gabrielli has since filled the post of Minister of Justice, and been a baron of absolutism.

The parting entertainment given by the Copenhagen citizens to the Austrian officers who have left that city was of a peculiar character, in which on both sides the most resolute determination was expressed to maintain the most friendly relations. A general bacchanalian feast took place in Schleswig and the Danes under the rule of King Christian.

The Turin official edition of "Dodi's Parliamentary Companion," adapted to the new Parliament, has been issued. That this manual shows great changes will be understood when it is stated that 196 persons, who had no seat in the House of Commons at the time of its dissolution, have been returned to the new Parliament. In addition to these, twelve of those members who were returned during the Session previous to the 4th of July have succeeded in retaining their seats; so that in all 208 new names will be found in "Parliamentary Companion," who had not places in the edition for the new "Parliamentary Companion," who had not places in the edition for the new "Parliamentary Companion," who had not places in the official declaration of the Government, that the Chamber could, by special legislation, reduce the effective number of portfolios has rendered much vigilance and exactitude necessary in the distribution of the seats in each member. It is possible even the words of the member himself have been preferred to any other statement of his political opinions.



INAUGURATION OF THE MEMORIAL STATUE OF THE PRINCE CONSORT

COBURG, IN THE PRESENCE OF QUEEN VICTORIA.—SEE PAGE 270.

ENCE OF QUEEN VICTORIA.—SEE PAGE 270.

INAUGURATION OF THE MEMORIAL STATUE OF THE PRINCE CONSORT AT COBURG, IN THE PRESENCE OF QUEEN VICTORIA.—SEE PAGE 270.

MEETING OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION AT BIRMINGHAM.

IN our Journal of last week we gave an account of the inaugural proceedings of this very successful meeting on Wednesday, together with a precis of the inaugural address, by Professor Phillips, the president. We give much of the proceedings of the sections as are of popular interest.

MATHEMATICAL AND PHYSICAL SCIENCE.

The president of the section, Mr. W. A. Spottiswoode, in his address, observed:—The remark that Mars, for all time to come, will be the chief astronomical object of attention, is the opposition that the redder parts of his disc are land, and the greyer parts sea. Some observers have supposed that the greyer portions are vegetation, a fair view that more is visible in the polar regions, and the temperature on Mars and our own planet is not dissimilar. Mr. Dawes, on other authority, says the result is to be sought in the action of a dense atmosphere, but the explanation of the Rev. Mr. Challis must be correct, as he has long pointed out, which would otherwise realise all optic issues."

Mr. Challis read the report of the lunar committee, and Mr. Hind described the progress of the large and accurate "Map of the Moon's Surface" by a diagram showing the various compositions employed. Mr. Hind, Mr. Tennyson Mcdonald, the Hungarian Count, and Mr. Chance, "the Railroad," the Terra Photographica map, will shortly be published. Professor Phillips exhibited a map of Birmingham small objects could be discovered on the moon's surface; and even Birmingham would be a considerable object. The moon's surface of the moon that was quite natural to speak of as seas; and, when viewed with the naked eye, with distracted.

Messrs. Parker and Mr. J. P. Capello presented a communication, "On the Barometers at Kew at the Beginning of August last, as recorded by the Instruments at Kew Observatory," which was read by Mr. Glaisher, the author of the same. One peculiarity was that many of the spots of the sun altered their size and character in a few hours, sometimes in a few minutes, and could be seen by hundred eyes to constantly occupied. The disturbance also affected the wires. In working with the electric telegraph, it was observed that it was a question how much they would be able to use it when these magnetic storms occurred.

Professor Sorby described briefly his "New Method of Microscopical Research." He mentioned its powers and uses in several instances, and, among others, in detecting blood marks that could not be seen by the naked eye. He could discover stains; even of the one millionth part of a grain they could be seen perfect. The apparatus is particularly useful in discriminating the character of blow-pipes beads and minute crystals.

General Sabine read a paper "On a New Method, introduced by Masers. Ebenezer and Messrs. Bain, of Measuring Electrical Resistance, and on the Means of Ascertaining the position of faults in submarine or other cables with certainty and rapidity."

Dr. L. Moffatt read a paper "On Thermometrical Observations in Connection with Storms and Disease. He said phosphorus becomes luminous in the dark from its slow combustion on the approach of thunder storms. It is also found in during a tendency to disease, and, the luminosity increases in brilliancy during a storm, and then disappears. Dr. Moffatt then proceeded to detail a series of observations on the luminosity of phosphorus, stone, and the prevalence of diseases in connection with the thermometrical observations, and concluded that the luminosity of phosphorus was a sure guide to storms. From these it appeared that all the periods of the approach of which continuous rain, and the greatest prevalence of disease, were attended with cautionary signs of storms gave warning. Of diseases, 80 per cent of dysplasy, epilepsy, and other nervous complaints were found to which phosphorus became luminous.

Mr. Gassiot read a paper "On the Change of Form and Colour which the Electric Discharge assumes when it traverses Rarefied Media," and Professor Faraday, F.R.S., read a paper "On a New Method, introduced by Messrs

Mr. Markham read a paper "On a North Polar Expedition," urging that the route which an English expedition should take ought to be by Smith's Sound, and by sledge travelling as far as practicable, with Captain Osborn, that the presence of land was necessary to replenishment, because it was there alone that the land threshed away into the unknown ice. By the transportation from Smith's Sound, in two seasons 2400 miles of road could be thus roughly explored, without undue risk. Admiral Ommanney holds that Spitzbergen should be the base of operations. Sir Edward Belcher is adverse to the sledge scheme, and in favour of an attempt to reach the Pole by sea. Mr. R. Brown suggested that both routes should be attempted, and mentioned that Mr. Grinnell, the American merchant, who had done much to promote research in the Arctic regions, intended to send out a new Arctic expedition in search of Franklin remains.

Mr. Winwood Reade read a paper "On a Recent Survey of the Chain of Mont Blanc; and Mr. R. H. Scott "On Meteorological Results of Balloon Expeditions in the Chain of Mont Blanc, including the Ascent of the Aiguille Verte." As to these Mr. Winwood remarked that balloons were not the most dangerous in proportion to the experience or inexperience of those who embarked in them; but the guides, through ignorance and want of proper apparatus, have become acquainted with every possible phase of snow or glacier. A paper by Mr. Whymper, "On the Structure of Glaciers," was read by Mr. Matthews.

ECONOMIC SCIENCE AND STATISTICS.

Lord Stanley delivered an address on the value and use of Statistics, pointing out certain instances in which they had been misapplied, and the effects of our national life; as in the returns of the Post Office, the Registrar-General, and Customs, and the importance of such returns, for example, as to the apprenticeship, or decline, or agricultural statistics, the reform of English weights and measures, and the decimal coinage.

Mr. A. Ellis read a paper "On Secondary and Go Gity Systems," in the course of which he traced the rise and progress of the trade in Birmingham, and the introduction of machinery. Mr. Wright described the process but half of the articles of jewellery in the shops between the Bank and Hyde Park in London were manufactured in Birmingham, and that the superiority in the taste and skill displayed in the manufacture had taken place within the past few years, and this through the agency of the Art Schools. A visit to Birmingham, accompanied by an attendance at which was required by manufacturers and workmen. The Industrial Schools were also referred to, which were set down as 1,000.

Professor Louis Levi read a paper "On Statistical Dates in Relation to the Representation of the People." He thought that a system of voting papers would be better to give the right of voting to all such men as gradually rose to the standard of property than to grant the right at once, as proposed by a Reformer, and that the representation should be in the lower strata of social life. The people had elsewhere the means in their hands of obtaining the franchise when they were even higher than £10. What was wanted was to give every encouragement and stimulus to intelligence and economy.

Lord Stanley remarked that in any future discussion which might take place on the subject it would be desirable to have the information contained in which had been overlooked that day—viz., what was the proportion of those who were entitled to vote, and who actually voted, in the various classes of the 6th. Frederick Hulme, it was suggested, had shown that the same unusual amount of dis. was now maintained as in earlier times; that the number of paupers remained the same, fifteen times the general value of property and income.

Papers were read on the Metric System of Weights and Measures, and the Public Lands Act, Copyright—the latter by Mr. Chisholm Anstey, Q.C., who argued for beyond our limit.

Mr. I. E. Anderson read a paper entitled "Statistics of the Small-arms Manufacture of Birmingham," with this conclusion—"it is manifest that the Birmingham gun trade must be on the decline for the future, and not the reverse."

The Hon. W. Ball read a paper "On the Social, Moral, and Educational Influence of the Association of Social Science," remarking that the great proportion of diseases among them, and giving details relative to the extensive employment of women and children in agriculture. An discussion which followed Lord Houghton took a prominent part.

MECHANICAL SCIENCE.

Mr. Bessemer read a long and highly interesting paper "On the Manufacture of Cast Steel," from the Bessemer, which was discussed by Mr. Wrought Iron. The author detailed the history of the invention and its various processes. There are at present seven establishments in operation in Great Britain. There are at present seven establishments in operation in England on loan than sixty converting vessels, each capable of producing from three to ten tons at a single charge, that is, 180 tons per week. These vessels are capable of producing fully 600 tons of steel weekly, or equal to fifteen times the entire production of steel during the year 1856, the year before the production of the Bessemer process. The average selling price of this steel is at least £20 per ton, whereas the average price of steel in 1856 was £50 per ton, a period mentioned. With the present means of production, therefore, a saving of at least £30 per ton, or £4,500,000 per annum on the total production.

Mr. W. Fairbairn read a paper "On Some of the Causes of the Failure of Iron Beams and Girders," and Mr. Bramwell read a paper "On Iron Beams and Joists." The latter recommended a system of improvements and the general portion of the Atlantic cable as suggestive of improvements and the removal of impediments. The failure of the Atlantic cable was attributed to, not a concussion occurrence. On the contrary, it has been estimated that out of about 1,200 miles of cable that have been paid out, 1,000 miles of the full length have been failures; and that at the present time not more than from 200 to 300 miles are in successful operation. The defects originated either in the manufacture of the cable, and stated that, notwithstanding the precautions exercised, many pieces of the cable were found imperfect on the core existing in the cable, in contact with the conducting wire, and destructive of the insulating power by letting water through the gutta-percha to the conductor of the line of the cable.

Mr. Siemens read a paper "On the Sheathing of Deep-sea Cables," calling attention to the forces which act upon a cable in its descent through the water, to the bottom, and to certain conditions which have to be fulfilled in order to ensure its durability when laid. The paper concluded with a table of the results of experiments on the tensile strength of various sheathing wires, and the conditions made to the spiral, or rather helical, sheathing; that such a cable necessarily has considerable elasticity lengthwise, and that this is a most valuable evidence of permanent success.

Mr. C. W. Siemens read a paper "On the Applicability of Indiarubber as an Insulator for Telegraphic Conductors." The usual method of manufacturing the caoutchouc and cut into tapes, which are served around the wires conductored by hand or by the use of machinery. The tapes are liable from their tendency to expansion. The results obtained with five specimens of indiarubber covered wire were as follows:—for experiment 1, the best indiarubber hitherto sent out to Kurrachee in 1863, were added by the author, and showed that four out of the five were defective after immersion for 24 hours. Gutta-percha only, supplied by himself, remaining perfect. In insulation this specimen was the highest hitherto recorded, and the greatest length ever manufactured. The entire position of the conductor was unaltered by any elevation of temperature, and the insulation remained perfect. The author concluded that indiarubber was inadmissible as a covering for telegraphic conductors, by the author were also shown to surpass all other materials yet produced.

Mr. R. A. Brooman described "A New Method of Obtaining Motive Power from the Sea," acting on the principle of nipping fast hold of the cotton fibre close up to the reed, and whilst the fibre is thus held a combing action is pushed away so as to detach it from the fibre. By this means the fibre could not be broken, injured, or injured by any loss of length, and the full length to which it grew. A model of the new gin was exhibited.

Mr. R. W. Thompson read a paper describing a new rotary steam-engine invented by himself. The writer stated that there was a great prejudice against rotary engines, and that this was due to the fact that many inventions of this kind had been brought forward to be presented to the public, and that the purposes where limited power was required and high speed was a desideratum.

Mr. Charles Lovell read a paper "On Improvements in Weaving Silk, and the Applicability of such Compressed Air for Working Coal-cutting and other Underground Machinery." The novel arrangement of the machine was that it cut a very narrow groove on a level with the bottom of the machine under the coal, but it was impossible to do this with any machine which required a much larger aperture at the commencement, which he narrows as he proceeds.

Mr. Gore read a paper "On Electrical Measurements of Time and Pressure," by which a flame is obtained (equal to a white heat) which could not be measured by any other means than by the use of the electrical apparatus. Furnaces are adequately adapted to the purpose of producing the required heating steel blooms and ingots.

A paper, by Tait and Mr. Parkinson, "On the Strength of Material Considered in Relation to the Construction of Iron Ships," was of a highly technical character. By experiments on the strength of iron plates, it was found that a 10-in. steel shot, 3 in. in diameter, with the velocity of 1200 ft. per second would completely perforate an armour-plate 12 in. thick.

An interesting paper was contributed by Sir J. Burgoyne on "Railways in War," in which he especially urging the formation of railways in Ireland, coupled with special instructions by railway engineers on all expedients that can be suggested.

GENERAL AND MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

On Thursday a soirée took place in this noble hall, which was characteristically opened for the occasion, so as to combine the aspect of a museum with the elegance and grace of a gay saloon. Philosophical instruments were mingled with geological specimens and models of mechanical inventions, collections with which the skill and industry of this particular district are so closely associated. There was one set of objects which was especially curious and interest, and a feeling even akin to reverence—namely, the original models of James Watt, who in this very neighbourhood matured his mechanical discoveries connected with the steam-engine. During the evening, the great organ was performed upon by the celebrated blind musician Mr. Stimpson.

On Friday evening a lecture was delivered in the hall, by Mr. Beete Jukes, F.R.S., and local director of the Geological Survey of Ireland, on "The Probabilities as to the Position and Extent of the Coal Measures beneath the Red Rocks of the Midland Counties."

On Monday afternoon the splendid hospitality which the Mayor displayed from the commencement of this meeting of the association again shone forth. His Worship entertained more than 230 gentlemen at luncheon at the Townhall. Among the company were all the principal men of the various sections and all the distinguished savans. The concluding soirée was held on Tuesday night.

On Tuesday, at a meeting of the general committee, it was determined that the next annual congress of the association should take place at Nottingham, in compliance with a pressing invitation from the leading inhabitants of that town. Mr. W. R. Grove, LL.C., F.R.S., was appointed president.

THE EXCURSIONS.

Four separate excursions took place on Saturday. The first was to Worcester and Hereford; the second to the Wrekin and the neighbouring quarries of the third to Wenlock and Bridgnorth; and the last to Coalbrookdale. The first group, consisting of about 100 persons, left the station at 9 a.m. by rail from Birmingham to Upton Magna, whence they had a pleasant drive through Shrewsbury to the Wrekin. Here they were met by Mr. Forster, who ascended to the summit of the Wrekin, and there pointed out the interesting vestiges of a long extinct civilisation, which are there so distinctly traced. The party then descended to the quarries, and there, having been provided with refreshments, entertained at luncheon, in the Townhall, by the Mayor of Shrewsbury. The excursionists then proceeded to the Abbey Church, and to the Quarry Hollows, and there met their fellow-excursionists who had taken the other routes, and who had been conducted by Mr. Wilkinson, and, subsequently, by the author of the Results" all round the Wrekin," or inspecting the processes carried on in the Hadley Castle Iron Works. The whole party returned to Birmingham by the direct line, having been provided for the season by the Severn Valley Field Club. The second excursion, that to Wenlock and Bridgnorth, was conducted by Mr. Beete Jukes, Mr. G. Maw, F.L.S., Mr. Bowman, by the aid of diagrams, he briefly explained the geology of the district, and the relations of the Wenlock limestone to the Silurian rocks, after crossing which the geologists inspected the Dirft beds adjacent. The old monks of Wenlock had here made their burial-ground, and numerous fossils were obtained from the limestone of the quarries. The party then divided into two sections, one of which went to inspect the Haughmond hills on the line of the Severn Valley, and the other went direct to Benthall Hall, where they were afterwards joined by the other section. Here the party were received by Mr. Benthall, and were shown the rich and interesting collections of geological specimens, containing, among others, upwards of four hundred species of fossils from the Wenlock beds, including fifty species of corals, which were found nearer than Ireland. The ensuite tile works of Messrs. Maw and Co., and the large and fine encaustic pavements executed by them for the cathedrals of the Colonies, and the Crystal Palace Company, at a short distance, were then inspected.

A small party of the excursionists then returned to the town of Bridgnorth for their late dinner. At Warwick they first visited the museum, where, after inspecting the interesting collection of Roman relics, Mr. Wise kindly explained the numerous objects of interest in the geological department, more especially observing upon the fossils of the Wenlock limestone, and those of other formations from the Kroper sandstone. Among other interesting objects in the museum were the Roman urns found in the sepulchral mounds and ripple marks, found in the upper Kroper sandstone; the museum also containing several specimens of the Roman pavements found in the town. After visiting all the principal objects of interest in the town, such as the Hospital, St. Mary's Church, and Warwick Castle, they were then visited. The excursionists then returned to Birmingham, highly pleased with the hospitality, and then partook of a collation at the Townhall.

A small party of the excursionists to Coalbrookdale left the old buildings of the city, and were received by the Mayor and Corporation in full state. Another party left for Hereford, Worcester, and Malvern, where they visited the cathedral; and next proceeded to Malvern, where the more germane proceedings took place. Here they were received by the Mayor, and by the Severn Valley Field Club formed for the study of the geology of the district; and the district immediately.

CONCLUDING GENERAL MEETING.

This took place, in the Townhall, on Wednesday afternoon, when the secretary announced that the total amount of the grants for scientific purposes for the coming year was £2016. The thanks of the meeting, the authorities, and ladies who had attended the present congress was 1936, and the total from 1831 to the present time £40,000.

The vice-president (Professor Phillips) then proposed a vote of thanks to the Mayor and Corporation of Birmingham, and to the members of the committee for their accredited Colonel Sir Charles Lemon, Bart., for Mr. Macmillan stated that the meeting, in numbers, had been greater than on any previous occasion, and that the sum of £1,000 had been received, which was more than had been a greater number of solid and original papers than had been read at any meeting. The Rev. Professor Haughton seconded the resolution.

Thanks were next voted to the various officers of the association for the services they had rendered during the meeting, and to the Mayor for the courtesy he was carried by acclamation.

The Mayor, in reply, acknowledged the compliment, and bade the members of the association farewell till their next pleasant meeting, at Nottingham, on Aug. 22, 1866.

This closed the labours of the congress.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The State apartments of Windsor Castle are open to the public.

The Earl of Pomfret laid the foundation, at Towcester, on Thursday week, of a new church, to cost £3,000.

The second industrial exhibition in Tunbridge Wells was successfully opened on Thursday week by Lord Granville. The exhibition at present being a goodly gathering to give color to the proceedings.

The Sackfield Cricket Club held its annual fête on Thursday week, among the speakers were Earl Fitzwilliam, Lord Wharncliffe, Lord Edward Howard, M.P., and Mr. Beaumont, M.P. The day's proceedings after being pleasantly carried on.

A very large silver-bag was hung, as usual, last Saturday morning for reception by a passing train, when something went wrong, and the bag in descending struck the ground, and the contents, which were mixed, were thrown to the rails, where it was cut to pieces by the wheels, many of the letters and packets being destroyed.

Intelligence was received on Monday, in Bristol, that Lord Rosslyn, the president of the Royal Agricultural Society, had left the exhibition in that city on the 19th inst., will be prevented by an attack of gout from keeping his engagements.

A great international show of fruits, gourds, roots, vegetables, and flowers will be held in the Crystal Palace, in connection with the National Horticultural Exhibition, on Oct. 3 and following days. The exhibition of agricultural roots, fruits, and cereals on Oct. 17.

The Royal Caledonian Hunt ball of the Braemar Highland Society will be held at Mar Castle on the 21st inst. The Prince of Wales will preside, and Lord Fife will act as vice-president. The usual programme of games there will be an extra competition of the hammer, stone, and caber, the latter of 40 feet.

The Welsh National Eisteddfod was held at Aberystwith on Thursday week, and was attended by a large number of the Welsh gentry and Lord Lieutenant of Cardiganshire (Rt. Hon. E. Pryse, M.P.), Sir Thomas D. Lloyd, Bart., M.P., and other gentlemen of note in the county. Prizes were offered for literary compositions, singing, and carving.

On Thursday week a large meeting was held at Dumfries, to consider the best means of keeping alive the old ballad of the Dumfries Volunteers, which was a great rousing-ball, in which 2500 hands are employed.

On Thursday week a serious accident occurred at the pit mouth of the Kirkless Hall Company's collieries, at Dunsinging Green, near Wigan. Eight persons were descending the shaft in a cage, when the chain broke, and after a few yards of the top, the wire rope slipped from the drum, and, the sudden weight caused the cage to fall to the bottom of the shaft, a depth of 170 yards. The eight men were killed instantly.

The Great North of Scotland Railway and Braemar Railway was cut by Miss Farquharson, of Invercauld, in the presence of a large number of gentlemen and ladies. The ceremony was continued by a public luncheon. The line extends from Aboyne to Bridge of Gairn, about a mile and a half beyond Ballater, a distance of 15 miles. The Great North of Scotland Railway Company line has undertaken the contract at £30,000, and the line is expected to be opened for traffic to Ballater by the end of October.

At a special meeting of the Derby Town Council yesterday week, a letter was read from the Lords of the Treasury giving the Corporation the power to sell to Mr. Bass, at the price of £3500, about six acres of the Bemer pasture, for the purpose of its being used as a public recreation ground. Their Lordships also sanctioned the proposal of the Corporation to apply £600 of the proceeds in payment of the debt on the grammar school, and the remaining £1000 towards the new Market-hall.

Fenian demonstrations are spreading, but scarcely at the rate which publics the alarm expressed by the Irish papers. The "brothers" are said to be drilling in large numbers in various parts, but little distinct evidence comes to hand. At Dundalk petty sessions six men have been committed for trial for illegal drilling, and numerous arrests have been made at Carlow and Blackrock. They were, however, admitted to bail, themselves in £50, and two sureties of £25 each.

The annual gathering of the members and friends of the Wilts Archæological Society began on Wednesday, at Salisbury. The meeting took place in the Council Chamber, where Earl Nelson delivered an introductory address. In the afternoon there was a dinner in the Assembly-rooms; and in the evening a conversazione at the palace, to which the members were invited by the Bishop of Salisbury. Yesterday there were excursions to Old Sarum and Stonehenge, with a picnic at the latter place; and yesterday (Friday) it was intended to have an excursion to Lacock Abbey.

The Nottingham and Midland Counties Working-Classes Art and Industrial Exhibition was opened on Tuesday by Lord Belper. Lord Lieutenant Denison presided. Amongst the gentlemen present were the Duke of St. Albans, Mr. R. Ayrton, M.P., Mr. Gregory, M.P., Mr. Mundella, M.P., Colonel Hildyard, and a great number of the leading gentry of Nottingham, Lincoln, and Stamford. Addresses were delivered by Lord Belper, Mr. Ayrton, and Mr. Mundella. A large number of works of art contributed in a marquee which had been erected near the Castle.

A meeting of the central committee for promoting the Scottish national memorial to the Prince Consort was held for the purpose of hearing a report on the steps which had been taken. Sir David Baird of Newbyth presided. The report stated that the site granted by the Board of the Prince Consort had been executed by Steell, under the superintendence of Mr. Hardwick, at a cost of £12,000. The committee were assured by Steell that he had also approved of an arrangement whereby the principal figure, along with the bas-reliefs and one of the groups, should be executed by Mr. Steell, and the remaining portions of the design to other artists of merit. It was likewise stated that the committee were satisfied with the model of design, whether for principal figure group, or bas-reliefs, should be submitted to her for inspection before being executed. The report was adopted, and it was agreed to forward a copy of the report to the Lord Chamberlain, for the information of the Prince for her Majesty. A committee was appointed to co-operate with the Board in carrying out the objects of the memorial, and stating that the funds at the disposal of the committee amounted to £12,270.

LAW AND POLICE.—In a special sheriff's jury, summoned to Lancaster Castle, on Saturday week, before Mr. Baron Martin and a special jury, plaintiff's credit and reputation, caused by the defendant's slanderous assertion, a superior court, on the application of the defendants, issued a new writ for a trial at nisi prius at Lancaster. On Monday the case was heard before the Under Sheriff of the county, at the Leeds Townhall. A similar cause of action arose out of the same slanderous assertion, and the result was the same as at the former hearing, the plaintiff being awarded a farthing.

Mr. John King Watts, a solicitor, was, on Thursday week, committed for trial by the Hertford magistrates, charged with the murder of Mrs. Hannah Mary Horne, a client of his, to execute a mortgage on one of her cousins, with the view of obtaining possession of a piece of valuable property.

A somewhat mysterious affair has occurred at Salisbury. On Tuesday week Miss Blake, a young lady who had been ailing for some time, suddenly fell, and died on the following day. After her symptoms, and the appearances of a post-mortem examination being taken into consideration, the jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against her father, who had sought her hand, but had been rejected by her mother, and given two months' notice to quit the house. On the day named the contents of the deceased's chamber, and several pills which were found in a box beside her, underwent analysis by Dr. Taylor and Dr. Tayler, but there is as yet nothing in the department of the young lady previous to her death to show that the accusation against her father is likely to be sustained.

A number of cases of stock-burning on an extensive scale, strongly suspected to be the work of incendiaries, is reported from North Lincolnshire.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

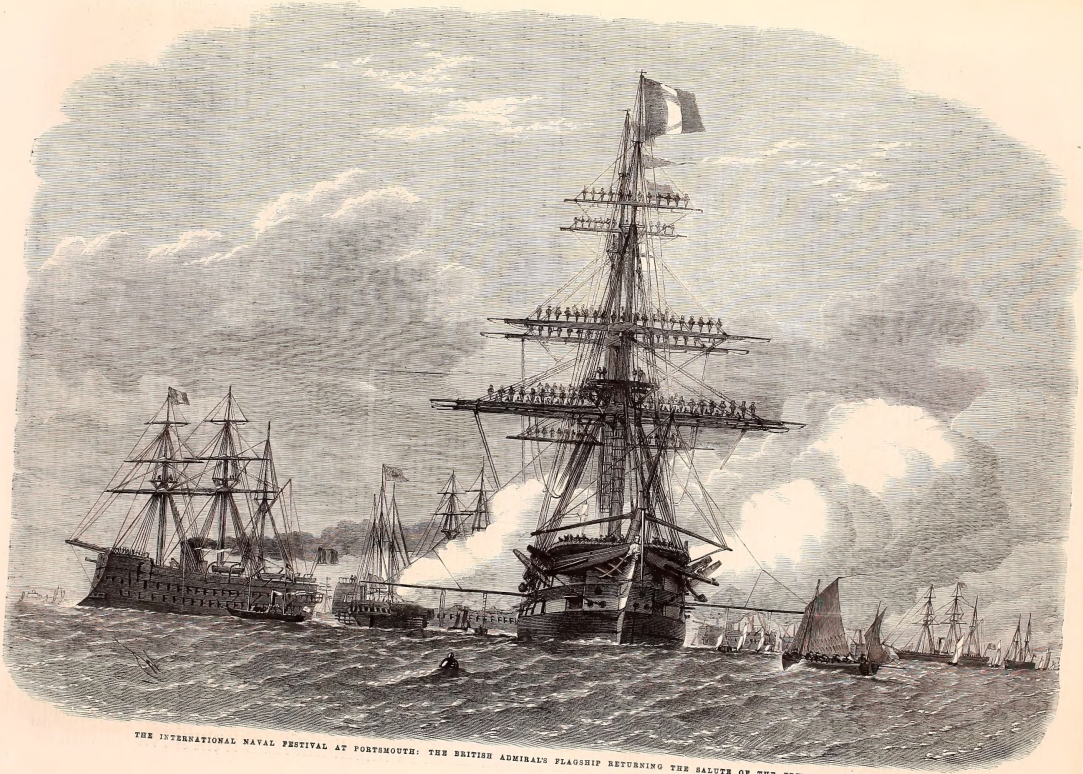
The Salisbury Journal says that the great bell presented by Cardinal Wiseman to Shrewsbury Abbey, in Dorsetshire, has been taken down to the church. It weighs 2 tons.

Hartfield Church, Tunbridge Wells, after having been closed some two years for the purpose of restoration, was re-opened for divine service, followed by a luncheon in a tent, after which the collegers' prizes for garden produce were distributed.

Christ Church, Broadway and Victoria-street, Westminster, is about to be enlarged by the erection of a transept and chancel. The first contemplation to raise, by subscriptions, funds for the completion of the tower and spire of the church, which, for the latter destitute of more than a peal of bells, the sum of about £1000 is required.

On Wednesday week the foundation-stone of a chapel for service in the Church of England cemetery, Padiham, was laid by Mrs. Ormerod, of Padiham. The chapel is intended to be erected at a cost of £1000, two younger children to her departed husband, the late Le Gendre Nicholas Starkie, Esq., M.P. for East Lancashire, for the cemetery committee, the Master of Freemason &c.

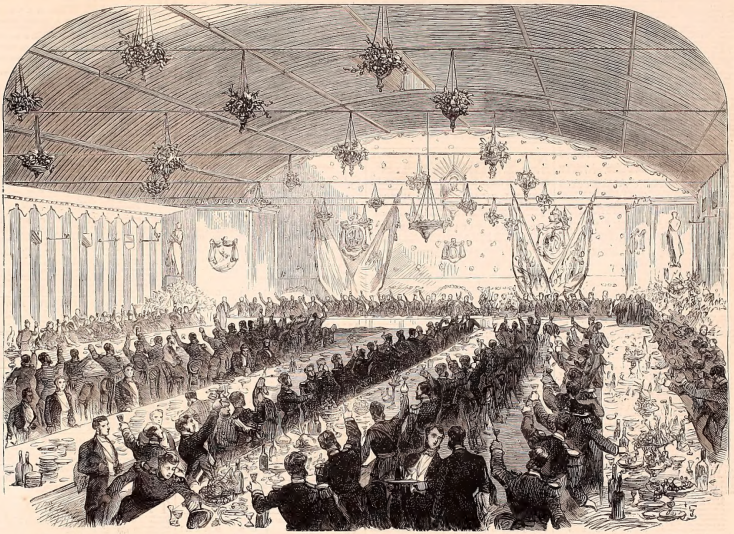
On Monday week Matthew White Ridley, Bart., laid the foundation-stone of the new church at Cramlington. The necessity for a larger building than the present one has been felt for some time past, and it has been recently that, owing to the strenuous exertions of the incumbent and churchwardens, sufficient funds have been collected to enable the work to be carried out. The erection of a suitable edifice have been raised.



On the 5th inst. at Auckland Castle, the Bishop of Honolulu was baptised in the Revolution temporary cathedral at Petrosa. The godfathers were the Bishop of Durham, Lord Auckland, Lord Lyttelton, Lord Ashley, and the godmothers Queen Emma, the Governess of the Island of Hawaii, Mrs. Bishop—Dr. Jacobson, in the absence of Bishop Christ, I hereby indeed, install, and enthrone you into the real, actual, and corporal possession of the bishopric of Honolulu, and of the dignity of Chester, with all its rights, liberties, honours, privileges, and appurtenances to the said see belonging and appertaining." The Bishop of Durham then delivered the pastoral staff, signed and appointed to the Bishop of Chester for the time being." The Bishop of Chester then delivered the book into the hands of the dean, and prayer were then read. The anthem was, "The Lord gave the word, great was the company of the preachers." The service was then concluded. The divine service the Lordship received the congratulations of the clergy in his private room at the cathedral.

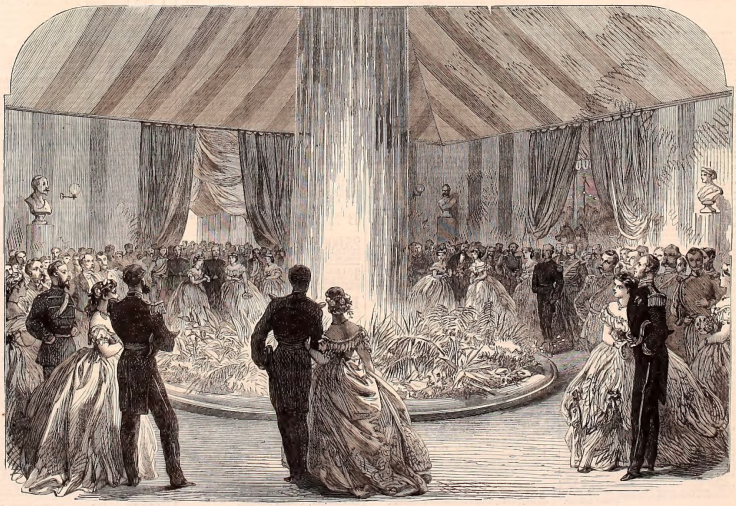
THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8.



BANKRUPT.

H. NORTH, sen., Central-street, St. Luke's, hatter—J. BAKER, Poultry, Chichester—R. H. STEVENS, Shepton-mallet, Som., City merchant—H. and H. F. ALLEN, Sheffield, merchants—J. BAKER, Bristol, tailor—J. HOLLINGSWORTH, Bristol, tailor—J. BAKER, Bristol, tailor—J. BAKER, Bristol, tailor—J. BAKER, Bristol, tailor—G. Johnstone, Rowley, tailor—H. EVERETT, Kemsley-terrace, Hackney-road, Middlesex, tailor—J. BAKER, Bristol, tailor—J. BAKER, Bristol, tailor—J. BAKER, Bristol



THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH: THE BRITISH ADMIRAL'S FLAGSHIP RETURNING THE SALUTE OF THE FRENCH FLEET.—SEE PAGE 269.

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH.

THE MAYOR'S BANQUET TO THE OFFICERS OF THE FRENCH FLEET.

THE ILLUMINATED FOUNTAIN AT THE BALL GIVEN BY THE MAYOR.—SEE PAGE 269.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK,

(From our City Correspondent.)

The progress of harvest work in the north of England has been rapid, and the Government bother has continued its operations on a large scale. The Bank of England has received from the country a more than usual number, and the quotations have had a decent consistency. The Unfunded Debt has been heavy, and some of the bills have been left with the Bank.

Although the supply of money is large, the rate of discount have shown a hardening tendency, and the improved demand during the spring will be accommodating.

The quotations for short loans in the Stock Exchange have been 2 per cent.

A small amount of gold coin has been made in India, yet the demand for that metal is inactive.

The Bank of France and Belgium have been on an easy footing, while the demand for gold for the export purposes has not increased.

The Continent money has been tolerably plentiful.

All the Bank directors will vacate their seats on Monday. Goschen, for Surrey, scores 921; Hibbert, for Hertford, 1,000; Lancaster, for New Shoreham, 1,000; Lubbock, for London, 1,000; Smith, for Hull, 1,000; Thompson, for Hull, 1,000; Wilson, for Hull, 1,000; Wilson-Patten, for Lancashire, 1,000; Wilson-Patten, for Lancashire, 1,000; Wilson-Patten, for Lancashire

HIGH SCHOOL OF EDINBURGH,
HEDDON HOUSE,
CLASSICS AND ENGLISH.
Head Master:
Leonhard Schmitz, Phil. D., LL.D., F.R.S.E., late Rector of the High School, Edinburgh.
Assistant Masters:
John Macmillan, M.A. Edin. and Camb., late Scholar, Camb.
John Carmichael, M.A. Edin., F.S.A. Scot., late Scholar, Camb.
Arch. H. Bryce, LL.D. Trin. Coll. Dub., D. Litt. Oxford, and Edinburgh.
James Donaldson, M.A., Magdal. Coll., Camb.
Thomas H. Charles-Bailey, Scholar, Camb.
MATHEMATICS AND PHYSICAL SCIENCE.
Arithmetic and Mathematics—William Mollal, M.A., 17, Manderville-terrace, and Grange.
Mathematics and Physics—Mr. William Cooper, 11, York-place.
Drawing—Mr. Alexander Nasmyth. R.S.A. Scot., 24, Inverleith-terrace.
Fencing and Gymnastics—Captain Ballard, 26, Scotland-street.
The Rev. Dr. Lee, Principal of the University, and the Rev. Dr. Cook, of Cramond, Members of the Mathematical Class, will be invited by Mr. Donaldson.
The only requisite qualification for this Class is that the pupil be able to read fluently with Mr. Donaldson.
According to arrangements recently sanctioned by the Patron, the Governors, and the Council, the High School will be opened on the English Classical Side, improved and extended, and the rate of tuition so restricted as that ample facilities are afforded for the sons of the middle classes of the city receiving a sound and liberal training directly on the commencement of private life, whether at once from the efficiency of the School as a Classical Seminary of the highest order, or subsequently. The High School will be enabled to furnish systematic instruction in all those departments of study which are the most appropriate for the sons of parents in the middle classes, whether for the English, Scottish, and Colonial Universities, for the Civil Service in India, and for Commercial pursuits.
The Rector and Masters receive a limited number of Boarders.

KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON.
THE ORDINARY CLASSES—Those Lectures which are OPENED ON MONDAY, OCT. 2, in Divinity, Latin, Greek, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Oriental Languages, Sanskrit, Hebrew, English Literature and Literature, English History, Geography, Arithmetic, Writing, Mathematics, Commerce and Commercial Law, Political Economy, Mercantile Law, Jurisprudence, Logic, Physics, Geology, Logic, Political Economy, Mercantile Law, Jurisprudence, Logic, Physics, Geology, Fluxions, Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, Optics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Anatomy, Physiology, Medicine, Surgery, Botany, Music, Drawing, Engineering, Architecture, and Agriculture.
The Session of Lectures opens on Monday, October 2, 1865.
Application to J. W. CUNNINGHAM, Esq., putting the word "Ordinary" outside the letter.

MINERALOGY.—KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON.
PROFESSOR.—Professor TENNANT, F.G.S., will commence a course of Lectures on MINERALOGY, with a view to facilitate the study of GEOLOGY, and the application of mineral products to the Arts. The lectures will commence on Friday, Oct. 6, at 3 p.m., and will be delivered on each succeeding Friday, at the same hour, and at the same place. Subscription, Fee, £1 1s. Students attending the lectures on Mineralogy and Geology will be given on Wednesday afternoons, from Two to Four, Dec. 6, 13, and 20, a course of Practical Instruction. By order,
R. W. JELF, D.D., Principal.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W.—Supported by Voluntary Contributions.—Two Beds may be had for one guinea. Liberal and Continuous SUPPORT is RESPECTFULLY SOLICITED. Bankers, Messrs. Coutts and Co.
Francis Fox, Hon. Sec. Sam Haden Habershon, Sec.

NATIONAL INSTITUTION for DISEASES of the SKIN, 49, Upper-street, Islington.
Physicians—DR. ERASMUS WILSON, 39, Wimpole-street, Warwick-square.
Open on Monday and Thursday mornings from Five till Eight, and on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons from Two till Four. Free letters are available for consultations anywhere.
THOMAS BIRCHMORE, Hon. Sec.

TRAVELLING and DRESSING BAGS and CASES.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S TRAVELLING and DRESSING BAGS and CASES, fitted with the most elegant cutlery and every article of luxury and convenience of the first quality.

Dressing and Travelling Bags.	Pouch Morocco.	Russet Leather.	Solid Leather.	Solid Oxydized.
Lady's Travelling Bag ...	£1 10 0	£2 10 0	£2 15 0	£2 0 0
Gentleman's Ditto ...	1 15 0	2 5 0	3 0 0	2 10 0
Gentleman's Travelling Bag, with Silver Fittings ...	3 3 0	3 3 0	5 0 0	3 15 0
Ditto, with Writing Materials ...	...	4 5 0	4 5 0	3 5 0
Ditto, ditto ...	...	4 10 0	4 10 0	3 10 0

Registered Oxford Travelling-bag, fitted in the most complete manner ... £5 5s.
The prices of Dressing-cases exhibited are replaced by useful and complete cases.

Lady's Work Dressing Case ...	£1 1 0	£1 14 0	£2 10 0	£1 0 0
Gentleman's Travelling Leather Ditto ...	0 10 6	0 14 6	1 5 0	1 10 0
Ditto, better quality, Silver Fittings ...	1 15 0	2 5 0	3 0 0	5 0 0
Gentleman's Ditto, fitted ...	...	...	...	3 10 0

Address only 77 and 78, Oxford-street; and 71 and 72, Cornhill, Mappin-street, Sheffield. No Regent-Circus Warehouse.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—The celebrated old Irish Whiskey rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 6d., at the retail houses in London; and wholesale of the Proprietors, W. and A. Gilbey, 357, Oxford-street; 2, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH BREWING, in which the above Ale is now brewed, is the largest brewery in Burton and in Cadby, the CONDUCTOR, MACHINERY, and whole Establishment, the finest.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest importation, with the true acidity of the grape, superior to low-priced Sherry. One gallon per Gross. Excellent Port, 36s. per dozen. Terms, cash. Cellars, 4, Crown-court, Tall-yard, Leadenhall-street, E.C. Wine Merchants to the Royal Family, Counties of Monmouth and Glamorgan, London, W.C.—Established 1667.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, Prepared Cocoa and Cocoa Nibs.
The increasing popularity of J. S. Fry and Sons' Chocolate is the best proof of its excellence. Its active principle, theobromine, possesses the same nutritive or curative properties as the cocoa nut itself, but in a more concentrated form. It is very delicious and sustaining, and is strongly recommended for general use, as a most valuable refreshment.
A PORTABLE AND CONVENIENT FORM.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS
Are delicately delicious flavoured with the finest Vanilla, and are rapidly increasing in public favour.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE ALMOND PASTE
Is prepared with such perfection as regard to purity, and being consequently wholesome, is much valued for Children, while with them it is a universal favourite.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
Pronounced by Connoisseurs
"THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE."
Their genuine without name on wrapper, label, and stopper, bear the Signature of LEA and PERRINS, Worcester, and Export Oilmen.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Heart and Stomach Disorders of every kind and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—72, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

BROWN AND POLSON'S
PATENT CORN FLOUR,
Recommended for Children's Diet.
PEPSINE.

PEPSINE.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE, Morson's Pepsine Lozenges, are perfect palatable forms of administering the popular remedy for weak digestion. Sold by Thomas Morson and Son, 31, 33, and 124, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C. Pepsine Wine, in 8 oz. bottles, at 3s. 6d., and 7 oz. each 5 drachms, 12 bottles, at 18 oz. and 36 oz. each.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—PETER ROBINSON'S FAMILY and PRAYER WAREHOUSE, for all Mourning Goods, Crapes, Bombazines, Crapons, &c., is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.
Prior Robinson's MOURNING WAREHOUSE is at
Nos. 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
Patterns of all such goods free.
See advertisements below.

FAMILY MOURNING—MADE UP, trimmed in the most correct and approved taste—may be obtained, ready-made, at a few hours' notice, at the following prices, at the house of PETER ROBINSON.
Family Mourning Warehouse, Regent-street.
Goods are sent for selection "free of charge" to all parts of the Country, Town, or Suburbs.
Patterns of the Fabrics and Prices.
And the Imperial "Travelling Crape"
Can be had at
The Family Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
N.B. In connection with the above establishment, at Oxford-st.

BLACK SILKS.—SPECIAL NOTICE.
PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street,
Has a Special Purchase of Black Silks,
Which he can recommend as the superior Make and Quality of his Black Silks, and the very reasonable Prices at which they are Sold.
Patterns Free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, the Full Dress, Superior and most enduring Quality, from 3½ to 5 guineas.
Patterns free to Provincial Residents.
THE COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
103 to 108, Oxford-street.

BLACK SILK DRESSES, the Skirts Made up, trimmed in the most with crape or with fancy trimmings, in the largest variety, and
At PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

THE NEW BONNETS,
Chrysopsis Regalis, pour jeune vierge;
Chrysopsis Regalis, pour femme mariée;
Chrysopsis Salinas, pour jeune fille;
Chrysopsis Salinas, pour femme mariée;
at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.

THE NEW REVERSIBLE FABRICS in Grosgrain, Gros de Suez, Gros de Naples, and
THE ROYAL ROSEBUD POPLIN, and
THE ROYAL ROSEBUD GROSGRAIN,
Ladies requiring a useful Black Dress for the present season are invited to inspect PETER ROBINSON'S Inexpensive materials in Velvet, Satin, and Grosgrain.
Mourning Warehouse of Regent-street.

FOR FIRST or DEEP MOURNING.
Important Notice.
Families requiring supplies of First or Deep Mourning will derive the most essential benefit by making their purchases at PETER ROBINSON'S, Black Silk Mercers to the Queen, the largest and most economical
Mourning House in London.
103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Lodgate-hill.

SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.
NEW SILK DRESS FREE.
New Crochet Shawls, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Lodgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS,
Patterns free.
A large assortment of Rich Black Silks at 2s. 6d. the Full Dress.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Lodgate-hill.

SERGES FOR AUTUMN WEAR.
Elegant Serges, several shades, 9½d. per yard. 48s. for 12 yards.
Patterns free to the country.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Lodgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
DAMASK NAPKINS and TABLE LINENS.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Huckaback Towels, Diapers, Quilts, Counterpanes.
Made and Marked Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, Handkerchiefs for Wear.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Lodgate-hill.

MEXICAN POPLINS
In all useful Colours, 12s. 6d., 14s. 6d., for 12 yards, 1 wide.
Patterns free.
Full Dress, 12 yards, and 12 yards.
Rich Black Silks, 2s. 6d. the Dress.
A most useful Black Silk, 3s. 6d. the Dress.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Lodgate-hill.

MESSRS. JAY, MOURNING SILK MERCERS, JAY'S, REGENT-CIRCUS.
H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge,
LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

MOURNING in a FEW HOURS.—Messrs. JAY have ready-made Black Costume for Mourning, especially adapted for immediate use, which they can send out at a few hours' notice, up in skirts, at the purchaser may elect.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

A PATTERN, Black Corded Silk, at 3s. 1d. per Yard, Warn JAY and Sons beg to forward Grain (on application) a pattern of this remarkably cheap silk.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

MANTLES.—AUTUMN FASHIONS.
Messrs. JAY have received the Autumn Fashions except-sheet of MANTLES selected from the newest fashions adopted for the season for sale at the London General Mourning Warehouse.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

UNIVERSAL MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY, of the London General Mourning Warehouse, 247, 249, 251, Regent-street, one of the oldest houses in England, have always in stock the largest and most varied assortment of Mourning Goods, and can execute all other fashionable Mourning ordered to any period or circumstance at a few hours' notice.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

NEW AUTUMN SILKS.
JAY'S GRANT and CASE are now showing a large Stock of New Autumn Silks. Amongst these are 500 pieces of black-ground Taffetas and Poult de Soies with coloured flowers in amber, violet, and other fashionable colours, at 2s. 11d. per yard.
JAY'S, REGENT-CIRCUS.
Patterns sent free. Address only as above. Country and Foreign orders receive the same attention as those personally selected.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques, in Black and Coloured Grounds, at 2½ guineas the Dress. Patterns free.
Compton-house, Frith-street, Soho-square, London, W.

REAL SEALSKIN JACKETS,
Hudson's Bay Sale.
SEWELL and CO. have the honour to inform the nobility of 200 Sealskins, purchased under most favourable circumstances. These Skins are of the finest quality, and will be made up into Jackets of the newest shapes, and will be sold at one third less than the usual price.
Compton-house, Old Compton-street and Frith-street, Soho-square, London, W.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH
By appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales,
117, 119, and 121, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweeds, Cheviots, Serges, Shawls, Scarfs, Rugs, and Waterproof Clothing. Also Highland Shawls, Vests, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys, by the yard. Travelling and Sea-side Costumes.
Patterns forwarded free.

FOULARD SILKS, the most desirable Fabric for the present season,
PETER ROBINSON has just purchased upwards of 900 of these fashionable Dresses, which he can recommend as the most elegant, pure, lasting, and general abundance of the remaining stock of a French manufacturer. These goods, guaranteed to be of the best quality, are now selling at 2½ guineas the Dress of 12 yards, 1 yard wide, the Full Dress. The waterproof Silk Foulard is genuinely adapted for every day and seaside wear.
Patterns post-free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR WEDDING DRESSES.
PETER ROBINSON invites special attention to his beautiful Silk Manufactures, which he can recommend as the most suitable for Wedding Dresses. White and Tinted Silks, of every needful make, produced, to our order, by the most eminent manufacturers in Lyons, expressly for this House.
Patterns free.—Peter Robinson, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CORDED and PLAIN SILKS.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOULARD SILKS.
Beautifully bright, the Colours warranted fast, of the most elegant Designs, in Stripes, Checks, and Spots, from 2½ guineas the Dress.
Also, a magnificent collection of very rich and new Chêné Silks, Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

PATTERNS Post-free of the Newest Fabrics for Travelling Dresses and Costumes, in various colours and mixtures, from 10s. 6d. to 1l. 1s. the Dress.
Also, assorting, back, 12 in. front, 48 in. ... 25s. 6d.
Ditto, assorting, back, 12 in. front, 48 in. ... 21s. 0d.
Ditto, assorting, back, 12 in. front, 48 in. ... 16s. 6d.
Patterns of Flannels, with Sleeves, and with Drawers Gages, at equally low prices.

REAL SEAL-FUR PALETOTS.
Hudson's Bay Sale, 1865.
Size, length, 30 in. deep, 14 in. round, 34 in. deep, 19 in. round, 36 in. deep, 19 in. round, 38 in. deep, 19 in. round.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

LADIES' TRAVELLING SUITS.
Now ready an unusually large assortment of Ladies' and Children's Travelling Costumes,
in Plain or Printed Alpacas,
Poils de Chevre, Cashmeres, Tweeds, Serges, Cheviots, &c.,
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

DRAP DE CHERBOURG.
A new article in all Colours, 2s. 11d. per yard, 24 inches wide.
All Wool Diagonal Serge, new Colours, 9½d. to 10s. 6d. per Dress.
Wool Cashmeres, 9½d. per yard, 24 inches wide.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

Several decidedly New Colours in the
PARIS CORDED SILK POPELINES.
Also, a large assortment of Rich Figured Dress Silks, for 2 guineas, the new "Nankin Cloth," in Plain, Checked, Striped, and Chenille.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

REAL ABERDEEN WINCEYS,
Fast Colours, 9½d. per yard.
Some very useful qualities from 10½d. to 2s. 6d. Full Dress.
A large assortment of Fancy Flannels, suitable for selection.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

FREE of CHARGE.—NEW DESIGNS, in the new Colours, from Sir. to 10s. 6d. the Dress, of Rich Figured Silks, for Evening Wear, Dinner, and Dress Parties.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

White Grenadine and Book Muslins, for
BRIDESMAIDS' DRESSES,
Striped, Plain, or Checked spun cotton, 9d. to 1s.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.
Tulle and Tarlatane Dress in every variety.

BAKER and CRISP'S New SERGES, in all Colours, with beautiful shades for Mourning, very best quality, 10½d., 12½d., 14½d., 16½d., 18½d.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

ANNUAL REDUCTIONS.
100 beautiful Silk Dresses, reduced to 6s. 6d. Full Dress.
100 Rich Silk Dresses, reduced to 9s. 6d. Full Dress.
300 Corded Silk Dresses, reduced to 12s. 6d. Full Dress.
100 Rich Glace Silk Dresses, reduced to 15s. 6d. Full Dress.
1000 Rich Silk Dresses, reduced to 21s. Full Dress.
14,000 yards of Gros Grains, &c., 29s. 6d. Full Dress.
Thousands of Rich Silk Dresses, 2 guineas the Full Dress, reduced from 3 guineas.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

ANNUAL REDUCTIONS.—USEFUL SILKS.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 2s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 3s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 4s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 5s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 6s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 7s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 8s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 9s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 10s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 12s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 15s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, 21s. Full Dress.
Patterned Silks, Checked Silks, Striped Silks, Figured Silks, Plaid Silks, Brocaded Silks, Chenille Silks, Satin Silks, Velvet Silks, Plain Silks, Corded Silks, Glace Silks, Poult de Soie Silks, Taffeta Silks, Moire Antique Silks, Fancy Silks, and Every Variety of Silks.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

ANNUAL REDUCTIONS.—BLACK SILKS.
1200 pieces of rich Black Glacé, 2½ guineas the Dress.
1200 pieces of rich Black Glacé, 3½ guineas the Dress.
14,000 yards of Gros Grains, &c., 29s. 6d. Full Dress.
Thousands of Rich Silk Dresses, 2 guineas the Full Dress, reduced from 3 guineas.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GLOVES! GLOVES! GLOVES!
The best Alpine Kid, 5s. 6d. per pair. Black, White, Scarlet, Mauve, Grey, Tan, Slate, Purple, Lavender, &c.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

FORD'S JACKETS for Indoor Wear.—A choice selection of Ladies' Jackets, in Cashmere, Merino, Silk, Velvet, Lace, &c., Cashmere and Cloths, Waterproof Cloths, &c.
T. Ford and Co., 70, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), W.

FORD'S LYONS VELVET JACKETS, in beautiful qualities, either plain or with rich trimmings, in all the newest shapes, from 1 guinea to 10 guineas.—T. Ford, 70, Oxford-street, London, W. (opposite Pantheon).

FORD'S VELVET JACKETS for Outdoor Wear, in all the newest shapes, from 1 guinea to 10 guineas, as an elegant, useful, and fashionable Mantle for Autumn. A choice selection of Ladies' Jackets, in Cashmere, Merino, Silk, &c., equally low prices. Thos. Ford and Co., 70, Oxford-street.

FORD'S SEASIDE DRESSES in various Tweeds, Cashmeres, Merinos, Alpacas, Poplins, &c., at very moderate prices. Also, Waterproof Cloths, Gabardines, Cashmeres, Tweeds, &c.
T. Ford and Co., 70, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas.
Quality and fit guaranteed. Riding-trousers, 21s. per pair.
Gentlemen's Riding-habits, 3 to 8 guineas. Riding-trousers, 21s. per pair.
Patterns free.—T. Ford and Co., 70, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at WARD BROTHERS'.
Well forward, carriage paid on parcels of 20 and upwards, Highland Linen Sheeting, Pillow Linens, Glasgow Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Pillow-cases, Huckaback and Diaper Towels, Glass-cloths, Dusters, Table Linens, Damask and Diaper Cloths, Napkins, Doylies, and Kitchen Towels.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Ludlow and Co., 76, Donegall-place, Belfast.

BLACK SILKS,
Of the
Deepest and Richest Black (the Imperial Black),
At 2s. 11d. per Yard (Full Dress (24 yards).
Gros Grains, Deep de France, Deep de Lyons,
Deep Cords, Deep Checks,
Gros de Venise, Soie de Chine, Soie de Paris, Gros d'Ecosse,
All in the Full Dress (24 yards).
Coloured Silks, Fancy Silks, Brocaded Silks, and Shawls,
Of every description.
Mourning (Family and Complimentary) of every description.
CATER and COMPANY, Finsbury-square, E.C.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make at moderate prices. A stock always on hand of Chemises, Nightdresses, Petticoats, Mourning Dress, &c. Price-books by post. Address "Ladies' Department," WHITELOCK and SON, 76, Strand.

LADIES' and WEDDING OUTFITTING. Newest styles, best work, and moderate prices. Price-books by post.—WHITELOCK and SON, 76, Strand.

THE Celebrated SHREWSBURY WATERPROOFED CLOTH CLOAKING, JACKETS, and Cloths, DVERNOY and CO., Manufacturers,
I. S. and W. PHILLIPS, 37, High-street, Shrewsbury.

INDIA SHAWLS, — Large Consignments, FARMER and ROGERS request attention to a magnificent collection of CASHMERE SHAWLS just received direct from India, comprising the richest and most elegant designs for the present season.—71, 173, 175, 177, Regent-street, W.

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at Mrs. ALEXON'S, 31, Maddox-st., Bond-st. Milliner and Dressmaker. Wedding orders, with country patterns, punctually attended to. French Corsets, 10s. 6d. The usual Crinoline, 10s. 6d.

SILKS, SHAWLS, LADIES' HOSIERY, and GENTLEMEN'S OUTFITTING.—The Largest Assortment in the Kingdom.—GEORGE ROBINS, 108, Oxford-street, W.; and 11, Lowther-terrace, Knightsbridge, S.W.

CURTAINS, CARPETS, and HIGH-CLASS FURNITURE.—GEORGE ROBINS, having extensively increased his premises, is prepared to submit a large and unchecked Stock of the above goods, which he can recommend as of the best quality and workmanship.—108 and 110, Oxford-street (near the Marble Arch). Patterns, Designs, and Estimates free to all parts of the Kingdom.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requiring no washing; all fast colours.—The Lowest Remove of this famous and elegant material now on hand, comprising some of the most extensive designs ever produced, 1s. per yard wide.—GEORGE ROBINS, Cretonne Chintz Warehouse, 110 and 112, Oxford-street, W., near the Marble Arch.

SANSFLECTUM CRINOLINES,
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
ASK YOUR DRAPER FOR THEM.

ONDINA, or WAVED JUPONS,
Do not "Cage."
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
Sold by Drapers. Wholesale only of the Manufacturers.

THOMSON'S CRINOLINES,
10s. 6d.
Illustrated Prospectus and post-free.
ADOLPH THOMSON, 97, Friendly-street.

SHIRTS, Dress, Regatta, and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting perfectly without creasing. Flannel Shirts and Drawers, Dressing-gowns, and Hosiery.—CAPPER and WATERS, 36, Regent-street, London, S.W.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, and Bronze. Hollowed Pillars, Pendants, Statuettes and Lustres in stock. Every article marked with plain figures.
DEANE, DRAY, and CO., Furnishing Ironmongers, London Bridge, E.C.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE.
Price £4 4s.—Carriage Paid.
H. Crouch, S.C. Hist. & Columns-street.
Illustrated Catalogue of Microscopes, post-free.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 27, 28, and 29, Berners-street, exhibit the easiest to inspect their Chalet Chairs, which are the most elegant and comfortable chairs ever made. Illustrated Catalogues sent post-free.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, and SOFAS, best quality.—Upwards of 300 shapes constantly in view, or made to order in a few days.—HOWARD and SONS, 27, 28, and 29, Berners-street, W. An Illustrated Catalogue sent post-free.

THE ROYAL PARK WINE COMPANY, Limited.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

BROWN and GREEN'S KITCHEN RANGES, with Improved Oven and Boiler, save many shillings and scuttle all close heat or smoke. Prospectuses and Testimonials free.
Brown and Green, Patentees, Battersea.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c.—The Advertiser, a Gentleman of Position, Family, and Wealthy Ladies and Gentlemen privately to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Plate, Furniture, Libraries, Pictures, and every description of property to the utmost value. Ladies waited on in their own houses. Note.—Business conducted on the same day. Est. 84 years. Terms cash.

WANTED, Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c.—Mr. and Mrs. ISAACS, Wealthy Ladies and Gentlemen, Private Families, and Tradesmen, are desirous of purchasing the above, and will give the highest value in cash. Note.—Business conducted the same day. Est. 84 years. Terms cash.

FORBER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

LADIES WISHING THEIR HAIR in the LATEST STYLE should visit FORBER'S Establishment, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square. Every novelty, Parisian, Imperial, Small size, in. 6d., larger, for their hair, &c. Sent by post for two extra stamps. Gentlemen's Hair Jewellery and accurate likenesses in Colours, or Sketches and Co., Illustrations, &c., 41, Conduit-street, Regent-street.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR, FORBER, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W., executes Brooches, Chains, Bracelets, Rings, Fine Studs, &c., and forwards them by post for two extra stamps. Also, Likenesses in Hair, Sketches and Illustrations of specimens of Jewellery mounted in Gold, Pearls, and Enamel, assortment of Jet in every variety. An Illustrated Book sent post-free.—Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED
NEW GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses the power of restoring the Hair to its original colour. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, and by the Inventor, Napoleon Price and Co., 97, Old Bond-st., Piccadilly, W.

SULTANA'S OIL of BAGDAD restores weak hair to luxuriant growth in a few days. The magic of Sultana's Oil is its invigorating and beautifying influence. Sold by all Chemists, Perfumers, and Hairdressers, at 3s. 6d. and 7s. per bottle. Wholesale, Hedges and Butler, 155, Regent-street, London.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss TALBOT, thirty years Lady's Maid in the highest circles of the Nobility, continues to Dress the Hair in the Newest and Most elegant, Full Dresses in the new and beautiful art of getting up the Hair, at 10, Princes-street, Hanover-square. Miss Talbot is also for the Country, unrivalled. Address, Miss Talbot, Folkingham, Lincolnshire.

MDME. RACHEL'S ROYAL ARABIAN PREPARATIONS for the Hair give rich, luxuriant, beautiful appearance to the Face, and render Hair, Teeth, and Complexion unrivalled. Depôt, 6, Quadrant, Regent-street. Sold by all Perfumers. Pamphlet sent free to the Countess of Dudley.

NOTICE.—Professor BROWNE respectfully begs to invite ladies and gentlemen to an inspection of his Stock of Wigs, Scalps, Bandeaux, Curls, Plaits, Transparent Fronts, Invisible Wigs, and every description of Hair Goods, at his Establishment, 47, Piccadilly-street, City. Material and workmanship guaranteed unsurpassed. Wigs dressed and shampooed daily. Hair brushed by machinery.

TO TRAVELLERS, VISITORS to the SEASIDE, and others exposed to the Sun and Dust, will find a Bottle of ROWLANDS' KALYDOR a most refreshing and delightful requisite. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers.

WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.—Corns cured painlessly in two days by using ROWLANDS' KALYDOR. Ask for ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, and beware of spurious imitations. Sold by all Chemists, or 20, Hatton-garden, London.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using DR. WARDEN'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional weakness. Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.—Warden, Priest, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Harper, London-bridge.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY.
MESSRS. LEWIN and MESMER and SONS, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, continue to supply Artificial Teeth, Gums, and Palates, on Mineral, Gum-tooth and Carbonite, Gum Gutta-percha, and Vulcanite. They are comfortable from the first application, and may be used in mastication immediately after the extraction of decayed teeth. Early attendance at 15, Wigmore-street, Hall, 10, Norfolk-street, Strand, and 3, Cambridge-terrace, Hyde Park, Caledonian-road, Barnsbury. No connection with anyone of the same name.

NEW MUSIC.

THE MAY WALTZ. By ALFRED MELLON. Performed at his concerts at Covent Garden Theatre with great success. Price 3s., or free by post for Sixteenpence.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grenadier Guards. Rightly named at Mellon's Concerts. Played also at the Crystal Palace, and encored. Also the new Polka Mabel "Grandly Waltz," so universally admired.—"These, Ada."—"A waltz which bids fair to rival, if not to exceed, the celebrated 'Blue Danube.'"—Observer. "Mabel" Quadrille, Lancers, Galop, Polka, Suite of Dance, Introduction, Fantasia, Duets, &c. From Books 7s. 6d.; Military Band, 10s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

Just published,
MABEL. A Song, written by Henry ST. JOHN FRED, adapted to the melody of "The Maid Mabel." By D. GODFREY.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KOHLER'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Mabel Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte by KOHLER.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU À L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," performed every evening at Mellon's Concerts, arranged for the Pianoforte, Harmonium, or Organ, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU À L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," performed every evening at Alfred Mellon's Concerts. Vocal Duiton Opera, may be had for the Pianoforte. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. Peter's at Rome on Christmas and Easter Days, arranged for the Pianoforte by F. VITALI. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

WEARIN' OF THE GREEN.—The only version of this celebrated Irish Air which is free from the objections of Arrah-na-Pogue. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE DUETS, a new Edition of this lately-published work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," "Guy Mannering," "Norma," "Lucia," "Il Trovatore," "Martha," "Rigoletto," and numerous other airs, and forms a most attractive selection, thus rendering it the cheapest work of the kind. Price 7s., post-free.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVE. Benedict's Favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BARNEY O'HEA. Lover's Favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS.
FAVOURITA. Morceau de salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
OSBORNE and CHAPPELL, 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera, 4s. net.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on Favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s. net.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.
THE ORGANIST'S POST FOLIO: a selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most eminent composers, arranged in progressive order of difficulty for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains voluntaries from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. No. 1 in Number now ready, price 5s. each; or in two volumes, each containing six numbers, and handsomely bound, price 30s. each. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Pianoforte. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the "Guards' Ball" Waltz," by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin, and Flute, each 1s. net.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by R. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each.
No. 1. The Mabel Waltz. | No. 4. The Hussar Galop.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz. | No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Mabel Quadrille. | No. 6. The Mabel Polka.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE of VOCAL and PIANOFORTE MUSIC, including Numbers, One Shilling. Now for 14 d.
No. 40 Christy Minstrel Songs (Sixth Selection), 1s.
No. 41 Christy Minstrel Songs (Fifth Selection), 1s.
No. 42 Christy Minstrel Songs (Fourth Selection), 1s.
No. 43 Christy Minstrel Songs (Third Selection), 1s.
No. 44 Twenty Songs, by Bishop, &c., 1s.
No. 45 Hymns for the Christian Seasons, for Domestic Use, 1s.
No. 46 Twenty Sacred Songs, selected from Handel, 1s.
No. 47 Sir Joseph Barnby's Selection, arranged for the Pianof orte, 1s.
No. 48 1st to 8 Melodies, arranged for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 49 Fifty Popular Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 50 Valses by D'Albert and other eminent Composers, 1s.
No. 51 Twenty Sacred Melodies for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 52 Twenty-four Duets for the Pianoforte, by Kuhe, &c., 1s.
No. 53 Twenty Dances, Reels, Jigs, &c., for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 54 Christy Minstrel Songs (Second Selection), 1s.
No. 55 Christy Minstrel Songs (Second Selection), 1s.
No. 56 A Christmas Album of Dance Music, 1s.
No. 57 Twenty Sacred Songs, 1s.
No. 58 Beethoven's Sonatas, edited by C. Halle (No. 1), 1s.
No. 59 Beethoven's Sonatas, edited by C. Halle (No. 2), 1s.
No. 60 Beethoven's Sonatas, edited by C. Halle (No. 3), 1s.
No. 61 The Contralto Songs by Mrs. B. Ackworth, &c., 1s.
No. 62 Twenty-four Duets for the Pianoforte, by Kuhe, &c., 1s.
No. 63 Four Grand Operettes, or Parlor Operas, by D'Albert, &c., 1s.
No. 64 Thirty Galops, Marches, &c., by D'Albert, &c., 1s.
No. 65 Twenty Sacred Songs, by Handel, 1s.
No. 66 Twenty Sacred Songs, by Haydn, Mozart, and Spohr, 1s.
No. 67 Twenty-five Favourite Pieces for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 68 Beethoven's Celebrated Sonatas. Complete Selection), 1s.
No. 69 Nine Pianoforte Pieces, by Arthur and Gerda, 1s.
No. 70 Twenty-four Duets for the Pianoforte, by Kuhe, &c., 1s.
No. 71 Twenty-four Pieces for "The Stereoscope," for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 72 Twelve Songs by Verdi and Donizetti, 1s.
No. 73 Twelve Pianoforte Pieces, by Brinley Richards, 1s.
No. 74 Twelve Pianoforte Duets, for Instruction and Recreation, 1s.
No. 75 Harmony of Nature's Birth Melodies, 1s.
No. 76 Twelve Popular Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices, 1s.
No. 77 Twelve Popular Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices, 1s.
No. 78 Twelve Pianoforte Pieces by Wallace, 1s.
No. 79 Nine Pianoforte Pieces by Brinley Richards, 1s.
No. 80 Twelve Pianoforte Pieces by Brinley Richards, 1s.
No. 81 Forty Pianoforte Preludes, Arthur Kenyon, 1s.
No. 82 Ten Solos of Gardella's by C. D'Albert, &c., complete, 1s.
No. 83 Twenty Sacred Songs, 1s.
No. 84 Twenty Pianoforte Pieces by Popular Composers, 1s.
No. 85 Ten Songs by Mozart, with Italian and English Words, 1s.
No. 86 Ten Songs by Mozart, 1s.
No. 87 Ten Songs by Mr. Hon. Wm. Norton, 1s.
No. 88 Ten Songs by Mr. Hon. Wm. Norton, 1s.
N. B.—Each Song forms a Pianoforte Accompaniment.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S Great Comic Song, THE CHRISTY BAND. Spirited Irish melody, and the event ing "The Organ-Grinder." Illustrated. Free for fifteen stamps.—27 Argyll, 5, Baldwin-crescent, W.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S New Song of CONSTANTINOPLE. Adapted for the drawing-room, and effectively sung by Arthur Lloyd. Price 2s. 6d.
FALCONE, 6, Baldwin-place, W.

JOLLY DOGS. 41st Edition. Glorious success of this great Comic Song. Also, VANDY'S JOLLY DOGS MARCH. Either free for 18 stamps.
FALCONE, 6, Baldwin-place, W.

COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. Founded on the most popular Melodies of the day, and played at the nobility's balls. Illustrated in colours. Solo, 24stt, or Septet, 10 Stamps.—D'ALCORN, Baldwin-place, W.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music is published by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street. The complete Opera may be had, with Italian or French Words, in Boosey's Musical Library, price 12s. Arrangements by W. H. Callcott, Kuhn, Brinley Richards, Benedict, Rimbault, Oury, Godfrey, Charles Coote, George Forbes, Osborne, Lindsay Sloper, Rimbault.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

COOTE'S CLARIBEL WALTZ, performed with unprecedented success at Mr. Alfred Mellon's Concerts. Price 3s.
"Equal to anything of its kind ever produced in a waltz called 'Claribel,' composed by Mr. Charles Coote, and founded upon several of the ballads sung by the lady known by that name. The introduction is very pleasing, and has given a title to the waltz. This is lively, tuneful, and instructive, and will be found to be in the polished and multiplied style."—Vide Orchestra, June 10.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, and all Musicsellers.

CUSHA. By DOLORES, Author of "The Rose." A new Song. Price 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS, Arranged for the Pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS, Arranged as a Valse by CHARLES COOTE (The Claribel Valse). Very tunefully Illustrated. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS, Arranged as a very brilliant piece by BENEDICT. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NEW PIECE by FORBES, Author of "Cantelena," "Cadenza," "Andante Pastorale," &c., for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER. Published in the original Key, with Italian and English words and Accompaniment for Pianoforte, Harmonium, or Organ. Translations of the Italian words on very superior paper (thick tint). Price 1s. Messrs. Boosey and Co. have published a cheap edition of this work, in which the Italian and a new prose translation appear.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER. BOOSEY and CO.'S NEW SHILLING EDITION.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS.—Published both with Latin and English words, and Accompaniment for the Organ, Harmonium, or Pianoforte. Translations of the Italian words on very superior paper (thick tint). Price 1s. Messrs. Boosey and Co. have published a cheap edition of this work, in which the Italian and a new prose translation appear.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS. BOOSEY and CO.'S NEW SHILLING EDITION.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS. Published in two volumes, cloth, price 6s., the Six Books of Vocal Music, Pianoforte Accompaniments, and Organ Part, in cloth. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS, in Two volumes complete in one volume, price 6s., cloth, full size. Also, each book separately, price 3s. each, edited by J. W. Davison, printed from engraved plates, with permission of Messrs. Breitkopf and Hartel, and bound in crimson cloth, gilt edges, price 7s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. The Words by the Author of all Miss Gabriel's compositions. Price 3s. To be had everywhere.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. This charming song arranged as a Hymn, of three verses, for Voice and Chorus. Price 3d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. This favourite melody arranged as a simple song for amateurs. Price 1s. To be had everywhere.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. In each every name. This song has also been adapted as Hymn. Price 3d. To be had everywhere.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ENGLISH CHURCH SERVICES. At BOOSEY and Co.'s you can at once identify correct from new type on superior paper, price 6d. each, 1, Jackson in F; 2, Hopkins in A; 3, Hopkins in E flat; 4, Hopkins in C; 5, Hopkins in G; 6, Hopkins in A; 7, Hopkins in E flat; 8, Hopkins in C, separately, 1d. and 2d. each.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, of the best manufactures, from £ to 100 guineas.
At BOOSEY and CO.'S, Holles-street.

THE MINIATURE PIANOFORTE, 17 octaves, in solid rosewood case, 25 guineas.
At BOOSEY and CO.'S, Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and Books sent abroad, to India and the Colonies, at half-price, post-free for postage stamps or Post Office order (beyond works stamped).
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW and BEAUTIFUL SONG, THE WIFE. Written and Sung by HENRY RUSSELL. Price 3s. Ideally is thrown even more popular than its predecessor, "The Ivy Green."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A FIRST-RATE SENTIMENT.
PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE. Price 3s. This is one of Harry Clifton's best songs.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF
THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by TOM MATTHEWS. Illustrated. Price 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHARLES COOTE'S CELEBRATED GALOPS.
JOLLY CATS, THERE THEY ARE AGAIN! Price 3s. 6d. Daily encored every night.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF
OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! The great Christy Song. Price 3s. 6d. Creating a perfect furore. Encored every night.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

AN EXQUISITE BALLAD.
THE SMILE AND THE TEAR. FLEETING FRIENDSHIP; or, Bring thy Scattered Heart to Me. By FRED. ROMER and JOHN BLOCKLEY.
"This song, for sweetness of melody, has not its equal."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE CELEBRATED FEDERAL GLORIOUS SONG.
JOHN BULL LIES
manifesting in the grave, but his soul keeps marching on.
Price 3s. 6d.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A NEW CHRISTY FAVOURITE.
I'M AS HAPPY AS THE DAY IS LONG. Price 3s. 6d. Encored every night, and Sung by J. Rowlands.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG BY CHARLES COOTE.
COME, SING TO ME AGAIN; or, I have heard that song before. Price 3s. 6d. "This is good."—Sunday Times.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

JUST OUT.
EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY, by F. MACLAIR. Price 3s. Also the whole of his celebrated Songs are now published by
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE.
COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE, 4s., is the favourite of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

NIGHTLY ENCORED AT MELLON'S.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. 3s. (Eclipses all others.)
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

DEMENSE SUCCESS AT MELLON'S CONCERTS.
COOTE'S FAIRY TOUCH-LY TECHNIC QUADRILLE, price 4s. (Universal delight.)
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE
COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s.
Sung by the inimitable comedian entitled Mr. Sims.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

FLORA'S EVERYWHERE.
COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP, 3s.
The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.
COOTE'S HOBGOBLIN VALSE. 4s.
Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

WALTER ; TES, SIR ; or THE
THREE O'CLOCK GALOP. By MASTER WALTER. 3s. With a famous Chorus.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ANOTHER HIT AT MELLON'S CONCERTS.
COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP, price 3s.,
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A SUCCESS SUCCESS.—Vide public Press.
CASTLE AND COTTAGE. Comic Opera. Composed by G. A. ALLEN. Now being played at the New Royalty.
Let Love be Lord of All. Sung by Miss Fanny Holland ... ... 2s. 6d.
The Lovely Lily (sung by Miss Oulton) ... ... 2s. 6d.
The gentle joys of earth ... ... 2s. 6d.
Let Love be Lord of All (as sung by Mr. Honey) ... ... 2s. 6d.
All pleasant dreams (sung by Mr. Edgar Gordon) ... ... 2s. 6d.
Full Score, Overture, and Finale, Pianoforte, 7s. 6d.; Septet, 10s. 6d.; Full Band, 21s. Vocal Score, 10s. 6d. Grand Marlborough-street, W.

THE WEARING OF THE GREEN. The original version of this popular Song. Post-free for sixteen stamps.
ARRAH-NA-POGUE. Price 3s. Also the Celebrated Song Sung by Miss Pyne. Post-free for nineteen stamps.
Full Score, 10s. 6d. Grand Marlborough-street, W.

ARRAH-NA-POGUE QUADRILLE, by LEVEY (6 Arrah-na-Pogue Songs, 3s. Arrah-na-Pogue Waltzes, 4s. Arrah-na-Pogue Polka, 3s.
MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. Price 3s. Grand Marlborough-street, W.

TWO NEW SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.
A HOST CHORD. THREE ROSES. Price 3s. each.
Grand Marlborough-street, W.

JOYOUS LIFE.—An English version of "Vivandière Valeureuse." Sung by Miss Poole. Sung by the principal vocalists. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE TWO POPULAR COMIC SONGS.
BOTHER THE FLIES! Post-free for 16 stamps.
JUDGE AND JURY. Post-free for 16 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 38, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

WALTZ OF THE SEASON.—SOLDATEN MÄDCHEN. By Gustave Lange. Price—Solo, 4s.; Duet, 5s. This elegant and beautiful waltz was danced by troops, with universal admiration, at the Camp at Chobham. Also, by the same composer, Soldaten Mädchen Quadrille and Polka, performed at the new competitions of this celebrated dance-music writer.

Now ready,
THE BICESTER HUNT GALOP. By MINNIE. Splendidly Illustrated, price 4s. Post-free at half price, by the Author and Co., 79, Sussex-gardens, W.

ANTOINE COURTOIS' CORNETS-À-PISTON, Trombones, Euphoniums, &c., are used by all the principal performers in the world.—ANTOINE COURTOIS, 314, Regent-street, of whom price-lists may be obtained.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE GALLERY, 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND BROADWOOD GRANDS, SECONDHAND BROADWOOD COTTAGES.
SECONDHAND COLLARD COTTAGES.
SECONDHAND COLLARD COTTAGES.
SECONDHAND ERARD GRANDS.
CHAPPELL and CO. PIANOFORTE GALLERY.—Secondhand Broadwood Grand Pianoforte, from 60 gs. upwards; secondhand Broadwood Cottage Pianoforte, from 40 gs. upwards; secondhand Collard Cottage Pianoforte, from 40 gs. upwards; secondhand Erard Oblique Grand Pianoforte, in rosewood case; secondhand Erard Cottage Pianoforte, in rosewood case; secondhand Collard Cottage Pianoforte, in walnut or rosewood cases.
50, New Bond-street.

SIX-OCTAVE HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDER, with five stops, two tenthousands, and in oak case, suitable for a church or school, and recommended by all eminent Church Organists. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDER, nearly if not quite as good as new, to be had immediately, at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDER'S PRIZE EXHIBITION HORNS, Model Class, Class 1, Class 2, Class 3, Class 4 Harmoniums, and Transition model, worked by the best of the eight feet, Class 5, Class 6, Class 7, Class 8, Class 9, Class 10, Class 11, Class 12, Class 13, Class 14, Class 15, Class 16, Class 17, Class 18, Class 19, Class 20, Class 21, Class 22, Class 23, Class 24, Class

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH.

REVIEW ON SOUTHSEA-COMMON.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE ANGLO-FRENCH NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH.

CONTINUING the series of our Illustrations of the international festivities at Portsmouth, the week before last, upon the occasion of the visit of the French naval squadron and the French Minister of Marine, we now present several Views of those noteworthy incidents and scenes which are not comprised among the subjects of the Engravings hitherto published.

The Illustration on page 264 will give some idea of the noble and majestic appearance of the British flagship, the Edgar, when she manned yards and hoisted the French flag at the fore, in token of bidding welcome to the commissioned squadrons of Vice-Admiral Count Roüe-Villaumez and Rear-Admiral Rouvière de Nouvy, accompanied by the Imperial yacht La Reine Hortense, with the Minister of Marine on board. This was on the Tuesday, the 20th ult. The Solferino, one of the great French ironclads, tar Vice-Admiral's flagship, is seen to the left hand.

The ships composing the French squadron have already been enumerated; but it may be well, in reference to the Engraving on page 273, which gives a general view of them leaving Portsmouth Harbour on Saturday morning, the 2nd inst., to repeat their names: the Solferino and Magenta, two-deckers, ironclads, of 7000 tons burden, carrying fifty-two guns, and beaked at the prows; the Normandie, La Gloire, La Couronne, Invincible, Provence, Heroine, and Flandre, frigates; the Caton, Ariel, and Faon, smaller vessels; the Reine Hortense, Imperial yacht. The squadron took its departure very quietly about nine o'clock in the morning. The French Minister of Marine, the Marquis de Chasseloup-Laubat, had taken leave of the Duke of Somerset, the First Lord of the Admiralty, a few minutes before. On his return to the Reine Hortense, that beautiful vessel, of which we give a separate Illustration, steamed out of Portsmouth Harbour, and was followed by the Enchantress, paddle-wheel steamer, with the Lords of the Admiralty on board. As she left the harbour a salute of nineteen guns was fired from Blockhouse Fort, and there was a similar salute from the Edgar, the British flagship at Spithead. On getting a little ahead of the Solferino, the Imperial yacht slackened her speed, and the Enchantress steamed up abreast of her. The Minister of Marine and his suite were then standing upon the top of the saloon, and the Commissioners of the Admiralty were upon the bridge of the Enchantress. The two ships dipped their ensigns, there was profound bowing and raising of hats on board both vessels, and the meeting between the naval forces of France and Great Britain was at an end. The Enchantress, after a few moments had been occupied in this interchange of courtesies, was put about and steamed towards Portsmouth Harbour. The Reine Hortense sped on her way towards the Nab Light, followed by the Faon, tender, which was close in her wake, and the other ships, in the following order—viz., Solferino, Magenta, Couronne, Provence, Heroine, Normandie, Invincible, Flandre, and Gloire, the two sloops, Caton and Ariel, steaming with the division, but not in line. By eleven o'clock the Imperial yacht had run considerably ahead of her consorts, and was at this time about three miles to the south of the Nab Light. She then dipped her ensign to the Solferino and took her leave, the latter returning the compliment with a salute.

The remainder of our Illustrations are devoted to the festivities on shore, and the review or parade of troops on Southsea-common, which took place on the Friday. On this latter occasion the line was formed on the narrow and confined space of a part of the common parallel with the line of sea-beach, and in full view of the combined fleets anchored at Spithead. Immense numbers of people assembled to witness the manœuvres, which lasted about two hours. The Minister of Marine, the Admirals, and chief officers of the French fleet were on the ground, and were, on their arrival, received with a general salute. The troops on the ground consisted of two field batteries of artillery, the 6th and 12th brigades of Royal Artillery, one company of Royal Engineers, the first battalion of the 14th Regiment of Infantry, the Royal Marine Artillery, Royal Marine Light Infantry; 52nd, 75th, 81st, and 87th Regiments of Infantry—4064 of all ranks, with twelve 12-pounder brass-loading guns, and 164 horses attached to the guns. They were organised in three brigades, forming up in a line of contiguous columns at quarter-distance, under the command of Lieutenant-General Sir George Buller, K.C.B., Lieutenant-Governor of Portsmouth, and Commander-in-Chief of the Military South-West District. Sir George was attended by a numerous and brilliant staff of officers, among whom was the Earl of Cadogan.

The entertainments provided by the town of Portsmouth, on the Thursday, in the spacious pavilion erected for this purpose on Governor's-green, have already been noticed. The Mayor, Mr. R. W. Ford, and the Town Clerk, Mr. Howard, with the other members and officers of the municipality, aided by an active and influential committee of subscribers, had made arrangements for this occasion on a grand scale. The French Minister and Admirals, with the other French officers, were invited to meet the Duke of Somerset, Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, and a large party of English officers, besides many other gentlemen and ladies who procured tickets for themselves. There was a banquet, called a déjeuner, followed by a promenade concert and ball. We give an Illustration of the banquet; and one of the ball appeared in our last Number. The suite of marquees and other temporary structures erected for the accommodation of the guests did much credit to the skill and taste of Mr. Lewis Angell, the borough surveyor, and other gentlemen of the committee. The decorations, which had been intrusted to Mr. Dillon, of London, were of a novel and effective style. The entrance was beneath a triumphal arch, resting on coupled columns, and displaying in a transparency a picture of the French fleet, with an avenue of standard flags on lofty poles, leading to the pavilion. The vestibule had in its centre an illuminated fountain, playing to the height of 20 ft., into a basin of 14 ft. in diameter, where were some of the choicest ferns and rockwork. We refer to the illustrations on page 265. From the vestibule the company passed into the circular marquee of 80 ft. in diameter, lined with scarlet and white cloth, and thence, by a corridor of 40 ft. wide, to one of Edgington's tents, 108 ft. long and 36 ft. wide, also green-roofed, and lined with crimson and white cloth, also decorated with flags and coloured lamps. At the upper end, behind the Mayor's chair, was a bust of the Emperor Napoleon, above a shield bearing the arms of the town of Portsmouth, with the Mayor's chain and badge. On his right hand were the Royal arms of Great Britain, supported by the standards of France, with the Imperial and British crowns. On his left hand were the arms of France, supported by the Royal standards of England and of the Prince of Wales. At the opposite end of the room were an exquisitely-designed waterfall, fountain, and cascade, intermixed with choice ferns and evergreens—the rockwork being formed of blocks of coal, gold, which, when the gas was lit, had a beautiful effect. Contiguous to this tent was the building used as the grill-room for the 3rd Hants Artillery Volunteers, which was hung with scarlet and white, and adorned with trophies and medallions, as well as a beautiful display of bouquets, and of flowers and shrubs in pots, supplied by Mr. Fay, of Portsmouth.

The ball given by the Lords of the Admiralty at the Royal Naval College (of which we also present an Illustration) took place on the Friday night, and was conducted very successfully. The tent in which it was held—occupying, as described last week, the whole quadrangle in the rear of the college—had, since the Admiralty banquet given in it on the Wednesday, been still further decorated. The lighting of the interior was executed by Messrs. Thomas Tucker and Sons, of London; while the illumination of the approaches was undertaken by Messrs. Defries. The hall of the college, forming an ante-room to the ball-room, was adorned with beautiful plants in flower. On each side of the ball-room, which was made dazzlingly bright by the light of twenty-five crystal lustres from the roof, besides eighty wall candelabra, and twelve placed in vases of flowers on the floor, were alcoves with seats, in which the ladies, when fatigued with the dance, rested themselves until tempted to rush into the whirl again. In the centre of the room and on the right-hand side of the entrance busts of her Majesty and of the Emperor of the French were placed opposite to each other in a recess, the hangings of which were of crimson cloth. Two bands—those of the Royal Marine Light Infantry and the Royal Marine Artillery—stationed in recesses on the other side of the room, played very efficiently

1. Femur, or thigh-bone. 2 and 3. Leg-bones. 4 and 5. Spines. 6. Part of the bone shield, with one of the dorsal vertebræ.

REMAINS OF AN EXTINCT ANIMAL FOUND IN THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

the music to which the dancing took place. At the end of the room opposite the entrance a spacious doorway led into a refreshment-room. The company numbered about 500 ladies and gentlemen, and the great majority of the latter wore naval or military uniforms, while the ladies, of course, were very richly and gaily dressed. They presented, while dancing, a splendid as well as a lively and animated sight.

A NEW WEALDEN DRAGON.

ORDER, SAURIA; FAMILY, HOMEOSAURIDÆ; GENUS, POLACANTHUS; SPECIES, FOXII.

A very remarkable reptile, to which Professor Owen has given the name of Polacanthus, has lately been discovered by the Rev. W. Fox, of Brixton, Isle of Wight, in the Wealden beds, which form the sea-cliff in that part of the island. About two thirds of the bones of this dragon have been secured. Our Illustration shows several of these bones. This reptile is of a new genus in the Dinosaurian family, which have five vertebræ in the sacrum, but differs from the other three genera in having had solid limb bones. When living, it was probably 15 ft. long; certainly 6 ft. between the shoulders and rump; about 3 ft. in the tail, and 4 ft. in head and neck. The other bones seem to point to a comparatively small head. The most remarkable character in the creature was three—in the back was covered with an immense shield of bone, like the carapace of a turtle, about 4 in. thick, and taking away all elasticity from the spinal column. This unusual way of strengthening the back through the bony shield is accompanied with very slender though deep dorsal vertebræ, as may be seen in the figure No. 6 in the Illustration. Another special peculiarity of this dragon was its immense spines, two of which (4 and 5) are figured in the Illustration. Their arrangement on the body is not yet clearly ascertained, but they probably ran along the sides of the body and tail as a defence to the less protected parts underneath, which parts were also covered with thick subcircular scutes, from ½ in. to 4 in. in diameter, some crested, some ridged, as seen in the bones numbered 1 and 7. The leg-bones are very strong and solid, and very large in the joints, with rough and conspicuous surfaces for muscular attachment. In the middle bone (No. 1) the femur is a very conspicuous trochanter, looking like a large excrescence of bone, which had relation to reptilian muscles, by which their limbs were supported in their usually crooked posture. The bones of the INAUGURATION BY THE QUEEN OF THE PRINCE CONSORT'S STATUE AT COBURG.

The large Engravings which occupy the two middle pages of this Paper represents the very interesting scene which took place on Saturday last, Aug. 26, in the little German city of Coburg, where the Queen led Great Britain, with all her sons and daughters—a widow, still mourning for the husband she has lost, accompanied by the young persons, her children, who helped her to do honour to his name—unveiled the statue of Albert of Saxe-Coburg and Saxe-Gotha, the late Prince Consort of this realm.

Coburg, the capital of the duchy of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, is a town of 12,000 inhabitants, on the small river Ita, about one hundred miles eastward of Frankfort-on-the-Maine, and situated in a picturesque and agreeable country of well-wooded hills. The old castle, or fortress, in which Martin Luther resided some months in 1530, and which has many other historical associations, is a fine example of the fortified palatial architecture of the Middle Ages. The Duke usually resides, however, in a modern palace on the town. The Queen's husband, Prince Albert was born, a distant four miles from the town, in the castle of Rosenau, a delightful spot. It is an old-fashioned picturesque building, with four battlemented gables, perched on the top of a green hill commanding charming views on every side.

The town of Coburg, on the appointed day (which was the late Prince Albert's birthday), had put on its best holiday dress, and every house was gay with garlands, festoons, and streamers, costs of arms, masses of flowers, and every variety of simple but tasteful devices. Every window-sill, every mullion and cornice, up to the topmost gable, was massked with evergreens. The public buildings in the marketplace, the Townhall and Government offices, were hung with flags drooping down from the roofs to the basement, and the same vivid colours waved from lines and flagstaffs across the square. These colours were chiefly the green and white of Coburg, the black and yellow and white of Prussia, the red and yellow of Baden, the red and black of Wirtemberg, and the red and white of Darmstadt. The Union Jack and the Royal Standard of England were not forgotten, nor the German tricolour (the black, white, and gold), which symbolises the idea of a German nationality, more favoured by the princely family of Saxe-Coburg than by the neighbor German Sovereigns. The wrappings had been removed from the statue of the Prince Consort; and there it now stood, in the centre of the square, with no other covering than a thin white linen cloth; opposite to it was the Townhall pavilion, an elegant structure all scarlet and gold, with a canopy supported by eleven columns; and above it, in two stories, were surmounted by a Royal crown, the arms of England and Coburg, and again, over the centre, the English standard. All round the square, right and left and opposite, were the tribunes, all walled with evergreens; some for the municipal authorities, others for the inhabitants of the place. The crowd, even the privileged spectators who had admission to the reserved platforms, began to fill before seven after two in the afternoon. There were the Duke's battalions mustering in the square, and which formed, in ordonnés and scholastic but tidy saucer-like caps with invisible brims, with two fair bands of young damsels, dressed in white, distinguishable on one side by green, on the other by pink ribbons. All these had bad wreaths of flowers in their hands, and they were all bare-headed and bare-armed. They had rehearsed it a quarter to waltz, when some of the Royal personages, but without the Queen herself, made their appearance. In the first carriage were the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Prince Alfred; in the second, the Princess of Wales, the Crown Princess of Prussia, and the Prince of Wales. Soon after four the bells from all the steeples in Coburg set up their loud peals, the cannon thundered from the fortress on the hill, the bands struck up the solemn notes of the English National Anthem, and the Queen's carriages drove up amidst the loud shouts of the multitude. In the first carriage were her Majesty, Prince Arthur, and Princess Beatrice; in the second the ladies and gentlemen of the Queen's suite. Of the Royal family, only the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary were absent. They had remained at Rumpelheim, the summer residence of the Landgrave of Hesse. The Queen was received at the carriage door by the Duke of Saxe-Coburg. She soon appeared in her place in front of the pavilion, and was very deep mourning, black dress and bonnet, with a black veil thrown back, and under her bonnet that cap à la Mary Stuart with which the English public have lately become familiar. The Royal ladies around her were colours, and the variety of their lively costumes presented a striking contrast to the sable hues in which the principal personage was attired. Prince Leopold and Prince Arthur were Highland costume; Prince Alfred wore the Coburg uniform. All the other Princes and their attendants displayed the English colours.

In attendance upon the Queen were the Duchess of Roxburgh and Lady Churchill, General Grey and Major Sir John Cowell, lately created a K.C.B. by her Majesty whilst at Rosenau. In the suite of the Prince of Wales, Colonel Teesdale and Mr. Holtzman; attached to the Duke of Cambridge, Colonel Clifton. In the suite of Prince Arthur, Captain Elphinstone and other gentlemen. The friends of the late Prince Consort assembled here from England and from all parts of Germany. Lord Granville and his secretary, the Hon. R. B. Meade, were in attendance; also the Hon. C. A. Murray, her Majesty's Minister at Dresden, and Mrs. Murray; Dr. Lyon Playfair, Professor Hoffmann, and others.

The Queen stood up in her place while anthems were sung by the choirs, with an accompaniment by the band; and afterwards, while the Burgomaster of Coburg, from a very low platform in the middle of the square before the statue, delivered an address. After this there were more strains from the band, more peals of the bells, more discharges of artillery, and, at a given signal, the linen wrappers of the statue collapsed, and the gilt-bronze of the Prince's effigy stood out, all glittering in the flaming sun, with its countenance fixed upon the countenance of the Royal lady by whose venerable bread how it had been reared on its pedestal.

Presently the troop of girls in green and pink ribbons, who had been so long waiting for the performance of the part assigned to them in the ceremony, stepped forward, and, one by one, laid before the pedestal their wreaths and garlands. Another anthem was sung by the chorus, and as its last notes died away the Queen withdrew, and all thought she had gone back to her carriage, when she was seen, at the head of all her family, walking across the square up to the monument, where she headed to the Duke of Saxe-Coburg the bunch of flowers which had long lain before her on the balcony of the pavilion. These flowers were laid by the Duke on the pedestal, and along with them all those of the Princesses and Princes, till the fragrant mass rose high up to the feet of the statue.

Her Majesty then walked back to the pavilion, and presently her carriage left the square amid the loud cheers of the people. The whole ceremony lasted hardly twenty minutes. When the last of the Royal carriages had disappeared, the multitude, which had long been pent up at the inlets of the market-place, broke in upon the empty area, which was soon black with its swarming masses. A few minutes later the Queen, who had been driving round the gaily-decorated streets, reappeared once more unexpectedly on the newly-laced square to obtain one more glimpse of the newly-inaugurated monument. The crowd, among whom her carriage could with difficulty make its way, greeted her enthusiastically in her progress, and it was noticed that as the Queen passed she had a smile and a kind word for the sculptor, Mr. Theed, who, together with Mr. Wichardson and Mr. George Thomas, the artists, was standing on the steps of the pedestal.

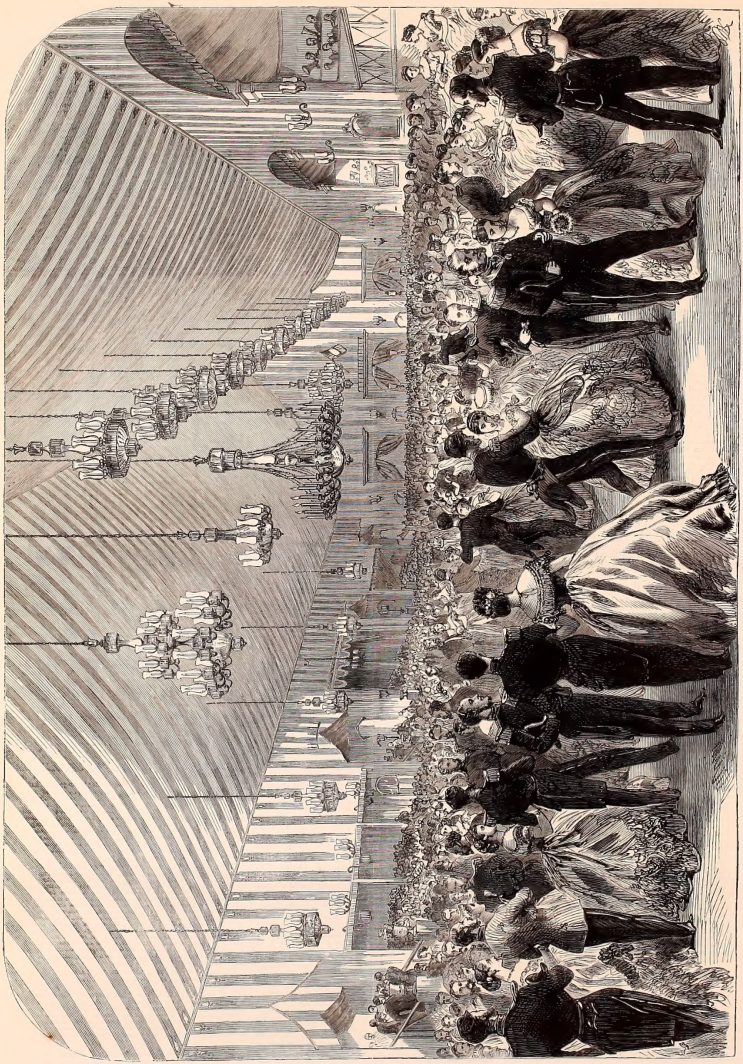
It is from a sketch by Mr. Thomas, made specially for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, that our Illustration is engraved. The statue itself is identical with that which Mr. Theed has supplied, by her Majesty's permission, for the Albert Memorial at Sydney, New South Wales, a representation of which appeared in the Number of this Journal for June 17. The original model is now in the central transept of the Crystal Palace. The bronze statue at Coburg, 10 ft. high, was cast by Messrs. Lenz and Herold, of Nuremberg, who did their work to Mr. Theed's perfect satisfaction. The pedestal is of polished granite, and bears in front an inscription with the names and titles of the Prince Consort, translated from German—"Britannien und Irland," with the dates of his birth and death; at the back the date of the erection of the monument, with the following words—"Das Gedächtniss der Gerechten bleibt in Segen" ("The righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance," Psalm cxii. 6).

It is understood that this monument is entirely the Queen's own work, Here is the choice of the subject, that of the artist, the style in which the figure was designed. All the expenses are defrayed at her own private cost, though the Coburgers accepted the large pecuniary contributions from the Prince of Wales, Princess Alice, and other members of her family. The King of Prussia and the King of Hanover have likewise subscribed towards the cost which the statue has been cast. The Corporation of Coburg, we believe, have built the pedestal at their own charge.

M. Alfred Assollant has an article in the Courrier de l'Europe on the Education of Women, and remarks, among the following passage indicates M. Assollant's mode of treating the subject:—"Glory be to God, but all over!" Such seems to be the motto of those who are fated to be of equal thickness. The ranges of the guns was tried and found fair. Augusta, 1,000 yards; Victoria, 1,200 yards; Albert, 1,400 yards; Armstrong, 1,600 yards. Prince Alfred, Mr. Marriott, and Mr. Chesterfield has engraved the Duke of Somerset, and has been embraced by him. There was a grand dinner at Battersea, a cygnet was at Revy, and champagne was at Portsmouth. The Magenta offered her arm to the Warrior, and the Admiralty Office cheered. "Three cheers for Somerset!" "Five Hurrahs!" were shouted. Port ran like a river and Bordeaux like a stream. They are fine fellows—we are their friends—yes and brothers. Long live Victoria!

The poll-book just printed "by authority of the Vice-Chancellor" of Oxford gives the names of 3577 members of Convocation whose votes were recorded as follow—viz., Gladstone, 1737; Heathcote, 1636; Hardy, 1604. The votes of the professors and the few that rank as such were recorded: 24 for Gladstone, 20 for Heathcote, and 12 for Hardy. The fellows of colleges and students of Christ Church who on the occasion used their franchise divided thus:—Gladstone, 209; Heathcote, 195; Hardy, 87. Not a single fellow of Merton, Corpus, or Oriel was in favour of Mr. Hardy, although the heads of the two first-named colleges voted for that gentleman. Brasenose, St. Augustine, were as follow:—Gladstone, 417; Heathcote, 371; Hardy, 178. The votes given personally are thus enumerated:—Gladstone, 213; Heathcote, 194; Hardy, 87. The only two votes split between Gladstone and Hardy were given by members of Exeter and of Oriel.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.



For many years, as those entitled to decide declare, London has not been so empty as it now is. There cannot be above two millions and a half of people left within the five miles' radius. I took lately, for the first time these many months, a walk down Regent-street and Oxford-street, by Waterloo-place to Charing-cross, and so through Whitehall and Parliament-street to Victoria-street. I was bound to do it, for I had with me an American friend who, although he had inhabited Paris for eleven years had never been in London before, and who was to leave the next day for New York via Liverpool. The depletion of the fashionable quarters was, to the eye of an experienced Londoner, as evident as on the Derby Day, otherwise the only day in the year on which Babylon seems positively full. My friend, bound to show my Transatlantic friend all the lions in the space of about seven hours, from the Statue of Achilles commanding the Park to the Abbey, Westminster to the Crystal Palace. There was nobody there. Then we hired a cab, and drove him among the squares, where the pompously beautiful green lanes by Lewisham to Greenwich. There was nobody to be seen at the Ship, and we could not get a glass of sherry worthy of European language, to attend upon us. It is something after all to be able to give a friend whitebait for the first time in his life. Our friend was not much impressed by the delicious dish. It is a fine fish, which I doubt. It was a sensation. "Well," he said, "it is the first time I ever ate twenty-four pair of eyes at a mouthful." When he heard our companion, who is a gourmet, order the waiter to be very particular in giving us "black devils," as well as "red devils," for the first instalment of "bait," he opened his eyes. Sensation the second. He started, too, the ingenious theory that the black devils were so called, that whitebait are best eaten with the fingers, like the fried potatoes of the banks of Saratoga. I am not quite certain, however, that we ever become acquainted with "bait," would have agreed with him. They won't give you a soup-ladle, and they are right, because of the real soups of your fork. They are crisp and cleanly; what more do you require but nimble fingers and a table-napkin. I commend this first to the notice of "Diabetes," the famous Strasburg correspondent of the Fall Mall Gazette.

Now, when you have a foreigner with you, especially an American, you like to dine him at your club, do you not? There may be a spice of pardonable envy in exhibiting to him the superiority of your club, even in consideration of a payment of half a score guineas per annum, you are the cock-a-hoopiest gentleman alive. You have the satisfaction of giving up to the scribblers and plasterers, and whitewashers. The carpets have been sent away to be beaten; the pictures have vanished or disappeared; the library-shelves are bookless; the gorgeous blankets are in mufti, and display their shabby backs to the wall instead of to the room. A flunkey in mufti is as unseemly an object as a soldier on furlough, with his jacket unbuttoned and his neat stock replaced by a colossal neckerchief. The very knives and forks are put away for his holiday, and the page-boy who officiates as temporary janitor is not quite sure of you about your name, and has forgotten your letters. This is the time for an adventurous stranger to risk the rude scrag of cutlery, unwirted, the gravy-spoon, the fish-slice, &c.

The Athenæum is being completely restored, renovated, and beautified, inside and out; and, with little exception, it is now entirely cleared from the smoky accumulations of twenty years, makes a noble appearance at the corner of Pall-mall East. The Reform and other clubs in town are enjoying the courteous hospitality of the Senior United Service; but I am told that some of the members, accustomed even as they are to hot-spoken colonels and peppery major-generals, complain of the short tempers of the Athenæum bishops, a right reverend order you have decided not to admit, I hear.

The mention of my Yankee friend reminds me that a very distinguished American officer and man of science is expected to arrive as just now. My readers may have seen a recent letter in the Times, signed "R. J. Mc," on that dangerous topic, the possibility of future invasions by the Confederates, and pointing out that which Northerners and Southerners alike should strongly object to, the necessity of making the mausoleum order to burn Richmond and why Jefferson Davis is lodged in the fortress of Fortress Monroe. The writer of the letter, who fell in a Quixotic raid on the Confederate capital, was a wicked forger, Mala hominum ex animus. He is, however, a Captain, commonly called "Commodore." Was a very distinguished naval officer, United States navy, the head of the Bureau of Ordnance at Washington, and the author of a most amusing book, "Yankee Ships and Yankee Sailors." "Les Gringos," and of a wonderfully-sensational nautical romance called "The Brand of the Dolphin." Captain Mc. is the officer who, when Washington, and in particular to all those gentlemen who have been attached to her Majesty's Legation there, will recall to the name of kindly and humorous "Commodore." Wise must be familiar and pleasantly awaken the remembrance.

Our French friends have been honouring themselves, and us, and the memory of a great man, by a visit to the scene of his exploits and at Boulogne-sur-Mer, to the illustrious physician who discovered vaccination. "Edward Jenner to France recognizants," so runs, according to the Times, the inscription on the medal struck in honour of By-the-way, is not the proper translation of "grateful" "reconnaissante?" If "reconnaissante" a slip of the pen, or of the pen, or the type, or the sub-editor? The other day a gentleman wrote a very droll and clever letter to the same journal, complaining of certain words, in which, quoting the well-known apostrophe of the Archbishop of Granada—his gentle Grenadian Grace, I suppose, who got out of his study for criticising his sermon, he makes no less than five gross blunders in French orthography. Now the Archbishop of Juan Rifol Le Sage is not very difficult; and might not Toby Smollett's coarse but sonorous English translation have been left to the gentleman's turn? When are we to have that international college so much suggested for by Richard Cobden? When are we to learn a little more French than is compatible with the use of the pen, or the type, or the sub-editor? The other day a gentleman wrote a very droll and clever letter to the same journal, complaining of certain words, in which, quoting the well-known apostrophe of the Archbishop of Granada,

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH: BALL AT THE NAVAL COLLEGE.—SEE PAGE 269.

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH: THE FRENCH FLEET LEAVING SPITHEAD.—SEE PAGE 268.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

The Literature and Curiosities of Dreams. By Frank Seafield, M.A. (Chapman and Hall.) Man delights in mystery; he finds a strange pleasure in listening to what opens his mouth, dilates his eyes, curdles his blood, and makes "each particular hair to stand on end." Hence the great popularity of certain works of fiction. The child acknowledges a horrid fascination in that which causes his flesh to creep, and mesmerical practitioners; and the mysterious, consequently, sets men fond, or in the vagaries of disease, or in the workings of Providence, whose "ways are past finding out." Men will, therefore, always be curious in the subject of dreams, which seem to them more, though perhaps they are really less, mysterious than the rest. Mr. Seafield has set dreams a proof of the immortality of the soul, some see nothing of the kind. Some explain them in one way, some in another. Lord Bacon and Hegel is very likely right when he says that "there is no phenomenon in nature less recognised and understood than what passes in written than dreaming;" but it is, nevertheless, a phenomenon in which men will still want to feel an interest, and about which they will never cease to write sense or nonsense. The author of the present volume to be that of an attributive dreaming to imperfect sleep and holds that dreams are always traceable—though not effects—to some time before sleep comes on. And the transition instances in one to lay down as a general law, "Dreams are the result of a sufficient exist to account for upon any theory; but they are comparatively so few, sometimes so questionable, and are based on so little proof, that they may be included in the category of those exceptions which are considered not to invalidate a general rule." Not that we are among of us whose experience in the matter of premonitory dreams, according to which we were to be appreciated far beyond our deserts by a discerning world, were to display wisdom and other treasures in store for which Solomon was a fool and a beggar, were to marry, within a fortnight, a beautiful princess, to whom the Queen of Sheba was a Bagpie and the Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley (as the Americans would say) very small potatoes, were to succeed to the title of Prince Leonora, however minute the instructions might be, as to even take an omnibus to so short a distance as Hyde Park Corner, or "something to our advantage," or for "important information," under a penalty not less than a sovereign for each and every offence we would willingly leave it alone altogether, or sell the chance for an insignificant consideration. Besides, as it happens—as it happened not long ago—that a woman is warned in a dream that her child is to be on fire, though it is not, and that she had better throw her baby out of window, which she accordingly does, the consequences, should the impost, a police magistrate, and a grand jury, may arise. The question of premonitory dreams, therefore, is, of course, a difficult one; but it may be said that the object to be accomplished is proportionate to the means employed. Mr. Seafield and Lord does not there appear to anybody in a dream to point out the whereabouts of a missing half-crown, or to communicate a winning number in a lottery, or to give such information as would nowadays be communicated in due time by the telegraph, the post, or the newspaper. Mr. Seafield has, with much diligence, impartiality, and intelligence, put together two volumes, which will be very justly entitles "A commonplace book of curiosities concerning the mysterious," to read and vision, records of curious and well-authenticated dreams, and notes on the various modes of interpretation which have been in vogue among them. They contain all kinds of facts, anecdotes and opinions; they are conspicuous for a spirit of neutrality; and they afford the spectacular upon dreams a basis for theories and creeds contradictory and irreconcilable with each other. The subject is often treated attentively, a promising candidate at a future time for Bedlam.

Lord Arthur Annie. By Edward Jenkins, Esquire. Sweetley, (Hamilton, Adams, and Co.) This little volume is dedicated to the Rev. Alexander Mackenzie, and may be won with some recommendation, with others a condemnation; at the best it is a sufficient to have no idea of the religious tone to be expected. The editor has compiled from the writings of Swedenborg and others, and is called to a spiritual permission extracts which he thought likely to console the bereaved in their sore hour of bereavement. The selections are generally judicious, and the pious belief, fervent language, and excellent exhortations of those upon whose spiritual consolation-tions are highly recommendable.

The Children's Own Book. By Agnes and Maria E. Catlow. (Cassell, Petter, and Galpin.) A pretty little book, "dedicated, by the Queen's Gracious permission, to her Royal Highness the Princess Christian," showing what a family of children made of a garden with which a sufficient and affectionate father presented them. It is illustrated by Mrs. Harry Coddle, and contains hints for gardening, arrangements amongst a small piece of the kind by a model family (in comfortable circumstances) from a certain January to December. The style, the language, for grammatical and other purposes, is the gardener, whose presence, and who, to use an expressive slang term, "speaks like a book."

Childhood in India. By the Wife of an Officer, late of H.M. Service. (Jackson, Walford, and Hodder.) A little volume, unpretending in point of grammar, but, nevertheless, not to be despised. The title might lead to the supposition that it is a treatise on the management of children in India, showing why it is right, if not necessary, to adopt children's modes of treating a certain age, and the best way to England; but introductory to a Hindu nutmy, and evidently written in the manly character of faithful servants who have been in the employment of the same family for the treacherous side of the Hindoo character has been so often sketched that it is not worth while to review it. Childhood is likely to read the book with interest.

The Pointer and the Parrot. By Mrs. Hamilton Knox, M.A. (S. W. Partridge.) This is a prize essay—a fact which is generally sufficient to condemn it; but in this case there is no reason for being prejudiced against it; it is not dry, or pretentious, or pedantic. The author conveys the pastor as a friend to his people, shows how he may hope to excel in his five exercises as a preacher, pastor, catechist, evangelist, and a person. There is much sound sense, a moderate illustration, Protestant spirit, and a tolerable acquaintance of the assent of all, it will be found to exactly suit the requirements of many.

The Poems of John Dryden; The Poems of Robert Green and Metaphysical Poets; The Poems of William Cowper. Edited, with Memoirs, by Robert Bell. (Charles Griffin and Co.) Mr. Bell has considered sufficient to have commended once for all the plan on which this edition of the English poets is prosecuted. The first in which is being published; but when works are issued volume by volume an occasional remark is required to let an excellent publication should fall into oblivion.

The Mer Sermons. By E. S. T. (Saunders, Otley, and Co.) This is a volume full of conjectures, handsome and, though not always, of high moral tone. The disentanglement is followed by the marriage of the hero, a staff-surgeon, with a young lady, the daughter of his brother's tutor, but whom she discards in favour of the military doctor. The ill-used lover, however, is consoled himself, and the other characters are for the most part "united." There are no very striking personages or characters in the volume, unless the latter being where a Mrs. Black drops her "cap and bandages," and is introduced to a Mr. Higgins, who is a Mr. Higgins. The author is to signify "the false dark hair he had worn." Important events are brought about without loss of time, and with excellent suddenness; small talk is profuse; love and blushes abound; and the fortunate staff-surgeon and other persons are provided with fortunes just at the right time and with the characteristics of fairy tales.

Le Petit Trésorier. By F. Grandineau. (Jackson, Walford, and Hodder.) The best recommendations of this little book are that it has reached a thirty-first edition, and that its author was "French Master to her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria." The imagination of royal subjects will cloche in country garb the homely phrases "moncher-vous" and "je veux me moucher," and will conjure up the imposing picture of an illustrious princess pronouncing the words and performing the operation.

FINE ARTS.

A VISIT TO MR. FOLEY'S STUDIO.

WE have on a former occasion intimated that there is a reason why Mr. Foley has ceased to exhibit at the Royal Academy, since the year 1861, any of the important public works (or even models of them) upon which he has for that time been engaged. Whatever this reason, it is surely a regrettable loss, not only to the distinguished artist and the profession and the public, that by general consent our foremost sculptor (now that Mr. Gibson is no longer in the centre of his powers) should be absent from the principal exhibition of British sculpture—indeed, the only exhibition. Something more than the Horticultural Society's scheme for an annual display of sculpture in the Royal Gardens, as represented in the Royal Academy, is certainly not in a position to afford the artist the most supporter of an effort, and the absence of such works as Mr. Foley's supplies a circumstance which the profession and the public have a right to complain of.

The reason of Mr. Foley's discontinuing to exhibit at the Academy is not, we believe, a new fact with him, but we have very great doubts that it should have full publicity. It has not been Mr. Foley's practice to exhibit his works to public inspection in the Royal Academy although Mr. Foley is known to have provided for sculptors very justly, that the rooms are only for the refreshment-staff, but it has been concerning that his brother academicians have more than once found fault with him for not sending his works to the exhibition and discovery. The particular instance, however, which more decisively and unjustly has led to Mr. Foley's not having the hanging, in '61, of his bas-relief of the victorious assault of Dubrovnik, the commander-in-chief, Marshal Laudon, who fell in the attack. Now, paintings by academicians with figures less than three feet, sculptors are placed on "the line;" if it be a disadvantage for such pictures to be hung higher, it is obviously a tenfold disadvantage for a bas-relief, where the principal interest in the figures subject to distortion if viewed from below, to be placed upon the line. Mr. Foley's bas-relief, therefore, that Mr. Foley should, when he found his relief hoisted above the line, have withdrawn it, but that unless it was lowered he would send nothing more to the Academy. Such, we believe, is the fact, and Mr. Foley has kept his word. It appears to us that thereby an inexcusable wrong has been done to the sculptor, and to the art by the academician who is known to have arranged the subject, but also by Mr. Foley himself, who has thus deprived the public of representatives, by the body of academicians. On the other hand, with admitting even that that protest may have a very just foundation, in cherishing a resentment which is less influential and independent artists, we must still regret that he does not find some other way to the public of his works; he should let his works be seen in their exhibition from which is derived such a large proportion of his income. Two fine monumental works by Mr. Foley we engraved a short time since—viz., the statue to the late Mr. Sheridan, recently erected (in a very unfavourable position, lighted only from a stained-glass window) in Westminster Abbey, and the statue recently erected in Dunfermline Abbey to the late General Bruce, who, in his capacity of governor to the sons of Her Majesty, accompanied the Royal Highness on the journey to the East, and there contracted the illness which terminated in his death. The statue of the latter work in marble is the second that we feel bound to add to the list of Mr. Foley's productions which we have had our engraving from the model, that we presume will be the repose of death in the recumbent effigy, or in which a mourner is introduced as watching over the sleeper. The figure for its pathos and beauty of treatment, recently the features do not show through the veil, as we often see in Italian sculpture; the sentiment and feeling of the whole work therefore not liable to be disturbed or injured by admiration of a mere trick.

Mr. Foley has also in marble the statue of the late lamented chief of Edmund Burke, designed as a companion to the statue known as Burke and Goldsmith, in College-green, Dublin, which we have engraved. A small model of the statue of Burke, by Mr. Foley, was exhibited in 1863, and the full-sized model in an adjoining atelier, ready, we believe, for casting. The monument, we believe, is to have no pedestal, and that the statue surpasses in companion in merit. The handsome orator who, in the words of Mr. Foley, "spoke as a poet, in flavoured author. Burke is represented standing in a very spirited and energetic oratorical attitude, and is the more stood—enthusiastic almost defiant—in opposition to nearly the whole House. The figure of Burke is remarkably fine, and the head is a masterpiece which arrests and holds the attention like a living thing, and the expression is grand and powerful. The statue of Burke in the same gallery is a model of a highly-characteristic bronze statue of Burke, which we have engraved, and which is now in course of casting. The statue is also ready for casting, and was submitted to the public by the greatest lawyer-orator of Edmunder, but it has been thought advisable to postpone its erection for the present, as the site is not yet quite ready for the figure felt. A monument to the late Mr. W. Richie, who filled several important positions in India, and was Governor of the Bank of the Governor-General, is remarkable for the originality of the design and the beauty of the figure of Britannia, by whom it is occupy. It consists of a marble bust on a tall pedestal, with Gothic ornamentation, at the base of which is a recumbent figure, beautiful allegorical tributary figures, about half lifesize, of Religion and Benevolence, the former with a cross, the latter with a child. Among other portrait-works in this gallery, we may mention statues of Lord Elgin, Viscount Hardinge, Sir John Lawrence, Sir Colin Corrigan, President of the College of Physicians, Dublin; Dr. Hickson, and Sir Henry Bishop, Mr. Anthony Salvin will be remembered in connection with the collection of pictures formed the nucleus of our National Gallery), and of two of the Secretaries of State for India, Lord Macaulay and the magnificent donor of pictures to the nation, which is shortly to be placed in the new museum contiguous to the Kensington Museum. Passing models of such familiar works as the "Fair Geraldine" (the first work executed by Mr. Foley for the International), now in the Ritesmere Gallery, and the first sculpture of Mr. Foley's, "Sir Walter Raleigh Presenting the Potato to Elizabeth" and "Selden," in the Westminster Palace; the "Egeria" and "Ophelia," in the Museum, "Young Lady in a Shell," "Group, strange to say, never executed in marble), and the also-rolled "Mother of Sisera," and "Mother and Child," and of James Ward, R.A., the visitor enters an atelier or workshop where a number of works are in progress. The statue of Burke is a very happy modification of the pose, and the Albert Memorial for Birmingham. This statue represents the Prince Consort in his robes of the Garter, holding the staff of office of the Bath. It is to be placed under a canopy in the open air, and will not discredit the position. The head, in particular, has more naturalness and unforced dignity than in some similar statues that might be named. But we think we may safely predict that it will be excelled by Mr. Foley's Albert Memorial for Cambridge, in which the Prince is attired in his robes as Chancellor of the University. The model for this is, however, not yet finished.

One of the most important works upon which the sculptor is engaged is the colossal equestrian statue of Sir James Outram, the plaster model for part of which, supported on a framework of iron, occupies one end of the spacious, lofty, and principal studio. We are not sure that the destination of this great work is absolutely fixed, but in all probability it will be erected on the Esplanade at Calcutta, as a companion to the sculptor's Lord Hardinge, for which it is well fitted. We cannot mention Mr. Foley's Lord Hardinge—universally admitted expressing our regret that the subscription for procuring a duplicate short of a national disgrace; and a similar loss could have happened to the metropolis of no country but England. The action of both men so thoughtful and spirited. The action of both which we accompanied, formed upon Sir Arthur's command, for "pitching into" the Sikhs, is entirely novel. The conception was evidently suggested by the "charge" of cavalry, and is highly interesting from the modified high-mettled, and the horse's head drawn more to the opposite moment, and the horse's head drawn more to the opposite side, thereby adding to the interest of the work and diminishing more interest of the work and diminishing more interest of the work and diminishing more about seventy strong, and there were ten solo performers, the entire vocal and instrumental strength being about 200—a much smaller force than we are accustomed to on such occasions nowadays; but we are far from making any objection on this score. Good result, however, has been found with the selection of the vocal performers, and with good taste. The absence of Mr. Sims Reeves was an astounding fact, and the non-engagement of Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, and Mdme. Parepa—performers justly deemed indispensable on every such occasion—cannot be justified on any ground whatever. Economy in these cases is not a valid plea; but, if it were, it could not be urged, for the number of chorus and instrumental performers engaged shows great profusion. The conductor, Dr. Wesley, has been blamed for this, but we are convinced, without cause. His appointment as conductor of the orchestra did not give him the management of the festival, and as to the engagement of performers, we do not believe that he had a word to say on the subject. Dr. Wesley is not only one of the best organists of living musicians, but is distinguished by his zeal for the progress of the art in his own country. He has always displayed his public duties as conductor of this festival with ability and assiduity, and to charge the shortcomings of the committee of management is simply absurd.

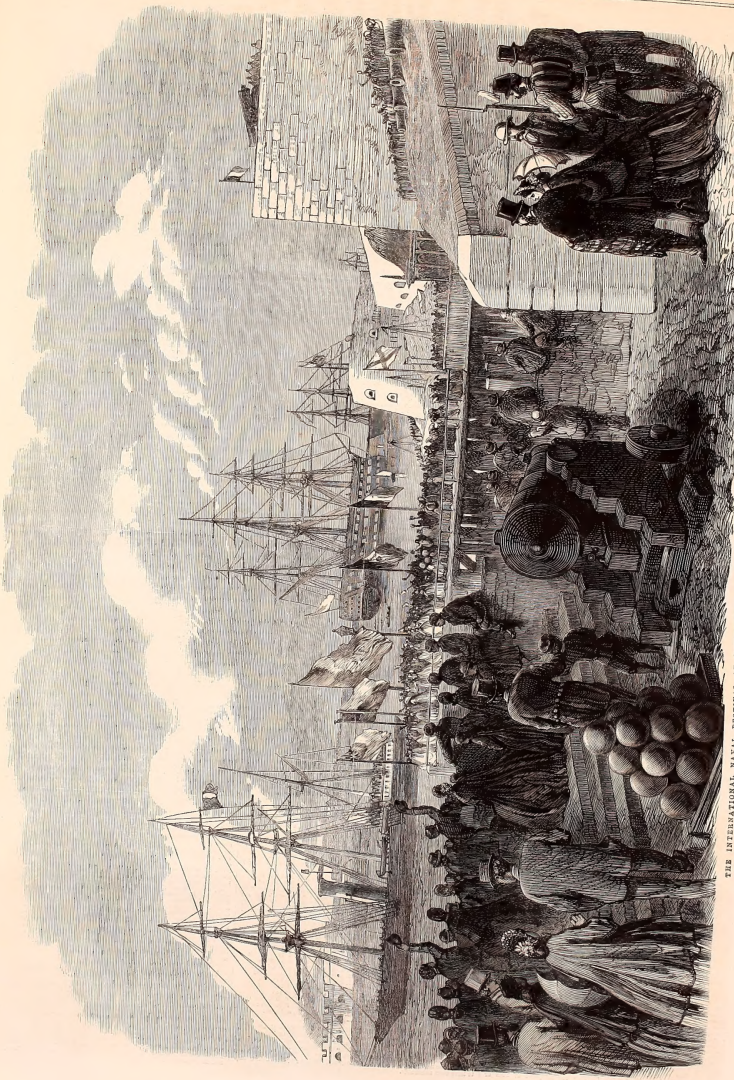
THE THEATRES.

On Saturday the Haymarket season, under Mr. Walter Montgomery, closed with the performance of "Pauline" and "Used Up." Miss Katherine Rodgers sustaining the part of Pauline. It will be recollected that Mr. Montgomery had promised to have his theatre re-formed, for the first time in London, Mr. Martin Tupper's tragedy of "Alfred;" but the lamentable illness of Mr. Edward Price (the Angelo) rendered such an attempt imprudent. In other respects the season must have been a successful one, both profitable to the speculator, and certainly does credit to his energy.

On Monday the Polygraphic Hall was reopened by Mr. Gourlay, a Scotch artist, who has been engaged in the most interesting national eccentricity, and who has invented an entertainment for its display in which he combines science with arts. We have, first, the handiest of a village inn; next, a village schoolmaster, with his wife, female, and of whaby; a Highland lassie, and a lad; a Highland soldier, a Highland sailor, and a deaf nurse. Some acquaintance with high-singer, a Newfoundland dog, and a Highland terrier. Some acquaintance with the Highland fairies. The entertainment for the theatre, enjoyment of this clever series of impersonations. The table of the entertainment is a very large one. Service." Mrs. McGregor is a very by-married lady, who has crossed the Tweed to enjoy her honeymoon; and Mrs. Gourlay, in brief absence of her husband, amuses herself by inviting the different personages to her residence. That he will also amuse the public we think extremely probable.



SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

A chair for Organic Chemistry in the College of France has been created by the Emperor, in the room of Professor Berthelot, so eminent for his successful labours in the artificial production of organic compounds. The appointment is a very high one, and marks the great triumphs of modern science.

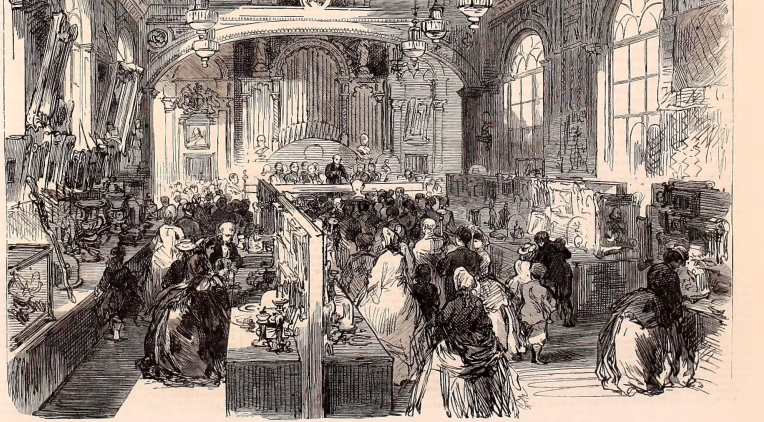
A memoir by M. Damour on the materials of the stone hatchets found in Celtic tombs and among savage tribes was read at the meeting of the French Academy of Sciences. The author dwelt upon examination and chemical analyses of the numerous specimens in his collection, from Ireland, Scotland, and other cities. The materials were found in the following order:—Siliceous matters (quartz, agate, jasper, &c.), obtained from fragments of detonal and eruptive rocks; jadeite, or nephrite; M. Damour considers "saussurite," "saussurodamite," nephrite (saltaite and hornblende), and saussurite.—Academy of Sciences, Paris.—Professor Grove, on the 31st ult., read a paper, previously communicated to the Royal Society, on the velocity of light, 10, and 11 last. The astronomical observations of the shooting-stars of Aug. 9, nowhere to be seen, have turned out to be very few. The following were the numbers for July 28, 47 stars; July 27, 121; July 30th, 91; July 31, 74; Aug. 2d, 72. In 1864 the numbers were—July 28, 15; July 31, 20; Aug. 2d, 21. In 1864 the maximum was on Aug. 9, 10, 11, we checked, there being a mean diminution of 2·9 stars per hour from July 28 to Aug. 2. The diminution of the meteoric system is great.

The conclusion of Sir David Brewster's interesting observations on the polarisation of the atmosphere appears in the Philosophical Magazine for September. Among other conclusions he arrives at the following, as the determination of the place and angle of maximum polarisation:—"The highly probable explanation of the more colour of the polarisation effects is perhaps to be found in the fact that the light which is not polarised is more reflected." But Sir David, after referring to Mr. Glaisher's balloon observations, expresses his opinion that the principal cause of the diminution of colour is produced by the reflection from the molecules of the air, whose polarising angle is 45 deg. The reflection from the molecules of water is reflected in but little of the blue rays, not nearly so little of the yellow and red rays, and therefore polarised light by the light reflected from the aqueous vapour in the higher regions of the atmosphere. The author has also made observations on the behaviour of solid insulators, from which he has concluded that the electrical movements take place in the surface of the insulator, and that these movements are occasioned in part only by the action at a distance of the electrified surface, the remainder being occasioned by the air that is thrown more quickly and high temperatures than at low ones.

The Annals of Natural History for September contains, as usual, several interesting papers by eminent naturalists on special subjects. Several newly discovered species are described—as a new insect from Ceylon, by Mr. H. Setley; a new genus of the genus whose from Formosa, by Dr. J. E. Gray; new coleoptera, by Mr. F. P. Pascoe; and a new land shell, by Mr. Baker. Mr. J. W. Baker continues his contributions on the insect fauna of the Amazons valley. In Mr. E. L. Layard's paper on the birds of Tahiti, he observes that these birds are constantly in the bay; but he cannot get the fishermen to bring them to the museum. He has, however, succeeded in obtaining the black and blackbird; but the men prefer a dollar to a shilling, and will not cut up humanity and sell by auction. Mr. Layard puts forth no food, that they

THE INTERNATIONAL NAVAL FESTIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH: THE REINE HORTENSE LEAVING PORTSMOUTH HARBOUR.—SEE PAGE 285.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.



No. 1335.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE FENIAN MOVEMENT.

IRELAND is a singularly unlucky country. Her best opportunities scarcely ever have time to become visible and awaken hope before they are knocked over by some unexpected casualty. An evil sprite seems to dog her footsteps and watch for occasions of tripping her up as soon as her course is onward. She had already begun to prosper and take heart, after the fearful calamity of the potato blight, when she was thrown back again into trouble by three bad harvests in succession. She is just beginning to recover from the despondent mood into which they plunged her, and now she is infested with political boils and blains in the shape of Fenianism. There can be no doubt that this disease has been imported from the West, that it spreads by contagion, that it fastens upon the lowest class of the community, and that at present it defies all curative treatment. Unfortunate Ireland! She may have her shortcomings, but really want of good luck seems to be among the worst of them.

We should do Ireland and the Irish great injustice if we should deal otherwise than compassionately with her and hers, under this new infliction. The political malady, the ugly symptoms of which are now attracting attention to the sister isle, is by no means national. As it was not indigenous, so neither is susceptibility to it produced by what may be called native causes. Difference of race, of religion, of political party, of social standing, will sometimes explain the sudden appearance and presence of political epidemics; but to none of them is the phenomenon of Fenianism in Ireland fairly attributable. Celt and Saxon, Catholic and Protestant, priest and clergyman, Conservative and Liberal, residents in towns and farmers in the country, alike denounce and dread the fever, and are alike anxious to see it effectually stopped. It preys only upon ignorance, and a very moderate amount of knowledge is an almost certain prophylactic against it. It is in Ireland, but not of Ireland. It is not formidable; it is not even likely to become so; but its very existence is mischievous. And perhaps its chief power for mischief resides in its aptitude to divert public attention from the real and the removable disadvantages of which Irishmen may justly complain, and to lessen the sympathy between the two countries. For Ireland's sake, therefore, far more than for that of England, it behoves the Government to crush the evil in the egg.

No one can wonder at the extreme reluctance of Lord Wodehouse to grapple with sedition in so strangely ridiculous a form. Fenianism may be vigorous enough on the other side of the Atlantic, and, perhaps, has in view aims which if they are not recommended by good feeling are at any rate feasible. The hatred of England which there organises itself in a sort of open conspiracy might, possibly, if encouraged by President Johnson and Mr. Seward, leave its mark upon Canada; but over here, in Ireland, "the brotherhood" are simply pushing a number of silly young people into a dangerous position. It is not to be imagined, for a moment, that the rulers of the United Kingdom, any more than the rulers of the United States, will tamely witness a disintegration of the empire. It is not conceivable that the union which the all but illimitable resources of Great Britain are pledged to maintain is likely to be torn asunder by a mere transatlantic faction; or, if Ireland could be temporarily occupied by them, that they could permanently retain it. Nothing could be more farcical than the supposition that what would require an immense and well-organised force, acting in aid of strong national feeling, to effect, will be accomplished by a few secret societies, in each of which there is a traitor, and which can pretend to no better means of compassing their end than that of drilling the silliest of the peasantry by moonlight. Altogether, the swagger of Fenianism has been so loud, and its means so contemptible, that the Irish Government is really to be excused for having let it alone until now. Of course, it knew everything accurately enough; for conspiracy evermore breeds plenty of cowards who will vie with each other in selling information to the police. It may be pardoned, therefore, if it hesitated to interpose in so supremely ridiculous an affair. It was entitled to hope that the plot, if there was one, would be suffocated by its own absurdity. That hope having proved vain, it became a merciful Government to dissipate a delusion which could only injure its unhappy dupes by drawing them into closer connection with crime; and we trust that what it has done it has done so completely as to save the guiltiest from worse perils than any to which they are now exposed.

OPENING OF THE READING INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

When Lord Wodehouse had made up his mind to move, he moved to some purpose. Having quietly taken full precautions against an outbreak, he committed the execution of his policy exclusively to the civil force. They were quite competent for the occasion. Simultaneously, or nearly so, they took complete possession of the centres of the conspiration. The organ hatched their work on Friday, and by Saturday evening they had laid hands upon nearly everybody and everything connected with Fenianism in Ireland which was likely to be dangerous at all to vitality. The Irish People—the representative of the institute by brethren-died—together with the chief portion of its staff and effects, was cleverly captured in Dublin; the leading conspirators in Cork were at the same time mysteriously arrested. Here and there, in other districts, active officers of the federacy were taken. After the braggart speeches addressed to Fenians in America, which lasted the complete organisation of some half-million of enthusiastic traitors in Ireland, all waiting impatiently the signal for sending the United to all by irresistible force, the upshot of this sudden raid by the police is, as might have been anticipated, contemptible enough. One might be almost entitled, but for the serious issues at the most decisive character, to imagine that the authorities of the been misled as to the proper places for casting their nets, so utterly insignificant is the take which they have landed. If, indeed, they have not got hold of the real head and heart of Fenianism in Ireland, where are they? How is it that the chiefs certainly do not appear? How happens it that no trace of them can be discovered? Where is the half million of sworn and organised conspirators about, that they suffer a few constabulary policemen to haul their brethren through the streets and securely lodge them in prison? Perhaps they were taken by surprise; but four or five days have since elapsed, and not a sign of their indignation is to be seen. Of course, the country, the almost universal feeling of Ireland, so far at least as it has been displayed hitherto, is one of satisfaction. Now, this is the best news that the Irish population were to any appreciable extent infected with the foolhouse of a national conspiracy. There would have been a visible show of submissiveness on a somewhat extended scale, even if there were no movement at all, for sullenness, then fear, arising from a consciousness of being compromised. But there is neither. Dublin and Cork go about their ordinary business as heretofore, and only think and talk of what has happened as they would of any other sensation and curiosity and gossip. We conclude, therefore, that all that there was of Fenianism which required to be put under restraint is already within the grasp of the Executive authority; and that the little bubble which has just burst really contained the only force which mystery and brag had exalted into a power capable of defying and dethroning the Queen of the United Kingdom.

Thus far, then, Ireland fairly deserves congratulation that she has proved herself so slightly susceptible of the mischief which it was sought to infuse into her blood. There have been times in her history when the base attempt might have been more successful, although we are not aware that the Irish nature ever manifested any strong affinity for treason. These times, happily, have passed away, and the number of Irishmen having anything to lose are few who can discern any promise of national prosperity save in separating the destiny of their country from that of England, and in the dismemberment of the Imperial Parliament to deal considerately, justly, and generously with Irish interests. We are, moreover, that even in regard to this travesty of treason Government has been lenity with leniency. The emissaries from America, who have so gratuitously striven to get up a rebellion, will not be found to be elevated into comparative dignity by having, on conviction, to suffer the penalty of death. A sufficient term of penal servitude will better become them, while their dupes may be even more indulgently treated. It is not always politic to render to crime when allied with political folly the full measure of its legal deserts, and we venture to believe that not be thought so in this case. Hitherto, the affair has assumed all the features of a farce—it would be a great pity to convert it, by unnecessary rigour, into a tragedy.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITIONS OF ART AND INDUSTRY.

THREE of our illustrations in the present Number are devoted to local exhibitions which have recently been opened respectively, at Reading, Birmingham, and Wakefield.

THE READING EXHIBITION.

The opening of the Exhibition in the Forbuildalt at Reading was hearly reported last week. An illustration of the building, with its inaugural address, in the presence of the Right Honourable the Lieutenant of Berkshire; Colonel Loyd Lindsay; Mr. Shaw Lefevre, M.P.; Sir Charles Russell, M.P.; Sir F. Goldsmid, M.P.; and Mr. Walter, and other gentlemen of distinction in the county; the Mayor of Reading, Mr. Butleson, and the corporation of the borough; Mayors of several neighbouring towns, with the members of the Reading Corporation, having attended the ceremony of opening the Exhibition, and followed the chair of the Exhibition, and then to the choir of male and female voices, accompanied on the organ by Mr. Strickland, organist of St. Mary's Church, performed the musical part of the proceedings, the Hallelujah Chorus being given with great effect, when the Bishop declared the Exhibition opened.

This exhibition at Reading is two-fold, being partly an industrial exhibition, made up of specimens of the skill, the taste, and the ingenuity of the working-class people of that town and district; partly a fine-arts loan exhibition, to which many of the nobility and gentry have sent a great variety of precious things. The Queen has sent from Windsor Castle the celebrated shield of silver, inlaid with gold, presented on the Field of the Cloth of Gold by Francis I. to Henry III., executed by Benvenuto Cellini; an oak case, mounted in silver, containing the gold cross and address presented to her Majesty by the Mayor and corporation of Liverpool, upon the first visit of Royalty to Liverpool, made from the house at Everton used as the head-quarters of Prince Rupert, when he besieged the town; an ivory silver-gilt vase and stand, presented to King William IV. by Lord Bentinck in 1830; and antique mosaic "Flora," formerly the property of one of the Popes; a case of historical busts of German Sovereigns of the House of Saxe, from Leo, the Good, 1467, to Charles II., 1700; case of busts of English Kings, from William I. to Queen Victoria, Guido, in wax, of Frederick Prince of Wales, "William Tell; portraits by Claude de Jardin, Sir Peter Lely, Vandyke, Holbein, Gainsborough, and Reynolds, &c. Besides these, her Majesty has sent a number of curious articles in Indian and other ivory, and in carved oak, ancient carved chairs, with other articles of virtue. When mention that out of the 1300 articles contributed by the Queen, 700 come from Windsor Castle and the various seats of the Sovereign, and come the county, some idea may be formed of the noble and generous character of the collection. The display of sculpture now will attract more visitors. Gibson's famous statue, the "Tinted Venus," is the most prominent in the Second International Exhibition of 1862. It has been lent by the owner, Mr. Alexander Morrison, and is the most splendid mosaic. The Industrial Exhibition proper has been classified and arranged. The first division contains the articles contributed by artisans, and these, again, are subdivided into those which have referred to their own original designs and those which are independent of it; the second division includes all those who are not artisans, and this is also subdivided as in the first division. The first class money prizes will be awarded, as well as certificates of merit; in the second class medals and certificates of merit will be awarded. Given. Without at present particularly noticing the articles which are far beyond the usual average of display, we would be quite wrong if we failed to make special mention of

THE BIRMINGHAM EXHIBITION.

The Working Man's Industrial Exhibition at Bingley Hall, Birmingham, a general view of which we engraved last week, was opened on Monday, the 18th inst., by Lord Lyttelton, assisted by Lord Leigh, the Mayor, Mr. Alderman Phillips, Mr. Scrivenor, M.P., and Mr. Dr. Miller. The well-known hall in which the exhibition is held is of the form of a Latin cross, its length, but, large as it is even, is not sufficient for the display of the many articles of interest. Of course specimens of mechanism there is in great variety, and of the most miscellaneous character. The articles displayed are of every description. The staples of the district are represented, of course specimens of mechanism there is in great variety, and of the most miscellaneous character. The articles displayed are of every description. The staples of the district are represented, of course carving and gilding, there is a good display, and numerous models in such much of skill and clever workmanship is displayed. Also there is a large display of which would not be composed of more elegant and luxurious pieces of wood. The contributions from Birmingham manufactures ornamented in gold and silver, bedsteads and vases, and perhaps the least curious feature of the exhibition, is a quantity of "original pieces" from common pins to the price ode to be set to music and performed at this inauguration; to which the price ode to be set to peculiarly appropriate. The exhibition is in every respect most creditable, and, like all others of its kind, contains much that is instructive as well as useful.

Some account of the Wakefield Exhibition will be found on page 289, with an illustration.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

PARIS, Sept. 21, 1865.

Now that M. Dupuy de Lôme has spoken out on the Ott affair in an informal but still in a very decisive manner, there is no longer any apprehension that that justice is likely to interact in this melancholy newspaper and discussion. Such is not the case, however, with the Siècle and Avenir National have served to revive the interest in this question. The Indépendance passed and Avenir National have served to revive the interest in this question. The Indépendance passed and which French journals are accustomed to display when they have got hold of any piece of information which they deem important. Something more than hints are dropped that Belgium and the Rhine affair, and that Prussia is much the same position as Belgium would be subjected by Austria and Prussia to obtain possession of Schleswig and Holstein, and that the French Government would seize on the Belgian provinces as a compensation. Whether she would secretly connived at Prussian conquests is a question which we leave to others to settle, whether the acquisition would be worth its price to which the papers in question treat lightly, and which is not to be gained without fighting unanimity. The Luxenburg "transaction" is the negative evoked the most unanimity. The Luxenburg "transaction" is the negative pattern territory for hard cash, it would not be easier to find purchasers and negotiations for the sale of her fortress to Prussia. All this, with the coming withdrawal of the first batch of French troops from Mexico, and the Austro-Prussian loan of 15,000,000 florins, has, however, no bigger, may be, than a man's hand, but still sufficient to overcast the political horizon.

As to Austria, the public awaits discussions on the Gastein Convention, as to Austria, the public awaits discussions on the Gastein Convention, some most opportunely the news of the Italian Government having recalled its Ambassador, with one or two exceptions, how inefficiently did the French papers have to enlighten the public on the real import of this unfortunate contingency! The Temps even treated it as a matter to discussion on pregnancy! The Temps even treated it as a matter to be treated of Harcourt. Even while I write, the Fenian Brotherhood and the with the press and with the public; and one cannot help wishing that both with both, and with the Government, could settle their differences out of ein will persist in applying to an "opposition nationality."

The Exhibition for 1867 is on the tapis again. The specifications for its erection have been issued and tenders have been sent in. The plans which will be adopted are said to be those of Monsieur Le Play, the commissioner, in the course of the meeting of the Imperial Commission, on the 30th of last month.

The first batch of Japanese Ambassadors, whose coming here was so loudly heralded, have arrived, and have been lodged in magnificent apartments in the Hôtel du Louvre, retired to more modern quarters in a quiet street in the Rue Neuve des Petits Champs by Rivoire. It is supposed that, being practical men, they don't much care for the amusement of Paris, preferring to go on to see its industrial and manufacturing establishments, and to study the trade and marvel at them. The Minister of Foreign Affairs, for whom they are bearers of credentials, has been absent from Paris ever since they are waiting to present them.

The Paris papers are full of the accidents which have occurred on our English locomotive engineers have given rise to some discomfiture which Chemin, Dessus, Chemin Dessous" in the Rue Caumartin. In the forty-six locomotives for the Italian Government, it seems, require some alterations to be made in order to suit the Italian lines. Out of the 70,7201, the Baden firm at the rate of 50,720l., the English firm were at the rate of works at Vaise, near Lyons, and the Belgian firm at the rate of 50,720l. Considering the Graffenstaden works secured an order for twenty-four locomotives and the Baden firm for twenty-four, the English firm obtaining none of the spoil.

On Sunday—spite of a fête, with the waterworks in full force, at St. Cloud—crowds of people flocked to Chantilly to assist at the opening of the Amateur Meeting; but, with the exception of the chief members of the Jockey Club, who were bound to be there duty called them, none of the upper ten thousand appear to be where duty called them. The report that Gladiateur—who had again worked the Parisians into Fille de l'Air were to contend for the Chantilly Derby at Doncaster—and together a large assemblage of Parisians; but, neither of these much horses showing, the race was but a poor affair; still, people seemed just as well pleased as if they had witnessed the performances of these noted creatures of the turf.

The Count de Noé, second to Dillon in the famous duel wh ch the latter fought with the Duc de Grammont Caderousse, and in which he was killed on the field, and his brother—the celebrated caricaturist, Cocorico, I believe, to the title. De Noé is called after comic journals—died for his country at the affair of the duel, but at any rate he gave his principal good professional advice.

The Duke of Grammont Caderousse, Dowager Duchess Dudley Davenport, but the latter, as I publicly remarked from frequently him beyond teaching him a few of the principles of the noble art of self-defence, was not a little blundering threats were far more likely to embarrass his adversary and fall against him than more precise manœuvres successfully performed. Unfortunately, however, the injury threw himself, as it were, upon his opponent's sword. Dillon the Duke's characteristic but somewhat brutal expression, was "spitted like a lark."

The season of the Italian Opera here commences on Monday week. The Regent," "Leonora," by Mercadante; and, "Don Bucefalo," by Verdi. Of these, representations of the first two are promised some time during the month of October.

The Brohken Davenport havers resumed their performances, this time with the tickets of admission at 30f., which, coupled with the price of admission to the Folies de vells in an adjoining apartment, is equivalent to a considerable outlay. The company could see them, perfectly checked challenge of the Davenports to perform with the same means precisely the same results as they did, has travestied their exhibition to the "Salle Robin" to witness this portion of its performance. It is quite true that the performances of the Davenports, but the dress so under very different circumstances, but the dress so under very different circumstances, but the dress so under very different circumstances jection, public order, and the advancement of the general prosperity. In becoming the government I promise to regard your interests, and expect obedience to his Majesty's commands.

Herr von Zedlitz, the former Prussian civil commissioner in the duchies, has undertaken the civil administration, subject to the authority of General Manteuffel. He has announced that the government of Schleswig will be divided for the future into four departments. Herr von Rumohr takes charge of the Interior; Herr von Rathjen, Public Worship; and Baron Richthofen the War Department; while that of Finance is to be provisionally divided into three bureaux, a chief being subsequently appointed. The customs and telegraphic branches will be carried on at Flensburg, and the postal administration at Schleswig, each under their former chiefs.

The Prussian Government has also issued a Royal proclamation announcing the assumption by the King of Prussia of the title of Duke of Lauenburg and the annexation of the duchy to his dominions. The proclamation promises that the King will respect the prosperity of the duchy in conformity with the existing laws.

Field Marshal von Gablenz, the new governor of Holstein, has arrived at Kiel, and has issued a proclamation addressed to the inhabitants of the duchy. The Field Marshal expresses the hope that, as the representative of the Emperor of Austria, he would meet with the same kindness which had been shown by them to the Austrian troops. The proclamation then continues:—

I rely with full confidence on you and your co-operation in the difficult task which I have undertaken in your name of loyalty. This alliance facilitates the fulfilment of my mission, for the two armies will learn to understand. These difficulties can, however, be overcome by your quiet attitude and your real patriotism. I will maintain the autonomy of your administration, which is so splendidly developed; and, above all, I will allow the native sons and citizens of Holstein to take the most important part in the affairs of the duchy. I promise you the conscientious application of the existing laws, the utmost possible economy in the public expenditure, the prosperity, energetic and rapid execution of the duties of government, and the entire exercise of an impartial administration of justice. Any wishes arising from the exercise of my decisive policy, I am inspired solely by the desire of removing as much as possible any interruption to the development of and to the prosperity of the country, and, step agreeable by the confidence of the population, it must be the indispensable result of my measures.

The Independance Belge has published the text of a circular despatch respecting the Geneva Convention, which was sent to the Belgian journal to have been sent, on the 14th inst., by Earl Russell to the British Envoy at the foreign Courts. In this circular Earl Russell says that the Convention has incurred the regret with which the British Government must viewed the fact that the Governments of Prussia, and Denmark, and adds—

All rights, in war, whether based upon a solemn agreement between Sovereigns or on the clear and precise expression of the popular will, have been trampled under foot by the Government of Denmark; and the superiority of force in the only power which has been assembled and recognised. Violence and conquest are the only bases upon which the Government of Denmark has linked their connection. Her Majesty's Government greatly deplores the deference that has manifested for the principle of the Geneva Convention to claim that the people may raise to be heard when their destiny is called into question.

The Augsburg Gazette has published a circular despatch, which is stated to have been sent by M. Drouyn de Lhuys to the French Envoys at foreign Courts, and which condemns the Gastein Convention in terms unfavourably similar to those used by Earl Russell.

Prussia, it seems, has issued no circular, being resolved to maintain a strict policy of non-intervention in all that is done.

UNITED STATES.

The President has pardoned ex-Governor Brown, of Georgia. He has written a letter expressing great satisfaction at the loyalty manifested throughout Mississippi, and expressing his opinion that the people should be trusted with their own governments.

Mr. Davis's health continues to improve.

There is a very unsettled state of affairs in the south, especially in Mississippi, where there was a considerable force of the rebels under civil authorities. There was a general feeling of uneasiness arising from the fear of a raising of the blacks.

The New York Democratic State Convention has passed resolutions denouncing negro suffrage rule and every species of negro equality south of the States. The resolutions also indorse President Johnson's reconstruction policy, state the obligation of the general Government for payment of the national debt, and support the Monroe doctrine.

It is stated at a Cabinet Council held at Washington on the Mexican question all the Ministers but one were in favour of the status quo. President Johnson said he preferred to wait the progress of events. The expression of the policy he intended to pursue on the question.

President Johnson had made a speech declaring the policy of the States to be the maintenance of Republicanism, and, by peaceful means, the establishment of free institutions throughout the American continent.

The Watts trial, after an adjournment of several days, has been resumed. Several coloured witnesses have been examined, and additional evidence has been taken in the case of the coloured prisoners by Captain Wirtz. One witness swore that Wirtz killed a boy by striking him on the head with a pistol; another that Wirtz had punished prisoners attempting to escape with severe whipping, hail and chain, and hard labour.

The grand jury has found eleven indictments for forgery in the third degree against Ketchum—one being for grand larceny.

The New York Times says that the Fenian movement, except among the Irish element, though disapproving England's course during the rebellion, decidedly opposes war.

Mr. and Mrs. Kean have been playing to crowded houses at the Broadway Theatre, New York.

It is officially denied that President Johnson had invited Mr. John Bright to visit America in the autumn.

THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

The SAXON has arrived, bringing intelligence from the Cape of Good Hope to the 8th ult.

The war between the Free State and the Basutos was being vigorously prosecuted. The Boers had carried the mountain passes leading into their territory, and reached within a short distance of the capital. The Kaffirs and the natives beyond the river were also reported quiet and tranquil.

After a lengthened opposition the Cape Government had succeeded in passing the bill for the annexation of Kaffraria through the House of Assembly.

INDIA, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

There is no news of interest from India by the mail from Calcutta up to Aug. 8. In trade and politics there was a profound lull.

We learn from China that the son of the late Sankhlinia had taken command of the Imperial army and was about to attack the forces of the rebels, who, to the number of some 300,000, had reached within 200 miles of the capital, and had seriously alarmed the Pekin authorities.

The policy of the Japanese continued to be to make their country "dead lock" to foreigners, by wishing all to depart from their property. Two steamers, the Coreа and the Chanticleer, are supposed to have been lost in a typhoon near Hakodadi.

AUSTRALIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

MELBOURNE, July 26.

THE speech of Mr. Lowe on the extension of the franchise in England has, as might have been expected, attracted a good deal of attention here, as the man who was at one time the leader of democracy has had experience as to the disastrous effects of universal suffrage in these parts. Were anything wanting to show the danger of universal suffrage it may be found in the spectacle exhibited at the present moment by the Legislature of this colony, where Parliamentary affairs have arrived at that happy (or unhappy, condition in derogating which the term "dead lock" is used to convey some idea of. Here the two branches of the Legislature are in direct antagonism to each other; and what the upshot may be no one can venture to predict. The existing state of things was brought about in this way. After undergoing no end of discussion in the Lower House, the Tariff Bill was "tacked" to the Appropriation Bill, which was then sent up by the Speaker (Sir Francis Murphy), who expressed his opinion that to "tack" the bills would be considered a breach of the privileges of Parliament; "and that, although the Assembly undoubtedly possessed the power, the "tacking" could not be constitutionally effected unless the standing orders were suspended. The Ministry and their followers opposed the ruling of the Speaker; and, after a lengthened and acrimonious discussion, the Assembly decided, by forty-one votes to sixteen, to carry out what the Times designates the "violent and revolutionary" intentions. On Friday last the "tacked" bills were sent up to the Council, when the formality of reading them a first time was gone through, the second reading being fixed for Tuesday last night. To give some idea of the excitement taken in the affair by the general public, I may mention that, last night, the galleries and every available bit of space in the Council Chamber were occupied many hours, even, being present. The eloquence of the Upper House is not of a very high order, any more than that of its more democratic compeer; but last night the speaking was ably deficient in that respect, and the arguments used were, to the point, apparently, to overcome the timidity resulting, doubtless, from a knowledge of the unpopularity of the course they had to pursue if they for the second reading being called, the President (Sir James Francis Murphy) and, after one or two speeches on the main question, Mr. Fellows moved an amendment to the effect that the subject matters of the bill should not be considered until they were discussed in separate measures, and that the bill be laid aside. A long debate followed, and the question was decided by a majority of five. This, though the forbearance of the Assembly in setting the Upper House at defiance, the Ministry and their supporters are by no means at a stand-still. An appeal to the country would not improve matters, as the bulk of the electors are in favour of the measure; the Ministry is exactly the blamable party. Some of the Cabinet are now in favour of compromising matters, particularly Mr. Higinbotham, who, if consistent in their political conduct, would adorn any legislative assembly. But, as a consequence of the Ministerial majority in the Lower House, they sacrificed their principles, pandered to the ignorant expectations of their followers, and brought about the crisis in which the people of this country are now mourning to find realised.

The duties petitions presented to the Council last night against the tariff had 24,000 signatures attached to it.

The Hon. Mr. Service, a member of the Ministry, has resigned the office of Minister of Defence, and will, it is said, be succeeded by Mr. Langhorne, who is considered a very able man. Mr. Service is an old and energetic colonist, who has large interests in the country. His loss to the Ministry is attributable to heavy losses in Queensland through the prevalence of the worst possible kind of cattle disease. Much sympathy is felt for Mr. Service, who is very generally respected. Mr. Langhorne, an second-cut Protectionist, is spoken of as his successor in the Cabinet.

Mr. Gavan Duffy, who, at the time ending the Parliamentary session, took an action against the Argus for libel, the damages being laid at £5,000. The Argus has attributed the late Ministerial supersession to the operation of the new Land Act, conduct and language of Mr. Duffy, and the influence of that Act. The result of the action is not known, but it is considered that, even if the damages should be small, the verdict will be equivalent to a triumphant vindication of the character of the plaintiff, and will be a severe blow to the Argus.

The revenue returns for the week ending the 22nd inst. have been published. They show that the result of the working of the new Land Act for the first week of its operation has been highly satisfactory to the treasure in his financial statement. During the five months of its operation it is estimated that £1,000,000 will be realised. This would have been received, with greatly less annoyance and expense in the administration.

An address to her Majesty from both Houses of Parliament on the subject of the Fenian movement has been voted by the Victorian Legislature. The co-operation of the Home Government is asked in the work of placing the colony in a position to defy the attack of any foreign power. England may have a dispute; and, as we fear that the enormous wealth of Melbourne is a temptation to the cupidity of the subjects of hostile enemies, we are anxious that a complete and satisfactory scheme, in the carrying out of which the Government is to participate, to the entire of the mother country, should be decided upon and practically adopted without delay. Large armaments and fortifications are necessary, but, in these ranks may be found riflemen capable of competing with those of any country, and we are suggested by a almost landlocked, the wise expenditure of a comparatively small sum at and in the neighbourhood of Melbourne would render us from the attack of any enemy.

Addressing, expressive of deep regret at the accumulation of President Lincoln, have been voted by both Houses of Parliament, as well as by the City Council of Melbourne. Similar addresses have also been voted by the Victorian Legislature.

A few days ago it was discovered that a number of Victoria debentures, to the amount of £20,000, had been stolen from the Melbourne Loan Bank by one of its customers for safety, had been stolen. The clue cashier of the bank was suspected, and he absconded to England on leave of absence about a year ago, is blamed as the guilty person.

Great disproportionate is felt in this as well as in the other colonies as the news that Prince Alfred has entered into a treaty with a fresh contract with the Peninsular and Oriental Company for the conveyance of the mails. It could not be worse served than we have been by this company during the last eighteen months or two; and, as there are local companies able and willing enough to carry the mails between Galle and Melbourne, we have thought that the Imperial Government, before making other arrangements, would give us the chance of doing the carrying ourselves. The time, we have no fear, however, as the sanction of Australia must be obtained before the service is entrusted to the Peninsular and Oriental Company, which time only five days.

The rapidity in search of Leichardt, the missing explorer, regarding whom I gave some particulars in a former letter, started on the 15th of July, is not very encouraging, as one year and nearly thirty or forty horses and fourteen dromedaries, and is under the leadership of Mr. M'Intyre, an experienced bushman and explorer. There are still funds required to meet the expenses of the expedition; but it is expected that the appeals made in different directions will be responded to, and that the party will be speedily encouraged to equipments of the committee.

Mr. Boucicault's piece, "The Gladiator of Ravenna," and to which I referred in a former letter, translated from the German of Herr von Redlitz, produced at the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, on Saturday last. Theatre Royal here, and had a run of about a fortnight; a result not to very much be wondered at, as the piece is one of great dramatic power, and the exposure involved in placing it on the stage. Theatre-going people here are accustomed to the "sensational" style of piece they have for their imported loots and shoes, local dramatic authorship is not likely to receive much encouragement from the modified success of the "Gladiator of Ravenna."

July 28.

On her way round from Sydney, to take our homeward mails, the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer, the Sultette, encountered very heavy weather, which caused her to be some days behind the period her arrival here until yesterday forenoon. As a supplementary mail, bringing the intelligence to the middle of July, she has been delayed to give you the latest aspect of the crisis which has just occurred in the Legislature of this colony.

In the Legislative Assembly, on the evening of the 26th inst., the Chief Secretary (Mr. M'Culloch) called attention to the entry in the minutes of proceedings of the Legislative Council, which showed that the Appropriation-cum-Tariff Bill had been "laid aside," and that the Council had refused to consider the subject-matters of such bill until the same should be comprised in separate measures. He considered that this treatment of so important a measure as a bill of supply and appropriation for the year should be brought immediately under the notice of the House. He, therefore, moved, "That it is expedient that he would move on the following (last) evening a series of resolutions, expressive of the opinion of this House taken by the Legislative Council, and the determination of the Assembly "not to entertain any further or other bill for the appropriation of supplies for the service of the year 1865 until the rightful control of the House over taxation and supply shall have been acknowledged by the adoption by the Legislative Council of the tariff approved of by the House, and contained in a schedule to the Bill so transmitted."

The resolutions, of which the above is a summary, were submitted to the Assembly last night by the Chief Secretary; and, after a very feeble show of opposition from the left of the chair, were adopted, without a division, amid much cheering from the right.

In a day or two the month's pay of the civil servants will be due; and, as they cannot receive their salaries, there cannot but be a considerable amount of inconvenience. The public works will also have to be stopped; and as this will throw a number of workmen out of employment, there is some probability of this class of Protectionists being brought to their senses.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

Parliament was about to be prorogued for a short recess. A few unfinished bills and the Estimates for the Government had occupied most of their intended measures until next session. One or two attempts have been made to upset the Ministry, but without success. The bill to prevent convicts landing in South Australia from Western Australia is also under consideration by the lower house.

Much excitement had been caused throughout the colony by a decision to compel all the officers that the Colonial Legislature is without authority to pass acts establishing local courts of war.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

The first session of the Parliament of New South Wales was prorogued on the 22nd of June, by Sir John Young.

On the night of the 24th inst., the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Mary's, situate at Hyde Park-corner, Sydney, was destroyed by fire. An appeal for the restoration of the edifice, and for the congregation will be found in another part of our Journal.

The Sultette arrived in the port, the steam of Messrs. Fraser and Co., situated at the corner of York and Barrack streets, Sydney, were consumed by fire. The damage is estimated at about £100,000, about half of which is covered by insurance.

A company has been formed, called the Kerosene Oil and Paraffine Company, to work the extensive deposits found near Bathurst.

QUEENSLAND.

The foundation-stone of the Parliament Houses at Brisbane was laid, by his Excellency Sir George Bowen, on the 14th inst. The building is to cost £12,000, and is to be ready for occupation in Government House. It is estimated to cost from £40,000 to £50,000.

The Southern Cross railway will be opened on the 30th inst.

A bridge connecting North and South Brisbane was opened for traffic on the 24th ult., by his Excellency the Governor.

THE LOAN COLLECTION AT THE PALAIS DE L'INDUSTRIE, PARIS.

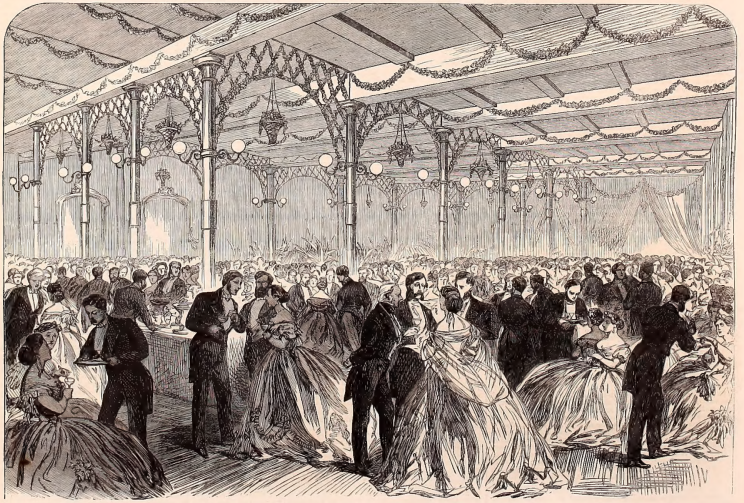
(From our own Correspondent.)

ARMOUR, METAL-WORK, FAIENCES, AND TERRA-COTTAS.

THE grand modern collection of armour in the Palais—or display—is played, as it is, in a noble salon, and so displayed that every one of its thirty-eight suits and its four suits of horse-armour, and every chef-d'œuvre of the art of the Renaissance, tells to the best advantage imperceptibly one of the most attractive features of this company of respective interests to illustrate the fashion in arms in the Loan Collection at the Palais de l'Industrie. The examples exhibited date from the fourteenth to the seventeenth centuries, and comprise suits of all descriptions, and suits of armour for the battle-field and for the tournament—for the field of chivalry and breezy plain, and for the more quaint use that in their day did real service, and the courtly-looking damascened suit that was made specially for display in the ante-room before the eyes of the admiring fair. One or two of these suits are of such quaint form that, if they were sold, others are not—they are of gigantic stature; but the majority are certainly under what we call the full middle height. The arms, which are arranged in the form of trophies, with weapons of every kind, and suits of armour, as though they required a giant's strength to wield them, but which nowadays are wielded by a moderate man, are interspersed with mediæval swashes, which, we are told, rules society, which is the world, which also, are to-day represented by two or three well-dressed dandies, that have mowed down men like grass on mediæval battle-fields; others that have fought and bled, and will be a magnificent addition to the Retrospective Museum.

Scattered about the armour salons are some fine specimens of artistic metal-work, such as locks, keys, knockers, bells, snuffers, hammers, pincers, chargers, dagger-shaped knives, and long-pronged forks, which, we are told, were used at table in the fashion of a pair of carving cuts, bedecked with tiny cupids at the reverse end, and half a dozen little implements, the use of which puzzles the head of the line of which form part of the repertoire of the perfect housewife in the present day, is not in the collection, it constitutes age.

In faïences the collection is particularly rich; but it would be impossible within the limits of a single article to do anything like a description of the variety of objects exhibited—I suppose a museum of artistic curiosities would be never before brought under one roof. The subject pieces, all of the very highest class, may be counted by hundreds. Here is a grand Limoges enamel dish, painted by Jean de Court, and bears the arms, with all the life and character of Holbein's portraits, and all the grace and dignity of Titian.



In Della Robbia ware—the "Wedgwood"—a profile head of some noted Italian, with such an amount of flesh about it that a glance is sufficient to see how the artist has set to work to paint the master hand. Among the Italian faïences is also a small plate on which is painted a lady's head, with the hair dressed in ringlets, a lovely female face, Benozzi a coiffure of gold embroidery one catches a glimpse of in the portraits of Titian and of his Venetian rivals. A label behind the head bears the inscription "Giovanna bella"—the beautiful Giovanna! Who was the original of this graceful portrait? Who is his mistress's charms and preserved the remembrance of them in fragile ceramic for contemporaries to admire and look curiously at and for lineaments to dissolve with little more than a patronising glance?

Among the Italian faïences is also a small plate on which Sodoin's most charming productions—Clodion, who gave character and a piquant kind of grace to the mythologic faun, and who fronted in the dull reddish-brown clay on which he set to work his charming nymphs and the prettiest and most sportive of children, and on whom the Messrs. Goncourt Collins had to fall back for terms. By Sodoin there are some clever busts of the men of the revolutionary epoch, but the best that attracts attention is a bust of Mdlle. Duthé, of the Théâtre Français one can trace none of that vulgar voluptuousness for which she was famous, and, moreover, one cannot conceive of her position as founded on her face. There is what some people would consider just a pleasing touch of the "sensational" about it, and a mouth and throat and bust features generally are more regular than commonly represented. Her hair, which is combed back and covered by a simple band across the head, falls in long curls over her shoulders, à la one owns pretty Princess. Among these terracottas I noticed one small statuette which made me envious of the owner. It was the figure of a young Italian lady singing. Her pose is most admirable. She holds her music out in front of her and is throwing back her pretty little head and arching her graceful, swanlike neck with such a natural air that you fancy you hear the notes issuing from her open and parted lips. The statuette has been originally painted in proper colours, and the delicate tint of flesh-colour overcovering the lady's cheek-dimpled dress are still distinctly visible.

MEETING OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION AT BIRMINGHAM.

THE RECEPTION-ROOM.

SOIREE IN THE TOWNHALL: THE REFRESHMENT-ROOM.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

MEETING OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION AT BIRMINGHAM.

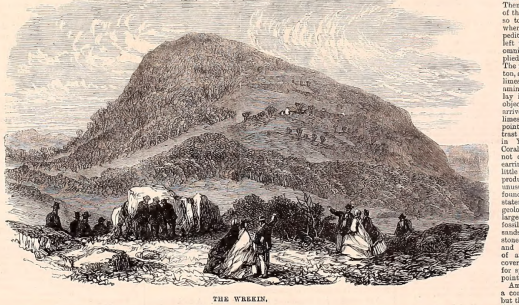
EXCURSIONS TO MALVERN AND THE WREKIN.

THE PRIORY CHURCH, MALVERN.

We resume our Illustrations of the meeting of the British Association at Birmingham. We present views of the interior of the Reception-room (the Exchange Assembly-room, New-street), and of the Refreshment-room, beneath the Townhall, as it appeared on the night of the first soirée. These Illustrations attest the success with which the arrangements were made by the committees at Birmingham for the accommodation of the scientific world assembled in that town.

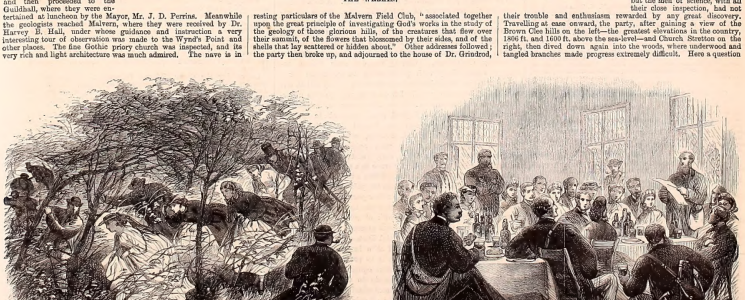
The excursions on the Saturday, the 9th inst., to Malvern and the Wrekin, had for the visitors the special attractions of the geology of the district—"the Silurian system," so well described by Sir Roderick Murchison, who has won the title of "the King of Siluria," upon this field where Caractacus raised his standard among the Britons.

A special train left Birmingham for Worcester with the first party. On its arrival the larger portion of the visitors left the train for the purpose of visiting the cathedral; whilst those desirous of inspecting the geology of Malvern proceeded to the hills at once. The Worcester party found a most courteous cicerone in the person of Mr. J. Severn Walker, of that city, under whose guidance the grand cathedral was inspected. The crypt, very fine Norman, thanks to the kindness of the Very Rev. Dean Peel, was illuminated. One or two stone coffins filled with bones were shown, one coffin being remarkable from the fact that the upper part was hollowed out for the reception of the head, a narrow passage running between the upper and lower part of the coffin for the neck to rest in. On leaving the cathedral the visitors visited the deanery and one or two other places of interest, and then proceeded to the Guildhall, where they were entertained at luncheon by the Mayor, Mr. J. D. Perrins. Meanwhile the geologists reached Malvern, where they were received by Dr. Harvey B. Hall, under whose guidance and instruction a very interesting tour of observation was made to the Wyrd's Point and other places. The fine Gothic priory church was inspected, and its very rich and light architecture was much admired. The nave is in the Norman style, and the roof exquisitely ornamented; its florid Gothic central tower, 124 ft. high, is surmounted with battlements and pinnacles. Of the rest of the monastery, originally endowed by Edward the Confessor, the great gateway alone remains, a pure example of the Pointed style; and, considering its antiquity, is remarkable for retaining, in many places, its original freshness. Malvern was in the Saxon times a wilderness, thick set with trees; and, viewed from the north-east, the abbey church stands environed with graceful foliage.



The walk to the famous hills, which afford extensive and beautiful views into Wales and the adjoining English counties, was much enjoyed. Here has been found much treasure, including a coronet of gold, set with diamonds, supposed to have been the diadem of a British Prince, who had, perhaps, fallen in a battle near here; as, from the description, it corresponded with the ancient coronets worn by the princes or chiefs of Wales. That remarkable pass, called "The Wytch," which is known to most of the visitors to Malvern, is the subject of one of our Illustrations.

Later in the afternoon the geological party was joined by the excursionists from Worcester, and they dined together in the large hall of Malvern College, kindly lent for the occasion. Sir William Guise, Bart., presided. The Rev. W. Symonds, of Pendock, gave some interesting particulars of the Malvern Field Club, "associated together upon the great principle of investigating God's works in the study of the geology of those glorious hills, of the creatures that flew over their summit, of the flowers that bloomed by their sides, and of the shells that lay scattered or hidden about." Other addresses followed; the party then broke up, and adjourned to the house of Dr. Grindrod, where they inspected his valuable museum, and were entertained at a soirée given by the Malvern Naturalists' Field Club, until the train left for Birmingham.



THE WYTCH, NEAR MALVERN.

The visit from Birmingham to the Wrekin was made by a party of 200, many of them ladies, the majority men of science, to whom the main attraction was the geology of the district. On arriving at Shifnal a small portion of the party alighted to inspect the picturesque old church; in the register is entered Mary Yates, who died in 1776, aged 128. Then on to the commencement of the Shropshire coal-fields, and so to the town of Wellington, where that portion of the expedition bound for the Wrekin left the rail and mounted the omnibus and other vehicles supplied for their accommodation. The route lay through Wellington, and by way of the Steerway limestone quarries, the party examining the different rocks that lay in their path. The first object of geological interest arrived at was the carboniferous limestone, its thickness at this point presenting a marked contrast to that of the stone found in Yorkshire and elsewhere. Coral lay about abundantly, but not of that kind adapted for earrings or necklaces, and but little of it was carried off. A production (fossil bivalve) of unusually large dimensions was found here—according to the statement of an experienced geologist who was present, the largest he had ever seen. Other fossil shells deposited in the sandstone lying above the limestone-strata were next examined, and many beautiful specimens of an ordinary character discovered, but nothing calling for special notice in a geological point of view was made out.

THE WREKIN.

Among the inquiries there was a constant demand for insects; but the men of science, with all their close inspection, had not succeeded in finding any great discovery. Travelling at ease onward, the party, after gaining a view of the Brown Clee hills on the left—the greatest elevations in the country, 1806 ft. and 1600 ft. above the sea-level—and Church Stretton on the right, then dived down again into the woods, where undergrowth and tangled branches made progress extremely difficult. Here a question arose as to the nature of the rock, and a hammer was called for. Mr. Murchison, who was in front, was informed of the circumstance, and, with his usual kindness, he sent back his hammer, and the rock was found to be Wenlock shale. Then the party emerged from the woods, and, after a short walk, reached the Wrekin, and began the ascent. The ascent was made in small parties, and the summit was reached in about an hour. The view from the top was very fine, and the day was favourable for the purpose. Many of the party descended by the way they had ascended, but others went down by the Needle's Eye, a passage between two huge rocks, and so reached the foot of the hill. Here the train was waiting, and the party returned to Birmingham.

THROUGH THE WOODS TO THE WREKIN—"THE PURSUIT OF SCIENCE UNDER DIFFICULTIES."

THE SECRETARY OF THE SEVERN VALLEY FIELD CLUB READING A PAPER ON THE GEOLOGY OF THE DISTRICT.

arose whether it would be possible for the ladies to proceed further; but, on being consulted, they repudiated the idea of being left behind, and battled most successfully with the difficulties of the rude labyrinth. Passing out of the wood, there became visible on the opposite side of the slope the cottage at which it was understood luncheon had been prepared for the party, and all pressed onward. After a slight divergence, to examine a roadside quarry, the party commenced the ascent towards the cottage refectory; and, having reached it, everybody, whether scientifically inclined or not, manifested an ence became deeply interested in the strata of sandstones before them and in the further development of the Bagshot sand and three level old distinctions. The blending of science and sociability was very pleasant. Luncheon and sauntering, and then more instructive and later beer, were a most suggestive alliteration. When the rattle of knives and forks and the popping of corks had subsided, Mr. Cooper, of the Severn Valley Field Club, read a paper explanatory of the carboniferous limestone of the district. A short discussion followed, and then the party proceeded to ascend the Wrekin, 1200 ft. above the Severn, from the fir-woods below. Around the grassy sides of the hill were identified zones of light, and at approaching the summit the trees formed a well-turfed avenue, winding through Heaven's gate to the hill-top. Here the prospect is lawful and beautiful, extending to nineteen counties, stored with historical associations. Away to the right was fought the Battle of Shrewsbury; away to the left is the disputed site of Caractacus's last desperate stand against his Roman conquerors. In the middle lies the hill in Devil's Chair and the summit of Caradoc-hill, surrounded by minor elevations, and undulating country, and almost imperceptible woods; and they met their day, on very clear days, as far as the Welsh Long and Malvern Hills, but the haze rarely permits you to see beyond Coalbrookdale, with its chimneys rising from the trees. After Mr. Cooper had recited some verses descriptive of this goodly prospect, the descent was commenced, and from the foot of the hill the journey to Coalbrookdale was continued, through narrow winding lanes, overhung with trees, along the edge of the Coalbrookdale Coppice, and on the very margin of the stream, and then descending by the steep hill into Coalbrookdale, where they joined the other party in the conversazione at the dinner of the Severn Valley Field Club. Mr. Cooper was captain of the excursion, and to the warmest acknowledgements of the excursionists were given to that gentleman for his kindness, energy, and hospitality.

BIRTHS.

At Onslow-square, South Kensington, Lady Selina Bidwell, of a son.
At Portobello-terrace, Bayswater, the Rev. Mrs. W. A. Duckworth, of a daughter.
At Rutland-gate, the wife of R. B. Lytton, Esq., of a son.
At Ashton-park, St. Leonard's, Bayswater, the wife of Lady Ashburton, of a daughter.
At Felton Grange, Shrewsbury, Lady Frances Lloyd, of a daughter.
At Cliffe-terrace, Lady Victoria Hope Scott, of a daughter.
At Cliffe-hall, Lady Lambert, of a son.
On the 3rd inst., at Bayswater, the wife of Captain Wm. Baffles Trotter, Royal Engineers, of a son.
On the 12th inst., at The Chateau de Beaulieu, near Malines, Mrs. A. V. Young, of a son.
On the 20th inst., at 12, Park-road, Holloway, the wife of George Robinson, of a son and daughter.
At Aldersbrook, the wife of Major G. Bagot, of a son.
At Woolwich, the wife of G. Carlisle, Esq., R.N., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

At Littlehampton, Sussex, H. H. Burne, Esq., of The Vineyards, Bath, to Elizabeth Mary, widow of W. Wickham, Esq., and daughter of General Sir Edward Kerrison, of Brandeston, in Suffolk, and Oakley-park, Ely.
At the same time and place, Mr. Martin's-in-the-Fields, by the Bishop of Oxford, assisted by the Hon. and Rev. D. H. Gordon, Canon of Salisbury, the Hon. A. H. Gordon, Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick, youngest son of George, fourth Earl of Aberdeen, to Rachael Smith, eldest daughter of Sir J. G. Shaw-Lefevre, M.P.
At Gower, near Retford, Notts, Sir H. J. Cotterell Tartt, to Katherine Margaret Alcy, daughter of Lieut.-General Sir H. de Rinzy Ainslie, K.C.B.
At the parish church at Welshpool, in Montgomeryshire, Capt. W. Calvert, second son of the late General Sir R. Calvert, Bart., to Lady Lucy Herbert, eldest daughter of the late Earl of Powis, K.G.
On the 21st ult., at St. Mary's, Lambeth, by the Rev. Wodehouse Barton, M.A., Incumbent of Christ Church, Streatham, assisted by the Rev. Henry Eyre, of The Lawn, Brixton-hill, to Sabina, youngest daughter of the late George Porter, Esq., of Streatham. No cards.
On the 5th inst., at St. Peter's, Notting-hill, by the Rev. W. H. Curling, M.A., Registrar of the Diocese of Southwark, assisted by the Rev. Frederick Gell, M.A., of St. Leonard's, Streatham, Mary Isabella, daughter of Mrs. Dunbar, of Kensington-gardens-square, to Charles Henry, third son of the late Rev. John Fisher, second son of the late Rev. Lewington Fisher, of Bengeo, Hertfordshire, Rector of Derry-Noose, Archdeacon of Armagh. No cards.
On the 12th inst., at the parish church of St. Mary's, Mossfield, by the Rev. Francis Ewen, B.D., Professor of Materia Medica, Queen's College, Birmingham, Sir Matthew Wilson, Bart., of Eshton-hall, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, M.P. for Malmesbury, to Mary, youngest daughter of the late Alfred Fitzwalter Fitzwalter, of Shirley, in the county of Cork.
On the 14th inst., at Kirkthorpe Church, by the Rev. John Pullein, M.A., Vicar, assisted by the Rev. H. J. Wilkinson, M.A., Incumbent of Wrenthorpe, Edward Alexander Mackie, Esq., of Saint John's, Wakefield, to Emma Gertrude, eldest daughter of R. Denton Thompson, Esq., of the Manor House, Heath, Wakefield.

DEATHS.

At Dieppe, Colonel T. F. B. Beatson, late of H.M.'s Indian Army, aged 56, son of the late Lieutenant-General Beatson.
At Brisbane, the Hon. F. N. Isaac, of Gowrie, Darling Downs, member of the Legislative Council of Queensland, aged 45.
At Greenwich, M. Wreford, Esq., retired Principal Purveyor to her Majesty's Forces, aged 75.
At Dulwich-hill, Surrey, M. W. Attwood, Esq., aged 67.
At Calcutta, Lieutenant-Colonel W. A. A. Thompson, Bengal Cavalry, son of the late J. A. Thomson, Esq., M.P., of Charleton, Fife.
At Lucknow, Agnes Dalgleish, wife of Mr. Dalgleish, Inspector-General of Hospitals, H.M. Army.
At Bath, Mrs. Harriet Georgina, wife of Colonel P. Mundy, Royal Artillery.
At Bath, Jane, wife of Colonel G. C. Smyth, late Bengal Light Cavalry.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION,
Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N., Long. 0° 18′ 15″ W., Height above Mean Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOMETER.			WIND.
	Barometer corrected and reduced to 32°.	Dew Point.	Temperature.	Solar Radiation.	Terrestrial Radiation.	Maximum.	Minimum.	Range.	General Direction.	Velocity.
	Inches.	°	°	°	°	°	°		Miles	Inches
11	30·290	48·6	59·6	+72	3	67·8	56·9	SSW.	95	·040
12	30·240	48·1	59·9	+62	0	68·1	57·4	E. ESE.	148	·070
13	30·163	52·2	54·0	+25	0	57·0	50·7	SSE. SE.	146	·060
14	30·173	49·6	52·8	+23	0	57·0	47·9	W.S.	72	·020
15	...	...	...	...	...	56·0	48·5	...	119	·050
16	30·413	48·9	55·6	+25	1	59·7	49·7	ESE. NE.	86	·030
17	30·260	49·3	56·7	+35	0	59·6	52·9	E. ESE.	179	·090

The following gives the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer (in inches corrected)	30·240	30·227	30·216	30·163	30·145	30·154	30·316	30·310	30·249
Dryness of Air	6°	10°	11·5°	7·5°	6·4°	6·4°	6·7°	10·9°	8·9°
Temperature of Evaporation	57·0°	57·0°	57·0°	52·0°	51·0°	51·0°	52·0°	52·0°	52·0°
Direction of Wind	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	W.	W.S.W.	W.	W.S.W.	W.S.W.	S.W.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPT. 30.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 24.—Fifteenth Sunday after Trinity. Death of William of Wykeham, bishop, founder of Winchester School, 1404.
MONDAY, 25.—Death of Bishop Ridley, 1555. The original traveller, 1725; end of Professor Porson, the great Greek scholar, 1808.
TUESDAY, 26.—St. Cyprian, Archbishop of Carthage, martyr. Death of Francis Wimbledy, 1642.
WEDNESDAY, 27.—Conference at Erfurt between the Emperors Alexander of Russia and Napoleon, 1808. First meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, at York, 1831.
THURSDAY, 28.—Surrender of Navarin (the Bonagia) destroyed totally defeated by the Turks, under the Sultan Bajazet), 1396. Moon's First Quarter, 2h. 24m. p.m.
FRIDAY, 29.—St. Michael and All Angels. Michaelmas Day. Ascona surrendered to the Austrian General Gaudini, 1848.
SATURDAY, 30.—St. Jerome, Father of the Church, died, 420. Dr. Nicholas Wiseman created Cardinal and Archbishop of Westminster by the Pope, 1850.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE
FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 30.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
1 18	1 59	2 39	3 20	4 3	4 49	5 39
13 37	14 17	14 57	15 37	16 17	16 57	17 39

Will be published, Sept. 30,

PRICE ONE SHILLING, BEAUTIFULLY PRINTED IN COLOURS,

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR THE YEAR 1866, A PLAIN AND COLOURED REPRESENTATION OF THE HEAVENS, PRINTED IN THE HIGHEST STYLE OF THE CHROMATIC ART, by Leighton Brothers. Also numerous Engravings of them by MRS. LOKEHEIR; TWELVE FINE ART ENGRAVINGS; Astronomical Diagrams and Tables; and Miscellaneous Information and Useful General Memoranda of Facts and Events.

It contains, also, lists of the Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; the Ministry; Diplomatic Corps; Peerage; Baronetage; Lists of Public Offices and Officers; Bankers; Law and University Terms; First and Monthly Days; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1865; Revenue and Expenditure; Obituary; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water; Fast Office Regulations; together with a large amount of useful and valuable information, which has made the past twenty years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK the most accepted and extensively circulated Almanack of the day. Altogether, it is unhesitatingly acknowledged to be by far the cheapest Almanack ever published.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reputation for correctness and reliability which is always placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK for 1866 will be found, when printed in colours by the same process as the Gems of Horticulture, and forms a charming and appropriate Frontispiece to the Almanack.

THE BILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

ADVERTISEMENTS for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK cannot be received later than the 25th inst.

AVIS A NOS ABONNES qui LE CONSIENT D'EUROPE.—W. S. Kimball and Co., 10, Rue Rossini, 27, Paris, sont autorisés de recevoir les abonnements pour la France, la Belgique, la Suisse, l'Italie et l'Espagne. L'abonnement pour la France, la Belgique et la Suisse, 10f. par trimestre; l'Italie et l'Espagne, 12f. par trimestre. Remise fait aux Libraires et Marchands des Journaux.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1865.

BOREAS has looked in upon us, and, for once, his visit is welcomed. A blazing sky all day and sultry air all night—the meteorological features of the last three weeks—may please for a time, particularly when they follow untimely cold and wet, but soon overpower one with their kindness. Peugh! We have hardly had nervous energy enough left in our system to take a full breath since the beginning of the month. All the tackle of our bodily life loosened, and breathing became mere ooze. The reader will have remarked that political life exhibited during the same period unmistakable symptoms of lassitude. Movement there was none, except pouring rain, and that only the kindly following instinct of Penians. One day was as like another day as a pea is like its fellow pea. Men's motives had become liquefied, and time passed on in a smooth, oily, unceasing stream.

The world is now beginning to recover. A cold breeze, probably the forerunner of equinoctial gales, braces up expectation. We have acquired vigour enough to look about us, and to become sensible of a reviving interest in the affairs of humanity. There is much that is startling in passing events, but we can discern in the proximate future possibilities of strong excitement. Casting our eye over Europe, we observe Austria busy with preparations, and compelled to policy of fraud and consolidation which has wholly failed, one of modified federation which, let us hope, will be less unfortunate in its results. Austria, like many a self-willed individual, has been so clogged and pestered in support of a cause, that she has put herself into the power of her only dreaded rival, Prussia, who, without the smallest compunction, rather with evident pleasure, has dragged her through the dirt, and compelled her to display herself to astonished Europe as a tool in the unscrupulous hands of Count Bismarck. When a first-rate Power has wilfully gone so far wrong as to lose the political means as well as the moral courage requisite to even participate in an infamous act from which no advantage can be gained, it is high time to set seriously about the work of self-reformation. So Austria seems to think at the present moment. Hence, she has convoked at an early date provincial Diets of her non-German peoples, excluding Venetia; and at a later date (Dec. 10) the Hungarian Diet. Her object is to prevail upon them, if possible, to grant the pecuniary assistance asked for, as to the relations they shall hereafter sustain to the central ruling authority, and to try the experiment whether variety of form can be made compatible with unity of spirit. Success, should it be vouchsafed to her, will enable her to lighten very materially her financial burdens, and perhaps, in process of time, to recover her position in Germany.

Italy also is approaching a very critical, perhaps the most critical, period of her destiny as a newly-born kingdom. Her first Parliament has been dissolved, and its successor is to be elected between the middle and the end of next month. The future of Italy is staked upon the issue. It has been known for some time past that every effort would be made by the ecclesiastical and reactionary party to regain ascendency, if possible, by the use of the suffrage. To checkmate this attempt, doubtless, is the main object of the circular just addressed to the Prefects by the Minister of the Interior. He therein sketches the programme of policy resolved upon by the Government in the event of their obtaining a working majority of the Representative Chamber. It is their intention, he informs us, to submit a measure for the suppression of religious bodies and the readjustment of ecclesiastical property, which, at the same time, shall aim at improving the position of the clergy in country districts. Part of the wealth thus resumed by the State will be assigned to elementary and middle-class education, and part will be devoted to public works. Other measures of reform—educational, financial, and administrative—are indicated, with a view, it may be supposed, of rousing the enthusiasm of the national party. We content ourselves with a bare statement of Ministerial profession. We make no comment upon the wisdom or otherwise of the political movement. It is a bold step; and, in one aspect of it, resembles that taken by our own Henry VIII., from which, however, it differs in proposing a public instead of a private application of the funds acquired by a dissolution of monasteries.

If nothing more "loomed in the future," there would still be amply sufficient in the prospects to which we have directed attention to keep the public mind awake. But there seems to be some sort of impression, although its correctness has been denied, that the Emperor of the French will meet the Legislative Body with some striking disclosure of his political intentions; and, if we may trust the sources from which the concoctors of telegrams draw their information, mischief is once more brewing between Turkey and Montenegro.

So much for the Continent. At home, there is no immediate prospect of the business of life in the "dead season." Ireland, as we have seen, has furnished a topic of monstre interest; elsewhere, all is calm and unruffled. The holidays are not yet over, and politics have gone out of fashion for a while. Perhaps human nature, that is the predominant subject of discussion, to which we may add, though assigning to it only a secondary position, "the wines we drink." If the old adage be true, "Happy are the people who have no annals," we ought just now to be especially on our felicity. We do not, however, accept the maxim unreservedly. We do not believe in the wholesomeness of unchangeable annalne. The rude blast is, in its season, a useful, if not a pleasant, guest. It is not desirable that the public spirit of any country should sink below par for want of exercise. Relaxation palls when it ceases to alternate with labour. There is no fear, however, that we shall be allowed to float lazily down the current of time much longer than is necessary for recruiting our powers. There still remains work enough for us to do, and possibly the day is not far distant when we shall have to use all our manhood in wrestling with difficulties. We know not why we should be impatient of rest. The spell of it longer or shorter, its influence may be expected to tell beneficially upon energies that will be in requisition anon. Meanwhile we may say with Cowper the ancient invitation of "Carpe diem"—fitting ourselves to-day for what may occur on the morrow.

THE COURT.

THE QUEEN, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Wednesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louis, drove to the Lynn of Muick and Birkhall.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove out round the Home Farm and Craig Gowan. Earl Russell arrived at the castle.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Lady Churchill, drove through the village of Braemar, theuce by the Dockslaw drive, returning by the Linn's Pass and Craigclova. Earl Russell had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Monday week her Majesty, accompanied by the Princess of Wales, Princess Louis of Hesse, and Princess Hilda of Anhalt, drove in the neighbourhood of the castle. Lord Ronald Gower, Mr. Hugh Fraser, Princess Hilda of Anhalt took luncheon with her Majesty. Prince Louis of Hesse accompanied the Prince of Wales in a drive for deer in the Birkhall woods.

The Court is expected to remain in Scotland until the first week in November, and then return to Windsor Castle.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor and Prince George, and by Princess Louise and Princess Alice of Hesse, with their children, Princess Victoria and Princess Elizabeth, and Princess Hilda of Anhalt, left Windsor Castle on Wednesday morning, by the Great Western Railway, en route for the Highlands. The suite in attendance consisted of Mrs. Hon. Harriet W. Grey, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and Mr. Holmaan, and Baroness von Schenck and Baron de Nordeck-Rolzhausen. In attendance upon Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, Their Royal Highnesses drove to the Euston terminus of the North-Western Railway, and travelled thence in state saloons attached to the 8.40 p.m. limited mail-express train for the north. The train was under the charge of Mr. G. Owen, assistant manager of the line. The Princess and Princesses, upon arriving at Perth, on Saturday morning, alighted and partook of breakfast in the first-class refreshment-rooms at the station. Their Royal Highnesses resumed their journey at twenty minute past nine, via the Scottish North-Eastern Railway, to Aberdeen, arriving at ten minutes past one o'clock. A concourse of nearly a thousand spectators had assembled at the station, who greeted the Royal party enthusiastically. The Prince rose and graciously acknowledged the loyal salutations of the people. Another engine was attached to the train, and the route was continued to Aboyne, which was reached at a quarter past two. The Prince and Princess, with Prince Albert Victor and Prince George of Denmark, drove from the Aboyne station to Abergeldie Castle, arriving at four o'clock. The Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, with their children, drove to Balmoral Castle.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess, and Princess Hilda of Anhalt, attended Divine service at the parish church of Cobham. Their Royal Highnesses afterwards visited the Queen at Balmoral Castle.

The visit of the Prince and Princess to the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe at Floors Castle is arranged to take place on the Tuesday, the 17th of October. Their Royal Highnesses are expected to be present at Kelso races on the two following days.

The Prince and Princess will reside at Abergeldie till about the 23rd of next month, when they return to Marlborough House. After a few days' stay in town, their Royal Highnesses will proceed to Sandringham House, where they will probably reside until Christmas.

PRINCE AMADEUS.

His Royal Highness Prince Amadeus of Savoy, second son of King Victor Emmanuel, attended by Colonel Morra, Captain Cotta, and Captain Guicciardi, arrived at Dover, by the mail from Paris, on Friday. The Prince is travelling, in strict incognito, under the title of Count de Trolenos. On the following day his Royal Highness visited by Count Maffei and the Marquis Balbi. The Prince proceeded to London, where he is the Italian Legation for a few days.

On Sunday the Prince, accompanied by the Italian Minister, attended Divine service at the Roman Catholic Church in Farm-street, Berkeley-square. In the afternoon his Royal Highness drove to Kew, and, after inspecting the gardens, returned to Admiralty, returning in the evening to the Legation.

On Monday the Prince visited the Tower of London, the Thames Tunnel, and various other places of interest. In the evening his Royal Highness visited the museum of Madame Tussaud.

On Tuesday the Prince received his Excellency the Marquis de Molins at an audience at the Italian Legation. His Royal Highness afterwards visited the Crystal Palace.

On Wednesday the Prince left London for Dublin.

QUEEN MARIE AMELIE.

Queen Marie Amelie, accompanied by the Duke de Nemours, the Duke d'Aleçon, and Princess Marguerite of Orleans, arrived on Monday from Trouville Wells. The venerable Queen is in excellent health.

The Prince and Princess de Joinville arrived at Claremont on Monday.

His Serene Highness Prince George of Solms has arrived at Tunbridge Wells, Glendarroch, from Ireland. He has also visited at Rutherford, at Dunrobin Castle.

His Highness Prince Doria Pamphili and family have arrived at Claridge's Hotel from Genoa.

The Maharajah Dhuleep Singh has left Elveden for Scotland, where he intends to stay.

His Excellency the Prussian Ambassador and the Countess Bernstorff have left Berlin.

His Excellency the Marquis de Molins, the newly-appointed Minister Plenipotentiary from the Court of Madrid, has arrived at the Spanish Legation, Soho-square.

His Excellency the Hon. Henry Elliott, British Minister at Florence, has arrived in town from Italy.

Lord Lyons left England on Monday for Constantinople, to assume his duties as Ambassador from England. Sir Henry Bulwer will not leave Constantinople till after the arrival of his successor.

The Duke of Somerset left his official residence at the Admiralty on Saturday last, for Berkeley Castle.

Lord Brougham is staying at Brougham Hall, Westmorland, next to whom he is the landowner. The noble and learned lord attains his seventy-seventh year on Tuesday.

The Right Hon. W. and Mrs. Hutt have left the Alexandra Hotel for Gibside.

The Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, M.P., left town, on Saturday last, for his seat near Godstone, Surrey.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

Bishop Chapman will hold a series of confirmations for the Bishop of Exeter during next month.

Harvest thanksgiving services have been held in a majority of the parish churches in Devon and Cornwall.

The annual festival of the Llandaff Diocesan Church Choral Association was held, on Wednesday week, in the mother church of the diocese.

St. Ann's Free Church, situated at Cannock Chase, was consecrated, by the bishop of Lichfield, on Thursday week.

A marble statue by Foley, and a portrait in oil by Mr. C. Smith, are to be placed in the hall of Balliol College, Oxford, Dublin, in commemoration of Dr. Corrigan, who has retired from the presidentship.

The annual synod of the united dioceses of Cashel, Emly, Waterford, and Lismore was held, on Wednesday week, in St. John's Episcopal Church, Dublin. After Divine service, which was followed by the holy sacrament, the Right Rev. Charles Wordsworth, Bishop of the diocese, delivered his charge.

A testimonial, consisting of an elegant electro-plated tea-kettle, on salamander, and a case of dessert knives and forks, on the table, presented by the parishioners of all denominations to the Rev. T. D. Davis, M.A., as a mark of gratitude and esteem from the rectory of Llandeilo, Denbighshire, to the vicarage of Whitford, Flint.

A committee—of which the Rev. James Cohen, Rector of Whitechapel, is president, and the Rev. Thomas Hill, Rector of London Hospital, is honorary secretary—has made an appeal for subscriptions to build a new church, schools, and mission-room in connection with the district of Bow, which are likely to be of great benefit to the poor people of the East-End.

In answer to an inquiry in the Daily News when the authorised translation of the Bible, prepared by the Jesuit Fathers, would be completed, Mr. John Murray writes to say that the scheme, so far from having been abandoned, is being actively carried out. The translation of the Old Testament is nearly ready, and the scholars and divines engaged upon it have no doubt that a speedy completion will be effected. The price and binding of the work will be moderate.

The foundation-stone of a new church, to be built in Denton Holme, a rapidly increasing district of Carlisle, was laid, on Tuesday week, by the Lord Bishop of Chichester, who has consented to preach the sermon at the opening. Upon the site formerly stood an ancient chapel, dedicated to St. Nicholas, which was pulled down in 1807, and the materials of which were used by the trustees of the Abbey House Estate for building purposes.

The foundation-stone of a new church, in the Northern Parish style of architecture, was laid last Saturday, at Hawke, in Yorkshire, by the Archbishop of York. The church will be built of stone, and the cost, it is said, will not exceed £3,000. The estate will be given by Lieutenant-Colonel Hawke, of Hawkesworth, in which locality the Church Institute is also to be erected, and in a very short time. Mr. Pritchett, of Darlington, is the architect for the building, a donation of £2000, and promises further help if needed.

The following preferments and appointments have recently taken place:—Rectories: Rev. Thomas Rev. Jones, of Aston Tirrold, Berkshire, to Lyne, Montgomeryshire; Rev. Thomas Jones, of Ystrad, Glamorganshire, to Llanfair Talhaiarn, Denbighshire; Rev. Thomas Jones, of Llanfair, Denbighshire, to Brook; Rev. W. W. Trimmer, Rector of Brenchley, Kent, to Ovenden; Rev. E. Cowell, Rector of Ashbocking, Suffolk, to Lancester. Rectories: Rev. A. C. Hope-Nelson to Simpling Thorne, Bury St. Edmunds; Rev. J. R. Rowley to Wakefield; Rev. Thomas Hughes to Llanvechell, Denbs. Vicarages: Rev. R. Buckle to Binstead, Surrey; Rev. H. Carr to Hurst, Berks; Rev. J. Hanson to Bolton-le-Moors; Rev. J. Cobbe; Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick to Dalston, Cumberland; Rev. G. G. Holmes to Bishop-on-Spalding-moor; Rev. G. Keeling to Wellington-cum-West Buckland, Somerset. Incumbencies: Rev. R. J. Gorman to Milburne, Westmorland; Rev. C. Reynolds Pulteney, Preston; Rev. W. Hague to Whitney-on-the-Granby, Yorkshire; Rev. M. Monsarrat to St. Thomas's, Exeter. Curacies: Rev. J. Bowden to Bishop-Wearmouth; Rev. J. Cooper to Ince; Rev. W. H. Hall to Farnborough, Somerset; Rev. A. Bennett to Gretton, Leicestershire; Rev. R. C. Hopwood to South Petherton; Rev. J. Hall to Bishop's Wearn; Rev. H. Liddiatson to Westbury-on-Trym with Redland Chapel; Rev. L. Tarver to East and West Allington, Devon; Rev. J. Keogh to Martock-cum-Long Load, Somerset; Rev. A. C. Pearson to Wookey, Somerset; Rev. J. Price to Stratton-on-the-Fosse; Rev. H. Robinson to Exmouth, near Ilfracombe.

Perigord truffles promise an abundant crop this year, after an almost total failure last season.

The funeral of Mdme. Koseuth, which took place at Genoa, was attended by the most distinguished persons in the town. It was preceded by an imposing funeral service and the Municipal Guard of San Remigio, where the body was buried, the British Consul and the whole of the staff were present. The address at the burial was delivered by an English clergyman.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

An Act of Parliament has just been printed entitled "The St. Clement Danes Improvement Act," under which some extensive alterations will be made in the Strand, and a number of houses in Wych-street removed.

On Thursday morning (St. Matthew's Day) the Lord Mayor, Sheriff, and other members of the Corporation, proceeded in state to Christ's Hospital, Newgate-street, to attend the annual service sermon, at which the Orphans who are about leaving for Oxford and Cambridge.

There are about 620 omnibuses belonging to the General Omnibus Company, and 480 owned by private proprietors. It may be supposed there are many horses, because the numbering of omnibuses begins at 1000. Each pays an annual tax of £3, and a running charge, in addition, of 1d. per mile, large and small "round Robin."

At the recent meeting of the committee of the Home for Lost Cats, it was announced that the number of cats received during the week was 1964. It was the thirty-seventh week of the year, and the average number per week was, therefore, 1964 divided by 37, or 53 cats and a fraction, 1100. The actual result agrees almost exactly with the computed result. Of these cats, 1000 were received on the east of City, and increase remarkably as the end of August; and since that time, notwithstanding the unfavourable weather, the number has been maintained at a considerable increase. It has been shown in the weekly returns that the mortality has been unusually low, arising from fluctuation; the deaths having been in the first week 1077, in the second week 1086, in the third week 1078, in the fourth week 1077 deaths, and the corrected average for the same period is 374. In the Metropolitan Districts the deaths registered during the last week were 1078. Nine cases are recorded in which accidents in the streets by horses and conveyances caused death. The Coroners throughout London and Middlesex were called in London and ten other large towns of the United Kingdom were 4617; last week the number was 4617. The number of births was 2197 per 1000 persons living. In Liverpool the births were 208, the deaths 295; in Manchester, births 112, deaths 170; in Salford, births 39, deaths 59; in Birmingham, births 125, deaths 151; in Leeds, births 97, deaths 137; in Bristol—births 112, deaths 69; in Hull—births 91, deaths 89; in Edinburgh, births 111, deaths 139; in Glasgow, births 299, deaths 394; and in Dublin—births 189, deaths 157. The rate of mortality last week was 21 per 1000 in London, 24 in Liverpool, 30 in Manchester, 22 in Salford, 20 in Manchester, 22 in Salford, 20 in Birmingham, 22 in Leeds, 19 in Bristol, 30 in Hull, and 30 in Edinburgh.

LAW AND POLICE.—At the Central Criminal Court, on Wednesday week, Mr. Thomas Bowyer Smith, one of the magistrates and the Coroner of Chatham, for the wilful murder of Francis Hendle De Vere, a boy, aged 13, by administering poison to him, the piece of insanity was set up; but he was found "Guilty," and sentenced to death. Mr. Justice Mellor and Mr. Justice Shee presided. Counsel—Serjeant Parry, Mr. Justice Montagu Smith, possessed some curious features. A woman had charged him with administering to her a love potion, which, however, it appears, it turned out in the course of the evidence that she had previously had connection with a man named Hendle, who had married her, and representing herself to be married. The prosecutor's wife being taken ill, and dying, Hendle's wife came to live with the prisoner, and continued to attend on the prosecutor's children, and Hendle's wife died in the next room of her agonised husband. The prisoner was then prosecuted for the murder of Hendle's wife, and acquitted; but her widow then prosecuted the woman who had passed for her wife. This appears to have annoyed the woman, who was in the habit of administering love potions, and succeeded to five years' penal servitude.

The gentleman, a gentleman staying at the Star and Garter Hotel, Richmond, was broken upon a few days ago and bank notes to a considerable amount were stolen. On the following morning a man was arrested, and suspicion at once fell upon one Morris, who, six hours previously, had taken his passage for Boulogne. On the 14th inst. Morris was apprehended, a statement was handed coming in the river. Morris was captured, and a large sum of the stolen money was found upon him. Mrs. Young and her daughter went tringham to church in perfect health. "We arrived rather late," said the former witness, "and sat in the pew behind the deceased. When he came out the deceased was terrified at his appearance, and screamed out, 'Oh, my dear, what is the matter?' and Miss Hall ran to him to take the churchyard. Soon afterwards, when I came out, I found her black in the face, and foaming at the mouth, and she was dead. We sent for Mr. Dr. Adams's surgery and she was prescribed for. She was taken home and died in a few minutes." The jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death from a clock in the morning."

At the Clerkenwell and Southwark Police Courts last Saturday several coroner's reports were read for sending out diseased animals.

COUNTRY NEWS.

A bust of the late Prince Consort, executed by Mr. Theed, is promised to be the Mercury to the Surrey County Hospital.

On Monday the Free Library and Reading-room at the Midland Institute were thrown open to the public for the first time.

Mr. Purkis, the senior wrangler for Cambridge last year, a gentleman of extraordinary promise, was drowned, while bathing in the Cam, on Tuesday.

The bronze statue, modelled by Baron Marochetti, of the late Lord Cockburn, has been cast, and is to be pedestal, opposite the Castle Gate, Chester, on Wednesday.

The famous Mr. Giles's-hill cheese and horse fair, near Winchester, which has been held annually in September for 700 years, will cease to be held after the present year.

The annual gathering of the Woodstock Agricultural and Horticultural Association took place on Tuesday. The show was exceedingly good, and the attendance of visitors was very numerous.

At New Town, near Winkleigh, Devon, lives George Cruise, for some years of age, and who, during pack hours, made a survey and measured to be the largest in the parish.

A banquet by the Mayor and Inhabitants of Poole to those of Cherbourg was held on Wednesday week, and proved very successful. Amongst those present were Admiral Penrose Moore, Dunlop Agnew and Fleury, Esqrs.

At the annual General Sessions for the county of Lancaster, at Preston, on Thursday week, the names of the Roman Catholic minister of Kirkholme Oral was increased from £100 to £150, and that of the Protestant minister of the same district, to £200 per annum.

The foundation-stone of the Birmingham Masonic Hall and Club buildings was laid on Wednesday, in the presence of an immense concourse of spectators, by the Most Worshipful the Earl de Grey and Ripon, Lieutenant of the county, and provincial grand master of ancient free and accepted masons of Warwickshire.

An important conference of Sunday-school unions and teachers took place at Leeds last week. The conference resolved itself into four sections, in which papers were read and discussion took place upon the preparation and proper use of lessons, adaptation in teaching, discipline and management, and kindred subjects.

On Tuesday a gold watch-guard and a gold bracelet were presented to Lady Clifton, on the part of the wives and daughters of electors and non-electors of Nottingham, as a testimonial of the esteem in which the manner with which her Ladyship helped to secure the re-election of her husband, Sir Robert Clifton, Bart., to the House of Commons as member for Nottingham.

The annual soiree, meeting and distribution of prizes in connection with the Mechanics' Institution (Sir W. G. Armstrong and the Mechanics' Institution took place, last Saturday evening, in the large hall of the buildings. The chair was occupied by Sir W. G. Armstrong, after which the meeting was held, the chair being occupied by Sir W. G. Armstrong, C.B.

The foundation-stone of a new convalescent hospital at Bournemouth was laid last saturday. The hospital is intended as a memorial of the late Lord Eustace Cecil, and will be built by his son, the Earl of Rembroke, who delivered a brief but touching address on the occasion. Mr. Charles Lawson, M.P., Mayor of Newcastle, the Bishop of Lichfield, and several members of Parliament were present.

The Coroner's inquest on the circumstances attending the death of Miss Emily Sophia Blake, of Salisbury, who was alleged to have been poisoned by William Joseph Bull, the surgeon, late assistant to the father of the deceased lady, was resumed, on Thursday, at the Townhall. Professor Taylor, in the course of his evidence, stated that he had analysed the deceased's, and which Miss Blake, on her deathbed, stated had, with the two she had taken from Bull, caused her illness. The contained strychnine, sufficient to cause death, and there were traces of strychnine in the stomach.

At the Liverpool Police-court, on Monday week, William Stevens, clerk of one of railway engines, was charged with wilfully causing damage to a railway-engine by driving it against a train more than £100. As the defendant was to prepare an engine called the Busy Bee every evening. About eight-o'clock on the night in question he was about to get up the steam and started the engine up and down the line for two hours. At length, tired of riding, he left the engine in charge of a fireman, and he drove by the side of it, he was the arrival of the driver. At half-past five the driver superseded the fireman, and proceeded with the engine to Bidston. At 6.20—half-life-past—he reported to the station-master that the boiler. He was sentenced to a month's imprisonment with hard labour.

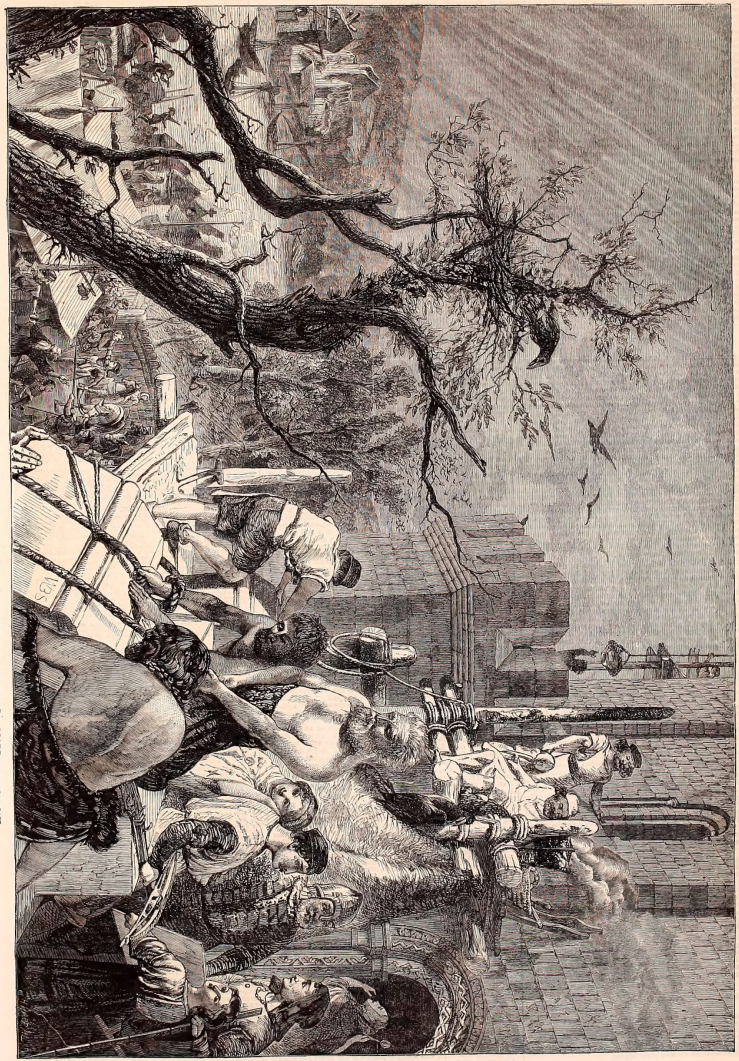
On Wednesday the Derbyshire Agricultural Society (of which his Grace the Duke of Devonshire is president) held its show, under the most favourable auspices, in the new and spacious cattle market at Derby. The weather was delightful, and the attendance of visitors was very large. The show of cattle, sheep, and pigs was a splendid one, and in point of excellence, and one of the leading features of the exhibition was the show of horses. There was also a large display of implements of husbandry and other useful and a considerable quantity of roots, grain, and agricultural implements. The show altogether was one of the largest in connection with the exhibition was the addition of a grand display of flowers, fruit, and vegetables for competition, which was a most attractive feature.

The people of Berkshire, emulating those of Wiltshire, the next county, have established a museum of a life-boat, in the old Royal Berkshire. It was exhibited this week at the Industrial Exhibition at Reading, and was subsequently placed in the Museum of Practical Art, the National Life-boat Institution. The boat is about to be sent by railway to its destination at Aberdovey, on the Welsh coast. The National Life-boat Institution has forwarded a new life-boat and transporting-carriage to Hayling Island, and a new life-boat to Aberdovey. The total sum—£370—of this life-boat establishment was presented to the institution by Messrs. Leaf, Sons, and Co., the proceeds of a public dinner given to the foreign consuls resident in that thing certainly is to be then through the eye of a man of genius; nor always sound head, with the ear of a man of taste. Let the critical, uninvolved observers, or ears them under aspects which give to them a twisted interpretation.

Following in the wake of the metropolis and other places, the working men of Leeds, in New England, Gloucestershire and South Wales revived, about twelve months since, to have an industrial exhibition. The success of the movement in the Working Men's Hall, a general committee, composed of working men, conducted the preliminary arrangements with great energy and ability. The result was a display of the various of works of art and industry, contributed by nearly 700 exhibitors, was the Rev. Canon Girdlestone, the Rev. Canon Jackson, the volunteer corps, and for the exhibition, which was a night fairly compare with that of any other provincial exhibition of the kind. In compliance with the suggestion of the Mayor (Mr. Hall), the Rev. Canon Girdlestone opened the exhibition with a prayer, which was followed by the Mayor, who declared the Exhibition open, and the Old Hundredth Psalm had been effectively sung by the Parish Church Choir. In addition to the large number of exhibits, the Mayor declared the Exhibition opened, which was notified outside by a salvo of artillery discharged from the Leeds Rifles. On Friday and Saturday the Exhibition offered an appropriate prayer, and, in a brief speech, expressed his thanks to the Rev. Canon Girdlestone for the use of the Hall. The Exhibition, which has been visited by upwards of 20,000 persons, is said to be a success, and that he believed a good moral and religious effect would follow such an exhibition as that. The Rev. Canon Girdlestone closed the meeting. After several votes of thanks had been passed, the meeting closed with cheers for the Queen.

A terrible tempest has occurred at Monte Video, causing the loss of about 100 persons.

News has been received of the safe arrival of Miss Toser at the Central African Mission station at Zanzibar. It is stated that the health of the missionaries in both these mission stations is very satisfactory.



The German papers publish a letter addressed by Garibaldi, in Italian and Spanish, to the authorities and people of Cobourg, thanking them for the sympathy manifested on the occasion of the anniversary of the battle of Castel Fidardo.

Nothing decisive has occurred at the theatre of war in Paraguay. Flores continued his forced marches to join Canavero. The Emperor was at Encarnia, where the Count d'Eu arrived on Aug. 8. The Paraguayan forces were marching upon Uruguyana, and had committed atrocities in Corrientes.

The Sentinelle states that at a meeting of the British residents at Alexandria, Egypt, it was resolved that an address and a piece of plate should be presented to Mr. Cookson, British Consul-General, at Alexandria, as a token of respect and esteem towards one who had for a period of years acted as her Majesty's agent and Consul-General in Egypt.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION AT BINGLEY HALL, BIRMINGHAM.—SEE PAGE 276.

"THE BUILDING OF THE NEW CASTLE ON THE TYNE, 1865." FROM A PICTURE BY W. H. SCOTT.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

"THE BUILDING OF THE NEW CASTLE ON THE TYNE, 1855."

THE picture represented by our Engraving is one which has lately been executed by a Newcastle artist, Mr. W. B. Scott, at the special request of his numerous friends and admirers in that city, who wished to pay their townsman a compliment, and so invited him to apply his talents as a painter to the illustration of a subject of local history. The scene is laid in front of the great door of the Keep, represented as it is at present, since its restoration by the late eminent Newcastle architect, Mr. Dobson. Outside the parapet wall, opposite the door, is erected for the occasion, forming the foreground of the composition. The labourers raising the coping-stone are looking down into the court-yard represent the Saxon or Danish natives forced to labour by their Norman invaders. The oldest of these has been a slave, was used during Prince's test, with his shield and helmet, to the Middle Ages. Here is also the Saxon a Moorish cook employed in preparations for dinner. The natives, crowding to look at the Normans, are driven back rudely and unceremoniously repelled by the groom, carrying the wild geese shot by the party, and by the man-at-arms. Behind the latter, who amuses the crowd, composed mostly of women, by throwing up the balls and knives, a feat of dexterity as ancient as the Ascalonites of St. Ella lwald.

On the other side of the river, Gateshead is in ruins, having been destroyed just about the time of the building of the new castle, in revenge for the murder of the Bishop of Durham in the church there. The spire chosen for the erection of the castle has been preserved by the first tree, inhabited by rooks, which are cruelly disturbed and their nests destroyed. The time indicated is early in the month of June, when the early and windy Northumbrian day, with rain and partial sunshine. In the distance may be seen the Byker hill, a range of wooded heights above to their mid-day food. These two men represent the skilled workers of the time, travelling freemasons from the Continent, learned in Byzantine ornament.

MUSIC.

A great improvement, it appears to us, is about to be effected in the system of musical education in this country. The want of what may be called collegiate institutions, in which eminent professors of music are established, and to which pupils resort for instruction in all the various branches of the art, not only to amateurs who cultivate it as an accomplishment, but to those who study it more deeply as a profession. Several of these academies are already established and in action, and others are in the course of formation. Among the latter we may mention the Royal Academy of Music, recently originated by Mr. G. B. Allen, the eminent composer and professor of singing, with the powerful assistance and co-operation of Mr. Benedict. It has started with the advantage of having among its founders such names as those of Mr. Bennett, Mr. Allen, Dr. Rimbault, Signor Ferrari, Mr. J. B. Chatterton, Mr. Aptheorpe, and other distinguished artists, who are about to produce or presents a feature not to be found in other similar institutions—viz., the delivery of periodical lectures, with musical illustrations by the pupils—an important advantage, and one which larger societies might immediately imitate. The second is the Royal, which is already in a condition to enter immediately upon its functions, under the auspices of a high-spirited and liberal supervision of Mr. Benedict; and another academy, of the same kind and under the same auspices, is about to commence operations at Islington. We look with much interest for the accomplishment of this design. The soundness of the principles and practice of the artists embarked in it; and the success of similar institutions in operation, are guaranteed by the talents and reputation of the gentlemen who have undertaken the management.

Mr. Alfred Mellon has to bring his concerts to a close next week, after a season of unprecedented but well-deserved success. When the various Covent-garden Theatre, it will be occupied by the Royal English Opera Company, who are preparing for the first night a new opera, "Africaine" Meyerbeer, which, we are about to produce an orchestra, chorus, dresses, and decorations) will be produced at Her Majesty's Opera. The Royal English Opera Company have acquired, at a great expense, the copyright and right of representation of the English version of this celebrated work; and we hope that its success will reimburse them for their outlay.

AMUSEMENTS.

The band of Ethiopian musicians, singers and mimes, claiming to be the real and original Christy's Minstrels, has since its absence of five years, returned to London. For several weeks lately they have been attracting crowded houses at the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch; and, on Monday, opened at the West-End, at the Queen's Concert Rooms, Hanover-square. Christy's Minstrels depend not alone on their vocal accomplishments, but upon their general entertainment as a burlesque company, pianist by Messrs. H. and W. Hamilton, and representing the ancient voyage of Messrs. Green Eastern steam ship from Liverpool to New York; and including a story of a visit to the negro slaves coming, summer and winter, in a cotton plantation in the Central Park, New York, 1856. It would be idle for us to describe the entertainment, the leading features being an Ethiopian concert, consisting of airs and ballads, instrumental music, an extravaganza, jigs and comic, "The Dead-duck Act," and a popular burlesque, entitled "The Rival Darkies." We may, however, mention that the company have added to their number a Mr. John Hawkinson, who possesses a voice of singular beauty and purity of tone, and who sings two or three ballads very finely. Altogether, there can be no doubt that this company, under the management of Mr. Frederick Boyce, will secure an extensive and engaged popularity.

It is but just that we should at length record the wonderful doings of Colonel Stodare at the Egyptian Hall, who, as a magician, we think, stands at the height of fame. His feats in the most adroit we have ever witnessed. Some of his tricks are obvious enough, or rather can be obvious to the initiated, the instantaneous growth of flower-trees and the vocal Indian basket trick; and yet, perhaps, they are the most difficult to perform and present with success. Colonel Stodare is also a ventriloquist, Love's electric telegraph is capitally well done. The whole entertainment is decidedly clever, and the Colonel will reap an ample reward from his magic triumphs.

At the St. James's Hall Mr. Anderson exhibits his usual wonders, and a more magnificent series of mechanical surprises was never contrived. He has competed with Stodare in "the original Indian basket-trick;" but the trick, like that of the Colonel, is not new to Anderson, too, has introduced ventriloquism, but does not figure in it success. Moreover, he lectures on the art, and explains the principles on which its illusions are founded.

Master Willie Pape, the eminent American pianist, who has lately constructed several works of merit for his instrument, has now produced a fantasia on the theme "Ever of Thee" which does honour to his talents as a composer.

Mr. Charles E. Ronne has been appointed as Consul at Halifax, Nova Scotia, for the King of the Belgians.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

THERE is a talk of pulling down the old "Tabard" or "Talbot" inn in Southwark, famous as the place of departure of Chaucer's Canterbury pilgrims. It has been stated, however, that the existing building is not worth retaining as a relic of antiquity, and is only a other structure, on the north corner, some forward to declare that the original "pilgrim-room," a timber one, still exists in the rear of the block. Something should consequently be a shame to demolish the Tabard-Talbot. A few, however, who have visited the place will not be able long to withstand the march of Borough improvement. In Russia they have an odd way of dealing with the "old Hummums" of the poet. They clear the ground around, and then build a new house over them. In such a house, at Petersburg, Peter the Great enclosed the original log-cabin in which Peter the Great dwelt while he was directing the building of the city. At Petersburg and Moscow, the celebrated "wiggings" to "Basil of the Island" (Wassil-na-Ostrow) for Peter's house, are shown to every visitor. Perhaps we may yet live long enough from the ooze and mud of the Neva.

"Twice Lost Words" from Mr. James Rankin have appeared on the vexed question of domestic servitude; but the writer, like Punch, Thackeray with overflowing illustrations, from classical authors and others, of an accomplished mistress to the perfect thing will not, I am afraid, enable Masterbumbles to cut the "guedian knot," A lady, writing to a contemporary, and taking a purely Church-and-chapman view of the question, places it, I must confess, in a very practical light; and the experience of fifty years unless would have been held irrefragable. The poor, she points out (quoting Scripture) are always with us, and the rich, the middle, and the poor, who expect the luxuries which riches only obtain; servants belong to the poor, and they should a holiday once a month quite sufficient. A servant after "luxuries," and think it cruel to their duty "in the state of life into which it has pleased God to call them." But what is that state of life into which it has pleased to be called? Who, by the help of industry, education, and good conduct, does not hope to rise above the condition of his parents? Who is the grandfather of the first Sir Robert Peel was a day-labourer. Should the working-man be contented with the state of life into which their grandsires was "called"? An American girl will very soon be mistress of a million of dollars. Is it her ambition to rise a housemaid? Is "help" it is merely with the desire to save up enough money to purchase a small business, become "independent," and "keep a servant"? Is "help" it is merely with the desire to save up enough money to purchase a small business, become "independent," and "keep a servant"? I know a lady, still alive, who was a housemaid to the late New York Academy of Music. The Catechism view was very tersely formulated by Mr. Dickens in "The Chimes":—

> Oh! let us love our occupations,
> Love spade or loom across the fields,
> Bless the fingers' skilful motions,
> And always praise in our proper stations.

The good grow on where I live, and the rest states that she has had twenty years experience in teaching and training girls for servants, providing them with everything annually to a ten-pairs; but it does not seem to have been very successful. Her terms are £20 per annum increase and as servants become better educated, exactly in a proportionate as it also by their mistresses, and as the former is better than wait at table, clean the knives, and make the beds, with "a day out" in a month, and "a holiday" once a year.

And it is exceedingly curious to mark that the vast majority of the writers on the subject of domestic servants concern the females only. I think it the more necessary to call attention to the fact that the male servants, the race of male domestics are valuable, because they can command better wages, and are more difficult to obtain, than the fair sex. A footman may become a butler, a groom of the chambers, or a steward. A coachman may become a gentleman's gamekeeper, or even a landowner; or, retiring from service with his savings, he takes a public-house or a livery-stable business. A page or a gardener promotes himself into a nurseryman and florist; a groom into a jockey or a trainer. A valet may become a "gentleman" — why, a valet can become almost anything. You get that a man-servant is a far more virtual apprenticeship as page or stable-boy. A man-servant is a far more valuable "improver," and in a year's time she may be worth forty or fifty guineas a year. Such is not a subscriber to the Times. I am one of the "help" it is merely with the desire to save up enough money to purchase a small business, become "independent," and "keep a servant"? I know a lady, still alive, who was a housemaid to the late New York Academy of Music. The Catechism view was very tersely formulated by Mr. Dickens in "The Chimes":—

> Oh! let us love our occupations,
> Love spade or loom across the fields,
> Bless the fingers' skilful motions,
> And always praise in our proper stations.

The good grow on where I live, and the rest states that she has had twenty years experience in teaching and training girls for servants, providing them with everything annually to a ten-pairs; but it does not seem to have been very successful. Her terms are £20 per annum increase and as servants become better educated, exactly in a proportionate as it also by their mistresses, and as the former is better than wait at table, clean the knives, and make the beds, with "a day out" in a month, and "a holiday" once a year.

And it is exceedingly curious to mark that the vast majority of the writers on the subject of domestic servants concern the females only. I think it the more necessary to call attention to the fact that the male servants, the race of male domestics are valuable, because they can command better wages, and are more difficult to obtain, than the fair sex. A footman may become a butler, a groom of the chambers, or a steward. A coachman may become a gentleman's gamekeeper, or even a landowner; or, retiring from service with his savings, he takes a public-house or a livery-stable business. A page or a gardener promotes himself into a nurseryman and florist; a groom into a jockey or a trainer. A valet may of the cavalry performing the same exercise on the move, and the interesting proceedings were brought to a conclusion by a capital field manœuvre. Between 600 and 700 troops were on the field. His Royal Highness then proceeded to the head-quarters hut for the purpose of inspecting the progress made in levelling the ground for the new block of stables for the Royal Horse Artillery, afterwards, with the whole of the staff, partaking of luncheon with Major-General Daniel Russell, commanding the 1st Infantry Brigade, at his quarters on the north camp, returning to town in the course of the afternoon.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The bi-annual rifle competition for the gold champion badges of the London Rifle Brigade took place last Saturday, resulting in Private Wyatt winning the badge of the first battalion, and Private Rhode that of the second. At the same time the annual competition for the Lord Mayor's tankards, the winners being Sergeant Cross, Private Crane and White. The following are the general results of the contest:—Ten shots at 200 yards, each of whom thirty-two in first battalion, thirty-seven in second battalion; Sergeant Cross, first prize, 5s., and Lord Mayor's tankard; Private Crane, three consecutive competitors. Average of first battalion, 28·4; Rifles, second battalion, 28·6.

The carbine competition of the 1st Middlesex Artillery took place, by permission, on Saturday week, at Kilburn, on the ranges. The prizes competed for, which were of considerable value, were awarded as follow:—Sergeant Major Thirkettle, 1st prize, value £10, given by Lieutenant-Colonel Buckley; second, Sergt.-Major Gardiner, £7, Gunner Sharpe, £5, Gunner Davis; fourth prize, £4, Gunner Garnham; fifth prize, £3 10s., Lieutenant Dixon, £3; sixth prize, silver cup, value £3, Corporal Gardiner; seventh prize, £2, Corporal Moore; third prize, £5, Lieutenant Dixon. Competition for the prize, value £10, Veterinary-Surgeon Hunting; second prize, £7, Gunner Garnham; third prize, £5, Sergeant Bradley. Competition for silver prize, value £10. Corporal Gardiner; second prize, £7, Sergeant Major Tither; third prize, £5, Gunner Clarke. Ladies' consolation prize for non-commissioned officers, value £5, Trumpeter Williams; second prize, £3, Sergeant Smith; third prize, £1 10s., Bombardier Williams.

The 5th annual prize-meeting of the 5th (Surrey) company of the 19th Middlesex took place, last Saturday, at Wormholt-scrubbs. To Private T. Preston was awarded the prize for the best and second best shots. The prizes were shot for, the winners being Private Pell, first prize; Sergeant Schenken, second; and Ensign Bayntun, third. The following comprise the winners won Messrs. Spencer, Nuttall, Roberts, and Bugnall.

The Fifteen Thousand Prize Meeting (1865) Militia Match competing for four class prizes, portion of a sum of £50 given by Mr. Henry Gardner to the regiment, for the three-prize-winners, as at present, and for the Queen's Prize Volun.; second class, Colour-Sergeant White; first class, Mr. Stragnell; and highest aggregate, Colour-Sergt. White; 2nd, Mr. Stragnell; 3rd, Sergt. Hall; following score:—Third class, 61; second, 67; and first, 85: total, 154, beating Colour-Sergeant White by one point.

The Queen's Prize Contest of the Queen's (Westminster), last week, consisted of a Wormwood-scrubs day and a Lambeth day. The first, a purse of £10, given by Captain Scottoe, was won by Private Moss. There were then first Martini-Henry matches; ordinary and consolation, the first three being—a silver cup, value fifteen guineas; a gold watch, value ten guineas; a silver cup, value five guineas; and a pair of pistols, value three street Society, formed to encourage the shooting of the company. These chief prizes were won by Sergt. Bayley, Private Moss, and Private Wyatt. A second Lambeth contest was won by Mr. G. Dyer, who made the highest score, 67, given by Private George James, was won by Private James; and a subscription prize, given by Private Bell, was won by Private Bell. Private W. Graves, were won by Mr. Moss, Mr. Southam, Corporal Young, Lieutenant Carbutt, Corporal Smith, Private Gardiner, Lieutenant Gardiner, and Private Asbet, sen. Prizes given by Lieutenant Carbutt were won by Ensign Brigwar and Private Bewlie. Private Gardiner won the prize given to the Lewdon Armoury rifle; and other prizes were won by Private Morgan and Waggett.

The seventeenth company (St. Clement Danes) of the Queen's (Westminster) Volunteers, commanded by Captain Scottoe, held their annual prize-shoot, on Wednesday morning, to compete for the challenge cup and other prizes presented by the then-commanding officer, Lieutenant-Colonel Buckley, after his retirement from the corps. The following is a list of the prizes and the successful competitors:—Ten rounds at twelve guineas from company funds, 200 yards, won by Private D'Arth; second, £5 5s., Private T. Smith. The Captain's purse of £5 was won by Private Bell; second, £3 3s., Private Wyatt. Sergeant B. Bentley, who was second. The third prize, of £3 3s., given by Lieutenant Carbutt, was won by Private Bell; second, £2 2s., a handsome silver cup, presented by W. H. Smith, M.P., was won by Private T. Smith, who obtained second honour, carrying off a merchantman prize; and Quartermaster Sergeant Bentley, who obtained second honour, a rifle. Ens. The St. Clement Danes challenge cup was won by Private W. W. Matthews; the value of the vase of £5 5s., given by Lieutenant and Paymaster of the parish, was won by Private D'Arth. A consolation prize of £2 was won by Private Tucker; and a handsome silver cup, presented by Mr. Freeman, Esq., was won by Lieutenant Berry. To the best aggregate score in the above competitive shoots, Private Gardiner received a handsome small-bore rifle, and Private D'Arth carried it off.

On Friday and Saturday, last week, the 1st Surrey competed for a large number of valuable prizes at Wimbledon. The challenge cups, which carry with them certain honours, were competed for on the Friday, which was given by General Sir George Pollock, who was by Private J. C. W. Bissett; the consolation cup, given by Mr. Whitehead, was competed for on Monday, by Mr. Dix; the ladies' cup, by Mr. Watterman; and the secretary's cup, by Mr. Bedford. The Queen's Prize competition was conducted under the usual match series rules, the first and last matches, five to one thousand yards, and the second, one, one prize the second, two prizes. The chief prize in a series, shot for at the Queen's Prize range, was won by follow:—Private G. Hodgkins took the first prize, ten guineas; Private A. Weir took the second, eight guineas; and Private J. Bissett the third, seven guineas. The value of the prizes in this series amounted to forty guineas. In the shooting for the second series, Private Hodgkins increased his value to forty-five guineas, Mr. Hodgkins was also first, but the prize will decline; Mr. J. J. Curtis, two guineas; Mr. Bedford, one guineas, was won by Corporal S. Wicks; and the fourth, seven guineas, by Sergeant Allen. In the Wimbledon Challenge Cup competition, Mr. Bedford at the Queen's prize ranges, the first prize, twelve guineas, was won by Private Hodgkins; the second prize, eight guineas, by Private A. Weir; and the third, eight guineas, by Sergeant A. Bissett. In a second series, Corporal Langton won a Mont-Storm breech-loading rifle, value fifteen guineas, given by Private Hodgkins; and Private Weir won a handsome silver cup, presented by Lady Pollock.

The annual shooting of the 21st Kent (Royal Arsenal) took place last Saturday, when prizes to money to the value of £25, together with a cup presented by Mr. Wilson, a gentleman of the corps, were competed by the commanding officer (Lieutenant-Colonel Orum), and as circumstated regarding the shooting by Mr. Orum, were the best ever known in the corps. The prizes for shooting, as well as six prizes presented by the wife of Captain J. H. Graham, of Woolwich, for the best shots in each company, were settled at the close of the day's proceedings.

The first (Bromley) corps of the Administrative Brigade of East Artillery, consisting of two batteries, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel W. Goldsmith, assembled, for the annual inspection, on the occasion of the retirement of the River Medway for the purpose of making practice with the heavy guns now on the sea-face of the Government fortress at the entrance to Chatham Harbour. A target having been laid out to seaward, at a distance of 1500 yards, practice began with 68-pounder smooth-bore guns, and was subsequently with the common spherical shell from both descriptions of guns. The practice throughout the excellent character which the Bromley corps has been brought. The Eastgraft was shot away after the first two or three shots, while the guns were so accurately laid that the target was struck repeatedly, which was subsequently nearly destroyed by the bursting of the shell close to it. The practice was witnessed by a large number of the officers and members of the local gentry, who were lent boat for the purpose, and who expressed themselves in the remarkable excellence of the firing. At the termination of the practice the gunners of the volunteers were formed in line on the parade-ground inside the Hadrman Battery, where they were inspected by Lieutenant-Colonel Goldsmith.

The annual carbine and rifle competition for prizes in connection with the 1st Tower Hamlets Rifle Artillery Volunteers took place on the Government range in the South Farnland Meadows, at the rear of Dover Castle. The Dover challenge cup, value £10, given by the 1st Administrative Brigs de C.P.A.V., was won by Gunner W. Foster, of the Dover corps. The members' prize, value £21, given by Dover Artillery and Rifle and R.L.V. Yeomanry, were distributed in five prizes. Gunner T. A. Sorvot took the first prize; Sergeant Lyon, the second; Corporal Cooper, the third; Gunner Foster, the fourth; and Sergeant Lloyd, the fifth. The 1st A.C.P.A.V. challenge cup, value £10 guineas, was won by Sergeant-Major Gardiner, of the Dover corps. Gunner Fyan; third, Gunner Ayers; fourth, Gunner White; fifth, Gunner Foster; sixth, Gunner Sorvot; seventh, Gunner Lloyd. The 1st A.C.P.A.V. volunteer challenge cup, value £10, given by the officers of the Dover garrison and C.P. and Kent volunteers. Sergeant Hawkins, 2nd R.A.V., carried off the first prize; Private Parker, 1st Kent, the second; Corporal Hall, and Sergeant B. A. Tucker, 1st A.C.P.A.V., the third prize. For the ladies' prize, value £5, and the all-comers' prize, value £5, there were numerous entries for metropolitan and other corps entered.

The annual prize competition of the 8th Cinque Ports (Dover) came off on Monday week. The first of the all-comers' prizes, £8 8s., was won by Private Bishop, 6th C.P.R.V.; the second, £4 4s., by Corporal Harris, 20th R.R.V.; the third, £2 2s., by Gunner Forster, 1st A.C.P.A.V.; and the fourth, £1 1s., by Sergeant Bonali, 20th R.R.V. The first of the Cinque Ports prizes, an Aston rifle, value thirteen guineas, was carried off by Sergeant-Major Martin, 1st C.P.A.V.; the second prize by Corporal Jackson, 8th C.P.R.V.; and the third, £2 2s., by Private D. Hearn, 8th C.P.R.V. The Dover challenge cup, value £10, given by the commanding officer of the 1st Administrative Brigade, was won by Sergeant-Major Gardiner, 1st C.P.A.V. The first ring by Sergeant Lloyd, the £5 5s. by Corporal Wood, the £2 2s. by Private Faulkman. The members' prizes were open to the R.E.K. Mounted Rifles, the 8th C.P.R.V., and the 1st A.C.P.A.V. Gunner S. Parr took the first prize, given by Captain Bell; Corporal Wood the third, and Sergeant Newton the fourth prize. The officers' prizes, given by the Dover corps, were then competed for. The Lord Derby's steward's challenge cup and vase was by Private Lloyd, the second prize by Sergeant Bonali, the third by Corporal Wood, and the fourth prize by Sergeant Newton.

A match took place on Thursday week between sides selected from the Colchester and Braintree companies. The scores made were Colchester, 208; Braintree, 197. Mr. Bowyer, of the Colchester corps, presented a cup for the highest score, which was won by Sergeant Wright, of the same corps.

The various corps connected with the Norfolk and Suffolk Artillery Administrative Brigade have been engaged at their annual rifle practice. The batteries represented were the Great Yarmouth and Cromer, the Lowestoft, the Norwich, and the Woodbridge. The prizes competed for were given by Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Edward Kerrison, Bart., M.P., and by Lieutenant-Colonel St. Leon, M.P. The men exercised various manœuvres, and the firing was subsequently regarded as heavy and creditable.

The Worcestershire corps were busy last week. The annual shooting for the Beauchamp challenge cup and prizes for money offered to the Worcestershire corps brought out large numbers of the Volunteers from each of the six sqads the successful competitor for the cup. The principal winners of the money prizes were Sergt. Bayliss, Sergt. Hall, Corporal Hall, and Private Hooper. The cup with the following inscription:—"Presented to Major G. Tennant by the Worcestershire Volunteers, as a testimonial of their esteem, as a token of the services and regard." The Pershore corps also shot for the Beauchamp cup, which was won by Colour-Sergeant Fisher.

The piece of plate presented by the Earl of Ellesmere for competition by members of the Lancashire Volunteers, as above, has been found a resting-place on the sideboard of Mr. Nathaniel Rickerby, at Liverpool. The trophy, having been won by the team representing the 3rd Lancashire (Wigan) two years in succession, it became the property of that company, in the manner of which decided to present it to Captain Commandant Ickersley. The ceremony was duly performed last Saturday, when Sergeant-Major Reilly, on the part of the company, made the gift, and the presentation in a suitable address.

The last Saturday's shot by members of the 56th Lancashire (Salford) put on the range of the regiment at Clifton Moss, to compete for two silver cups, one presented by the Mayor of Salford, and the other by the Mayor of Salford. The Mayor's cup was well contested, the winner proving to be Sergeant-Major Hall, with the extraordinary score of 49 out of 50.

The annual shooting-contest of the Preston corps was concluded on Saturday last at the range at the rear of Fulwood Barracks. The winners of prizes is subjoined:—Tredesman's prize, won by Colour-Sergeant Hall, Corporal Hodgson, and 42 the last, won with the score of 49; the prize is given by Sir T. G. Hesketh, M.P., has to be won twice in succession or three times in all before it becomes the property of any one member. In the ladies' purse was won by Colour-Sergeant Singleton, but, in consequence of the disqualification of the winner, the prize was awarded to the score in one day, it was handed over to the next best shooter—Sergeant Naylor—whilst the Sergeant-Major's prize was won by Private Hall, and the Mayor's prize by Lieut. The consequent prizes, given by the officers, were won in the following order:—Lieutenant Hall, Sergeant Naylor, Private Hall, Lieutenant Hall, and Private Hall. The Lord Derby's steward's challenge cup was won by Colour-Sergeant Singleton; and the fourth by Colour-Sergeant Crook. Sergeant Naylor, Private Hall, Lieutenant Hall, Sergeant Naylor, Private Hindle, Sergeant Smith, Sergeant Sharples, and Sergeant Singleton. A prize of £2 2s. was won by Private Hall, and £2 2s. was won by Private Hall, and navigation of the Eastern seas. The caisson entrance here is 75 ft. wide, and the length of the dock is 375 ft. In our illustration will be seen the various workshops, the foundry, and quarters for the officers who have to superintend the repairs of the ship.

PROFESSOR PHILLIPS.

DR. JOHN PHILLIPS, Professor of Geology in the University of Oxford, whose address, delivered at Birmingham as President of the meeting of the British Association for 1865, was reported the week before last, has held the office of Assistant General Secretary to that association since 1832, having been one of its original founders. He is the nephew of William Smith, who has been called "the father of English geology," and with whom, as his pupil and assistant, Professor Phillips was constantly associated till the death of Mr. Smith, in 1839. In making the surveys and observations for the geological maps of many English counties, prepared by Mr. Smith between 1810 and 1824, Mr. Phillips, while a youth, first obtained his practical knowledge of the science and his acquaintance with the physical structure of England. His earliest contribution to geological literature appeared in the Philosophical Magazine in 1827; it was an essay "On the Direction of Diluvial Currents in Yorkshire," and was first read as a paper before the Yorkshire Philosophical Society in November, 1826. This Society had been instituted by scientific men belonging to the city and county of York a few years previously. The acquirements of Mr. Phillips, and his success as a lecturer, brought him into notice. In 1824 he was introduced with the task of arranging the fossils of the Society's Museum, and in the following year he was appointed its keeper. In 1829 the collections of the York Museum were removed to a new building erected in the grounds of St. Mary's Abbey, and Mr. Phillips then resided in the house which had formerly been the gate of the Abbey. About this time he produced his "Illustrations of the Geology of Yorkshire," which was followed by a work on "The Rivers, Mountains, and Seacoast of Yorkshire." In 1831, Mr. Phillips, as secretary to the Yorkshire Philosophical Society, took a leading part, with Sir David Brewster and others, in establishing the British Association, which held its preliminary meeting, in the theatre of the York Museum, in September of that year. Mr. Phillips then acted as secretary to the committee of management, and at the second meeting at Oxford, in 1832, he was chosen Assistant General Secretary. In that official capacity he has edited the numerous volumes of reports and transactions since published under its name, besides discharging the many duties connected with its stated annual gatherings—duties general, official, and scientific—involving a large correspondence and frequent communications with local officers; and to these services must be added his numerous original and valuable papers read from year to year before the different sections. Being attached to the Geological Survey of Great Britain, under the direction of Sir Henry de la Beche, Mr. Phillips was for some time engaged in a laborious examination and description of the palæozoic fossils of Cornwall, Devon, and West Somerset, published by authority of Government. In 1840 he resigned the charge of the York Museum, but continued to superintend the geological collection as one of the honorary curators until 1844, when he devoted himself to the examination of the Malvern district, the result of which will be found in the second volume of the "Memoirs of the Geological Survey," under the title "The Malvern Hills Compared with the Palæozoic District of Abberley." In the same year he was appointed Professor of Geology in the University of Dublin. Previously, from 1835, he had filled the chair of geology in King's College, London. Upon the death of Mr. Strickland, in 1853, who had performed the duties of the chair of geology, in place of Dr. Buckland, at Oxford, Mr. Phillips was appointed to the vacant post; and later, on the demise of Dr. Buckland, he became his successor, as reader or professor of geology in the University of Oxford. His published writings are very numerous: only to a few of the more important have we alluded in this notice. Volume iv. of the "Bibliographia Zoologiæ et Geologiæ" of Agassiz, published in 1854, enumerates thirty-one works, papers, or collections of articles by Professor Phillips; now they exceed the number of forty; nor are they of the nature of compilations, but in most cases the records of original researches. One of his most recent works is entitled "Life on the Earth; its Origin and Succession," which is dedicated to the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, and is the substance of the Rede Lecture, delivered to that University in May, 1860. In 1845 the Wollaston medal was awarded to Professor Phillips by the President of the Geological Society, in consideration of his valuable works on Geology. In 1859, when himself President, he delivered the annual address, in which he referred to the constantly enlarging field of geological observation, and remarked that the series of British strata had now become so well known in its general sequence and principal local variations, that there was hardly one stratum whose place was doubtful. This result is due, in a great measure, to the labours of Professor Phillips and others with whom he has worked since the time of his uncle and predecessor, William Smith, who published the first map of English geology, in 1815. Professor Phillips is M.A. and F.R.S. Our Portrait is from a photograph by Mr. Guggenheim, of Oxford.

PROFESSOR PHILLIPS, F.R.S., PRESIDENT OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION FOR 1865.

H.M.S. LEOPARD IN DOCK AT SHANGHAI.

SWINHOE'S PHEASANT.

OUR Illustration represents one of the most beautiful of the fine collection of pheasants now living in the gardens of the Zoological Society of London. It is a newly-discovered species, which has been worthily named after its discoverer, Mr. Robert Swinhoe, F.Z.S., her Majesty's Consul in Formosa. "Few of her Majesty's Consuls," says Mr. Gould, in his great work on the birds of Asia, "have more assiduously availed themselves of the opportunities afforded them of collecting the birds of the distant regions in which they have been located than Mr. Swinhoe, and fewer still have shown greater acumen in discriminating and pointing out the distinctions which separate nearly allied species. It is but a just tribute, then, to the merits of this gentleman that so remarkable and beautiful a bird should be named in his honour."

To the same gentleman the Zoological Society are likewise indebted for the male specimen of this bird now in their collection, from which this present figure is taken, and which is the only example of this species which has as yet been imported into Europe.

In its native state, Swinhoe's pheasant inhabits the high jungles of the interior of the little-known island of Formosa, rarely descending into the lower hills. In size it is somewhat smaller than the common silver pheasant, which it also resembles in its red wattles and in the form of its tail. The Zoological Society are shortly expecting the arrival of a fresh batch of specimens of this pheasant, which have been shipped to them by Mr. Swinhoe, so that next spring we may hope to witness the reproduction of this species in the society's gardens; and before many years are passed we have little doubt that a new and brilliant addition will thus be introduced to the pheasantries of this country.

SWINHOE'S PHEASANT, LATELY ADDED TO THE COLLECTION OF THE ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF LONDON.

THE WAKEFIELD FINE-ARTS AND INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

THIS exhibition, which was opened under the most favourable auspices on Wednesday, the 30th ult., in the presence of Earl Fitzwilliam, Lord Houghton (the president), the Archbishop of York, the Right Hon. Mr. Adderley, M.P., Mr. Leatham, M.P., and other gentlemen who took an active part in the proceedings, has since proved most successful, the number of visitors hitherto being more than 50,000. It has been well arranged to combine the generally attractive character of a display of manufactures and specimens of art or design with that of a large exhibition of the humbler but individually most interesting productions of the working classes. The Wakefield Exhibition had its origin in the schools connected with the ancient parish church of that town. It was soon taken up by the parents of the scholars, and their friends, then by the town generally, and subsequently by one town after another, until almost the whole of the West Riding of Yorkshire had given in its adhesion to the scheme, Lord Houghton has throughout acted as president; and the Mayor of Wakefield, himself a large manufacturer, is the chairman of committees; the general secretaries being the Rev. C. E. Camidge, M.A., Curate of Wakefield, who started the idea of the exhibition, and Mr. J. H. Dixon, Deputy Clerk of the Peace of the West Riding. In the neighbouring places gentlemen volunteered to act as honorary secretaries and thus about a thousand exhibitors have been got together. Specimens of manufactures, machinery in motion, musical instruments, furniture; architectural, marine, and other models; drawings, paintings, sculpture, photographs, woodcarvings, stuffed birds and animals, needlework, and multitudes of things made by artisans of the West Riding in their leisure hours are exhibited, whilst there are also some inventions to claim the protection of the "Industrial Exhibition Act, 1865." Besides the exhibition proper, a considerable collection of the works of modern British artists has been got together, and some curiosities and articles of virtù.

The exhibition is held in a large building which has been erected for the purpose from the design of Mr. William Watson, architect, Wakefield. It comprises a central hall, measuring 100 ft. by 60 ft.; and picture-galleries, 100 ft. by 30 ft.; besides ample refreshment and retiring room. The entrance is through a handsome and well-proportioned vestibule. The building is constructed of brick and timber, with iron girders in the roof. In conjunction with the special building, the Tannay Hall or Old Cloth Hall, situate immediately in the rear of it, has been secured for the exhibition. It consists of two floors, each 230 ft. in length and 30 ft. in width. The lower floor is devoted to machinery in motion and heavy products. The upper floor, which is a single apartment, contains the principal part of the exhibition. It is 223 ft. long, by 30 ft. wide; the walls are coloured with a beautiful neutral tint, and the appearance of this room, originally used for the exhibition of woollen goods, more recently as a mill, is extremely effective. Thus the exhibition is held in six rooms, which contain about 17,500 square feet of floor and table space, and 17,000 square feet of wall space. The number of exhibitors, including the fine arts department and children, amount to nearly 2000. With regard to the classification and arrangement of articles, which in all exhibitions of a similar character has been found the most difficult part of the undertaking to perform satisfactorily, the articles have been arranged partly in sections, and always so as to produce the most pleasing appearance. We can merely indicate the general outline of these classifications. They are—1. Chemical products and manufactures, and mineral substances; 2, Glass, china, and earthenware; 3, Furniture, wood-work, house decoration; 4, fancy work, &c.; 5, Machinery, tools, ironmongery, and metal work; 6, Models; 7, Philosophical and musical instruments, &c.; 8, Carriages and harness; 9, Clothing; 10. Stationery, printing, bookbinding, penmanship, &c.; 11, Scholars' and children's work. There is also a section which includes drawing, paintings, sculpture, &c. chiefly by artisans.

The two galleries of paintings contain an admirable collection of works from the pencils of living and dead English artists. Not a little credit is due to the Fine-Arts Committee for the almost unceasing—at all events indefatigable—attentions they have paid to the hanging and other details connected with their critical task. Among the dead artists who are represented in the gallery are Hogarth, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Gainsborough, Lonthebourg, Morland, R. Wilson, F. Reinagle, Ibbetson, the two Barkers of Bath, George Harlowe, Schwanfelder, Williamson, Etty, the two Rhodes, J. M. W. Turner, Bonnington, Rippingale, E. J. Boddington, and A. Gorse. Of living celebrities there are C. and Geo. Stanfield, W. Linton, T. S. Cooper, Pyne, J. Sant, T. Lawrance, Marks, E. M. Ward, and many others. In sculpture there are works of J. H. Foley, T. Woolner, and Edward Davis.

THE WAKEFIELD INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, Sept. 18.—Our market to-day was but moderately supplied with English wheat, which moved off slowly, and was offered at rather lower rates. Foreign wheat—the show of which was tolerably good—sold slowly, at Monday's quotations. Barley and malt were in fair request, and steady. There was a fair supply for the barley, but fine malting qualities still met cheap. The malt trade was in a dull state, and prices were barely supported. Beans and peas were steady, in fair request, and unchanged. Very few oats were offered, and they were in good request, at full quotations. All kinds of spring corn, as well as beans, were a shade higher. In prices generally, however, there is no change.

English.—Wheat, 34s. to 42s.; barley, 29s. to 32s.; malt, 63s. to 70s.; oats, 20s. to 25s.; beans, 36s. to 38s.; peas, 36s. to 38s.; rye, 30s. to 32s.; per quarter; town-made flour, 50s. to 53s.; country sacks, 42s. to 45s.; per 280 lbs.

Foreign.—Wheat, per imperial quarter, 40s. to 44s.; barley, 30s. to 32s.; oats, 20s. to 23s.; beans, 36s. to 38s.; peas, 36s. to 38s.; rye, 30s. to 32s.; per quarter; flour, per 280 lbs., 40s. to 44s.

Arrivals.—The arrivals of wheat are in fair request from Dantzic, 1,200 qrs.; of Konigsberg-Pillau, 1,000 qrs.; of Stettin, 1,000 qrs.; of Pomerania, 1,000 qrs.; of Prussia, 1,000 qrs.; of Russia, 1,000 qrs.; of Ireland, 1,000 qrs.; and from France, 1,000 qrs.

English Corn.—Last week's delivery of English corn was from 20,000 to 25,000 qrs. of wheat, 1,000 qrs. of barley, 500 qrs. of oats, 500 qrs. of beans, and 500 qrs. of peas.

Stock.—The stock of wheat, on the 9th inst., was 1,000,000 qrs.; of barley, 120,000 qrs.; of oats, 1,000,000 qrs.; of beans, 120,000 qrs.; and of peas, 120,000 qrs.

Bonded Corn.—The quantity of wheat remaining in bond on the 9th inst. was 1,000,000 qrs.; of barley, 120,000 qrs.; of oats, 1,000,000 qrs.; of beans, 120,000 qrs.; and of peas, 120,000 qrs.

Duties.—The duties on wheat, on the 9th inst., were 20s. per qr.; on barley, 8s. per qr.; on oats, 6s. per qr.; on beans, 8s. per qr.; on peas, 8s. per qr.; on rye, 8s. per qr.; on flour, 4s. per cwt.

Seeds.—The demand for linseed continues to be very limited, and prices are unchanged. Cakes are in moderate request, at 10l. 10s. per ton. Rapeseed is dull, at former prices. Clover and canary are quiet, but steady. Other descriptions have moved off slowly, at full quotations.

Hops.—The value of the duty on hops, in the year ending 10th October, 1864, was 1,000,000 pounds sterling.

Potatoes.—The limited business is doing in this article, yet prices are supported. The following are the receipts of Middlesex potatoes:—Monday, 200 sacks; Tuesday, 200 sacks; Wednesday, 200 sacks; Thursday, 200 sacks; Friday, 200 sacks; Saturday, 200 sacks.

Provisions.—The demand for Irish butter is inactive, yet prices are unchanged. Foreign is in fair request, at full prices. Bacon is dull, at former rates. Hams are quite as dear as before. Lard is in moderate request. All other provisions are inactive.

Coals.—Hetton, 20s. 6d.; Lambton, 20s. 6d.; Stewart, 20s. 6d.; Wylam, 20s. 6d.; Russell, 20s. 6d.; Hartlepool, 20s. 6d.; Eden Main, 20s. 6d.; coals, 20s. 6d.; Tanfield, 20s. 6d.; Tees, 20s. 6d.; Tyne

NEW MUSIC.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW MUSIC.
A. F. GODFREY'S UNITED SERVICE QUADRILLE. 4s. 8d. Illustrated by a Portrait of the Composer.
A. F. GODFREY'S UNITED SERVICE WALTZ. 4s.
A. F. GODFREY'S UNITED SERVICE GALOP. 3s.
"Godfrey's Dance Music and the Army Lists."—Performed at her Majesty's State Ball and the Grand Military Gala at Dresden.
HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS for SINGING. 29th Edition.
HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS for SINGING. 29th Edition.
DR. WESLEY'S PSALMS and HYMNS for PEDAL ORGANS. Book I.
THE CHRISTIAN ORGINER. Sacred Song. By the Composer of "God Bless the Prince of Wales." 3s.
"GOD BLESS THE PRINCE." Sacred Song. By the Composer of "God Bless the Prince of Wales." 3s.
HARK! THE GRAD BELLS RINGING. Double-song by Miles. Illustrated and hot for a Christmas Card. 3s.
CHURCH MUSIC FOR SUNDAY EVENING.—Eighteen Hymns, with Symphonies and Accompaniments for the Organ or Pianoforte, by Dr. Wesley. "Hail of my Soul," "As Pants the Hart," "Angel Voices ever Singing," &c.
ROBERT COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street; and of Messrs. Rockwood, 23, Cornhill.

LA MORSKA VALSE. This elegant and fascinating Valse, composed and dedicated by permission to Mrs. GODFREY, Secretary of the Royal Naval Schools, is now published, embellished with a Portrait of the fair Lady, and forms a most acceptable present for the season. Price 24 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S FAREWELL WALTZ.
E. Remains for Piano, Played by Master Willie Pope before the Prince and Princess of Wales. Illustrated with a Portrait from his Survey via Gorrah fourteen editions. Sent for 18 stamps.
DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

RENÉ FAVARGER and FRANK MORI, Concert de Piano and Chant, respectfully, Classes, Choral Meetings, Private Lessons.—38, Argyle-street, Regent-street. Pupils wanted, W.; and 32, Somerset-street, Portman-square, W.

Now ready,
THE RICHSTER HUNT GALOP. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. Splendidly illustrated. Solo and duet, by the Publishers, HALE and CO., Cheltenham.

HARMOUNDI: HARMONIUMS: £6.
A First Study, 6 numbers, 1s. each; complete, 5s. Second Study, 12 numbers, 1s. each; complete, 10s. 6d. Sixteen Lessons, 6d. each; complete, 8s. 6d. Hackbrett-street, Borough. The trade supplied.

MUSICAL BOX DEPÔT for the Sale of CREMER'S celebrated Musical Instruments, Nos. 1 to 10, and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of the above instruments, just received, has arrived, price from 6 guineas to 100 guineas.

SLACKS' FENDERS and FIRE IRONS
Every New Design always in Show,
Bright Stoves, 30s. to 5l.
Bronzed Fenders, 20s. to 5l.
Fire Irons, the Set of Three, 2s. 6d. to 12s.
Fender-and-Fire Irons, 3s. 6d. to 3l.
Dressing-cases do., 10s. 6d. to 8l.
Tea-urns, Kettles, Cutlery, Baths.
Bedsteads, 2s. 6d. to 5l.; Bedding, 2s. 6d. to 5l.
Catalogues, containing 150 Engravings and Prices, gratis, or sent post-free. Orders per 20 miles carriage paid.
SLACKS and SON, 336, Strand, London.

WILLIAM S. BURTON'S GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGERY, as submitted to the inspection of her MAJESTY, contains a STOCK of ELECTRO-PLATE, nickel silver, and Britannia metal goods, all marked with the prices, and arranged in classes, thus enabling purchasers to make their own selection. Tea and Coffee Urns, Candlesticks, Candelabra, Dish Covers, Cruet Frames, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers, Tea Trays, and Kettles, Clocks, Tea and Coffee Sets, Fenders, Fire Irons, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Cabinet Furniture, &c., with Lists of Prices, and Plans of the Twenty-seven Large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street; 1, 1a, 2, 3, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard, London.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the BEST and CHEAPEST, at HEAVEY'S Extensive Furnishing Warehouses, Kentish-road, E. 1,200. New Illustrated Catalogue in the Press. Sent free by post. Established 1841. Carriage paid to the Metropolitan Railway Stations.

CONVERTIBLE OTTOMANS for centre of room, to form lounges and two easy-chairs—a great convenience. H. PEACHEY and SON, 72, Edgware-road, and 1, Church-street, Oxford-street. An Illustrated Priced List post-free.

CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 25 and 27, Berners-street, Oxford-street, Manufacturers of Easy Chairs, Couches, and Lounges, in leather, and in all descriptions. An indispensable luxury in every lady's boudoir.

BROWN and GREEN'S KITCHEN RANGES.—A close range with a set of roasting jacks, a sanicy chimney and ovens all close heat or steam. Prospectuses free.—Patentees, Dudley.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, from three selling at 24s. and upwards, per bottle to non-grand Sherry. Our guinea per dozen Claret is a wine of the highest character. Sole proprietors, PATTLE and WATSON, Wine Merchants, 23, Great Scotland-yard, corner of Whitehall-place, W.; London, W.C., and Established 1810.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold by the leading wine merchants throughout the world, and by the principal licensed victuallers in London and the provinces. 20, Great Windmill-street, London, W., Dublin, and Belfast; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W., Dublin, and Belfast.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH BREWINGS of the above Ale are now being SUPPLIED in BOTTLE and HOGSHEADS by HENRY and ROBERT ALLSOPP, MARCH, and 33, St. Mildred's-court, Poultry, E.C.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
pronounced by Connoisseurs
"The Only Good Sauce."
Their genuine WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, imported in Casks, and Bottled, Labelled, Corked, and Capped, by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to the Queen, and by Appointment to the Royal Family and Household.

Made by J. R. PIKE and SONS, Bristol and London.
PIKE'S HOMEOPATHIC COCOA,
IN PACKETS AND TINS.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is prepared for the breakfast table, render it
A SPECIAL AND VALUABLE ARTICLE.
It is equally adapted for invalids and young persons, and is highly approved and strongly
RECOMMENDED BY MEDICAL MEN.
THE
ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, awarded to any Textile Manufacture for CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by
J. S. PIKE and SONS, Bristol and London.
Prize Medals, 1851, 1855, 1858, and 1862.
THE ROYAL HOUSE HOLD.

HORNIMAN'S TEAS are Eighpence per POUND CHEAPER. Packets carriage free. Detailed Inspective Price Tea. Confectioners are Agents in Country Towns.
PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
was awarded the Prize Medal.

WHY SUFFER RHEUMATISM, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Broken, or Weak Limbs — HELLMAN'S ROYAL ARABIAN LINIMENT, internally applied, is an infallible remedy. Sold at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per bottle. Can be had of all Chemists

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Disorders of the Stomach, Blood, and Skin, a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—10, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

A LL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-SALVE; it is a most successful restorative acting from a cold in the head.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Barclay, Oxford-street; Prout, Strand; Sutton, Cheapside; Harper, London Bridge.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

SPECIAL NOTICE.—PETER ROBINSON'S FRENCH and DRAPERY WAREHOUSE, for all Coloured Goods, Mantles, Shawls, Dresses, &c., 103 to 108, Oxford-street.
Peter Robinson's MOURNING WAREHOUSE is at 256 to 262, Regent-street.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON.
See advertisements below.

A PERFECTLY NEW FABRIC FOR AUTUMN DRESSES.
THE "VEDDO" POPLIN,
in most brilliant colours, Plain, Cord, and Checked.
This is one of the most elegant and useful Dress Fabrics of the season.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SPECIALLY PREPARED FOR THIS MONTH.
LADIES' TRAVELLING SUITS,
ready-made, and made to measure.
Ladies' own materials made up.
In Plain or Printed Alpacas.
Poils de Chevres, Cords, Checks, Tartans, Stripes, &c., from 10s. 9d. to 3 guineas.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

DRAP DE CHERBOURG.
A new make of Fabric, in all the Fashionable Colours.
All Wool Drap and Serge (new Colours), 10s. 6d. to 4s. Full Dress.
Also, a Large Purchase of Fancy Checked Silks, at 2 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

Several decidedly New Colours in the
PARIS CORDED SILK POPELINES.
Price 2 guineas the Full Dress. Also, to 5 guineas.
The new "Zenaia Cloth," in Plain, Checked, Striped, and Chenine, 1 guinea.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

Every New Colour in
REAL ABERDEEN WINCEYS,
from 9d. to 10½d. per Yard Wide.
Every new particular in Costume from 10s. 6d. to 2l. 2s. Full Dress.
A stock of upwards of 5,000 Dresses always on hand.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

White Grenadine and Book Muslins, for
BRIDESMAIDS' DRESSES,
Striped, Plain, and Figured, from 10s. 6d. to 2l. 2s. Full Dress.
Richly-worked White Robes, 3l. 3s. to 21 guineas each.
Tulle and Tarlatan Dresses, 1 guinea to 5 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

Very Fashionable and most desirable
PETER ROBINSON has the honour to announce that his Autumn Importations of 1865 of these fashionable Dresses, at a very large discount from the original prices, are now ready for inspection in the Show-rooms on the First Floor. Several new Shapes, expressly to be had only here, have been added to the Stock, now offered from 2l. 2s. to 5l. 5s. Also, a Large Purchase of Black Silk Dresses, at 3 guineas, 4 guineas, and 5 guineas the Dress.
Patterns post-free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

FOR WEDDING DRESSES.
PETER ROBINSON invites special attention to the Silks in his Silk Department, containing a magnificent selection of Rich Glacé Silks, Moiré Antiques, Satins, Gros Grains, and other goods, suitable to, and at prices usually given for, Wedding Dresses in Lyons, expressly for bridal costumes.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CORDED AND PLAIN SILKS.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR YOUNG LADIES.
PETER ROBINSON has the honour to announce that his Importations of Fashionable Millinery for our elder girls from 47 to 56, inclusive, are now ready for inspection in the Show-rooms on the First Floor.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

WATERPROOF MANTLES for Travelling and Seaside, in various textures, from 1 guinea to 4 guineas. Also, a large purchase of Rich Black Glacé Silk Mantles, 3l. 3s. each, usually sold at 5l. 5s. Rich Black Velvet Mantles, 5l. 5s. to 10l. 10s. Rich Black Velvet Jackets, 2l. 2s. to 5l. 5s. Rich Black Velvet Opera Cloaks, 3l. 3s. to 5l. 5s. Rich Black Velvet Bonnets, 21s. to 3l. 3s. Rich Black Velvet Hoods, 21s. to 3l. 3s. Rich Black Velvet Dress Caps, 21s. to 3l. 3s. Rich Black Velvet Dress Caps, 21s. to 3l. 3s. Rich Black Velvet Dress Caps

NEW MUSIC.

NEW WALTZ BY DALBERT.

HOME, SWEET HOME. New Waltz, by CHARLES D'ALBERT, on the favourite melody of "Home, Sweet Home." Played at Mollenx's Concerts with immense success. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MAY WALTZ. By ALFRED MELLON. Performed at his concerts at Covent Garden Theatre with great success. Price 4s.; or free by post for 24 stamps.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grenadier Guards. Nightly encored at Mollenx's Concerts. "Mr. Godfrey's new waltz, 'Mabel,' promises to rival in popularity the 'Guards' Waltz' by the same composer. The melody of 'A waltz which has to rival, if not to excel, the celebrated 'Guards' Waltz' in popularity."—Daily Telegraph, Aug. 8. Price 3s. Beautifully illustrated. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 3s.; Brass Band, 4s. 6d.; Military Band, 4s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

Just published,

MABEL. A Song, written by Henry Farnie, adapted to the melody of "The Mabel Waltz," by D. GODFREY. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU A L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," performed every evening at Mollenx's Concerts, Royal Italian Opera, Agostini, Harmonists, at Cremorne, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU A L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," performed every evening at Mollenx's Concerts, Royal Italian Opera, may be had for the Pianoforte. By W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. James's Hall, Piccadilly, Chelsea and Exeter Hall, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WEARIN' O' THE GREEN.—The only Pianoforte Arrangement of Words and Music, a song by Mr. Boucicault in the drama of "Arrah-na-Pogue." Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is just published, containing all the new airs from "Faust," including the Soldiers' Chorus, Valentine's air, "The Queens' Waltz," and numerous other airs, arranged as exercises, with instructions, rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 4s., post-free.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. Brinley Richards's Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BARNEY O'HEA. Lover's well-known Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLORETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Nightly encored Quadrille on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: a collection of opening and concluding voluntaries, short interludes, and organ obbligati compiled, composed, and arranged by JOHN STAINER, Mus. Bac. Oxon., Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral. Each piece is taken from some favourite Operatic pianoforte composition, harmonised and arranged expressly with pedal obbligato. Nos. 1 to 12 are now ready. Price 2s. each. Each number contains a complete piece of music, and may be had in full score, price 12s. each. A thematic list of numbers may be had on application to

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Violin, and Flute. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the Guards' Waltz, by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin and Flute, each 1s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by R. RIMMAULT. Price 3s. each.
No. 1. The Guards' Waltz. | No. 2. The Blunt Quadrille.
No. 3. The Mabel Waltz. | No. 4. The Grenadier Waltz.
No. 5. The Orpheus Galop. | No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE of VOCAL and PIANOFORTE MUSIC, in Sibbing Numbers. Post-free, 1s. 6d., or Three for 3s. 6d.
No. 10 Three Songs (Irish Selection). 1s.
No. 45. Christy Minstrel Songs (Fifth Selection). 1s.
No. 46. Three Songs (Welsh Selection). 1s.
No. 47. Thirteen Christy Minstrel Songs (Sixth Selection). 1s.
No. 48. Twenty Sea-Songs, by Dibdin. 4s. 6d.
No. 49. Twenty-four Songs by Purcell, Arne, &c. Domestic Tea. 1s.
No. 50. Twelve Irish and Scotch Melodies for the Pianoforte. 1s.
No. 51. 100 Secret Melodies, arranged for the Pianoforte. 1s.
No. 52. 100 Popular Melodies, arranged for the Pianoforte. 1s.
No. 53. Twelve Waltzes, arranged for the Pianoforte. 1s.
No. 54. Twelve Quadrilles, arranged for the Pianoforte. 1s.
No. 55. Valses by D'Albert, Jullien, Koenig, &c. 1s.
No. 56. Thirteen Christy Minstrel Songs (Third Selection). 1s.
No. 58. A Fashionable Dance-book for the Pianoforte. 1s.
No. 59. Twelve Sacred Melodies, arranged for the Pianoforte. 1s.
No. 60. Overture and Book of Musical Arts for Pianoforte. 1s.
No. 61. Christy Minstrel Songs (Second Selection). 1s.
No. 62. Twenty-four Songs by Moore, Burns, &c.
No. 63. Favourite Valses. 1s.
No. 64. Beethoven's Sonatas, edited by C. Hallé (No. 1). 1s.
No. 65. Beethoven's Sonatas, edited by C. Hallé (No. 2). 1s.
No. 66. Beethoven's Sonatas, edited by C. Hallé (No. 3). 1s.
No. 67. Beethoven's Sonatas, edited by C. Hallé (No. 4). 1s.
No. 68. Beethoven's Sonatas, edited by C. Hallé (No. 5). 1s.
No. 69. Twelve Sacred Pieces, by Gounod and Lindahl. 1s.
No. 70. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices. 1s.
No. 71. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and Tenor Voices. 1s.
No. 72. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and German Voices. 1s.
No. 73. Twelve Popular Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices. 1s.
No. 74. Twelve Popular Duets, edited by C. Hallé (No. 1). 1s.
No. 75. Six Pianoforte Pieces by Wallace. 1s.
No. 76. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and Barytone. 1s.
No. 77. Fifty Chants (Double E Flat), 8 pages, 4s.
No. 78. Forty Tallies by C. D'Albert, Jullien, Koenig, &c. 1s.
No. 79. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and C. D'Albert, &c., tenor. 1s.
No. 80. Six Songs by Handel. 1s.
No. 81. Twelve Sacred Songs by Popular Composers. 1s.
No. 82. Twelve Sacred Duets, with Italian and English Words. 1s.
No. 83. Ten Songs by Wallace. 1s.
No. 84. Twelve Sacred Duets, by Mr. Norton. 1s.
No. 85. Twelve Sacred Duets, by M. W. Balfe. 1s.
N.B.—All the Songs have a Pianoforte Accompaniment.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA. 3s. On the universal "Hop, Hop! here we are again." The encore success. Universally illustrated. May be had of every music-seller.—London: ADDISON and PARRY, 91, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP. 3s. On the universal "Hop, Hop! here we are again." An enormous success. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere. Invariably illustrated. May be had of every music-seller.

ADDISON and PARRY, 91, Hanover-square.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music is published by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street. The complete Opera may be had, with Italian or French words, price 8s. postage-free. The pianoforte arrangements are by BRINLEY RICHARDS, LINDAHL, OSBORNE, Fernando Pinto, Mori, Jay, Godfrey, Charles Coote, Rimbault, Osborne Cramer, and Rimbault.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

COOTE'S CLARIBEL WALTZ, performed 200 nights, with unprecedented success, at Mr. Mollenx's Concerts. Price 4s.

"Equal to anything of the kind recently produced in a waltz form."—Orchestra. "Composed by Mr. Charles Coote, and founded upon some of the ballads written by the lady known as the musical composer's wife, Claribel, is a waltz which, for the ease with which it flows, is lively, tasteful, and instrumented for the orchestra in the most polished and musicianly style."—The Times, Aug. 30.

BOOSEY and CO., Publishers, and 28, Holles-street.

CUSHA. By DOLORES, Author of "The Brook." A new Song. 3s.—BOOSEY and CO.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS. BOOSEY and CO.'S new Sterling Edition.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER. BOOSEY and CO.'S new Sterling Edition.

WELY'S OFFERTOIRES for the ORGAN. Now ready, in one volume, cloth, price 6s., the Six Books of Wely's Offertoires, complete, published at 9s. and 8s. each.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. New Song. The most beautiful of all Miss Gabriel's compositions. Price 3s. To be had everywhere. Also arranged as a Reverie for Pianoforte, 3s. 6d., and for the Harmonium, 2s.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S CHURCH SERVICES, printed in Score, from new type, on superior paper, price 16 pages each.—

1. JACKSON, in F.
2. JACKSON, in A flat.
3. BOYCE'S CHANT SERVICE.
4. KING, in E.
5. KING, in A.

The "Te Deum" and other canticles, price One Penny each. Response each.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS. BOOSEY'S and CO.'S New Edition of the six books complete, 6s. each.

THE CHORALIST, Part 3, Price 1s., consisting of Original Sacred Songs by Brinley Richards, Macfarren, Otto, Schaffer, and other German composers, all with English and German words. Part 1, price 1s., and Part 2, price 1s., may still be had. Bound, containing the three last four voices, with Organ Accompaniments, 3s. 6d. Also, the Organ Accompaniments to Part 3, price 1s. A catalogue of BOOSEY and CO.'S New Choral Publications (the cheapest now extant) may be had, post-free, from BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S PART-SONG MISCELLANY, Vol. 1, 3s. 6d., bound in cloth, contains Twenty Part-songs, &c., by Macfarren, Goussec, J. L. Hatton, Henry Smart, J. Barnby, Brinley Richards, &c. Vol. 2, price 3s. 6d., consisting of Part-songs, &c., by various composers, by the same. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

TWO PRECEPTORS OF SCHOOLS.—A Catalogue of Music, suitable for teaching purposes, is just published by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street, and will be sent post-free to proprietors of schools, precentors, &c., on receipt of their address.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and Books published at half-price are marked net cash—free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bought works unexpected). HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW AND BEAUTIFUL SONG, I'M AGOING. To Which Applied, Poetry by Mrs. Hemans, Music by Henry Russell. Price 3s. This is one of Henry Russell's most successful compositions. Sung by Miss Poole, Miss Dolby, Miss Lascelles, and Mr. Sims Reeves.

HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

A FIRE-SIDE SENTIMENT.

PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE. Price 3s. This is one of Henry Clifton's best songs. HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE. Price 3s. HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

CHEAPER BOARD OF TRADE SONG.

JOLLY CATS, THERE THEY ARE AGAIN! Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated. HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF

OH, WOULD I WAS A BIRD! The great Christy Song. Price 3s. 6d. (Creating a perfect furore at Christy's Minstrels, St. James's Hall.)

AN EXQUISITE BALLAD.

THE SMILES OF FLEETING FRIENDSHIP, or Song of Sorrow. Price 3s. Dedicated to Mrs. T. Fitzgerald. "Mrs. Fitzgerald has a sweet voice, and sings this song, for sentiment of melody, has not its equal."—Review.

HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

THE CELEBRATED FEDERAL GLORIOUS SONG.

JOHN BROWN'S BODY LIES mouldering in the grave, but his soul goes marching on. Price 3s. 6d. HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

A NEW CHRISTY FAVOURITE.

I'M HAPPY AS THE DAY IS LONG. Price 3s. 6d. Sung with great success by Mr. Harry J. Hamilton.—HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

NORTH'S RECORD.

COME, SING TO ME AGAIN; I have heard sweet music sinking. Price 3s. 6d. "This a gem." HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

JUST OUT.

EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY, by MACCABE. Price 3s. Also the whole of his celebrated Irish Quadrilles.

HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE, 4s., is the favourite of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

THIRTY-TWO SONGS AT HALF-PRICE.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP, 3s. (Eclipse all others.)
HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT MELLON'S CONCERTS.

COOTE'S CAVE LANCERS. Price 4s. Played every night at Mellon's Concerts.
HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP, 3s. Played everywhere.
HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best air of Valses by the popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

WALTZ (YES, SIR) in 'OB THREE O'CLOCK GALOP, By HAGENMEYER. Price 3s. With a famous Chorus.
HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

ANOTHER HIT AT MELLON'S CONCERTS.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP, price 3s., with Definitions of the Game.
HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

A GENUINE SUCCESS.—Vide public Press.

CASTLE GIRM. Comic Opera. Composed by G. A. ALLEN. Now being played with great success at the Royalty Theatre. Vocal score, net price —
The Rose and the Lily (sung by Miss Dolby) ... 3s. 0d.
The gentle joys of wine! ... 3s. 0d.
All I possess is the beauty's your (sung by Mr Honey) ... 3s. 0d.
Ah! I regret my past life (sung by Miss Fanny Holland) ... 3s. 0d.
The Opera complete, for voice and pianoforte, 7s. 6d. net.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE WEARING OF THE GREEN. The original version of this popular Song. Post-free for sixteen stamps. "Sung by Mr. Patrick Carney." Galop, by J. HOWLE. Price 3s. Illustrated. Also, five, for nineteen stamps.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ARRAH-NA-POGUE QUADRILLE, by JULIUS BENEDICT. Price 3s. Arrah-na-Pogue Valse, by the Ullmers, 4s. All Illustrated.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, Great Marlborough-street, W.

TWO NEW SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.
I HOST CHORD. THREE ROSES. Price 3s. each. Post-free half price.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, Great Marlborough-street, W.

JOYOUS LIFE.—An English version of the favourite Song, "Vivre Joyeux," "Boa à rôder," Song by Mr. Santley. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 33, 35, 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE TWO POPULAR COMIC SONGS.
BOTHER THE BILLS! Post-free for 16 stamps.
JULIUS BENEDICT'S Song, Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, Great Marlborough-street, W.

WALTZ OF THE SEASON.—SOLDATEN LIEDER, By JOSEF GUNG'L. Price—Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s. This elegant waltz is now being played by Coote, with immense success, at Covent Garden Theatre. Sent post-free at half price. Also, the new Polka, by Gung'l, Soldaten Lieder Polka, 3s. The new arrangement of the celebrated Saint-Saëns extract.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S Great Comic Song, THE GERMAN BAND. Extremely laughable, and far surpassing "The Comic Serenade." Illustrated. Free for fifteen stamps.—D'ALCORN, 6, Saddison-place, W.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S New Song of CONVICTIONS. Adapted for the drawing-room, and extremely funny. Illustrated. Free for fifteen stamps.
D'ALCORN, 6, Saddison-place, W.

COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. Coote's Quadrilles are the favourites of the day, and played at the nobility's balls. Illustrated. Price 4s.; post-free, half price.
HOPWOOD and CREVE, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW NATIONAL ANTHEM. JOLLY DOGS! with Chorus. Sung by the Great Vance. Encored nightly at the Canterbury Hall. Price 3s. Also, the Great Vance's Comic Song, "Jolly Dogs," Pianoforte Solo, 3s. Duet, 4s.

ANTOINE COURTOIS' CORNETS-A-PISTON, Trombone, Euphoniums, &c., are the most perfect instruments manufactured. Illustrated pamphlets, with Prices, sent free. Also, Sacred Airs, Duets, Trios, Quartets, &c., for Cornet-à-Pistons, 24 Sacred-duets, of whom prior-lists may be obtained.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE GALLERY, 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND BROADWOOD GRANDS, SECONDHAND BROADWOOD COTTAGES. SECONDHAND COLLARD PIANOS. SECONDHAND ERARD GRANDS.

CHAPPELL and CO. SECONDHAND ROOM.—Secondhand Pianofortes by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Kirkman, Chappell, &c., from 30 guineas; secondhand Cottage Pianofortes, from 16 guineas; secondhand Grand Pianofortes, in rosewood cases; secondhand Grand Cottage Pianofortes, in rosewood cases. Secondhand Grand Cottage Pianofortes, in walnut or rosewood cases.

50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 20 guineas; other varieties at 15 and 10 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues and testimonials may be had gratis and post-free.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and two rows of vibrators, in handsome case. This instrument is not to be confounded with other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, ALEXANDRE'S, in handsome cases, at 8 guineas, 10 guineas, and 12 guineas, and a few, nearly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION HARMONIUM, with the Organ Knee-stop, and a great variety of other effects, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 24 guineas; in handsome case, by sixty-guinea maker, 30 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, check action, full compass, and all the latest improvements, in handsome case of trichord and all other varieties at 20 guineas. Lists on application.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the latest improvements, for SALE or HIRE, on the most liberal terms, by first-class and other makers, with names of purchasers at the new Show-rooms of CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO for SALE or HIRE, in handsome Rosewood Cases. A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and all the latest improvements, in handsome Rosewood case, by Schmidt, Berlin, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte of its class, check action and all the latest improvements.

Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 35 and 38 guineas. A Pianoforte of this class, by Schmidt.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the Cottage Pianoforte, Messrs. Chappell and Co. respectfully suggest that they should still be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at 50 guineas, 60 guineas, 70 guineas, and 80 guineas, according to the style of case required. Messrs. Chappell and Co. have especially attended to the necessity where the more exceptional notices are objectionable to many of their friends, and have introduced a new and elegant design, in which every variety of case can be had, at 50 guineas, price 52 guineas; in walnut, 60 guineas.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, of the best manufacture, from 7 to 100 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MINIATURE PIANOFORTE, 17 guineas. At BOOSEY and CO.'S, Holles-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by WHEATSTONE, the best made, with the latest improvements, warranted for ten climates and to keep well in tune, from 3 guineas to 20 guineas each.

BOOSEY and CO., 28, New Bond-street.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and all the RECOMMENDATORY GLASS, 19s. 6d., cost free.—This is the most powerful and useful glass ever made, and is recommended by all the Opera and Field Glass Contractors. "The remembrancer is very good." Bell of Exchange. "Your glass is very good." Sir Morton Peto. "Your glass is very good; I shall recommend it." Sir Francis Crossley, M.P. "Lord Ranelagh 'approves of it.'" Lord Gifford, of Ampney. "Most useful." Sir Duffy Gavan. "It gives me complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good." Major Stanley, of Nyewbury Hall. "Your glass is very good." Lord Ranelagh. "Your glass is very fine." Rodney Bond Small-arms Factory, Enfield. "I have found it effective at the 1000 yards' range." F. H. Fawkes, Esq., of Farnley Hall. "Your glass is very good." Lord Ranelagh. "Your glass is doing so much power for me also with so much distance." The Field. "We have found it fully equal to others which had cost twice the money." Bell's Life. "Your glass is very good, and will now start without fail. It is indispensable amongst us." The celebrated "Rifle" Glass shows bullet-marks at 1200 yards, and sent on 21 days' trial. Price 19s. 6d. All the above, respectively bearing the registered trade marks, "Secure," "Remembrancer," and "Rifle," are sent, carriage-free, on receipt of Post-office order payable to H. LLOYD, 107, 108, 109, Prince-street, Edinburgh.

No agents of any kind anywhere.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.—TOURIST TICKETS at CHEAP FARES, available for One Calendar Month, ISSUED at the MIDLAND BOOKING-OFFICES, KING'S-CROSS, and ST. PANCRAS Stations, London; Derby Station, and Central Station, Birmingham, to Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dumfries, Stirling, Perth, Dundee, Aberdeen, Inverness, &c.
IRELAND—Belfast, Portrush, for Giant's Causeway, LAKE DISTRICT—Windermere, Furness Abbey, Ulverston, Coniston, Keswick, Grasmere, Ambleside, Lancaster.
HARROGATE and SCARBOROUGH, Ilkley, Whitby, Filey, Bridlington, Harlow, Knaresboro', Skipton, Wharfedale, Ripon, Richmond, Malton, Bentley, Wakefield, Barnsley, &c.
Programmes of the Tourist Tickets may be obtained at all the Midland Stations, and at the Midland Railway Receiving Offices, Regent-street, Cornhill, and 191, Piccadilly.
CHARLES ALEXANDER, General Manager.

ISLE OF MAN.
ROYAL HOTEL, DOUGLAS, on the Pier. Board and Lodging, 10s. per day. Attendance, Hotbaths, Hot and Cold Baths and Shower Baths.

CIVIL ENGINEERING. — PUPIL WANTED.—A Civil Engineer, in Westminster, desires to meet with a Pupil. Premium required, 100 guineas.—Address, ASPE, 82, Sidney-st., Pentonville, Upper-road, Islington, N.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 in case of death, or £6 per week while laid up by injury. Apply, or send for a prospectus, at once, to the Secretary of the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, 64, Cornhill; 3, Old Broad-street; and 10, Regent-street, W. J. VIAN, Secretary.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of GODDARD'S LEVER WATCHES, with Gold Dial, Chain, &c., complete, £5 5s. Sent free to any part of the United Kingdom. Every Watch warranted. Goddard's Illustrated Watch and Clock Guide, 1865, free by post for one stamp.
A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 3, Regent-street, Haymarket-square, W.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly (corner of Sackville-street). Elegant Dressing-bags, Bonbon Baskets, a large variety of useful and elegant travelling requisites for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and WRITING-CASES, suitable to remain in counters, of Polished Morocco, Despatch-pocketed Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, and Reticules, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and DRESSING-BAGS, with every fitting of Gold fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Writing-desks, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in every variety, and unique morocco and russia bindings; also in crystal, enamel, and ivory, with the new Patent Metallic Backs, which prevent the cards falling out. HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and J. S. HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of Classic and Mediæval Correctness, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, W. Steel Dies and Illuminating Apparatus.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards, Dies, Crests, Monograms, Arms, Address Plates, Seals, Rings, Presses, and with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

TRAVELLING and DRESSING BAGS of all sorts.

WAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S TRAVELLING and DRESSING BAGS and CASES, fitted with their unrivalled articles, are recommended for their completeness and their moderate prices.
Dressing and Travelling | Finest | Second | Morocco | Wife
Bags | Ivory | Quality | Leather | Leather
Lady's Travelling Bag ... £1 16 0 | £3 10 0 | £3 15 0 | £3 4 0
Materials ... ... 2 2 0 | 3 0 0 | 3 10 0 | 2 10 0
Gentleman's Travelling Bag ... 2 0 0 | 3 0 0 | 3 10 0 | 2 10 0
Fitted Dressing-Case ... ... 3 0 0 | 4 0 0 | 4 10 0 | 3 0 0
Ditto, with Writing Compartment ... ... 4 5 0 | 4 5 0 | 5 5 0
Dressing-Case ... ... 4 10 0 | 7 10 0 | 9 5 0
Superior Oxford Travelling-bag, fitted with Dressing-case complete 12 12 0
The prices of Dressing-cases subjoined are regulated by quality and contents.
Lady's Wood Dressing Case ... £1 1 0 | £1 10 0 | £2 0 0 | £2 10 0
Ditto, Rosewood, fitting Leather dittoes ... 2 0 0 | 2 14 0 | 3 5 0 | 3 10 0
Ditto, Solid Rosewood, fitted ... ... 3 15 0 | 5 5 0 | 6 0 0 | 7 0 0
Address only for Travelling-bags, Dressing-cases, Writing-desks, Portfolios, Envelope Cases, Inkstands, Blotting Books, Albums, Cards, Cornhill, London. Manufactory—the Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

NEW and SECONDHAND FURNITURE. R. BAKER and SON, and CO., 101, Tottenham-court-road, WHOLESALE and RETAIL CABINET FURNISHERS, Upholsterers, Decorators, Bedding Manufacturers, and Carpet Warehousemen. Tottenham-court-road. W. Assistance, Auctioneer, Furnisher, Valuer, and Estate Agent. Tottenham-court-road. W. Curtains, Carpets, and Bedding. Tottenham-court-road. W.

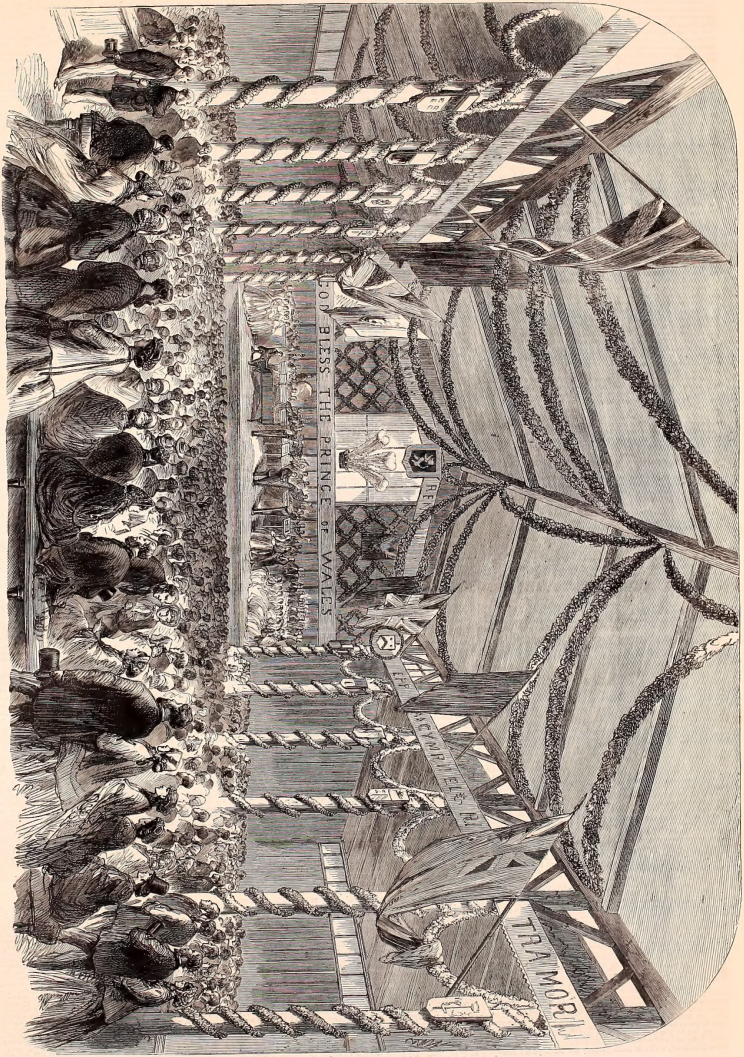
CURTAINS, CARPETS, and HIGH-CLASS FURNITURE.—GEORGE BLACK, having extensively increased his premises, is enabled to display a more complete stock of goods, which will be found to comprise all that is suitable for the Furnishing of Houses, Mansions, Chambers, Offices, &c., at the lowest possible prices. Illustrations free to all parts of the kingdom.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requiring no washing; all fast colours.—The Queen's Furnishing Warehouse, 42, Oxford-street, W. Patterns sent free. Also the most extensive and most economical stock ever produced. Patterns sent post-free. Also Cretonne Chintz, requiring no washing; all fast colours, direct from the French Looms.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, West Strand, and 1, Garrick-street, Covent-garden, London.

GARDNERS' LAMPS and CHANDELIERS, Moderator and Paraffin Table Lamps.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, West Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), S.W.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, and Bronze.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, West Strand, Charing-cross. Every article marked with plain figures.



R. BAKER and SON, Tottenham-court-road, W.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, W., and 59, Jermyn-street, Liverpool.—ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, for Family Use and Manufacturing purposes. Prospectuses and Samples of Work may be obtained, and Machines purchased on the easiest system of Monthly Payments, at the above addresses, or of any of the Company's Agents in the United Kingdom. The handiest thread for Sewing-machines is GROVER and BAKER'S Prize Medal Cotton, which is sold on reels containing 100 yards each, and put up in boxes of assorted sizes and numbers, for Hand and Machine use.

GROVER and BAKER, 150, Regent-street, and 59, Jermyn-street, Liverpool.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic Cocoa, a delicious beverage, prepared from the finest Cocoa, by a process which, while it retains all the most beneficial properties of the nut, removes the excess of oil, which renders the ordinary preparations of cocoa so indigestible. This process, which was discovered by the late eminent chemist, Mr. Thomas Hardy, of Bristol, has been carefully followed by the present manufacturers, and is indeed, in the year 1865, in turn his attention to this subject, and has succeeded in producing a beverage which, in addition to the above facts, is highly nutritious, and is strongly recommended by the medical profession as a most valuable article of diet for invalids and children. Sold in packets and tins, by grocers, &c. Manufactured by the Homœopathic Cocoa Company, 113, Piccadilly, 16, Threadneedle-street, and Manchester, Burton-road.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, No. 198 Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE E. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1865.

THE WELSH NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD AT ABERGAVENNY.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE WELSH NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD AT ABERYSTWYTH.

THE annual congress of the students and amateurs of Welsh antiquities and literature was held, on Tuesday week and three following days, at the pleasant seaside town of Aberystwith, which has lately been made so conveniently accessible by the opening of the Great Cambrian Railway. There was a great concourse of visitors, not only from all parts of Wales, but from every town in the kingdom where Welshmen reside. Prince Lucien Bonaparte, who, as an enthusiastic philologist, takes much interest in the preservation of the Cymric race, was early prevented from attending the meeting, which kept him at Torquay. In his absence, the chair was taken by the Lord Lieutenant of Cardiganshire, Colonel Pryse, M.P. The ordinary meetings, in the spacious and elegant pavilion, erected by Mr. J. Rhydwen Jones, of Rhyl, in the Queen's road, adjoining the Queen's Hotel, were duly decorated by a committee of the ladies of Aberystwith, with the assistance of Mr. Griffiths, Bookseller, of Aberystwith, under the view of the interior, which several thousand ladies and gentlemen were not enough to fill.

The opening address, on the first day, was spoken by the vice-president, Mr. J. Griffiths, Bookseller, of Aberystwith, and the bard, Clwydfardd, had made solemn proclamation of the Gorsedd, "In the face of the sun, the eye of light; the truth against the world." A national song, by Owain Alaw, and a poem, recited by Alfred Bailey, having been heard with applause, the Rev. W. Roberts (Nefydd), who had been appointed, with the Rev. O. Jones, of Beaumaris, to adjudge the prize for the best essay on the antiquities and legends of Caernarvonshire, announced their decision in favour of Mr. Benjamin Williams, schoolmaster, of Penceder. The Rev. W. Caledfryn Williams, as judge of the best Welsh poem on "Cambria," divided the prize into three parts, between Mr. Griffiths, of Carnarvon, Mr. D. Rowlands, and another. The prize for a Welsh air composed since Castle was given to Mr. D. Harris, of Carmarthenshire. Prizes for musical compositions and performances on the harp were next bestowed. Mr. Lewis Williams being declared the best performer on the triple harp. Several choirs then competed in singing pieces of vocal music. The great prize of £100 for the best essay, "Is the Welsh, French, or German, on "The Origin of the English Nation," was not awarded, although Prince Lucien Bonaparte, Mr. T. Stephens (Gwrgant), and the Rev. W. Basil Jones, of University College, Oxford, being of opinion that the merits of the essays sent in entitled them to some state of linguistic science. Of this prize Mr. Johnes contributes £50 and the remainder the other half. Each of the unsuccessful competitors besides receiving a gift of money, was invested, by the hands of one or other of the ladies present, with a medal of the Eisteddfod. In the evening there was a grand concert, in which Professor Brinley Richards, of London; Mr. Ellis Roberts, Mr. Edwin Chatterton, and Mr. Thomas, harpists; Miss Edith Wynne, Mrs. Thomas, and Mr. J. L. Thomas, and other vocalists, with a chorus of 300 voices, under the conduct of Mr. Edward Jones, Bardd Alaw, of Bangor, performed a combination of musical talent. Mr. Thomas, a composer of Welsh national music, had come from America, with his wife, a Welsh lady resident there, on purpose for this Eisteddfod.

The second day was even more successful. The social science section met in the Townhall, to read essays and discuss various questions concerning the history and present condition of the Welsh people. A learned dissertation on the origin of the Welsh language, and its place in universal history, was also contributed by the Rev. Warlow Harry, of Mold. This essay, upon "The Welsh Schools in Wales and Britanny," by Dr. Nicholas, of London, was no less commended. The proceedings in the Pavilion, on Wednesday, were a continuation of those of the previous day. Poetical addresses were recited, and songs composed for the occasion, in various Welsh metres, by versification and musical structure, were sung by various performers. The prize for the best song, on the subject of "Cambria Deffroedd," was given to Miss Sarah Jane Rees, of Pencarreg, Carmarthenshire; that for the best ode to David to Llew Llwyfo, of Merthyr. Several songs on the Cambrian and Silurian rocks of South Wales to Mr. J. R. Thomas, Aberdare. A medical scholarship of £10 10s., for the most promising vocalist, to Miss Edmonds; the best essay on the Industrial Classes of Wales, to Mr. Griffith, Bangor. The meeting was addressed by Colonel Pryse, Rev. J. Griffith, and Mr. Lewis, Mayor of Lerpool. The Industrial Exhibition, opened in the Temperance Hall, attracted many visitors on this day. A secret concert took place in the evening.

The third day (Thursday) began with the adjourned meeting of the social science section, where Mr. C. W. Vaughan, representative of the London Welsh Club Union, read a paper of Welsh statistics, while the Rev. Chancellor Williams contributed an essay on the Welsh language; and Mr. Hugh Owen propounded his plans for the establishment of a set of day schools, to enhance popular education throughout Wales. The Eisteddfod this day was presided over by Sir Thomas Lloyd, M.P. The proceedings consisted chiefly of various musical entertainments and trials of skill; partly of the competitions which gave the assembly a long list of prizes to the exhibitors and others. Three essays on the selection and breeding of sheep for Welsh hills, and several other prescribed compositions, had been sent in by various authors. Mr. Pemlico Edwards obtained the prize for the best essay on "Eben Vardd." The whole management of this Eisteddfod does much credit to the committee, and to Mr. Prydderch Williams, their general secretary.

THE FARM.

THE previous consignment of large lots to salesmen, and their disappointment when regular farmer customers, whose figures had ceasing to the tryst, combined with abundance of keep in the hill districts, account for the show of sheep at Falkirk being much less than last year. The drend of the cattle plague furnished a very good reason for the great falling-off in cattle on the market-day; but, on the third or by day, a strong Irish contingent flocked in, and found room to buy them. The cattle plague has been the cause of such a whitewashing and cleaning of premises that sheddings or byres never been known before. In some places the cattle are washed over with a solution of chlorine of lime, and the fences tarred to keep off the flies, which are supposed by some herdowners to carry the infection from farm to farm. In the Stirlingshire district upwards of 4000 cattle were registered in one forenoon. "Kill and bury" is the order of the day; and, as a rule, there is no doubt that, in some instances, beasts have been hastily condemned. Miss Burdett-Coutts mentions a fact worth noting, that the cattle in the first refused the milk of the only cow in her herd which survived, and sickened while they were relented. It is evident that insect life was never so rife before, except in the year of the cholera; and there seems little reason to believe the average of the last fifty summers. The Worcester and the Hereford October shows have been fixed on for this year, and wherever shows have been held the entry has been short. The Caledonian did not exist last year. Shrewsbury, the Warwickshire Meeting, at Stratford-on-Avon, and therefore he interneddled not in the contest between Hereford and Worcester, but the Earl of Aylesford's prize, which was also won last year by Mr. Baldwin. Tewkesbury was not the only Worcestershire meeting that was down upon his luck, as the best aged Cotswold ram at that meeting, as well as the best shearling of the Oxford Downs (West of England) Meetings, was beaten by one of Mr. Read's.

Mr. Stewart has had a good deal of experience in the red West Highland crost; and a cow and an incall Devon heifer each brought 60 gs. at Mr. Stewart's sale. Mr. Robertson's cobs will be sold at Bristol, on Wednesday, Oct. 4. This year, twenty of them are bays, with black points, by the sire Bay Tom, but always of a good harvest in the West. Mr. Heydon, of Moodlaw, has had a crop of nearly 12 qr. for his 19 Chevior ratus on Thursday. The company was very large, and Mr. Archibald Hastie presided. Mr. Lefevre, of Jacobsom by Old Hornie. General Lee by Garwald Hornie, and the winner of four premiums, was held in still greater honour, and made £155 to Mr. Pendeleith of Moorfoot's bid; while the celebrated Border breeder, Mr. Oliver of Hindhope, could not resist the two-premium Andrew, by Old Hornie, at £121. The sale, which was, as usual, conducted by Mr. Oliver of Hawkie, occupied four hours. Scarcely a thousand rams, a very great falling-off from last year, were shown at Beattock fair next day, but the prices were from a fourth to one third higher than they were last year. Mr. Heydon and his son won all the head prizes for Cheviot and blackfaced sheep, and four seconds out of six as well. Shearling Cheviots, by any examples, are never much fancied; and Mr. Heydon's twenty-six only averaged £6 18s. 5d., while his sixty three-shears averaged £10 15s. 8d., and his sixty-four two-shears £14 18s. 8d. At Kelso, Messrs. Torrance, Chisholm, Bell of Linton, Purves, and Stark, carried off the Border Leicester prizes on the day before the ram sales; and Mr. Elliot of Hindhope, and Mr. Shortreed of Attonburn, those for Cheviots.

The great Shrewsbury sales of "Shrops" have prospered. Mr. P. W. Bowen and Mr. D. B. Davis (of Old Mere Hall) each made 30 gs. for a ram, and some small averages were as high as 18 gs. The proof of this breed in Ireland may be partly well proved at Mr. C.W. Hamilton's sale, where thirty-three rams averaged £10 10s., and one hundred and twenty-five Mr. Rigden's Southdown sale some of the best rams were sold to "Shrop" breeders. The Shropshire system of sheep may choose to ignore it, have always been obliged, as the late Jesse Jones, Esq., of Bronwylfa, and the late Mr. Minton, of Plowden, Lincoln, the Bicarthorpe rams were not nearly so large a lot as usual, and the character of the great house was quite up to it, and therefore, with a pick so much more intimate, Mr. Bowen's average was £10 10s., and Mr. Davis's £10 1s. 6d., against £10 1s. At Peterborough Fair Mr. C. Clarke of Ashby-de-la-Laund had the best pen, and, generally, they are at all fairs. Mr. Read had the top prize.

Oxford downs have found a good market this season, although hardly so much as in the previous year, but the Oxford ram market. Of these not a few had an immense amount of wool, and others had a very fine clotten's eye," and some farmers had to pay a handsome premium for them. Mr. Hobbs's shearlings had their fleeces cut on end in self defence, or he told that their sheep are for less than their neighbours' wool. The price of Oxford downs has also risen in extending rapidly, and among the ram sales of the season Mr. Howard of Bicknacre's fifty-seven averaged £9 10s.

Mr. Mechi has concluded a very abundant harvest, as far as he is concerned, and calculates that (principally white) at not far short of seven quarters to the acre, which he considers will do, even at moderate prices, leave a handsome profit. Many parts of the kingdom (the worst in wet seasons), the wheat crop was good; but the Midland counties suffered by the gales, and the barley was a good deal damaged. and Bass and Allcopp must be looking out for malt. Oats were a good crop, and roots and cabbages very heavy. There are on the farm of 170 acres, landlord's measure, 230 sheep and 56 cattle, young and old.

FINE ARTS.

"MARMOR HOMERICUM."

SINCE our description of the beautiful and enchanting employed for mural decoration by Baron H. de Triqueti, a large tablet by that sculptor, called "Marmor Homericum," the gift of Mr. Grote, has been placed in the South Kensington Museum. We refer to it for one particular consideration that we have hitherto had space to afford it.

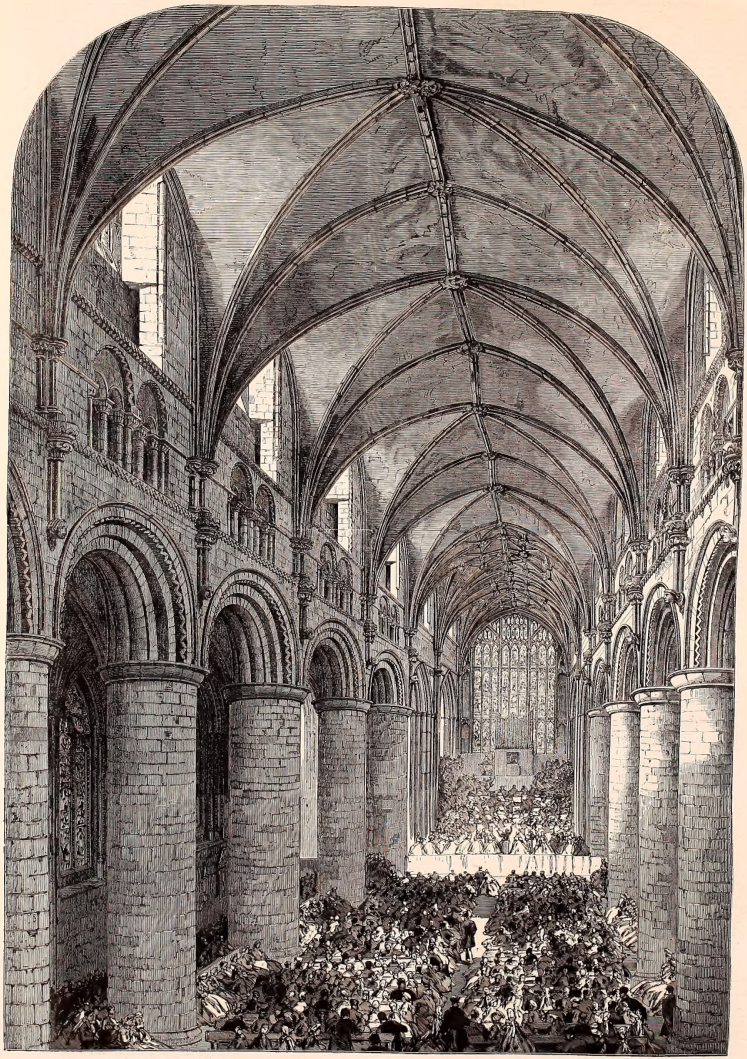
The principal figure is that of Homer, blind and enfeebled, with a bush of laurel and myrtle, singing, to the accompaniment of his lyre, the words of admonition to the Greek people, consisting of maidens attached to the Temple of Apollo, two or three of whom listen to the bard, while others are in the distance of the temple, which is seen in the background; and a warrior Achilles, with shield and helmet, stands in a shaggy cave, and shakes with his discus. Other subjects, on a much smaller scale, serve as friezes, namely, the quarrel of Agamemnon and Achilles, the supplication of Priam to Achilles, the funeral pyre of Hector, and Calypso, the destruction of the suitors by Ulysses, two female figures representing Penelope and Minerva, Iliad and Odyssey, and, in the corners, medallion bas-reliefs of the heads of Venus and Minerva, and Ulysses, Achilles, Priam and Hector.

These designs, excepting, of course, the bas-reliefs, are rendered by shays of coloured marbles, and by incrustations of glass. The large composition, by incrustation of large spaces with brown and coloured marbles, and by the use of glass for the flesh-painting, by incised lines filled in with red (in the flesh), black, and various colours, and by the use of gold for the hair and accessories, and also by processes hitherto unknown," this is nothing more than an extension of the principle of "mosaico chiaroscuro," employed for pavements in Italy. The original "mosaico chiaroscuro," as described by Becafumi, in the cathedral of Siena, has been little employed for pavements, because it fails to produce the effect of light and relief by using only the colours of the marbles, which are, of necessity, flat. The juxtaposition of the marbles, and the glass, in the sculptor's effects in the same medium, and the mixture of diversecoloured marbles, in the same composition, has been greater than Early Greek art. It reminds us of the artist who, failing to make a Venus beautiful, covered the whole of N. Zealand with pigment, using always of a work of fine, not merely decorative, art, we would say, if you wished, anything to do the sculptor, of colour, and the greatest of best he can give you. Nor does the in general merely ornamental characterof the incrustations of marbles and glass, which, in the Greek, is some feeling of grace, but it inclines to the flimsy, affected, and meretricious. It fails to produce the impression of the grand art of Phidias breadth and grandeur, and that—as we might also expect in Homeric subjects—the simple sublimity of the archaic character of the Æginetan marbles there has been great and tettering figures, and stiff, mannered, limp draperies, with a superabundance of folds, and a general want of composition of mass always preserved in antique marbles, however small and numerous the individual figures may be—we have a slim dandy for a warrior, there is his discobolus unsteady on his legs, and round an almost impassive Homer are ranged a number of nondescripts. The whole effect is composed in picturesque attitudes of listening interest or grief, but there is little in the individual figures to command attention as a genuine dramatic conception. Because the subject is classical it does not necessarily follow that the style of the work is classical, and the incrustation of this tablet are the more apparent from its unfortunate proximity to the sculptures that must be the contemporaries of the new materials, renders the bisection of the whole composition near the centre by a dark perpendicular line unfortunate. It is to the Elgin sculptures of the human figure here displayed that attention should be more particularly directed. We must, then, therefore, be sorry to be driven to say in regard to the artist's proposed design of the Transfiguration for St. Paul's—that, whatever M. Triqueti's merits or demerits as a sculptor, it is quite certain that an ordinary academy student could draw "the figure" on a flat surface better than we can here. The defects of a design in outline on a rather larger scale than usual, and helped with colour in novel materials, will not be at once detected by the unpractised eye. Upon examination, however, a score of palpable anatomical inaccuracies, or feeble, ill-understood passages, will be easily detected—dislocated shoulders, distorted ankles, disproportion of various kinds, no distinction between the lines of tendon or muscle, and a want of knowledge most apparent precisely where most essentially required. We regret to have to record so adverse an estimate of a votive work, and one on which much time has doubtless been expended; but we are the more bound to do so from the fact that it is proposed to commission M. Triqueti to decorate the lower walls of the Prince Consort Memorial Chapel at Windsor with pictorial subjects in these marble and enamel inlays. For that attention scarcely anything could be so inappropriate. Not only is this marble tunic (as we may call it) unfitted for pictorial subjects and not only is M. Triqueti deficient in the particular training or faculty which would bring out the full capabilities, but a sombre, rigid, stark effect would be wholly discordant with the warm, playful gleam and mellow splendour of the mosaics with which the vaulted roof is to be covered. We would say, in conclusion, that, as a wall-decoration, the style of ornamentation adopted in the marble tunics—consisting as it does of true architectural materials—ought to be very advisedly and tastefully introduced in halls, corridors, cloisters, conservatories, drinking-fountains, monuments, staircases, and similar localities.

Mr. Marshall Wood has been chosen to execute the memorial statue to Cobden for Manchester; and the same sculptor is also commissioned to prepare busts of Mr. Bright and Mr. Gibson.

Gerania glass is now being substituted for the present stained glass in the windows above the wall-paintings, by Messrs. Clayton and Bell, in the corridors of the Westminster Palace. A similar alteration—or, what would be still better, the admission of light from the ceiling or from higher apertures (as we are informed, intended to be recommended by the late Prince Consort)—is also needed in the Royal gallery of the same palace, in order that Mr. Maclise's great paintings may be fairly seen. A plan suggested to us by Mr. Herbert is the most equal lighting of his fine picture in the Peers' Robing-room with, we are informed, the Queen's approval. Advantage is being taken of the recess to photograph this picture; it is hoped that engravings from it before pictures for the room will be executed by Mr. Herbert at his own private studio, Kensington Gardens, which, we presume, is more advanced than the rest, and it is the one to be finished first. The decorative painting of the principal compartments of the House of Lords will now be the worst-lighted portion of the Palace of Westminster. We fully agree with the opinion expressed by Dr. Waagen, that it would be much preferable to the Queen's throne in the Lords also and the best tasteful Gothic design in a light tone. Not only can the pictures be scarcely seen, but, as Mr. Ingleby observed, the Queen's throne is the decorative art of glass-painting look but rude and gaudy when seen in juxtaposition with extremely higher artistic productions of the fresco-painting. The "inconvenience" which the Fine-Art Commissioners complained that their Royal Master, Her Majesty by the long delay in the execution of the frescoes in the Houses of Parliament, would be perpetuated by Mr. Crace and the decorative painters under his direction—to say nothing of the continued exclusion of the public from a chamber containing, in the opinion of the most competent judges, some of the greatest and best examples of monumental art executed in modern times. It is now about a year and a half since Mr. Dyce first began his operations in the chamber is very far from complete. A decorative artist who, we believe, has executed some of the figures in the cryptic, has received one of the series of small half-length portraits of the English kings and queens intended for the Royal Gallery, representing the present Queen; but its effect has been found out of harmony with the frescoes around it, and, therefore, it will be cancelled. It would be far better to introduce heraldic or other appropriate decoration in the way of fine art that would be obviously unworthy of comparison with the very choice works by Dyce.

To our account, last week, of the sculptures Mr. Foley has in hand, we omitted to mention that the principal commission which the late artist is also intrusted—namely, a statue of the late Lord Canning for the Government House at Calcutta. The grand seat that of Earl Ross, George Canning; an equestrian group of the same personage for India, as a companion to that of Lawrence; and a statue that is to be Confederate hero, Stonewall Jackson—where to be erected it would be hard to tell.



A few notes on the exhibition of the competitive works for the "grande prix de Rome" at the Ecole des Beaux Arts, which has just taken place at the Ecole des Beaux Arts, Paris, the most important event in the history of imitation at home, and show some of those deficiencies of systematic instruction and educational exemption of its necessity in which we are still to greatly behind our neighbours. The competitive works of the pupils of the French schools of the fine arts takes place annually. The prizes are awarded to the exhibitor of the best work in each of the three branches of the three departments of painting, sculpture, and architecture, which entitles the successful artist, at the expense of the State, to pursue their studies for several years at the French school, established early in the seventeenth century in the Villa Medici. Thence the students sens specimens of their progress back to Paris for the inspection of the jury, and the exhibition takes this formal are thrown open to the public. We may mention that the prize for the present year have been gained by M. Machard for the best picture—subject: "Orpheus Descending to Relieve Pluto and Proserpine;" by M. Barrias for the best sculpture, a bas-relief—subject the "Founding of the City of Bezantium;" and by M. Nogard for the best architectural design—subject an hôtelerie for the bankers of a Swiss lake. Now, let us see how the students of those things in England. In the first place, we have no school established at Rome—beyond all question the most favourable place for prosecuting classic studies. The following are the regulations regarding the "travelling studentships" in painting—that unnoticed branch of which has hitherto enjoyed the maximum of public privilege while performing little more than the minimum of public exhibition, and whose long-accumulating and now enormous funds are so monumentally locked up. Select students are allowed to devolve upon individual Academicians who may be willing to undertake the responsibility, and constantly, by paid teachers and servants, "The Royal Academy," to quote from the "Instructions," will, in times of pestilence, enable a student from among those who have obtained gold medals [three only of which are allotted annually] to pursue his studies on the Continent for the term of —[three years only, according to the passage in the "Instructions"]. He shall be selected from each of the classes, painting, sculpture, and architecture, in rotation." So that a student from any one of the three classes cannot be elected oftener than once in six years, or even longer, if as lately happened in the case of a student elected in a particular year, and during only one year in three as most can two students be "travelling" at the same time. We need not point out the enormous disproportion between the liberality of the Academies in this matter. It is only one or two contributors from abroad we could not, of course, form so extensive an exhibition as that of the Ecole des Beaux Arts. We we think it would be an additional stimulus to exertion, and would tend considerably to the improvement in the subject of art exhibited, if, at least, the works executed for the biennial competition were exhibited together.

Mr. Bright, having been invited to attend a reform meeting at Glasgow, he sent a very characteristic letter. He says:—"I came to Glasgow, I must go to other places. I cannot tear the weight of an immediate declaration as to attending a meeting in Glasgow, as I did in 1858-9; and therefore I feel compelled to shun engagements which I know I should find be made to serve the party interest in the country as I have not at any time; and I believe, and indeed I know, that it is advisable that certain things should be done. Now that Lord Palmerston leaves office, no Ministry will be possible of the Liberal party which will not deal with the question of reform. I am not a member of any party, and therefore in no official title, for he is the only man connected with the Liberal party who has any claim to be its leader. Had Lord Palmerston retired from his life would have passed the fall of 1865, and that sentence be refused to utter. His colleagues pretered their places to their honour as public men, and they connected to the greatest political fraud of our times rather than leave the Treasury bench even for a season. Happily, the question does not depend on the Prime Minister. He has never promised its growth, and he cannot prevent its success. There is at work a steady and a silent force, which will who are not blind may mark, and every day's delay will but add to the certainty and fulness of our triumph. I hope every Liberal constituency will send to Parliament representatives as to more depending to a Liberal member of the House of Commons who is not a supporter of an Administration which repudiates and has betrayed the first and greatest question or cause upon which the whole policy of the Liberal party is founded."!

CURRENT LITERATURE.

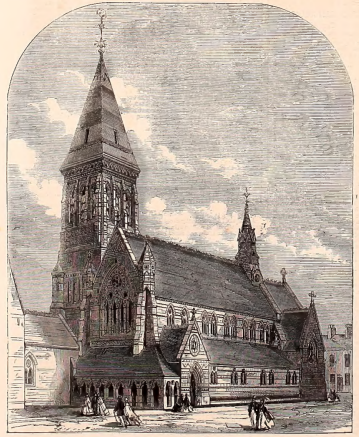
The Story of the Great March. By Brevet Major George Ward Nichols. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) Hamlet calculates, upon certain data connected with his father's death and his mother's second marriage, the probable duration of a great man's fame. According to a similar calculation, therefore, it is just possible that the world still cherishes some faint memory of the astounding exploits of a great man and the termination of a great war; for it is less than six months since London was sent before last time to sleep with Washington, and the heroic Lee and cautious Johnston, with inferior numbers and inferior means, were forced to succumb to the strategy of Grant when and the daring of Sherman. Our newspapers have had the Atlantic telegraph, sensational murders, the cattle plague, international fêtes at Portsmouth and Cherbourg, the romantic tale of the bridegroom frozen, and the less interesting topics of Fenians and Reform to fill their news from America;" but, perhaps, there yet lingers amongst us sufficient interest in the late War of Secession to induce men anxious to read the true story of that wonderful march which is classified in the annals of military matters, which has made the name of Sherman immortal to all time, and which contributed as much as, if not more than, any achievement to crush the Southern Confederacy. The writer of this "Story of the Great March" served upon General Sherman's Staff from the commencement of the "retreat" (as it was then the fashion, in certain quarters, to term it) from Atlanta to the conclusion of the war; and his account should be, and there is no reason to doubt it, trustworthy. It is written in a "popular" style, and is illustrated in a "popular," not to say sensational, manner. It abounds in "slang" of the most vulgar description, and interspersed with all sorts of anecdotes, amusing and saddening. It will very likely disappoint the scientific reader, who would look for a masterly criticism of Sherman's motives for his daring project; of the grounds for hopes of success; of the rules of war violated or confirmed in the conception and execution of the design; and of the precedents for such or similar (if there be any such or more) undertakings; and there will be some who will be disgusted at the writer's style—saying that it is not sufficiently elevated for the subject and deploring that it is not more in keeping with William Napier would have treated the history of a gigantic campaign, but the reviewer will no doubt look in better vein. It is, as we have said in his preface, writes by what seems to be a curious inversion, "to have told their story simply, and, I hope, truthfully." In other words, it does appear that a writer might be more doubtful about his simplicity or expression than his honesty of purpose. That the humorous element is not wanting to the narrative will be seen by a remaining that a "humour" is an unauthorised forager, or, in plainer language, a self-elected plunderer, which is what we should call a marauder, from the following extract (p. 166.):—"During the skirmish in front of Fayetteville, and of our Captain, who was also present, I took, crept, in a citizen's coat, up to a fence, in order to get a better look at the enemy's line. Suddenly he opened fire upon me, and I ducked and barefooted fellow, whom he instantly recognised as one of the 'humours.' The recognition, however, was not mutual, for the 'humour' exulted in the thought that he had caught a Rebel, and proceeded to make him thus—'Look here, you son of a bitch, surveying his extremities; 'I say, come up out o' them boots. You couldn't hide all of it, was the reply; 'they're a fine pair of boots, and they are mine.' . . . 'Come out of 'em, you d—d Rebel, or I'll put a watch about your breeches-pocket; just pull her out. No nonsense, now; I'm in a hurry to get into Fayetteville.' . . . 'Where will you take like a horse?' 'A horse!' (the boomer's eyes sparkled). 'A horse! Well, say, you go come up out o' them boots, and I'll see if I can discover his sense of the word. 'Oh! he is right near by, in charge of my orderly.' 'Orderly! are you the owner of the horse?' 'I thought you was a Reb.' And then the 'humour' turned his rear under arrest, disgusted by such ingratitude. . . . There were many 'humours' in Sherman's army, it is not surprising that the robbed and plundered Southerners should cry out.

The Life of President Andrew Johnson. By C. G. Parsons, M.D. 2 vols. 8vo. A compilation from cyclopædia, annual, newspaper, and all that kind of literature, combined with a few original (but not always authentic) remarks on "private American sources." The whole amounts to not much more than we have already read in the "Times;" in other words, is that Andrew Johnson was born of very humble parentage at Raleigh, North Carolina, on the 29th December, 1808; that (a few minnous character) from

THE GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL: THE NAVE OF THE CATHEDRAL, LOOKING WEST.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

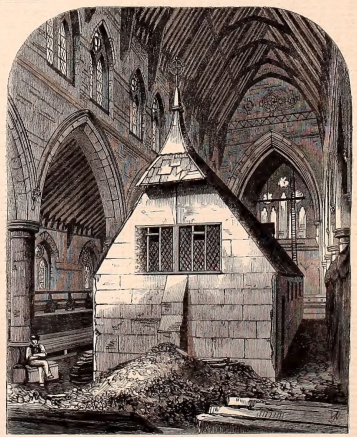
THE GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL: THE CLERESTORY, GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL.

SOUTH PORCH, GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL.



ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE GLOUCESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

THE proceedings at the 142nd Festival of the Three Choirs of Gloucester, Worcester, and Hereford, which took place at Gloucester from Tuesday, the 5th, to Friday, the 8th inst., were sufficiently described in our last. The sacred music was performed each day in the cathedral; the evening concerts of secular music, ending with a ball, were of course relegated to the Shirehall. It is from the cathedral performances that we have chosen the subjects for the Illustrations we have engraved this week. One is an exterior view, showing the South Porch of that venerable edifice, with the crowd which daily assembled in front of it, keeping, however, a portion of the thoroughfare open for the entrance and departure of the company. This porch—a very fine specimen of English Perpendicular architecture—was built about the year 1420, by Abbot Morwent, to whose work belongs also that portion of the nave, looking westward, shown in another of our present Illustrations. The porch has an upper chamber, and side windows of peculiar tracery, the mullions of which continue the arrangement of the panelling of the walls; it is supported by buttresses at the angles, and surmounted with pinnacles rising from an open parapet, the whole enriched with niches and canopies; the arms of England, France, and Gloucester Abbey sculptured in the spandrils of the doorway.



The nave, of which our Artist has furnished a View, with the audience or congregation which thronged its benches on the days of the musical festival, is materially different from those of most other Norman cathedrals in England; the lofty and massive piers being carried so high as to leave the triforium a comparatively small space, instead of its being, as at Norwich, Ely, and Peterborough, nearly equal in dimensions to the nave-arcade below.

The large window at the west end was erected, at the expense of the Rev. Canon T. M. Brown, as a memorial of the late Bishop Monk. The design represents various incidents of Old and New Testament history; it is the work of Mr. Wailes. We may take this opportunity of stating that five additional stained windows have just been placed in the nave of Gloucester Cathedral. A sixth is now being prepared by Clayton and Bell, and when this is fixed, of all the many windows of the nave there will remain only one that has not been furnished with stained glass. The artists whose studios are represented are Clayton and Bell, Hardman, Wailes, Ward, and Hughes, Preedy, Warrington, and Bell, of Bristol. The four new windows are intended, respectively, as memorials of the late Mr. J. Elliott, solicitor, Mrs. Price, and the relatives of the Rev. Sir Lionel Darrell; but two of the windows are restorations, by Mr. Hardman, for which the public are indebted to the Dean and Chapter, while the taste and liberality which have led to the erection of the memorials have, to a great extent, been initiated and stimulated by Mr. W. V. Ellis, who, though himself not a member of the Established Church, devotes unceasing trouble and much time and money to the decoration of this cathedral.

The clerestory, in which a number of ladies and gentlemen found

THE NEW CHURCH OF ST. MICHAEL AND ALL ANGELS, SHOREDITCH.

TEMPORARY CHURCH WITHIN ST. MICHAEL'S—SEE NEXT PAGE.

tolerable accommodation during the musical performances, is shown in a separate engraving. The part of the edifice was constructed in the first half of the thirteenth century, the monks themselves, as we learn from an ancient chronicle, having laboured at it with their own hands. What these pious builders would have thought of the consecration of Mendelssohn and Spohr, or the execution of Mdme. Titiens and Miss Louisa Pyne, it were too curious to inquire.

THE NEW CHURCH OF ST. MICHAEL AND ALL ANGELS, SHOREDITCH.

IT may be remembered that at the consecration of this church, in March-street, Paul-street, on the 24th of June last, we took the occasion to correct some particulars in the censure of the assembled clergy and the decorations of the sacred building which formed the staple of comment upon his Lordship's proceedings was published in the ecclesiastical journals. We are not disposed to insist upon to express any opinion about this matter, and have merely to present two full-page woodcuts of the new edifice: the one representing its finished exterior, the other giving a view of the interior as it appeared a few months ago, while the work of its construction was going on over the temporary building in which the services of the Church had been performed on during the last two years. We believe the only known precedent for this peculiar expedient of placing the temporary church in the midst of the rising walls of the intended permanent edifice is to be found in the history of the building of York Minster. Architecturally, it is perhaps one of the finest churches lately built in London, being large enough to accommodate 1000 worshippers, and having gallories, though only seated at present for 750. The total internal length is 150 ft. The nave has a height of 70 ft., open to the ridge, and a breadth of 47 ft., 9 in., including the two aisles of 10 ft. each. The chancel is 26 ft. 3 in. wide, and has a lean-to aisle, and large sacristies on the north, and an organ transept on the south. The materials used are brick and stone inside and out, and the edifice are highly creditable for their workmanship and finish. The most remarkable features externally are, first, the west front, with the brick and stone window and tower above it, which has been designed to have a covered way or cloister, forming the eastern side of a quadrangle, of which the parsonage will form the north side and the school buildings the western, and an arcade or railing the side next the road; next, the south porch, which will be approached through then the bell-cot, which is built on the chancel arch, and is visible from several distant points of view, especially in the line of Clifton-street; and, lastly, the apse, constructed of brick and stone, with coloured tiles inlaid, of high up in the wall, and of rather unusual height externally, especially for showing off stained glass. Internally, the fittings have mostly been left unfinished, a memorial window having been put in by Clayton and Bell. The reredos is divided into five divisions, the centre one to have the Crucifixion under the principal, with St. Mary on the right of our Lord, and St. John on his left, the carving to be in white alabaster, with a gold and coloured mosaic background. On the north side of the centre is to be St. Gabriel and Angels and St. Michael and Angels in adoration. The first division of the reredos will contain the Annunciation, and the fifth division the Resurrection, the figures of all the subjects to be in alabaster and to have coloured mosaic backgrounds. The reredos and font are by Mr. Thomas Earp, and the choir fittings by Mr. Alfred Robinson, of Holborn; and gas and metalwork by Messrs. Hart and Jackson. The architect is Mr. James Brooks, of Serle-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

M. R. Luther, the director of the observatory at Bilk, near Düsseldorf, has discovered the asteroid of a new minor planet, of the tenth magnitude, and the eighty-fourth of the series.

We learn, from the Count Castracane, at Rome, has employed a monochromatic light for the microscopic investigation of the blood, and by experiments on the greenish blue is the tint most favourable for observing extremely delicate organisms, and that the presence of the protoplasm in the blood is required is of more importance than white light is employed.

M. Jules Gindre reports, in Les Mondes, that he has prepared and patented a new manure—a combination of potash and feldspar—which is to be obtained in all cultures, especially for those of the vine, and which gives much more effect near Bordeaux.

M. Fayre, at a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences at Paris, read a note on his theory of the spots and faculæ of the sun, which he explains by a combination of descending currents, produced by the cold of the sphere to the interior, and from the interior to the photosphere. He considers that the observations lately made in England and Italy, and by Father Secchi, are in favour of his theory, and that the spectroscope has not yet been applied to determine the temperature of the sun around its axis, in which he compared it with the electric arc and Sperer, and found the sun's temperature to be certainly greater than the arc.

The nature of the invisible photographic image has long been the subject of discussion. The general opinion, that no chemical decomposition takes place, and that neither liberation of iodine nor deposit of silver occurs, and that the change in the iodo-bromized plate in the camera is analogous to that which happens in exposing the sensitive preparation to sunlight. Dr. Vogel, of Berlin, and Major Russel. In the new number of the American Journal of Science and Arts, Professor Cooke, Cary Lea's account of the process, which, he states, is the easiest, and the surest way in favour of the physical theory."

M. Donnet has reported to the Academy of Sciences at Paris the result of his protracted microscopical examination of eggs in a putrefying condition, where the process of bacterising was found to be constantly present. He found no trace of organisms at any stage of the putrefaction.

M. Houzeau has reported to the Academy of Sciences at Paris the results of his observations on the influence of the ozone on the properties of atmospheric air, which are given in the last number of the "Annuaire," in a series of tables which show (for the meteorological station at Rouen) that the chemical activity of the air is greatest between May and June, but diminishes steadily in summer and very much in autumn. It is also greatest in the last days of winter, and lowest in the months of March. The coincidence of the exaltation of chemical activity with the awakening of agricultural life should equally claim the attention of agriculturists.

M. Ampère, in his experiments on electro-dynamics, produced rotating currents by making float on a bath of salt or slightly acidulated water, a piece of zinc, and another of copper, connected by a wire, and terminating in a copper plate, the other in zinc. M. E. Dechenbi has ingeniously applied this principle to the construction of a new kind of pile, which he finds to be full of elements and a small plate of zinc, both fixed in a cork. When this combination, consisting of a small plate of platinum and zinc was cast into the water, it began to rotate. He employed this principle of the bell continue for some weeks, but sparks were drawn from the extremities of the wires. There is no reason to doubt that a machine or apparatus should not be enlarged, and greater effects thus be produced, which might be made available for telegraphic purposes. The idea is a great and instantaneous source of electricity.

M. Fizeau, before the Academy of Sciences a method of avoiding the errors of the compass due to the action of iron, or to electricity supplied in its construction of ships. He proposes to employ no iron next to England and France. In one, suggested by our Astronomer Royal, Professor Airy, the magnetic needle of the iron ship is counteracted and balanced by placing near it powerful magnets, the action of which is calculated to produce upon the needle equal effects but opposite to those of the ship. The other mode, due to M. Fizeau, is based upon the observation of these parasitical actions, and the determination of a law theretofore unknown. It is the construction of a table of corrections applicable to every indication of the compass, according to the direction of the ship's course, and to the magnetic latitude of the place of departure. In the Compass-studio, No. 61, St. 7, will be found details of M. Fayre's method and experiments, which have been recently published in consequence of the publication of the report of the Council of the British Board of Trade and the Royal Society, recently noticed in our columns. The plan consists of a certain modification of the old compass-needle, and not only the velocity but also the direction of its motion and the errors of the compass, and that, in case of shipwreck, would contain information which the calamity was really due to those errors.

M. Fouqué, in a note addressed to the Academy of Sciences at Paris, gives the result of his observations of the periodicity of stormy days in the neighbourhood of the basin of the Seine. He states that waters—represented by December, January, and February—is nearly deprived of electric motion; neutral days absolute; but this season generally begins with a storm about Dec. 2 or 3, followed by another about the 10th. A relay phase is from about Jan. 16, and winter ends on 31 January, with a storm, at the end of February. In March the stormy season of spring begins very moderately, gradually increasing in violence, and in April the electric phase is decidedly pronounced. This increase will about May 12, when one of the most violent storms of the year takes place. The days of storm are distributed in the same manner, and June 9 is, so to speak, as free from electric influence as the majority of the days of winter; but soon after the causes increase, and with them the possibility of storms on the 8th, 15th, and 18th of the month; and June 29 is characterised by the habitual intensity of its electric explosions. July represents a period of quietness when contrasted with June and August; but about the 12th this quietude is generally interrupted by the greatest storms of the year, which is followed by six days of profound calm. The critical dates of autumn are Sept. 1, 9, 21, 30; Oct. 1, followed by the cries of Oct. 7 to 11.

M. Milne-Edwards, in the name of M. Lartet, has laid before the Academy of Sciences at Paris a piece of bony ivory, found by M. Lartet and Dr. Falconer, in the southern strata of Perigord, which probably represents a new species of the long-haired elephant, or mammoth. M. Lartet expresses his conviction that this sketch is the work of a human contemporary of the Perigord troglodytes, and, since great horticultural and carnivorous animals, which geologists consider to have lived during the early part of the last geological period. M. Lartet has likewise found, in a cavern in the province, near the Dordogne, formerly human habitations, of the remains of the reindeer, the wild horse, the mammoth, and likewise of the bear, now existing in the Arctic regions of North America.

A memoir on the "Cause of Colour," has been presented to the Academy of Sciences at Paris by M. Guérin-Ménéville, the celebrated promoter of new varieties of silkworms in France, has contributed to the Academy of Sciences a note on the valuable Tussur, or Tasar silkworm, which is the principal source of the luxury of Indian dresses, and has given rise to the formation of a new Chinese silkworm. He states that M. Rasalz has tested this wood in the manufacture of paper, and has found that the fibre combines the qualities of strength and flexibility, and very little interfere to ask in density, and possesses sufficient body to receive the ink freely, and takes a good polish. The Tussur silkworm, he says, is now happily planted in France, as an ornament to gardens, parks, and forests.

M. Quatrefages, in a memoir on "Molecular Physics," in which he expounds a general theory of molecular forces and molecular movements, based on the labours of Ampère, Faraday, Plateau, Wheatstone, Schönbein, and other eminent philosophers, is continued in the American Journal of Science and Arts. The general theory is based upon the fact that bodies in the three different forms of ordinary or gross matter, an electric ether, and a luminous ether, are composed of one, two, or three kinds of ultimate molecular atoms; and that there are two primary forces—attraction and repulsion. The author then proceeds to the study of molecular physics, and the relation of the various phenomena of electricity and magnetism, and illustrates his views by numerous figures.

The chemistry of Cheese has been elaborately studied by M. Bouchardat, and the results are given in a memoir read to the Academy of Sciences at Paris, and published in the new number of the Annales de Chimie. He begins with new cheese containing all the elements of milk, and proceeds to examine the changes which occur in the pressing, and investigated all the phenomena, including the invasion of the cheese by mites, and the production of ammoniacal salts. In addition to an unctuous condition, the development of the odour and taste due to the formation of volatile acids, and the production of ammonia. The author has also investigated the changes observed by Proust. M. Brasseur's paper will doubtless be welcomed by agriculturists and dairymen. M. Bouchardat's memoir is one of the most important contributions to the chemistry of Agriculture in the Maurities, describing his researches on the juices of the sugar-cane, which contain from 15 to 20 per cent. of sugar, and the extraction—a subject now attracting much attention.

Dr. Church's analyses of some small antique articles of bronze, discovered during the progress of the excavations at Pompeii, are given in the Chemical News. A bronze needle was composed of 84·27 copper; 14·79 zinc, with a little lead and iron. A bronze ring and at fifteen he had mastered most that was then known in every department of abstract science. In 1827, when only seventeen, he won the admiration and friendship of the Rev. Dr. Brinkley, the Astronomer Royal, by a paper on an abstruse mathematical subject, which he presented to him, and which elicited from that eminent professor the remark, "This young man I do not say will be, but is, the first mathematician of his age." Entering college the following year, Mr. Hamilton gained first place at entrance and a Bisharee premium. His college career fulfilled the promise of his early years, and, during the undergraduate course, he carried off the highest prizes the University had to bestow. In 1827 Dr. Brinkley vacated the chair of Astronomy at Dunsink, and was succeeded by Mr. Hamilton, who, at the same time, took his degree of Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts, the latter of which he had not obtained by twenty-third year, competed for and obtained both appointments, there being no opposition to complete the election. Mr. Abney, afterwards Astronomer Royal of England. All the rest of Hamilton's life was devoted to scientific pursuits, and to the production of those works by which he had attained eminence. He was a prominent member of the British Association from its establishment, and contributed to its Reports, besides to those of many other learned societies, numerous papers in various remarkable departments of science, in which he made many original discoveries. The most remarkable of these, and that with which his name will always be associated, is that of Quaternions, a method and calculus full instrument of mathematical research, the power of which is only now beginning to be appreciated. The publication of this discovery in a volume became in course of time a matter of long-standing regret to Sir William Hamilton did not, however, restrict himself to the domain of science: he was also a contributor to general literature, and produced several poetical compositions distinguished for elegance of diction and depth of thought. He was knighted, in 1835, on the occasion of the meeting of the British Association in Dublin, when, as president, he delivered the annual retrospect of the condition of science and literature. In addition to the other honours he obtained, on various occasions, the gold medals of the Royal Dublin Society, the Royal Irish Academy, the Astronomical Society of London, and the Institute of Europeans. At the great scientific meeting of Europeans in Dublin, his name inscribed as an honorary or corresponding member, and his works have been translated into every European language. He was born in Dublin, August 4, 1805, Mary, daughter of the Rev. Henry Bayly, Rector of Newgh. The funeral of the lamented astronomer took place on the 19th inst., when a large number of the members of the University of Dublin and a host of other persons of distinction attended. The interment was in the cemetery of Mount Jerome.

THE REV. ROBERT MOORE, M.A.

This worthy clergyman was the son of the Most Rev. John Moore, D.D., Archbishop of Canterbury, by his wife, Catharine, daughter of Sir Robert Eden, Bart. He was born in 1799, and received his early education at Harrow, graduating B.A. in 1819, and M.A. in 1822. In that year his father presented him with the living of Borden, near Sittingbourne, a beautiful rural parish, and that cautrary he has held for nearly forty years. He was made, in 1844, a Canon of Canterbury Cathedral; but this he resigned in 1852, and retired to his beloved parish. He was an active country parson, a faithful pastor and generous man; and there can be no doubt that he made an excellent and most charitable use of his wealth. He was further cordially esteemed for having always ready to lend a helping hand to members of the theatrical profession; and during the few years he resided in London he was a frequent visitor to the Royal Dramatic College at Maybury. The Rev. Mr. Moore married, in 1830, his first cousin, Dulcibella, daughter of Sir Robert Eden, G.C.H., of Wooslington, Northumberland. He was, at the time of his death, in his eighty-ninth year.

JOHANN FRANZ ENCKE

This celebrated German astronomer, who died recently in Berlin, was born at Hamburg, on Sept. 23, 1791. His father, who was for nine ministers at Gottingen, were interrupted by the war of 1813-14, in which he took an active part, being at one time Lieutenant-Colonel of Cossacks in the service. After the peace he assiduously resumed his pursuits, especially as the observatory of Seeberg, near Gotha, was under his direction. He published his observations of the orbit of the comet of 1609, and of the distance of the earth from the sun, deduced from the transits of Venus in 1761 and 1769. These investigations into the elements of the comet discovered by Pons, in 1818 (now justly termed Encke's), greatly advanced the theory of comets and astronomical calculations; reserved opinion that these bodies had always a revolution of long duration; since he proved there is a revolution of this comet when we myself 1205 days, and that it had been seen in 1786, 1795, and 1805. At the same time he predicted its return in 1822, when it was observed by Rumker at Parramatta, having enormous duration, which he termed diffuse. His researches on the comet and discoveries since 1824 have procured M. Encke a great reputation. In 1825 he was appointed director of the Observatory of Berlin, and has since received many honours in his own country and from foreign scientific bodies.

LOUIS ISIDORE DUFRENOY.

This distinguished French savant and engineer, whose decease was announced at a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences at Paris, was born in that city, on Oct. 21, 1792. He was the son of natives of Lorraine the French navy, and, having manifested a remarkable aptitude for mathematical knowledge, his talents were employed in the construction of maps. In 1817, he accompanied Captain Perpinet in his voyage round the world in his Uranie, and, on his return, was made a Chief Engineer, and part in the magnetic and pendulum observations. On Aug. 11, 1821, he commenced a survey of the Pyrenees, which occupied him seven years, and was followed by a similar survey of Clermont-Ferrand, in which he especially directed his researches to the Puy de Dôme and the Mont Dore. Subsequently, on the coasts of Chili and Peru, the South Sea Islands, New Zealand, and New Holland, &c. Among other results of his numerous observations were the rigorous determination of the magnetic equator, the determination of the exact position of the magnetic equator. He constructed numerous charts, and, having been made a collection of many of the observations of other travellers, and his name soon became well known in the scientific world through his numerous memoirs. In 1832 he was appointed to succeed Arago, and Dufrenoy in his chair, as a member of the Academy of Sciences, in the section of geography and navigation. He published a valuable account of the results of the war, and distinguished himself for bravery in several terrible naval battles which the English in 1809.

THE REV. MR. OAKLEY, M.A.

The Rev. Charles Edward Oakley, M.A., B.C.L., F.S.S.A., Rector of St. Paul's, Covent-garden, who died on the 10th inst., was born in 1808, and educated at the appointed to the bishopric of Gibraltar, and died at Malaga on the 15th inst. Mr. Oakley had graduated with high honours at Oxford in 1830, and, having been ordained, was for seven years Rector of Witcomb, in Gloucestershire. He was transferred to the rectory of St. Paul's, Covent-garden, in 1841. The Rev. Rector was a man of great literary attainments, and his agreeable manners made him popular with those of all classes with whom he was brought in contact. He was a constant preacher at the chapel of the parish of St. Paul's, where supervision he had accepted, and he acted so as to win the regard both of clergymen and congregation. His last preaching, in many respects, difficulties which would have frightened one of less energetic character, he was enabled to overcome by the exercise of much tact and judgment, and with very small assistance to many metropolitan incumbents. The Rev. Mr. Oakley married, Jan. 30, 1834, Lucy Caroline, daughter of Lenox, eldest brother of Henry Lennox Lennox, Esq., of Goodwood, and sister of Henry John, third and present Earl, by whom the lamented clergyman leaves a youthful family.

THE SOCIAL SCIENCE CONGRESS.

The preliminary programme of the sixth annual meeting of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science, which is to begin, at Sheffield, on Oct. 4, shows that the following subjects will be discussed:—

In the Law Department: International Law—Is it desirable to establish a uniform International law of freight? and, if so, on what principles? Municipal Law—1. Upon what principle should the bankrupt law of England be amended? 2. Upon what principle should the law of partnership be amended? 3. Is reference to courts of equity desirable? and what system of procedure? 4. Is it expedient to remove any, and what, of the restrictions upon the publication of reports of evidence in civil and criminal cases?

Repression of Crime.—1. Is it desirable to establish reformatories for adult criminals? 2. Is it desirable the present should be abolished? 3. What are the obstacles to the reform of criminals and the repression of crime? and, if so, how could such obstacles be removed? 4. What legislation is required to adapt to prevent the passing of sentences inadequate to the proper repression of crime?

Education.—1. What better provision ought to be made for the education of the poor? 2. What is the best method of dealing with pauper children? 3. What number of children are required to be under education? 4. Does or does not the present mode of Government payment for education tend to increase the efficiency of schools in primary instruction?

A section of art has been added to this department for the consideration of the following and other questions:—What improvements can be made in the schools, museums, and exhibitions of art, with a view to the development of the public taste and the prosperity of our manufactures?

Amongst other questions in the department of health is one as to the best means of preventing the spread of contagious diseases, and as to the necessity for such legislation. What are the best means of establishing a system of sanitary districts? What are the best means of securing a pure water supply to towns and habitations? 3. On the principles of economy in the matter of food production? And, if so, under what conditions? 4. Is it desirable to consolidate the existing railway of the United Kingdom into one system, under Government control?

A section of agriculture has been added to the economy and trade department for the consideration of the following and other questions:—The game laws; agricultural tenancies; leases, &c.; agricultural education.

The Orchestra announces the death, last week, of Mr. George Linley, who for half a century has been a prominent ballad writer. Mr. Linley, if he has not contributed to English literature or English music a great poem or enduring song, has at least been a pleasing, and, consequently, successful song writer.

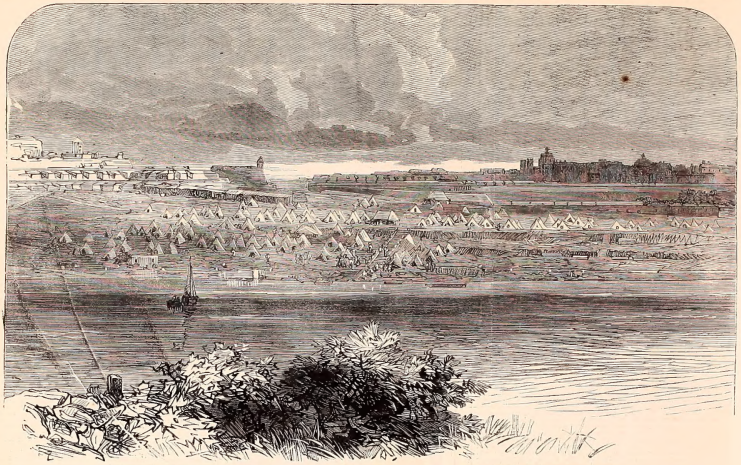
CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

R. C. W.—The system of unadvocated accumulation of pieces and notes by the Chevalier Lewis Salvio is much to be regretted, and not less so as the seemingly pre-

A. TYR (Ipswich).—No. 1 attacks of a second counter, beginning with 1. Q to take B. W. H. G.—It is now in the examiner's hands.

BENJAMIN CONSTANT (Brussels).—We are glad to learn that the subscription list in aid of this important chess assemblage has extended considerably within the last few weeks. As the Committee have now issued their programme, we trust that the Belgian Amateurs will be well forward their contributions to the Treasurer, J. Lang, Esq., 39, Anglesea-street, Dublin, forthwith.



W. H. FISHER.—It shall be reported on next week.

HERMITS CHESS-CLUB, S. S., and others.—We had already observed that Problem No. 1124 was incorrectly printed, and had corrected it in type.

D. V.—Your illustration of the mutuality of Queen's Knight's move, so far as you have discovered, has been anticipated. See the Chess World for the present month, page 118.

J. W. M. (Bath).—Your solution of Problem No. 1123 is correct. Problem No. 1124 has not been had of Messrs. Bohn & Co., York-street, Covent-garden.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1122 by Jos. P. M. E. Ludovic, I. H. R. Van L. Dayer, Jos. P. M. E. Ludovic, Rev. J. Wayte, Rev. J. Wayte, Rev. J. Wayte

THE CHOLERA AT MALTA: THE 100TH REGIMENT ENCAMPED ON THE GLACIS OF FORT MANOEL.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

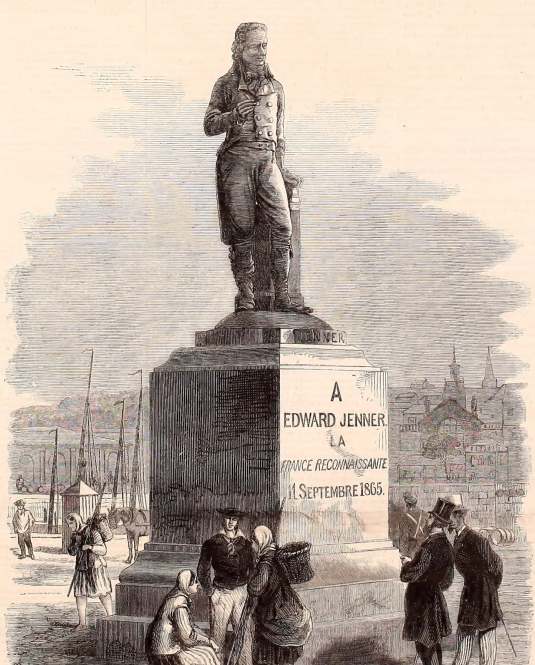
BURNING OF ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL, SYDNEY, NEW SOUTH WALES.

OUR Australian correspondence mentions the destruction by fire, on June 29, of the Roman Catholic Cathedral at Sydney. The Illustration we have engraved, from a picture by Mr. J. Smedley, an artist of that city, shows the conflagration in its most terrific aspect. It was about nine o'clock in the evening when the fire was first seen. The flames burst forth almost simultaneously in different parts of the building. The greatest body of fire was at the east end of the cathedral, but there was a strong westerly wind, and by half-past nine the whole of the roof was covered with flame. The roof was composed of shingles, which were quickly burnt through, but the rafters and other timbers burnt for a while longer; and, as the outlines of the stately structure were vividly defined and skirted with flame, the sight was one of unsurpassed grandeur. Myriads of sparks ascended high into the air and fell in showers in the direction of Woolloomooloo Bay, whither, for a considerable distance, they were driven by the wind. From the top of the cathedral clouds of yellow flame and smoke issued, which shed a lurid lustre on all around; and at times so bright was the glare that in remote parts of the city the minutest objects could be seen as distinctly as by daylight. The reflection of the fire in the sky was visible for a distance of twenty miles at sea. The cold, frosty air, blowing on the rafters, caused them to glitter with resplendent brilliancy; and the flames, like innumerable serpents of fire, hissed and crackled along every part of the building, and, as they swept from one interior fitting to another, assumed most singular shapes. The interior of the cathedral was a vast furnace of fire, which glowed with intense heat; and the wind and flame roaring through the sacred pile, and the timbers crashing from above, made a noise which somewhat resembled the waves beating along the seashore as heard from afar.

Of course it was utterly impossible to arrest the progress of the flames, which, fanned by the breeze, continued to rage with unchecked fierceness until the woodwork of the edifice had all been consumed. The Archbishop's house, St. Mary's Seminary, and other buildings adjacent were saved by the efforts of the firemen, aided by many townspeople and a detachment of sailors from a French sloop-of-war in the harbour.

The cathedral, which had cost not much less, with its furniture and decorations, than £50,000, was not insured. It contained several pictures by the old masters, none of which have been saved. One painting alone, representing the death of St. Benedict, was valued at £1000. The chalices in the sacristy were got out, as also were all the more valuable vestments—these latter being estimated at £2000.

DESTRUCTION OF ST. MARY'S ROMAN CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL AT SYDNEY, NEW SOUTH WALES.



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1336.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

RECONSTRUCTION IN AUSTRIA.

"SWEET are the uses of adversity." If any European State needed to have the thick crust of bigotry which occasionally forms and hardens over the whole surface of its common-sense battered into fragments by a frequent succession of troubles that, assuredly, was Austria ten years ago. Her policy at that period and for a long foregoing one was the effux of a central will in utter antagonism to all the living forces of the age, which it was her aim to suppress by overlaying them with the accretions of Imperial law, and thereby forcing them into an outward form of order and unity. The empire is an aggregation of separate nationalities differing from one another in race, in traditions, in forms of government, and in historical guarantees and memories, but all united to Austria by a dynastic connection. It was the misfortune of Francis Joseph that on his accession to the throne he was surrounded by advisers who filled his mind with the ambition of constituting one homogeneous whole of the then existing diversities, of crushing out from the various national bodies under his sway every vestige of distinctive peculiarity, of welding them all into one common mass and subjecting it to the absolute authority of the Kaiser. The policy, as might have been anticipated, did not prosper. Unity by compression seldom does. In persistently essaying to develop it, Austria, instead of destroying the vital forces of her subject provinces, simply exhausted her own. Having done so, and having brought herself thereby to the verge of ruin, she has become sensible of her mistake. Magenta and Solferino rudely shook her faith in the system she had adopted. The Gastein Convention made it totter to its foundations. Financial chaos has swept away its relics. Nothing remains except to reconstruct the empire upon a different basis.

It is now close upon five years ago that the Emperor, smarting under the defeats and losses of the campaign in Italy, conceived the idea of seeking for the monarchy the additional power that was to be obtained from representative institutions. Assuming the intentions expressed in the diploma of Oct. 20, 1860, to have been sincere, it must also be admitted that they were unskilfully carried into effect by the Patent of Feb. 26, 1861. In fact, those nations which already possessed "historic rights" were required to surrender them in exchange for an Imperial Constitution, which, as it was made, so it might be revoked by autocratic authority. Some of them, and those the oldest and most powerful, saw at a glance that an exchange of national rights guaranteed to them by solemn instruments which time and experience had sanctioned, which successive Emperors had recognised, and which had become to them the bases of separate political existence, for a newly-coined instrument deriving its validity from the will of the Emperor alone, superseding all pre-existent guarantees, and securing nothing beyond a fractional share in the representation of the empire, would be, in effect, an exchange of a legal status of freedom for one dependent upon favour, of established right for unsecured grace, of a solid and trustworthy reality for a phantom which might elude the grasp. They declined, therefore, to be represented in the Reichsrath at Vienna, unless they could be so without giving up the smallest item of their historic rights; and Austria for some time past, has exhibited the curious spectacle of an empire guided by the councils of a Parliament to which the more powerful and more populous half of is subjects refused to send members. Francis Joseph persevered with his plan in the vain hope that the provinces which acted aloof from his Reichsrath would be conquered by time. But time, instead of removing their objections, has increased his difficulties. The experiment, as first conceived, is admitted to be a failure. "My duty as ruler," says Francis Joseph, in a Rescript, to which we shall presently advert, "forbids me any longer to ignore a fact which, from the very realisation of my intention to develop a free constitutional life, and which menaces also the rights of all the nations in their very foundations."

STATUE OF DR. JENNER, LATELY ERECTED AT BOULOGNE.—SEE PAGE 304.

It seems probable enough that the humiliation of the Eastern Convention opened the Emperor's eyes to the inevitable tendency of the Schmerling policy. Count Belcredi and his colleagues have reversed the helm and are boldly steering for a secure haven. The Emperor, with their advice, has revoked the existing law of representation; or, in other words, has abolished the Constitution embodied in the Diploma of 1860 and the Patent of 1861; but with no present or ulterior view of superseding representative government. His purpose is "to lay before the Hungarian and the Croatian Diet" both Diplomas and Patent, in order that, "should the decision of the representatives of these eastern kingdoms contain a modification of the aforesaid laws compatible with the continuance of the empire in its integrity and power," he may "lay it before the legal representatives of the other kingdoms and countries, in order to learn whether their views coincide with equally important decision." In fact, the Emperor is resolved to come, if possible, to a good understanding with Hungary, and, as a first concession, he abolishes that plan of central representation to which Hungary objected as destructive of her nationality. He thus clears the way for tendering to the Diet, convened for the 10th of December, his Diploma and Patent, now no longer in force, that they may modify them according to their wishes. When modified by Hungary, they will be submitted to the Diets of other countries of the empire, and, if accepted by them, the result will be offered "to the interests of the age" as "the sure guarantee afforded by a constitutional form of government, whose strength and whose signification should lie in the free participation of all the different peoples in the work."

In more than one particular the Imperial Rescript of Sept. 20, 1865, outstripping the programme adverted to above, is open to the unfriendly criticism of the Opposition. It is the first place, in its elections, on the surface of things, why the Lesser Reichsrath has been abolished, when although it is distinctly stated that a more adequate representation of the empire than that assembly could give is intended by the Emperor to take its place. The true answer to this, we imagine, must be sought in the ruinously-disordered condition of the finances of Austria. The adjustment of the relations of the several provinces to the central authority and to each other is a work of considerable time for arrangement, even if the experiment should proceed as smoothly as could be wished. But Austria cannot afford to wait. She wants money meanwhile. She can only obtain it by a loan, and so long as the Lesser Reichsrath remained in being, no loan would have been legally contracted without their consent. Government has again, therefore, been rendered absolute—not with a view to its ultimately remaining so, but to meet, with all the authority requisite, the call for pecuniary exigences. In the next place, the Rescript contains no formal engagement that, should the Emperor fail to come to an understanding with his eastern kingdoms, he will restore matters to their former footing. The objection is open, perhaps, to a grave one, but, fairly examined in the light of surrounding facts and probabilities, it need not bring under even temporary suspicion Francis Joseph's good faith. Without laying too much stress upon the entire drift of the Rescript, it may be fairly concluded that no intention of returning to absolutism can be entertained by either the Court or the Government at Vienna, inasmuch as every step taken in that direction leads directly, swiftly, inevitably to national bankruptcy. It may be presumed, moreover, that the Emperor has already ascertained the course which the Hungarians will take, by informal consultations with their most trusted leaders; for he would hardly have exposed himself to the possibility of being thrown back upon humbled himself by an implied confession that his long-cherished policy had been a mistake. Then, again, the enthusiastic reception given to the Rescript in Bohemia, in Hungary, and in the other eastern provinces, shows that in those countries it also remains as to future reconciliation. We believe the bases of agreement were laid two or three months ago by the representative statesmen on both sides, and nothing now remains to be accomplished but to give formal expression to what is already a virtual compact.

We are the more disposed to credit the Austrian Government with the good faith which it professes in this new political programme because, simultaneously with the more liberal aspect which it has assumed towards its subjects in the east, it has reopened for consideration the question of a free commercial policy. The strongest bond of unity between the diverse populations of which the Austrian empire consists would be constituted by perfect freedom of trade. The abolition of prohibitive and protective duties, and the substitution for them of moderate taxation for purposes of revenue only, would open a new and rich vein of wealth not only to the outlying provinces of Austria, but also to her Government. Of course, it is not to be expected that her fiscal policy will be abruptly reversed. But moderate changes will soon dispose to larger ones. Let these reforms be but initiated, and Austria will have but one more sacrifice of pride to make in order to put her on the high road to prosperity and stability. She must dispose of Venetia, which, as a part of the empire, will never be other than a drain upon its resources. She may then reduce her enormous military establishment, and Francis Joseph may enjoy the yet untasted luxury of swaying the sceptre over a confederation of contented, thriving, and grateful peoples.

THE HUMILIATION OF PRUSSIA.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

PARIS, Sept. 28, 1865.

THE Emperor is still at Biarritz, where it is expected he will remain for the next few weeks, and then, after making a short sojourn at St. Cloud, will proceed to his hunting quarters at Compiègne.

The Empress has been delighted by a visit of Madame, on Sunday last, at the races in the Bois de Boulogne. He ran, as a matter of course, first for the Prince Imperial's Cup of 10,000f., only one horse, Vertugadin, venturing to compete with him. There were fourteen other horses entered for this Cup, but they were all drawn scratched only a few minutes before the time for starting, when there was no longer any possible doubt as to Gladiateur's intentions.

The works for the Paris International Exhibition of 1867 were commenced this week in the Champ de Mars. Large bodies of workmen are at the present busily engaged in carting thither loads of earth obtained from the lowering of the Boulevard Latour Maubourg, to form the principal works of art and industry, and the fine arts productions, which are looked for from every quarter of the globe.

Among various Bills in contemplation for the next session of the Corps Législatif (1867) are three new and magnificent entrances to the Bois de Boulogne, one at the Porte Maillot, a second on the side of the Rue Rochelles, and the third in front of the flight of steps in the Rue de l'Etoile. The first-named will, when the above-mentioned localities, the great advantage of the contemplated improvements will be strikingly apparent.

Last week I chronicled the death of the Count de Noé, one of the records in a long career of literature; this week I have to announce the decease, yesterday last, of the Duke de Grammont-Caderousse, principal in the same affair. The Duke was a notorious spendthrift, and on this account, although more than thirty years have elapsed since the process of French law, set in motion by what is called the "conseil de famille," against him, was carried to the extreme, he escaped nearly all the Courts that he was leading, if not a bankrupt, at any rate a prudent man. For the last few years, however, he was limited to a year and he made several attempts to convince his judges that he lived scrupulously within the income allotted him, but always without effect. It had been decided, however, I believe, that he should succeed to the control of his property on the 1st of next month, but the Duke died, as I have yesterday, when a grand service was performed over his remains in the Church of the Madeleine.

Overeat is the principal topic during the past week round the shop-windows of Goupil and Co., the print-publishers par excellence of the day, to catch a glimpse of the engravings by Gustave Doré of the secret of the Masterhorn and the accident which befel the party of which Mr. Whymper was leader. He is on a large scale, are in neutral tint and white worked on afterwards with a crayon in the usual way which only Frenchmen seem to understand. It is from a sketch by Whymper will tell us that Doré's imaginative pencil has even aggregated to himself in taking the incidents he has related; and I am quite certain that Mr. Ruskin will take him to task respecting the forms of his peaks and the strata-fication of his rocks. The engravings, however, are in a high artistic scenery will object to the depth of his shadows on the sides of the mountain and to the precipices, but without avail. Doré produces a couple of grand works. The action of the falling figures is very striking; the first, the guide Croz, bounding, apparently, in the air, with in a watery mist; the next a sliding at railway speed down the mountain-side, the hands contracted and clinging out with the agony of fear, the third has fallen on his side; while the fourth, just losing his balance, is falling backwards, standing, meanwhile, with all the power of his body to resist the precipice, but without avail.

Self-mortification was ordinarily an essential feature of the religious pilgrimages of the Middle Ages. A literary company of pilgrims that set out from a comfortable inn mounted on stout nags, and provided with all the requisites for eating and drinking by the way, and yet, as Chaucer's jovial band did some five centuries ago. The modern pilgrims have dispensed with the habiliments of woe, cropped their shirts rest their shy; others with peas in their shoes, which the astute ones generally took the precaution to boil, to soften the leathers. Nowadays, however, your religious devotee is again perfectly barefoot or excessively-fond of his ease, and he travels by steam-boat or excursion-train. Formerly, if he went to Rome, according to his means. It was only a week or two ago that an immense crowd of elders was congregated on the Quai d'Orsay, almost in the very heart of Paris, to bid farewell to a band of two or three thousand pilgrims, with the Curé of St. Roch at their head, who, having obtained the Archbishop's blessing, sang out with a full chorus, and set off to the shrine of St. Cloud. Now, as St. Cloud is within the suburbs of Paris, the pilgrims have not even been to participate in performing the journey on foot. But, no: the extra exertion is left to the horses of the omnibuses. The evolution of the present, and steam he called into requisition to transport the pilgrims to the scene of their religieux, in a costume of the nineteenth century, but their personal comfort, to that place of destination. Last week, too, Honfleur was startled by the influx of something like 1500 pilgrims, about 1000 of whom were from Rouen, hurry, both on foot and in devotions at the shrine of Our Lady of Grace. The assemblage was a strange but picturesque one. The banners of the Duke Dame de Gonet, and a sermon at St. Catherine's Church, followed by a substantial dejeuner in the afternoon at the various inns and cafés, and the packed them to the railway-station, exhibited their return-tickets, lit their pipes and cigars, and started, very well pleased with their day's excursion. Nothing could be more orderly. All this happens on what was once English territory, almost in sight of the English coast, and in the very face of English.

The cattle disease has at length made its appearance in France, three cattle-markets having been attacked by it at St. Omer. They were forthwith slaughtered and precautions were at once taken to put the remaining animals in the town under a strict surveillance, with what effect we shall presently see. The cholera, too, is looking up again in the north. In the department of the Nord it no longer stands in the returning, although 104,000 of the inhabitants, frightened at the ravages committed in the neighbouring districts, have left, leaving only sixty-nine deaths on Sept. 22, sixty-one were from cholera. At Arras a Conseil Supérieur du Commerce has been sitting, and has concluded its sittings; the non-prefect and his secretary are compelled to transact all the routine of the office, as the Prefect and the rest of the clerks having run away; and a large proportion of the inhabitants have fled from the city, carrying with them just such articles of necessity as they could manage to find means of transport for. Those who remain are reduced to red strache, owing to most of the bakers having closed their shops and taken their departure to some neighbouring town.

Some of your readers will, perhaps, have heard of the proposed compromise now under discussion by the different sections of sixty-nine politicians, having for its object the solution of the Roman question by the bona fide abandonment of Rome and the adoption of Naples as the future capital of regenerated Italy. There is this much to be said in favour of the suggestion—ten millions of Italians are located north and twelve millions south of Naples; consequently, this city may be regarded as the centre of the Italian population; and the Tuscans, we all know, are averse to the metropolitan honours lately thrust upon their city and dignified ease and retirement. But whether or not Naples is to be the future capital of Italy, I gather, from letters recently received from there, that the municipality of the city, determined that it shall not be behind either Milan or Florence, so far as public improvements are concerned, have sanctioned the construction of a new boulevard in the Chiaja quarter, nearly two miles in length, and which will run almost parallel both with the magnificent bay and the Villa Reale. Its projected name is to be "Italia Unita." Mr. W. Burges, the architect, if I mistake not, of the memorial church at Constantinople, has, I believe, been selected for the honour of covering with palatial residences one of the finest sites in Europe.

M. Fould is appointed Minister, in place of M. Darcoche, who held the office ad interim.

PORTUGAL.

The Portuguese International Exhibition was opened at Oporto, on Monday week, with great pomp and ceremony. At one o'clock the King and Queen, Don Ferdinand, and Dom Augusto entered the Crystal Palace, with a brilliant suite, and were conducted through the nave to the throne prepared for their Majesties. Here an address was delivered by the president of the company, by whom a petition has been constructed, to which the King replied in terms befitting alike to the occasion, to the city of Oporto, and the country generally. His Majesty concluded by declaring the Exhibition open, and the procession returned from the nave in numerous and select concourse of spectators, native and foreign. Royal salutes were fired from the forts of Serra do Pilar and Foz in honour of the event. The King and Queen afterwards conducted over the various departments of the building, several pieces specially composed for the occasion being performed by numerous bands of military. The greater part of the foreign Diplomatic Corps, the whole of the Consular Body, and the Ministers from distant dignitaries, and nearly all the members of Parliament were present at the ceremony, which was favoured by splendid weather. The building is best represented for her manufactures among foreign nations in the exhibition.

BELGIUM.

Brussels has, this week, been en fête, celebrating the thirty-fifth anniversary of its independence. Last Saturday morning the festival was inaugurated by a salute of twenty-one rounds. The national colours were everywhere displayed, and the whole nation is making a holiday to capital. The streets are decorated with triumphal arches thrown open, and Te Deums sang in the chief churches. In the afternoon the King and the Duke and Duchess of Brabant opened a magnificent exposition of the Horticultural Society in the hotel de Palais of Justice. On Sunday the Tir National was opened by the Count of Flanders, a fair sprinkling of English volunteers being present.

ITALY.

King Emmanuel left Florence, on Monday, for Sonnas.

The Roman Monitore, of the 23rd inst., the Moniteur, has the death of General Lamoricière the subject of an order of the day to the Pontifical army. In it, after a brief eulogium, it is stated that Lamoricière was only awaiting a favourable opportunity of again offering his life in the Papal cause.

A secret consistory was held on Monday morning, in which the Pope delivered an allocution. Fifteen bishops were nominated in England, one Irish, one Belgian, and four Spanish bishops, ten for other countries, and eight in partibus infidelium.

GREECE.

The following is the Emperor's rescript to his people, of which we gave a summary in our last Number:—

To my People.—The consolidation of the monarchy, by a participation of all in the management of the highest questions of the State; to ensure the stability of the realm, by increasing the healthfulness of its representative basis and the historical development of their several laws and rights, this was the leading idea expressed in the Diploma of the 20th of October, 1860, and the principle of my faithful counsels, will still continue to be the guide of my actions. The Diploma of October, 1860, was to me a duty and vote in the legislature of the Empire, the sanctioning of which, however, now pledges for furthering the interests both of the subject and of the different countries, was solemnly guaranteed and accepted unanimously by the fundamental law of the 26th of February, 1861, and by the Patent of the empire, which was promulgated in my Patent of Feb. 26, 1861, and which, in addition to the duties of this ideal bond, entrusted to it, as to the sixth article of the said Patent, I announced that the pre-existing fundamentalaws, as well as those which were to be added to them, would not only remain unchanged in their entire constitutional validity, but that they would, on the contrary, be considered as forming the basis and the true principle of the whole. In this duty this ideal bond, as to the principle of the constitutional structure in all its parts, was the task committed to the combined efforts of my faithful subjects, and of their representatives, and I even acknowledged that the realisation of my intention to develop a free constitutional life, and which menaces also the rights of all the nations in their very foundations. But we do not intend to separate ourselves from the Hungarian Crown, it is in the fundamental law, which, at Art. 1 of the Patent of Feb. 26, 1861, declares that the Hungarian Crown is to be in the legislative rights common to all are vested, and there only. As long as the first condition for a vital standard of the fundamental law, as well as constitutional harmony of its parts, is wanting, the great work contemplated, which would especially bring us nearer to the object of our wishes, would be lacking in power, of giving to the empire a durable Constitutional form.

In order not to endanger the existence of the empire, not to sacrifice the essence to the mere form, have not the Diploma of October, 1860, and the Patent of Feb. 26, 1861, been abolished? Has any people in the eastern part of my empire had to lay before the Hungarian Diet, and the Croatian Diet, for acceptance, the Diploma of Oct. 20, 1860, and the fundamental laws relating to the representation of the empire, which were founded on it, and the Patent of Feb. 26, 1861, was published. Considering, however, that it is judicially impossible for me to ensure, even for a few months, a vital power in one part of the empire, while in other parts it is treated as an Imperial law, binding for all, I myself am obliged to set aside the purpose of the law relating to the representation of the empire, and the same time lose sight of the principle of the Diploma of October, 1860, that the representatives of these eastern kingdoms contain a modification of the aforesaid laws compatible with the continuance of the empire in its integrity and power, I reserve to myself the right, before pronouncing a resolution upon it, to lay it before the legal representatives of the other kingdoms and countries, in order to learn whether their views coincide with equally important decision. I can only regret that this unavoidable step brings with it a cessation of the Constitutional labours of the Lesser Reichsrath. However, the question, on election of all the principles of the law determining the united action of the Reichsrath, and the necessity of the several simultaneous laws, has caused a diminishing of the law and anything like a mere partial maintenance of its efficacy quite impossible.

As long as the Representative Assembly of the Empire has not met, it will be the duty of my ministers to take the measures for those matters which cannot be deferred; and among these principally such as are necessary for the regulation of the finances and economic interests of the realm. Free and open, the path will, with a due observance of legitimate rights, lead to mutual understanding, and what I confidently hope to find, a conciliatory spirit, because ready to make sacrifices for the common interests, and to confirm the judgment of my faithful people, to whom these Imperial words are confidently addressed.

Telegrams from Prague and Pesth announce that the Imperial Rescript has been received with the most grateful emotion. The Town Council of Prague have resolved that the anniversary of the issue of the diploma of October shall be celebrated with illuminations. This custom was discontinued four years ago.

GREECE.

The King has announced his intention of dispensing with a third of the civil list, in order to relieve the embarrassments of the Treasury.

The Government has contracted a new loan of 4,000,000 drachmes with the Ionian Bank. This loan bears interest at seven per cent, and is to be reimbursed in fifteen years by means of a monthly deduction from the revenues of the customs of Corfu, Cephalonia, and Zante, which are to be mortgaged until the capital and interest are paid up.

UNITED STATES.

We have news from New York to the morning of the 16th inst.

A delegation of prominent citizens representing the nine Southern States have had an interview with President, Johnson, to affirm their allegiance to the Constitution and the Union, and to express confidence in the President's policy towards the South. Mr. Johnson, in replying to the sentiments expressed by the delegation, said he was glad to see the Southern people, after submitting the question of secession to the arbitrament of the sword, and having lost the cause, now frankly admitted their defeat, and were willing to become good citizens. The Government would do all in their power to restore civil authority in the South, and he hoped to see them again fully enjoying their old position in the Union. The Government had no disposition to deal harshly with the South, notwithstanding the bloodshed and ruin caused in various quarters breathing a different spirit. Though dreading disintegration, he strongly opposed secession, and had always considered the President for the generous and magnanimous expression of his kindly feelings towards the South.

It is reported that all troops, except for garrison duty, are to be withdrawn from the South. The conflict between the military and civil authorities in South Carolina had been amicably arranged.

Conventions for revisions of the constitution of Alabama and South Carolina assembled at Montgomery and Columbia, the respective capitals of those States, on the 12th and 13th inst. No important proceedings have yet been reported. The meeting of the Governors of Austin, Grimes, and Washington, Texas, recently held at Hempstead, it was resolved to co-operate with the President in his system of restoration, and Provisional Governor Hamilton was solicited to appoint an early day for a session of the Legislature.

The Mannchunk's Republic Convention was held at Worcester, on the 14th inst. Colonel Alexander Bullock was nominated for Governor, and the Hon. William Claplin for Lieutenant-Governor. Resolutions expressing confidence in President Johnson and pledging the State to support his reconstruction policy were adopted. The Convention considered the Southern leaders should suffer condign punishment, but recommended pardon and clemency to the people. Senator Sumner made a speech in which he stated that neither the rebellion nor slavery was dead, nor would be, while the country was fenced upon a full equality with the whites before the law.

The election was given on the 9th inst. in Berks ville, Pennsylvania, on the Atlantic and Great Western Railroad, to the English capitalists, Sir Morton Peto, Mr. James M'Henry, Mr. Brassey, and others, and also a tone of inspection of the public works and other enterprises of Canada and the States.

Three whaling-vessels—one of them having on board 150 sailors from vessels destroyed by the Shenandoah—arrived at Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, on Aug. 15. A number of the crews of vessels captures by the Shenandoah at thirty vessels, twenty-six of which were burnt and scuttled.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

In the Canadian Legislative Assembly the militia estimates, as reported from the Committee of Supply, had been passed; as also had the Act relative to works connected with the defence of the provinces. Resolutions were passed for the better organisation of the best facilities being provided for the increase of the commerce of the country with the national defences, and for the use of those purposes as inland water communication, by way of the Ottawa River, &c., to Lake Huron, should be deemed advisable. Resolutions are debated at length, but without any action.

The Hon. Mr. Wilmot, of New Brunswick; the Hon. Mr. Ritchie, of Nova Scotia; the Hon. Mr. Pope, of Prince Edward Island; and the Hon. Mr. Shea, of Newfoundland, were at Quebec. These gentlemen are delegates to the Confederate Council of Trade and Commerce, and would assemble the Executive Council Chamber, Quebec, on the 18th inst. under the presidency of the Governor-General.

MEXICO.

News received from Vera Cruz to the 1st inst. officially announces that General Bazaincourt entered Chihuahua on the 15th ult. Juarez fled to Paso del Norte. The Imperialists captured twenty-five cannon, Colonel Cravioto attended Bazaincourt's entry at the head of the fine-looking Mexican troops have been substituted for the French along the line of the Rio Grande.

INDIA.

By the arrival of the overland mail we have received Indian advices to the following dates:—Calcutta, Aug. 16; Bombay, Aug. 18.

The Viceroy intended leaving Simla in September, and would hold a grand Durbar at Delhi on his way to Calcutta.

Orders have been issued for the renewal of hostilities in Bhootan in the cold season, and great preparations were being made.

Mr. Whitley Stokes has been appointed Under-Secretary to the Government of India in the Judicial Department.

The Maharajah of Rewah has given £500 to found a Rewah scholarship in Queen's College, Benares; and the Maharajah of Vizianagram has subscribed £700 to found a scholarship in the same college.

The foundation-stone of a college at Poona for training natives as civil engineers was laid by the Governor on the 15th inst. The cost of the building (£6000) has been defrayed by Mr. Cowasjee Jehanghier Readymoney, a well-known native of Bombay.

By the completion of the bridge over the Jumna, the East India Railway Company can run trains direct from Calcutta to Delhi.

The reported murder of Lieutenant Campbell, of the 90th Foot, whilst on a shooting excursion, is untrue.

There had been incessant rain in Bombay for thirteen days.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

We hear from Shanghai that the treaty of commerce between China and the Netherlands has been ratified.

Sir Harry Parkes, the new Minister in Japan, is establishing his legation at Jeddo.

NEW ZEALAND.

General Cameron has resigned the command of the troops in New Zealand. William Thompson, whose surrender was reported a mail or two ago, has petitioned the Queen to send out a commission of inquiry.

THE FENIAN MOVEMENT.

Several additional arrests are reported in the Irish districts. Five Fenians were arrested in Kilkenny; another was taken into custody in the office of the Crown prosecutor in Derry; another was arrested in Belfast; and a Fenian named Denieffe was apprehended in Dublin, and a man named Archdeacon, who kept a shop in Sackville-street, Dublin, was arrested on the same charge, and sent over to Dublin. It was settled when the Dublin prisoners were first apprehended that they would be tried by commission of the Queen's Bench, the cases against them not being completed, they were merely brought up and remanded for a week.

On Saturday a Liverpool shipping paper published an announcement that an American vessel, which had arrived in the Mersey, had on board what had been overhauled by a large screw-steamer heavily armed, which was believed to be a Fenian cruiser. This startling intelligence was telegraphed to the ports of the country, and caused considerable excitement. In the course of the day a telegram was received from Cork, stating that the vessel belonging to the screw, consisted on the banks of the Mersey.

A Manx clergyman, the Rev. W. Gill, gives the following explanation of the term "Limping." Dr. Kelly's Irish Dictionary, Dublin, 1853, a work written in 1756, but only now committed to the press:—"Fenigidy, s., Fenigidy, Irish, Fenigidhe, Welsh, Fenigidi, Manx, a name anciently used to signify invaders or foreign spellers, which insinuates me to suppose that these Fenians are from the Fen of Ireland, the wars [an inhabitant of Ulster called] or the Fenii or Phœnicians of Carthage. The stories tell of the persons and size of these giants are wonderful. Irish, Limpa, Limpidh, a kind of millrick."

The Emperor of Russia has given his sanction to a subscription being raised throughout the empire for the building a cathedral at Tiflis as a memorial of the circulation of the Caucasian war.

A letter from Stockholm gives an account of the baptism, on the 18th inst., of the infant son of Prince Oscar of Sweden, to whom the Emperor Napoleon acted as godfather, being represented on the occasion by M. Fournier, the French Minister. The other sponsors were the King and Queen, the Dowager-Queen Josephine, Prince Frederick of Baden, and the Regents of Sweden. After the ceremony, which was performed by the Archbishop of Upsala, a herald advanced and exclaimed, "Long live Eugene-Napoleon-Nicholas, Duke of Nerike!"

COUNTRY NEWS.

Bryn Bras Castle, near Carnarvon, has been destroyed by fire together with its valuable contents.

Miss Burdett Coutts has signified her intention of subscribing £500 towards the erection of a pier at Cape Clear or in the neighbourhood.

Last Saturday morning there was an explosion at the Ewell Powder-mills, Epsom, and one more blow to steam.

The Chester magistrates have fined a man named Hickey for obstructing in the streets the bills of a race doctor.

The Yarmouth Mercury says, the shannon fishings are still unaccountably dull in all parts of the north. The herring-fishing and the take of white fish at sea have this year been also far below an average.

Yesterday week the Hawick Waterworks were formally opened by the Duke of Buccleuch. The supply of water was satisfactorily tested, and the ceremony passed off very suspiciously.

The engraving of the new graving-dock at Jarrow—the largest dock of the kind on the east coast—took place last Saturday. The ceremony was performed by Mr. Palmer, M.P., in the presence of several thousand spectators.

Captain Tyler, of the Board of Trade, has officially inspected and tested the Cromlin viaduct, which was not to be in an insecure state, and has been analysed by Dr. Taylor and found to be pure.

Bridal gifts of the value of more than £500 have been presented to the daughter of the late Mr. Alderman Copeland, from Caroline Carendish, on the occasion of her marriage to Captain the Hon. Francis Egerton, R.A.

The winter session of the Birmingham and Midland Institute was opened on Monday evening, on which occasion an address "On the Recent Applications of the Spectral Analysis to Astronomical Phenomena" was delivered by Lord Wrottesley, the President.

Earl Fitzwilliam and the officers of the 1st West Yorkshire Yeomanry Cavalry gave a ball and supper, on Wednesday w'night, at the Assembly-rooms, Wakefield, to which the leading families of the West Riding were present.

The monument of her Majesty an elegant tomb or monumental structure has been erected on the spot of ground at Cambusnethan, near Wishaw, where the late gardener, Mr. Macdonald, was killed by a tree of King James III. and his Queen, Princess Margaret of Denmark.

The Lord Advocate of Scotland has, we learn, written to the Tiverton Gazette, subscribed £10 for a richly-chased silver candlestick, to be presented to Mr. Heathcoat Amory, jun., as a testimonial of his gallantry in the rescue of life at the late fire at Tiverton, which the Lord Advocate is of opinion is deserving of this testimonial.

The statue of Garibaldi and Hawthorn, by Mr. Gallison on Leigh Boyle last week. The greatest confusion prevailed, and two men were killed, six or seven others had their legs broken, and many more injured. The were unnecessarily lost, as neither vessel sank. The accident occurred in broad daylight, with the sea quite smooth.

The annual meeting of the Huntingdonshire Agricultural Society took place, on Wednesday, at Huntingdon. The show of stock, although not large, was generally good. The show of implements, a large number of the members and supporters of the society dined together in the Corn Exchange, under the presidency of Lord Sandon, M.P.

The Lords of the Treasury have notified to the Commissioners of Customs that they have directed that Messrs. Hall, Dare, and Co.'s Pearl Shields, an independent port; and the Board of Customs have promulgated a general order to the officers of the outports, that the regulations which they noted re North and South Shields, the arrangement to take effect on and from the 1st of October next.

New waterworks were opened at Wisbech on Thursday. There were a number of visitors present. The water for the use of the town was taken by the Mayor. After luncheon a procession was formed, and the works were inspected by the party. The Mayor, Mr. Hawkins, said the water was exhibited in various parts of the town, and in the evening there were a conversazione and ball given by the Corporation.

The Hon. William Napier, the defeated candidate for the representation of Ashburton, in the room of Lord Ashburton, on Wednesday week, by his friends and supporters to dinner in the County Hotel, Ashburton. The chair was occupied by Mr. Bastard, the High Sheriff, supported by ex-Provost Roberts, Saltrik. It was also arranged that Mr. Napier should receive a testimonial from the electors, in the shape of a handsome silver of candelabrum, which cost 165 guineas.

A collision occurred, on Saturday, employed at one of the Merthyr coal-pits, has been declared the heir of the Drummond estate, near Swansea, by the Lord Chancellor. Mr. Drummond, the late proprietor, died in his great grandfather, who was twice married, and Thomas is descended from the second marriage. The case has been in Chancery for a number of years, and since since the property has been in the hands of the issue of the first marriage of the late proprietor, who died in 1858, and left it to Mr. Drummond Baillie Hamilton, who for many years represented Berwick in Parliament.

The prizes and certificates gained locally by candidates at the the last examination in connection with the University of Oxford were presented, on Saturday, by the Earl of Carnarvon, M.P., Lord Lieutenant, Burt, M.P., the president of the local committee. Sir Stafford himself gave prizes to the boys of the Grammar School, Mr. Burt to the girls. Mr. Burt, M.P., then took the chair, and amongst those present were the Earl of Devon; Mr. S. E. Rideswith, M.P.; Lord Lyttelton, Mr. Hussey, Mr. Hussey Vivian, M.P., and Archdeacon Hale.

A riot broke out on Monday night in Market Drayton, Shropshire. The cause of the disturbance was the imposition of some rates on the inhabitants by the Local Board. The disturbance commenced with an illumination, made as attack on the Townhall and upon the private houses of the members of the Local Board, and ended in a regular fight with the police and the rate-payers. The military were required to keep them in order. During their arrival, quiet was in some measure restored. Several persons were injured in the disturbance.

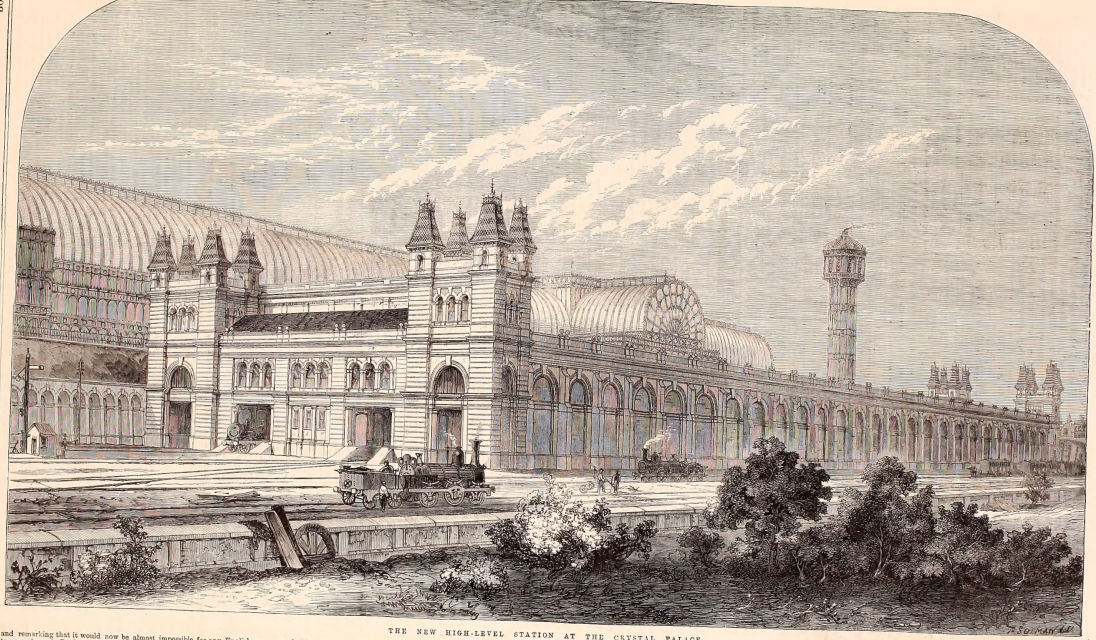
The memorial stone of the extensive system of drainage works for the entire borough of Portsmouth was laid on Tuesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Corporation. The works, which will be carried on in the principal streets of the borough, and in the suburbs adjoining, are intended in their robe at twelve o'clock, and were conveyed in carriages to a spot near Landport, where the ceremony was performed. The mace, the gift of the corporation, and amongst those present were the Earl of Devon; Mr. S. E. Rideswith, M.P.; Lord Lyttelton, Mr. Hussey, Mr. Hussey Vivian, M.P., and Archdeacon Hale.

A riot broke out on Monday night in Market Drayton, Shropshire. The cause of the disturbance was the imposition of some rates on the inhabitants by the Local Board. The disturbance commenced with an illumination, made an

THE CHINESE GIANT.

THE biggest, if not the greatest, man of our acquaintance is a young gentleman named Chang, nineteen years of age, born in the city of Fy-Chow, of highly respectable Chinese parentage, and lately arrived in London for the purpose of displaying his wonderful stature to us little people, at the Egyptian Hall. He is accompanied by his wife, whose name, King-Foo, signifies "The Fair Lily," and who looks like any other Chinese lady, having the small, compressed feet which belong to her sex and social rank in that country. A dwarf, called Chung, who stands but 3 ft. high, and is not so well-proportioned a figure as General Tom Thumb, attends the giant, and enhances the exhibition of his size by contrast. The portraits of this group, in our Engraving, are copied from an excellent photograph, taken by the London Stereoscopic Company. The height of Chang is 7 ft. 8 in.; his weight about 20 st. He has a good slim shape, and a mild, agreeable face, with the prominent cheek bones and narrow, oblique eyelids of the Mongol race. He wears a brocaded robe of white silk, with a massive string of beads round his neck, a fan in his hand, a cap on his head, and thick white sandals under his feet. He seems to be an intelligent person; has received a literary education, his father, Chang-Tching, having an eminent Confucian scholar; and his autobiography, sold at the Egyptian Hall, expresses a vein of cheerful moral sentiment which does equal credit to the head and heart of its author. He is said to be an affectionate husband, and he is kind to little Chang. We are told that Chang, or, as he is called on account of his bigness, Chang-Woo-Gow, had a sister, Cheh-Yow-Tzu, who was 10 in. taller than himself, but who, unfortunately, died when she had just attained the age of womanhood. His brother, Chang-Soo-Gow, the brave, is not so tall by 6 in. as Chang-Woo-Gow, but is of extraordinary stoutness and strength, weighing 400 lb.; he is an officer in the Imperial army at Foo-Chow. Their father, who died two years ago, was also a giant; but their mother is of the usual size.

THE CHINESE GIANT, CHANG, WITH HIS WIFE AND ATTENDANT DWARF.



THE JENNER MONUMENT AT BOULOGNE.

THE beneficent discovery of vaccination to prevent small-pox is appreciated so highly by the physicians and scientific men of France, that they proposed, some years ago, at a meeting of the Société des Sciences Industrielles, Arts, et Belles Lettres of Paris, to erect the statue to Dr. Jenner which is shown on our front page, as it now stands on the Place des Bains, at Boulogne. It was at Boulogne that Dr. Woodville and Dr. Nowell, two of the disciples of Jenner, landed during the peace of Amiens, as soon as English visitors had permission to land, with the humane and friendly purpose of introducing his most useful invention to the medical practitioners of France. The erection, at Greenwich Hospital, of a monument in honour of Lieutenant Bellot, the French naval officer who volunteered to join in the search for Sir John Franklin, and who lost his life in the attempt, had furnished a precedent for the Jenner memorial at Boulogne. The Government of the Emperor Napoleon having readily approved of the scheme, it assumed almost a national character. A sculptor of some repute, M. E. Paul, furnished the design, and has superintended the casting, without any pecuniary reward.

The statue, being completed and set up, was formally consigned to the municipality of Boulogne on Monday, the 11th inst. A procession, consisting of M. le Maire (Dr. Levert); M. le Baron de Farincourt, the Sous-Prefet of the arrondissement of Boulogne; M. Pinart, the representative of the Circumscription of Boulogne in the Corps Législatif; M. Seneca, member of the Conseil-General; MM. Crouy, Charles Bellet, and A. Dubost, adjoints du Maire; M. le Marquis du Planty, president; M. Boissoneau, vice-president; M. Adolphe Favre and M. Ledier, secretaries; M. C. Fournier, treasurer; M. Eugene Paul, statuary; and Messrs. Bacchon, Rebillal, Elwart, Laverdet, and Eugene Blot, members of the Société des Sciences Industrielles, Arts, et Belles Lettres de Paris; most of the Municipal Council, all the civic and Government functionaries in uniform; together with a large attendance of French citizens and English residents, proceeded to the Place des Bains, headed by the bands of the commune, the Sapeurs-Pompiers, and the Douanes, the companies of the two latter forming an escort of honour. Here a multitude of spectators awaited the arrival of the procession to assist in the ceremony, which was commenced by an oration delivered by Dr. Gros, a physician practising at Boulogne, and eminent in his profession, who, in well-chosen words, enlarged on the benefits derived by mankind from the investigations and ultimately the great discovery effected by Dr. Jenner, whose memory they had assembled to honour. The learned doctor, on behalf of his medical brethren, and more particularly on behalf of the citizens of Boulogne, of whose local government he is a member, offered to the Société des Sciences Industrielles, through their president, M. le Marquis du Planty, the thanks of the Boulonnais for the splendid statue which now adorns the city. The Mayor of Boulogne having also spoken, the Marquis du Planty, who is himself a physician, replied, expressing his gratification, and remarking that it would now be almost impossible for any Englishman to pass through Boulogne without looking at this statue and appreciating the honour accorded as well to Dr. Jenner as to the British nation. This which M. le Marquis concluded his address.

SUBWAY OF THE NEW HIGH-LEVEL STATION AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

THE NEW HIGH-LEVEL STATION AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

M. le Maire then unveiled the statue, which stands on a marble pedestal about 12 ft. high; the statue itself measures nearly 10 ft. in height. It is of iron, bronzed by galvanic aid, and cast by M. Brochon, of Paris. The pose of the figure is easy, and it is clothed in the costume of 1810. The head is slightly inclined, as though absorbed in thought. In the right hand he holds a lancet. The left hand reposes on a pile of treatises placed on a pedestal, from which depends a sketch of a cow. The right foot is firmly placed over the word "Angleterre," while the left is advanced over the word "France." On the border of the groundwork is inscribed the name "Jenner," and on the pedestal is imprinted "A Edward Jenner, la France reconnaissante, 11th Septembre, 1865."

At the moment of uncovering the statue the Orpheons of Boulogne, under the direction of M. Alex. Guilmant, accompanied by the communal band, Alvart, Professor of the Conservatoire at Paris, the author of the words and composer of the music, sang a cantata in honour of Jenner with great taste, reformed and returned to the Hôtel de Ville. A magnificent banquet was given in the Grande Salle in the College Communal under the presidency of M. le Maire, at which upwards of 200 gentlemen sat down. The healths of his Imperial Majesty and family and of her Majesty the Queen of England were given, and received with much applause. In the evening a fête, with fireworks, was given in the Jardin des Tuileleries; and a grand bal paré at attended, closed the festivities.

THE HIGH-LEVEL CRYSTAL PALACE STATION.

THE South London and Crystal Palace Railway, from Brixton and Camberwell, through Peckham, Nunhead, and Sydenham, passing by a tunnel beneath the road in front of the Crystal Palace on its western side, has now been open several weeks; and though, from the unfinished state of the intermediate stations, there has not yet been sufficient opportunity to develop the local traffic, the superior convenience of the new Crystal Palace station is already felt by many visitors who take their passage either from the Victoria or Ludgate-hill stations of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway, in order to avoid the tedious walk up half a mile of corridors and staircases imposed on those arriving by the Brighton Company's line. We give a View of the high-level station, which is situated on the slope of the Upper Norwood-hill, overlooking the remains of Dulwich Wood and may be approached on that side by the Farquhar-road and the Palace-road, from Gipsy-hill. The platform of the station being on a level with the lower floor (in the machinery department) of the Crystal Palace, railway passengers will have easy access by a handsome and well-lighted subway, 40 ft. wide (of which also we present an illustration), ascending to the main floor, either in the centre transept or behind the concert-room, by a broad flight of steps. This subway is not yet finished, so that they have to walk across the public road and go in at the doors behind the Handel orchestra; but the distance from the station to the central transept is only thirty yards. The station has four platforms, of which two are set apart for the use of first-class passengers only, and these will communicate by a separate passage with the first-class entrance in the centre transept; the entrances for second and third class passengers being nearer the south transept, and all the arrangements for them similar distinct from those for first-class passengers. The trains to the Crystal Palace will be separate from the residential traffic of the district. There will be one train at the station and ready for guests and carriages enough to carry away 7000 or 8000 passengers in an hour; and there is ample accommodation for private carriages, so that the traffic during the present month will consist exclusively of Crystal Palace passengers, the business of the line on Sundays, at present nineteen trains run daily each way. The length of the line, from the Lyndhurst-road station, Peckham, is six miles and a quarter. The capital, consisting of £675,000, has been raised in preference and deferred half shares, and the company has borrowing powers to the extent of £275,000. It is to be worked by the London, Chatham, and Dover at fifty per cent on the gross receipts. When all the authorised lines of the Chatham and Dover Railway are completed the new station will communicate directly with the stations at Victoria, Farringdon-street, Charing-cross, Cannon-street, London-bridge, King's-cross, Paddington, all stations on the Metropolitan and Great Northern Railways, and with Clapham, Brixton, Canonbury, Deptford, New-cross, Greenwich, Woolwich, and all stations on the South-Eastern Railway and London and Blackwall Railways. The line has been constructed by Messrs. Peto and Betts; the engineer is Mr. Turner; Mr. Shefford is the resident engineer, and Mr. Edward Barry has been the architect of the Crystal Palace station, which was built by Messrs. Lucas, at a cost of about £100,000. The South London portion, between Peckham and Brixton, was constructed by Mr. Firbank, of Newport, Mr. Jacoub being the resident engineer.

BIRTHS.

At Hybrid Court, Worcestershire, Lady Lechmere, of a son.
At Great Cumberland-place, Lady Mary Lygon, of a son and heir.
At Baton-place, Vincentnes Imperiale, of a girl, stillborn.
At Ince Hall, near Manchester, the wife of Mr. Edward Tootal.
At Brighton, Baroness de Hochepied Larpent, of a daughter.
On the 21st inst., at Cross Deep, Twickenham, the wife of Mrs. Thomas Lowe, Esq., her Britannic Majesty's Vice-Consul, of a son.
On the 23rd inst., at 17, Fitzroy-square, Hawtrock-hill, N.W., the wife of William Squire Bruce, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

At the parish church, St. Mary's, Kensington, Earl Granville to Miss Campbell, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Campbell, of Islay.
At Cartmel Priory Church, Lady Louisa Caroline Carendish, only daughter of the Earl of Devonshire, to Captain the Hon. Edward King Fitzwilliam, R.N.
At the British Embassy in Paris, Mr. A. Russell, M.P. for Tavistock, to Mattie Lucas de Peyronnet, daughter of Mr. Lucas de Peyronnet.
At Nelson, N.Z., William, son of the late C. H. Forbes, Esq., and grandson of the late Sir W. Forbes, Bart., of Pitsligo, to Matilda, daughter of J. Wilkes, Esq., C.E., Bridgend, Nelson.
On the 14th inst., at the parish church, Hove, Brighton, by the Rev. Raymond Percy Pelly, assisted by the Rev. Henry Pelly, M.A., Rector of Bucks Horton, to Evelyn, youngest daughter of the late Colonel Pelly, Captain H.M.'s 2nd Life Guards.
On the 19th inst., at All Saints' Church, Langham-place, by the Rev. Francis Storr, M.A., Vicar of Brenchley, and the Rev. T. S. Heath, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, Frederick, eldest son of the late Lieut.-General Heath, son of the late Charles Hampden Turner, Esq., of Leigh-place, Godstone, Surrey, to Adela Elizabeth Symons, second daughter of the late Rev. Thomas Hay Buxton, Esq., of Broad Oak, Brenchley, Kent.
On the 21st inst., at Holy Trinity Church, Cromleedy-square, Islington, by the Rev. Samuel Smith, Chaplain of the Association in Aid of the Deaf and Dumb, assisted by the Rev. Henry Jones, Vicar of Cromleedy-square, the Principal of the School for the Deaf and Dumb, Lisnadill, to Hannah Louisa, eldest daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Hodgson, of Bishop Auckland.
On the 21st inst., at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Albert, Prince of Monaco, by the Rev. C. H. Andrews, M.A., Incumbent of St. Luke's, King's-cross, N.W., assisted by the Rev. R. H. Bridges, M.A., Rector of Wigginton, Hertfordshire, Charrington-street, Old St. Pancras, R.W., to Henrietta Emma, relict of the late Mr. Jonathan Francis, second son of John Green, Esq., formerly of Burnes-Elms, and now of Castelnau, Barnes, Surrey. No cards.

DEATHS.

On the 29th inst., at 6a, St. James's-road, Victoria Park, after great suffering, Sarah, the beloved and only daughter of Mr. William Newman, late H.M.C.S., in her 20th year, deeply and sincerely regretted.
At Tunbridge Wells, the Rev. Sir Brooke Boothby, Bart., aged 84.
On the 21st inst., at Silvertands, Cheriton, Hampshire, Thomas Read, Esq., in the 66th year of his age.
On the 22nd inst., at his residence, 6, Brunswick-square, Brighton, Samuel Prichard Arnold, Esq., in his 75th year.
On the 22nd inst., at the office of the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Hangchow, in the Red Sea, on his return from India, Edward Lee Lee, Esq., Lieutenant, Esq., late of Marlborough Gravesend, aged 34, sincerely regretted by all who knew him.
On the 22nd inst., at the residence of his son-in-law, G. Bryant, Esq., Hope Wharf, Great Cambridge-street, Hackney-road, Victoria Park, John Wright, late of the Bank of England, in his 81st year. Friends will please accept this intimation.
On the 2nd inst., at Ravens Rock, Tongue, Arthur Lee Staniforth, the only child of W. Kirby Green, Esq., British Vice-Consul at Tetuan, aged 5 months.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 7.

SUNDAY, Oct. 1.—Sixteenth Sunday after Trinity. St. Remigius or Remy, Archbishop of Rheims. Garibaldi's Victory over the Neapolitans at the Volturno, 1860. Cambridge Michaelmas Term begins.
MONDAY, 2.—Death of Aristotle, the Philosopher, aged 62, B.C.; and of Dr. Watts, D.D., Classical American Theologian, 1842.
TUESDAY, 3.—Battle of Assaye, in the Deccan, gained at Peronsby his host, Charles, Duke of Burgundy, 1468. Death of A. Cullen, Surgeon, 1865.
WEDNESDAY, 4.—Battle of Messinjeove (Konieinia and the Poles defeated by Sievenow), 1794. Partial eclipse of the Moon, visible at Greenwich, Full moon, 10th. 9m. p.m.
THURSDAY, 5.—Death of the Marquis Cornwallis, Governor-General of India, 1805; and of John Europhanlis, donor of the Sheepshanks Gallery, 1863.
FRIDAY, 6.—St. Faith, virgin and martyr. Battle of Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans and King of the French, 1773.
SATURDAY, 7.—Peace of Aix-la-Chapelle signed, 1748. Death of G. B. Guarini, Italian poet, 1612; and of Edgar Allan Poe, American poet, 1849.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 7.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
10 31	11 5	11 41	0 19	1 0	1 44	2 32

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 29′ 8″ N. Long. 0° 19′ 0″ W. Height above sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.		WIND.		RAIN in inches and hundredths.
	Barometer corrected and reduced to 32°.	Dew Point.	Humidity. Complete saturation = 100.	Ozone. Complete saturation = 15.	Highest.	Lowest.	General Direction.	Mean Velocity in miles per hour.
	Inches.							Miles	Inches
Sept. 23	30·093	48·7	87·1	6·13	51·6	70·4	SW. S.	9·5	·000
24	30·056	54·2	87·1	7·87	53·3	62·9	S.E.	12·5	·259
25	29·766	56·3	87·6	7·3	49·6	67·2	NNE. NE.	21·6	·001
26	29·441	49·9	87·3	7·2	39·6	64·3	E. ENE.	13·1	·000
27	...	...	...	...	42·6	67·7	...	21·4	·000
28	30·177	49·5	87·7	6·9	47·0	71·2	E. ENE.	24·1	·000
29	30·220	49·6	89·1	6·4	49·8	70·3	E. SE.	18·7	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29·778	29·949	29·956	29·974	30·045	30·045	30·076	30·078
Thermometer (Fahrenheit)	57·0	57·0	57·0	57·0	57·0	51·0	50·0	51·0
Temperature of Evaporation	52·0	54·0	54·0	54·0	54·0	47·0	46·0	47·0
Direction of Wind	...	...	CALM.	SSE.	ESE.	ESE.	ESE.	E.

Will be published, Oct. 4,

PRICE ONE SHILLING, BEAUTIFULLY PRINTED IN COLOURS,

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK FOR 1866, containing GEMS OF HORTICULTURE, from Paintings by Charles Wolley, Painter to the Highest Style of the Gardening Army, by Leighton Brothers, with an interesting description of them by Mrs. Loudon; TWELVE PORTRAITS AND BIOGRAPHIES; Astronomical Diagrams of Remarkable Phenomena, with explanatory notes; ORIGINAL DESIGNS OF THE ROYAL FAMILY, and other Illustrations.

It contains, also, lists of the Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Members of the New Parliament; Lists of Public Offices and Officers; Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Regnal Years; Eclipses; Tables of Precedency; the Session of 1865; Revenue and Expenditure; Gallantry; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Time of Sunrise, Sunset, and Government Notice; Times of High Water; Post Office Regulations; together with a Diary for Every Day in the Year, and other matters of interest. The whole forms a handy pocket guide to the Illustrated London Almanack, and a most acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table; whilst it is universally acknowledged to be by far the most elegant and cheap publication.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for the Almanack a reputation co-extensive with the world, which should its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK, for the present year, printed in colours by the same process as the Gems of Horticulture, and forms the Christmas Number of the Illustrated London News, 1865, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Managers, Messrs. Gye and Harris. Tuesday, Sept. 26, and Wednesday, Oct. 4, and every evening during the Week, the performances will commence with Shakespeare's Tragedy of OTHELLO. Othello, Signor Giuglini; Iago, Signor Graziani; Desdemona, Madame Lucca; Cassio, Signor Mongini; and Emilia, Madame Trebelli. Conductor, Mr. Jullien. Audience; other characters by Mr. T. Sefton-Jones, Mr. Robert Barker, Mr. Aynsley Cook, Mr. Wilbye Cooper, Mr. Rouse, Mr. Lyall, Mr. Ryan, Mr. Ross, Mr. H. Pearson, Mr. Bentham, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Hall, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Vaudrey, Mr. Vaudrey, Mr. Vaudrey an outrage to the world. Whether the United States might not have interfered more advantageously than a European Power could do may have been a question; but it is one no longer; the Northern Republic had its own affairs to attend to, and France, having cleverly sought but signally failed to enlist England and Spain in the business, has undertaken the settlement of Mexico. The wishes of all lovers of order went with the interment, and however they admired the exertion of force, but because the settlement was a necessity, and Mexico had been showing for years that she was unable to effect it. We cannot see that the right course has not been taken; and, at all events, the course is up to the present moment successful. The rebels have been defeated, their leader has fled, and the last news is that the Republic of Mexico has ceased to exist. In spite of Mr. Cobden's opinion, therefore, order is in a fair way to be established in Mexico, and we desire to believe that moral progress also is at no distant date to commence.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, with Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Tuesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, received the Earl of Dalhousie with a visit at Invermark Lodge. The Queen left the castle at ten o'clock, and drove by the road on the south side of the Loc to the Bridge of Muick. Thence the Royal party continued their journey upon ponies, proceeding by the Moss of the Pullock to Corrymarah, a ruin of a hunting-seat upon the Lochnagar. At this place the Royal party partook of luncheon, served upon the heather. The journey was afterwards resumed to Invermark, where the Earl of Dalhousie's forester. The route lay over Mount Keen, by the favourite home of Glenmarnoch. On the 26th ultimo Prince Christian Musie met the Queen and conducted her Majesty to the "Prince's well," which was visited by the Queen. The Privy Council, on Sept. 20, 1861, upon their visit to Fetlercairn, and in commemoration of which event the Queen and Prince Consort, therefore, order is in a fair way to be established in Mexico, and we desire to believe that moral progress also is at no distant date to commence.

erected a cairn, with an inscription in Latin, recording the event. A similar cairn was erected on the occasion of the visit to Fetlercairn. The Queen left the castle at ten o'clock, and drove by the road on the south side of the Loc to the Bridge of Muick. Thence the Royal party continued their journey upon ponies, proceeding by the Moss of the Pullock to Corrymarah, a ruin of a hunting-seat upon the Lochnagar. At this place the Royal party partook of luncheon, served upon the heather. The journey was afterwards resumed to Invermark, where the Earl of Dalhousie's forester. The route lay over Mount Keen, by the favourite home of Glenmarnoch. On the 26th ultimo Prince Christian Musie met the Queen and conducted her Majesty to the "Prince's well," which was visited by the Queen. The Privy Council, on Sept. 20, 1861, upon their visit to Fetlercairn, and in commemoration of which event the Queen and Prince Consort, therefore, order is in a fair way to be established in Mexico, and we desire to believe that moral progress also is at no distant date to commence.

The Queen, with Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle, in the enjoyment of good health.

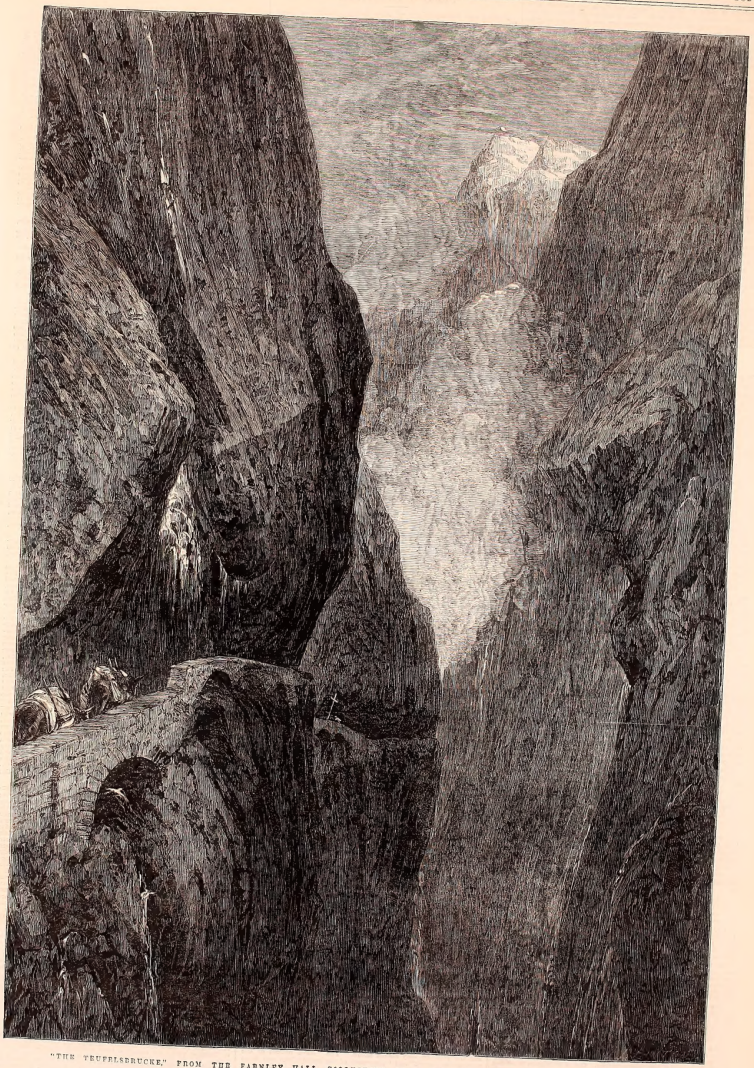
On Tuesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, received the Earl of Dalhousie with a visit at Invermark Lodge. The Queen left the castle at ten o'clock, and drove by the road on the south side of the Loc to the Bridge of Muick. Thence the Royal party continued their journey upon ponies, proceeding by the Moss of the Pullock to Corrymarah, a ruin of a hunting-seat upon the Lochnagar. At this place the Royal party partook of luncheon, served upon the heather. The journey was afterwards resumed to Invermark, where the Earl of Dalhousie's forester. The route lay over Mount Keen, by the favourite home of Glenmarnoch. On the 26th ultimo Prince Christian Musie met the Queen and conducted her Majesty to the "Prince's well," which was visited by the Queen. The Privy Council, on Sept. 20, 1861, upon their visit to Fetlercairn, and in commemoration of which event the Queen and Prince Consort, therefore, order is in a fair way to be established in Mexico, and we desire to believe that moral progress also is at no distant date to commence.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, with Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Tuesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, received the Earl of Dalhousie with a visit at Invermark Lodge. The Queen left the castle at ten o'clock, and drove by the road on the south side of the Loc to the Bridge of Muick. Thence the Royal party continued their journey upon ponies, proceeding by the Moss of the Pullock to Corrymarah, a ruin of a hunting-seat upon the Lochnagar. At this place the Royal party partook of luncheon, served upon the heather. The journey was afterwards resumed to Invermark, where the Earl of Dalhousie's forester. The route lay over Mount Keen, by the favourite home of Glenmarnoch. On the 26th ultimo Prince Christian Musie met the Queen and conducted her Majesty to the "Prince's well," which was visited by the Queen. The Privy Council, on Sept. 20, 1861, upon their visit to Fetlercairn, and in commemoration of which event the Queen and Prince Consort, therefore, order is in a fair way to be established in Mexico, and we desire to believe that moral progress also is at no distant date to commence.

The



"RUBENS, HIS WIFE, AND CHILD," BY RUBENS, FROM THE EXHIBITION OF OLD MASTERS, AT THE BRITISH INSTITUTION.

"RUBENS, HIS WIFE, AND CHILD."

THIS picture, lately exhibited at the British Institution, is one of the most valuable of the Duke of Marlborough's collection at Blenheim Palace. Dr. Waagen gives it the following notice in his "Treasures of Art in Great Britain":—"If no other picture by Rubens were in existence, this would suffice to prove him one of the greatest painters that ever lived. The conception of the portraits is highly poetical, and the feeling of calm domestic happiness most pleasingly expressed. . . . The drawing also is so decided, the execution throughout so careful and perfect, the colouring of such depth and fulness, and the harmony of the whole so pleasing and powerful that, in these respects, few other pictures of Rubens equal and none, probably, surpass it. It is evident that the city of Brussels, to which the Duke was indebted for this masterpiece, offered its best; for all the other pictures by Rubens that still remain in that city are inferior to this."

The worthy doctor, in the hiatus we have left in the above quotation, adds, with a certain characteristic inconsequent naïveté which often leads us to doubt his judgment in more important matters, that "the splendid Spanish costume in which the figures are dressed gives at the same time the impression of easy circumstances." Splendid costume, to say nothing of a stately, terraced garden ornamented with terminal statuary, surely conveys an idea of something more than mere "easy circumstances." In point of fact, Rubens at the time this picture was painted was possessed of immense wealth, gained by his pencil. More than twenty years before he had built himself a magnificent house at Antwerp (part of which still stands, and the garden of which is probably here represented), and he had lived for many years in princely style. In addition to being the most successful painter of his age, he was also at this time a distinguished diplomatist; he had been sent as Ambassador to the Courts of Spain and England, and had been knighted by Charles I. and Philip IV. of Spain. A very few years after this picture must have been painted a portion only of Rubens's collections produced by private sale, after his death, upwards of £10,000 sterling. The "Spanish costume" was, of course, adopted during the Spanish domination in the Netherlands. Traces of that costume are preserved to this day in the mantilla with which the women of Antwerp are to be seen shrouded. It is intimated in the quotation given above that this picture was presented by the city of Brussels to the first Duke of Marlborough. The Duke was a great admirer of the works of Rubens; and the allies of the British—the Emperor of Germany and the people of the Low Countries (especially the great cities of Antwerp, Ghent, and Brussels)—testified their gratitude to the victorious General for his brilliant services by presenting him with some of the finest works of the master. The Duke purchased others himself, and thus was formed the most important collection of pictures by Rubens in the possession of any private person. Indeed, no Royal or national gallery, with the exceptions of those of Munich, Vienna, and Paris, can compare with Blenheim in examples of Rubens. The Marlborough gallery, which is the more interesting and valuable because they are almost entirely by the hand of Rubens alone, and are chiefly of his earlier and middle periods.

"THE TEUFELSBRUCKE," FROM THE FARNLEY HALL COLLECTION OF DRAWINGS BY J. M. W. TURNER.—SEE PAGE 316.

The magnificent, full-blown dame in this picture was Rubens' second wife, Helena Fourment, or Formann, whom he married when a beautiful girl, in her sixteenth year only, the age of the painter himself being fifty-three. His first wife, Isabella Brant, whom he had married at thirty-two and by whom he had two sons, had died four years previously. By Helena Fourment he had five children, and after his death she was married to Baron J. B. Beeckhoven, a Flemish nobleman in the Spanish service in the Netherlands. She is, in fact, the fair boomed Flemish beauty, here depicted in all her mature, but splendid, matronly embonpoint, which seems to have found the very impersonation in the type of woman-hood—that very substantial ideal, that profuse luxuriance of milk and roses—which prevails in all his pictures, whether it be Venus or the Magdalene, goddess or mortal, Sabine woman or court lady. The gorgeous colours of the dress, which is very rich, even in the picture, and from this work Sir Joshua Reynolds may perhaps have borrowed the hint for his frequent employment of the same tint. Of the general qualities of the painting we have little to add to what has already been said. This family group was painted in close contact with Rubens' full-length, likewise at Blenheim, of the same size, attended by a page, descending also to a contemporary, which was exhibited at the British Institution four years ago. The smaller picture and simpler composition has perhaps more unity of effect. As we observed in our former notice of this group, Rubens has depicted the boy with more greater brilliancy to his wife's complexion, gallantly represented himself as throwing somewhat into the shade. In the present instance, in consequence, appears to be modelled with rather less spirit than in some other portraits of himself. There is, however, a certain air of nobility and relation to the background in the wife's head which may possibly be explained by the altered condition of the painter's passages of colour. Notwithstanding, there is throughout abundant evidence of the patient execution and special attention to minute accessories, and the marvellous execution of the child's head. Let us say, in conclusion, that we cannot object to Dr. Waagen's description of the picture as "careful" to this and other works by Rubens. It is not even comparatively careful. The fascinating effect of the whole, especially in the picture, is the strongest evidence it affords of the painter's knowledge, energy, certainty, and unrivalled mastery of hand, are due almost entirely to the complete absence of everything which can possibly convey the impression of any approach to care or labour.

THE FARM.

It is said that "a fine August always makes hops," and although the month was wet enough this year, there was no lack of warmth and a tremendous lack of wind. The crop has been abundant, and the duty still keen in existence, many a bold better would have been found to back a dollar 100 acre, as they did in the good old days, when it was declared at £338,000. In point of acreage under hops, it is probable that the two years do not differ materially, however, as in the good hop-gardens have produced 20 cwt., or even 30 cwt., to the acre; and in having will, it is thought, be about 20 cwt., spread 14 cwt. last year. In Sussex, the heaviest crops are round Rye, Uddermore, Icklesham, and Peasmarsh; and in Kent, the Cranbrook and Maidstone districts are still true to their character. The extreme heat of the weather has told heavily on the brightness of the hops during the last week, but the market prices still rule high, ranging from 70s. per cwt.

The worm in the throat is sadly troublesome in some parts of Kent, and playing havoc where the sheep are not in good condition to resist it. On Romney Marsh it has done a very large injury; but up in the hill country a flockmaster has lost fully 150 lambs, and finding that the lambs are in vain," he sold the remainder at a fair chance. In Sussex, on whose western side the Hampshire Downs are getting a strong hold, everybody seems to be going into sheep. Such was the opinion of buyers that at Lewes about 1,000 lots of ewes and lambs were pitched, or 10,000 below the usual average, and not half of these have been there in great years. However, prices, which had been tempted to sell at home repeated at leisure, as even averaged from 45s. to 50s., and wether lambs from 30s. to 35s. Many wealden farmers had the mortification of seeing their old lots resold, in some instances, at 10s. or 15s. profit per head. Many lots of ewes and lambs which were sold at 60s., and resold, half at 63s. and the other half at 65s. Some sellers doubted if they had made only 5s. profit on the wealden lambs at Lindfield in August, and that here they could get 40s. for their produce. The lots of wedder lambs have afforded a remarkable proof of the rise. They were sold at Findon, on July 31, and on Sept. 1 they were purchased privately for 30s., and resold at Findon, on Sept. 14, at 45s. 6d. advance.

The beef demand has opened up a good home trade with France, and one extensive London salesman has had a consignment in him within the last four weeks. They have averaged all round about £2l. 5s. fully 10s. have made £2l., and some few £3 per head, or about £34 10s.

The price essays offered by the Royal Agricultural Society for 1866 are as follow:—£50 will be given for the best report on the farming of Leicestershire, and the same sum for the best report on the farming of Worcestershire. £25 for the best essay on "Sheep;" £20 for the best essay on mountain breeds of sheep; £20 for the best essay on "The causes of pasture land deteriorating, and the means of arresting drought;" £15 for the best essay on the improvement of Waste lands connected with mines; £10 for the best essay on "The use to a farmer of a magnifying-glass or simple microscope;" and £10 will be given for the best essay by any other agricultural subject. The essays must be sent in by the 1st of March next.

The Privy Council has published a most interesting report from Professor Symonds in reference to the cattle plague. The Professor has been making inquiries into a case where several cows have died on a farm at Blakeney, in Norfolk. The cattle were first attacked by a thaw, and then by a fall of snow, which formed such an inside to the disease. He then proceeds that it appears he has traced the origin of the disease was brought to the farm by a flock of lambs. This report has led to the promulgation of a new Order in Council dated the 19th August, in which the word "animal" is made to include sheep, lambs, goats, and calves. At a meeting of the cattle plague commissioners held in the City, on Tuesday, various resolutions were passed on the subject of slaughtering and disinfecting diseased animals. The scheme for compensating owners has been given up, as it met with so little support; and the few subscriptions received for that purpose will be returned. The Morning Post states that the cattle disease has broken out among the Royal herds at the Home Park, Hampton Court.

A battle has taken place at Santa Ana, on the Uruguay, in which the under Flores were victorious. The revolutionists were under their canons, and flags. This defeat is considered to have struck a decisive blow at the Paraguayan invasion of Brazil.

Dr. Letheby reports that more than five tons of meat had been condemned in the city of London market last week as unfit for human food. It consisted of sixty-four sheep, four calves, seven pigs, 142 quarters of beef, and 151 joints and pieces of meat. All of it was destroyed. It was certainly that had died of disease, and the rest was putrid. All of it was destroyed.

In the exhibition of instantaneous photographs at the Polytechnic Institution, which, formed part of the entertainments at the late meeting of the British Association at Birmingham, there was shown, by means of a Regent-street, whose "pictogiraque," taken with a small, handy instrument capable of doing its work in a moment of time, have been found so useful to obtain the portraits of young children and other uncasy sitters.

The Paris papers report the death at Sarepton of General d'Orgoni (Louis Charles Girodoni, of which d'Orgoni is merely an anagram), in his fifty-sixth year. In early life he was a goldsmith's apprentice, and subsequently a soldier in the guards of Charles X. He was wounded in Vendée, at the time of the Duchess of Berri's expedition; Captain in the service of Don Miguel; and, lastly, General in the service of the ruler of Bornah.

The success of Mr. Gladstone's Assurance and Annuities Act is said to be very gratifying. People are applying to effect insurances in daily-increasing numbers. It is not the working classes only that are appreciating the benefits of Government security. Out of all incomes it is not rare for clerks, curates, and persons of limited means, whose social position compels them to live in a far more expensive style than working men, many of whom are in receipt of larger incomes.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Journal and Correspondence of Miss Berry. Edited by Lady Theresa Lewis. (Longmans, Green, and Co.) The correspondence of anybody who lived a century all but a few years in the world would be interesting; but when the correspondence is that not of anybody but of Miss Berry, and when to the correspondence is added a journal, though the combination result in three large volumes, such containing plenty of matter, the first hundred pages, written before we were inquisitorian, nor gossipy, nor calumed voyager, nor yawning holiday-maker, nor any yawning creature (unless, perhaps, review-writers) to whom such a book is likely to be welcome, would wish it to be one page shorter. Mary Berry was born on the 1st of March, 1763, and died on the 20th of November, 1852; George III. was the first sovereign she knew at her birth, and before she died she was privately presented to Queen Victoria. Between these two sovereigns, what persons and things during the whole or part of the reigns of four English sovereigns—George III., the heavy and cynical, and of Marie Antoinette, and she saw Louis Philippe a fugitive from his throne! Miss Berry was born to be a writer of letters, and to receive them; she also was blest and experienced in invitable. She was the pet and favourite friend of the correspondents of the unhappy Queen Caroline; the celebrated Georgians, Duchess of Gloucester, Lady Charlotte Lindsay, Lady Charlotte Campbell, Lady Macaulay; and two witty and amusing letters to her from Lady Duffus (from Lady Gifford) are of themselves worth publishing. She had, moreover, her affair of the heart; and the world knows that its happy commencement and sad termination is told with affecting simplicity. What more can be required? It is the telling part we love for the dead and regard for the living would demand, that she should tell it herself.

Winter in the South of Europe. By J. Henry Bennet, M.D. (John Churchill and Sons.) Dr. Bennet has for many years been a winter for the sunny south, and the eyes of the sick turn wistfully towards his volume. It is not a book for drawing-room tables; times allow them at such a time to follow their inclinations; and it is not a book for reading in bed, for it is not the composition of an able physician to guide them. This nicely-illustrated volume deserves the attention of invalid persons, for it contains the results of experience of six consecutive winters passed in the Mediterranean, at Mentone, from October, 1859, to April, 1865; it is written by a physician, whom six-and-twenty-years' toil obliged "to seek health abroad," and who has found a climate. The record includes a description of a tour taken in vain to discover "a healthier spot" than Mentone; and the description contains many pleasing sketches, useful hints, and information. Dr. Bennet, however, is not merely a writer, consisting of meteorological tables; and there is a very helpful index.

Letters of Mary Mary Wortley Montagu. (Bell and Robert Chambers.) These are letters descriptive of Lady Mary's travels in Europe, Asia, and Africa, with a brief preface of a biographical and biographical sketch. There is nothing new about them (and we are not aware that there is), but Mr. Bell's publication has exhausted the subject for a long time. Lady Mary's letters are full of interest, and her sketches always stand prominently forward amongst the most elegant models of epistolary composition. We have adorned our national literature; and they will therefore probably be welcome to the public in a cheap and portable form.

Historical Questions. By W. Chambers. (William and Robert Chambers.) The title explains the character of this book. "Historical questions (with concise answers) on ancient and modern history: a few popular observations on historical subjects." The first thing to be useful as a "cram" book, but it cannot be said to have a much wider scope.

Seven Lectures on Scripture and Science. By John Eliot Howard F.R.S. (Groombridge and Sons.) Every bane is said to have its antidote, and the remedy has in many cases been discovered. It is surprising, considering how many times Bishop Colenso has been refuted, that he should still find readers; but his success is accounted by that spirit of ignorance which Napoleon is reported to have discovered in the British at the Battle of Waterloo, and which alone the defeat of the French was, from the Napoleonic point of view, judged to be. Had Napoleon's plans succeeded, the British would have beaten. Bishop Colenso seems to be in a similar plight, and Mr. Howard's book is the victory which is to set his views. It is doubtful whether the Bishop will succumb even to the latest learning, argument, and authority which Mr. Howard has collected, but Mr. Howard's book is valuable for the light it throws on Scripture against "the self-willed philosopher, critic, or sage," against the so-called Darwinian theory of the origin of species, and the like. Mr. Howard's views are not strictly charitable may be gathered from the fact that he says that "the author of 'Essays and Reviews' (in my view) come out that the Bishop has taken into his confidence, and apparently given his support to, such a sort of work as Bishop will second part, the following sentiments of a Roman Catholic priest, Dr. Pusey, in his "Eirenicon," are worthy of notice, as they appear to proceed from the mouth or pen of one who professes the same religion as he professed who wrote the "De Imitatione Christi," and Mr. Howard has evidently not read them:—"In Romanism, at present, there is a precept (which controversialists would do well to bear in mind) about doing one thing and leaving the others as one may. The most conformity therewith is especially becoming, not to say requisite, when dealing with non-Romanists." Mr. Howard, however, does many things well, and there is no doubt a multitude who will hear his lectures gladly.

The Queen's Messenger. By Herbert Byng Hall. (John Maxwell and Co.) The writer of "The Queen's Messenger" has been round the Bosphorus, I have sailed down the Nova, and lingered at Peterhof and Petersburg, I have scelled on the Danube, and bathed in the Bosphorus, and I have therefore no hesitate in asserting that I have not visited and rambled on; the Rhine is my familiar friend; the valley of Interlaken is my home; the Italian peninsula; the wood-clad mountains of Spain's northern provinces, and the Tyrol are not unknown to me. Between Prussia and Northern Germany, Austria, Prussia for weeks together have been my abiding place." Perhaps, therefore, the reader may forgive us if we take a brief vacation in Central Africa and other countries which used to be considered "terra incognita," and if we say that Captain Hall even "for weeks together" in the principal countries of Europe; but a Queen's messenger (as Hall tells us) generally in the Bosphorus, and he has special advantages (or the contrary) and, therefore, an account of his travels might be expected to be interesting. Captain Hall, however, is not content with a voyage to go," at duty's call," to America, and he has no little to say about the habits, manners, and the manias peculiar to the Yankees. Those who hope to find in the book revelations of secrets, who wish to learn the mysteries of diplomacy, who desire to know what messages the Queen is in the habit of sending, will be disappointed. Like Prince Talleyrand, the younger gentleman knew that the contents of the despatches he carried, would not reveal them if he did, and seems to have had no curiosity to pry into the secret service adventures than might have fallen to the lot of any other traveller. The book, however, is by no means dull, though it dwells more than some people may think necessary upon matters of eating and drinking, and the pleasures of conviviality.

Jean de Bonnevoisin. By Amelia Julia. (Chapman and Hall.) The person who gives the title to this epic is scarcely known enough to the world to excite any interest in his fate, and readers are apt to read of his deeds and sufferings (real or feigned) in nine books, with indifference, however decidedly above the average; and three or four passages displaying no little vigour, pathos, and grace.

The Development of Faith in the Future Life in the Westminster Confess. By T. J. Gullick. (Bradbury, Evans, and Co.) The writer of the "Westminster Paulo Post Future" if they desire to make their visit both profitable and agreeable, to avail themselves of this useful handbook. The author is no doubt right in supposing that the need of a popular description such as his has long been felt, and he has taken great pains to supply the deficiency. He not only describes the paintings, but points out the significance of their subjects, and directs to "the principal associations they should call forth, the instruction they should impart, and the pleasure they should afford." The "short notices of the process employed," and "the record of the leading facts and dates of the great movement for introducing wall-painting into this country," add considerably to the value of the handbook.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

1st Regiment of Dragoons: R. H. Lee to be Cornet.
5th Lancers: Lieut. G. R. Bamford to be Captain; Cornet H. A. Cardy, to be Lieutenant.
Royal Artillery: Staff Assist. Surg. R. J. Crian to be Assistant Surgeon.
1st Foot: Lieut. J. H. Hamilton to be Captain; Ensign C. Hamilton to be Ensign. 5th: Ensign E. Farley to be Lieutenant. W. R. Bruce to be Ensign. 10th: Lieut. J. D. H. Stewart to be Ensign. 19th: Ensign W. R. Thornhill to be Lieutenant. Capt. F. A. Hamilton, from 1st Foot, to be Captain. 20th: Lieut. and Adjutant A. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. Cadet J. E. Fairbairn to be Ensign. 23rd: Lieut. and Adjutant J. E. Hodson to be Major; Lieut. J. E. Whitting to be Captain; Ensign G. S. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 24th: Ensign W. Hodge to be Lieutenant. 25th: Lieut. H. C. Grant to be Captain. 26th: Staff Surg. T. H. Hockley, M.B., to be Surgeon. 60th: Ensign J. H. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 61st: Lieut. J. Hall to be Captain; Ensign C. Foster to be Lieutenant. 63rd: Lieut. and Adjutant J. Hall to be Lieutenant. Cadet F. R. Marcetts to be Ensign. 73rd: Ensign G. J. Orred to be Lieutenant. 75th: Lieut. J. Hall to be Captain; Ensign C. Foster to be Lieutenant. 77th: Lieut. and Adjutant Francis R. S. Clarke to be Lieutenant. 78th: Lieut. and Adjutant J. Hall to be Lieutenant. Cadet J. Fairbairn to be Ensign. 79th: Lieut. A. M. Mitchell to be Lieutenant. 84th: Staff Assist. Surg. J. Cuthbertson to be Assistant Surgeon.
MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—Assistant Surgeon J. Rutherford to be Staff Surgeon.
Assistant Surgeon J. Rutherford to be Staff Surgeon of the Second Class.

NAVY.

Major and Brevet Lieut.-Col. G. T. Thomas to be Colonel. Capt. H. J. Walsh to have the rank of Major.

The following promotions to take place in succession to General Sir J. Ferguson, G.C.B., on the 1st of October:—Lieut.-Gen. Sir J. Campbell, K.C.B., to be Gen. Sir J. Campbell, G.C.B. The following promotions have been made in consequence of the death of Commodore H. Queen, C.B., at Sydney:—Capt. Sir G. Sartorius, K.C.B., to be Rear-Admiral; Lieut. and Brevet Major Light Infantry: First Lieut. G. F. Moore to be Captain; Second Lieut. G. H. Wardle, R.A., to be First Lieutenant.

Gerneth H. W. Gordon, R.A., died at Southampton last week, aged seventy-nine. He was one of the last surviving officers who took part in the Battle of Waterloo. He was also present at the siege of Antwerp with a field-office position.

Nearly one of the 900 pensioners of Greenwich Hospital who have accepted the Admiralty offer of pension allowances—in addition to what the Act gives them—left the hospital for the last time—left for ever—on Tuesday for various parts of the country they have selected for their future home, and by the end of the week it calculates that the whole will have left, and that Greenwich Hospital, which only a few years ago had upwards of 2,000 pensioners, will contain no more than a few score, equally cripples or otherwise infirm, and to whom only will the hospital in future be open.

On Southsea-common, Portsmouth, yesterday week, Admiral Sir R. Seymour, K.C.B., the commander-in-chief of her Majesty's fleet in Portuguese waters, mobilised the Royal Marine artillery and light infantry, and the Royal Marine artillery and light infantry, and the Victoria cross, for conspicuous gallantry during the operations in the Burmese war, were presented to the several corps by the authorities, in accordance with the Queen's wishes and the Admiralty instructions. The ceremony was of the most impressive character that could be possible. Admiral Seymour addressed a few words to each of the brave men as he affixed the cross to their breasts, and more than 10,000 persons being concluded was entitled to the nine tenths or more of the spectators who had assembled to witness the affair. On the firing of a Royal salute from Her Majesty's ships at Victory, the troops at the same time presenting arms. The brigades then marched past their commander-in-chief in quick and double time, and advancing in review order, gave a general salute to the Commander-in-Chief, and so the ceremony ended.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The fourth annual rifle competition of the G company of the London Brigade took place, last Saturday, at Plaistow, for twenty-three prizes, including the Lord Mayor's challenge cup: and Private Bowles, of the regulation sword, competed for by officers, was won by Ensign Perguin. Price of the valued at £10 10s., presented by the Lord Mayor, and Private Horncastle; of the value of four guineas, by Private Peters; of three guineas, by Private Newman, Private Pearce, Private Bowles, Private Bidwell, and Corporal May; and of two guineas, by Lieutenant Colton, Lord Verulam, and plimented the battalion at the close of the manœuvres.—Lieutenant Hill has been chosen Captain of the Brentwood company, in the room of Mr. T. Hill, resigned. Mr. W. Ross (formerly a Lieutenant in the Jersey militia) has been chosen Lieutenant, and Mr. A. Levitt, Ensign.—A challenge cup offered for competition among the Ongar company has been won, for the fourth time, by Private Mott.

The annual prize-shooting of the 4th Kent (Woolwich) corps took place, last Saturday, at the Government range. The first prize, a challenge cup, was won by Private E. Ricker, and the remaining by Corporal Thomas, Private Kemp, Baker, and Marjoram.—The fifth annual competition of the 9th Kent (Blackheath) corps took place, on Thursday week, at Eltham. The winners of the several prizes were:—Challenge cup, Captain Buckner; Captain Buckner; won by Sergeant Kimble. Second prize, purse of £6, given by Lieutenant Barnes; won by Private Smith. Third prize, purse of £4, given by Mr. M. D. Rucker; won by Private Bennett. Fourth prize, silver cup, given by Mr. W. C. Bennett, of Blackheath; won by Sergeant Lord. Fifth prize, won by Private Hall. Sixth prize, won by Private Jeffery. The shooting-match for the Barnstaple volunteers was held on Tuesday week. There were thirty-seven competitors. Lieutenant Pollard, of the Wadebridge corps, won the first prize, £10.

A fifth annual competition has taken place among the members of the Woburn corps for a ladies' challenge cup, which was won a second time by Colour-Sergeant Bennett. The first competition took place in 1861, when the cup was won by Sergeant Bennett. In 1862 it was won by Colour-Sergeant Bennett. In 1863 by Private Patterson. It was carried off by Colour-Sergeant Bennett in 1864, and by Private Bennett in 1865. The list of prizes also included a competition for prizes. Challenge cup, Private Bennett; won by Private Barton, Ensign Hall, Private Hodson, and Private Ling.

The distribution of prizes recently won at the annual competition by the members of the 1st Berks Rifle corps took place, on Monday, at the Reading Industrial Exhibition. A large and fashionable company witnessed the distribution.

The Huntingdon companies have had a competition for a battalion challenge cup and other prizes. The cup and one of the first prizes was Corporal Wallis. The first of the other prizes, to which Captain Herbert was a contributor, was won by Private Bullard.

The Warwickshire volunteers, comprising the Coventry, Rugby, Berwick, Stratford, Nuneaton, Alcester, and Leamington corps, and numbering 660 in all, were inspected on the Warwick race-courses last week. The reviewing officer was Lieutenant-Colonel Wemyss, C.B., who was brigaded as the 1st Administrative Battalion, executed the usual movements, the finest drill, under Adjutant Bell, was that of the Coventry corps, and the Prince of Wales, being well performed. The inspecting officer passed a high compliment upon both officers and men for their efficiency, and for the steady bearing, he said, particularly worthy of commendation.

In Norfolk we may note the annual competition for prizes of the Hadleigh company. A silver cup of the value of £8 8s., given by Captain Bewley, was won by Private Spurrell. A challenge cup, presented in 1864 by Corporal Gardiner, in 1863 by Sergeant Revey, and in 1864 by Lieutenant Robinson—was won by Ensign Fewson. The cup, which becomes the property of any member must be won by him for two consecutive years, and not necessarily in succession, before it becomes his own property, was presented afresh of course, to-day, to the fortunate winner. Other prizes, of lesser value, made were—Bronze, 100: Harrison, 190.—The best shots of the Shrewsbury company have had a competition for a gold medal given by Mr. Lee, the old bronze clerk, presented by Major Tyrell, was won by Sergeant S. Matthews.—The third annual battalion rifle competition of the 1st Cheshire took place on the Sudbury butts yesterday week. The prizes, amounting in value to £30, were given by Lieutenant-Colonel Arkwright, commanding officer. The field officers, Major Tyrell, Major Mitchell, Rev. H. B. Rees (chaplain), and Adjutant Bannerman. Eight companies were represented. The first prize, aggregate score at both ranges, was taken by Corporal Fisher (Ryde).

In Norfolk the 3rd Norwich corps held its annual prize-shooting. This company possesses a challenge cup, and it was on last year by Captain Harvey; at this year's competition it was won by Private Fox. There was another contest for several money prizes, of which the first was won by Private J. Goodall. The challenge cup of the 1st Norfolk (Yarmouth) was won by Corporal Tuddenham; a prize given by Lieutenant Erosin was secured by Private G. Durrell.—The 1st Norfolk (Yarmouth) corps has had its annual battalion prize-shooting at the butts, North Denes, Great Yarmouth. The prizes, which were given by Lieutenant-Colonel Preston, were handsomely. The 1, £5, £4, £3, £2 10s., £2, £1 10s., and £1. There were twenty-seven competitors; and the first shots were Corporal Tuddenham and Sergeant B. S. M. Baxter, the third by Sergeant Cooke, the fourth by Sergeant Page, and the fifth by B. S. M. Mack. The second prize, £4, was won by Private Cox, £3, divided into prizes of £1 15s., £1 5s., and third and fourth, £1. The first share was won by Corporal Mack, the second by Corporal Baxter, the third by Corporal Sadd, and the fourth by Gunner Shingling. Some other prizes were also made over.—The 1st Norfolk (Yarmouth) corps has had its annual Gunton Park, for battalion drill, under the command of Colonel Lord Suffield and Adjutant Bulwer. Eight companies were present. The first prize, £5, for first was won by Sergeant Thompson's Norwich company; and the second by Private Maidstone, of the Aylsham company.

Last Saturday the challenge cup given by Lieutenant-Colonel Cunliffe in competition by members of the 1st Lancashire corps, competed for on the range of the regiment at Astley. The cup was won by Private H. Rowbotham, of the Leigh company, with a score of 49 points out of a possible 50. The second place—the same as the highest number of points obtained by any other challenge cup competitor at Astley, to compete for their challenge cup, but subsequently to be entered for the competition of the Association, presented by Captain Ford, and six money prizes. The cup was won by Private J. Crane, after a tie with Private Moore, the latter winning on the two tickets. The next highest aggregate scores for the money prizes were made by the following:—Private Ellis, Private Bridge, twice had to allow three marks in his score for winning previously), Sergeant Moore, and Private Simcock. The second prize-shooting of the Sale volunteers took place on Monday, at the Firs, Ashton-upon-Mersey, and presented by Captain Waithman was won by Sergeant Dean; 1, C. Moore (2), but the cup was won by Private Ellis, who had previously won it twice; 2, Dean (1); 3, Sergeant Crane was 4th; 4, Private Bridge; 5, Private Simcock; 6, Private Moore; 7, Private Rothwell. The fourth contest was for a cup of £10, given by Mr. William Sayman, divided into 1, £7, £2, £1. The 1st was won by Ellis, the first. The remaining prize, a short Enfield rifle, was won by Private Mather.—A cup presented match came off last week on the Manchester Field Association and twenty members of the Alcar Rifle Club. The match came out of a competition among the club. The Manchester members competed on the grounds of the 1st and 3rd Lancashire, while those that met on the Alcar range. Seven shots at 200 yards and seven rounds were made. The Alcar men won the match by 11 marks.

A match was shot off on the Aldershot range, on Saturday, between ten men of the 4th and ten men of the 3rd Cheshire Administrative Battalion. The team of the 4th consisted of men from the Northwich and Stockport companies; that of the 3rd from the Altrincham, Timperley, Knutsford, Bowdon, and Cheadle companies. The 4th Cheshire, commanded by Major, won by 16 points.

The sixth annual regimental shooting-contest of the 3rd West York (Bradford) took place on Boldon Moor, near Bradford, on Friday and Saturday last week, in the presence of a numerous company. The first-class shots Sergeant-Major Cooke won the first prize; Corporal Burrowclough the second; Private Bennett the third; Private Hodgson the fourth; Colour-Sergeant Woodcock the fifth, Corporal Walker and Sergeant Baines were the sixth and seventh; Private Hall the eighth; Private Hall the same class, Captain Forrer and Lieutenant Campbell the second and third prizes, and Lieutenant Williamson won the fourth; second-class shots Colour-Sergeant Cousen and Sergeant Nunn. For the all-comers' prizes there were sixty-six competitors, which included volunteers from the 1st twenties in the West Riding and several members of the 1st West Regiment. Lieutenant Wheater, of Harrogate, won the first prize, Private Bennett, of Bradford, the second prize; Sergeant Watson, of Halifax, the third prize; Private Dawson, of Halifax, the fourth; Sergeant Cooke, the fifth and sixth; Sergeant-Major Cooke, the fifth and sixth prizes; Lieutenant Wilkinson, of Bradford, the seventh; Private Hodgson, of Bradford, the eighth and eighth prize. Amongst the second-class shots, the competitors who bore off the prizes were Corporal Walker, Private Allen, Lance-Corporal Walker, and Private Hutchinson; and Dr. Rowsford, Private Burgess, and Private Whiteley. The principal successful competitors in other classes were Sergeant Carr, Private Hill, Corporal Valley, Sergeant Higgins, Private Moorhouse, Colour-Sergeant Latimer, Sergeant Lambert, and Colour-Sergeant Ambler. A magnificent silver challenge cup, of £21 value, is subject to be the object of a contest.—The annual three days' shooting of the 1st Berkshire Rifle Volunteers' took place on the Reading butts. The first meeting was remarkable for the defeats of several corps in first-rate shots. The prize-list commenced to about £100.—The 1st East York corps for silver salver, value seven guineas (presented by Messrs. Bell), and the prize fell to Private J. A. Bulmer, who tied with Colour-Sergeant Moggitt, but the former had made most bull's-eyes at the long range, and was by the regulations declared the winner.—The Settle (eleven men) and Keighley (nine men) volunteers contested on the ground of the latter, when the Keighley men won with a gross score of 209, against 160 for the Craven team.—The Leeds Intelligencer says a vivandière appeared for the first time in that town at the opening of the Leeds Park, on Thursday.

The fifth annual prize-meeting of the Highland Rifle Association was held last week, at Inverness. The competitors included a large number of crack shots. The shooting, on the whole, has been above the average. Private Mackenzie, of Inverness, carried off the presidential prize of £25, the most highland marker being the Hon. J. Gordon. For members of the Association, the Duke of Sutherland's prize of £10 was competed for by twelve, and won by Captain Stables. Captain Stables also took the Prince of Wales prize, which is considered to be the best all-round prize, and is open to all comers. Lieutenant Cameron, of Lochiel, won the Lochiel prize; Captain Heaton the second; Corporal Ferguson, 1st Inverness, the third; and Corporal J. Fraser, 7th Inverness, the fourth.

NEWMARKET FIRST OCTOBER MEETING.—TUESDAY.

Trial Stakes.—Mr. Merry's Lady Hilda, 1.
Grand Duke Michael Stakes.—Longdown, 1. Zombool, 2. Contract, 3.
Middle Park Plate.—Mr. Merry's Lady Hilda, 1. Mr. Gratwicke's Quinctero, 2.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Crossbow, 1. Fury, 2. Saffron, 3.
Rous Memorial Stakes.—Mr. Merry's Lady Hilda, 1. Holstrop, 2.
Great Eastern Railway Handicap.—Confederate, 1. Cafeteur, 2. Gemma, 3.
Two-Year-Old Stakes.—Mr. Merry's Lady Hilda, 1. Zoroaster, 2.
Stakeonth Triennial Stakes.—Breilins walked over.

THURSDAY.

Large Stakes.—Mr. Merry's Lambeth, 1.
Handicap Sweepstakes of 20 sovs.—Longdown, 1. Filbert, 2. Junon, 3.
Handicap Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Mr. Gratwicke's Hardback, 1. Saffron, 2.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Carnicutie, 1. Indian Star, 2. Viper, 3.
Newmarket Triennial Produce Stakes.—Longdown, 1. Mr. Rees Chat, 2.
Granby Stakes.—Lady Sophia, 1. La Germaine, 2. Longburn, 3.
Fifty Pound Plate.—Lady Hilda walked over.

THURSDAY.

Handicap Sweepstakes, T.Y.C.—Mr. Merry's Volunteer, 2.
Cesarewitch Plate.—Breilins, 1. Stanton, 2. Lady Hilda, 3.
Eleventh Triennial Produce Stakes.—Mr. Merry's Lambeth, 1. Brown Prince, 3.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Crossbow, 1. Rejection, 2. Idler, 3.
Two-year-old Handicap.—Mr. Gratwicke's Hardback, 1. Mr. Wood's Handicap, A.F.—Wild Agnes, 1. Rhipsolyta, 2. Rose, 3.
Sweepstakes of 5 sovs.—Mr. Merry's Lambeth, 1. Mr. Rees's Hardback, 2.
Sweepstakes of 5 sovs.—Macarola, 1. Indian Star, 2.

A publication most useful and interesting to those concerned in our Australian colonies is the Victorian Gazetteer, a goodly volume of 600 pages, just issued by Mr. Robert Hardwicke, of Piccadilly, from his publishing house in Great Street, London. It has been compiled by Mr. R. P. Whitworth, in a style which, for clearness and brevity, is worthy of imitation by all writers.

During October, Venus (in Leo and Virgo) will be a morning star, and Jupiter (in Sagittarius and Capricornus) an evening star. Mars (in Libra) will be a morning star till the 19th, invisible till the 27th, and then a morning star. Saturn (in Virgo) will be a morning star. Mercury will be invisible till the 6th, when he will be a morning star till the 19th, invisible till the 27th, and then a morning star. The Moon will be full on the 1st, at 10h. 49m. p.m.; in her last quarter on the 8th, at 8h. 0m. p.m.; new on the 16th, at 0h. 31m. p.m.; in her first quarter on the 24th, at 0h. 50m. p.m. On Oct. 19 there will be an eclipse of the Sun partially visible at Greenwich, but invisible at Paris. On Oct. 31 there will be an eclipse of the Moon. The constellations Cassiopeia, Andromeda, Pisces, and Cetus will be on the meridian at midnight about the middle of the month, and Aries at the end.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

CORN EXCHANGE, Sept. 21.—The show of English wheat in to-day's market was limited, but in fair average condition. On the whole, the demand ruled steady, at an advance in the quotations of 1s. per qr. Foreign wheat was in moderate supply, and met a fair sale, at the late rates. Barley was in good request, at 1s. per qr. more money. Malt ruled very firm. There was a moderate sale for barley, at late rates. The show of samples was by no means extensive. Oats were in fair demand, at 6d. per qr. more money. Beans and peas barely. Linseed also were firm, but inferior kinds commanded very little attention. Rest of the trade was in a sluggish state. Flour, 1s. per sack dearer. Arrivals into London last week:—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Sept. 27.—Wheat freely supplied Monday's currency. Most other kinds of produce were in fair request, at late rates.

Sept. 28.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Sept. 29.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Sept. 30.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 1.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 2.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 3.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 4.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 5.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 6.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 7.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 8.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 9.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 10.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 11.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 12.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 13.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 14.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 15.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 16.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 17.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 18.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 19.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 20.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 21.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 22.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 23.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 24.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 25.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 26.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 27.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 28.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 29.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 30.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Oct. 31.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 1.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 2.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 3.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 4.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 5.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 6.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 7.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 8.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 9.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 10.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 11.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 12.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 13.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 14.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 15.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 16.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 17.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 18.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 19.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 20.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 21.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 22.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 23.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 24.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 25.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 26.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 27.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 28.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 29.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Nov. 30.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 1.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 2.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 3.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 4.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 5.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 6.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 7.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 8.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 9.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 10.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 11.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 12.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 13.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 14.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 15.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 16.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 17.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 18.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 19.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 20.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 21.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 22.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 23.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 24.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 25.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 26.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 27.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 28.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 29.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 30.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Dec. 31.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 1.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 2.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 3.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 4.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 5.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 6.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 7.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 8.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 9.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 10.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 11.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 12.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 13.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 14.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 15.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 16.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 17.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 18.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 19.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 20.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 21.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 22.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 23.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 24.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 25.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 26.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 27.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 28.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 29.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 30.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Jan. 31.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 1.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 2.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 3.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 4.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 5.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 6.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 7.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 8.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 9.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 10.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 11.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 12.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 13.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 14.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 15.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 16.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 17.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 18.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 19.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 20.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 21.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 22.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 23.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 24.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 25.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 26.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 27.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Feb. 28.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 1.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 2.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 3.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 4.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 5.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 6.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 7.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 8.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 9.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 10.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 11.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 12.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 13.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 14.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 15.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 16.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 17.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 18.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 19.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 20.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 21.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 22.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 23.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 24.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 25.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 26.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 27.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 28.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

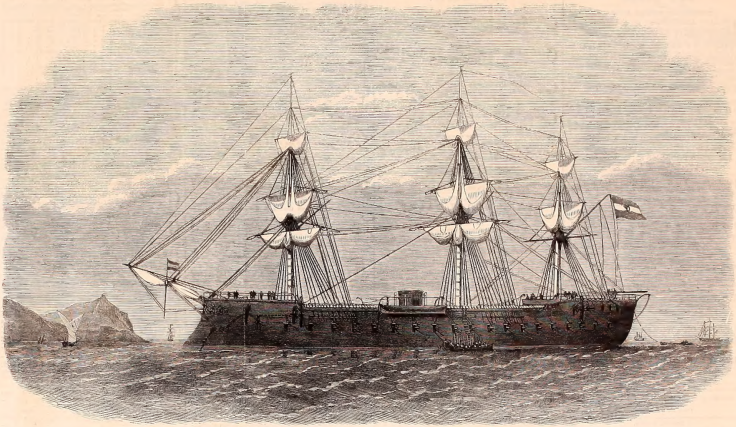
Mar. 29.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 30.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Mar. 31.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Apr. 1.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.

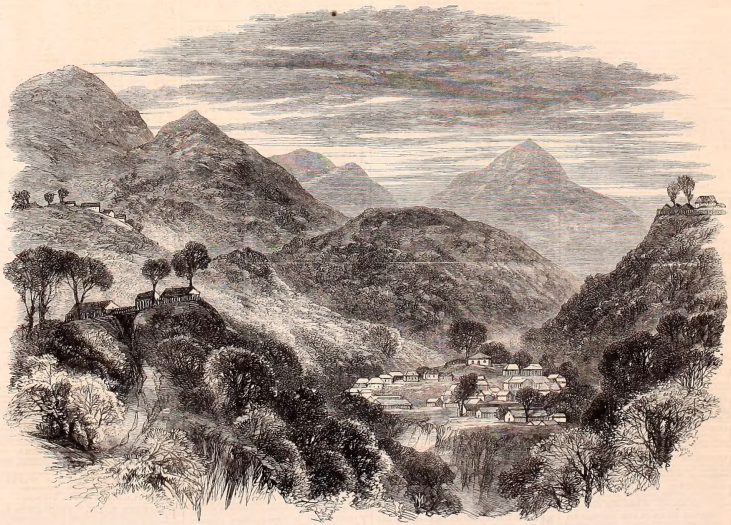
Apr. 2.—Wheat, 1,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000; oats, 1,000; flour, 1,000 sacks.



Apr. 3.—Wheat, 1,000 q

PROCESSION OF BOATS UP THE RIVER FROM THE BRITISH CONSULATE.

PROCESSION FROM THE ROYAL LANDING-PLACE TO THE PALACE.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.



THE SPANISH IRON-CLAD FRIGATE NUMANCIA IN THE HARBOUR OF CALLAO.

She has a top-gallant forecastle and poop; the former contains the sick bay, the latter the captain's cabin and various offices. We are indebted to Mr. Clement Penny, of H.M.S. Leander, now at Callao, for our drawing of this ship.

BUXA DOOARS, BHOOTAN.

As it appears from the latest Indian news that the war against Bhootan is about to be renewed, and we shall probably soon hear of an advance into that country, there may be some interest in the View of Buxa Dooars, which has been engraved for our Journal from a sketch taken by Mr. Gregory, one of the officers engaged in the late campaign. The town of Buxa Dooars, which looks rather like an inconsiderable hamlet, is perched on a ledge of rock in a deep recess of the mountains, commanding the road that leads to the plains beyond the British frontier. The capital city of Bhootan is Poonakha, which lies much farther to the north. Here the Deb and Dharm Rajahs, forming the ruling Durbar, or Council of Chieftains, are preparing to resist the British invasion; while Tongso Penlow the most influential of those potentates, holds out in Eastern Bhootan, notwithstanding the capture of Dewangiri. The force to be sent is to consist of 7000 troops, 1000 of which are to be European soldiers, and it is intended to start early in October. Great difficulties are anticipated from the nature of the country, which admits of only "single-file marching." General Showers is to command the force. The distance which the invading force will have to traverse is about 120 miles. As a matter of course, this country will have to be permanently held, subject to the perils from disease that threaten the present force. It is supposed that Poonakha may be occupied by December.

THE WAR IN BHOOTAN: VIEW OF BUXA DOOARS.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

OSWALD HASTINGS; or the Adventures of a Queen's Aide-de-Camp. By Capt. W. H. MAXWELL. 3 vols.
ANDREW RAMSAY OF ERROL. By the Author of "John Arnold," &c. 3 vols.
THE LADY OF WINBURNE. By ALICHEING. 3 vols.
WILD MYRTLE. By the Author of "Lilliesleaf."
MARGARET AND HER BRIDESMAIDS. By LUCY HOUGH, the FEMBERTON FAMILY. Edited by the Author of "Margaret and her Bridesmaids." 3 vols.
DOCTOR HARLEY. By Mrs. GASCOIGNE, Author of "Temptation," &c. 3 vols.
Just ready.
HUNST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-st.

Now ready,
Imperial 8vo, 620 pages, cloth, 18s. 6d., half morocco, 24s.,
THE STUDENT'S ENGLISH DICTIONARY, ETYMOLOGICAL, PRONOUNCING, and EXPLANATORY. Especially adapted for the use of Colleges and Schools. By JOHN OGILVIE, LL.D. With about 50 Engravings on Wood.
WILLIAM and ROBERT CHAMBERS, London and Edinburgh.

New Novel, by the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," &c.
SIR JASPER'S TENANT. The Lady's Mile. By M. E. BRADDON. 3 vols.
JAMES MAXWELL and CO., 178, Fleet-street.

CLERGY.—THE CHESSPLAYER'S MAGAZINE (Monthly). Edited by J. LOWENTHAL. Price One Shilling.
KENT and CO., and all Booksellers.

This day, Vol. I. of JOURNAL, with Eighteen Large Blue Outlines by MARIE SPARTALI and HARRY, pp. 382, price 8s. 6d.,
THE DAY OF REST. A Magazine of Pure Literature. All the articles in this volume have been specially prepared for Family Reading, and it will be found a varied and entertaining companion for all Classes.
London: WARD, LOCK, and TYLER, 158, Fleet-street.

Now ready, at all Libraries,
THE JOURNAL OF EUGENIE DE GUERIN. 7s. 6d.
"It is a remarkable record of the impressions made in France by this book that it has gone through ten editions in less than two years. Its success is due to a most touching account of a simple, pure, and affectionate life, and its true strength as a book. Her journal is the outpouring of a heart which finds its chief happiness in the ever-relieved sympathy of a friend."—Spectator.
HURST and BLACKETT, and CO., Successors to Henry Colburn, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Published this day,
ESSAYS ON WOMAN'S WORK. By LUCY H. HOOPER. Author of "Letters from Every Land," &c. Price 1s. Forming the first volume of "The Home" Library of Original Works, at every Railway Station and Bookstall.

CITOYENNE JACQUELINE: A Woman's Lot in the Great French Revolution. By SARAH TYTLER. 3 vols. 31s. 6d.
HURST and BLACKETT, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

New Edition, on Fine Toned Paper, Woodcut, 18s. Monthly, 7s.,
CASSELL'S HISTORY OF ENGLAND, from the Earliest Times.
Order No. 1 or 2 of Specimen.

Price 1s., Monthly,
THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.
Contents of No. 1, Vol. I., New Series (OCTOBER):—
I. Hearts Ensnar. By the Author of "Squire Rowley's Difficulties." Chaps. I.-III.
II. Little Nell and the Wood Sprays of Malta.
III. Periwinkle's Fear. A Tale of Terror. Chaps. XIV., XV., and XVI.
IV. Flowers: the walks in beauty like the night. With Full-page Illustration.
V. Ingenious Mechanical Exercises.
VI. Thomas Cooper's Female Convict-ship.
VII. The Fashions.
IX. The Englishwoman's Conversazione.
X. Answers to Correspondents. By Captain Mayne Reid.
XI. Le Monde Elegant.
XII. "For Value." By Thomas Hood. Chaps. XIX., XX.
XIII. Cookery and Confectionery.
XIV. The Parlour Entertainer.
XV. The Fashionable Lady's Work-Drawer.
XVI. Hints on Needlework.
XVII. Answers to Correspondents.
ROUTLEDGE, WARNE, and ROUTLEDGE.

A Choice of Recipes, containing Information about Fashion, Dress, and Needlework.
THE Ladies' Walking Guide; how attained (twenty-eight illustrations); Dancing (with its imitation of gesture and of motion); border for dresses, petticoats, &c., stitches for a little girl's dress; Crochet (with its twenty-four illustrations); Knitting; dress for a little girl; autumn dresses for children; morning visit; visiting toilet; dress for a round table; crochet border; crochet insertion; Van-dyke border in Berlin-wool; round bib-to-cover (two illustrations); round bed-cushion (two illustrations); Ottoman cushion; Ottoman cushion-cover.
A Splendid Double-coloured and post-free for Eightpence.
London: S. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

NEW EDITION—NEW STORY!
"AUTUMN FRUITS."—"MISS CROSBY'S MATCHMAKING." "THE YOUNG ENGLISHWOMAN," Part 9., double number, price 1s., a Beautiful Picture, Printed in Colours, and contains "Autumn Fruits," and "Miss Crosby's Matchmaking," a New Serial Tale.

THE YOUNG ENGLISHWOMAN, Part 9., now ready, price Sevenpence, with Coloured Plate, and
With a Beautiful Picture printed in Colours,
Tales, Poetry, Fashions designed and painted by Ann le Pare; Needlework, Knitting, and Crochet, Illustrated by Original Designs.
London: S. O. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

THE FAMILY HERALD, that joy to tens of thousands, becomes English homicide." Advertisement of Mr. Beeton.
THE FAMILY HERALD, October Part, price Eightpence.
London: S. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

In ten Series Sixpence,
NICE. Contents:—1, Situation and Climate. 2, Social Aspects. 3, Public Walks. 4, Society. 5, Beauties. 6, Music. 7, Sir Augustus Clifford to the Marchioness of Metel Company, by GROUNDLINGS and SOLOS, 1, Pedestrian-row.

THE ILLUSTRATED WORD BOOK. Price 1s.
ILLUMINATING BEADS and SILK. Outlines, in each; Connected, 24. M. Seven fixed with Illustrations, Designs, and Directions, 3s. 6d. Sent free by the Author, MARY BRADDON, 16, Gonsalvo-villas, London, N.

BAGSTER'S COMPREHENSIVE and other BIBLES.
Illustrated Presentation Catalogue, by post.
At all the principal Booksellers'; and at 15, Paternoster-row, London.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A Priced Catalogue of Foreign and Colonial Stamps sent post-free for 4 stamps, by W. LINCOLN, jun., 482, New Oxford-st., London, W.C. Sandwich Island Stamps, with portrait of the King, post-free, 9d.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Revised and Cheap Guides for the Sender, Toilette, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, to make a minimum of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, Dressing Cases, &c. 42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or Gilt Fittings, Ivory Brushes, Cut Glass Bottles, Jewel Cases, &c. 42, Piccadilly, at Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, 12s. to handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in great variety, Albums for Cabinet Portraits, Autographs, Views, and postage-stamps. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art. Note-paper and envelopes stamped in colour relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Invitations, Best Programmes and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

NEW MUSIC.

THE SENSATION OF THE SEASON.
COOTE'S ECHOES OF LONDON LANCERS, as the Popular Airs of the Day, admirably adapted by Meiliora.—Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. 3s. (Eclipse all there)
Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT MELLON'S CONCERTS.
COOTE'S FAIL-Y-WAY-TALE POLKA TECHNIC QUADRILLE, price 4s., ecliseaded eighty.
Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE
COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. No dance complete without them.
Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE, 4s. In the fascinating style of Waldteufel.
Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE, 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

WAITER! YES, SIR! or THE THREE O'CLOCK GALOP. By HAGENMEYER. Price 3s. With a famous Circus. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

ANOTHER MUSICAL ATTRACTION.
COOTE'S CRICKET GALOP, price 3s., with Illustration of the Cricket Match.
Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

A GENUINE SUCCESS.—Vide public Press.
CASTLE GRIM. Comic Opera. Composed by ALFRED PLUMPTON. Complete for Voice and Piano. The popular songs, Post-free, at half price—
The Bachelor's Lament ... 2s. 6d.
Oh, Mary, Dear Mary ... 2s. 6d.
Let brown prize their maiden's eyes (song by Mr. Honey) ... 2s. 6d.
The Lovers' Quarrel (duet) ... 2s. 6d.
A Thousand Years (duet) ... 2s. 6d.
METZLER and CO., 38, 39, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE WEARING OF THE GREEN. The most popular Irish melody ever published. Price 3s. Also the Companion Pieces, "The Wearing of the Green" Galop. By T. BROWNE. Price 3s. "The Wearing of the Green" Quadrille. By CHARLES COOTE. Price 4s.
METZLER and CO., 38, 39, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

A BEAR-ISH FOGUE QUADRILLE, by A. LEVEY, is. Arnold-the-Fogue Galop, 3s. Arnold-the-Fogue Waltzes, by the Composer, 4s.
METZLER and CO., 38, 39, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

A LOST CHORD. THREE ROSES. Price 3s. each. Post-free, half price.
METZLER and CO., 38, 39, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

FULL SPEED! GALOP. By E. LAURENT. Illustrated. Price 3s. (half price). Orchestra Parts, 2s. Post-free, 18 stamps. METZLER and CO., 38, 39, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

To the press.
THE CELEBRATED GALOP, By J. CASSITY. With Portrait of the great "Clang." Also, Scenes of Every-day Life, Waltzes, Polkas, and Quadrilles.
METZLER and CO., 38, 39, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LA BELLE VIVANDIERE. The most fascinating Valse, composed and dedicated to Miss. Dan Godfrey, by CHARLES GODFREY, Bandmaster Scots Fusilier Guards, is now published, embellished with a Portrait of the fair Vivandiere, price 3s. Also, the Quadrille, Polka, and Galop, each 3s. Post-free for half price.—BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR. Recueils for Piano. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Queen at Windsor. Price 3s. each. Post-free for half price. E. L. HIME'S Parfait Amour Waltzes. Price 4s. Post-free for half price.
BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

THE GREAT PYCHOW GALOP. By C. COOTE. Illustrated with Portrait of the Composer, and Scene from the Pantomime. Price 3s. Post-free for half price. Also, the Quadrille, Waltz, and Polka, by the same Composer. Each 3s. Post-free for half price.
BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST of NEW MUSIC.
WITCH STREET GALOP. By G. Godfrey. Price 3s.; Orchestra, 2s.
THE LAST ROSE. Illustrated by the singer, Miss Poole. Price 3s.
THE CHIMES OF NORMANDY. Complete, arranged by the composer, Planché, and Chorus, complete, 1s.
THE BRIDE'S FAREWELL. By A. C. Godfrey. Price, 4s.
THE BRIDE'S FAREWELL. Duet. By A. C. Godfrey. 4s.
ROBERT COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street, W., and 6, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE COMPLETE SCHOOL OF THE VIOLIN. By Spohr. Price 12s.
THE ONLY LOVE. By F. Abt. Sung with constant encores at the Monday Popular Concerts. Illustrated. Price 3s. 6d.
EVER THINE. By F. Abt. Sung with wonderful success by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington.
All the above Pieces are Post-free for half price, by publishers.
HAMILTON'S PIANO TUTOR. 400th Edition. 4s.; free for 28 stamps.
ROBERT COCKS and CO., 6, New Burlington-street, W., and 6, Great Marlborough-street, W. Established 1750.

NEW COMIC SONGS, with Symphonies and Accompaniments, by CHARLES COOTE. Sung by Mr. Sheridan Shade.—Arthur Lloyd's 2 Comic Songs, in the Great Vance's 20 Comic Songs, in the Great Vance's 20 Comic Songs, in the Great Vance's 20 Comic Songs, in the Great Vance's 20 Comic Songs, in the Great Vance's 20 Comic Songs, in the Great Vance's 20 Comic Songs, in the Great Vance's 20 Comic Songs, in each. Post-free for half price.
London: C. SHEARD, 192, Regent-street.

"Musical Bouquet." Office, 214, High Holborn.
STANDARD ELEMENTARY MUSICAL WORKS, by the Author of "Musical Bouquet," &c. Price 1s. each.
Pianoforte, 36th Edition; &c.; Exotic Instructions for the Pianoforte, 3rd Edition; &c.; Exotic Instructions for the Pianoforte, 3rd Edition; &c. This excellent tutor has been expressly written for the use of Schools, and is the best work of the kind ever published. Sent free for twenty stamps. Also, a selection of Duets, Trios, and Quartets, for Amateurs. Lists of all elementary works for the pianoforte.
London: C. SHEARD, 192, Regent-street Within.

ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS QUADRILLES, by D. BUSSAR. Illustrated with Portraits of Offenbach's popular Opera. Illustrated, 4s.
London: C. SHEARD, 192, Regent-street Within.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST may be had, in 10 Volumes, 2s. 6d. each, or in 2 Volumes, 12s. each. A Catalogue of contents forwarded free on application.
London: CHEVALIER, LAVENU, and BIRD, 59, Regent-street Within.

100 FAVOURITE ENGLISH MELODIES. Price Twopence Each. Published by WILLIAM HUTCHINGS CALLCOTT, Esq. Post-free for 48 stamps.
London: HUTCHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit-street.

100 GERMAN AIRS, selected from popular Operas. Transcribed for the Pianoforte by WILLIAM HUTCHINGS CALLCOTT, Esq. Post-free for 48 stamps.
London: HUTCHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit-street.

THERE IS NO LOVE LIKE A MOTHER'S. Song. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Rapidly gaining popularity. Price 3s. 6d.
London: HUTCHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit-street.

Now ready,
THE BICESTER HUNT GALOP. By MICHIEL. Splendidly illustrated, price 4s. Post-free at half price, by the Publishers, SALE and CO., Cirencester.

HARMONIUMS! HARMONIUMS! £4. Five Stops, 6 octaves; Knee Stops, 37 10s.; Ten Stops, £11 11s. Handsome polished oak. PUGET SAUNAL and CO. 47, Blackfriars-road, Surrey. To be seen daily.

MUSICAL BOX DEPÔTS, 56, Cheapside, and 21, Ludgate-hill.—Nicole Frères' Musical Boxes at 45 per cent off. Snuff-boxes, 10s. 6d. to 12s. each. Catalogues gratis and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

MINERALOGY.—KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON.—Professor TENNANT, F.G.S., will deliver a course of Lectures on this subject, during the present session, with a view to facilitate the study of GEOLOGY, and the application of mineralogy to the arts. The lectures will commence on Friday, October 6, at 10 a.m., and will be continued on each succeeding Wednesday and Friday, at the same hour, until Christmas. Fee, £2 2s. Another course of Lectures, on the Practical Application of Mineralogy to the Arts, will commence on Friday, Nov. 3 to 17, at 10 a.m., and will be continued until Easter, 1866. Fee, £1 1s. 6d.
W. J. HELP, D.D., Principal.

KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON.
The WINTER COURSE of LECTURES will OPEN on MONDAY, OCT. 2, in Divinity, Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Arabic, Sanskrit, Modern Languages, History, Logic, Political Economy, English Language and Literature, English History, Geography, Mathematics, Mechanics, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Botanical Lectures, Geology, Physiology, Medical Jurisprudence, Physics, Surgery, Law, Political Economy, Mineralogy and Geology, Engineering, and Military Science.
The Calendar, containing full particulars of cost, will be forwarded, by application to J. W. CUNNINGHAM, Secretary and Registrar.
Applications for admission may be made daily.

CHEAP SATURDAY TO MONDAY RETURN TICKETS are issued every Saturday Afternoon from Kensington, Addison-road, Shepherd's Bush, Uxbridge-road, Notting-hill, Westbourne Park, Paddington, Chalk Farm, Camden-road, Finsbury-park, Bow, Stratford, Hackney, Dalston, Canonbury, Islington, Kentish Town, and the Three Bridges Stations, to the Great Northern, Brighton, and South Coast Railways.

CREMORNE.—The GREAT EASTERN COMPANY'S Steam-ships Company's vessel, Wonder, leaves Belvidere Wharf Daily (unless prevented by fog), at Quarter past Ten a.m., for Rotherhithe and Greenwich, Deptford, Woolwich, Erith, Gravesend, Sheerness, and Southend, returning from Southend at 4.30, Sheerness at 5.30, Gravesend at 6.30, Greenwich at 7.30, Rotherhithe at 8.30, and Belvidere at 9.30. Fare—From London to Greenwich:
Saloon (Single) ... 1s. 6d. | Saloon (Return (Single) ... 1s. 6d.
Fore Saloon ... 1s. | Ditto (Return) ... 1s.
Fore Saloon Gravesend and Southend ... 2s. 6d.
Children under Ten years of age, half price.
Offices, 61, Gracechurch-street.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.—TOURIST TICKETS, available for Two Months, are ISSUED from ST. PANCRAS to the MIDLAND BOOKING-OFFICE (Cheapside), Derby, Leeds, Bradford, Ilkley, Harrogate, Knaresborough, Scarborough, Whitby, Morecambe, Heysham, Lancaster, Carlisle, Settle, Ingleton, Clapham, Giggleswick, Hellifield, Skipton, Ripon, Dunmow, Stirling, Perth, Pitlochry, Aberfeldy, Inverness, &c.
Tickets and Time-Bills may be obtained at the Company's Stations and Booking-Offices.
By order, JAMES ALLPORT, Chief Manager.
JAMES ALLPORT, General Manager.
Derby, July, 1865.

ROYAL NAVAL and MILITARY and GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837), under Royal Patronage, 10, Regent-street, London, S.W.
ARTHUR R. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

RENÉ FAVARGER and FRANK MORI, Sole Agents for Messrs. Saml. Jeremiah Quare, Church Hevinge, Private Lessons.—St. Ayscough-gardens, Kensington Parkroad, W.; and St. Gothard-promenade, Zurich, Switzerland.

DAY and SON (Limited), Capital, £50,000, in 10,000 Shares of £5 each.
Chairman—Sir JOHN CHARLES DAY, Knt., and the remaining Directors are about to be selected. A Prospectus will be duly called up thereon.
The Subscription Lists of 1st next per annum is guaranteed on the profits of the business. For prospectus, &c., to the solicitors to the Directors, or to the Secretary, at the Offices of the Company. Prospectus and Forms of Application may be had with the report and balance-sheet presented by the Directors to the Shareholders, at the Offices of the Company, 17, Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane, W.C.; 4, Argyll-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields, London, W.C.

TASTE RIPENING.—Dr. HUNT begs to inform persons having delicate children that he has received special arrangements to RECEIVE TWENTY-FIVE, who will reside with him, receive a superior education, and have the benefit of his skill for the treatment of the defect. A few Adult Pupils. Prices from 100 guineas. 17, Southampton-buildings.

QUADRANT EXCHANGE BANK, 66, Regent-street, W.
Noblemen's, officers', and others' Cheques discounted immediately.
W. BENJAMIN, Manager.

Just out,
THOS. DE LA RUE and CO.'S PATENT ENVELOPE FOLDER. Price Fourpence for the Season now ready, and may be had of all Stationers and Bookmen.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPÔT for the Sale of MERCHANT'S Celebrated Instruments in REVIVED from 24 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large assortment of Musical Boxes, playing from two to twelve tunes, by the best makers, always on sale.

THE ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S PRIZE CHURN, the simplest and best for private use. Manufactured by JOSEPH BAMFORD and SON, Uttoxeter. Price £3 10s. Illustrated Circulars free by post.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The PEOPLE'S PRINTING-PRESS, price from 6s. upwards, for Cards, Circulars, Programmes, &c. Lists of Presses, Type, &c., and "Hints on Letterpress," 1s., or 13 stamps each.—D. G. CLARK, Manufacturer of Printing Presses and Materials, 4, Bride-lane, Fleet-street, London.

GLOVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, W. London W., 95, Bold-street, Liverpool; patentees MARTINGALE and other Improved Reins, Bits, Saddles, Harness, Whips, and Spurs. Manufacturers to the Royal Family, Her Majesty's and Hussar Mackay they are positively patronised, being plain and ornamental, Saddlery, Harness, Whips, Spurs, Bits, Reins, Saddle, Harness, Whips, Spurs, Bits, Reins, Saddle, Harness, Whips, Spurs, Bits, Reins, Saddle

PICTURE FRAMES, very handsome, for the "Dublin Exhibition," given with this Paper, 5s. 6d.; by post, 6s. 6d. Size, 24 by 20 inches. Also a large variety of Frames for the Guns, &c. Engravings of Mrs. Macdonald Lockhart and Miss Kemble's great, at 6250. REES, 34, St. Martin's-lane, Charing-cross.

SCRAPS for SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c. A great variety of Pictures, Figures, Landscapes, &c. Specimen sheets free by 12 stamps. 50 sheets, assorted, post-free, 10s. 6d. REES, MASSARD, 25, Cornhill-by-the-Exchange, London, W.

FOR FAMILY ARMS, send Name and Address to CULLETON'S HERALDIC OFFICE, 25, High-street, 2s. 6d.; in accurate colours, 6s.; the arms of man and wife blended together, 5s.; the proper heraldic colours for painting, 5s. The Manual of Heraldry, 130 Engravings, 2s. 6d.; Boutell's Heraldry, Historical and Popular, 5s.; Crests of the Nobility, Baronetage, Knightage, Peerage, arms, crests, and mottoes of 10,000 families, and book plates, crests, 3s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Heraldic Office, 25, High-street, New Oxford-street, London. Useful Catalogue, one stamp. Seals and Dies.

MONOGRAMS designed, 1s.; crest dies cut, 5s. No charge for engraving crest, address, or monogram like this, or any plate for a sum of pence and shillings. Best quality, 4s. all stamped free and carriage paid.—T. CULLETON, Heraldic Office, 25, High-street, New Oxford-street, London.

VISITING CARDS.—A Card-plate, engraved in the best style, and 50 best cards, 2s. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 30 best embossed envelopes, address name printed inside, all for 7s. 6d. T. CULLETON, Heraldic Office, 25, Cranbourne-street, corner of St. Martin's-lane.

MARK YOUR LINEN with CULLETON'S ELECTRO-SILVER PLATES. No preparation; any one can use them. Initial Plate, 1s.; Name, 2s. 6d.; Set of Numbers, 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d.; Crest Plate, 5s., with directions, post-free, for 12 stamps.—T. CULLETON, 25, Heraldic Office, Cranbourne-street, London.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by a NEW TELESCOPE for 5s. which will also distinguish the Satellites of Jupiter, Saturn's Ring, Mountains in the Moon, Nebulæ, Binary Stars, and is said to apply for a Surveyor, also short sighted persons and eight sheets of instructions from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse, Sir David Brewster, Sir John Herschel, Professor Nichol, Admiral-street, Piccadilly. Right-power Pocket Telescopes, Opera Glasses, Field and Marine Glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and most perfect ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and carries into focus from a centre to infinity. Invaluable to the tourist, sportsman, and yachtsman. Sent on receipt of its cards, size, and address, for 21s. Also, at 30s. and 35s. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

POCKET BAROMETER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, all in one, the size of a watch, for telling the weather, the height of mountains, direction of winds, and temperature. Invaluable to the tourist, sportsman, and yachtsman. Sent free, 30s.—SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

SPECTACLES.—TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including the Prince of Wales, and recommended by the most eminent oculists and opticians. The great advantage in these spectacles is, superior vision by augmented persons is, instead, of vital importance. One of the First, who has had great experience on subjects of vision in this branch only.—S. and H. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—THE NEW INVISIBLE TRUMPET and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. In its use the most perceptible, conveys singular clearness of sound, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and H. SOLOMONS, Aurists, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS.—The Art of Magic Explained, with Illustrations. These Apparatus comprise a Slide, improved Achromatic Lantern, Jointed Rod, Condensing Lens, a microscopic transparency, and magic mirror; ten slides, containing forty subjects; eight movable slides, containing sixteen subjects; and a book of instructions, price 21s.; or, with a dissolving apparatus, and other slides, 42s. S. and H. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE. Price 21s. Invaluable to the Tourist. Sent on receipt of its cards, size, and address. Catalogue sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the SOLOMONSTOWER GLASS, at 42s. each.—This "Tourist's Favourite" distinctly shows small wire-worn ten miles off. Carefully packed, and sent on receipt of its cards, size, and address. Catalogue, with descriptions of Telescopes, Field and Spectacles. "I find it all you say, and wonderfully powerful for its portability."—Rev. J. Barlow, Rectory, Bishopstone. "I am very much pleased with my glass."—Rev. Dr. Hume, Bishop's Stortford." Sir Digby Cayley: "It gives me exquisite satisfaction, and is wonderfully good." Sir Walter Trevelyan, Bart.: "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave 21 5s." Captain Hall, Royal Navy: "Very good indeed." Mr. Lee: "Very effective for 1000 yards' range." Mr. Frederick Fox: "Excellent." "I never before, although I have tried many, met a glass equal to it."—Rev. Mr. Hall, Rector of Bishopstone, Salisbury. "The Rajah" has received it safely, and is much pleased with it, and more than four times its price."—Notes and Queries: "What tourist will now start without such an indispensable companion?" "Wonderfully good."—Bystander: "Glass shows bullet-marks at 1200 yards, and the time of a church clock at 2 miles."—Field: "Remarkably good for the registered trade marks, "Solomons," "Albemarle-street," and "Hythe," are only to be had direct from, and by written application to, S. and H. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at 41 13s.; for a Gentleman, at 5 5s. Sovereign at the Lowest Remunerative Cash Prices of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

JENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen, to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and to the Royal Family, and for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Bishopsgate.

M. F. DENT, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to the Queen and to the principal Courts of Europe.

M. F. DENT, 33, 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, London.

A FORBES, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 3, Baronet-street, Hanover-square, W.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTISTIC HAIR JEWELLERY beautifully mounted and secured in fine gold Hair Brooches, Bracelets, Rings, Pins, Lockets, and Guards precisely the same as about one had the natal charge. An elegant selection of specimens of Jewellery mounted for the inspection of parties entertained at the most reasonable terms. A pamphlet containing full particulars, with prices, sent by return. Book sent post-free.—MARY ANNE PHILLIPS, 4, Sackville-street, London.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Hair-worker, &c., to the Gold Medal Exhibition, 1862, and Gold Medal Soaps, from to 64, Hyde Abbeys, from 25s. each, &c. Hooper's Gutta-percha Hair Nets.—174, Regent-street, London.

LADIES WEARING THEIR HAIR in the Chignon should use the new Preparation that restores the original hair. Sent post-free for 24 stamps.—ALEXANDRE, 20, Rue Castiglione, Paris; and 246, Regent-street, W., London.

TRAVELLING and DRESSING BAGS and CASES.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS and CASES, fitted with their improved cutlery and every article of luxury and convenience of the toilet.

Dressing and Bags. Mounted. Morocco. Leather. Leather. Opening.

Lady's Travelling Bag ... £1 10 0 £2 10 0 £3 15 0 £4 10 0
Ditto, with Writing Materials ... 2 0 0 3 0 0 4 0 0 7 0 0
Gentleman's Travelling Bag ... 2 2 0 3 3 0 5 0 0 5 10 0
Ditto, with Writing Materials ... 3 0 0 4 5 0 6 5 0 8 5 0
Ditto, with Dressing Case and Writing Materials ... 4 4 0 6 6 0 8 8 0 11 0 0

Registered Oxford Travelling-bag, fitted in the most complete manner ... £5 5s.
The prices of Dressing-cases and bags can be increased to any extent.
Lady's Wood Dressing Case ... £1 1 0 £1 16 0 £2 10 0 £3 4 0
Gentleman's Travelling Leather ditto ... 2 0 16 0 2 16 0 3 5 0 4 10 0
Ditto, better quality, with more complete fitting ... 3 15 0 5 5 0 7 0 0 9 0 0
Address only 77 and 78, Oxford-street; and 71 and 72, Cornhill, London. Manufactory—the Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their astonishing performances every day at 3 and 8 o'clock. Admission, 6d. Send post-free for 14 stamps.—R. G. CLARKE and Co., 324, Strand.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—PETER ROBINSON'S SILK and DRAPERY WAREHOUSE, for all Coloured Goods, Mantles, Shawls, Dresses, Ribbons, &c.
103 to 108, Oxford-street.
Peter Robinson's MOURNING WAREHOUSE is at 256 to 262, Regent-street.
Patterns of all goods post-free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW SILKS.
An Extensive variety of Rich Reversible Silk Poult-de-Soie and Rare Reversible Cords, at exceedingly low Designs in Checks and Stripes, 1 1s. 6d. to 2 2s. the Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR WEDDING DRESSES.
Rich Poult-de-Soie, special quality, 2 2s. 6d. Silk, made to our order expressly for Bridal Costume.
Patterns post-free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LADIES' READY-MADE DRESSES.
An exceedingly large assortment of the above in the "Vesta" Poplin, Scotch Tweed, French Cashmere, &c., elegantly made and uniformly trimmed in the latest style of fashion.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A CHOICE COLLECTION OF NEW COLOURS in THE DIAGONAL WOOL SERGE, 27 inches wide, "Vesta" quality, at 1s. 6d. per yard, and the "Popular Vienna" do. at 1s. 6d. per yard, in all the New Colours, Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

STRIPED, CHECKED, AND FIGURED FANCY SILKS.
An endless variety of patterns suitable for Ladies' Costumes, Waistcoats, Fashionable Scarfs, &c., in 54 qualities, from 1s. to 5s. per yard. Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

Several decidedly New Colours in the PARIS POPLINS AND CASHMERE-LINES.
A most useful and elegant Dress. 22s. 6d. 2 patterns.
The new Turkish Cloth, 27 inches wide, 1s. 6d. per yard. Checks, Stripes, and Plain.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

Every New Colour in
REAL ARABIAN BERNOUS WINCEYS, 36, 9d. to 37s. 6d. Full Dress.
Some very useful Checks and Stripes, 36, 9d. to 36s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

White Grenadine and Book Muslins for
BRIDAL and BALL DRESSES.
Striped, Plain, or Brocké (rose silks),
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

Rich Brocké Velvet Cloaks, in all the new patterns each.
Plain and Various Stripes in endless variety.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

WATERPROOF MANTLES for Travelling and Seaside, in various colours and sizes.
No. 1, 10s. 6d.; No. 2, 12s. 6d.; No. 3, 15s. 6d.;
No. 4, rich mourning, lace, 21s.; No. 5, rich mourning, lace, 25s.;
No. 6, rich mourning, lace, 3l. 3s.; No. 7, rich mourning, lace, 3l. 10s.; No. 8, rich velvet, and trimmed with Brussels lace, 4l. 4s.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

REAL SEAL-FUR PALETOTS.
27 in. deep, 3l. 3s.; 30 in. deep, 4l. 4s.; 33 in. deep, 5l. 5s.; 36 in. deep, 6l. 6s.; 40 in. deep, 7l. 7s.; 45 in. deep, 8l. 8s.; 50 in. deep, 10l. 10s.; 54 in. deep, 12l. 12s.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE NEW REVERSIBLE
ST. GOTHARD MANTLES and JACKETS
In a great variety of Colours, and in all the New Shapes for Autumn and the Winter, from 1l. 1s. to 5l. 5s. Also, in the various substances of rather ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE NEW REGALIA JACKET,
for Autumn Wear, Reversible, Quilted, and Lambswool, in great variety of colour and design.
Price 1l. 1s.
This is the most fashionable article of dress in Paris at this season.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Post purchased,
A MANUFACTURER'S STOCK of FRENCH-WOVE LADIES' HALF-HOSE, at 1s. 6d. consisting of 24 qualities,
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY
now open.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.
NEW SILKS READY TO PRESS,
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, 22 3s.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, 22 3s.
New Checked Poult-de-Soie, 14 yards, 22 3s.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.
Patterns free.
A large assortment of New Designs, 22 to 5l. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

SERGES and ALPACAS, ALL-WOOL WEAR.
Diagonal Serges, useful colours, 9½, 6d. and 4s. for 12 yards.
Patterns free.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINENS and DRAPERY.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheets, Blankets, Quilts, Counterpanes, Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Diaper.
Made and Marked Linens, Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, Trousseaux, Layette, &c.

MEXICAN POPLINS
in all the New Colours, 9½, 6d. 10s. 6d. the 12 yards, 1 wide.
Chintz Furnitures in all useful Colours,
10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 18s. 6d., 21s. 6d.
Silk Damasks, Reps, and Brocatelles.
Patterns free.—JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK SILKS.
Dresses and Glacés (Bright Imperial Black),
Rich Corded Glacés, 14 yards, 22 3s.
Rich Gros de Tours, Gros Grains, &c.,
22 3s. to 23 3s. the Full Dress (14 yards).
Rich Black Figured Silks, Checks, Stripes, &c., in the newest designs, 22 to 5l. for 14 yards.
Patterns post-free.
CATER and COMPANY, Mercers and Drapery-square, E.C.

MANTLE CLOTHS.
Useful Cloths of Cloth for Jackets or Mantles, a very large stock of Woollen and Cotton Goods for Gentlemen's and Boys' wear, at exceedingly low prices. Patterns free.—CHARLES BIRKING and CO., Woollen Warehouse, 31, Bishopsgate-street.

NEW AUTUMN SILKS.
GRANT and GASK are now showing a large Stock of New Autumn Silks. Amongst them are 600 pieces of black-grounded Silks, in Checks, Stripes, and Figures, at 1s. 6d. per yard, and a large assortment of Rich Glacés, throughout the Full Dress, 1l. 1s.
Made-up Skirts in every variety of material for travelling and seaside wear, at most moderate prices.
A large purchase of Aberdeen Linseys at 1s. 9d. per yard, just received.
ALL SUMMER STOCK at greatly REDUCED PRICES.
Patterns forwarded free.
GRANT and GASK, 58, Oxford-street.

58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 1, 2, and 3, Wells-street, London.

REAL SEALSKIN JACKETS.
A Manufacturer finds it time Fashionable Garments, at a price each. 100 to select from.
Also Waterproof Tweed Jackets, with Sleeves, at one guinea.
The Fashionable Velvet Jacket for Autumn Wear, at 2 guineas.
GRANT and GASK.

58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 1, 2, and 3, Wells-street, London.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
Patterns post-free.
Rich Black Glacé, 22 inches wide, 2s. 6d. per yard; 42 inches wide, 3s. 6d. per yard. Rich Black Gros Grain, 2s. 6d. per yard.
New Tartan Silks, in Checks and Stripes, 1s. 6d. per yard.
Japanese Cashmere in rich dress Shades, 42 in. the 6d. per yard.
Black Figured Gros Grains, 2s. 3d. per yard; worth 3s.
Rich Black Figured Glacés, 2s. 6d. per yard; worth 3s.
White-with-black Checks, Narrow Column, at 2s. 6d. the Dress of 14 yards.
Silk Velveteens and Velvets, all New Colours, for the season.
THOMAS and JOHN JONES, 577, 579, 581, and 583, Oxford-street.

A large stock of the best makes, newly-arrived for sale, in all widths and lengths, at the lowest prices.
Widths, 5-8, 3-4, 7-8, 4-4, 5-4, 6-4, 7-4, 8-4, 9-4, 10-4, 11-4, 12-4.
Lengths, 1 yard, 2 yards, 3 yards, 4 yards, 5 yards, 6 yards, 7 yards, 8 yards, 9 yards, 10 yards, 11 yards, 12 yards.
A large assortment of Linen Damasks, Diapers, Huckabacks, in all the best makes, at the lowest prices.
A choice lot of Printed and Woven Fancies for Shirts, 3s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 9s. 6d.
A choice assortment of Ladies' Linen Sleeves, Mending Threads, Underwear, &c.
Drapers, Dressmakers, and Tailors supplied with cut lengths at Wholesale Prices.
Close on Setting-down Time for Church.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., 27 and 28, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, E.C.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Rich Black Glacé Silks, 1s. 6d., 2s., 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d. Full Dress.
New Striped, Checked, and Plain Silks, 1l. 1s. 6d. to 2 guineas.
Rich Coloured Silks, suitable for Young Ladies' Dresses.
Gold Brocade Silks, all the new Shades, at a great reduction.
Patterns free. 198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Rich, Bright, Wide, and Durable Glacés, Gros, &c.,
Special Sale, No. 1, Thursday, 2s. 6d.
Our noted Gros Grain, at 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d.
Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

GOOD and CHEAP SILKS! all the year round, at BAKER and CRISP'S. 198, Regent-street.
Black, Lavender, Sky, Pink, and other Fancy Silks, all 1s. goods
The very best Black Silks, at 1s. 6d. per yard, 24 inches wide.
Rich Black Gros Grain, 2s. 6d. per yard, 24 inches wide.
Rich Black Glacé, 2s. 6d. per yard, 24 inches wide.
Rich Black Gros Grain, 3s. 6d. per yard, 24 inches wide.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

SERGES, 16s. 9d.; FRENCH MERINOES, 1s. 9d.; 1s. 11½d.; and CROPS' New Serges, French Merinoes, Alexandra Wincays, Broche Cords, French Fashions, Wool Poults, Poplins, Cashmeres, Bareges, Grenadines, &c., at 198, Regent-street, by Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40,

NEW MUSIC.

NEW WALTZ BY DALBERT.

HOME, SWEET HOME. New Waltz, by DALBERT. CHARLES D'ALBERT, on Clarionette. Price 4s. Illustrated, Sweet Home." Performed at the Crystal Palace. Price 4s. Illustrated, from by Louis Haghe. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MAY WALTZ. By ALFRED MELLON. Performed at his concerts at Covent Garden Theatre with great success. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL LANCIERS. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Composer to the Coldstream Guards. Highly encored at Mellon's Concerts. The "Holborn" new waltz. "Mabel," promises to rival in popularity his "Grande Waltz" so universally admired.—Times, June 6. "A waltz which bids fair to rival, if not to surpass, the popularity of his "Grande Waltz" in popularity."—Daily Telegraph, June 6. Price Band, 7s. 6d.; Military Band, 10s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

Just published,

MABEL. A Song, written by Henry Farnie, adapted to the melody of "The Maiden Waltz," by D. GODFREY. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz, arranged by D. GODFREY, Bandmaster to the Coldstream Guards. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU à L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "Les Huguenots," performed every evening at Mellon's Concerts, arranged for the Pianoforte, Harmonium, or Organ, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU à L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "Les Huguenots," performed every evening at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, arranged for Violin, Flute, or Cornet, by the late Lieut. RICHARDS. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. Peter's at Rome on Christmas and Easter Days, arranged for the Pianoforte by VIVIANI. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WEARIN' O' THE GREEN.—The only Genuine Edition of Words and Music, as sung by Mr. Bonciault in the drama of "Arrah-na-Pogue." Price 1s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this Standard Work is now ready, containing the Rudiments of Music, from "Point" to "Double Chromatic Chords," Scales, &c.; "The Laws of Time," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, the rudiments of Harmony, and Instructions for Practising. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. Boosey's Favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BARNEY O'HEA. A new Irish melody, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. "Les Clochettes." Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d. "Les Clochettes." Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d. MARION, Musicsellers and Co., 59, New Bond-street.

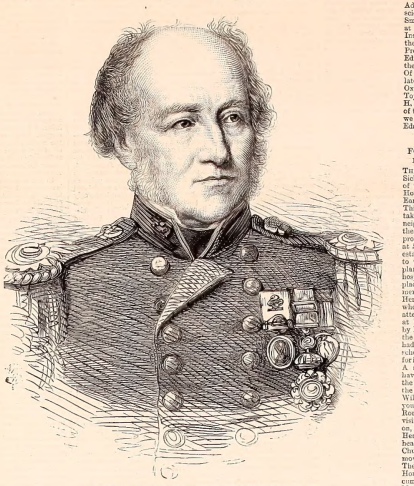
KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Quadrille, à l'Antiope, on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: a collection of space, and meditative voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, for the use of churches where time is limited. Edited by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from four to twelve favourite voluntaries, printed from the entire plates from which the pianoforte arrangements have been already arranged expressly with pedal obligato. The first number will be published on the 1st of October, and a number will appear on the 1st of each month. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Violin, and Flute. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the "Estelle" and "Mabel," by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin, and Flute, each 1s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

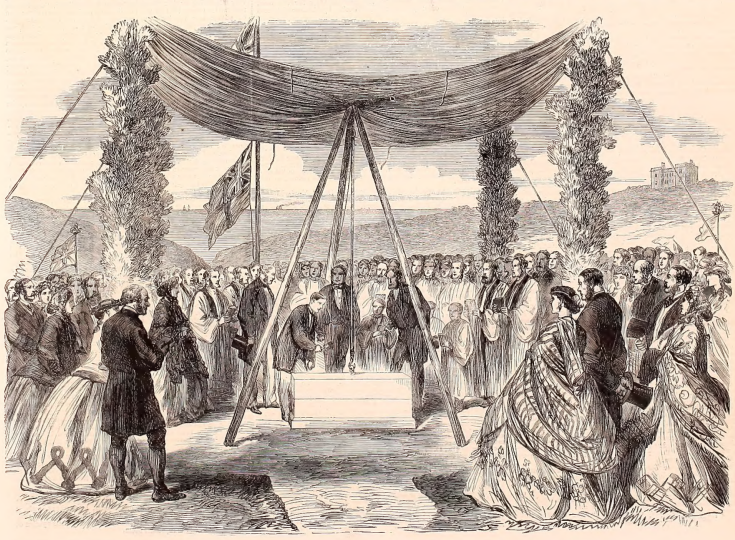


GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each. No. 1. The Estelle Waltz. No. 2. The Mabel Quadrille. No. 3. The Mabel Waltz. No. 4. The Sleigh. No. 5. The Orpheus Galop. No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE of VOCAL and PIANOFORTE MUSIC, in shilling Numbers. Price 1s. each, or 12s. per annum.

No. 1. Sacred Vocal Music (Sixth Selection).
No. 2. Sacred Vocal Music (Fifth Selection).
No. 3. Sacred Vocal Music (Seventh Selection).
No. 4. Sacred Miscellaneous Music (Eighth Selection).
No. 5. Sacred Miscellaneous Music (Ninth Selection).
No. 6. Sacred Music for Christmas Season, for Pianoforte Duo.
No. 7. Sacred Music for Christmas Season, for Pianoforte Duo.
No. 8. Sacred Music for Christmas Season, for Pianoforte Duo.
No. 9. Sacred Music for Christmas Season, for Pianoforte Duo.
No. 10. Sacred Music for Christmas Season, for Pianoforte Duo.
No. 11. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 1st.
No. 12. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 2nd.
No. 13. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 3rd.
No. 14. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 4th.
No. 15. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 5th.
No. 16. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 6th.
No. 17. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 7th.
No. 18. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 8th.
No. 19. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 9th.
No. 20. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 10th.
No. 21. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 11th.
No. 22. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 12th.
No. 23. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 13th.
No. 24. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 14th.
No. 25. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 15th.
No. 26. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 16th.
No. 27. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 17th.
No. 28. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 18th.
No. 29. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 19th.
No. 30. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 20th.
No. 31. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 21st.
No. 32. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 22nd.
No. 33. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 23rd.
No. 34. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 24th.
No. 35. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 25th.
No. 36. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 26th.
No. 37. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 27th.
No. 38. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 28th.
No. 39. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 29th.
No. 40. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 30th.
No. 41. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 31st.
No. 42. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 32nd.
No. 43. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 33rd.
No. 44. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 34th.
No. 45. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 35th.
No. 46. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 36th.
No. 47. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 37th.
No. 48. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 38th.
No. 49. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 39th.
No. 50. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 40th.
No. 51. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 41st.
No. 52. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 42nd.
No. 53. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 43rd.
No. 54. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 44th.
No. 55. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 45th.
No. 56. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 46th.
No. 57. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 47th.
No. 58. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 48th.
No. 59. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 49th.
No. 60. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 50th.
No. 61. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 51st.
No. 62. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 52nd.
No. 63. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 53rd.
No. 64. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 54th.
No. 65. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 55th.
No. 66. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 56th.
No. 67. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 57th.
No. 68. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 58th.
No. 69. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 59th.
No. 70. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 60th.
No. 71. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 61st.
No. 72. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 62nd.
No. 73. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 63rd.
No. 74. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 64th.
No. 75. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 65th.
No. 76. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 66th.
No. 77. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 67th.
No. 78. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 68th.
No. 79. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 69th.
No. 80. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 70th.
No. 81. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 71st.
No. 82. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 72nd.
No. 83. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 73rd.
No. 84. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 74th.
No. 85. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 75th.
No. 86. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 76th.
No. 87. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 77th.
No. 88. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 78th.
No. 89. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 79th.
No. 90. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 80th.
No. 91. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 81st.
No. 92. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 82nd.
No. 93. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 83rd.
No. 94. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 84th.
No. 95. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 85th.
No. 96. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 86th.
No. 97. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 87th.
No. 98. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 88th.
No. 99. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 89th.
No. 100. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 90th.
No. 101. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 91st.
No. 102. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 92nd.
No. 103. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 93rd.
No. 104. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 94th.
No. 105. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 95th.
No. 106. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 96th.
No. 107. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 97th.
No. 108. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 98th.
No. 109. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 99th.
No. 110. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 100th.
No. 111. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 101st.
No. 112. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 102nd.
No. 113. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 103rd.
No. 114. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 104th.
No. 115. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 105th.
No. 116. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 106th.
No. 117. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 107th.
No. 118. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 108th.
No. 119. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 109th.
No. 120. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 110th.
No. 121. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 111th.
No. 122. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 112th.
No. 123. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 113th.
No. 124. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 114th.
No. 125. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 115th.
No. 126. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 116th.
No. 127. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 117th.
No. 128. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 118th.
No. 129. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 119th.
No. 130. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 120th.
No. 131. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 121st.
No. 132. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 122nd.
No. 133. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 123rd.
No. 134. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 124th.
No. 135. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 125th.
No. 136. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 126th.
No. 137. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 127th.
No. 138. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 128th.
No. 139. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 129th.
No. 140. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 130th.
No. 141. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 131st.
No. 142. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 132nd.
No. 143. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 133rd.
No. 144. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 134th.
No. 145. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 135th.
No. 146. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 136th.
No. 147. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 137th.
No. 148. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 138th.
No. 149. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 139th.
No. 150. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 140th.
No. 151. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 141st.
No. 152. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 142nd.
No. 153. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 143rd.
No. 154. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 144th.
No. 155. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 145th.
No. 156. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 146th.
No. 157. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 147th.
No. 158. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 148th.
No. 159. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 149th.
No. 160. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 150th.
No. 161. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 151st.
No. 162. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 152nd.
No. 163. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 153rd.
No. 164. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 154th.
No. 165. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 155th.
No. 166. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 156th.
No. 167. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 157th.
No. 168. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 158th.
No. 169. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 159th.
No. 170. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 160th.
No. 171. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 161st.
No. 172. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 162nd.
No. 173. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 163rd.
No. 174. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 164th.
No. 175. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 165th.
No. 176. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 166th.
No. 177. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 167th.
No. 178. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 168th.
No. 179. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 169th.
No. 180. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 170th.
No. 181. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 171st.
No. 182. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 172nd.
No. 183. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 173rd.
No. 184. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 174th.
No. 185. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 175th.
No. 186. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 176th.
No. 187. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 177th.
No. 188. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 178th.
No. 189. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 179th.
No. 190. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 180th.
No. 191. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 181st.
No. 192. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 182nd.
No. 193. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 183rd.
No. 194. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 184th.
No. 195. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 185th.
No. 196. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 186th.
No. 197. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 187th.
No. 198. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 188th.
No. 199. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 189th.
No. 200. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 190th.
No. 201. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 191st.
No. 202. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 192nd.
No. 203. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 193rd.
No. 204. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 194th.
No. 205. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 195th.
No. 206. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 196th.
No. 207. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 197th.
No. 208. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 198th.
No. 209. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 199th.
No. 210. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 200th.
No. 211. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 201st.
No. 212. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 202nd.
No. 213. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 203rd.
No. 214. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 204th.
No. 215. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 205th.
No. 216. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 206th.
No. 217. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 207th.
No. 218. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 208th.
No. 219. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 209th.
No. 220. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 210th.
No. 221. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 211st.
No. 222. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 212nd.
No. 223. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 213rd.
No. 224. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 214th.
No. 225. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 215th.
No. 226. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 216th.
No. 227. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 217th.
No. 228. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 218th.
No. 229. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 219th.
No. 230. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 220th.
No. 231. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 221st.
No. 232. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 222nd.
No. 233. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 223rd.
No. 234. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 224th.
No. 235. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 225th.
No. 236. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 226th.
No. 237. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 227th.
No. 238. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 228th.
No. 239. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 229th.
No. 240. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 230th.
No. 241. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 231st.
No. 242. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 232nd.
No. 243. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 233rd.
No. 244. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 234th.
No. 245. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 235th.
No. 246. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 236th.
No. 247. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 237th.
No. 248. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 238th.
No. 249. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 239th.
No. 250. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 240th.
No. 251. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 241st.
No. 252. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 242nd.
No. 253. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 243rd.
No. 254. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 244th.
No. 255. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 245th.
No. 256. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 246th.
No. 257. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 247th.
No. 258. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 248th.
No. 259. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 249th.
No. 260. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 250th.
No. 261. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 251st.
No. 262. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 252nd.
No. 263. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 253rd.
No. 264. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 254th.
No. 265. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 255th.
No. 266. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 256th.
No. 267. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 257th.
No. 268. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 258th.
No. 269. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 259th.
No. 270. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 260th.
No. 271. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 261st.
No. 272. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 262nd.
No. 273. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 263rd.
No. 274. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 264th.
No. 275. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 265th.
No. 276. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 266th.
No. 277. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 267th.
No. 278. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 268th.
No. 279. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 269th.
No. 280. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 270th.
No. 281. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 271st.
No. 282. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 272nd.
No. 283. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 273rd.
No. 284. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 274th.
No. 285. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 275th.
No. 286. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 276th.
No. 287. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 277th.
No. 288. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 278th.
No. 289. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 279th.
No. 290. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 280th.
No. 291. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 281st.
No. 292. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 282nd.
No. 293. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 283rd.
No. 294. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 284th.
No. 295. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 285th.
No. 296. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 286th.
No. 297. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 287th.
No. 298. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 288th.
No. 299. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 289th.
No. 300. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 290th.
No. 301. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 291st.
No. 302. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 292nd.
No. 303. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 293rd.
No. 304. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 294th.
No. 305. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 295th.
No. 306. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 296th.
No. 307. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 297th.
No. 308. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 298th.
No. 309. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 299th.
No. 310. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 300th.
No. 311. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 301st.
No. 312. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 302nd.
No. 313. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 303rd.
No. 314. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 304th.
No. 315. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 305th.
No. 316. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 306th.
No. 317. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 307th.
No. 318. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 308th.
No. 319. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 309th.
No. 320. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 310th.
No. 321. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 311st.
No. 322. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 312nd.
No. 323. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 313rd.
No. 324. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 314th.
No. 325. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 315th.
No. 326. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 316th.
No. 327. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 317th.
No. 328. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 318th.
No. 329. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 319th.
No. 330. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 320th.
No. 331. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 321st.
No. 332. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 322nd.
No. 333. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 323rd.
No. 334. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 324th.
No. 335. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 325th.
No. 336. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 326th.
No. 337. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 327th.
No. 338. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 328th.
No. 339. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 329th.
No. 340. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 330th.
No. 341. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 331st.
No. 342. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 332nd.
No. 343. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 333rd.
No. 344. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 334th.
No. 345. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 335th.
No. 346. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 336th.
No. 347. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 337th.
No. 348. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 338th.
No. 349. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 339th.
No. 350. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 340th.
No. 351. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 341st.
No. 352. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 342nd.
No. 353. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 343rd.
No. 354. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 344th.
No. 355. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 345th.
No. 356. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 346th.
No. 357. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 347th.
No. 358. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 348th.
No. 359. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 349th.
No. 360. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 350th.
No. 361. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 351st.
No. 362. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 352nd.
No. 363. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 353rd.
No. 364. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 354th.
No. 365. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 355th.
No. 366. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 356th.
No. 367. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 357th.
No. 368. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 358th.
No. 369. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 359th.
No. 370. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 360th.
No. 371. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 361st.
No. 372. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 362nd.
No. 373. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 363rd.
No. 374. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 364th.
No. 375. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 365th.
No. 376. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 366th.
No. 377. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 367th.
No. 378. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 368th.
No. 379. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 369th.
No. 380. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 370th.
No. 381. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 371st.
No. 382. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 372nd.
No. 383. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 373rd.
No. 384. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 374th.
No. 385. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 375th.
No. 386. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 376th.
No. 387. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 377th.
No. 388. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 378th.
No. 389. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 379th.
No. 390. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 380th.
No. 391. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 381st.
No. 392. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 382nd.
No. 393. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 383rd.
No. 394. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 384th.
No. 395. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 385th.
No. 396. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 386th.
No. 397. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 387th.
No. 398. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 388th.
No. 399. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 389th.
No. 400. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 390th.
No. 401. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 391st.
No. 402. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 392nd.
No. 403. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 393rd.
No. 404. Fifty Operatic

ADMIRAL W. H. SMYTH, F.R.S.



We have mentioned the death of this distinguished officer, which took place at his residence, St. John's Lodge, near Aylesbury, on Saturday, the 9th inst., after a very short illness. Although in the early part of his career he served his country in numerous engagements with conspicuous gallantry, as the record of his exploits in O'Byrne's "Naval Biography" will show, it is in the more tranquil and useful realms of science and literature that he chiefly earned his well-deserved reputation. William Henry Smyth was born, at Westminster, on the 21st of January, 1788, being the only son of Joseph Brewer Smith, a gentleman belonging to a family which had for some time been settled in New Jersey, but who had lost most of his property in consequence of his espousing the Royal cause at the outbreak of the American revolution. He was descended from the celebrated Captain John Smith, the first coloniser of Virginia. Losing his father when a mere child, the subject of our notice entered the Navy at a very early age, and was actively engaged in various parts of the world until the conclusion of the war, in 1815. Having, with an industry which was characteristic of his whole career, devoted almost every hour of his leisure time to the study of nautical hydrography and other kindred sciences, he was now able to undertake a series of surveys of the shores of the Mediterranean, which resulted in the publication of two hundred charts and three valuable works—one on the history, antiquities, and geography of the Island of Sicily (1824); another, entitled "A Sketch of the Present State of the Island of Sardinia" (1828); and the third, called "The Mediterranean: A Memoir—Historical, Physical, and Nautical" (1854). Leaving the sea in 1825, he settled at Bedford, and there erected the observatory, and carried on the observations which furnished the materials for a work in two volumes, entitled "A Cycle of Celestial Objects" (1844), the merit of which immediately raised him to one of the highest positions among European astronomers. He subsequently published numerous other works and memoirs on astronomy, hydrography, archæology, and other similar branches of knowledge. Indeed, until within a few days of his death his pen was never laid aside. In the scientific life of the metropolis he took an active and useful part, having been one of the founders and subsequently President of the Royal Geographical Society, one of the founders of the United Service Institution and Museum, President of the Astronomical Society, several times Vice-President and Foreign Secretary of the Royal Society, Director of the Society of Antiquities, and one of the Visitors of the Greenwich Observatory. He received the honorary degree of D.C.L. from the University of Oxford, was a member of the French Institute, and of many other foreign scientific societies. He was, moreover, a man of the most unblemished character, imbued with the nicest sense of honour, ardent in his feelings, firm in his convictions, and fearless in giving them expression, yet his goodness of heart and kindness of disposition were such that, in a long and varied public career, he scarcely ever made an enemy, and endeared himself to all who had the privilege of his acquaintance. He married, while at Messina, in 1815, the only daughter of T. Warrington, Esq., of Naples, a lady who has been the constant companion and aid of all his scientific and literary labours. The Admiral's family inherit a large share of his scientific tastes; his eldest son, Warrington Smyth, F.R.S., being Professor of Mineralogy at the Royal School of Mines, and Chief Inspector of mineral property to the Crown; the second, Charles Piazzi Smyth, F.R.S., is the Professor of Astronomy in the University of Edinburgh, and Astronomer Royal for Scotland; the third son is a Major in the Royal Artillery. Of his daughters, the eldest is the widow of the late Rev. Professor Baden Powell, F.R.S., of Oxford; another is married to Captain Henry Toynbee, R.N., &c.; and the third to Mr. W. H. Flower, F.R.S., Conservator of the Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons. The Portrait we have engraved in from a picture by Mr. Eddis, painted about four years ago.

THE LATE ADMIRAL SIR W. H. SMYTH, F.R.S.

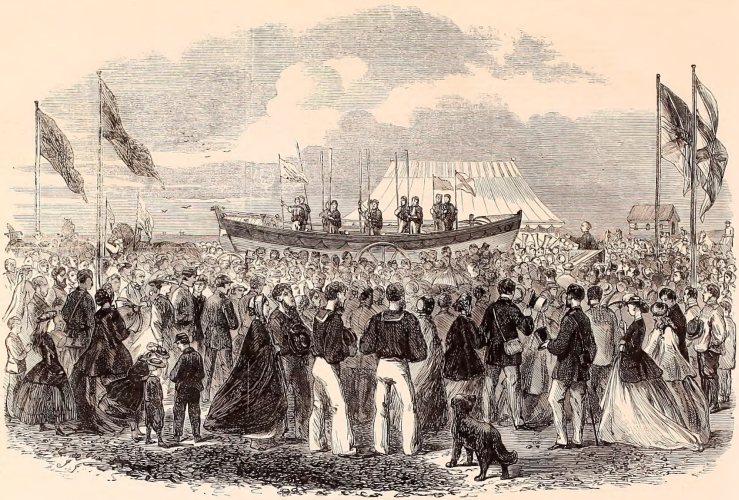
FOUNDATION OF THE HERBERT MEMORIAL CONVALESCENT HOSPITAL.

THE first stone of the Hospital for Convalescent Sick at Bournemouth, dedicated to the memory of the late Lord Herbert of Lea (the Right Hon. Sidney Herbert), was laid by his son, the Earl of Pembroke, on Saturday, the 16th inst. This institution has taken its rise, or at least taken its name, from the desire of Lord Herbert's neighbours, the nobility and gentry living in the counties of Wilts, Hants, and Dorset, to provide, besides the statue in the market-place at Salisbury, a monument, in the form of some establishment of public charity and beneficence, to which his name should be attached. The plan of founding a convalescent home, or hospital, at one of the healthiest and pleasantest places on the Hampshire coast, was recommended by the great interest which Lord Herbert always took in the Salisbury Infirmary, whose committee meetings he would constantly attend during the season of his residence at Wilton, and it was particularly approved by Miss Florence Nightingale, with whom, since the war in the Crimea, Lord and Lady Herbert had been continued to consult upon their schemes for the relief of the sick poor, as well as for improving the sanitary condition of the Army. A site on the West Cliff at Bournemouth having been obtained, and funds subscribed for the building, the foundation stone was laid on the day just named. A special train from Wilton, bringing Lady Herbert and her son, the youthful Earl, stopped on its way at Salisbury, Romsey, and Ringwood, taking up many of the visitors, who, on arriving at Christchurch, went on, by various conveyances, to Bournemouth. Here they were met by a local procession, headed by the clergy and choir of St. Peter's Church, who sang the 103rd Psalm as they moved towards the site on the West Cliff. The chairman of the committee, the Right Hon. Sotheron Estcourt, briefly stated the circumstances of the occasion, and the Rev. Mr. Bennett, Incumbent of Bournemouth, offered up a prayer, after which Lord Pembroke, who is but fifteen years of age, performed the ceremony of laying the stone, as shown in our illustration. He spoke with true natural feeling of the object of the memorial, saying:—"A better or a more fitting memorial could not have been chosen than this, which

THE EARL OF PEMBROKE LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF THE HERBERT MEMORIAL HOSPITAL AT BOURNEMOUTH.

FINE ARTS.

PHOTOGRAPHS FROM THE FARNLEY HALL COLLECTION OF TURNER DRAWINGS.

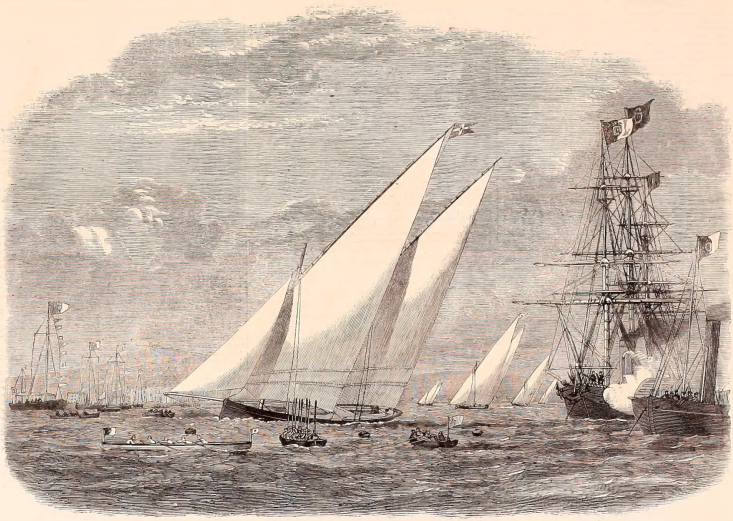


The collection of water-colour drawings, by Turner, at Farnley Hall has ever been known to be the most important in the possession of any private collector. Yet, until the recent publication, by Messrs. Colnaghi and Co., of the matchless photographs by Messrs. Caldesi and Co., which we are about to review, many of these drawings had remained unengraved, and comparatively little known. Nevertheless, as illustrations—adopting Mr. Ruskin's division of the great artist's career—of Turner's "first period," namely, from 1800 to 1820 (to which period nearly all of these Farnley drawings belong), they are decisively unique in comprehensiveness and interest.

Turner became acquainted with the late Mr. Walter Fawkes, the father of the present proprietor of Farnley, about 1802, and that kind and hospitable squire was one of the earliest and most liberal of the artist's Mr. F. H. Fawkes, the son, who by his liberality in permitting his treasures to be photographed has conferred a great boon on all lovers of Turner, has paid a most manly and unaffected tribute of esteem and affection to the memory of the artist, and related several anecdotes of his friendly visits to Farnley. At that time Turner was evidently enjoyed himself with none of the reserve for which he was afterwards noted. He painted, hunted, and fished with the squire, and was such a welcome as his frequent companion, young Master Fawkes. One day he insisted upon driving home the present Mr. Fawkes in a gig, when over a rough way partly through fields; the result was, as might be expected, that the precocious whelp was soon pitched out of the gig, and the horse went forward known at Farnley as the "Over-Turner." A caricature of him by Mr. Fawkes still exists at Farnley. Another, in pencil, photographs is one of a tent pitched on the moors about six miles from Farnley, on the first day of grouse-shooting. Another shows us a grouse and a pheasant shot by Turner. In a third we have a view of Farnley from the junction of the Wharfe and Washbourne rivers; a fourth presents a nearer view of the house. Turner is sitting on the ground occupied with a hunting-party in eighteenth-century costumes, and the old family coach-and-six, with outriders, is passing on the right. There are also views of the large, newly contemporary, "Fawkes-town Hall;" of "Farnley and Lofthouse," including a sweetly-picturesque scene; of the lovely Wharfdale, and the windings of the beautiful river, as seen from "Farnley Park" and "Loch Tiny"—all, we believe, views on or from portions of the property of Mr. Fawkes. We may mention that Farnley possesses, besides the fifty drawings now photographed, many other highly-valuable works of important works, displaying the versatility of Turner's genius. The oil pictures include a remarkable, "Interior of a Cottage," a red cap Hailing a Smack;" a poetically-treated figure-picture, representing a handmaid preparing her mistress's bath; a portrait of the Victory with the body of Nelson on board, in three positions, as she appeared off Portsmouth; and, finest of all, the brilliant, sun-bathed "Dort—Holland," a rich-sunny picture of the quaint, picturesque, old city and noble series of drawings (about fifty-three in number), formerly in Wallis's Gallery, Pall Mall, and engraved in the "Liber Studiorum,"

Archæology of the Month.

LONDON changes continue to multiply, and old places are remorselessly swept away, to be speedily followed by their associations. The ancient side of Winchester-street, with its gabled houses, and one of the few specimens of ancient domestic architecture in the City, has just disappeared. This street was erected on the site of the gardens of the Priory of St. Augustine; part of the house which the Prior of Winchester built here still remains. Pinners' Hall, an old building at the upper end of Pinners'-court, in the Old Jewry, was also part of the Augustine Priory, and was converted into a glasshouse before it became the property of the Pinmakers' Company. This property, we believe, has been recently occupied by Copley, the painter, and for more than three quarters of a century the dwelling-place of Lee, the late ex-Chamberlain of the City, has been purchased for £16,000, and a clubhouse is to be built on the site. Old inns are disappearing in "the city proper." Of the Bull-and-Mouth-inn-house, the Spread Eagle, Gracechurch-street, is no more; and the Green Dragon, Wood-street, is doomed. The Queen's Head, Covent-garden, once "a magpie, or place for sweating" (from the Arabic, haumah), is forthwith to be taken down; so, possibly, is the Seven Stars of Parsons Fox's ghost, which the waiter saw in the cellar, the "coffee cockloft," and of which Dr. Johnson said, "Sir, it was believed." Chaucer's Inn, the Tabard or Talbot, in the Borough, is to be pulled down in two years, and soon afterwards the disposed persons are sure for the preservation of the old place. The buildings of Chaucer's time have disappeared, but were standing in 1623. The old timber-house, reputedly built by the Poet Chaucer, according to Aubrey, was remaining before the fire of 1676; it faced the street, and is shown in the ground plan of the Inn drawn for Mr. G. Corner, F.S.A., who has left us the fullest and best account of the ancient Inns of Southwark (see "Collections of the Surrey Archæological Society," vol ii., pt. 2), was of opinion, from personal examination of the premises in question, that there was nothing left of the existing remains of the Tabard earlier than the fire of 1676, after which was built the supposed "Pilgrims' Hall," the refectory in which was of this date. [The date of the Canterbury Pilgrimage is generally supposed to have been the year 1383. — The MS. above, Mr. Corner, a valuable, and richly illustrated, work published for the British Association, a few days since, by Archdeacon Moore, at Lichfield Cathedral.] The Red Hart, the last-surviving of the Bank Coffee-houses, was built in 1440 (and a dozen doors nearer London Bridge than the Tabard), has been demolished; the back part of the house was pulled down, and the remainder was destroyed in the great fire in Southwark in 1676; it was evidently upon the plan of the Abbot of Hyde's house, as shown from a drawing by Mr. Pariskit, in the Archæological Collections just published. The Bell-inn-yard, Gracechurch-street, is doomed. We regret this arrangement; it is far from improbable that the attempt will be renewed next Session, and the reversed Incumbent pleads thus eloquently in the preservation of his property:—



It is God's acre—it is hallowed, if not by consecrated dedication, it is hallowed by Christian interment; and, besides many other considerations which I could trample on, it is the resting-place of not a few renowned and noble members of the Christian Church, who, in their generation, were the lights and ornaments of their time, and the wonder and admiration of the world. Here, in the churchyard, and church, for railway purposes, but now defeated; and no further appeal was considered by the Court of Chancery, was interred, as recorded in a speech delivered in the House of Lords, by the late Lord Campbell, the learned and venerable Bishop of Old St. Paucras Church, the incumbent of which for twenty years I was honoured to be

THE BISHOP OF CHICHESTER GIVING HIS BENEDICTION TO THE HAYLING ISLAND LIFE-BOAT.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

SCENE FROM "RIP VAN WINKLE," AT THE ADELPHI THEATRE: RIP VAN WINKLE DRINKING THE MAGIC DRAUGHT.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

REGATTA OF THE LISBON ROYAL YACHT CLUB.

THE LISBON ROYAL YACHT CLUB.

THE regatta of the Royal Yacht Club of Lisbon took place on the 28th ult., under the patronage of the King of Portugal, at Paço d'Arcos, eight miles below the city, in the best part of the River Tagus for sailing small pleasure-vessels. His Majesty was present in the steam-corvette Sa de Bandeira, and most of the English residents at Lisbon joined the concourse of spectators. The yachts had taken up their stations at the starting-place the evening before. There were six of the first class—namely, the Aleyon, 21 tons, owned by Mr. T. M. Bessone; the Pet, 20, Mr. A. P. Dagge; the Velox, 20, his Majesty the King; the Zemaeole, 19, Mr. F. Goulard, the Maria Pia, 15, Mr. M. Parry; and the Cerca, 14, Mr. M. F. Moser. The prize, the King's cup, was won by the Aleyon, which is shown in our Illustration; the Pet, the Maria Pia, and lastly the Cerca, followed at intervals of ten minutes or more behind each other at the goal. The second-class prize, for 10-ton yachts, was won by the Prima, Mr. M. F. Moser; and in the third class, 5-ton yachts, the winner was the Pearl, Mr. W. Castance. Rowing-matches followed; after which there was a dinner in the fort, to which 200 ladies and gentlemen sat down; the healths of the Vice-Commodore, Mr. Moser, and of Mr. Dagge, the treasurer of the Yacht Club, were duly honoured; the prizes were then distributed; and at night there was a ball. We are indebted to Mr. Henry F. Jauncey for the sketch we have engraved.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR OCTOBER.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR OCTOBER.

THERE is just now a dead calm in all that concerns the Parisian fashions and modes, and we have scarcely anything new to communicate, unless it be the continued diminution in the size of the bonnets, which are reduced to the smallest possible semblance of the ordinary chapeau. We have within a few days examined some that would scarcely have been considered not large enough for a child two years of age, and are almost concealed between the landeaux of hair raised over the forehead and the immense chignon, mostly artificial, worn behind. We have certainly reached the extreme of littleness for bonnets, which must be particularly profitable to the French manufacturer, notwithstanding the constant diminution in the size of their products, have never thought of diminishing their prices: yet two or three pennies for a baby-bonnet must be considered rather dear! However, people who love to be à la mode are not, generally, too apt to grumble for fear of their innocent passion. These observations, of course, apply only to the bonnet worn with the toilette de ville. For the country—while the fine weather still keeps a vast number of our fashionable celebrities at the German spas and the French watering-places—the round hat with feathers is more becoming in every respect; and may be worn by persons of all ages; the voilette, or small veil, of white or black spotted lace, not descending beyond the upper lip, is generally worn with such hats.

Ladies' dresses have undergone no change in their form since our last notice of the Paris fashions; but we have to signalize a decided decrease in the amount of their ornamentation. Where ornament is still desired, it is usually produced by different applications of the material of the robe itself; this immediately gives a peculiarity to the marked in the dresses of what may strictly be regarded as the best mode, and is in reality a healthy sign.

For evening costume, white muslins ornamented with lace and worn either with white moulin skirts or skirts of any other colour or material, are very elegant. We have seen entire families dressed in this agreeable manner, from the portly mamma of a certain age down to the pretty demoiselle not yet arrived at her teens.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Fig 1. Dress for the Country.—The robe and paletot of this easy and graceful costume are in striped white and grey foulard. The cuffs, waistband, and cravat are all in plain dark-blue silk, and the under jupe is of the same, with a dark-blue silk, with white and delicate veil. Yellow gloves.

Fig. 2. Walking Dress.—White muslin robe, ornamented on the skirt (which is terminated by a rather wide ruching) with embroidered bouquets of flowers in their own colours. Scarlet cashmere paletot, dotted with black spots and trimmed with black guipure. White muslin pelerine, ornamented with scarlet ribbon, velvet, and black lace. Long white gauze veil.

Fig. 3. Carriage Dress.—Pale pink moire robe. The cannal is of wide cashmere, bordered with black lace insertion and a deep Thibet fringe. The hood is ornamented with black insertion with trailing fringe. Straw hat and feathers.

FENIAN WEAPONS, SEIZED AT CORK.

THE Engraving on this page represents several weapons belonging to the Fenian conspirators, which were discovered by the police, a fortnight ago, in a blacksmith's shop at Cork. The police having got information that arms were concealed in a forge kept by a man named Hegarty, in Hobb-lane, St. Finn Barre's, Sub-Inspector Hamilton, Captain Booker, and a sub-constable, went there on Saturday evening, the 16th inst., and, after a careful and systematic search, discovered under the hearthstone a recess in the ground, containing a number of weapons, including pikes. The pikes are of a quite modern pattern. The hatchet—the accompaniment of the old weapon—is entirely dispensed with, and also the hook, leaving the Seized in the Rebellion of 1848.

Iron Handle, two parts.

THE ABOVE DIMENSIONS ARE GIVEN FROM EXACT MEASUREMENT

A. Fenian Pike, having across it an horizontal barb-pointed spike for the purpose of catching the bridles of cavalry. B. Fenian Pike.
C. Common ring bayonet in general use. D D D is inserted as a sample of the weapon of the former rebellion.

FENIAN WEAPONS SEIZED IN A BLACKSMITH'S SHOP AT CORK.

new instrument a long narrow blade, somewhat like a sheet sword. The pike is about 18in. in long b, and screws on to a socket, which makes it 2 ft. long. The barb-pointed horizontal spike across one of the pikes is intended to catch the bridles of cavalry. They are exceedingly well-executed articles for a common smith. The bayonet is evidently cut by the same maker, but it is of modern design. The other bayonet, No. 4 in our Illustration, is one which was seized in 1848, and differs, as will be seen, from those lately made.

By the Lord Lieutenant's proclamation, issued on the 16th inst., under the Peace Preservation (Ireland) Act, of 1856, "it shall not be lawful for any person (except Justices of the Peace, or persons in her Majesty's service, or special constables, or persons licensed to kill game) to carry or have, except in his or her own dwelling-house, any firearm, or any part thereof, or any sword, cutlass, pike, or bayonet, or any ammunition, and any person violating these provisions shall be liable, on conviction, to be imprisoned for any period not exceeding two years." All such articles are to be given up to the police, who may, under a legal warrant, enter any house to search for them. It is believed that a quantity of arms has lately been imported from America.

THE BRAEMAR HIGHLAND GATHERING.

(From the Dundee Advertiser.)

THIS famous Highland Gathering took place at Braemar, on Thursday week. The gathering for a long time held a first-class position amongst the Scottish games, and lately it has acquired additional note from the visits of the different members of the Royal family.

On the meeting of the clans the ground was quickly cleared for the games, which took place immediately in front of Mar Lodge, where a high platform capitons cliff known as "Craig Coinnich," a place of meeting or assembly. The assemblage of spectators was large, and included a number of those of the last meeting. About 2000 persons were assembled on the green around the platform.

The games commenced shortly before two o'clock, and at the call of "They come!" was raised, and the Highlanders were drawn up in open column from the entrance to the sports ground as a guard of honour to receive the Prince and Princess of Wales. As the carriage entered the field three hearty cheers were given by the Farquharsons and the Forfeshire banders, whilst the crowd around as cheerfully gave proof of their loyalty. The Prince and Princess drew to an open carriage, and bowed repeatedly in their acknowledgments. On the carriage being drawn up at the gate to the castle gardens, the party were received by Colonel Farquharson of Invercauld of Fife. The Prince of Wales shook hands with the Earl of Fife and Colonel Farquharson, and was followed by the Princess Louise, Princess Helena of Ardrath, who accompanied the Prince and Princess of Wales. The gallant Colonel then conducted the Princess of Wales to the top of the platform, and was followed by the Prince of Wales and Princess Hilda. On reaching the platform prepared for the party the Prince of Wales was received with three hearty cheers, who also Princess Hilda, and the Prince then shook hands with Mrs. Farquharson. By this time the circle was again filled, and the games recommenced. The Princess and Mrs. Farquharson took seats on the right side of the hill, the Princess of Wales in the centre, and on the right and left were Mrs. Farquharson and Princess Hilda; whilst the Prince stood to the side. The Prince of Wales was dressed in the Highland costume, and walked gracefully chatting and talking the while, and then retired to luncheon. This was provided by Colonel Farquharson in a room in the castle. After about twenty minutes the party returned to view the games, and at three o'clock several carriages were seen turning the foot of the hill towards the castle. There brought Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, Princess Helena, and Princess Beatrice; Sir Charles Phipps, General Grey and Mrs. Grey, Lady Churchill, Colonel Brown, Baron Schmoll, Baron Rolich, &c. On the hall at the gate the Prince of Wales and party left their seats and went down the walk to receive the Royal family; and, after the reception, Princess Louis of Hesse was led up to the platform by Colonel Farquharson, whilst the Prince of Wales and Prince Louis followed with the other Princesses. The Prince of Wales and Prince Louis were the Highland costume of the Victoria tartan.

The games were carried on with great spirit, and were particularly watched by the fashionable assemblage at the castle—especially during the time of the competition for the Prince of Wales's prizes for the reel dance and those by Lord Macduff for Highland reels. While throwing the hammer for the Prince of Wales's prize, Mr. Grant, of Ballindalloch, threw a hammer, took three throws, and in the last and the thirteenth throw he threw 72 ft. 6 in., and had, however, obtained the prize last year, it fell to Robertson, who threw it a distance of 71 ft. 3 in. Donald Dinnie, as usual, showed his superior prowess in tossing the caber. In the competitions, again, a clean toss could not be made for the society's prizes; and, whilst M'Hardy tossed it over for the medal, Dinnie made the only clean and by far the best "toss." Donald also made the champion throw with the hammer, which he pitched 92 ft. 4 in., the farthest, we believe, that has yet been done at Braemar. Again, at the stone for 56 lbs. Three throws only are allowed, and Donald failed with these, as he had for the first time to stand and throw, instead of hopping; but with a fourth throw he made 11 ft. 6 in. in advance of the next competitor. A General interest was taken in the dancing, which was excellent; and a deal of amusement was caused by the "Duke of Edinburgh's Highland Fling" at those competitions—won by for the most novel and amusing. There were 500 yards, along with about a dozen of hurdles to leap, and the River Dee to cross. The route was lined by anxious spectators, who eagerly discussed the chances, and the whole of the Princesses rose from their seats and intently watched the runners; whilst the Prince of Wales and Prince Louis of Hesse, together with Colonel Farquharson and the Earl of Fife, went to the riverside to watch the race to the winning-post. Dinnie once has secured, apparently, to a knowledge of the river, for he went down the water to a point where Robertson jumped into the deep water, and so was greatly hindered.

The following is the prize-list:—

SOCIETY'S PRIZES.

Putting the Stone.—First, Donald Dinnie, Aboyne, 37 ft. 2in.; second, Charles M'Hardy, Mar Lodge, 34ft. 4 in.

Throwing the Hammer.—First, Alexander Robertson, Glenlaks, 70 ft. 9 in.; second, Angus M'Intosh, Glenclunie, 69 ft. 6 in.

Leaping.—First, Donald Dinnie, Aboyne; second, John Farquharson, Glenclunie.

SOCIETY'S MEDALS.

Throwing the Hammer.—First, Donald Dinnie, Aboyne, 92 ft. 4in.

Putting the Stone.—First, Alexander Cattanach, Grantown, 29 ft. 6 in.; second, Donald Dinnie, Aboyne.

Half-mile Race.—First, Alexander Robertson, Glenlaks (£5, given by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales).

Hurdle Race (Prize given by Thomas Powell, Esq.).—First, Donald Dinnie, Aboyne, £5; second, Alexander Robertson, Glenlaks, £1.

Highland Reels (Prize given by Lord Macduff).—First, Charles Grant, Braemar, £3 10s.; second, Alexander Grant, Birkhall, £1 10s.

Length of Service.—First, Alexander M'Kenzie, gamekeeper, Mar Lodge.

The Prince of Wales and party waited till five o'clock, when the games were almost concluded. The whole of the Royal party and suite then proceeded to the carriages. The large assemblage then commenced to disperse, and the Highlanders left for their separate residences.

The Duff men were entertained to dinner by the Earl of Fife, at Mr. Hunter's, Fife Arms Hotel; and the Farquharsons met in Mar Castle, by Colonel Farquharson.

The annual ball of the society took place in the hall attached to Mar Castle.

THE OLD THATCHED HOUSE TAVERN, ST. JAMES'S-STREET.

Come and once more together let us greet,
The long-lost pleasures of St. James's-street.—Tickell.

In our notice of the Civil Service Club we have referred to the site of the old Thatched House Tavern, the greater portion of which was taken down in 1864 and the Conservative Clubhouse built on a part of the same ground. The old tavern has now entirely disappeared, little more than a century and a half ago the parish of St. James's was described as "all the houses and grounds comprehended in a place heretofore called 'St. James's Fields' and the confines thereof." Previously to this, the house was most probably a thatched house. St. James's-street dates from 1670: the posts Walker and Pope lived here; Sir Christopher Wren died here in 1723: he did Gibbons, the historian, in 1794, at Elmsley's, the bookseller's, at No. 76, at the corner of Little St. James's-street. Fox first resided here in 1781; and Gibbon's pen lodged at No. 8, in 1811. At the south-west end was the St. James's Coffee-house, taken down in 1806; the foreign and domestic news house of the Turkey, and the "fountain-head" of the Spectator. Here early, the street had a sort of literary fashion favourable to the growth of taverns and clubs.

The Thatched House had been for nearly two centuries celebrated for its club meetings, its dinners, its public room, and its public dinners, especially those of our universities and great schools. It was one of Swift's favourite haunts; in one birthday verse he sings :—

The Deanery-house may well be matched,
With the Thatch'd House, with the Thatch'd.

Swift was a clubbable man, especially with an eye to the turn of the political market. In 1710, he had a country lodging in Church-lane, Chelsea, and loved to walk—" two good miles, and just 5748 steps," to and from his town lodging in Bury [Berry] street; at this time he tells Stella that he never goes to a tavern, but, in 1711, we find him entertaining his Society at the Thatched House at dinner; "but Brother Balkeley sent for me to his house afterding none." In the previous year, too, at the christening of the coffeeman Elliott's child, at the St. James's, when "eight dishes had a most noble supper," Swift and Steele sat "among some scurvy company over a bowl of punch." In 1713, Swift dined with the Brothers' Club, which met every Thursday, at the Thatched House: "the end of our club," he says, "is to advance conversation and friendship, and to reward deserving persons with our interest and recommendation; and, if we go on as we began, no other club in this town will be worth talking of." Swift's journal is full of "Brothers" Arran and Duplin, Methuen and Ormond, Rabinet and Harcourt, Orrery and Jack Hill, and other Tory magnates. Swift tells Stella he entertained here his "Brothers" at the cost of seven guineas. "I staid till eight," he says, "and then we all went away drunk." The Duke of Ormond's treat, last week, cost £20, though it was only four dishes, and four without a dessert; and I broke it in order to be cheap. Lord Treasurer got into a rage at such extravagance; though the wine was not in the bill, as each president knows it." Swift had much to do with the management of the club; and when the Duke of Beaufort proposed his brother-in-law, the Earl of Danby, the Dean opposed it very warmly, so that the young Lord was rejected: "he is not above twenty," says Swift, "and we will have no more boys." Lord Bolingbroke was a distinguished "Brother," and then on a footing of great familiarity with Swift. Afterwards the club shifted their dinner from the Thatched House to the Star and Garter, "at 6s Pall-mall."

At the Thatched House first met the Dilettanti Society, scandalously described by Horace Walpole, in 1743, as "a club for which the nominal qualification is having been in Italy, and the real one being drunk; the two chiefs are Lord Middlesex and Sir Francis Dashwood, who were both drunk the whole time they were in Italy." Dilettanti was a term of ridicule for the club, since their object was to promote taste, and respect for the classic remains of antiquity. At their festive gatherings were present occasional statesmen, wits, scholars, artists, and amateurs of the last century: between 1770 and 1776 Sir Joshua Reynolds, Paul Pierrefond, Charles Jennens, the Hon. Stephen Fox (Lord Holland), Charles Howard (Duke of Norfolk), Lord Robert Spencer, George Selwyn, Colonel Fitzpatrick, the Hon. R. Conway, Joseph Banks, Duke of Dorset, Sir William Hamilton, David Garrick, George Colman, Lord Thurlow, Wyndham, R. Payne Knight, Sir George Beaumont, and Mr. Towneley. Some of the club fines paid "on increase of income or inheritance, by any marriage, or preferment," are curious: namely—£5 5s. by Lord Gosvenor, on his marriage with Miss Leveson Gower; £10 10s. by the Duke of Bedford, on being appointed First Lord of the Admiralty; £21 by Lord Sandwich, on going out as Ambassador to the Congress at Aix-la-Chapelle; and £84, by the same nobleman, on becoming Recorder of Huntingdon; 15s. 6d. by the Duke of Bedford, on getting the Garter; 16s. 8d. (Scotch) by the Duke of Queensberry, on getting the Thistle; and £9 19s. 6d. by Charles James Fox, as a Lord of the Admiralty. The character of the club, however, became changed; the members being persons almost exclusively devoted to art and antiquarian studies. In the club-room were the fine contemporary portrait-groups by Sir Joshua Reynolds, painted in the manner of Paul Veronese; and a portrait of Mrs. Hunter, painted by Hudson, Reynolds's master. The Dilettanti are now a publishing society, like the Roxburgh, the Camden, and others.

To the Thatched House was removed in 1779 "the Club" now "the Johnson Club," whose centenary was celebrated at the Clarendon Hotel, as described in our "Column of the Curious" in the course of last year. The reader will recollect Lord Chancellor Thurlow's rough joke to the waiter, who, at the close of the dinner in the Thatched House, having pompously cited certain resolutions passed by a party of noblemen and gentlemen at the "Thatched House Tavern," told him that the noble Lord in the red ribbon told us he had heard at the end of Jones's.

The Royal Naval Club held its meetings at the Thatched House, as did some scientific and literary societies. Here, in 1784, Sheridan's room faced St. James's street, and when lit in the evening with wax-candles in large old glass sconces, the dilettanti gentlemen could be seen from the pavement of the street. Beneath the tavern front was a range of low-roofed shops, including that of Mr. Lock or Rocksted, the fashionable coiffeur, who charged five shillings for entering hair, and made a large fortune by his "incomparable oil Macassar." Through the tavern was a passage to Thatched House-court, in the rear; and here, in Catherine-wheel-alley, in the last century, lived the good old Mrs. Bertrand Porter, the Doctor's death, as told in her Autobiography, edited by Lady Llanover. Some of Mrs. Delany's fashionable friends lived in the same locality.

Thatched House-court and the alley have been swept away. Elizabeth Bertrand Porter died in 1801, at the Cassenova, Turin. In an adjoining house lived the famous Betty, "the queen of applewomen," whom Sheridan has immortalized in the "Heroic Epistle :"

And patriot Betty by her fruitshop bent.

It was a famous place for gossip. Walpole says of a story mock about "I should have remembered it by Betty and the waiters at Arthur's did not talk of it publicly." Again, "Would you know what office or group I am in? Betty's mythology." Betty (Richard Neale) was born in the same street in which she ever lived, and used to say she never slept out of it but twice—once in a visit to a friend in the country, and at a Windsor installation.

Over the last remaining house of Thatched House site the large bow-window which Theodore Hook compared to an obese old gentleman in a white waistcoat. The tavern, which has lately disappeared, was the last link of the old chain of taverns, clubhouses, and coffeehouses that survive in various modern clubs, and the Thatched House will be kept in mind by the grand architecture of the Civil Service Clubhouse, which occupies a portion of the site.

Accounts have been received of a severe storm at Revel. It began on the 12th and lasted till the evening of the 13th inst. Two merchantmen went down, and considerable damage was done to the shipping.

The fortifications of the strait of Yeni-Kalé have cost the Russian Government 13,000,000 roubles. They have already mounted 409 rifled cannon of the largest calibre. The Levant Herald states that at least three times that number of equal force will be placed at the entrance of the strait, so as to secure the military stores and magazines against all probable eventualities. The termination of the works by the Czarewna, which is supposed to attain its supplies by way of the Sea of Azoff, are stated to be the reason for these proceedings.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE REV. SIR BROOKE W. R. BOOTHBY, BART.

The Rev. Sir Brooke William Boothby, M.A., tenth Baronet, of Broadhow-Ash in the county of Derby, Rector of Welwyn, Herts, who died on the 22nd inst., was the elder son of Sir William Boothby, C.B., the ninth Baronet, by his first wife, Fanny, only daughter of John Jenkinson, Esq., and niece of Charles, first Earl of Liverpool. He was born Jan. 21, 1809, and was educated at the Charterhouse, and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated B.A., and was elected Fellow of All Souls' College in 1831. He took his degree of M.A. in 1834, and was ordained deacon, and was subsequently made Rector of Welwyn, Hertfordshire, in 1835. He succeeded his father, as tenth Baronet, April 21, 1846. He married, July 4, 1844, Sarah Amelia, Martha Serena, elder daughter of the late Rev. Charles Boothby Trotter, Rector of Sotterton and Rector of Sotterton, Lincolnshire, by whom, who survives him, he has left two youthful family of nine children.

He succeeds to his elder brother, Sir William Boothby, in his ninth year. The family dividing on good authority, bason originally from Derbyshire, and Boothby Pagnell, Lincolnshire, for he held as one of his Peer. They came appears with note on the Lancaster side in the Wars of the Boson, and on the Cavalier side in the Civil War. Sir Henry Boothby, a stanch supporter of Charles I., was named a Baronet by that Monarch, but, owing to the confusion of public affairs, the patent was never issued. Sir Brooke, Clerk, at the Restoration, corrected the omission by knighting Sir Henry's son, Sir William Boothby, and granting the patent of baronetcy granted to the deceased father. The patent bears the date of July 12, 1660. The family has since attained a fair distinction in the Army and Navy. Sir Brooke, the deceased Baronet, died was the direct descendant of Sir William Boothby, the Cavalier Baronet of the line of Charles II.

COLONEL HOGGE, C.B.

Colonel Charles Hegge, C.B., of the Royal (late Bengal) Artillery, who died at Erith, on the 19th inst., was an officer of much merit and distinction. He served in the Punjaub campaign in 1848-49, and was present at Mooltan, where he was actively engaged at the passage of the Chenaub, at Ramnuggur, the battles of Chillianwalla and Goojerat. For these services he received a medal and two clasps, and brevets of Major and Lieutenant-Colonel. He served throughout the Indian mutiny, and was wounded at Meerut. He subsequently had charge of the ordnance park at the siege and capture of Delhi. He was highly commended in a despatch by Sir Archdale Wilson, and was thanked by the Governor-General. He was Director of Artillery to the Army in Central India at the siege and capture of Gwalior in 1858, and received the thanks of the Governor-General, he was selected by the Commander-in-Chief to be a member of the Ordnance Committee, which post he held for several years, and his ability he had shown in the field. He was made a Colonel in 1857, and a C.B. in 1858.

DR. FORBES, C.B.

Dr. John Forbes, C.B., who died, on the 16th inst., at Bath, at the age of sixty-one, was one of the best medical officers in the British Army. He entered the service as an hospital assistant towards the close of the year 1826, and early in the following year became an assistant-surgeon. He, in 1841, became full rank of surgeon. He was in the expedition against the Rajah of Kolapore in 1837; was on the expedition against Kolapore; he journeyed beyond the Orange River, in South Africa, in 1843; and in the Kaffir War in 1846. On the outbreak of the Russian invasion, in the year 1854, he was placed on the staff of the third division of the Eastern army at Gallipoli and Bulgaria. He accompanied the army to the Crimea, and was present at the battle of the Alma, at Balaclava, capture of Balaclava, the battles of Alma and Inkermann, and the siege of Sebastopol. The energetic and successful manner in which he conducted the Land Engine in Inkermann after Lieutenant-Colonel Tulloch was killed, Dr. Forrest's able exertions deserved to be most honourably mentioned. He had for his excellent conduct the Kaffir medal and the medal and three clasps for the Crimea, also the fourth class of the Medjidie and the Turkish medal. In May, 1855, he was appointed to the command of the Land Service Corps. He became Deputy Inspector-General; and in December, 1858, Inspector-General. He was made a C.B. in 1856, and was nominated an Honorary Physician to her Majesty. Dr. Forrest, during his long and active career in India, Africa, at home, and in the Eastern countries, made many attached friends.

DR. WILLIAMSON.

The Rev. Richard Williamson, D.D., Hon. Canon of Worcester, Rural Dean and Vicar of Pershore, Worcestershire, died on the 15th inst., at the age of "a score and ten," and went from school to Christ Church College, Cambridge, where he graduated, in 1803, as seventh wrangler and fourth classic. Two years later he obtained the mastership of Pershore Grammar School, which Williamson, having been ordained, was appointed Head Master of Westminster School. In 1808 he was made D.D. by Royal mandate. He was the author of an elegant and notable improvement in the famous acting of Terence's plays in the dormitory of Westminster School. The Dean and Chapter of Worcester Court outcome heretofore in use, substituted the present classical dresses which long a mind of the upper boys of Westminster. The doctor also wrote a very learned pamphlet in relation to the question of Grecian costume, which, in 1814, he sent to the press, and which was published in London. He from 1814 to 1860, held the vicarage of Pershore, and of Severnhampton. In 1846 he was presented by the Dean and Chapter of Worcester to the rectory of Elmley Castle, and, in 1847, to the prebendal stall of Canon of Worcester Cathedral. He was, while Rector of Pershore, much beloved and respected. At very great cost he restored the magnificent parish church of Pershore to a state of magnificence. It was reopened a year or two ago by the Prince of Wentworth, Lord Lyttelton, and other distinguished having lost his voice. Dr. Williamson's wife is daughter of the Right Rev. Robert Gray, D.D., late Bishop of Capetown, and of the Rev. Henry Gray, Vicar of Aldmondbury, Gloucestershire.

THE REV. S. RICKARDS, M.A.

The Rev. Samuel Rickards, the well-known Vicar of Stowlangtoft, Suffolk, who died suddenly as just occurred, was a distinguished graduate of the University of Oxford, and is chiefly notable for his connection with the publication of "The Christian Year," which he edited and published in 1827. He was born in 1800, at Stowlangtoft, and received a degree of Master of Arts in the celebrated work. Mr. Rickard's copy was lost in Wales, and to Mr. Rickards the public is indebted for a production of unsurpassed merit in its kind, and which is as familiar to American as to English readers. Mr. Rickards graduated in second-class honours in 1821, and took his degree of M.A. in 1824. He obtained the Newdegate (English) verse prize for "The Temple of Theseus," and in 1821 he won the English prose prize for his essay on "Characteristics of Greek and Latin Poetry." He has held the living of Stowlangtoft, Suffolk, since 1832. He has published a number of sermons which were very popular, and he has since written a volume of family prayers.

The Queen has appointed Frank Cavendish Lascelles, Esq., Attaché to her Majesty's Embassy at Paris, to be a third Secretary in her Majesty's Diplomatic service.

Prince Czona has promised the Acclimatisation Society of Paris a fine collection of game birds, which he intends to send to Europe with three bears from the Carpathian Mountains.

Mr. J. Mechi thinks that we are running a little mad on the subject of grass land just now, because meat happens to be at a very high price. "Prices we see," he says, "are always temporary disturbances, but the product of natural grass—winter tares and mangold, swill manured; and has it not occurred to corn-growers that the land is getting sick of the same old things considered, to sell their corn crops and straw to their animals rather than to the dealer or miller? If we could only persuade them to do this, there is a good crop, will, if properly prepared with its straw, produce a large quantity of manure, and leave the land in a condition to grow a heavy crop. If we insist on corn crops we are on a grass land, to consume them on the farm—the source for future production which will be found in the manure from off. If the cycle were engaged in, I am sure that John Bull would no longer have to complain of short supplies and dear meat.

Mr. Glaisher, of the Meteorological Department of the Board of Trade, states, in a letter to the Times, that Mr. Leverrier, the distinguished head of the Imperial Observatory at Paris, has undertaken a large and, to the science and commerce of navigation, most important work. A principle initiated here by the predecessor of Admiral Fitzroy at the Hydrographic office of the storm in which the Royal Charter was lost. M. Leverrier proposes to publish on sites, combining the results for every day of the year, exhibiting at one view the winds and weather prevalent over the whole of Europe and the Atlantic Ocean to the extent of about 1,000 miles to the west for each day successively, the special object being to trace the approach and storms of cyclones. One of the best known of these storms is that which is reported to Paris material for the purpose of aiding this work. M. Leverrier has also made arrangements with the department for further assistance. He asks for extracts from the logs of British ships traversing the North Atlantic during 1864, more especially those between the ports of the West Indies and between this country and Newfoundland and Ireland. He asks merely for the height of the barometer, the force and direction of wind, state of sea, and position of ship on the day and hour of observation. All that this department can supply from the meteorological registers received here has been, or shortly will be, collected for M. Leverrier; but the Atlantic Ocean is large, and more observations are needed. The object of the letter is to request that any private meteorological observations made at sea within the prescribed limits of time and space, and who have not transmitted registers to the department, will kindly forward them their observations to M. Leverrier, either directly or through this office.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

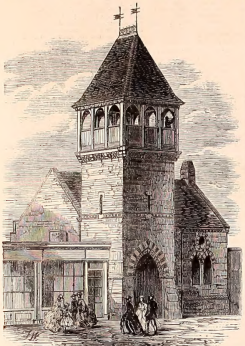
CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

G. A. B., Gratzleburg.—1. The words "Le Sphinx" have no reference to the other of the problem, neither are they intended to convey the idea of any superciliation in the solution, nevertheless, it is a fact that the solution is the name of the enigma in which it first appeared. 2. Your solution of Problem No. 1 is perfectly accurate.

H. G.—It shall have attention; but contributors of either prose or verse should always send their manuscripts in a state fit for publication, for the printer has enough to do.

E. Lonsdale, Ill.—A King and a Bishop alone cannot give checkmate.



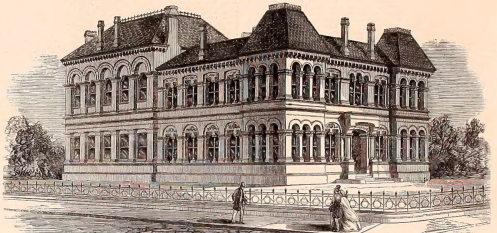
T. H. C.—It would be hardest to the researches. At the close summary at Etherlid, which is to be published in the Chess Player's Chronicle, Mr. Staunton's name will be regarded as would, take part in the proposed match. The principal players present were Mr. Neumann and Mr. Kieseritz, of Berlin; Mr. Rolfe, of Cologne; and Mr. Paulsen and Mr. Anderssen, of Breslau. The games played were all of the usual standard and have been given above in the whole of them.

R. R.—Your second has also it on every opportunity occurs. He cannot take it after having moved his King.

W. C.—We shall report on it shortly.

The following have also solved P. B. S. Sneyd-Kynnersley, C. M. E., Ludwig, F. C. H., Ashton, Rev. J. Ball, Alpha, Beta, Gamma, Delta, Sorely, D. L., Alpha Beta, Charles, F. R., A. Ketchemanian, Quiz, Dr. Agate, E. B. F. Q. S., of Rugby, Mr. Wall, Mr. Hall, Mr. Hall, Mr. H

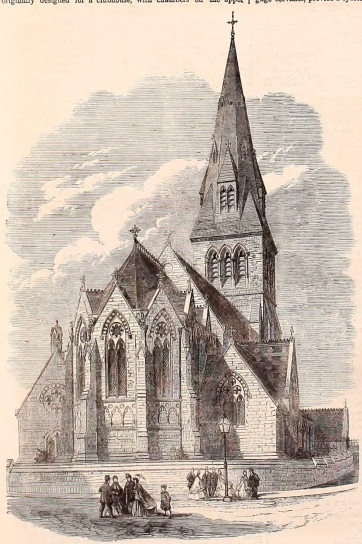
most imposing appearance. The inner ring is of coloured alabaster, resting on Devonshire marble pillars, with carved capitals and corbels. The reredos, or altarpiece, is beautifully ornamented with gold and black majolica, and bears medallions symbolising the four Evangelists. The ceiling of the apsis is stencilled gold and blue, contrasting with the sober hue of other parts of the roof. The nave is 78ft. long, by



THE SAILORS' CLUB, MARGATE.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

25½ ft. wide; but the extreme outer length of the building is 150 ft. The architects are Messrs. Hine and Evans, of Nottingham; the builders, Messrs. A. and H. Bennett. The Rev. Edwin Gyles is the minister of this church, which will accommodate a congregation of 800 persons.

THE CIVIL SERVICE CLUBHOUSE.



We give an Illustration of the noble building, recently erected in St. James's-street, called "The Thatched House Chambers," which has now come into the possession of the Civil Service Club. It was originally designed for a clubhouse, with chambers on the upper floors for the use of members and others, to which purpose they will continue to be applied. The façade, shown in our Engraving, as seen from the wall of Marlborough House, is entirely of stone. The building has been erected by Messrs. George Smith and Co., from the designs of Mr. James Knowles, jun.; the decorative carving representing real foliage and birds instead of mere conventional ornaments, has been executed by Mr. Daymond. In excavating the foundations—which were carried 30 ft. below the level of the street, their superficial extent being about 7500 square feet—an interesting collection of fossils was discovered, including a good specimen of a lion's jaw and a variety of mammoth bones, the earliest denizens of the spot in centuries long passed; below this surface the earth was pierced another 80 ft., to which depth the main tube of the hydraulic apparatus descends, its lifting power being obtained by the gradual rise of water let into the tube as required. This building is certainly one of the chief ornaments of the street; and, as its lofty walls, 99 ft. high, tower far above all the surrounding buildings, there is an extensive panoramic view of town and country from its upper rooms, to which access is obtained by two staircases, or by an hydraulic lift, which communicates with every floor, and is of the newest and safest construction. On its site long stood the celebrated Thatched House Tavern, which, with its many interesting associations, is the subject of a separate notice.

As regards the establishment of this club, it had long been considered that many and great advantages both to themselves and the public would result from such an association of gentlemen connected with the several branches of the Civil Service; hence a provisional committee was formed last year, consisting of about forty members representing many of the principal public departments, for the purpose of carrying out this object. In January last they issued a prospectus embodying a plan of constitution, together with a circular address to their colleagues at home and abroad, in which they state that, "whilst the Army and Navy, the Universities, and other important bodies are represented by one or more clubs, the members of the Civil Service of the Crown do not enjoy the benefit of any similar means of association." Their appeal for co-operation was well responded to, considering that heretofore the service was of a fragmentary character and that most of its influential members belonged to one or more of the principal clubs already existing. The provisional committee then, in accordance with their proposed plan, having selected from the list of candidates the first 250 members, called them together in March, when the club was formally started; and a managing committee was chosen to obtain a clubhouse, furnish it, stock its cellars, engage servants, provide a system of books, form a set of rules and regulations, and take all the necessary measures for placing the club on a firm and satisfactory basis. These preliminary duties were cheerfully undertaken, and have been creditably performed, inasmuch as it is, we believe, an unprecedented case for a first-class club to be in possession of a permanent building in a most eligible situation, and unexceptionable, both in its outward appearance and internal accommodation, within one year of the project being initiated. Much, of course, remains to be done; but the committee, who have accomplished so much in so short a time, are not likely to relax their efforts, especially as they entertain a confident and well-grounded expectation that the undertaking will prove a great and lasting success. The number of members of the Civil Service Club is limited, at present, to 1200; but the building might well accommodate as many as 2000, if such an increase were considered desirable.

THE NEW VESTRY-HALL OF ST. MARY'S, NEWINGTON.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH, NOTTINGHAM.

THE CIVIL SERVICE CLUBHOUSE, ON THE SITE OF THE OLD THATCHED HOUSE.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1337.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE KING OF PRUSSIA AT LAUENBURG.

KING WILLIAM OF PRUSSIA has recently consummated a work after his own heart. He has formally taken possession of the duchy of Lauenburg and received homage as its Sovereign. We have all heard of "a tempest in a teapot." The scale, but not the character, of this inaugural solemnity, by an odd association of ideas, recalls that miniature commotion to mind. The great Hohenzollern added last week a new jewel to his crown. What though it was a little one, representing but a few square miles of territory and a population below that of one of our fifth-rate towns! What though it has passed through many hands—Brunswick, Mecklenburg, Hanover, France, Denmark! Had not Prussia and Austria combined to snatch it from a weaker neighbour, Prussia, after some haggling, paying to Austria a sum of hard cash for its share! The pettiness of the acquisition rendered it all the more necessary that its realisation should be celebrated with imposing pomp. Europe is interested in knowing that King William has assumed sway over 50,000 more subjects with ceremonies befitting the grandeur of the occasion; that the principle involved in the transference—that, namely, of your right to lay hands upon your neighbour's goods if you are strong enough to beat down all resistance—has been duly and publicly honoured; and that an affair which rapacity commenced has been happily brought to a close with a display of effrontery quite worthy of its character. It would have been grave impolicy not to challenge the world's attention to the last act of a drama, every successive scene of which the world has perversely hissed as at an infamous farce. Hence the sham of the unification of shame on the part of Count Bismarck which no one who had watched his course would have deemed him capable of being guilty.

THE BELGIAN NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION AT BRUSSELS: THE FIRING-POINT.—SEE PAGE 345.

The upholstery of the ceremonial needs no description. Everything, of course, was in the smallest type, but, with that exception, was in conformity with usual standards. There was a triumphal arch, and there were "tasteful" decorations with shrubs and flags. There was the Royal salute of 21 guns. The reception of Majesty with flourishes of trumpets, and a salute. There was a dinner, a torchlight procession, an illumination, and fireworks. All this expressed, as well as upholstery could do, the general appreciation by the Imperial and Royal honour of having been purchased by King William for we forget how many thalers, and of having passed under the benign rule of the Prussian monarch. But the grateful welcome given by the clergy to its new Sovereign could not be so adequately by merely scenic emblems. Poetry hailed the Monarch's advent, and, presented by the hands of two young girls clad in white, commemorative verses. The functionaries of Ratzeburg did the clergy of the district, headed by the substantial mayor of the district, the magistrates, volunteers, and corporation, took prominent part in the solemnities. There were speeches and cheers. There was going to church, psalm-singing, oath-taking, a sermon, and a benediction. Patriotism and religion reyoiced together in presence of the auspicious event.

The King was, it seems, all smiles and affability on the occasion. Perhaps he regarded the annexation of Lauenburg to Prussia as a foretaste of the more substantial annexation prospect. Schleswig and Holstein constitute the pièce de résistance to which he looks forward for the satisfaction of his appetite. Prussian digestion is quite equal, even now, to the process of assimilating them, but there must be some slight prescribes a short interval of abstinence. It is certainly inconvenient when your neighbours have a more delicate sense of the respect due to law and equity than you have, and seem disposed to cherish in regard to your own proceedings such wishes. Something of this inconvenience seems to have imposed a show of temporary self-restraint upon Count Bismarck. Provisional arrangements, however, are generally succeeded by follow; and the world is at no loss to judge what is destined to follow in this case. Lauenburg, possibly, would not have been incorporated with Prussia in so stately and ceremonious a fashion but for the belief that the annexation of the duchies will draw after it the other two, and that Europe, having witnessed the absorption of the first, will have buried the sting of its criticism where inflammation is least to be apprehended.

Had the chief actors in this scene been other than they were, one might have imagined that in the very midst of their triumph reflection must have imparted a dash of uneasiness to their hilarious excitement. The policy which has gathered its first fruits in Lauenburg is a dangerous one for King, or even Prince. In these days the world is swayed very mainly by sentiment, and, as the Emperor of the French epigrammatically puts it "the best victory always remains with public opinion." Bismarck, if they could but take a fair estimate of their position, should be the last to do despite to the spirit of the age. The breath of their life consists in the respect with which they are regarded by their subjects and by neighbouring peoples. Prerogative is a double-edged sword, to be used carefully handled, is likely enough to wound him who wields it; but when prerogative is employed in initiating a policy of revolutionary violence, in making will stand for law, and in putting might above right, it generates in the great mass of society beneath it an irreverential temper towards the established order of things. Contempt of authority is contagious; and when Kings leap beyond the bounds of truth and honour their subjects are apt to care less for the dictates of loyalty. No impolicy is usually followed by such disastrous effects as that which exhibits a total disregard by the ruling powers of the restraints which self-respect would impose on them; and the lingly authority which rudely acts at naught the maxims of justice commonly has to deal in the end with a demoralised public conscience. Ego et Rex meus—Count Bismarck and his Sovereign—seem to do a great deal of this surprising things, but neither their will nor their strength is adequate to the task of breaking the sequence which Divine Providence has established between wilful wrong-doing and retribution.

In truth, the precedent which King William of Prussia has given to the world with a grand flourish of trumpets is one which would bear hard upon Prussia if the other great Powers of Europe should be inclined to sanction and act upon it. The egg ever which there has been so much cackling has in it the embryo of the cockatrice. Happily, there is no public necessity to crush it at once. But there it is, with a living germ of mischief in it. No one can foretell what effect time and events may have upon it. One thing only is certain—should anything occur to erase from the unwritten code of international law the precept "Thou shall not remove thy neighbour's landmark," and Prussia be made the victim of the license she has done her best to consecrate, she will look around for sympathy in vain. Her example will undo her. Out of her own mouth she will be condemned. But there needs hardly this external disturbance of the European system to punish Prussia. She will feel the inconvenient results of her conduct in many ways short of actual dismemberment. Her policy has isolated her, and for a long time to come she will have no influential voice in the councils of Europe. In her present mood this may cause her but little pain. Too intent upon enjoying her spoil, she cares nothing for her relative position in the comity of States. But when the flush of immediate gratification has subsided and the ordinary course shall govern human nature resume their sway, the reputation in which she stands to her neighbours will be gall and wormwood to her ambitious spirit. The Lauenburg solemnities and festivities will then appear in their true character, as a mockery of the acquisition of territory which they celebrated will be considered but a poor recompense for the large sacrifice of character and position with which it was purchased.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

PARIS, Oct. 3.

THE Prussian Prime Minister, Count Bismarck, who has been staying here for a few days on his way, we believe, to Biarritz, to Biarritz, is reported to have availed himself of the opportunity to talk over the matters interesting to Prussia and Austria with Mr. Dayan de Lhuys at a private interview. Although it is given out as a matter of course that the Prussian Minister's visit to Biarritz has no relation whatever to political matters, he has probably not been without the object of the Count's journey is to obtain, if possible, no informal indication of the Emperor of the French's views when that he should profit by the very excellent sea-bathing to be obtained on that favoured coast for the benefit of his health.

Active preparations are, I hear, being made at Compiègne for the reception of the Emperor, and the last reports from the Court at Compiègne contemplates cutting short his stay at Biarritz, and that he will probably arrive at the Imperial residence on the Upper Oise next week, after a few days' sojourn at the Tuileries or St. Cloud, he will retire to Compiègne, where the customary round of entertainments will, of course, be resumed.

It is announced that Prince Napoleon—who is still in disgrace with his Imperial relatives—is about to visit Italy. He will be accompanied by Princess Clotilde, and King Victor Emmanuel is to meet them at either Turin, Milan, or Genoa. The Prince is afterwards to visit Florence, if the family is on no account to go to Florence, where he would be certain, it is said, to compromise himself by demonstrations not unsuiting a very delicate phase in view of the anticipated early withdrawal of the French troops from the Papal States by the Papal army.

The restless activity of the rebuilders of this fair city of Paris seems really to know no bounds. Every week fresh announcements are made of contemplated demolitions to be succeeded with new works to be commenced, works in progress to be pushed forward to completion, and the finishing touches to be given to those already completed and opened. Almost every week, or two since, I spoke of the extensive demolitions—for the formation of the new Avenue de l'Impératrice, the Rue de l'Impératrice, which is to connect the Théâtre Français and the Palais Royal with the Bois de Boulogne. Already it is to some extent partly yet stumpted in the way of street architecture—even of the most magnificent kind—and the first preparations making for the erection of the new Royal Italian Notices have now been served on the occupiers of something like one hundred houses—and your readers will bear in mind the size of our Paris houses—in the territories between the Rue de Halles and the Rue de Tonnellerie, and a long and handsome street be formed from this latter locality direct to the Pont Neuf. Here, too, new works in the first stone of a large and handsome building, to serve as a new lodging house and refectory for the Sisters of Charity, have been pushed forward with railway speed. The erection of this building on the spot—which is known, as a matter of course, the formation of still another new street; but our Paris rebuilders think no more of ordering a new street to be made than the Metropolitan Board of Works would of ordering a new sewer—is a very fine building, and just discovered that the picturesque clock-tower which was striking the hours and quarters for the Hôtel de Ville is out of harmony with the modern additions to and alterations of the building; and straightway it has been sent forth to the world that—in its place a grand new tower on a scale of commensurate magnificence is to be erected. Nothing as well as to the Hôtel de Ville has been calling attention for years to the incongruity of the present front of the Church of Notre Dame Lorette, and suggesting that it would be retarit in accordance with correct canons of taste. And, as I have I am aware, the authorities have not yet decreed its removal, although the Archbishop of Paris has given his consent to the new building; and even when they do so, I have no doubt this hideous facade will find its fate put off for many years to come, as the so-called canons of the rights and liberties of our ancient Corporation.

The last new church we have opened to worship drew his last breath, in the arms of his affianced bride, has been purchased by the Emperor for the Greek Church, and is to be pulled down, in order to make room for a monument or a mercenary chapel upon its site.

At the time of the Great Exhibition of 1851 several of the French new-paper correspondents, who visited England to report upon its contents, and had the good fortune to be introduced into some of our best English society, dwelt with rapture in their letters on the suburban villa life of the upper middle classes, which was a thing entirely new to them. Many of the graphic descriptions given by there clever Frenchmen which gave the Parisians the desire to adopt, and of course improve upon, the suburban villa and of our English mode of life for soon afterwards the detached suburban villa, with its miniature lakes and rockeries, began to spring up around us, and every neighbours on the banks of the Seine and Marne round herself performing a summer emigration to her more picturesque suburbs, where she could be met by her affected friends all the course of time nature had to give way before the aggressions of French taste. Your Parisian pooper parties (Pique-niques, willages, Nature, Nanterre, Sèvres, or Fontenay-aux-Roses, peoples his summerhouse, if possible, on the top of his garden-wall, but, in any case, within full view of every passer-by. Some of these suburban retreats—pavilions, as they are elegantly styled—are hardly larger than a gardener's lodgings. But your Frenchman is a good economiser of space. A cupboard serves him for a kitchen, and he feels as comparely as poor emigrants are compelled to do on board ship. Attired in out-of-town costume, he sees himself in his strip of garden, or perches himself under the global weathercock of his summer-house and smokes his londres and talks about his "campagne." His "campagne" is often not more extensive than one of those small garden allotments on the way to Walhamstow, where the British handloom weavers and other East-End workmen disport themselves; but he is proprietaire, and proudly sets forth from the "macadam" of the Boulevards des Italiens to his country-house. A friend had been in the habit of talking to me about "ma ferme," which I had received many invitations to visit. At last I went, in the company of the proud landlord, over the property. It was a slip of land, near Courbevoie, on which a third-rate villa might have been built, leaving the unrent thereof of a garden! I had apologised for my broad sense.

"How do you spend your time when you leave Paris for your country place?" I asked a friend who had a "campagne" on the Seine's bank.

"Charmingly; I and my wife dress ourselves up as paysans and feel the children."

The dressing up, the acting a part—here is the charm! And in a very few years very extraordinary places will be selected for it, for, when French taste shall have expended all its ingenuity upon them. Some of the most picturesque spots on the higher banks, as I have seen at Passy, or Chatou, or on the lovely slopes of St. Cloud and the Vale d'Amay, are already becoming surprisingly pretty under the English gardens attached, and ornamental waters and fountains; but the average "campagne" of the middle-class Parisian is a wooden house of many colours, comfortless within. A round table, a few chairs, and a sideboard furnish the little box which is called a dining-room. The kitchen is a stewing-place, or may be pressed into use at a pinch. It is a nest, not a house, encompassed by trees and flowers, but under perverse obligations to eat table-beds. On the Boulevard des Capucines the Paris visiter may see some designs for fantastic villas that will give the Parisian idea of Asiatic or Alhambresque architecture. It is fantastic in the highest degree, and leads one to believe that the taste is not for off—when the Parisian will absolutely paint the sky. Prince Napoleon has already turned Pompeii to account. The Egyptian sphinx is to be seen on the Prince's beach, covered, however, with ver antique. The rust of ages is here but the work of a few months.

The Théâtre Italien commenced its season on Monday last, with the production of "Crispino e la Comare," an opera bulla, in four acts, by the Brothers Ricci, principally from the music. Even on the first evening, seems to promise to achieve a permanent success, mainly through the excellent acting of Mdlle. Zucchini. The opera is followed by the ballet of "Don Zeffiro," the joint work of St. Leon and Federic Ricci, in which Mdlle. Adeline Urban, who debuted for a few nights in the ballet of "Diavolina," at the Grand Opera, is première danseuse. The new artiste was much admired, although in any of the elite of Parisian society were present.

The Théâtre Lyrique is to open with the finishing touches to his new opera of "Romeo and Juliet," which is to be represented at the Théâtre Lyrique early next year.

SPAIN.

A Royal decree has been published arranging the mode of paying the interest upon the colonial debt.

At Saragossa there have been some riotous demonstrations on the part of the populace in opposition to the enforcement of octroi dues, The authorities have, however, succeeded in quelling the disturbances.

PORTUGAL.

The baptism of the Infants Dom Affonso took place, on Wednesday week, in the chapel of the Palace of Ajuda, without public ceremony. The King has since left for Bordeaux by sea. Three French iron-clad frigates accompanied the Royal steamboat.

AUSTRIA.

The Official Gazette of Vienna published, on Tuesday, the anticipated statement of the receipts and expenditure of the Austrian empire for the first nine months of the current year, and announced that the final accounts for the year are expected to show an equilibrium, if not indeed an actual surplus.

The Emperor has ordered the suppression of the local commands at Gorizz, Innspruck, Clausenburg, Hermannstadt, Ozova, Oeppa, Breibarg, Riva, and Vicenza.

GERMANY.

The Congress of German Deputies, summoned to express the general feeling of the nation upon the present position of the Schleswig-Holstein question, met at Frankfort, on Monday. Resolutions were passed strongly condemning the principles just acted upon by Austria and Prussia as well as the political acts of the latter, and declaring without consulting the wishes of the inhabitants. A resolution was also passed expressing the desire of Germany for the convocation of a German Parliament.

GREECE.

The King returned to Athens on Thursday week from Corfu.

A subscription for the relief of Candia is being proposed in the budget of expenditure.

UNITED STATES.

The work of reconstruction in the South is proceeding satisfactorily, and President Johnson's policy is meeting with approval. The New York Democratic State Convention has passed resolutions expressing confidence in him, approving his reconstruction policy, and pledging him its support. The Wisconsin Democratic Convention have also indorsed the President's policy and tendered him their support.

The Alabama State Convention has requested the Governor to call on the Legislature to assemble for repressing the disorderly elements now prevailing in several counties. Resolutions have been introduced into the Reconstruction Convention repudiating the United States Debt, declaring it the duty of the Convention to restore the State to her proper relations with the Federal Government, and that it was not expedient to declare the Ordinance of Secession null and void. The Convention keeps to repeal the secession ordinance, and other ordinances consequent upon it. They also abolish slavery, forbid the abolition of slavery, and prohibit its restoration, declaring the slaves shall be protected in their freedom. The ordinances of the Alabama State enactments subsequent to secession not inconsistent with the above ordinances.

The message of Governor Perry, of South Carolina, is a remarkable document. Although the State has suffered severely, he congratulates them on the freedmen, and the ratification by the Convention of the Constitutional clause abolishing slavery.

Mr. Johnson has appointed Mr. James Wells Provisional Governor of Louisiana, in order to reconstruct the State after the manner of the Southern States.

The official correspondence between Messrs. Seward and Adams, in March and April, relative to the claims in reference to the Canadian loan, and Vice-Chancellor Stuart's decision in the Prolioni case, has been published. Mr. Adams contended that he had, in May, it necessary, inform the British Government, in a friendly and courteous manner, that the United States never admitted the combination of rebels to be a de facto Government, and will not be responsible for the rebel debt, and will not recognise their claim for the repayment of loans in the present case. While they are content to receive it through a decree of the British tribunals, they insist on the absolute right to it through the action of the British Government. The United States will hold themselves under no obligation whatever to accept or to confirm their proceedings to conditions which the Court of Chancery or other municipal court may prescribe in the present or other litigation. Mr. Morton Peto, Sir Edward Watkin, Mr. Jackman, and a deputation of seven (spoken of generally as the English capitalists), who have been travelling through the Western States, have created a sensation. Their movements are chronicled by the telegraph, and they are followed by a number of correspondents, who dispatch long letters to the journals describing the dinners, balls, and feasts got up in honour of these guests. As on all occasions they make speeches illustrative of good feeling and kindness between the two countries, their trip has assumed great political importance, and leading articles are written praising the remarks of the English speakers and applauding their repeated assertions that between England and the United States there should exist a true and sincere alliance.

INDIA, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

The news from India by the Calcutta mail is not of much importance. There are rumours that the Bhootan difficulty may be settled without further recourse to arms, a treaty having been laid before, and approved by, the Governor-General in Council, which now awaits the assent of the Bhootan Durbar.

In China, the appointment of the well-known Tseng-Kwo-Fan, as generalissimo of the Imperial forces, has created some little anxiety, as he is known to have a strong leaning against foreigners.

There is nothing of the least political interest from Japan.

NEW ZEALAND.

By a telegram received by the New Zealand Government Agency in London, we learn that the colonial forces, under Governor Grey, had been successful in two encounters with the natives. Five of the European contingent are to return immediately home. The Weld Ministry is well supported by both Houses of Parliament.

THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

The Basuto war was being conducted with vigour. Boers had failed in taking Moshesh's stronghold, Thaba Bosigo. The Boers had displayed much energy in attack than in their former acts, but were still in a very undisciplined state.

In the first attack, on the 22nd of August, Commandant Tick, with 1,000 men, ascended the heights, under the protection of the guns, but afterwards wavered and gave up the attack, with only ten men slightly wounded; none were killed. The next morning they were to renew the attacking party left their post to capture some cattle. Some of the Boers seized on rapidly that number of the Basuto horses, leaders and cleaks captured by the enemy.

A second attack was made on the 15th of August, when the Boers received a serious repulse. Of 1,200 Boers told off only 600 actually fought. Some exhibited great gallantry, but a large number are said to have displayed great cowardice. Commandant Wippe-Naar, the hero of Vechtkop, who throughout the war had proved himself the most gallant and dashing burgher in the field, and nine others, were killed, and eleven wounded. A large number of Boers deserted to do anything beyond cattle-capturing.

THE LOAN COLLECTION AT THE PALAIS DE L'INDUSTRIE, IN PARIS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

THE MARQUIS OF HERTFORD'S COLLECTION.—POLISH ROYAL RELICS.—MINIATURES.—SEVRES.

The Marquis of Hertford's collection, which has now been thrown open to the public for some days, and which will be a great attraction to the crowds who throng the exhibition on Sunday afternoons, is almost unique of its kind. Here, in a number of rooms filled with rare and curious furniture of seventeenth and eighteenth century work, such as console tables of bold and elegant design, either of buhl or else with gilded ornaments on their sides and fronts, or else of marble; commodes, with gilt handles in the form of dragons, designed by Chatelwait; and cabinets inlaid with panels of Sevres porcelain—some in turquoise blue, with gilt ormaments of exquisite design and of the most delicate workmanship, the panels of which are filled with beautiful copies on porcelain of subjects by both Watteau and Boucher. This elegant species of furniture formerly belonged to Marie Antoinette, whose cypher may be seen inscribed upon it. Next we may mention the large collection of timepieces of the most elaborate and costly description, nearly all of which are of gilt bronze, and the numerous candelabra, of bold and original design, of the same date—one magnificent pair is worked by figures of Arab boys supporting the arms, which only the active brain of Clodion could have conceived and only his skilful hand have executed. Then there are vases of every fine bronze and marble busts and statuettes, among which will be noticed a marble bust of Adrienne Lecouvreur, by Coustou, who appears to have the gallant Marshal Saxe for a lover; also three charming marble statuettes by Lemoine, one of which represents Venus at the time of the Regency, and produced, in marble, precisely the same sympathy which Boucher and others produced in their pictures of nymphs in the well known figure of "La Baigneuse," a pretty enough-looking nymph, displaying all that piquant kind of grace which at that time were the rule to imbue into works of art, and in which they have never found their equals. Next we have a figure of the youth Cupid busily occupied in forming his bow from the club of a sleeping Hercules, so many hearts; and a companion figure of a young girl, who carries a few flowers in the scanty drapery which she wears, and who is binding her, and is advancing forward with a most coquettish air, looking for all the world like some young maid-servant of the Regency period.

In the centre of the salon is a large glass case, containing chiefly a matchless collection of Sevres china, comprising some of the very finest productions of the eighteenth century, and which is, perhaps, the completest collection of the kind ever brought into any private individual. For one vase alone the Marquis is said to have given £2200. Painted over with subjects by Boucher and Lancret are vases of shaded every conceivable tint of blue, and of the most rare flower-baskets, tintadoris, clocks, and tiny ewers and basins in which some Royal dame or resplendent courtier of the Regency might wash her delicate hands; but which, being now regarded as beyond price, are consigned to the cabinet of the curious. Among the most interesting specimens of old Sevres is still another relic of poor Marie Antoinette—an inkstand, given to her by Louis XVI., which bears on its cover her cypher and on the other the arms of France, and on the centre a beautifully painted portrait of Louis the Martyr. There is also among a small marble statuette of Voltaire in his old age, by Houdon, representing the witty philosopher seated in a straight-backed armchair, with a long flowing robe gathered round him, the countenance lighted up with a lively expression of shrewd intelligence, the like of which can have now but rarely been seen upon earth. Then a clever statuette is a small bronze group of two female athletes wrestling in front of a tree. One of the figures, that on the left of the cane, has some remarkable Oriental daggers and handyarmours, the scabbards and handles of which are richly studded with gems and precious stones—diamonds, cascades, rubies, and turquoises. In an adjacent case is displayed a most rare and valuable collection of Oriental arms and armour, all of the weapons being either magnificently chased or damascened, while several of them have their hilts inlaid with precious stones. Here, too, we have to expound the wills of this salon is in the finest state of preservation, and of unusual brilliancy. The most interesting object here is a fine picture of Watteau's pictures, while others represent incidents in the "History of Don Quixote," from Coypel's celebrated work.

In one of the other salons of the exhibition is a curious collection of objects which formerly belonged to the unfortunate King of Poland, such as massive gold chains, enamelled crosses, the Order of the Golden Fleece, drinking-cups, snuff-boxes, gold-headed canes, walking-sticks, snuff-boxes, finger-rings, fans and fobs, and even coat and waistcoat buttons. In the same apartment are displayed a number of magnificent oak chimneypieces, the mouldings and ornaments of which are richly gilt, with oval portraits of Louis XIV., Louis XV., Louis XVI., Henri IIIrd, Jean d'Albret, mother of Henry IV., and one or two others in Limoges enamel, let into panels, which form part of the general design. Above the mantelpieces is a fine full-length portrait of the last great dignitary whose features I failed to recognise, surrounded by a magnificently executed oak frame, which would be a treasure to any connoisseur.

The miniatures contributed to this loan collection are, as may be supposed, extremely fine. Here may be seen scores upon scores of the most renowned female faces and figures of the Regency period, ere not sometimes as boucher, but more frequently figuring as isle of shepherdesses, and comprising many of the great beauties of the Court of the Grand Monarque, of the Regent, of Louis XV., the Well-Beloved, and of his unfortunate successor. Here, for instance, one may gaze full on the pretty face of the youthful Duchesse de Bourgogne, Mademoiselle, de la Vallière, de Fontanges, Desboulières, de Longueville, de Parabère, du Chatel, Sabliére, de Pompadour, du Barry, de Montesson, de Polignac, and de Lamballe. Here, too, is the miniature of Louis XVI., painted by Petitot, which the King presented to Mdme. de la Vallière; also a miniature, by Hall, of Louis Philippe, in his uniform as Colonel of Dragoons, when he was only nineteen years of age, and Aide-de-Camp to General Dumouriez.

The bronze medals comprise numerous fine examples of the Italian, German, and French schools. Among the former the somewhat repulsive countenance of Leonzzo the Magnificent will be observed to great advantage. The profile-portrait in bronze, by Bazzeri, is particularly interesting. It presents us with the rare effigies of Marc Reni Voyer d'Argenson, a Venetian and Lieutenant-General of the French police, who enjoys the doubtful honour of being the inventor of the notorious lettres de cachet, which consigned hundreds of innocent persons to the dungeons of the Bastile. The figure is a half-length, and the right hand, which is thrust forward, is gifted, the explanation of which may be gathered from the following sentence appended to the medallion: "Men who are fortunate in affairs have a golden hand."

THE KING OF PRUSSIA IN LAUENBURG.

The King of Prussia arrived at the frontier of Lauenburg at five p.m. on Monday week. A triumphal arch had been erected, and Count Wartensleben, the President of the Regency, and Lord Marshal von Bulow, received his Majesty on his entry into the duchy. Both gentlemen, at the King's invitation, entered the Royal carriage. At Bröchen, where the station was very prettily decorated with flowers and flags, the King was received by Councillor von Lutzow and Statist-Councillor Hille, from Lauenburg, and a beautiful young girl dressed in white presented his Majesty with a copy of verses. The King spoke to her.

Towards six o'clock the Royal train arrived at the Ratzeburg station, which was also prettily decorated with flowers and flags; here his Majesty was received with a flourish of trumpets and enthusiastic cheering. The functionaries of the district, the clergy and the entire staff of officials were assembled to meet the King. At a triumphal arch erected near the station, the King was met by hundreds of peasants, each with a nosegay in his hat, and carrying a small bouquet in his hand, as they were drawn up. The Amtmann then made a short speech, in which he observed that the Lauenburgers had always displayed loyalty, allegiance, and attachment to their rulers. The King alighted from his carriage amidst the lively cheers of the assembled people, and replied to the speech of Herr von Cossel, expressing a hope that, as the Lauenburgers had given proofs of attachment to their Princes and Sovereigns they would now transfer their allegiance and attachment to Him, with a conjunction of circumstances favourable to their ruler. His Majesty re-entered his carriage amid loud cheering, and the procession then took the road to Ratzeburg. The King was received at the entrance of the town by the Burgomaster, Herr Schmidt, and the Town Council arrayed with red velvet upon a dais erected immediately in front of the town. The Burgomaster addressed his Majesty in a speech, in which he said that Ratzeburg, which was the residence of the nobility and gentry of the province, had the honour to welcome the King and the altar upon one side, and that upon the other was filled up by the Prussian officials, clergy, and the Royal Commissioners. The Te Deum-service had been sung. Superintendent Bonnel preached a sermon, taking his text from 1st Epistle of St. Peter ii. 13-16. The preacher stated, in the course of his address, that the Lauenburgers had found it difficult to reconcile themselves to the idea of changing their allegiance; but with occasion to point out that, from that very circumstance, their sincerity in taking the oath of homage they were about to render was the more to be relied upon. The Lauenburgers, he observed, loved Bismarck, in his capacity of Minister of the duchy, summoned the nobility and gentry to the altar. He (the preacher) and Marshal von Bulow then came forward, read over all the titles of the King, and administered the oath of allegiance to his subjects. The ceremony closed with another verse of a psalm, a prayer, and the blessing, after which the King returned to his residence on foot.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Three new divisions of the Metropolitan Police, to be designated by the letters V, W, and X, are to be formed.

The National Gallery, Trafalgar-square, is closed for the autumn vacation. It will be reopened on the 16th inst.

The medical schools connected with the great metropolitan hospitals were opened, on Monday, when, as usual, inaugural addresses were delivered by the various lecturers.

Last Saturday another great choral demonstration, by 3000 school-children, took place in the Crystal Palace, in honour of Sir G. W. Martin. The programme was carried out in a satisfactory manner, and was relished by the children with the customary enthusiasm.

A lady has passed her final examination and received honours in the examination for degrees in medicine, having undergone through the entire course of study prescribed by that body. The course includes five years, and the preliminary examination in general and in two professional examinations. The first of these is on anatomy, physiology, chemistry, botany, and materia medica; the second, on the practice of medicine, pathology, toxicology, medical jurisprudence, and midwifery.

Mr. S. H. Emmens, of Nicholas-lane, Lombard-street, Hyde Park, has written to the Times to say that Mr. Cooper has placed at his disposal the cheap and convenient use of a room in Nicholas-lane, and, in consequence, he will be glad to receive the names of the clergy, of the managers of ragged schools, and of others who may be desirous of, and willing to take charge of and distribute these plants, and the number of plants they will require for distribution. Mr. Emmens says, "I am particularly anxious that it is possible, with care and attention, to keep such plants during the winter months in rooms, and that the poor may be induced to take a pride in their cultivation, and that their window-sills may be made to look as gay as they are their results—increased beauty to the streets of London, a more educated taste among the working classes, and more cleanliness and comfort in the social life of the poor."

The election for Lord Mayor took place yesterday week, when Mr. Alderman Sir Robert Carden, one of the aldermen to retire, preceded in state, with the other members of the Corporation, to the church of St. Lawrence Jewry, where divine service was performed by the Rev. Dr. Cotton, the lecturer, preached a sermon from the 1st Epistle of St. Peter ii. 17. The procession then proceeded to the Guildhall, where the livery mustered. The Lord Mayor and Aldermen retired to their own apartments, where they were to be presented over by the Sheriffs. Mr. Alderman Phillips and Mr. Alderman Allen, the two senior aldermen who had not served the office of Lord Mayor, were then created to the Court of Aldermen, and that Worshipful Court elected Mr. Alderman Lawrence, the senior of the two, to be Lord Mayor for the ensuing year.—On Tuesday evening the Lord Mayor entertained the Lord Mayor Elect, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and some of the principal officers of the Corporation, at a banquet at the Mansion-house.

The births of 2156 children (1666 boys and 1090 girls) were registered in London in the week ending Saturday last. In the ten years 1855-64, the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 1628. The deaths registered in the same week were 1200 (628 males, 572 females). In the third week of the year, and the average number for that week was, corrected for increase of population, 1128. The deaths of 1200 persons in London last week were distributed over the districts of the Metropolis as follow:—In the West, 157; North, 264; Central, 75; East, 307; South, 397. The annual rate per hundred living last week was 37. The highest number of fatal cases of scarlatina in the week was registered in Bethnal-green, 10; the lowest 0 in that of 1859. The smallest heat of the present season has raised the mercury from the freezing point to 42 deg. Fahr. Diarrhœa has been unusually experienced in the last week of September. Besides these from diarrhœa, 12 deaths were registered, of which only one was registered in cholera. Three deaths from casualties occurred in the sub-district of St. Mary, St. George's-in-the-East. Five cases are recorded in which accidents in the streets by horses and conveyances were attended by fatal results.

The deaths registered in the week ending Saturday last in the United Kingdom were 4271; the deaths registered, 2016. The annual rate of mortality was 24 per 1000 persons living. In Liverpool the births were 431, the deaths 403; in Manchester—births 231, deaths 221; in Salford—births 59, deaths 39; in Birmingham—births 159, deaths 148; in Leeds—births 105, deaths 103; in Bristol—births 79, deaths 60; in Hull—births 39, deaths 37; in Edinburgh—births 198, deaths 88; in Glasgow—births 420, deaths 281; and in Dublin—births 179, deaths 154. The annual rate of mortality last week was 21 per 1000 in London, 26 in Edinburgh, and 30 in Dublin; in Liverpool, 30; Manchester, 29; Salford, 24; Birmingham, 24 in Leeds, 19; in Bristol, 29; in Hull, 24; in Glasgow,

LAW AND POLICE.—On Tuesday, at the Judges' chambers, in the case of "Doane v. Lee," an application for costs in an interpleader suit was opposed on the ground that the goods in dispute, which had been levied upon, were illegally seized, except in the City. Serjeant Cleasby, Q.C., said that the City cases were a perfect mystery. Mr. Justice Willes said he was "staggered." He certainly did not know his privileges as a citizen. He would consider the point, as it was very important. The matter was adjourned on application for a few days.

A gender-testing "lunacy," whose name has been before the public on several recent occasions, was tried at the Middlesex Sessions, yesterday week, on a charge of assaulting a police-constable on the facts of this particular charge were very simple. The prisoner took lodgings in Tavistock-street, abstracted the bed-clothes, and refused to pay the landlady. She seized it under distress for rent, and the prisoner, desperately combative that the prisoner, in a spirit of war to send for a policeman. The prisoner struck the constable a severe blow in the arm, but the latter succeeded in taking her into custody before the other. The jury, however, believed that he was the aggressor, and found the prisoner Not Guilty. Mr. Clerkenwell Green, in sentencing "the Baron" to twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

Sir George Grey has taken the initiative in the question of the statistics of Mdme. Valentin into consideration, has recommended her Majesty to grant her the pardon for which she asks, and an order was, on Thursday, sent to the prison at Holloway for her release.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Queen has approved of Don Guillermo Rodger Gilmour as Consul at Liverpool for the Argentine Republic.

It has been computed that 60,000 persons arrived by train in Birmingham on Thursday week, the occasion being "the great cattle day."

Mr. H. K. Batstone, of Manchester, who, at great risk of his own life, saved the lives of two children at Llandudno, in Aug., has been presented by the Royal Humane Society with a medal.

The ceremony of publicly announcing the awards of the prizes for the Dublin Exhibition took place in the exhibition building, on Tuesday evening, when the Duke of Leinster presided; and prizes were delivered by Earl Rosse, Sir Robert Peel, and other persons of distinction.

The Earl of Derby, the Governor of the Leeward Islands was last week the guest of Mr. Tennyson, the Poet Laureate, at Farringford, in the Isle of Wight. Mr. Tennyson's eldest son, Lionel, is Chaplain to the Forces at Portsmouth, by the Chaplain to the Queen, in aid of the funds of the mission.

At the annual provincial grand lodge of Freemasons for West Lancashire and Cheshire, held at the Royal Hotel, Preston, on Thursday, Capt. M.P., was installed to the office of Right Worshipful the Grand Master of the Province, in the room of the Earl of Lathom, deceased.

Surrey County School will be opened on the 12th inst., by a public meeting, to be held at Lambeth Townhall at Cranley, one of the prizes a plain education for the sons of the middle classes. The establishment is erected at a cost of £40,000.

The Enfranchisement Commissioners have resolved to construct another new road, connecting two important districts of the Cheshire side of the Mersey with Liverpool, through the Woodside estate. The cost of the road is to be £21,200. The rapid progress of the town is pretty plainly indicated by the increasing demand for the future of the land.

On Monday the Horsham and Guildford Railway—a branch of the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway—was opened for passenger traffic. The Alton and Winchester Railway, a single line commencing at Alton, and terminating at Winchester, in connection with the London and South Western Railway about a mile from the Winchester station, was opened for public traffic on Monday.

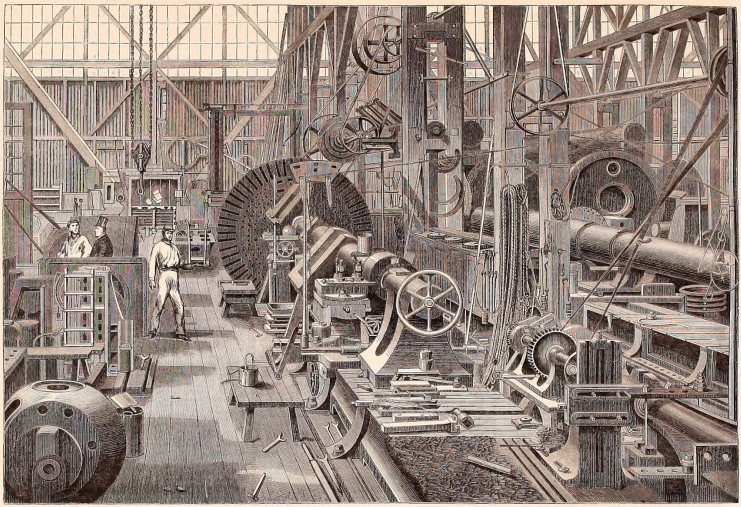
Mr. George Augustus Sala came out in our City-hall Saturday night, in a new character. On that time, in the course of a lecture, he had a numerous audience, received a very cordial welcome, and made an admirably impressive speech. Mr. Sala spoke of the duties of the artist and character in the United States. He sketched with a free, light touch some of the leading features of the American society and concluded by saying in the performance all those qualities of keen observation, picturesque remark, genuine humour, and graphic delineation which have made Mr. Sala's name a special correspondent.—North British Mail.

A meeting of Poor-law boardmasters, and others was held in the School of Art, Boston, last Saturday, for the purpose of hearing an address from Mr. Mundella, M.P., on the subject of the Revised Code of education and the science and the science minute of the Council on Education. There was an excellent attendance of the Rev. J. Rooke, Mr. Brooke, chairman of the board, occupied the chair. After Mr. Boltmaster's address there was a discussion on the subject of compulsory education. Mr. Mundella, M.P., delivered a well-attended public meeting took place in the Townhall, Loughborough, when Mr. Mundella addressed a letter to the secretary, which was read.

A very handsome testimonial, consisting of a purse £100 left by the late Rev. T. Merrick, to be given annually to the young single woman in the parish of Bideford who should have served the most years in service at Heavorthy Church, Devon, has been awarded to Miss Jane Trebe, of that village. Miss Trebe is a poor girl, and has been industrious, and has also considered therefore eligible to give in their names. There were six candidates. The testimonial was presented to the young lady at the vestry-room after a full of thanking the parishioners for the choice of many they had made the task to the Rector. Mrs Mary Cole was awarded a like sum, as being an old and respectable servant who had served many years.

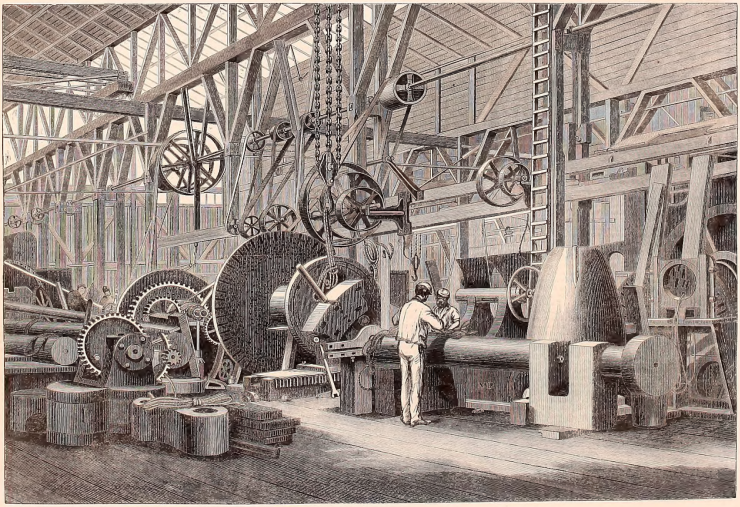
The Marquis of Ormonde attained his majority on Thursday, when there were grand entertainments at Kilkenny Castle to the tenantry and the public generally. On the previous evening a dinner was given at the Kilkenny Club, at which Lord Clarendon, Lord Kenlis, and Lord Ormonde, the Earl of Bective, Lord Dunsany, attended. On Thursday, the Marquis of Ormonde had a numerous assembly of tenantry in Kilkenny Castle. Yorkshire, and Westmoreland, invited the whole of his tenantry, as well as a large number of the gentry, neighbours, and others, to celebrate the event by his hospitality. In honour of the event the town of Kirkby Lonsdale was gaily decorated with flags and evergreens, and at the stage were erected by the ox three in the afternoon, a tea in the evening, and a souvenir in the shape of a medal was given to each.

One day last week two occupants of a first-class carriage on the Dublin and Kingstown Railway were astonished. One had a portmanteau on a vacant place, and the other, a new comer, having some difficulty in finding room for his hat, put it on the portmanteau. Perceiving this, the portmanteau's owner removed, and protested in very emphatic terms against further intrusion. The new comer, however, persisted in keeping his hat where it was, and the other, in a rage, left, taking the portmanteau with him. A demand was made, the passenger became more imperative, and called a porter to remove it. A scene ensued, and the train was delayed for some time. The progress of the train some very uncomplimentary phrases were freely interchanged, and the passenger who had removed the portmanteau was the personal encounter. Presently the Lord Mayor of Dublin got to, and the disputants were brought before his Lordship, who commanded the peace, and fined the aggressor Sixteen Pence.



The Illustration last week of the monument to Dr. Jenner, being accompanied by a description of the sculptor's design by a reader.

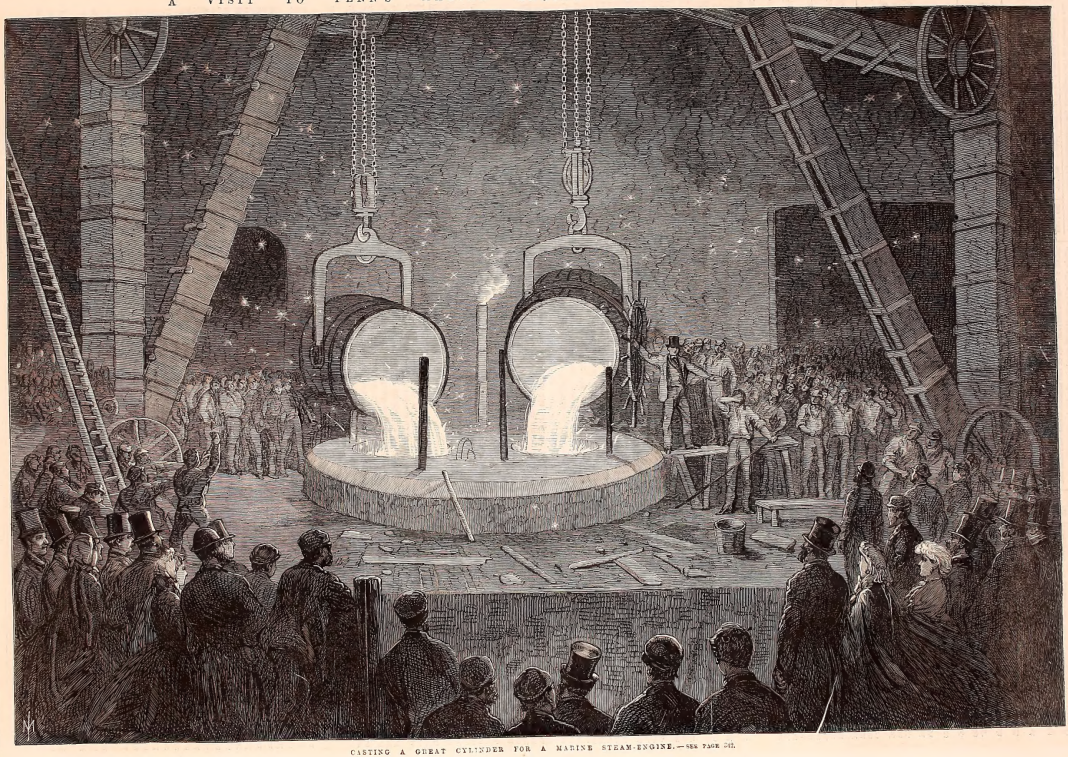
The "What-cheer House," an hotel in San Francisco, advertises, among other things, that it offers for the use of its inmates a well-selected library of 6000 volumes.



The Official Illustrated Guide to the Great Eastern Railway, which has been compiled and published by Mr. Bradshaw, will contain small octave volume of 320 pages, compiled by Mr. George Measom, and will be sold at the price of one shilling. It will contain a map of the line, and an interior or exterior view of every station, so far as Norwich and Yarmouth and Norwich on the other. It is copiously illustrated by a good number of woodcuts on the most convenient scale. The two portions of which it is composed may also be had separately; the one relating to the Cambridge line, the other to the Colchester, Suffolk, and Norfolk line.

Our readers will probably remember some very spirited sketches and articles descriptive of cattle-driving and cattle-markets in the parts of Yorkshire, Westmoreland, which were sent us by Lieutenant S. P. Oliver, R.A., and furnished materials for the interesting engraving in our Number of Sept. 17 last. A series of twenty-four lithographic views of Madagascar, with illustrations of the native life and customs, is now being published by Messrs. Day and Son, from the portfolio of Lieutenant Oliver, with about a hundred pages of descriptive text. They will, no doubt, be favourably received, and the interesting recorded last June between the Queen of Great Britain and the Queen of Madagascar, will be found to have been productive of good results.

A VISIT TO PENN'S MARINE ENGINE FACTORY, AT GREENWICH.



TURNING A CRANK AXLE.

TURNING A PADDLE SHAFT FOR A STEAM-SHIP.—SEE PAGE 343.

A VISIT TO PENN'S MARINE ENGINE FACTORY, AT GREENWICH.

CASTING A GREAT CYLINDER FOR A MARINE STEAM-ENGINE.—SEE PAGE 341.

BIRTHS,

At Kensington, the Hon. Mrs. E. Curzon, of a daughter.
At Ilford, South Wales, the Hon. Mrs. H. Bowlby, of a daughter.
At the Clarendon Hotel, Edinburgh, the wife of Sir W. Russell, Bart., M.P., of a son.
On the 26th ult., at Mount Charles, Teone, the wife of E. S. Carew-Wilson, Esq., of a daughter.
On the 29th ult., at Cambridge-terrace, Hyde Park, the wife of Charles Campbell Dawson, Esq., of a daughter.
On the 29th ult., at Vienna, the wife of George Strachey, Esq., of a son.
On Aug. 19, at Jaunee, Bengal, the wife of James O'Kinealy, Esq., B.C.S., of a son.
On the 30th ult., at 4 and 5, Eaton-road, Lee, Emily, the wife of Alfred Corbet, of a daughter.
On the 3rd inst., at Pennsylvania Park, Exeter, the wife of Henry Unthwaite Jansen, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

At the Russian Chapel in Welbeck-street, in accordance with the rites of the Greek Church, Prince Dmitry Sutkoff, son of his Serene Highness Prince Sutkoff, to Miss Ellis de Vere Cole.
At St. Mary's Chapel, Savoy-street, Strand, his Excellency Baron Otto von Derwenwall, of Revel, Russia, Extraordinary Envoy and Minister from the Emperor of Russia, to Miss J. M. Bossiet, of Chicago, Illinois, United States of America, by the Rev. Dr. Mill, the Rev. R. A. Lord, and the Rev. the

The Duke of Northumberland and Lady Louisa Percy left Alnwick Castle, on Monday, for Northumberland House, on their way to pass the winter at Rapsley.

The Duke of Hamilton arrived, on Wednesday, at the family mansion in Arlington-street from Paris.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Churricarde left their residence, in Grafton-street, on Saturday last, on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Cork, at Marston House, in Somersetshire.

The Marquis of Westminster has arrived at Grosvenor House, from Eaton Hall, Cheshire.

Earl and Countess Russell and Lady Mary Russell left Dublin on Tuesday for Holyhead, on their return to Pembroke Lodge, Richmond Park.

The Earl of Derby is considerably improved in health, and is gradually regaining his strength. Some swelling of legs and change to bed can reverse walking exercise, as he was much weakened by his recent attack of gout.

Earl and Countess Cadogan and family have arrived in town from the Continent.

Earl and Countess Delawarr have removed to Knowle Park from Buckhurst, Sussex.

The Earl and Countess of Charlemont left town on Saturday last for their seat in Ireland.

The Earl and Countess of Enniskillen and Lady Charlotte Cole have joined the party assembled at Ormonde Castle, Kilkenny.

Count and Countess Munster have left Claridge's Hotel for Hanover.

The Right Hon. B. Disraeli and Mrs. Disraeli have returned to Hughenden Manor from Woburn Abbey.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The nineteenth annual conference of the British organisation of the Evangelical Alliance was held last week at Hull.

Yesterday the Foundation-stone was laid of the first section of the Devon House of Mercy was laid at Bovey Tracey by the Earl of Devon.

On the 29th ult. the first stone of the new parish church of Easthampstead, Berks, was laid by Lady Hayter, wife of the Right Hon. the Rev. G. Hayter, Bart., the rector of the parish.

Last Saturday the Bishop of Chester consecrated the new Church of St. Silas, at Toxteth Park, Liverpool. The cost of the erection has been about £20,000, which sum was contributed before the work was begun.

On Sunday morning, while the Rev. Mr. M'Dermott, the Chaplain of Westminster Bridge, was preaching in St. Mary's Church, Chelsea, he paused, said "I feel faint and cannot proceed," and sat down. He was removed by medical advice to his residence, Lambeth Palace, where he spent the afternoon.

The Church Congress met at Norwich on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, under the presidency of the Bishop of the diocese. The Archbishop of York opened the proceedings in the magnificent nave of the cathedral. The attendance of clergy was numerous. Among the other subjects of discussion have been education, Convocation, the Church Parochial, and the better utilising of cathedral chapters.

The Norfolk and Suffolk Church Choral Association had a festival in the church of St. Mary-le-Tower, Ipswich, on Thursday week. The total number of choristers was 300. There were also present the clergy of neighbouring choirs at South Dentford, Essex, on the same day, to celebrate a choral festival for the dioceses of Rochester and Canterbury. A sermon on choristers' services in St. Michael's, Great Cressingham, yesterday week, the festival of St. Archangels.

In St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday morning, Oct. 1, the Rev. R. C. Brabant preached. The following sermons will be preached by preachers for the remainder of the month:—Oct. 8, the Rev. William Osmond Humphrey, Vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields; 15th, the Rev. Richard Burgess, Rector of Upper Chelsea; 22nd, the Rev. Edward Hayes Plumtre, Professor of Divinity in King's College, London; 29th, the Rev. Thomas Grainge Ibbi, Professor of Mathematics in King's College, London.

The incumbency of Holy Trinity, Paddington, having been recently resigned by the Rev. J. A. Aston, to take charge of a new district to be formed, the following vacancies have been consequently created, and his late parishioners:—A silver tray, with a purse of 100 gs., from the congregation at a meeting-table, from the parishioners; a purse of 100 gs., from the school-children of the district; a case of spoons for a dessert table, from a young ladies' Bible class; an inkstand, from the congregation; and from the members of a recent Bible class; and other presents.

Dean Hibbert's first sermon, on the resignation of oratorios and concerts, has declared himself a convert to choral services. In parish churches, indeed, they "require to be greatly improved before they can be compared to the magnificent cathedral and collegiate church he thinks they are quite free from danger. Since he has been in Dean's-yard he has "learned to appreciate the beauty of the service, he says, "I am greatly deceived, the conviction of my mind is that the comfort and edification enjoyed on Divine worship has been a little enhanced by the more solemn, measured tone, and continuous monotone in which our prayers are offered."

The following preferments and appointments have recently been made:—Rev. H. Bramley, Vicar of Bishop Wearmouth, to be Rural Dean of Wearmouth; Rev. F. Goldney, Vicar of Hilmarton, to be Rural Dean of Avebury; Rev. T. Hutchinson, Rector of Newchurch, to be Rural Dean of Bocking; Rev. Thomas Nicholas Cuthbert, Rector of Cuxwold, for the united rectories to the Duke of Leeds, to be Canon and Prebendary of Ripon Cathedral; Rev. C. Kempe, to be Incumbent of Brookmore, Hampath. Rev. T. H. Thompson to be Perpetual Curate of Christ Church, Hoxton. Rev. T. H. Bignell to be Curate of St. Luke's, Berwick-street; Rev. H. Mont to be Curate of St. Peter's, Newton-in-Makerfield.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The Rev. Robert Walker, Professor of Experimental Philosophy at Cambridge, has been elected Master of Downing College. The Professor was appointed by the Vice-Chancellor in the year 1861, but has resigned the Professorship on the acceptance of the Vice-Chancellor, the Right Rev. Dr. Bickersteth, Bishop of Exeter, and the Bodleian Professor of Natural Philosophy, and Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge, and Examiner for the natural science scholarships, &c., at Exeter, has terminated as follows:—Open scholarships of the value of £80 per annum, and tenable for two years—Mr. F. Wood, Merchant Taylors' School; Mr. A. V. Jones, Bedford School. Stapledon scholarships of the value of £40 per annum, and tenable for three years—Mr. J. Sleigh, Shrewsbury School (open pro hac vice). Open exhibition, value £50 per annum—Mr. A. Thresh, Bedford Grammar School. Owens College exhibition, £50—Mr. Wilson Hamilton—Mr. C. B. Lock, Exeter College. There were thirty-two candidates.

In consequence of Mr. Smith, Professor Mahaffy has been compelled to resign the chair of Secretary to the University of Dublin, which he was appointed, in 1864, on the nomination of Mr. Rose. Mr. Rose also filled the chair of rhetoric from 1835 to 1840.

The report that Westminster School is to be removed to Henley-on-Thames is contradicted by the Head Master.

The Rev. G. W. Underwood, Vice-Principal of the Liverpool College, who has been for twenty-two years engaged in the education of young gentlemen, has on Monday (their anniversary day) received, presented by some old and present pupils with a rich service of plate and a purse of 200 guineas.

The opening address of the winter course of lectures at Owens College, Manchester, was delivered, on Monday, by Mr. Barker, the newly-appointed Professor of Mathematics and the college. The lecture was chiefly devoted to explaining directed to the system of mathematical instruction followed in the public schools and colleges of this country.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

THERE, most forbearing reader, am "Echoes from the North," "I drink your health, Sir, in a dram," to quote Mr. Shirley Brooks, who I observe in the North papers, has made poor "Joe North," and is rusticating at Drama, something surrounded. I have no doubt, by gillies, straitjackets, cocoanuts, Scotch glasses, sporrans, Dundee weasels, carpetbags, and "rich gude wills." I must, therefore, rely on the respectful knowledge of what is "rich gude willis wanstit" may be; but I apprehend that it is something to drink. The editor-in-chief at Glasgow. It is a very large city. The population is said to be something under half a million. I have not the slightest reason to assume to going on. I suspect that Glasgow has something to do with cotton; it slightly interested in shipping; and is not entirely unconcerned in iron-foundries. The streets are very broad, very straight, and very crowded. The shops are large and handsome. There is a lunching establishment where they pickled herring to the extent of many tons per week. The Saturday afternoon I was walking came out in mist "shawls or stockings; but on Sunday, I believe, they wear plaids. I was told that the Calamanda Indians, who live in a street in Glasgow, the name of which I have forgotten, one of the most populous Indian-speaking tribes I have ever seen out of the United States. You are shaved in a Dundreary chair of crimson velvet, with gilt legs; your hair is brushed by machinery, set in motion by water-power; and the tonsorial assistants are most splendid beings, more than dazzling although somewhat fatiguing to the eye. And this is, I declare, all that the subscriber knows about Glasgow.

Skye. The natives are very civil and hospitable. They appear to be also very rich. I was warned before I left London that, if I wished to get on in Skye, I must learn Gaelic. I think that, if I shout Mary Queen of Scots, the Sabbath question, or the expression "Rule Britannia," to the army of the Long Parliament; but, to my surprise, I have discovered that the shortest form of communion is permitted in Glasgow, and that you may talk about anything you please. I am writing these lines on the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway is still being fiercely agitated at public meetings and in the columns of the local papers. I have seen no "Joe" as yet. The good folk much in private. Without fierce agitation about something or another, how would the Scotch get on? They are not familiar with everybody else, and everything would become as trite and jejune as the democratic mind. Up in the Highlands.

I have been five days in Glasgow, and this is all I am enabled to say about it. The hotel is a very comfortable hotel—The George, in George-square—a very beautiful square, with trees about it. I have had a very big bed-room, with much gas, in the City-hall. Fiddle tone! Nevertheless, I am very comfortable. The Lord Provost lives here on Friday last. He was attired after the manner of "Bonnie Dundee," and looked like the handsome man he is. I have a spy of his toes; but the last time I saw him he had on a hat as large as a cart-wheel. Perhaps I am wrong. Perhaps it was a Glengarry cap. He was armed, insides, to the teeth, and was Don Thomas Mc——, manager of a large Scotch fiction factory in Paternoster Square; and he had about five hundred roll-hands—half castes, pure Aztecs, and Mexicans—in his train, all in their national picturesque. He has returned from the land of pulque and tortillas—a country which, I am sorry to say, I have never seen. Spain is not much need, I fancy, to take tickets for the Grand Opera Dals Monsoon, and to see the Spanish nobility, and you will find it one great moving masquerade.

There are three candidates for the vacant post of Professorship of English literature in the University of Edinburgh; but the real struggle is between Mr. Saintsbury, late of the Academy and the Times. Mr. Masson will probably be the winner. The salary attached to the Professorship is £300 per annum. Mr. Saintsbury will give it you; I believe, but each attendant at the professor's lectures pays a guinea per session. Mr. Masson is entitled to the fees, such as the late Professors Wilson and Aytoun, the chair was worth from four to five hundred per annum above the salary.

The Pope—a most amiable and accomplished gentleman, but who is under the painful political necessity of continually cursing somebody or something—has issued a Bull against vivisection. I myself am quite strong enough to bear any number of invectives and the most excitable way in the world, but I am not sure that I like the idea. I remember that the Pope is not human. Has it never happened to you, in the course of your life, to have had a dream in which you had an enemy who has dogged your footsteps for years, who has shaved, who has dressed, who has done everything that you do, and who even spes you in his life, and known absolutely nothing about you? Is it not the case that you have awakened from that, as a rule, exercises our bitterest hatred. Come to rub shoulders with the enemy in the street, and you will be convinced that he will be converted into a fast friend. If Fo Nono would only have an interview with me, or I with Fo Nono, some fine evening, in Grand Lodge, I would wager that no two people could be more affectionate at the finish of the dinner.

What a mean and ungentlemanly act, to say the very least, is that of Mr. Swinburne, who has left the country, and taken up his abode in federate bondholders in England, and seeking to invest it with the Queen's Bench. Mr. Swinburne is a poet, and a poet should be a man. What has Mr. Seward, or anyone else, to do with the manner in which Shakespeare spelt his name? Shakespeare, I am sure, had a right to back his opinion if he liked, even if, as sometimes happens, he broke the wrong image of and spelt it wrongly. Mr. Ireland published a list of the American Cabinet Ministers and Congressmen, which was a model of accuracy and completeness. Moreover, this wretched little list of spite has not even the merit of novelty. It is taken bodily from the New York Herald, and went the round of the American papers about a month ago. Mr. Swinburne's literary resources are simply ludicrous.

Mr. Wilkie Collins Dickens has not been stricken down by sunstroke, and is not lying in Paris at the point of death, as was erroneously reported in the Daily Telegraph. Mr. Dickens is quite well. With the failure of the "enormous gooseberry crop," the penny-a-liners have the most gloomy views of mankind, and look upon everything as wholesale. They were whispering the darkest things here about Lord Beaconsfield's health in the Tunnel. I went to know who tells them that he is quite well at present, who first concocted the report, and Rothschild countenance started his offspring into the world. With a Sevile Tailleur, by the way, I am informed that Lord Byron's cynical face; but it can't be so very easy to tell an original lie.

What a pity it is that the Irish Land Commissioners' engineer-attorney, shareholders, and jobbers—when the prediction of 1885 has been fulfilled—will not be able to emigrate to Ireland with their railways, and there shall no longer exist a national excuse for building them. Engineer-attorney, shareholder, jobber, hewer, or village in the United Kingdom? Mr. Henry Drummond's "pig without a tail" is a very good one, but I cannot imagine that it is original. Let me scheme! That time however, has not yet arrived. I left "Gulliver" at the Tunnel, and have not had an opportunity of seeing it. London, but I was consoled when I read the plan of the "Imperial Railway Central Asiatic" in the pages of the New Oxford-street. A line to Dover, another to Holyhead, others to Edinburgh and Glasgow—a line of easy, intermediate stations. No tidings. Dover in an hour and a quarter; Edinburgh in six hours and a quarter; Delhi in nine an hour! No third class. Steel rails! Only to cost £50,000 a mile. Ah! Wonderful thing, this steam, Sir!

A miser, aged eighty-one, has just died at Gaudenzhof, near Vienna. His executors on a search found in the strong-room of which he has left by will to the Pope. He had for many years been in the habit of locking up in it all the contributions of Peter's pence which reached him, and the bequest is that the Pope shall pray personally for the soul of the donor.

A vignette portrait of Mr. Alfred Tennyson, which is meant for a frontispiece to the last of Mr. Cayley, produced by the same photographer a few months ago, has just been published by Messrs. Bliss and Sons, of Baker-street. It is, like the older, full of truth and character; and they form a noble pair, being the likenesses of two of the foremost men in the English literature of this age.

The Queen has approved of a Royal Commission for investigating the cattle plague. Her Majesty has appointed for this purpose Earl Spencer, Viscount Cranbrooke, the Right Hon. Robert Lowe; Lyon Playfair, C.B., Sir Joseph Fayrer, Bart., Professor Brown, C.B., Mr. J. R. Mowbray, Q.C., Colonel Frank Bates, M.P., Mr. Edmund Alexander Parkes, Mus. M.D.; John Robinson Spencer, Esq., M.P., Mr. Henry Chaplin, M.P., Mr. Sclater-Booth, M.P., Mr. Thomas Spencer, Esq., M.P. Montague Bernard will act as secretary to the Commission.

FINE ARTS.

THE NATIONAL PORTRAIT GALLERY.

SEEING that the National Gallery is closed for the present month, the trustees of the National Portrait Gallery have shown some consideration for purposes of business and pleasure by their gallery till the month of November. This is a boon to the involuntary dwellers in London at this season: for, among the two or three million of permanent residents in the metropolis, there are numbers, surely, who visit a picture-gallery, though they may be unable to absent themselves for pleasure-seeking. To these, then, as well as for many other reasons, the moment seems opportune for reviewing the acquisitions of the portrait collection in Great George-street. Meanwhile, during the year, and more particularly since the publication of the last catalogue, the Queen's Gallery, at Buckingham Palace, has undergone a most thorough and complete change. The whole of the upper floor has been made by presentation. One of the most important was that of Watson, a brother of the artist—the same who, as we have been informed by the painter, was the original of Dickens's Nicholas Nickleby. Another was that of Sir Watson Gordon, of Sir David Brewster was offered to the gallery, but was declined. The latter portrait is by Mr. Faed, and is excellent as one of the living celebrities; we are glad to know, however, that it has been offered to and accepted by the National Gallery of Scotland. The Duke of Buccleuch has presented a portrait of the poet Crabbe, painted by Mr. Phillips, and another of Sir Walter Scott, by James Thomson, of Edinburgh, and well known through various engravings. The latter is certainly a worthy example of the painter's manner when fashionable success had deprived him of some of the more masculine characteristics of his earlier time. The portrait is "prettifying treatment" of the head, and the shapes of the figs are unpleasantly obvious. Sir John Bowring has presented a full-length portrait of Queen Mary, by Zuccaro, which is a work of art, it is a poor performance; and the face has not, of course, the developed beauty of the original, from which we should like to make acquaintance in order to realise the personal appearance of the unfortunate Queen.

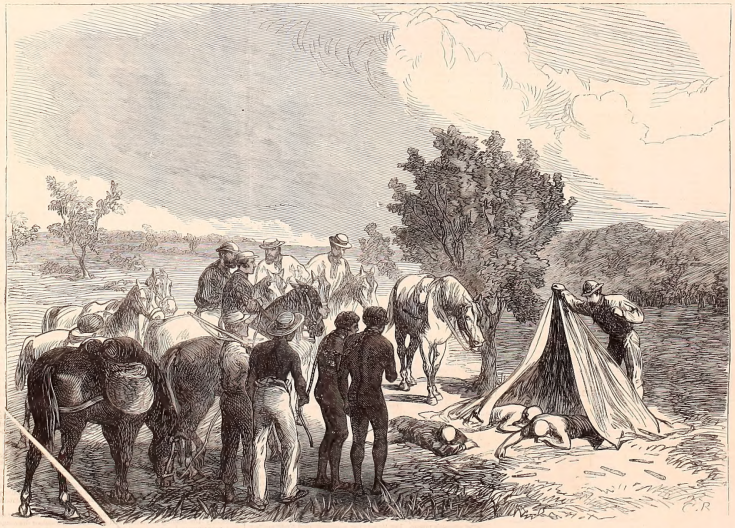
Among the pictures acquired by purchase, one of the most important is a portrait of Sir Joshua Reynolds, a replica or another unfortunate man of genius, Hilton. The expression is fervid and impassioned, and the general vigour is vicious, though a little mechanical and hard. Two portraits of Goldsmith, by Dighton, painted for Cooke, the publisher of Bristol, by an artist bearing the name of Queen Mary, are interesting as illustrations of the poets when aged, respectively, twenty-three and twenty-one; the unpleasant aspect of the latter is British, and not Irish. The curious scheme of founding a commonwealth in America, from which every form of religious belief was to be excluded, and which was to be called Pantheny hangs a pencil drawing of him, taken by Dr. Hodges during the voyage of Cook to the South Seas. A fine drawing in view of Dewmentwater is introduced in the background. In the drawing, which is by Mr. Richmond, and which, including, according to the physiognomists and physiognomists, of nothing but expression, is a most interesting study. The interest of the portrait of Coleridge just mentioned is, in like manner, of a literary kind. The engraving is immediately beneath a better-known portrait of the great poet and philosopher, by the American painter, Washington Allston, engraved by B. Cousin, R.A., a work cold and rigid, but precise and accurate. The portrait of Coleridge is a pencil sketch by Vandyke, first the tenth, in particular, is open and irresolute, the lips full, and the expression of the whole face that of a man who is not yet clamped by a long-continued effort at self-repression. A portrait of Queen Elizabeth, by an unknown painter of William Scrots, is of value sive noteworthy only for the extremely elaborate costume. There is also a portrait of Charles Lamb, by Hazlitt, the essayist's brother, an Irish artist, and an old portrait of Peter Martyr Vermigli, a Florentine reformer, in the days of Edward VI.; and a portrait of Cobden by Fagnani, painted at Rome on the occasion of the Commercial Treaty with France, have also been added to the gallery.

Of the pictures which have been added to the gallery, it is not very much regret that a better representation than this of that great man, Sir Joshua Reynolds, is not to be seen at present in the gallery. It was in any way quite satisfactory. As a mere map of the face it does not much resemble that of Queen Mary, and as a work of art we recall no suggest the extraordinary sagacity of the original; the painting is heavy, dull, and wholly uncomprehended.

Doubtless the principal reason why the trustees are tempted to purchase inferior pictures is the want of money, which is accentuated by the small annual Parliamentary grant of £1500. Whatever surplus there may be from the purchases and packages and payment of the expenses of the gallery in each year must be spent in the following. It is often impossible, therefore, to accumulate or command a sufficient sum for the purchase of good works, however desirable upon the terms at which they may be offered. Several opportunities for acquiring pictures of the highest importance have thus been lost; and if this regulation remains in force we do not see how the collection is ever to attain the dignity of a national one. The circumstances. The power of purchase is otherwise restricted by being entirely confined to living artists, and the same principle is followed by the Queen. Another, but we trust only temporary, obstacle to the development of the national gallery, is the unfortunate fact that the gallery is the present accommodation. A portrait of Queen Mary, by Zuccaro, which is meant for a frontispiece to the last of Mr. Cayley, produced by the same photographer a few months ago, has just been published by Messrs. Bliss and Sons, of Baker-street. It is, like the older, full of truth and character; and they form a noble pair, being the likenesses of two of the foremost men in the English literature of this age.

The Queen has approved of a Royal Commission for investigating the cattle plague. Her Majesty has appointed for this purpose Earl Spencer, Viscount Cranbrooke, the Right Hon. Robert Lowe; Lyon Playfair, C.B., Sir Joseph Fayrer, Bart., Professor Brown, C.B., Mr. J. R. Mowbray, Q.C., Colonel Frank Bates, M.P., Mr. Edmund Alexander Parkes, Mus. M.D.; John Robinson Spencer, Esq., M.P., Mr. Henry Chaplin, M.P., Mr. Sclater-Booth, M.P., Mr. Thomas Spencer, Esq., M.P. Montague Bernard will act as secretary to the Commission.

Mr. Alcock's treatise on the memorial crosses of Queen Eleanor, illustrated with photographs by Messrs. Cundall and Downes, has been presented to the library of the South Kensington Museum. It is richly bound in blue morocco, forming a costly and beautiful volume.

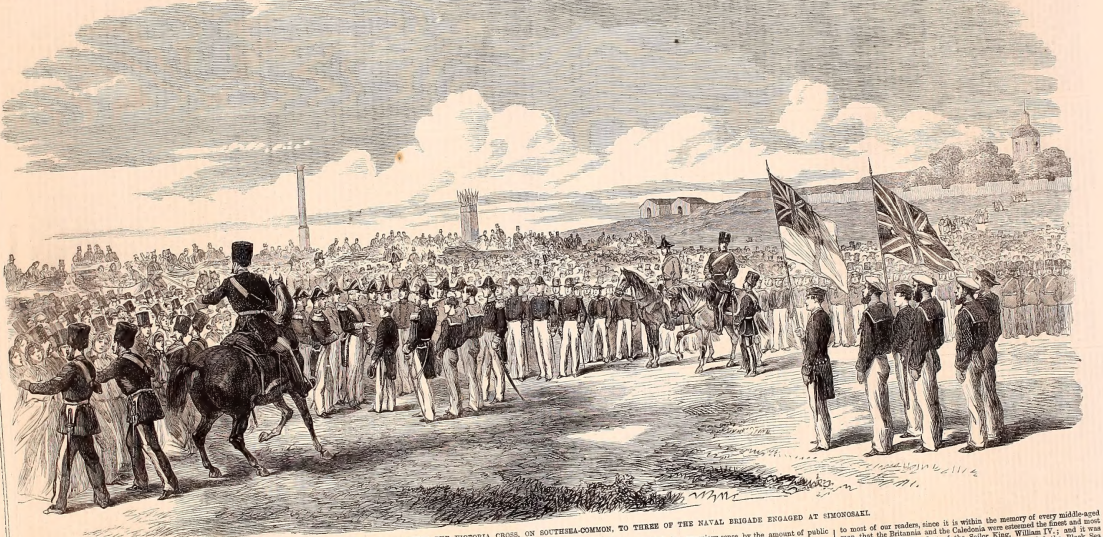


The Winter Exhibition of Modern Pictures, formerly held at the French Gallery, will open, on the 30th inst., at the rooms of the Society of British Artists, in Suffolk-street, Pall-mall East, in addition to a large collection of works in oil, two rooms will be devoted to water-colour drawings, one to pictures by foreign masters, and one to the productions of female artists. On dit that the French Gallery will open with a winter exhibition organised either by Mr. Gambart or by Messrs. Moore, McQueen, and Co.

On the 19th ult. died Mr. R. R. Gremly, for more than a quarter of a century the leading printseller and dealer in water-colour drawings and paintings of Liverpool, and whose enterprise has, doubtless, contributed materially towards the present great demand for works of modern art in the manufacturing districts.

We learn that the death is also early dead of Mr. Julian Portch, a rising artist, whose graceful designs upon wood are well known.

THE NOTTINGHAM AND MIDLAND COUNTIES INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.—SEE NEXT PAGE.



FINDING THE REMAINS OF THE LOST EXPLORERS, HARDING, PANTER, AND GOLDWYER, NEAR LAGRANGE BAY, NORTH-WEST AUSTRALIA.—SEE PAGE 389.

PRESENTATION OF THE VICTORIA CROSS ON SOUTHSEA-COMMON.

THE Naval Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth, Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, G.C.B., presented the Victoria cross to a midshipman and two seamen of the Euryalus, on Friday, the 22nd ult., in the sight of a large assembly, on Southsea-common. The illustration we have engraved, from a sketch by Mr. F. L. Bedwell, represents this interesting scene. A battalion of Royal Artillery, and one of the Royal Marines, were on the ground, besides a field battery of seamen with Armstrong guns, and a strong brigade of seamen, the Excellent contributing the largest contingent. The naval brigade was under the command of Captain A. C. Key, C.B., of the Excellent, and consisted of small-arm parties of her Majesty's ships in port and at Spithead. The artillery and marines were commanded by Colonel Tate; the general direction of both brigades was entrusted to Lieutenant and Adjutant Colomb, R.M.A. The forces were drawn up in line parallel with the beach in the following order:—Field battery on the right, brigade of seamen, Royal Marine Light Infantry, and Royal Marine Artillery, which formed the left flank. The crew of the Euryalus were drawn up in two divisions, right and left of the saluting-point, opposite the other line. On the arrival of the Admiral, after a salute and marching past, they formed a square, within which the performance of the ceremony took place. The Admiral said a few words to each of the brave fellows as he affixed the cross to his breast. They had earned this distinction by individual acts of gallantry in the storming of the Japanese stockades at Simonoseki, on the 6th of September, 1864. The first was Mr. Duncan Gordon Boyne, a midshipman, who at Simonoseki carried a colour with the leading company, and kept in advance of all in the face of the thickest of the fire; his colour-sergeants having fallen, one mortally, the other dangerously, wounded; and he was only detained from proceeding yet further by the orders of his superior officer. The colour he carried was six times pierced by musket-balls. The second was Thomas Pride, captain of the after guard, the survivor of the two colour-sergeants who supported Mr. Boyne in the rush which he made in advance of the attack; and the third was William Seeley, an ordinary seaman, also of the Euryalus, for the intelligence and daring which, according to the testimony of Lieutenant Edwards, commanding the third company, he exhibited in ascertaining the enemy's position, and for continuing to retain his position in front during the advance after he had been wounded in the arm.

The performance of the ceremony was noticed by the firing of a Royal salute from her Majesty's ship Victory, the troops at the same time presenting arms.

ADMIRAL SIR MICHAEL SEYMOUR PRESENTING THE VICTORIA CROSS, ON SOUTHSEA-COMMON, TO THREE OF THE NAVAL BRIGADE ENGAGED AT SIMONOSAKI.

The brigades then formed in line of contiguous columns in the same order as before, and, advancing in review order, gave a general salute to the Commander-in-Chief, and so the ceremony ended.

THE NOTTINGHAM AND MIDLAND COUNTIES INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

THE opening, on Tuesday, the 12th ult., of the Nottingham and Midland Counties Exhibition, is a building erected for that purpose in the Castle Market at Nottingham, was reported at the time; Lord Belper, the Lord Lieutenant of the county, with the Duke of St. Albans, Sir Robert Clifton, M.P., the Mayors of Nottingham and Lincoln, and other persons of distinction or official rank in the neighbourhood, having patronised the occasion. The exhibition has since been visited by many thousand persons; and the Illustration we have engraved, from a photograph by Messrs. John Burton and Sons, will give some notion of the aspect of the interior. The contents of this exhibition are, in a great measure, the product of the ingenuity and taste of the working men of Nottingham, who have, in their leisure hours, employed themselves in constructing models and various specimens of art. A committee, presided over by Mr. J. E. Denison, and including several gentlemen of local influence and position, having raised a guarantee fund for the erection of the building and for other necessary expenses, it is to be hoped that the experiment will be justified, in a pecuniary sense, by the amount of public support bestowed on the exhibition.

MODELS OF SHIPS IN THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.

IN several former Numbers of this Journal have appeared, from time to time, a few Illustrations of the great collection of naval models, which was removed not long ago from Somerset House by order of the Board of Admiralty, and more conveniently arranged for public exhibition in the South Kensington Museum. The three examples of British shipbuilding in the nineteenth century, which we have selected for this week's Paper, will be familiar enough to most of our readers, since it is within the memory of every middle-aged man that the Britannia and the Caledonia were esteemed the finest and most powerful vessels in the fleet of the Sailor King, William IV.; and it was but the other day, when Sir Edmund Lyons commanded the Black Sea squadron, that the Agamemnon was vaunted as a fit antagonist for the batteries and forts of Sebastopol, the insufficiency of our wooden walls being yet unsuspected, or at least unproved.

The Caledonia, which has, since 1856, been named the Dreadnought, and has taken the place of the old Dreadnought as the hospital-ship at Greenwich, was considered, in her day, "the most perfect of her class in every quality," and was the favourite ship of Admiral Lord Exmouth, who in his day was a capital sailer. She was designed by Sir William Rule, built at Devonport dockyard, and launched in 1860. The Britannia, the Prince Regent, and the Royal George were built on the same lines, between 1820 and 1827. The Caledonia is 205 ft. long, 54 ft. 6 in. broad, and 23 ft. 2 in. deep, with a tonnage of 2616 tons. She had a complement of 875 men and carried 120 guns, of which the heavier were 95-pounders, on the lower deck, these being thirty-two in number; on the middle deck were 24-pounders, thirty-four in number; on the main-deck as many 18-pounders, with 12-pounder boat and forecastle and quarter-deck. This is what was reckoned a first-rate man-of-war at the time when our present generation was born as an midshipmen. The Caledonia, or Dreadnought, is now to be removed from the Thames, as the old wooden hulk, to Portsmouth, where the Greenwich Hospital.

The Queen, built at Portsmouth between 1833 and 1839, from the designs of Sir William Symonds, was originally meant to bear the name of the Royal Frederick, but this was changed, in compliment to her Majesty, at the beginning of the reign. She was also commissioned in our Engraving, shows her as she was built—the very last sailing line-of-battle ship that was built, and the last of the old wooden Navy. She had a burden of 3104 tons, being 204 ft. 9½ in. in length, 56 ft. 1 in. in breadth, and 23 ft. 9 in. in depth. She carried 84 guns and 110 guns, of which twenty-four on the lower deck, twenty-six on the middle deck, thirty on the main-deck, and twenty-four, when the pounders, besides ten of larger calibre. She was converted to a screw two-decker in 1858 at Sheerness.

The Agamemnon was the first man-of-war built for the screw-propeller, and laid down at Woolwich in November, 1851, and launched in May, 1852. She was designed by Mr. J. Edye in 1847. Her length is 230 ft., breadth, 55 ft. 6 in., and depth, 24 ft. 6 in., burthen, 3102. Her engines and all fittings are those of the Arrogant. She had a complement of 820 men, and her armament consisted originally of thirty-six lower deck guns, viz., thirty-two of 8-in. and the thirty-four main-deck guns, 32-pounders; two 8-in. and eight 10-in. guns on the upper deck. It will, of course, be remembered that in 1857 and 1858 the Agamemnon was employed in laying down the Atlantic telegraph cable.

MUSIC.

It is rumoured that Mdme. Grisi will reappear at Her Majesty's Theatre in the course of the ensuing season.

We learn with great pleasure, that Mr. Vincent Wallace is in a fair way of recovery from his long and lingering illness, and has gone, by the advice of his physicians, to Paris for change of air.

At the Royal Gallery of Illustration Pergolesi's celebrated burletta, "La Serva Padrona," in an English dress, was produced on the 21st ult., for the benefit of Miss Augusta Thomson, with great success. This talented and promising young performer is now at Drury Lane, where she has appeared with great effect in Milton's masque of "Comus."

A new opera, in three acts, called "Le Roi des Monts," composed by M. Chiaromiti, has been produced at the Théâtre Lyrique with considerable success. The hero of the piece is the celebrated Corsican Vaso, who, in the year 1800, raised a formidable tune in disguise among the miners of Dalecarlia. The principal characters are performed by Mdlles. de Massen and Wilkene, and Messrs. Lutz, Wartel, and Puget.

The strong Italian operatic company who (as we mentioned last week) have been giving performances at Dublin, have subsequently appeared at the Theatre Royal, Manchester. Their performance of "Don Giovanni" was received with great applause in any theatre in Europe. The hero was personated by Mr. Santley, who showed himself the best representative Mozart's wonderful character now on the stage. Mdlle. Titiens was Donna Anna; Signor Gardoni, Don Ottavio; Signor Belletti, Leporello; Mdlle. Lemaire, Elvira; Mdlle. Sarolta, Zerlina; and Signor Foli, the Commendatore. Mdlle. Titiens has also appeared in her greatest parts, Fidelio and Medea.

THE THEATRES.

On Saturday Miss Marriott reappeared at Sadler's Wells, and was welcomed by a considerable audience. She appeared in the heroine of legitimate drama and the pledge that the regular dramatic season had really commenced. The play selected was a version of Mr. Lovell's rather weighty drama, entitled "Love's Sacrifice;" but the part of Margaret Elmore is just suited to the talents of the actress, and she sustained it with remarkable earnestness, bringing out its salient points with infinitesimal skill. Mr. Anson Bennett's performance of Matthew Elmore, the supposed murderer, was thoroughly artistic, and we trust that the London public will have more occasion to appreciate so good an actor. Mr. Anderson, as Sir Arthur, made the coolness and malignity of the character sufficiently obvious. We have also to commend Miss Bellair for the manner in which she threw into the part of Hermione. The drama was preceded by the comedietta of "Lovers' Quarrels," in which Mr. Rogers, Miss Minnie Davis, and Miss Leigh prominently distinguished themselves.

We now approach a more serious subject—the production of Mr. Charles Reade's drama, "It is Never Too Late to Mend." This work originally appeared under the title of "Gold" at Drury Lane; subsequently the author enlarged it into a novel, and, finally, has then dramatised the novel, and the subject was again placed on the boards without the author's consent, and in a state of ruin. Mr. Reade appealed successfully to law, and now presents to a London audience his own story in the form which he originally gave it. As in other forms, the play has elsewhere been certainly popular, we are prepared to attribute its failure at the Queen's to some deficiency in the mode of its production. The fact is that Mr. Reade is not so good a playwright as he is a novelist; and that his play is much too complicated in the different forms which he has given it, than in the more succinct shape under which it has been represented at other theatres. The novel is a picture of the exposure of prison discipline, as it existed in England several years ago, and we are treated with various side scenes of the dregs of convicts, of oakum-picking, and other dismal details, which the refined habitués of the Oxford-street theatre cannot relish. The dramatisation rose to such a pitch that Mr. Vining was compelled to interrupt the scene with the artillery, which, however, they has been placed on the stage with a profusion of accessories; and one scene, that of a ravine in Australia, is certainly one of the most magnificent we ever witnessed. It is the best part of the play, which was twice called before the audience. The play was carefully enacted; but one must single out from them all the clever performance of Mr. Jacky, an Australian native, by Mr. S. Calhaem. In conception and execution this was equally good. The attitudes were striking, and the moral nature of the native was capitally well indicated. The drama deserves continuance, if only to give the public the opportunity of witnessing the performance of this character by Mr. Calhaem.

Messrs. Southwell Brothers have published a photograph of the Prince of Wales on the moor, in the Danish shooting-dress, with a double-barrelled gun in his hand—a portrait of the Prince of Wales which may be deemed peculiarly appropriate at this season.

The Ritter d'Italia has been conferred, in the order of a Cavaliere di San Maurizio e Lazzaro upon Mr. R. Fawrie, the Italian Consul at Birmingham; and Commendatore Henry Cole, Secretary to the Science and Art Department, who visited that town during the congress of the British Association, has made a valuable present of illuminated books on ancient Sicilian architecture to the new Free Library at Birmingham.

The experiments of Messrs. M'Kay and Beardslee, from America, with their torpedoes, were made, in the Medway, on Wednesday, with complete success, so far as the sinking of the Terpsichore was concerned. The Terpsichore is an old 16-gun ship. She was selected to put the torpedoes to the test. She was moored in Gillingham Reach, and a torpedo was placed beneath her. After a good deal of preparation, the torpedo was exploded, as usual, by means of the electric current. The shock to the ship was very violent; she seemed to be lifted out of the water somewhat, and her upper works were much shattered, whole iron bars being bent and twisted under the shock. A large hole was also torn between the bottom and the lower bulge, and the ship soon filled and settled down as far down as could be.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Explorations in South-west Africa. By Thomas Baines, F.R.G.S. (Longmans.) The interest with which the reading of Mr. Baines's paper was received at the meeting of the Geographical Section of the British Association, at Birmingham, a few days ago, leads us to regret, without further delay, our previous omission to notice this important publication. It was published, we believe, a few months before his return from Africa; and we learn, from a modest little preface, that the whole labour of preparation, and correction for the press, with the superintendence of the engravings and other subsidiary editorial work, were left entirely to his personal supervision. We sincerely congratulate Mrs. Baines, as well as her son, upon the completion of this work, which, under such circumstances, manifests, involving, as it did, the preservation of consistent spelling in many rugged names and other words of barbarous African language; the verification of an immense number of dates, places, measurements, and statistics; the correct reproduction of the maps from the author's original surveys, as well as the arrangements for the cuts for woodcuts and chronolithographs to represent his artistic sketches. In the latter department, we may, in passing, venture to observe that the handsome volume now before us will bear comparison with any book of travels that Messrs. Longman or Mr. Murray have issued for some years past, though with the advantage of being printed under the immediate supervision of their authors. Indeed, when, after a continuous perusal of this narrative—which we put together from the two quarto volumes in this country to keep the monthly mails—we test the references in a copious index (a rare accompaniment to books of this kind), we depend to wish that some future explorer of the wilderness might have a mother at home equally able and willing to render him the same literary service. Mr. Baines has been absent from England (his native country, we should have gone out with Dr. Livingstone's last expedition, in 1858), but his genius for the construction of waggons and labour of love for animals, since he was attached to Mr. Gregory's North Australian expedition some years ago, have been remarkable appendages to the colonisation of the Trans-Vaal territory, which lies northward of Port Natal and to the north-eastward of Natal. Mr. Baines likewise, on the occasion just mentioned, gone up the River Zambesi, and made himself acquainted with that vast hydrographic basin, and the vast interior of the African continent, Mr. Baines resolved apparently to avoid the publication of his journal in detail, or by attacking it on the opposite side. The enterprise involved marching from the west coast at Walvisch Bay straight across the interior to the Lake Ngami, and back to the Cape Colony, a journey of nearly 1600 miles in a direct line, but, of course, much greater, and probably more than double that distance, as usual in such explorations. Mr. Baines did this feat, in spite of the greatest discouragements, and of the raising of the most formidable hostile tribes, which would have hindered his progress, from May, 1861, when he started from Walvisch Bay, to the end of the year, when he left the Portuguese Victoria Falls of the Zambesi, which he has portrayed and described so well. The value of his literary progress is shown in the most interesting and instructive examples we have lately seen of that patient perseverance which enables men of his character to overcome the difficulties of nature, the obstacles of savage ignorance, and the inhospitable tribes, where the whole stock of necessaries for the object of exploration and the subsistence of explorers and their party must be carried with them, liable to continual waste and damage. The case of a herd of oxen requisite to furnish regularly the daily supply of cattle; but the author seems by no means inclined to vouch for the success of the experiment. Mr. Baines's friend, Dr. Livingstone's book had already made us acquainted, there is no question, with the Lake Ngami and the region of the Bamangwato African poet. Among other disagreeable circumstances of South African travel, the author mentions the sandy flies, the sand-fleas, and steams passed by Mr. Baines, until he reached the beautiful highlands of the Zambesi, being more beds of sand with a little moisture underneath. The rainy season, between the tropics, is the consequent want of vegetation giving to the country in most parts a sterile and uninviting appearance. The Bamangwato, through which the way, less to work than to eat, must also have caused him a great deal of vexation and delay. Mr. Baines, therefore, left his party behind, short half-way, by his friend Mr. James Chapman, an ivory merchant and experienced traveller in those regions, and set out before, and whose personal merits and share in the expedition are abundantly noticed in the course of the work. Mr. Baines, Mr. Chapman was a photographer and Mr. Baines a painter of no mean skill in his art, they were able to do more than African travellers have usually done for the public in the way of illustrating the scenes they beheld. We have been favoured by Mr. Baines with a few of his unpublished sketches, from which the engravings in this book are made for this Journal. In the mean time we can but direct our readers to the pages of the volume itself for the descriptions of which, especially those of negro character and costume, are most graphic and full of information. A remarkable feature in the leading theme of the Victoria Falls, has for some time been exhibited at the office of the Illustrated London News, and will appear, in the whole, we are justified in pronouncing "Explorations in South Africa" one of the most complete and satisfactory books of travel.

The Bird of Paradise and Other Stories. By Nicholas Whitley. (Longmans.) The writer of the treatise, one of the honorary secretaries of the Royal Geographical Society, is a well-known naturalist as well as a scientific geologist, and has long been accustomed to the field, in the pursuit of his favourite studies. The remarkable abundance of clipped flints, resembling in their shape and situation those of the neighbourhood of Abbeville, and half-buried in the face of the sea in a vertical section, being subject to a vast difference in the temperature of the air and water, which might sometimes be as much as 100 degrees, as on the other hand, how an accumulation of several millions of fish spawn, arrows, knives, and hatchets in one place could be the work of a single tribe of savages inhabiting an ice-bound region like Greenland at the present day.

Poetic Art. (Bell and Daldy and Co.) A book intended to be used in teaching the most elementary stages of reading. The principle is that a lesson is committed first the first word, the first two words, the first three words (and so on) of a sentence until all the words come together, the sentence is perfect, and the sense complete. The sentences, moreover, are so chosen as to combine mixed with profuse knowledge. The plan seems to be as likely to succeed as any other.

Inspiration. (Trübner and Co.) An earnest little tract, in which the writer, adopting the epistolary style, takes exception to the theory of "verbal inspiration," reasons with some force, shows considerable happiness of illustration, and states a creed. The creed is a very candid confession of faith and decidedly unorthodox; but, after what we have been accustomed to lately, it will not be found so strange as to be startling.

SOCIAL SCIENCE CONGRESS.

The ninth annual session of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science was begun, on Wednesday evening, in the Alexandra Music-hall, Sheffield, on which occasion Lord Brougham, the president, delivered the inaugural address. There was a large attendance. The venerable president, who appeared in excellent health and spirits, was greeted very warmly by the assembly. He began reading the address in a powerful, well-modulated, earnest energy, and continued to deliver it thus during half an hour, after which he gave it into the hands of Mr. Hastings, who finished the reading. When Lord Brougham ceased speaking, the acclamations of those present were enthusiastically renewed for several minutes.

Once more I have the satisfaction of meeting my old Yorkshire constituents and of reckoning on the most kind and friendly reception of my life. Accustomed as I am, at this great county, the last time it chose its members undivided and entire. This is now our annual meeting, and we have met in the usual way, by visiting the areas which we, the country, and the world at large have sustained since we met in York. Since then we have to be mourned, in Colonel Cobden, of whose services not England only, but France also, has been witness, and felt justly grateful, and Mr. Wilson, who, with equal energy, and talents of the first order, in the direction of social reform, left behind him a gratitude superadded no among the greatest lodge to the diffusion both of useful knowledge, and of the means of obtaining it, by his establishment of useful works, at the low rate of 2d. per piece, to which he devoted his life, was prodigious. Of the Illustrated Bible (1,000,000 weekly numbers forming upwards of 30,000 complete copies of the Bible) were sold, making the poor man's cottage, as he hoped, a school of instruction. But, happily, his surviving partners, Potter and Galpin, pursue the same course in which they were his able and zealous associates. Since we last met, the Queen has been visited by heavy loss, which at our last congress we had hoped to escape, but which soon after held us, of the Prince Consort, whose name is now interwoven, or in all probability, ere many weeks will not exist. On these losses we may use the touching words in which the Royal Widow expressed her grief to the Lord Mayor of London, although they will not refer to the Prince. (Dr. Guy, M.P., in the chair.) Then, however, much upon which to congratulate the association since our last congress. Of our labours and on the course of events, we can then expressed satisfaction at the calming down of party spirit, both in Parliament and in the country, and we may add that fully give vent to the same feelings, not only from the stillness in high quarters, but because the general election has taken place, and the Parliament which has created a new balance of party and present animosity than marks our history since the period of the Revolution. Since the last meeting, the Government have to Parliament the Right Hon. Baron of Mr. George Denman and Mr. Adam Black, has been conferred upon Mr. Edward Ellice, the late member for Coventry, and the late Judge-Advocate-General, two of our colleagues, like our colleague Mr. Forsyth and Mr. Stuart Mill, for our distinguished vice-president of the Jurisprudence Department, Sir Erskine Perry. In retrenchment, we have to record the steps which the Government has taken to reflect on the considerable diminution of bribery and corruption. It is not to be denied that the expenses of the English people in foreign countries when the enormous sums spent at our elections are mentioned, and that expenditure is truly disgraceful to a country which has so many other claims. The cost of returning Mr. Stuart Mill for Westminster exceeded £3,000 and that of Mr. Bright £2,000. The expenses in some cases amounted to £10 or £20 a day while the dissolution was impending, and as much as £17,000 was positively stated to have been spent in a contest for 2 members in a county. Steps in preparing for a revised which never took place. Sir F. Kelly's Act appears to have been successful in its object, and Mr. Locke King's measure, the subsequent expenses, of £1,000 to £2,000 carried out, it would put much of the absurd practices which in too many cases are a mere cloak for bribery. The late elections are also remarkable for the comparative quiet which they tend to entirely in think of the prospect laid out of a further extension of the franchise for the counties. The alarm felt or affected by many even whenning the rest of the community is probably premature, although all our readers will agree with us that the extension is highly gratifying, as a proof of evidence of experience. The expediency of giving votes to one class rarely can admit of any doubt—that of the middle workmen, who are in many more independent of their employers than those are of them. Why should not all the working men have votes? Why should not the wages be paid to the voter and not to the employer? The certificate of the employer would be a test of the workman's independence. The ballot has been found to work well in the subsequent experiments. Professor Lord Lyttelton has called across the attention of those who are still for the ballot—that the votes should be given in writing and not by the ballot—that the ballot is not a secret one, and cannot of education. Those who treat of reform prospects and projects are also impressed with the necessity of the study of the great reform Act in its earlier stages, and would find there had been much more extensive changes than, recently contemplated. Lord John Russell's Act of 1832 was passed, and important parts of the reform afterwards propounded by the new Ministry, that was hastened on by the unexpected opposition from the Tories, that only half the seats for close boroughs were to be taken away, yet a larger number of the great towns were enfranchised, and the principle of the ballot was already provided for. It must be observed that the late times have shown, even during the short period of the present Parliament, that the Act of 1832 has not proved to have improved, in the manner intended. It was difficult to point out any portion later 1832 in which the subject as little engaged the public attention. But this would be in some measure accounted for by the gradual working out of those changes which have been above suggested may possible be added a new consideration of the elective franchise, so as to remove in some degree the intense irregularity now existing. But this is a matter of great difficulty, and certainly a question of importance, which ought not to be entered into altogether inadvisable.

In entering in a reform of Parliament, it is impossible to pass over the great expediency, indeed it may be termed the absolute necessity, of some change in the constituencies. The present mode of distributing the members not only affecting property of vast amount, but conferring what Lord Derby termed "the most valuable privilege" of all, that of voting for the country, is felt by nobody to be more generally known to the country, and no doubt considerable improvement has of late years been made in the manner of conducting the business of the period of the year 1832, when the assembled, the necessity of every one particular in each hall undergoing a new trial, and the whole of the business almost to decide on the case of all parties. With that great zeal, which irregardless loss we daily deplore on all occasions, whether of a public or private character, which, whether of error or war (it is superfluous to name the Duke of Wellington), it was my lot to occupy the chair of the Social Science Association for the first time in framing orders which now regulate the private business before both Houses, and which, as I remember well, were then in their infancy. Those orders have been amended there no doubt, but they are still in force, and are the principal plan? "Any answer was, "Because it would be certainly refused by the committee." Now, I say, "Because it would be better, and I am told back upon a lower and ineffectual plan." The great measure was offered and carried under the auspices of Lord Derby, and it is now in operation for nearly half of their services. It consisted in the appointment of a joint committee of the two Houses, to which the Bill was sent, with the addition of a professional judge or assessor, to help them on questions of law respecting evidence; and the result is that the Bill now comes back from the Lords in the last bearing to the Rems its full discussion upon the whole had not all its clauses.

This being, indeed, a great step in the economic view of private representation, and he maintained his opinion strongly, being deeply impressed with the belief that the Legislature would be able to get through its work in much more expeditiously if the executive government—that it was to no longer a necessity to be carried on at once.

It was highly satisfactory at our last congress to mark the success of the great co-operative movement, which has arisen out of the misery of the societies and their resources. That progress has continued, although not at the rate of former years, the Government has published the returns showing the increased vigour of the rules established and the arrangements enforced with great vigour by the registrar, Mr. Tidd Pratt, and his assistant, Mr. Hare. The latest returns, which are for the year ending the 31st of December last year (1864) is 305 societies, their sales £7,742,000, and the profit £215,000, the number of members 326,000. The increase of members on the last year in the number of 105 Lancaster has no less than 130 and this county 104. The causes of the societies are manifold, but the principal are the low rate of profit, and the basis of their treasurers at £10,000. It must be added that the strong opposition which has been made to the movement by the trades' unions has been successful in many instances, and especially in Suffolk, have also been felt in Ireland, where, on the Vandaleur property, there is every probability that the same success will be obtained as in England, and to the great advantage of the landlord. Nothing can be more gratifying in all respects than the spread and success of co-operation, both as regards the economic and happiness of the people; and if the middle classes have gained much, the working classes have had a larger share in the benefit.

The question then naturally occurs—and it was asked in the course of the present election—as to these classes, preponderant for their interests as well as their numbers, to remain for ever excluded from a direct share in the choice of representatives. Many of the reasons which have been urged in favour of it have been taken by way of the resources on the subject. The working classes, gratefully, and even a large proportion of the middle order, are prone to be too earnest and even impatient for the adoption of measures which they deem necessary or expedient. They do not give them due consideration; they do not perceive the check which experience has shown to be working in securing safety and conformity with other institutions. The lesson is slowly learned which these classes have never well understood, or only apprehended to make is an object of suitable or chimerical, how much of the best of laws may be the result of compromise or mutual concession, and how often in carrying through any measure, the most important and beneficial, such compromise has been not only expedient but necessary—we shall not stretch the value of our social system has been a succession of compromises. In considering any of the proposals for extending the Parliamentary suffrage, this circumstance is of paramount importance.

The vast body in the workman's house often obliges him to attend a club, and therefore the best assistance that can be rendered him is to facilitate the forming of clubs, which, under proper regulations, may be made the means of rescuing in connection with the defence associations, the Working Men's Club Institute, and its operations have been very successful in maintaining an eating man all over the country to form clubs. In all cases the object has been the reclamation and social improvement of the working classes. Our estimable Lord Lyttelton and others have strenuously supported the institute, whose able and diligent secretary, Mr. Hole, has rendered it most efficient. It may be added that nothing can be more erroneous than the notion prevailing in some quarters that the chest of these clubs is for electioneering and other matters of use to the working classes. These may arise out of them; but the main object is to give the labouring man opportunities of social intercourse, and respite after their work.

The Royal Commission Act, the subject which had occupied us the year before last, Edinburgh, of forcible education in the public schools of the working classes, was resumed, and a most able paper read by Miss Emily Davies. Some differences of opinion was occasioned on that subject by the proposal that coloured degrees for females; whereas, it was certain that this could not to the case, the cessation conferring no degrees at all, as had been fully stated by Mr. Hastings at a preliminary meeting. But, fortunately, the University of Cambridge received such favourable consideration from the meeting, that the persons connected with education, as well as many others, including most of the most important and active members of the Association. The memorial was presented towards the end of last year, and the question was brought before the Senate in February last. The report was favourable, the report recommending the proposal to be adopted. At the meeting of the Senate a grace of the Senate was passed, giving effect to the recommendation of the syndicate. The scheme is to continue in force as a tentative measure for three years, at the expiration of which there is every reason to believe that it will be in be permanent. In the mean time additional arrangements are engaged for the superintendence of the examinations at several of the local centres, and the promise of considerable pecuniary aid towards the cost of the complete success of the movement it is scarcely possible to entertain a doubt. The direct result of examinations cannot fail to be a great stimulus to the moral value of such a recognition by one of our old Universities of the importance of female education is likely to be felt in many other directions.

The success of the new system of education in Ireland is a just subject of congratulation to all who have taken an interest in the social and intellectual dignity to support it as a failure. At the great meeting of the Queen's Colleges were established in Belfast, Cork, and Galway, the number of pupils was 826, and last year it was 1,400. The success of the Belfast College has been much greater than in Belfast, because there education had begun sooner. Notwithstanding the opposition of the Roman Catholic clergy at the time, the number of pupils has nearly doubled. The number belonging to the Established Church is only one-fifth of the whole. Mention has been made of the great step taken by the Universities of Cambridge and Edinburgh in favour of female education. It has been done by certain benevolent persons belongs rather to the host of charity than of education. Yet is it very important to the latter, for it is one of the most comprehensive, who may work there instead of in those wretched garrets to which they are now confined, and where they die by the thousand annually in great impoverishment. The superintendence of the Universities will be confined to the use of the sewing-machine is greatly wanted for the class of competence. But the greater importance is, that the system of education for the companion that have been formed by the principal ladies in London and the dressmakers, with limited training, of Guy's Hospital and other institutions, and which have succeeded in an extraordinary manner. One of these companies is in Clifford-street, Bond-street, and the other in Gloucester-place, Grosvenor-square, and these divide upon their profits. In Edinburgh, the Society for the Employment of Women has established a similar institution for the resources of their inborn. In the branch of photography the success has been very great.

The Commission upon Schools, which has been mentioned in the last council, has not yet made its report, but it has been actively engaged in its important work. It is much to be regretted that the Bill which was introduced among the commissioners, as his acquaintance with the subject exceeds that of most men, and as in the formation of the Bill he has rendered most half-time plan.

The Art giving equitable jurisdiction to County Courts had been for many years strongly urged by us. Indeed, that jurisdiction was part of the original Act of County Courts, and the Committee to whom it was referred in 1846 strongly approved of that provision. But in 1852 an elaborately-prepared Bill was introduced by our council. This was opposed by the Bar, and the Bill was not attempted by us, and it at length carried to a certain extent. The great advantage of the Act is that it gives to the County Courts the power of dealing with matters at law, and has been attended with the most beneficial results. Another able paper upon it was read by Mr. Reilly. It cannot be said that no progress has been made towards the attainment of this object, for in 1867 the Law Commission was voted £5000 for the expense of it, and constant and active work has been carried on ever since that time. The Commissioners have, in the statutory provisions which are, in fact, inoperative, but still continue upon the Statute Book. It must be said that the work of the Commissioners in consolidating the laws has been undertaken at New York, and is working under the superintendence of our correspondent, Mr. David Dudley Field.

At our last congress Mr. G. Denman undertook to bring in a bill for reforming the law of evidence, and he introduced a measure accordingly during the previous year, in civil cases of interest, but the session was too far gone to did in, and the Act being passed last Session, the anomaly no longer exists.

The failure of Sir F. Kelly to carry the law of evidence was a serious loss. One great improvement has, however, taken place in the branch of the law, the extension of limited liability to companies of assurance, marine and others. An Act passed last Session, excluding from the responsibility of partnership those who lend money to traders, and who receive a share of the profits or labour out of the profits to which they have contributed. This is a great benefit not only to the workman, but to the whole body of the community.

The report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on the bankruptcy laws has been made public during the past year, and will be found to be most valuable. It contains virtually the adoption of the Scotch plan of trustees consisting of the creditors, and the appointment of a public officer to control the proceedings of a separate tribunal.

The commission on the Patent Law has also reported, since our last congress, recommending various important changes in the law of patents, but admitting that the changes would only palliate the evils complained of.

The consideration of the separate question of the Copyright of Designs has largely been established after a delay of thirty years.

The Consolidated Fund Act has passed the Lords and the Commons, and though the report is not yet made public, there can be no doubt that a great and useful body of information has been collected upon the subject of the poor and the law both in this and in foreign countries. On this head of criminal law we have to congratulate the country upon the fact that the number of criminal lunatics in a circumstance of satisfaction to all who have taken an interest in the question. There are even reasons for regarding a diminished general habit of mind, indicated by consequence, in the matter of crime. Upon this subject, however, it might never to be reckoned among circumstances of extenuation.

Our retired colleague, Lord Chancellor Cranworth, in the House of Commons on the Irish Law Courts, feeling that two bills were introduced by the Government to consolidate the practice in the Courts of Common Law and Equity, either for common law. There were vehemently opposed, and not pressed. But in both measures only the Irish Courts were to be affected. Though the opposition was withdrawn, the bill was not passed. The Government had at last to withdraw it. Mr. Cranworth's bill was a most valuable measure, and we hope both the Attorney and Solicitor-General and the Lord Chancellor of Ireland and Members of Commons, and Lord Chancellor hope that the result will be complete, and of consolidation of the Courts of Common Law and Equity in Ireland. The number of their officers, for whom there is really little business to do.

The subject of recording titles is one which has been discussed at our meetings; upon papers by Messrs. Torrens and Robert Wilson, and an Act was passed last Session for recording such titles in Ireland, and for the registration of the Estates Court.

Nothing can be more satisfactory than the proceedings of last year with regard to the reformatory system, and the Act of 1866 for the improvement, and the reformation of young offenders, by the establishment of schools for the care of young persons, the reduction of large prisons, and the substitution of smaller ones, and the reduction of the excessive gratuities and of the dietary, the use of plain-clothes, and the giving more opportunities of employment. The Act is a most public at large, but to the convicts themselves) are great and important improvements, and these, together with the system of preventive detention in certain cases, have made the Irish system more like our own. The great principle has also received full effect that the term of imprisonment should be lessened not merely by the convict's constant since his imprisonment, but by his subsequent conduct under the supervision of the police, actually carrying out which the Act of 1864 has expired. This supervision of his entire liberation he has all the advantages of the ticket-of-leave system, and the most important provisions for the conditions for supervision. It depends upon the absence of communication between the police force at different stations.

The improvement in the discipline of county and borough prisons, urged by Lord Carnarvon, and effected by the gratuitous labours of Sir Walter Crofton, will be evidence for that reformation of the criminal, which is the great and final cause which at present exists, the term of confinement not being shortened in those prisons by the convict's behaviour. These and many other matters will, it is to be hoped, receive full consideration at this congress.

The increasing and somewhat virulent visitation of cholera gave rise to a meeting upon the question of our council, and president over by the Bishop of London, when a most valuable paper was read, and an elaborate report presented by the committee of the Health Department.

While all has been proceeding satisfactorily in legislation since our last congress, it is gratifying to find that considerable progress has been made not only by our rulers, and especially our Finance Minister, for the benefit of trade. The negotiations with France have led to the lowering of the duties on wines—for our neighbours as well as ourselves. Similar treaties have been made with other countries, as with Belgium and Italy, while our will Austria may reasonably be expected. Our foreign commerce has nearly doubled in the years as regards France and our correspondence, as to the most shamed, have not in any instance ceased to carry on the business, while the amount of paper money has not actually increased. The Post Office accommodates to navigate lands in less no inconsiderable benefit to the humbler classes. Above 3000 of these have been established, the pecuniary deposits in which are nearly six millions, and the number of depositors is above 600,000. Another boon to the poor is the Act which has been passed for the establishment of Penny Banks, and it is expected that, with few exceptions, in foreign countries a like prosperity has existed.

The social question of the lasting effect of peace of 1815 and the events which have taken place on the continent of Europe and in America since they have been changing, considerably modified the condition of the country, especially laments the loss to families in such displays of mature courage and perseverance as have been exhibited in the late Abyssinian war and previously elsewhere. We are pleased to contemplate the Sovereign, in their eminent exposure, and the Royal Family, and the Court, and the Nobility, and in its endless variety of institutes, each adapted wonderfully to accomplishing its purpose, to observe the manifestation of the peculiar sympathy of individuals to enfold the order of the universe and subdue to see how the elements and the forces of nature are made subservient to the purposes of man, and how the art of man, and the combinations of nations, and wonders are the social objects or the Divine care. Social science, then, has pre-eminently claimed to be the best and most beneficial of all sciences. Mr. John Andrew's Miss Peggy by Chanman and Mr. W. Shayer's Cherry Ripe divided the Double Event, and Mr. Shayer's Cherry Ripe divided the Double Event, and much for the well-known Gordon Cups in the run-up for the Rectangle Stakes.

BEDFORD RACES.—TUESDAY.

Consolation Stakes.—Orioff, 1, Bunty, 2.
Welcome Handicap.—Lord Rutland, 2, Dainton, 3.
Town Plate.—Indian Star, 1, Gemma di Vergy c., 2. Hopbine f., Rotherfield Stakes.—Gemma di Vergy, 1, Orioff, 2, Rattler, 3, 3.

WEDNESDAY

Hunters' Stakes.—Turpet, 1, Beetle Cottonford, 2, Rattler, 3.
Surrey Handicap.—Alice Lee, 1, Rustic Bounty, 2, Prestigian, 3.
Corporation Stakes.—Marksman, 1, Bell Adde, 2, Deerfoot, 3.
Queen's Plate.—Seven and-a-Half, 1, Scapegoat, 2.
Brayton Park Stakes.—Orioff, 1, Le Marchal, 2, Turpet, 3.

ROYAL CALEDONIAN HUNT.—WEDNESDAY.

Trial Stakes.—Wedding, 1, Miss Willson, 2, Red Lynn, 3.
Caledonian Stakes.—Lord Clifden, 1, Lady Ann, 2, Antiquary, 3.
Caledonian Stakes.—Gwynn, 1, Maxima Tagliano, 2, Scout Jessie, 3.
Hunt Cup.—Regalia walked over.
Dominion Handicap.—Cotsway, 1; Iconoclast, 2; Our Jim, 3.

THURSDAY.

St. Leger.—Brown Bread, 1, Zealand, 2.
Caledonian Stakes.—Lord Clifden, 1, Bell Adde, 2, Deerfoot, 3.
Lothian Handicap.—Windham, 1, Gown, 2, Certain Lecture, 2.

Some of our contemporaries have published a list, derived from American sources, of British subscribers to the Confederate Cotton Loan. Many of the names are certainly fictitious, and the list is probably not put forward as a statement to be, as far as they are concerned, untrue; and most likely the list is altogether a hoax.

THE MARKETS.

COVENT GARDEN, Oct. 5.—The show of English wheat here to-day was very limited and the trade was dull at the following quotations:—Essex and Kent red, 42s to 44s; ditto white, 44s to 46s; Lincolnshire and Yorkshire red, 40s to 42s; ditto white, 42s to 44s. Foreign wheat, the supply of which was very moderate, changed hands slowly, on terms unfavourable to sellers. Barley and malt were dull, and rates ruled low. Beans and peas were quiet and unchanged. Oats were in fair request, at full prices. Linseed was steady, and cakes were in moderate demand, at former quotations. Clover seed ruled steady. In bonded and free vary little was passing, at late quotations. The floating trade was inactive.

MARK LANE, Oct. 5.—The supply of English wheat fresh up to-day was limited, and poorly met with. Monday, however, no change took place in prices.

Barley, Malt, Beans, and Peas.—Barley, 30s to 34s; malt, 70s to 80s; peas, 37s to 39s; beans, 36s to 40s; pigeon peas, 35s to 40s; grey peas, 32s to 36s.

Oats.—Oats, 20s to 23s; Scotch, 22s to 25s; Irish, 19s to 22s; potato, 21s to 24s.

Flour.—Town made, 38s to 40s; country, 34s to 36s; per quarter; Harwich, 35s to 40s; Stockton, 32s to 34s; per sack.

Average.—Wheat, 42s 6d; barley, 32s; oats, 21s 10d; rye, 32s 6d; beans, 38s 6d; peas, 38s 6d.

Seeds.—Linseed, 60s; Calcutta, 60s; Baltic, 57s; Odessa, 56s; Mediterranean, 56s; hempseed, 42s to 44s; canary, 60s to 62s; per quarter; linseed, 55s, to 60s; Calcutta, 60s; Baltic, 57s; Odessa, 56s; Mediterranean, 56s; hempseed, 42s to 44s; canary, 60s to 62s; per quarter; linseed, 55s, to 60s; linseed cakes, £10 to £11 per ton.

Average.—Wheat, 42s 6d; barley, 32s; oats, 21s 10d; rye, 32s 6d; beans, 38s 6d; peas, 38s 6d.

Seeds.—Linseed, 60s; Calcutta, 60s; Baltic, 57s; Odessa, 56s; Mediterranean, 56s; hempseed, 42s to 44s; canary, 60s to 62s; per quarter; linseed, 55s, to 60s; linseed cakes, £10 to £11 per ton.

SMITHFIELD.—Monday, Oct. 5.—Although the supply of beasts on sale in our market to-day was very moderate, the demand for all breeds ruled heavy, at Monday's quotations. In consequence of the Jewish Feast of Tabernacles, the trade of sheep was rather limited; nevertheless, sales progressed slowly, at late rates. A few very superior Downs realised 6s per 8lb. Calves were in fair request, at full prices. Lambs were in moderate, on former currencies. Pigs moved off heavily. The past week was much less active than last week, and prices were with difficulty supported. Mids were 6s to 6s 2d; prime large ditto, 6s 4d to 6s 6d; prime small ditto, 6s 6d to 6s 8d; medium ditto, 5s 8d to 6s 4d; prime large ditto, 6s 4d to 6s 6d; prime small ditto, 6s 6d to 6s 8d; large oxen, 5s 4d to 5s 8d; small ditto, 5s 6d to 6s 2d; prime Scots, 6s 4d to 6s 6d; coarse and inferior ditto, 5s 4d to 6s 4d; prime coarse-woolled ditto, 5s 8d to 6s 2d; prime southdown ditto, 6s 4d to 6s 6

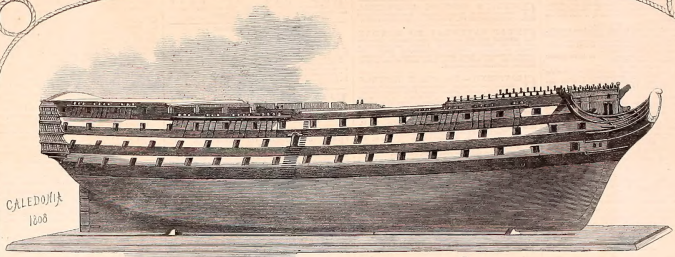
RESTORATION OF THE DUTCH CHURCH IN AUSTINFRIARS.

THE church, or chapel, formerly belonging to the monastery of Augustine Friars, which was founded in 1246, and dissolved by Henry VIII., was thereupon granted by the King, in 1550, to a congregation of Dutch or German sojourners in London, "to have their service in, for avoiding of all sects of Ana-Baptistes, and such like." From that time to this it has continued in that use. It has lately undergone a complete restoration, from the designs of a young architect, Mr. William Lightly, whose death has cut short a very promising career in his profession. The superintendence and direction of this work has devolved on Mr. Edward Anson.

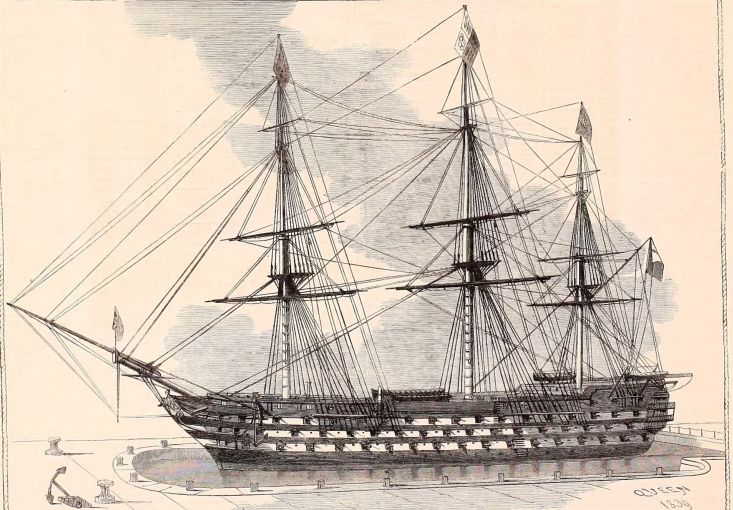
The present fabric is the nave only of the original building, which was granted by Edward VI. to the foreigners in London. This contained, also, north and south transepts, choir, chapels of St. John and St. Thomas, chapter-house, and cloisters; and there was a remarkable spire, or fleche, at the intersection of the cross—all of which were destroyed by the Marquis of Winchester, to whom they had been granted at the Reformation.

The extreme length between the walls is 153 ft., divided into nine bays; the extreme width is 83 ft., the nave being 32 ft. in the clear and the aisles 21 ft. each. The internal walls are of chalk, and have been carefully restored; the external facing is of Kentish rag, the restoration of which has also been completed. The window-tracery, where too much decayed to be retained, has been restored with new Portland stone, and all the windows have been reglazed with plain glass, by Messrs. Powell. The roofs of the nave and north aisle, which were destroyed by the fire, have been replaced by under-boarded roofs of fir; the plaster ceiling of the south aisle has been removed, and the old roof made to correspond. The tie-beams which secure the walls together form an important feature of the design. The old south porch has been removed.

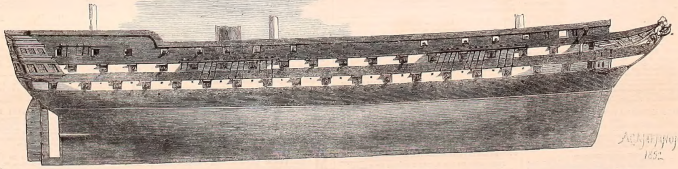
THE DUTCH CHURCH, AUSTINFRIARS, RECENTLY RESTORED.



The new interior fittings are all of oak, as are also the two vestries at the ends of the north and south aisles. The general works have been carried out by Messrs. Browne and Robinson; the oak fittings, by Mr. Sparke, of Norwich; the encaustic tile paving, by Mr. Godwin, of Hereford.



ST. ANDREW'S COLLEGE, BRADFIELD, NEAR READING.



THE observant passenger who has travelled in fine weather along the Great Western Railway between Bath and London will perhaps remember the pleasant landscape he saw at Pangbourne near the station, and many an artist or angler who has visited the place in quest of his peculiar delights will cherish a fond recollection of the little bright brook here running into the Thames, which gives to the village its name. This stream—very famous for trout—rises out of the chalk, at a deep blue head, about five or six miles west of Pangbourne, and winds through a beautiful valley, in which lies the snug village of Bradfield. Our forefathers in times of old were wont to choose such retreats for the sites of religious endowments; and there is a tradition that a monastery was founded at Bradfield about the year 650; but, be this as it may, there were no traces of any very ancient buildings remaining in 1850, except in the Church of St. Andrew and in the old ruined walls on the slope to the south of the church, which were parts of a large manor-house of the thirteenth or fourteenth century. On the foundations of some of these ruins there has recently risen a picturesque structure, designed to meet modern wants, with the name of St. Andrew's College, and to last, as most people hope and believe, for centuries yet to come—a monument of the spirit which has stirred in our times for good progress in various ways. An illustration of a part of this building is given below; and how it has come to be, and what it expects to be, we will tell as we have been told. In 1848, the Rector, who is also lord of the manor, and a chief proprietor—owning all the village of Bradfield—restored and enlarged, and rebuilt in great part, the old parish church of St. Andrew, under the kind advice and direction of his friend Mr. George Gilbert Scott. Many critics of architecture have thought this one of Mr. Scott's happiest efforts at a parish church restoration. A view of the interior of the church will amply repay the trouble of a visit from Pangbourne to all who have taste for good buildings. In the following year a small boys' school was planned for the sake of improving church music; it was opened in 1850 with only two boys, but the numbers increased very quickly, much beyond the first expectation, and with the increase of the numbers the plans of the founder expanded; instead of a small private school, with a definite limited purpose, a much bolder scheme was adopted for a school with a public design, and for the best general objects. Successes pushed on this conception, and year after year new buildings were wanted to make room for boys that would come. In 1858 the project became perpetual; all the buildings, fittings, and appliances, with thirteen acres of land, were made over to trustees (Lord Lyttleton; the Chancellor of the Exchequer; Sir Wm. Heathcote, M.P.; Sir Frederic Rogers; Mr. Thomas Dyke Acland, M.P.; Professor Goldwin Smith, and others) to be held for the school for ever; and by the statutes it is provided that some boys, fatherless, or the sons of poor gentlemen or clergymen, shall hereafter be boarded and educated gratuitously. This work must go on as long as law and good order continue. In 1862 the school received the grant of a Royal Charter, and the trustees were made a corporate body, with perpetual succession, by the name of "The Warden and Council of St. Andrew's College," able to receive gifts of goods and money and to hold land in mortmain. Since the grant of the charter, several gifts have come in; one trustee has endowed a divinity prize, and another has made a most liberal gift of books for a library; for this more building is required, and Mr. Scott's help has been again asked; he has made a beautiful design, and when it is completed we may have the pleasure of putting before our readers another View of such a work as might be expected to come from him.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH AND COLLEGE, BRADFIELD, BERKSHIRE.

MODELS OF SHIPS IN THE NAVAL GALLERY AT THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—SEE PAGE 333.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City correspondent.)

THE least quotation for money at the Bank of England having been raised to 8 per cent, and the rate of discount in the open market to 8 per cent, Saturday, the fortunate in prices have been further. In the Colonial Debt very little has been purchased, and some of the bills have changed hands at a decrease equal to 1.

There has been a good demand for money in all quarters. The call on account, however, passed off extremely well—nearly the whole of the bills arriving at maturity having been met.

The Bank of England has received £1,000,000 in gold this week.

The inter-colonial and diamond issues are quoted at 1 to 1 per cent for money at call; 1 to 2 with seven, and 1½ to 2 with fourteen days to run.

On the Continent a general advancing tendency is observed.

About £300,000 in gold has come to hand, chiefly from Australia. Several parcels of the new Siege coin of the Bank of Holland and other heavy amounts have been withdrawn for Alexandria.

The Bank of France has sold £1,000,000 in gold this week, but has not offered to sell any more, at 4½ per cent discount.

The rate to be applied to the purchase of stock for the closing account is 3 per cent, and to sell 2½ per cent.

The current rate for Bank transfers is 2½ per cent.

The Council for India has disposed of £267,000 in bills on the Presidency Banks at an average rate of discount of 3 per cent.

The Bank of Bengal has declared a dividend of 10 per cent for the year, and added £40,000 to the rest. Bombay, Bank of Madras, £40,000 to the rest. Bank of Bengal, 8½ per cent; Bank of Bombay, 8½ per cent; Bank of Madras, 8½ per cent.

The Council for India has disposed of £267,000 in bills on the Presidency Banks at an average rate of discount of 3 per cent.

The Bank of the New Netherlands has purchased £1,000,000 in gold this week. The Bank of France has sold £1,000,000 in gold this week

DUTCH BULBS.—SPRING FLOWERS.—A CATALOGUE OF DUTCH BULBS, Hyacinths, 12 border varieties Crocus, extra, 100.
Tulips, 12 do. Tulips, 100.
Narcissus, 12 do. Hyacinths, Tulips, Single and Double, Red and Yellow, 12 each, 24.
Polyanthus Narcissus, 9 sorts, Tulips, Double Tournesol, red 12 each. and yellow, 12.
Iris, 6 sorts. Anemones, Single and Double, mixed, 100.
Jonquils, Single, Double, mixed, 100.
Ranunculus, Persian, mixed, 100.
Crocus, Persian, Tartan, mixed, 25.
Crocus, purple, 100.
Hyacinths, Roman, mixed, 100.
A superior quality of mixed flowering roots for the Conservatory, 12s. per dozen.
Orders per post, or at the Counter, to be addressed to Messrs. Barr and Co., 12s, High Holborn, W.C.

OLD MALASKA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or fruit, and much superior to Sherry, Madeira, or Port, 24s. per dozen; Pale or Brown, 30s. per dozen. Terms cash. Offices, 67, Mark-lane.—H. WARNER, Wine Merchant, 72 and 73, Great Russell-street (opposite the British Museum), London, W.C. Established 1760.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH BREWING of the above Ale is now in progress. Wholesale Stores, Gunthorpe, Bridge-street, Nottingham; and 61, Wellington-street, Strand, London.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALES.—The above Ales have been brewed and bottled at the Burton Brewery, Staffordshire, and at the Hall Brewery, Nottingham, by the Burton Brewery Company, Limited, and may be had of their Agents in the following towns:—Aberdeen, Ashton-under-Lyne, Barnsley, Bath, Belfast, Birmingham, Bolton, Bradford, Brighton, Bristol, Cambridge, Canterbury, Carlisle, Chatham, Cheltenham, Chester, Coventry, Derby, Dublin, Dundee, Edinburgh, Exeter, Glasgow, Gloucester, Greenock, Halifax, Hereford, Huddersfield, Hull, Ipswich, Leamington, Leeds, Leicester, Lincoln, Liverpool, London, Manchester, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Northampton, Norwich, Nottingham, Oxford, Paisley, Perth, Peterborough, Plymouth, Portsmouth, Preston, Reading, Rochdale, Salisbury, Scarborough, Sheffield, Shrewsbury, Southampton, Stockport, Stoke-upon-Trent, Sunderland, Swansea, Torquay, Wakefield, Warrington, Weymouth, Wigan, Wolverhampton, Worcester, York, and Yarmouth.
THE BURTON BREWERY COMPANY, Limited.

CHOLAT-MÉNIER.
THE BEST ALEMBIC FOR BRANDY.
Under Vinegar ... ... 2s. 6d.
Cherubs ... ... 3s. 6d.
Stills ... ... 5s. 6d.
Worms ... ... 7s. 6d.
VANILLA FLAVOUR.
Green Vanilla ... ... 1s. 6d.
Vanilla Pods ... ... 2s. 6d.
Bronze ... ... 3s. 6d.
Gold ... ... 5s. 6d.
Sold by 1 in London, and by all respectable Hosiers, Wine-Merchants, Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.

DUBLIN EXHIBITION.—French Confectionery.—A MEDAL was AWARDED to MARCHANT for the excellent quality of his CHOCOLATE. The superior skill, taste, and science displayed in the manufacture of his Bonbons obtained a similar award. Sold by all Confectioners.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in Royal Laundry,
and invented the Prize Medal, 1862.

FELIX SELANAA'S OIL of BAGDAD is irresistible to all who use our good HAIR, as it promotes it, and in a few months, a set of powerful, curly whiskers. Sold by Felix in every kiosk in the streets and terminuses. No agent or shop has it. Price 3s. 6d. Felix Salanaa's Oil of Bagdad. Depôt, 7, Haymarket, and Royal Exchange. All Perfumers and Hosiers.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED CANDLE GAS is the only candle which possesses all the odorous virtues for promoting a pleasant growth of the human hair. Sold by all Chemists, Perfumers, and Oilmen. Price 1s. 6d. Napoleon Price and Co., 67, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.

TOILET VINEGAR.—VINAIGRE DE TOILETTE DE JEAN VINCENT BILLY.—This celebrated Vinegar, which is the most powerful and the most agreeable of all the known preparations employed up to the present time, is strongly recommended for its esteemed properties. Its fragrant properties render it invaluable as a refreshing perfume for the handkerchief, and for the bath-room. A small quantity poured on the sponge used for washing the face and hands, gives to the skin white and velvety, and, if it is insensible, it will restore to it the freshness it imparts to it a most agreeable perfume. It is an admirable lotion for the hair, and for the teeth, and for the mouth. Its use in the bath-room, experience a delicious perfume and a refreshing sensation and the Colonies this production is invaluable. Sole Depôt for the United Kingdom, 1, Rue Neuve-des-Petits-Champs, Paris, and 23, Old-court-house-street, Hanover-square, London, W.

TOURISTS, TRAVELLERS, VISITORS to the SEASIDE, and others exposed to the Sun and Dust, will find the application of ROWLAND'S KALYDOR to the Skin most refreshing to the Face and Skin; allaying all heat and irritability, and immediately removing Redness, Tan, Freckles, Pimples, and other Cutaneous Defects, rendering the Skin soft, fair, and blooming. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers.

Ask for ROWLAND'S KALYDOR. Beware of spurious and pernicious articles under the name of Kalydor.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—MISS TALBOT, thirty years Lady's Maid in the highest circles of London Society, begs to inform the Ladies that she has left off business, and has for the last two years been making up Ladies' Hair, Bands, and Wigs in the most becoming style, with other recipes for the Toilet, obtained during her residence with the Empress Eugénie, Lamoignon.

WHY SUFFER RHEUMATISM, Gout, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, or Weak Limbs?—ELLIMAN'S ROYAL EMBROCATION will give instant relief, and a few days' use will cure the most severe cases. Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per bottle.

ELLIMAN'S ROYAL EMBROCATION for Horses, Cattle, Dogs, &c., is the best remedy for Sprains, Bruises, Lameness, Rheumatism, Stiffness, Swellings, and Soreness; also for broken knees, cuts, wounds, scratches and mud fever, thrushes, brushes, strains, chills, and all Skin Diseases and Sickness, &c., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d.

DIPNOO'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomach Disorder if every kind and in every climate. Sold by all Chemists, 47, New-Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

DR. DE ROOS'S
Universal Curative Cod-Liver Oil Depôt.
LIGHBROWN'S COD-LIVER OIL,
187 refined by the new chemical method now as the ONLY PURE AND PERFECT REMEDY for Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Rheumatism, General Debility, Indigestion, and Skin Diseases.
BY THE 1867 MEDICAL REGISTER IT IS RECOMMENDED TO ALL SCIENTIFIC PHYSICIANS.
Sold only in Imperial Half-pints, 1s. 6d. per bottle; and Pints, 2s. 6d.
Dr. LETHEBY, Medical Officer of Health, and Chief Analyst to the City of London, says:—"I have found Mr. Lightbrown's Cod-Liver Oil to be of the best quality. Under the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, I purchased a bottle of it at his establishment, 187, Aldersgate-street, and submitted it to analysis. I have no doubt of the genuine character of the sample."
Dr. LANKESTER, F.R.S., Coroner for Central Middlesex, observes:—"I have found Mr. Cod-Liver Oil, sold under Dr. de Roos's guarantee to be of particular excellence in any case where a pure and unadulterated article is required."
Sold by all Chemists. Imperial Half Pints, 2s. 6d.; Pints, 4s. 6d. Lightbrown, Son, and Co., 187, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C.

ASSAM, HARBORD, and CO., 37, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. MARSDEN EYE-WATER, a remedy of extraordinary strength from cold, frost, or constitutional weakness. Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. per bottle. Manufactured by Messrs. Powell, Hanbury, Gloucestershire, Bromley, London, and Cardiff.

THE CATTLE PLAGUE and CHOLERA. The HOMŒOPATHIC REMEDIES (with directions) for their Prevention and Cure are prepared by ERASTUS and DAVIS, 9, Vere-street, Oxford-street, and 6, St. Paul's-churchyard, London. Pamphlet, by appointment, to the London Homœopathic Hospital.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—PETER ROBINSON'S Family Mourning Warehouse, 256 to 262, Regent-street, Hanover-square, and 103, Oxford-street.
Peter Robinson's MOURNING WAREHOUSE is at 103 to 256, Regent-street.
Patterns of all goods post-free.
The advertisements follow.

NEW SILKS.
An immense variety of Chênés, Pompadours, Satin Striped and Plain, Reversible Cords, and every quality and colour in Velvets, all of which may be had in black and coloured grounds, at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 256, Oxford-street.

FOR WEDDING DRESSES.
Just received, special make of Rich Silks, made to our order in Lyons, at moderate prices.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 256, Oxford-street.

IRISH POPLINS.
The wear of which cannot be surpassed, £1 10s. 6d. to £1 8s. 6d. the Full Dress.
LIGHT AND WHITE GROUND CHINÉ POPLAND SILK, 1 guinea the Full Dress.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 256, Oxford-street.

200 PIECES OF NEW FANCY CHECK SILKS, all of which are Reduced to 1 guinea the Full Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 256, Oxford-street.

A PERFECTLY NEW FABRIC FOR AUTUMN DRESSES.
THE "YEDDO" POPLIN,
the Production of Japan, in Silk and Wool,
In most brilliant colours, 21s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Also, in Checks and Stripes, 21s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 256, Oxford-street.

SPECIALLY PREPARED FOR THIS SEASON.
LADIES' READY-MADE DRESSES.
In Black Glacé, Checked, Striped, and Plain Silks, elegantly made and variously trimmed in the latest style of fashion, from 3 guineas to 10 guineas the Dress complete.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 256, Oxford-street.

A CHOICE COLLECTION OF NOVELTIES IN THE DIAGONAL WOOL SERGE, the "Cashmere" and the "Alexandra" Serge, and the "Popeline Velour," 9s. 6d. to 1 guinea the Dress. Special Patterns.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 256, Oxford-street, W.

STRIPED, CHECKED, AND FIGURED
FANCY FLANNELS.
For Morning Dresses, Dressing Jackets, Petticoats, &c.
In 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches wide.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 256, Oxford-street.

Several decidedly New Colours in the
PARIS CLOTHS AND VELVETEENS.
A most useful and elegant Dress, 22s. 9d. 3 guineas.
The new Shades in Velveteens, Checked, Striped, and Chinés, 21s. 6d. to 35s. 6d.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 109, Oxford-street, W.

Every New Colour in
REAL ABERDEEN WINCEYS,
36, 36, to 38, 6d. Full Dress.
Many very useful Checks and Stripes, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 6d. Full Dress.
A choice of selected thousand pieces for selection.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 256, Oxford-street, W.

White Grenadine and Book Muslins, for
BRIDESMAIDS' DRESSES,
Striped, Plain, or Brocaded (pure white).
Also, Black Grenadine, for Mourning.
300 Richly-worked White Robes, 3s. 6d. to 10 guineas each.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 256, Oxford-street, W.

WATERPROOF MANTLES for Travelling and Seaside, in various colours and cloth.
Also, Waterproof Cloth, 54 in. wide, 2s. 6d.
Also, Waterproof Cloth, 56 in. wide, 3s. 6d.
Also, measuring, 1m., 2m. 6in., Front, 2m. 3in., 3s. 6d.
The same size and width, Double Texture, and with Lavender Capes, at speedily double prices.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 109, Oxford-street.

REAL SEAL-FUR PALETOTS,
Size, 36 in., 6 guineas; 38 in., 7 guineas;
24 in., 8 guineas; 42 in., 9 guineas;
44 in., 10 guineas; 46 in., 11 guineas.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 109, Oxford-street.

THE NEW REVERSIBLE
ST. GOTHARD MANTLES and JACKETS.
In Fancy Checks, Stripes, and Plain Colours, so expressly made as can be worn on either side, and will wear out the various mixtures of colour.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 109, Oxford-street.

THE NEW REGALIA JACKET,
for Autumn Wear, in a new and elegant variety of Tweed, in great variety of colour and design, price 21s.
This is the most fashionable article of dress in Paris at this season.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 109, Oxford-street.

Just purchased,
A MANUFACTURER'S STOCK of FRENCH-MADE MERINOES,
Of the most elegant description, and in every fashionable colour, commencing at 2s. 6d. per yard.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 109, Oxford-street.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY
(NARROW GAUGE).
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Cinchéd Cloth, 11 yards, 21s.
New Checked Silk, 11 yards, 21s.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK SILKS.
A large assortment of Black Silks, 2s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. per yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

AUTUMN SERGES, Striped Linseys, Chequered Tweeds, 6s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

JACKET and MANTLE DEPARTMENT.
A large and choice assortment of
Black Velvet, Velveteen, Astracan, and Black Cloth,
Made and trimmed in the best manner.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

MEXICAN POPLINS
in all useful Colours, 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 17s. 6d., 21s. per Dress.
Also, Checked Poplins, 15s. 6d. Dress.
Also, Silk Poplins, 21s. per Dress.
Silk Poplin Robe, jewel width, all Colours,
Trimmed Velvet, 42s. per Dress.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill,
Have always in Stock a large assortment of Linen and Cotton Sheets, Linen Cloths, Huckaback and Diaper,
Made and Marked Ready for Use, and Warranted for Wear.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at MOYR SMITH'S.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage paid, to any railway station in England, Scotland, Dublin Damask Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 4s. 11d. each; Fringed Huckaback Towels, 7s. 11d. per dozen; Shirting, Sheeting, Handkerchiefs, and Underclothing for Ladies and Gentlemen's Linen and Cambric Handkerchiefs.
Patterns and Price-Lists post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., Damask Manufacturers, Belfast.

D. R. JOHNSTONE and CO.,
D. 19, 15, Edgware-road,
have purchased the Entire Stock of the late
Mr. JOHN GAMAGE,
Draper, Haberdasher, &c.,
113 and 114, Tottenham-court-road,
Consisting of
Two Thousand One Hundred and Seventy-three Parcels, at a large discount off the modest manufacturers' prices for home-trade. Parcels carriage paid to any part of the kingdom.
On MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 25th, and following days.

Mr. JOHN GAMAGE will continue on the Metropolitan Railway is within a few yards of Mr. D. R. Johnstone and Co.'s premises.

INDIA SHAWLS, — Large Consignments, PARENTS and BOARDERS request attention to a magnificent collection of CASHMERE and INDIA SHAWLS, Scarfs, Dress Pieces, and Complete Costumes, in the most beautiful specimens, suitable for wedding presents.—W. CLARK, 119, 120, 121, Regent-street, W.

KING and CO., Silkmercers, &c., 243, Regent-street, W., announce that their new stock of rich 72 Dress Lengths of the very newest patterns now at about half the usual prices, is ready for inspection. Patterns free by post.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, W.

THE
NEW AUTUMN SILKS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
Striped Silks ... ... 1 gn. the Full Dress.
Checked Silks ... ... 1 gn. do.
Brocaded Silks ... ... 1 gn. do.
New Figured Poult-de-Soies ... 1 gn. do.
New Striped Poult-de-Soies ... 1 gn. do.
New Brocaded do. ... 1 gn. do.
Richest Moire Antiques ... 2 gns. do.
Patterns and new model post-free.
Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street, W.

NEW AUTUMN DRESSES at KING'S.
243, Regent-street.
Scotch Poplins ... ... 20s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Mexican Cashmeres ... ... 0 12 6 do.
Merino Cashmeres ... ... 0 15 6 do.
Checked Cashmeres ... ... 0 18 6 do.
Cambrian Cloth ... ... 0 13 6 do.
Checked Cambrian Cloth ... ... 0 15 6 do.
Fine Cloth ... ... 1 1 0 do.
Diagonal Silk Serges ... ... 1 gn. do.
Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street.

MADE-UP MANTLEMENT at KING'S.
243, Regent-street.
Dresses and Mantlement of the latest fashion, commencing at 1 guinea.
Diagonal Wool Serge Costumes, trimmed with Velvet, 2 guineas.
Fashionably-trimmed Silk Robes, 21 guineas.
Patterns and new model post-free to King and Co., 243, Regent-st.

MANTLE DEPARTMENT at KINGS,
243, Regent-street.
Cloth Jackets and Mantles ... ... 10s. 6d. to 3 gns.
Astracan Jackets ... ... 21s. 6d. to 3 gns.
Rich Lyons Velvet ditto ... ... 29s. to 3 gns.
Rich Velvet Mantles ... ... 3 gns. to 10 gns.
Cloth Riding Habits ... ... 3 gns. to 5 gns.
Cloth Boys 10 Jackets ... ... 10s. 6d. to 21s. 6d.
Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street, W.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
Rich Black Glacé, Silkmercerie, &c., 46, 48, per yard; 10 inches wide, 10s. 6d. per yard; 11 inches wide, 12s. per yard.
Rich Velvet Silks, 47 10s. for 12 yards; worth 6s. per yard.
Rich Black Gros Grain Silks, 2s. 6d., 3s., 3s. 6d., 4s. per yard.
Rich Black Satin Silks, 2s. 6d., 3s., 3s. 6d., 4s. per yard.
Rich Double Silks, for £2 5s. the Dress of 12 yards.
Wide-width Black Gros Grain Silks, 2s. 6d. to 5s. the Dress of 12 yards.
Rich Velvets and Velvets in the new Colours, for the season.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., 76, 77, 78, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW HEATHER MIXTURES IN ABERDEEN WINCEYS.
A large stock of Aberdeen Wincey, manufactured for us, in all the fashionable Heather Mixtures, 36 in. wide, 2s. 11d. the Dress of 12 yds.; 44 in., 3s. 11½d.; very best 4s. 6d.
A large assortment of Black Aberdeen Wincey, Merinos, in all the fashionable colours, prices 6s. 6½d., 7s., 7s. 6d., 8s.
A choice selection of Checked and Striped Wincey, 7s. 6d. per dress.
A choice assortment of Bonbury, Hooper, Hookery, Trimmings, Buttons, Fringes, Gimps, &c.
Dresses, Dressmaking, Millinery supplied with taste and knowledge at trade prices.
Class 28, Queen's Head-passage, Paternoster-row.
Closed on Saturdays at 2; Thursdays, 5; and Wednesdays, 1.

GREAT CLEARANCE SALE of CRISP'S, Patterns free.
The New Autumn Cotton Poplins, all at 11½d. the Full Dress.
New Striped, Checked, and Plain Silks, all 11s. 6d. to 2 guineas.
The Black Silks, 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d., are the best ever offered.
Odd Dress Lengths of Silks, Velvets, and Velveteens, at a great reduction.
Patterns free to any part of the world.
CRISP'S, 74, Cheapside, London.

BLACK SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Black Glacés, Gros Grains, Satins, Merveilleux, Lisséés, Silk Poplins, and Velvets.
Patterns free.
Carriage paid to any part of the kingdom.
Our noted Gros Grains, of the most enduring qualities, 52s. 6d. to 3 guineas.
BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street.

GOOD and CHEAP SILKS! all the year round, at BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street.
Patterns free. Carriage paid to any part of the kingdom. Lots of goods that cannot be worn in any other climate will be given at half price.
Very best Single Button, 3s. 9d.; Lisséés, 2s. 6d.
Twelve Fancy Lisséés, 21s.; Lisséés, 2s. 6d. per yard.

SERGES, 10s. 6d.; FRENCH MERINOES, 9s. 11½d.—BAKER and CRISP'S New Serges, French Merinoes, Poplins, Cashmeres, Tweeds, Cloths, Velveteens, Velvets, Ribbons, Fancy Dress Goods, Hosiery, Gloves, Laces, Parasols, and Shawls, from 2s. 6d. to 21s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns sent post-free.
198, Regent-street, London.

FAMILY MOURNING—MADE UP, or Materials for the Making, at BAKER and CRISP'S, Cheapest, ready for instant wear, or can be purchased by the yard, Patterns free. 198, Regent-street, London.

FAMILY MOURNING WAREHOUSE.
Family Mourning Warehouse, of Regent-street.
Goods are sent from this establishment to all parts of England (with Dressmaker, if desired);
Also to Paris, Nice, and the Continent.
THE COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
Corner of all parts of the World.
The Cheapest House for Mourning Warehouse,
Regent-street, Regent-street.
N.B. In connection with the Co'oured Establishment of Oxford-st.

BLACK SILKS.—SPECIAL NOTICE.
PETER ROBINSON'S Celebrated Black Silks.
Black Silk Mercery, by Appointment, would invite the attention of Ladies and Families to the superior Make and Quality of these Celebrated Silks, and the moderate Prices at which they are sold.
Broad, useful Silks, 2s. 6d. per yard, from 20s. to 30s. the Full Dress.
Superior and most enduring Silks, 3s. 6d. per yard, from 30s. to 40s. the Full Dress.
Rich Corded Silks, 4s. 6d. per yard, from 40s. to 50s. the Full Dress.
THE COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILK DEPARTMENT.—The Skirts Made on, trimmed in the most correct taste with Velvet, Crape, or Silk, in any width or variety, and of the most reasonable prices.
At PETER ROBINSON'S Court and General Mourning Warehouse, London.

THE NEW BONNETS.
Chapeaux Bonnets, pour jeune femme;
Chapeaux Incroyables, pour jeune femme;
Chapeaux Bonnets, pour jeune femme.
At PETER ROBINSON'S Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.

THE NEW REVERSIBLE FABRICS in CRAPE.
(Patently Silk on both sides.)
The Only Perfect Reversible Fabric.
The ROYAL CASHMERE.
The Most Elegant and Durable Fabric ever produced.
Invented to meet the Requirements of the Present Materials,
by PETER ROBINSON'S
Mourning Warehouse, 256 to 262, Regent-street.

FOR FIRST or DEEP MOURNING.
Families requiring supplies of First or Deep Mourning will find it to their advantage to visit the Warehouse by appointment at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.
Address to PETER ROBINSON,
Court and General Mourning Warehouse.

NEW AUTUMN SILKS.
GRANT and GASK are now showing a large Stock of New Autumn Silks, comprising Striped and Checked Glacés, Checked Poult-de-Soies, Striped and Checked Gros Grains, Striped and Checked Satins, and all the new colours, at 2s. to 3½ guineas the Full Dress.
Patterns free. A large variety of material for travelling and seaside wear, at most moderate prices.
A large purchase of Aberdeen Linseys at 1s. 9d. per yard, just made.
ALL SUMMER STOCK at greatly REDUCED PRICES.
GRANT and GASK, 58, Oxford-street.

36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52, 54, 56, 58, 60, 62, 64, 66, 68, 70, 72, 74, 76, 78, 80, 82, 84, 86, 88, 90, 92, 94, 96, 98, 100, 102, 104, 106, 108, 110, 112, 114, 116, 118, 120, 122, 124, 126, 128, 130, 132, 134, 136, 138, 140, 142, 144, 146, 148, 150, 152, 154, 156, 158, 160, 162, 164, 166, 168, 170, 172, 174, 176, 178, 180, 182, 184, 186, 188, 190, 192, 194, 196, 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, 210, 212, 214, 216, 218, 220, 222, 224, 226, 228, 230, 232, 234, 236, 238, 240, 242, 244, 246, 248, 250, 252, 254, 256, 258, 260, 262, 264, 266, 268, 270, 272, 274, 276, 278, 280, 282, 284, 286, 288, 290, 292, 294, 296, 298, 300, 302, 304, 306, 308, 310, 312, 314, 316, 318, 320, 322, 324, 326, 328, 330, 332, 334, 336, 338, 340, 342, 344, 346, 348, 350, 352, 354, 356, 358, 360, 362, 364, 366, 368, 370, 372, 374, 376, 378, 380, 382, 384, 386, 388, 390, 392, 394, 396, 398, 400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412, 414, 416, 418, 420, 422, 424, 426, 428, 430, 432, 434, 436, 438, 440, 442, 444, 446, 448, 450, 452, 454, 456, 458, 460, 462, 464, 466, 468, 470, 472, 474, 476, 478, 480, 482, 484, 486, 488, 490, 492, 494, 496, 498, 500, 502, 504, 506, 508, 510, 512, 514, 516, 518, 520, 522, 524, 526, 528, 530, 532, 534, 536, 538, 540, 542, 544, 546, 548, 550, 552, 554, 556, 558, 560, 562, 564, 566, 568, 570, 572, 574, 576, 578, 580, 582, 584, 586, 588, 590, 592, 594, 596, 598, 600, 602, 604, 606, 608, 610, 612, 614, 616, 618, 620, 622, 624, 626, 628, 630, 632, 634, 636, 638, 640, 642, 644, 646, 648, 650, 652, 654, 656, 658, 660, 662, 664, 666, 668, 670, 672, 674, 676, 678, 680, 682, 684, 686, 688, 690, 692, 694, 696, 698, 700, 702, 704, 706, 708, 710, 712, 714, 716, 718, 720, 722, 724, 726, 728, 730, 732, 734, 736, 738, 740, 742, 744, 746, 748, 750, 752, 754, 756, 758, 760, 762, 764, 766, 768, 770, 772, 774, 776, 778, 780, 782, 784, 786, 788, 790, 792, 794, 796, 798, 800, 802, 804, 806, 808, 810, 812, 814, 816, 818, 820, 822, 824, 826, 828, 830, 832, 834, 836, 838, 840, 842, 844, 846, 848, 850, 852, 854, 856, 858, 860, 862, 864, 866, 868, 870, 872, 874, 876, 878, 880, 882, 884, 886, 888, 890, 892, 894, 896, 898, 900, 902, 904, 906, 908, 910, 912, 914, 916, 918, 920, 922, 924, 926, 928, 930, 932, 934, 936, 938, 940, 942, 944, 946, 948, 950, 952, 954, 956, 958, 960, 962, 964, 966, 968, 970, 972, 974, 976, 978, 980, 982, 984, 986, 988, 990, 992, 994, 996, 998, 1000, 1002, 1004, 1006, 1008, 1010, 1012, 1014, 1016, 1018, 1020, 1022, 1024, 1026, 1028, 1030, 1032, 1034, 1036, 1038, 1040, 1042, 1044, 1046, 1048, 1050, 1052, 1054, 1056, 1058, 1060, 1062, 1064, 1066, 1068, 1070, 1072, 1074, 1076, 1078, 1080, 1082, 1084, 1086, 1088, 1090, 1092, 1094, 1096, 1098, 1100, 1102, 1104, 1106, 1108, 1110, 1112, 1114, 1116, 1118, 1120, 1122, 1124, 1126, 1128, 1130, 1132, 1134, 1136, 1138, 1140, 1142, 1144, 1146, 1148, 1150, 1152, 1154, 1156, 1158, 1160, 1162, 1164, 1166, 1168, 1170, 1172, 1174, 1176, 1178, 1180, 1182, 1184, 1186, 1188, 1190, 1192, 1194, 1196, 1198, 1200, 1202, 1204, 1206, 1208, 1210, 1212, 1214, 1216, 1218, 1220, 1222, 1224, 1226, 1228, 1230, 1232, 1234, 1236, 1238, 1240, 1242, 1244, 1246, 1248, 1250, 1252, 1254, 1256, 1258, 1260, 1262, 1264, 1266, 1268, 1270, 1272, 1274, 1276, 1278, 1280, 1282, 1284, 1286, 1288, 1290, 1292, 1294, 1296, 1298, 1300, 1302, 1304, 1306, 1308, 1310, 1312, 1314, 1316, 1318, 1320, 1322, 1324, 1326, 1328, 1330, 1332, 1334, 1336, 1338, 1340, 1342, 1344, 1346, 1348, 1350, 1352, 1354, 1356, 1358, 1360, 1362, 1364, 1366, 1368, 1370, 1372, 1374, 1376, 1378, 1380, 1382, 1384, 1386, 1388, 1390, 1392, 1394, 1396, 1398, 1400, 1402, 1404, 1406, 1408, 1410, 1412, 1414, 1416, 1418, 1420, 1422, 1424, 1426, 1428, 1430, 1432, 1434, 1436, 1438, 1440, 1442, 1444, 1446, 1448, 1450, 1452, 1454, 1456, 1458, 1460, 1462, 1464, 1466, 1468, 1470, 1472, 1474, 1476, 1478, 1480, 1482, 1484, 1486, 1488, 1490, 1492, 1494, 1496, 1498, 1500, 1502, 1504, 1506, 1508, 1510, 1512, 1514, 1516, 1518, 1520, 1522, 1524, 1526, 1528, 1530, 1532, 1534, 1536, 1538, 1540, 1542, 1544, 1546, 1548, 1550, 1552, 1554, 1556, 1558, 1560, 1562, 1564, 1566, 1568, 1570, 1572, 1574, 1576, 1578, 1580, 1582, 1584, 1586, 1588, 1590, 1592, 1594, 1596, 1598, 1600, 1602, 1604, 1606, 1608, 1610, 1612, 1614, 1616, 1618, 1620, 1622, 1624, 1626, 1628, 1630, 1632, 1634, 1636, 1638, 1640, 1642, 1644, 1646, 1648, 1650, 1652, 1654, 1656, 1658, 1660, 1662, 1664, 1666, 1668, 1670, 1672, 1674, 1676, 1678, 1680, 1682, 1684, 1686, 1688, 1690, 1692, 1694, 1696, 1698, 1700, 1702, 1704, 1706, 1708, 1710, 1712, 1714, 1716, 1718, 1720, 1722, 1724, 1726, 1728, 1730, 1732, 1734, 1736, 1738, 1740, 1742, 1744, 1746, 1748, 1750, 1752, 1754, 1756, 1758, 1760, 1762, 1764, 1766, 1768, 1770, 1772, 1774, 1776, 1778, 1780, 1782, 1784, 1786, 1788, 1790, 1792, 1794, 1796, 1798, 1800, 1802, 1804, 1806, 1808, 1810, 1812, 1814, 1816, 1818, 1820, 1822, 1824, 1826, 1828, 1830, 1832, 1834, 1836, 1838, 1840, 1842, 1844, 1846, 1848, 1850, 1852, 1854, 1856, 1858, 1860, 1862, 1864, 1866, 1868, 1870, 1872, 1874, 1876, 1878, 1880, 1882, 1884, 1886, 1888, 1890, 1892, 1894, 1896, 1898, 1900, 1902, 1904, 1906, 1908, 1910, 1912, 1914, 1916, 1918, 1920, 1922, 1924, 1926, 1928, 1930, 1932, 1934, 1936, 1938, 1940, 1942, 1944, 1946, 1948, 1950, 1952, 1954, 1956, 1958, 1960, 1962, 1964, 1966, 1968, 1970, 1972, 1974, 1976, 1978, 1980, 1982, 1984, 1986, 1988, 1990, 1992, 1994, 1996, 1998, 2000, 2002, 2004, 2006, 2008, 2010, 2012, 2014, 2016, 2018, 2020, 2022, 2024, 2026, 2028, 2030, 2032, 2034, 2036, 2038, 2040, 2042, 2044, 2046, 2048, 2050, 2052, 2054, 2056, 2058, 2060, 2062, 2064, 2066, 2068, 2070, 2072, 2074, 2076, 2078, 2080, 2082, 2084, 2086, 2088, 2090, 2092, 2094, 2096, 2098, 2100, 2102, 2104, 2106, 2108, 2110, 2112, 2114, 2116, 2118, 2120, 2122, 2124, 2126, 2128, 2130, 2132, 2134, 2136, 2138, 2140, 2142, 2144, 2146, 2148, 2150, 2152, 2154, 2156, 2158, 2160, 2162, 2164, 2166, 2168, 2170, 2172, 2174, 2176, 2178, 2180, 2182, 2184, 2186, 2188, 2190, 2192, 2194, 2196, 2198, 2200, 2202, 2204, 2206, 2208, 2210, 2212, 2214, 2216, 2218, 2220, 2222, 2224, 2226, 2228, 2230, 2232, 2234, 2236, 2238, 2240, 2242, 2244, 2246, 2248, 2250, 2252, 2254, 2256, 2258, 2260, 2262, 2264, 2266, 2268, 2270, 2272, 2274, 2276, 2278, 2280, 2282, 2284, 2286, 2288, 2290, 2292, 2294, 2296, 2298, 2300, 2302, 2304, 2306, 2308, 2310, 2312, 2314, 2316, 2318, 2320, 2322, 2324, 2326, 2328, 2330, 2332, 2334, 2336, 2338, 2340, 2342, 2344, 2346, 2348, 2350, 2352, 2354, 2356, 2358, 2360, 2362, 2364, 2366, 2368, 2370, 2372, 2374, 2376, 2378, 2380, 2382, 2384, 2386, 2388, 2390, 2392, 2394, 2396, 2398, 2400, 2402, 2404, 2406, 2408, 2410, 2412, 2414, 2416, 2418, 2420, 2422, 2424, 2426, 2428, 2430, 2432, 2434, 2436, 2438, 2440, 2442, 2444, 2446, 2448, 2450, 2452, 2454, 2456, 2458, 2460, 2462, 2464, 2466, 2468, 2470, 2472, 2474, 2476, 2478, 2480, 2482, 2484, 2486, 2488, 2490, 2492, 2494, 2496, 2498, 2500, 2502, 2504, 2506, 2508, 2510, 2512, 2514, 2516, 2518, 2520, 2522, 2524, 2526, 2528, 2530, 2532, 2534, 2536, 2538, 2540, 2542, 2544, 2546, 2548, 2550, 2552, 2554, 2556, 2558, 2560, 2562, 2564, 2566, 2568, 2570, 2572, 2574, 2576, 2578, 2580, 2582, 2584, 2586, 2588, 2590, 2592, 2594, 2596, 2598, 2600, 2602, 2604, 2606, 2608, 2610, 2612, 2614, 2616, 2618, 2620, 2622, 2624, 2626, 2628, 2630, 2632, 2634, 2636, 2638, 2640, 2642, 2644, 2646, 2648, 2650, 2652, 2654, 2656, 2658, 2660, 2662, 2664, 2666, 2668, 2670, 2672, 2674, 2676, 2678, 2680, 2682, 2684, 2686, 2688, 2690, 2692, 2694, 2696, 2698, 2700, 2702, 2704, 2706, 2708, 2710, 2712, 2714, 2716, 2718, 2720, 2722, 2724, 2726, 2728, 2730, 2732, 2734, 2736, 2738, 2740, 2742, 2744, 2746, 2748, 2750, 2752, 2754, 2756, 2758, 2760, 2762, 2764, 2766, 2768, 2770, 2772, 2774, 2776, 2778, 2780, 2782, 2784, 2786, 2788, 2790, 2792, 2794, 2796, 2798, 2800, 2802, 2804, 2806, 2808, 2810, 2812, 2814, 2816, 2818, 2820, 2822, 2824, 2826, 2828, 2830, 2832, 2834, 2836, 2838, 2840, 2842, 2844, 2846, 2848, 2850, 2852, 2854, 2856, 2858, 2860, 2862, 2864, 2866

NEW MUSIC.

NEW WALTZ BY D'ALBERT.

HOME, SWEET HOME. New Waltz, by CHARLES D'ALBERT, on the favourite melody of "Home, Sweet Home." Played by Coote's Concerts. Price 4s. Illustrated. Free by post for half price—Stamps.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MAY WALTZ. By ALFRED MELLON. Performed at his concerts at Covent Garden Theatre with great success. Price 4s. Free by post for half price.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grenadier Guards. Nightly encored at Mellon's Concerts. Mr. Godfrey's new waltz, "Mabel," produces a trial in popularity for "Guards' Waltz," so universally admired.—"Times, Aug. 8. "Mabel" will take her to rival, if not to excel, the admired "Guards' Waltz in popularity."—Daily Telegraph, Aug. 8. Price 4s., solo or duet. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Band, 2s. 6d.; Military Band, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

Just published,

MABEL. A Song, written by Henry Farnie, adapted to the melody of "The Mabel Waltz," by D. GODFREY. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY, specially arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU à L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "Africaine," performed every evening at Mellon's Concerts. Arranged for Pianoforte, Harmonium, or Organ, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU à L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "Africaine," performed every evening at Mellon's Concerts, Royal Italian Opera, may be had for the Pianoforte. By EDMUND FALCK. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. Peter's at Rome on Christmas and Easter Days, arranged for the Pianoforte by T. VITALI. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WEARIN' O' THE GREEN.—The only Correct Edition of Words and Music, as sung by Mr. Rouclault in the drama of "Arrah-na-Pogue." Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE MUSIC.—A new Edition of this justly popular music is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," in-cluding the Soldiers' Chorus, Waltz, Church Scene, Duet, and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, from the easiest to the cheapest and best Voice extant. Price, post-free, one-third the published price. 6d. each book.
BOOSEY and Co., 28, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. Boosey's Favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Illustrated. 4s. net.
BOOSEY and Co., 28, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BARNEY O'HEA. Lover's favourite Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. net.
BOOSEY and Co., 28, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
MARTHA. Fantasia for the Pianoforte. Price 4s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO, consisting of opening and concluding voluntaries in the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of Village Choirs. By HENRY SMART. Each number contains three pieces in twelve favourite keys, with pedal obligato, arranged expressly with pedal obligatos. Nos. 1 to 13 are now ready, price 1s. each. Each number contains three pieces in twelve favourite keys, with pedal obligato, arranged expressly with pedal obligatos. Nos. 1 to 13 are now ready, price 1s. each. A thematic list of contents may be had on application.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Violin, and Flute. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the "Guards' Waltz," by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin, and Flute, each 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged Quadrilles, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 3s. each.
No. 1. The Guards' Waltz. No. 4. The Mabel Quadrille.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz. No. 5. The Guards' Quadrille.
No. 3. The Orpheus Waltz. No. 6. The Orpheus Quadrille.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE of Vocal and Pianoforte Music, containing Standard Part-Song, No. 36, or Three for 3s. 6d.
No. 1. Standard Songs (Twenty-Four Selections), 1s.
No. 2. Choice Standard Songs (Fifth Selection), 1s.
No. 3. Christy Minstrel Songs (Fourth Selection), 1s.
No. 4. Thirty Standard Songs (Sixth Selection), 1s.
No. 5. Twenty Songs by Balfe, &c., 1s.
No. 6. Twenty Songs for the Christian Seasons, for Domestic Use, 1s.
No. 7. 100 Welsh and English Melodies for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 8. 150 Scotch Melodies, arranged for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 9. 100 Irish Melodies, arranged for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 10. Fifty Operatic Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 11. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices, 1s.
No. 12. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices, 1s.
No. 13. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices, 1s.
No. 14. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices, 1s.
No. 15. Twelve Popular Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices, 1s.
No. 16. Twelve Popular Duets, for Soprano and Tenor, 1s.
No. 17. Twelve Popular Duets for Soprano and Tenor, 1s.
No. 18. Nine Pianoforte Pieces, by Arthur Goring Thomas, 1s.
No. 19. Twelve Pianoforte Pieces, by Arthur Goring Thomas, 1s.
No. 20. Favourite Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, by Charles Coote, 1s.
No. 21. Twelve Pianoforte Duets, by Vincent Wallace, 1s.
No. 22. Nine Pianoforte Pieces, by Frederick Lindahl, 1s.
No. 23. Twelve Sacred Duets, for Soprano and Contralto Voices, 1s.
No. 24. Fifty Popular Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, 1s.
No. 25. Fifty Songs by C. Gounod, Julius Benedict, &c., 1s.
No. 26. Book of Quadrilles by C. D'Albert, &c., complete, 1s.
No. 27. Twelve Songs by Handel, 1s.
No. 28. Twelve Sacred Songs by Popular Composers, 1s.
No. 29. Twelve Pianoforte Pieces, by Ludwig van Beethoven, 1s.
No. 30. Twelve Songs by Mozart, 1s.
No. 31. Ten Songs by the Hon. Mrs. Norton, 1s.
No. 32. Twelve Songs by Franz Schubert, 1s.
N.B.—Each number of the Magazine forms a Pianoforte Accompaniment.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE WALTZ of the SEASON.—GUNGL'S GALATEE LIEDER WALTZ. Danced by Duprez, Price, solo, 4s.; Duet, 4s.
A. HAMMOND and CO. (Publishers), 7, Vigo-street, Regent-street.

E. PAUER'S New Compositions—Galop (Impromptu), Mrs Rocksavage, 3s. 6d.; Serenade, in Miss A. Greenwood's Album, 3s.
London: D. MILLS and SONS (Music Library), 140, New Bond-street.

HARVEY'S "ABERGELDIE." Brilliant Fantasia on Scotch Melodies, performed daily by Willis Pupils. Price 3s. Free for Stamps, from D'ARCI and Co., 19, Bathbone-place, Oxford-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music is published by BOOSEY and CO., 28, New-bond-street. The complete Opera may be had, with Italian or French words, price 10s. net per-free. The pianoforte arrangements are by Brinley Richards, Benedict, Richards, Rend Favarger, Mirco, Osborne, Kuhe, Wallace, Goria, Lindahl, Oliver, Goldberg, and Hutchcroft.—BOOSEY and CO., 28, New-bond-street.

COOTE'S CLARIBEL WALTZ, performed with unprecedented success at Mr. Alfred Mellon's Concerts. Price 4s. Duet, 4s. Septet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s. 6d.
"Equal to anything of the kind recently produced in a waltz form."—Morning Post, Aug. 8. "Mr. Coote's waltz has already won the favour of the ballroom, and will be duly known to the musical world under the pseudonym which has given a title to the waltz. Claribel's Waltz is one of the most graceful of Mr. Coote's efforts in the most pleasing manner."—Daily Telegraph, Aug. 8.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, and all Musicsellers.

CUSHA. By DOLORES, Author of "The Gipsy Countess." Price 3s.
BRINLEY RICHARDS'S I CANNOT BE HIND THE OLD SCENES. An arrangement for the Pianoforte of Claribel's beautiful song. Price 3s. net.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

JANET'S CHOICE WALTZ. A New Edition of this popular Waltz is just published, beautifully illustrated in Colours. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. This exquisite song is equally effective in the form of a Duet, as "The Gondolier" and "The Fisher's Song" in the Opera of "Rose."
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. This exquisite song, performed at all Mr. Mellon's Promenade Concerts, Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, arranged as a Reverie for Pianoforte, 3s. 6d.; and for the Harmonium, 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S CHURCH SERVICES, printed in score, from the largest, to the smallest paper, price 8d. Separate Parts—
1. JACKSON, in F.
2. JACKSON, in D.
3. BOYCE and ARNOLD.
4. BOYCE, in A.
5. BEVAN, in E.
The "Te Deum" and other movements, price One Penny and Twopence each.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS. Boosey's Cheap and Best Edition of the six books complete, price 10s. net.

THE CHARLIST, No. 3, Price 1s., contains Verdi's Twelve Original Pianoforte Songs by Arnoldi, Gounod's Twelve Sacred Songs by Arnoldi, 40 Old English words. The Charlist, Part 4, price 1s., contains Twelve Welsh Melodies, harmonised for the Pianoforte, and Twelve English words. The above complete in 2 vols., 2s. 6d. each. Also, Part 1, price 1s., Twelve Original Songs by GOUNOD and CO.'S New Choral Publications.—Any number can be had singly by post, post-free, from Holles-street, London.

BOOSEY'S PART-SONG MISCELLANY, for Soprano, Contralto, Tenor, and Bass Voices, Nos. 1 to 36, by Macfarren, Goodrich, J. L. Hatton, Henry Smart, J. Barnby, Benedict, Balfe, Wallace, Glover, Lindahl, Oliver, &c., price 3d. each, or three numbers, 9d., each—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TO PROPRIETORS OF SCHOOLS.—A Catalogue of Music, suitable for teaching purposes, is just published by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, and will be sent post-free to proprietors of schools, professors, &c., on receipt of a stamped address.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS. BOOSEY and CO.'S 21st SHILLING EDITION.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER. BOOSEY and CO.'S NEW SHILLING EDITION.

WELY'S OFFERTOIRES for the ORGAN, in Four Books, each containing Six Pieces, by the Rev. Sir FREDERICK ARTHUR GORE OUSELEY, Bart. Music for the present season; to be had post-free, on application to BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MUSIC FOR HARMONIUM.—BOOSEY'S 28 (Short Voluntaries to the great Masters, 2s. 6d.; Boosey's Andante and Allegretto by Kreutzer, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Spohr, Weber, Handel, Mendelssohn, Rossini, Meyerbeer, Auber, Halévy, Herold, Mercadante, Donizetti, Bellini, Verdi, Gounod, &c., 2s. 6d. Mendelssohn's 12 Songs without Words, 3s. 6d. "The Harmonium Treasury," containing 100 Pieces, 5s. "The Harmonium Companion," containing 100 Pieces, 5s. 6d. All in cloth vols., gilt. Order BOOSEY Edition; 28, Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, with post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (record works compiled).
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, W.

RIMBAULT'S NEW AND BEAUTIFUL SONG.
THE BOY I LOVE. By E. F. RIMBAULT. Written by Rosalind. Price 3s. Likely to become even more popular than that charming song, "Sweet Lass of Richmond Hill."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.
OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! Price 3s. 6d. Ballad. Sung every Evening at St. James's Hall by the artistes of Mr. Mellon's Promenade Concerts. Also, Duet, 4s.; with violoncello obbligato, 4s.; Septet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s. 6d.; Band, 2s. 6d. The greatest song ever composed, both words and music.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A FIRST-RATE SENTIMENT.
PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE. Price 3s. Sung by the Christy Minstrels at St. James's Hall.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE SMILES OF FLEETING HOURS. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves at the Monday Popular Concerts, and encored. Price 3s. "This is a fine, flowing, but reminiscent melody, but not illogical."—Review. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

THE CELEBRATED FEDERAL GLORIOUS SONG.
JOHN BROWN'S BODY LIES A-MOULDERING IN THE GRAVE. Words and music by a Southern Soldier now traveling on. Price 3s. 6d.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EIGHTEEN HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE.
COME, SING TO ME AGAIN; I have heard sweet music wooing. Price 3s. 6d. "This is gone." Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

JUST OUT.
EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY, IS ONE by F. MACLEAN. Price 3s. Also the whole of his celebrated songs now published by
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CREATES ROARS OF LAUGHTER.
JOLLY CAPTAIN BRIGHT WILL BE AGAIN! Price 3s. 6d. Doubly encored every night.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SCHOOL OF LONDON.
COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA LANCERS, &c. On the popular Airs of the day. Dresden's perfect forms for Mellon's Concerts.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BOB-O-LINK POLKA. Arranged by COOTE (price 3s.) With the first-rate Played at Mellon's Concerts.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE,
COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE, 4s., is the favourite of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.
COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Constituted the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

WAITER! YES, SIR! or THE THREE O'CLOCK GALOP. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 3s. With a Separate Chorus.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ANOTHER MUSICAL ATTRACTION.
COOTE'S CHORUS GALOP, price 3s., with Illustrations of the Gaols.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

GREAT HIT.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT MELLON'S CONCERTS.
COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE, prices 4s., rollensated nightly.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A GENUINE SUCCESS.—Title-panic From.
CASTLE GIRL. Comic Opera. Composed by G. S. ALLEN. Now being played at the New Royalty. Full Score, 4s. Separate Parts, 2s. each.
The Rose said to Lily (song by Miss Gallon) ... 3s. 6d.
The Lovers' Quarrel ... ... 3s. 6d.
The greatest hit since their marriage (song by Mr. Bishop) ... 3s. 6d.
All I pleased (encore song by Mr. Elliot Galer) ... ... 3s. 6d.
Castle Girl Quadrilles (on the popular melodies), 3s. 6d. each.
HUTCHINGS and CO., 24, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.

THE WEDDING OF THE ROSE. The original version of this popular Song. Post-free for sixteen stamps. Also, "Sweet Rose Mary," Song. By T. BROWNE. Played at Mellon's. Post-free for sixteen stamps.
HUTCHINGS and CO., 24, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.

ARRAH-NA-POGUE QUADRILLE, by JULLIEN. Performed at his Concerts. Arrah-na-Pogue Polka, by Jullien. All Illustrated.
METZLER and CO., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

TWO NEW SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.
A LOST CHORD. THREE ROSES. Price 3s. each.
METZLER and CO., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

FULL SPEED! GALOP. By BENEDICT. Performed at Her Majesty's Concerts, with the greatest success. Price 3s. Illustrated in Colours.
METZLER and CO., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Now ready, price 3s.,
THE CELESTIAL GALOP. By J. CASSIDY. With Portrait of the great "Chung." Also, Illustrated Polka, by Cassidy. Price 3s. each.
METZLER and CO., 37, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SYDNEY SMITH'S VALSE DE FASCINATION. Just published. One of the most brilliant and fascinating of this popular composer's popular compositions. Price 4s.—ARGHOUN and PARRY, 19, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S CHANT DES OISEAUX. Just published. One of the most charming of Sydney Smith's pieces, and one of the most delightful of "Fairy Whispers." The style of the well-known "Bird Duet." Price 4s.—ARGHOUN and PARRY, 19, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S MAYPOLE DANCE. Just published. Original and thoroughly characteristic piece. Exceedingly effective. Price 4s.
ARGHOUN and PARRY, 19, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S OBERON. Just published. Fantasia on the bet melodies in the beautiful opera. An immensely successful piece. Price 4s.
ARGHOUN and PARRY, 19, Hanover-square.

KUHE'S EXTRAVAGANZA for the PIANOFORTE will be published early next week, and may be had of all Musicsellers. Price 4s. ARGHOUN and PARRY, 19, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP. 3s. On the universal "Stop, Stop! here we are again." The most successful Galop ever published. Played everywhere. Immensely Illustrated. May be had of every music-seller.—ARGHOUN and PARRY, 19, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP. 3s. On the universal "Stop, Stop! here we are again." Arranged for Orchestra. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere. Encored everywhere. May be had of every music-seller.—ARGHOUN and PARRY, 19, Hanover-square.

ANTOINE COURTOIS'S CELEBRATED CORNET-A-PISTONS. Any note may be had from C below the line to C in alt. Sold by ANTOINE CHAPPELL, 49, New Bond-street, of whom price-lists may be obtained.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE GALLERY.

SECONDHAND BROADWOOD COTTAGES. SECONDHAND BROADWOOD COTTAGES. SECONDHAND WALNUT COTTAGES. SECONDHAND WALNUT COTTAGES. SECONDHAND SMALL GRANDS.—Secondhand Broadwood Grand Pianofortes, from 30 gs. upwards.—Secondhand Broadwood Grand Pianofortes, from 30 gs. upwards.—Secondhand Broadwood Grand Pianofortes, from 30 gs. upwards.—Secondhand Broadwood Grand Pianofortes, from 30 gs. upwards.—Secondhand Collard Grand Pianofortes, in rosewood cases; secondhand Collard Grand Pianofortes, in rosewood cases; secondhand Collard Grand Pianofortes, in rosewood cases; secondhand Collard Grand Pianofortes, in rosewood cases.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM HARMONIUM, the best that has been made, either 25 guineas; other varieties at 12 and 18 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues may be had gratis and post-free.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two fourboards, and in oak case, elegantly carved, is the most wonderful thing to all other cheap Harmoniums ever produced in any country.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, all of one model, and nearly as good as new, in handsomely-carved cases, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION HARMONIUM, with the Percussion Stop, Tremolo, Forte Stop, and Venetian swell, worked by the knee, is the most effective and delightful instrument for small rooms, and may be always seen at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, check action, full compass, and all the latest improvements, is the most wonderful piano ever made at the price, and may be seen at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

BOAKWOOD, COLLARD, and BRARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the recent inventions and improvements, may be obtained only of CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (Pianoforte Model), the Prize Medal was awarded. A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and all the latest improvements, manufactured by the most celebrated makers in Paris, to be had at less cost than the ordinary secondhand Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 52 and 57 guineas. A great variety. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To maintain preferring the best English manufacture, CHAPPELL and CO. have had pianofortes built in the most perfectly satisfactory manner, and they will be found the most wonderful instrument at the above makers, and therefore urge on purchasers to apply at where the more magnificent assortment of pianofortes in every variety of style and price, with full trial, similar in every respect to other instruments at 60 guineas, price 50 guineas in walnut, 45 guineas.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, of the best manufacture, from 7 to 60 guineas. At BOOSEY and CO.'S, Holles-street.

THE MINIATURE PIANOFORTE, 7 octaves, 20 guineas. At BOOSEY and CO.'S, Holles-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest improvements, warranted for ten climates and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, 5s.
LACHENAL and CHEEK, 20, New Bond-street.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS, 20, Cornet, Drums, Bugles, Trombones, &c., in use in all parts of the kingdom, giving universal satisfaction. Butler's Artist Model, the easiest blown yet produced, with double water key, in case, 25 5s. Other Cornets, from 8s.—Manufactory, Haymarket, Leicester. Price-lists free by post on application.

MUSICAL BOX DEPÔT for the Sale of PIGEAU'S celebrated Musical Boxes (Patented), from 8s to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large assortment of Tunes, Airs, Overtures, &c., now served. All kinds repaired, and prices moderate.

JULLIEN'S NOTICE OF REMOVAL. J. A. HAMMOND and CO. (late Jullien's), Musicsellers, &c., beg to announce their removal from 214, Regent-street, to more extensive premises at No. 7, Vigo-street (four doors from Regent-street).

RENÉ FAVARGER and FRANK MORI, Old Clothes in Exchange for Pianofortes, Records Chorus, Grand Orchestra, Concertina, Guitar, &c., 56, Leicester-square, Kensington Parkroad, W.; and 36, Somerset-street, Portman-square, W.

MINERALOGY.—KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON.—Professor TENNANT, F.G.S., will commence a COURSE of LECTURES, with a view to facilitate the study of GEOLOGY, at the Museum of Practical Geology, Jermyn-street, on Tuesday, October 10, at Three o'clock, and will be continued on each succeeding Wednesday and Friday, at the same hour.—Fee for the Course, £1 1s. Tickets may be obtained at the Museum of Practical Geology and Mines, between the hours of seven evenings, from 6 to 8. Those begin Oct. 11, and will be continued on each succeeding Wednesday and Friday.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 in case of death, or £6 per week while laid up by injury, insured by an annual payment of £3 3s. or any sum between £1 and £100 in the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, 64, Cornhill; West-End Branch, 3, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall.

QUADRANT EXCHANGE BANK, 96, Regent-street, W.
Noblemen's, officers', and other bills discounted immediately.
WILLIAM WILLIAMS, Manager.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, Brompton, S.W. Supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Patients admitted by governors' recommendations. Required in urgent cases by the committee, this charity
PHILIP ROSE, Hon. Sec.
Office, No. 4, Pall-mall East.

THE CONSERVATIVE LAND SOCIETY. The Fourteenth Year.—Prospectus sent free of charge to any applicant.—Offices, 33, Moorgate-street, City, London.
By order, ALGERNON H. BARKER, Secretary.
Secretary, 33, Moorgate-street, Strand, London, W.C.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at MECHI and BOBINSON'S, 72, Cornhill, Nineteen Grecian Suites for the Boudoir, Dressing, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and ornamental articles, at moderate prices.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING CASES is made on account of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Stereoscope Cases, Dressing-Cases, Inkstands, Envelope Cases, and Writing-Desks.
106, Regent-street.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING BAGS.—Ladies' Dressing-Cases, Gentlemen's Dressing-Cases, Carriage Bags, Reticules, Level Cases, Desk Cases, Cabin Trunks, Portmanteaus, Portfolios, &c.
106, Regent-street.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in cloth, velvet, and silk, with gilt clasps, for containing 12, 24, and 50 portraits.—At RODRIGUES', 106, Regent-street.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art. Note-paper and Envelopes, with Crest, Monogram, and Address, printed in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W

A VISITING-CARD PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 Cards printed, for 4s. Arms, Crests, and Monograms engraved on Steel Dies or Plates. Initials and Address Plates, with Cards, for Albums or Hunting Boxes.—At HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, and 9 and 10, Regent-street, beg to call the Public's attention to their Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements, jewelled throughout, and warranted. Each watch being examined by the Astronomical Clock.
PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled in 4 holes ... £4 14 6
Ditto, jewelled in 8 holes, with extra strong movement ... 5 15 6
Ditto, jewelled in 14 holes 8 8 0
GOLD WATCHES—SIDE FOR LADIES
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled in 8 holes ... 11 11 0
Ditto, jewelled in 14 holes 14 14 0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes ... 16 16 0
Ditto, with extra jewelling, and extra fine movement ... 21 0 0
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, compensated, and adjusted in six holes, and gold hunter 25 10 0
A. B. SAVORY and SONS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, and 9 and 10, Regent-street.
List of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

TRAVELLING and DRESSING BAGS

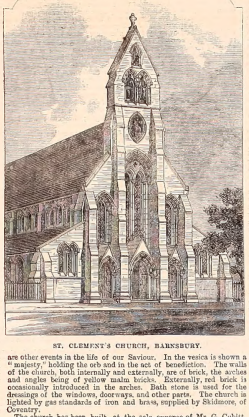
MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S TRAVELLING and DRESSING BAGS are fitted with the most perfected sterling and every article of luxury and convenience of the toilet.

Dressing and Travelling Bags.	Pouch Bags.	Round Bags.	Square Bags.
Lady's Travelling Bag ...	£1 10 0	£2 15 0	£3 5 0
Ditto, with Writing Case ...	2 0 0	3 0 0	3 10 0
Gentleman's Travelling Bag ...	3 3 0	3 5 0	3 10 0
Ditto, with Writing Case ...	...	4 5 0	4 15 0
Dressing Case ...	...	4 15 0	5 5 0
Ditto ...	...	5 5 0	5 15 0

Registered Cabinet Travelling-bag, fitted in the most complete manner.
The prices of Dressing-cases only are not required by customers, but the contents.
Lady's Work Cases ... £1 1 0 | £1 10 0 | £2 10 0 | £3 0 0
Ditto Dressing Cases ... 1 5 0 | 1 15 0 | 3 5 0 | 4 0 0
Gentleman's Dressing Case (best quality), and more complete ... 1 15 0 | 2 5 0 | 3 0 0 | 5 0 0
Ditto (only 77 and 78, Oxford-street); and 71 and 72, Cornhill, Manufactory, Queen's Cutlery Works, Hollis-street, Sheffield.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Coloured post-free.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen and Royal Family, 453, West Strand, two doors from Trafalgar-square, S.W.

GARDNERS' LAMPS and CHANDELIERS, Moderator and Paraffin Table Lamps.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen and Royal Family, 453, West Strand, two doors from Trafalgar-square, S.W.



GARDNERS' SECOND-HAND FURNITURE, New and Second-hand, 150, Oxford-street, has always large assortment of Second-hand Furniture of serviceable description, at very much lower prices. Furniture purchased or exchanged.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, W. London: No. 59, Bold-street, Liverpool; celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. Prospectus, with testimonials, post-free on application. Instructions gratuitously given to purchasers at the Regent-street and Liverpool Facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, bind, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider; are very easily managed, and are unlike to derangement. One hundred thousand in use. Prospectus, with testimonials, post-free on application. Instructions gratuitously given to purchasers at the Regent-street and Liverpool Facility. Prospectus acknowledge of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Mary-le-Strand, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE E. LOCKHART, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1865.

ST. CLEMENT'S CHURCH, BARNSBURY.

THE new Church of St. Clement, Barnsbury, which has lately been consecrated by the Bishop of London, will accommodate nearly 1000 persons. The plan consists of nave and aisles, chancel, and chancel-aisles, vestry, north porch, and organ-chamber. The length of the nave is 95 ft. by 30 ft. wide, that of the chancel 37 ft. by 27 ft. wide, and the total clear width between the walls is 60 ft. The design of the west front will be understood by reference to our View. The bell-turret rises to a height of 100 ft., and in the niche below this is a sitting figure of the patron saint, who is represented holding a palm-branch in one hand as an emblem of martyrdom, while the other holds a book of the Gospels. By his side is an anchor, the instrument of his martyrdom. The east end of the church has three lancet windows, with a vesica window over. Between the windows are canopies intended to receive figures of St. Peter and St. Paul, with whom St. Clement laboured. The lancet windows just mentioned are filled with stained glass, by Clayton and Bell, the principal subjects being the Nativity, the Crucifixion, and the Resurrection. The smaller subjects are other events in the life of our Saviour. In the vesica is shown a "majesty," holding the orb and in the act of benediction. The walls of the church, both internally and externally, are of brick, the arches and angles being of yellow malm bricks. Externally, red brick is occasionally introduced in the arches. Bath stone is used for the dressings of the windows, doorways, and other parts. The church is lighted by gas standards of iron and brass, supplied by Skidmore, of Coventry.

ST. CLEMENT'S CHURCH, BARNSBURY.

The church has been built, at the sole expense of Mr. G. Cubitt, M.P., from the designs of Mr. Gilbert Scott. The contract was taken by Messrs. Dove Brothers for £7000; but this sum was exclusive of the cost of the bells, organ, painted glass, warming and lighting, with a few other matters.

STATUE OF THE GAULISH CHIEFTAIN VERCINGETORIX. SEE PAGE 348.

HARVEST-HOME AT BYWELL, NORTHUMBERLAND.

THE pleasant and rational custom of holding a village festival to accompany the due thanksgiving service in the parish church on the completion of harvest is spreading widely, of late years, through the southern and western counties of England. We are glad to find that it has likewise extended so far north as the banks of the Tyne; and the picturesque little village of Bywell, about twelve miles from Newcastle, was the scene of such a seasonable entertainment on Michaelmas Day. This village is distinguished by possessing the ruins of an old baronial castle in its neighbourhood, and two parish churches, situated very close to each other, on the village green. The foundation of these buildings is the subject of a curious legend, which cannot be told here, but ought to be learned by personal inquiry on the spot. Whatever ancient rivalries may have once existed between the adjacent hamlets of Bywell St. Peter's and Bywell St. Andrew's, it seems that they form a peaceful and friendly community at the present time, as the parishioners of both have joined together happily in the celebration of their harvest-home. The arrangements were made, as in the two previous years, by a local committee, whose honorary secretary is the Rev. T. Thornton, Curate of Bywell St. Peter's, while the proprietors of Hindley Hall and Stocksfield Hall, mansions of the neighbouring gentry, bestowed their patronage on the undertaking. Above 1200 tickets were sold, being double the number of last year, since the attractions of the festival had become notorious, and brought many visitors to the place. Soon after twelve o'clock a procession, with a band of music, set out from the school-house, (which is shown in our illustration) and marched to St. Peter's Church, where Divine worship was performed, and a collection was made "to provide a fund for the purpose of assisting sick harvest labourers, or members of their families, in going to the sea or to the wells for change of air in case of need." After the Church service all went in procession, as before, to the field where the dances and games were to take place, beginning with a country dance to the tune of "Corn Rigs," the men first being a reel to the tune of "Speed the Plough." Running-races, hurdle-races, and leaping-matches, for such prizes as a pig, a spade, a hand-saw, a shirt, a waistcoat, a pair of boots, a tenpot, and a pair of blankets, excited the valour and agility of the young men of the parish; there was also a race of pumpkin sacks, the prize for which, given by Mr. F. Ayton, was an elegant parallel lamp. In the drawing-room of Mr. Ayton, at the close of the day's substantial tea, or what is called in the north "a thick tea," provided for the visiting company in a spacious marquee erected for the occasion, this cheerful meal was followed by a concert of vocal and instrumental music, with which the day's festivities were brought to a close about nine o'clock.

NEW CHAPEL AT WESTMINSTER.—SEE PAGE 335.

HARVEST-HOME AT BYWELL, NORTHUMBERLAND.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

PENN'S MARINE ENGINE FACTORY AT GREENWICH.

We published, in the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS of Oct. 15, 1864, a series of illustrations of the great locomotive manufactory of Messrs. Stephenson, at Newcastle. This celebrated establishment, famous among the other great workshops of England, not because it was the largest or most important, but because it was the first engaged associated with the early history of the locomotive engine and the introduction of the railway system, and to which many orders were selected for the subject of our present illustrations the great manufactory of Messrs. Penn, an one which will serve exemplify the progress of the construction of marine engines, which has gone on so rapidly that we believe there is now living a lady who owes her very existence in consequence of her husband having first suggested the placing a steamengine in a boat to move its paddle-wheels. This was in the year 1788, when the steam-engine was called a fire-engine, had no rotatory motion, and was only used for pumping water out of mines. An engineer named Symington was employed by the Duke of Bridgewater. The experiment was tried, and was considered exceedingly successful; and the first trials were made on a canal near Edinburgh, on the property of Lake of Dalswinton. It must be remembered that since, as we have remarked, the steam-engine of that day had no rotatory motion, Symington had consequently to tax his ingenuity to convert the reciprocating motion of the engine into a circular one, to which he attached the paddles; and this he contrived to do in a most ingenious manner, though by complicated means as compared with the present system. If now we consider the present state of steam navigation, the number of magnificent vessels propelled by steam which traverse all the waters of the world, and the mighty navies that are now constructed and carrying enormous armaments, yet travelling with the greatest speed, we must look back with curious interest upon the first experiments which were the first examples of their kind. They were lost for a time, but have been recovered by Mr. Bramah Woolcott, of Bedford Square, and are now placed in that interesting collection of mechanical antiquities, the Patent Museum at Kensington, where they are preserved as nearly as possible to their original state by Mr. John Penn. However successful was the experiment at Dalswinton, as we have before referred, nothing more was done till the year 1803, when a vessel called the Charlotte Dundas, fitted with engines by Symington, worked most successfully upon the Forth and Clyde Canal. This was the first perfect and complete that she might have been at work at this day had she been kept in repair. She was built with a single paddle-wheel on both sides of the patten, working a connecting rod and crank, and the union of the cranks to the axis of the wheel. This was Watt's ingenious contrivance was Symington's patent. Perfect as this little vessel was, she failed to attract the attention of Fulton, the American engineer. He saw at a glance what life such a power would give to navigation, and as he had once ordered an engine at Soho, and built a boat, so that the Americans had steam-vessels, a British invention, before the people at home had them on our rivers; for the first passenger steam-boat did not start here until 1812. This was Bell's Comet; and it is a remarkable fact, which illustrates the slow progress of steam navigation better than anything else, that the identical engine which propelled the first passenger steam-boat on the Clyde was put up in the Patent Museum at Kensington by the very man who made it and fitted it into Bell's boat, Mr. Woolcott, in 1862, when that date steam navigation has progressed rapidly indeed.

About the year 1826 steam-ship building was introduced on the Thames by Thomas Ditchburn, of Blackwall, in partnership with Mr. C. Mare. Newly-constructed vessels were launched by them with very small boats to ply between the bridges in London, and from London to Greenwich and Woolwich. These vessels were fitted with engines by John Penn, the father of the present head of the establishment at Greenwich, who, thirty years before, had started as a millwright and machinist on the same spot where now stands the extensive marine building works in the world. The engines placed in these little boats were also the smallest ever made, and were of the most delicate workmanship, and so light and compact that they excited the greatest interest, for the marine engines previously in use were heavy, and the class called side-lever engines, very excellent, but ponderous and large. Penn's oscillating engine was constructed upon the plan likewise in such matters and the oscillating principle would only do for small engines, and they were, in fact, the first engines when they heard that John Penn was actually constructing a pair of oscillating engines of 200-horse power for H.M.S. Blue Jacket. These large engines turned out a great success, for in half the space, with half the weight, they were equal in power to the old side-lever engines. This success led to still greater efforts, and the magnificent end engines of 600-horse power were built for H.M.S. Sphynx. Such great advancing been made by the engineers, that these 600-horse weights were not behindhand, and sought to obtain speed. This was done by the remarkable vessel the Ant, built by Mr. Lang. She was the lightest rate of speed hitherto obtained is by the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with engines, by Penn, of 1200-horse power. In these days are now constructing oscillating engines of 800-horse power for a yacht built for the Pacha of Egypt. At is expected to attain the speed of twenty-one or twenty-two miles an hour.

Another great event in the history of steam navigation was the introduction of the screw propeller. The first screw introduced into the Royal Navy was applied to her Majesty's yacht the Fairy, built by Ditchburn about twenty-two years since, and fitted with engines by Penn. So excellently well was the experiment carried out by both shipbuilder and engineer, that this vessel, with the boat has been a constant use from that time until now, and still ranks as one of the best examples of that system of propulsion.

Steam-engines and propellers having become necessary to every vessel of war, Messrs. Penn were engaged in constructing engines and becoming the difficulties necessitated by the requirements of war ships; for greater compactness was necessary to enable the engines to be placed below the water-line and out of the way of cannon-shot. These requirements led Messrs. Penn to design an entirely new class of engines, which they called trunk-engines, and which were specially adapted to drive the screw propeller. The first of this class was fitted to the Encounter and Acropast frigates, of 1400-horse power. The success of these engines led to innumerable orders; and there is scarcely a nation on the earth that owns a navy which does not possess vessels that are fitted with this class of engines built by Messrs. Penn. In our own Navy, among others, may be mentioned the Warrior, Black Prince, and Achilles, with engines of 1250-horse power; the Minotaur and Northumberland, of 1350-horse power.

The business of the great firm of Messrs. Penn and Sons is carried on at two establishments—one at Greenwich, where the engines are built, and the other at Deptford, where the boilers are constructed and the engines fitted in all ships whose draught of water will allow of their getting alongside the wharf. The various fitting and tool-shops at Greenwich are constructed upon the most approved modern plans. Every part of each ship is fully lighted in every direction, and the machinery and tools combine all the most recent improvements. The premises cover seven acres of ground, and in them are employed about nine hundred men and boys. Here all the castings are made, some of immense size, from 20 to 30 tons of metal being run into some of the moulds for the cylinders. Screw-propellers and shafts are cast here in gun metal, some of which, when finished, weigh 24 tons. One of our Illustrations represents the operation of turning a crank-axle in a mighty lathe. In another Illustration is shown the enormous shaft for the paddles of a steam-ship. The separate parts of each engine are made in different divisions of the factory, but all come together at last to be fitted in the great fitting-shop. In the vicinity of Deptford, where the boilers are constructed, about 500 hands are employed, making more than 2000 boilers in all. The quantity of wrought-iron boiler-plate used in this part of the works is 1500 tons annually, which, when formed into tubes, the united length of which would reach nearly 1000 miles, and contain 1200 tons of coal per day, and evaporating 11,000 tons of water, which yields a power equal to 40,000-horse power.

Our Illustrations on page 349 represent the operation of casting one of the cylinders for a pair of the enormous marine engines Messrs. Penn so frequently construct. The operation of casting large masses of metal is always interesting, even when the casting is of the ordinary kind; but in the case of the cylinders of marine engines it is doubly so, because the mass of metal, while of immense magnitude, has to be cast with all the nicety, exactness and precision of the most delicate smallest castings. The operation is on the largest scale, yet its result is of the highest degree of finish. It is managed with the greatest precision. Our Artist has chosen for the Illustration the time when the molten metal is being poured into the moulds. The mould, carefully selected, is placed in a sunken cupolas, placed adjacent to the foundry. These are supplied with the metal and fuel by an hydraulic lift. When the brightened iron runs from the cupolas, it is conducted into runs through small canals into the foundry, where they empty themselves into large receptacles called "ladles." These ladles are moved by powerful cranes and tackles over the apertures left in the upper part of the mould. When the mould is completed to be raised on one side to cause the metal to run out. This is done by means of levers with weights at the end, as shown in the picture. The pouring so large a mass of metal equally into the mould is a most important part of the whole operation. It requires the most intelligent regularity or too quickly running the metal would not only spoil the casting, but be very dangerous. The men who manage the operation of casting one of these cylinders, which requires from twenty to thirty tons of iron to fill the mould, must necessarily employ not only a very powerful gaseous character, and bring into play forces of immense power; yet the actual manipulation of these huge masses is done with the greatest ease by the hands of a child. The scene during the few minutes occupied in filling the mould is particularly fine. The lurid glare of the molten metal suddenly lit up with the glare of the rivers of liquid fire, contrasted with the deep shadows and the beautiful coruscations of fire fly about in all directions; the air is heavily-laden with the fumes of the metal, and the whole scene is one, almost while in its intense heat, lights up the features and forms of the workmen and numerous visitors in a wondrous manner; for all these men only see the visitors amusement, while all the younger hands of the establishment contrive to find their way into the foundry; and no one, not even the Master, has the heart to drive away all those of the masters, must be in the work in such a factory as this.

THE LOST EXPLORING PARTY IN NORTH-WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

In the Number of this Journal for the 29th of July some remarks were made upon the disastrous fate of an exploring party of three persons—Messrs. Panter, Hardy, and Goldwyer—who had perished in the north-western part of Western Australia, and who had been some time in November last. The expedition sent in February, under the command of Mr. Maitland Brown, to find the traces of these unfortunate men, and to capture as many as possible of the natives to be engaged in the pearl-fishery at Roebuck Bay, in the colony of Western Australia, on the 10th of May. We have been favoured by Mr. Maitland Brown with a brief narrative of the expedition, with the sketch we have now engraved; and with a large of the country explored by the party. We shall give a short account of all their discoveries and adventures. This party consisted of Mr. Brown; Mr. L. C. Burges, of the Roebuck Bay station; Mr. Frank Panter, brother of the unfortunate explorer; Mr. Alexander Muir; A. Kelsh, and two or three native servants; while Mr. Joseph Logan a magistrate, and a native constable accompanied them as far as Roebuck Bay to deal with any prisoners that might be sent in, and to supply additional horses and stores. The Rev. J. B. Gribble, Wesleyan, which had conveyed the whole party from Fremantle to Roebuck Bay, up the coast to the Yule River, where they were to land, there to point to point on shore. A native called Dutchmanchum, whom he had brought from Roebuck Bay, was also on board. This native was acquainted with the languages of the remoter tribes, picked up, early in March, tolerably well-preserved provisions, the mares on which Panter, Harding, and Goldwyer had been killed; that three white men had been murdered by natives; that the natives had been for days' journey to the eastward, near a river called Boolo-Boolo, where they met a tribe of natives called Wiegmarry; that they were attacked by natives, and that they had been killed and speared for the night on an open plain, where the natives watched them as they lay down to sleep, and attacked them with clubs and spears in them. But it was added that the white men rose to their feet, wounded though they were, and fought with the natives, and in the next away, who afterwards, before daylight, returned with others, and completed their work. This was all that could be learned from chats. It appears from the subsequent discovery that the first part alone of this story is perfectly correct. The three white men were, indeed, mounted and well armed with rifles and revolvers, had no great difficulty in making their escape from the natives on the first day's first thirty or forty days of the search, and confining most of them on board the vessel, while two or three of the likeliest were compelled to serve as guides. On the 10th of May they came to Boolo-Boolo, or Lake Ingodurra, a piece of fresh water surrounded with a dense grove of acacia and other trees, and found there the bones and other relics of the ill-fated party of the previous year. Here they found natives who were not afraid of the white men. They hoped to have been killed about the 20th of November, "because the rain marks had burnt quite out, and the grass was green and long, and there was within ten days of the time he was shot;" and this bone, belonging to Mr. Panter, was found. Goldwyer was known to have been killed before they left the depôt on the 9th of November. On the 4th of April the blacks were found to have murdered Mr. Hardy, Mr. Francisco's sketch. We may here quote the journal of Mr. Maitland Brown :—

Started on some towards Boolo-Boolo (Ingodarra) with two natives—A and B—reluctantly taking the lead, each attached to Buchmanchum's belt by a light cord. Passed through the large open plain, they kept up for some minutes an eager, agitated conversation; and then A, with a sudden impulse, suddenly decided what to do, and changed their course several times. But finally all doubt was removed, and we knew that the course for the north end of the lake until within a quarter of a mile of it, when they suddenly struck into the left, bearing directly eastward. Before going a little further, A gave a loud, shrill cry, and pointed to a tree, where I saw a bag caught sight of a complete hanging from a branch of a small opuntio tree to our right, in a level clear grassy lake bottom, the grove which surrounded the water; it was a mute but a sure sign, and as Douglas cried out he reined in his horse and pointed to it, as I had approved, told the tale, and he knew it. With what dreadful anxiety we rode up to that tree! our feelings upon reaching it were very different to those, at a foot, lay the dead bodies of our friends, where they had been murdered while sleeping months before! Those of Panter and Harding, on the one side, lying head to head, as far apart as the knees with a tent-cloth which had been drawn over them after death; the legs of both from the knees downwards, and the left arm of Panter, the ground beyond his covering, almost perfect but slightly shrunk. The body of Goldwyer was lying on its face with the head towards and at right angles with Panter's feet, dressed in a riding costume, perfectly recognisable but decayed to a skeleton. Scattered round were broken pieces and splinters of spears and dowaks, three journal books, leather packbags, pouches, powder-flasks, ruined revolvers, rugs, boots, and the usual travelling equipments. We sat for a few minutes on our horses, looking sadly down. Nothing was spoken or heard but the oft-repeated 'Poor fellows, poor fellows!' in a tone which showed how much everyone felt. On removing the tentcovering from the bodies of Panter and Harding, I found them on their faces, with the right hand of each underneath, and a tether-rope covering the heads of both. The former was dressed in a woollen plaid shirt of a black-and-white check pattern, with a light silk pocket-handkerchief, very much decayed, tied over the lower part of his forehead and eyes; the latter, in a light blue Crimean shirt, with a tie round his neck, very much decayed, tied over the lower part of his forehead and eyes. Round the neck of each of the men a tether-rope was lying on the grass as it grew; both were evidently where they had been thrown and gone to sleep. In all the numerous wounds and clubbed wounds which caused their death, every one of the former, and the latter, I believe, were inflicted on the head, from which cause I have been the case had they been on their feet resisting, surrounded as they must have been by a large force of savages. The bones also would have been removed from their eyes. Their journals had been written carefully up to the day of their deaths. On the 15th of March, when they mention natives having been seen on the morning of the 16th, and the following entry, in that of Panter, shows he suspected mischief from them :—'Sunday.—Remained in camp; early in the morning they drove our natives canoe; gave them five cockatoos and five pigeons; soon after they left, but in an hour returned with spears, &c. As they appeared to be up to mischief we frightened them away by firing a revolver.' They kept whooping and making signs we could not understand; in another hour we again saw them of their mounting bullock horses; when seen they ran away. Hence their reason for having stuffed their camp amongst the trees near the water, that they might not go to sleep. No spot more secure from surprise could anywhere be found. To this fact, then, and the long sleep they enjoyed that night (for the moon was within one day of being full), coupled with their instinctive watchfulness when awake, may be attributed the fact that they as slumbered for safety and kept no watch; so they were surprised and killed in their sleep. The bodies were afterwards dragged round on their camp, and Goldwyer's revolver had been discharged; the other was loaded. We found no guns.

The remainder of Mr. Maitland Brown's narrative relates to the trouble he had with the prisoners, two of whom were shot, in trying to run away, while the rest were conveyed forward from the vessel, and one was drowned. Ten or twelve more, proved or suspected to have been concerned in the murders, were sent to Roebuck Bay, and one, Karimba, who had been forced to act as guide, was released, with several of his friends. The Wiegmarry tribes are described as brave, and a fight, in which six of the natives were slain. He seems to have shown much energy and determination in the performance of his painful task.

DRUIDS' CIRCLES IN NORTHUMBERLAND.

SINCE the examination of the Castle Howard tumuli, a few weeks ago, the Rev. William Greenwell, F.S.A., has been making a series of interesting discoveries relating to the British period in Northumberland, at Shawdon, near Eglingham, in Glendale Ward. In this district there are many remains of British occupancy—camps, tumuli, Druids' circles, &c.; and it is in the latter that Mr. Greenwell has been engaged during the past week. He has now excluded show that instead of the popular notion of these circles being "courts of justice," "temples of worship," "places of assembly," and other extravagances, being correct, they are—most of them, at least—simply places of sepulture.

Some years ago a cist was discovered in what had hitherto been named a "druidical circle," and in it was found a skeleton, with a small cup of coarse pottery lacking ornament, and of the short drinking-cup shape. The circle was 30 ft. in diameter, and there was no mound within; there were, however, a few—of which only two are now standing—of small stones set round the rim of the bit or cover of each cist being just level with the grassy surface. In the cist in which the cup and skeleton were found, of which Mr. Greenwell has a small fragment showing the nature of the pottery (which has been thick and very rude), was found a flint knife and a flint flake.

Mr. Greenwell's explorations of the remainder of the area within the circle yielded much interesting information. About 9 ft. from the outer circle a second cist was discovered lying N.W. by S.E. This grave was 3 ft. 4 in. long by 1 ft. 8 in. wide, and 1 ft. 6 in. deep, and was covered by a single stone of the old sandstone rock. In this cist were found the bones of a child, and with them a flint knife, which, however, had lost its original form through ill-usage, and was scarcely recognisable as a knife. Still nearer to the outer circle was another cist, 4 ft. 8 in. long by 1 ft. 8 in. wide, and 1 ft. 8 in. deep. It was formed of four stones set on edge, and covered by a fifth, of sand at top and bottom. So far as could be found, nothing had been interred with this burial, but the bones of a child were found here. The cist, however, in which were contained the beautiful beads, was rather larger than the last mentioned, being 2 ft. 10 in. by 1 ft. 10 in. by 1 ft. 10 in.

The district in which this encircled graveyard of the Britons stands abounds in cairns, and Mr. Greenwell has opened three cairns which covered with the concentric circles. This rock and the fine cairns are half a mile south-west of the Druids' circles. Mr. Greenwell has also found it to be needful to explore one of the cairns which had been opened in 1863, and had so called Druidical circles are places of sepulture; and that the circle is only the fencing of the cairn or tumulus, within which is found the interment of the base of barrows, and sometimes within them, as well as on the outsides, and sometimes also at the centre of the circle, as in the case of the Druids' circle at Howes, in Wiltz, thought those interments with no mound, but within a circle of earth or stones, are of the same age as those of the bank district), even, from the rich ornaments found with them. They are undoubtedly of women. In the Bayeux tapestry the dead lady with the mantle was of a woman, but nothing can be said as to the sex of the others. The north of England interments differ from those in the south, probably in that in the former as having several interments, both of unburnt and burnt bodies, showing the circle to have been the cemetery of a long succession.

The Queen has approved of Mr. P. G. Van der Byl as Consul-General in England for the Republic of the Orange Free State, in South Africa.

The Viceroy of Egypt has established an extensive hospital system for the use of the Mohammedan troops.

The committee of the proposed Copenhagen exhibition has been dissolved in consequence of the opposition it has met with.

The arrangements for the establishment of railway communication between Egypt and Mesopotamia have been completed.

Literature has sustained a loss in the death of Mr. Dudley Costello, who died, at his residence at St. John's-wood, on Saturday last, in the sixty-ninth year of his age.

The Shah of Persia has sent a special agent to Europe for the purpose of studying the commercial and agricultural systems of France, England, and Holland.

A Berne letter states that an international congress will shortly assemble in Paris, for the purpose of fixing a uniform standard for copper coin. The countries represented will be France, Belgium, and Switzerland.

The new scale of costs and charges to be paid to counsel and attorneys in the County Courts, under the Equitable Jurisdiction Act, which came into operation on Monday, has been issued. There are two scales of costs set forth—the lower scale to be matters not exceeding £100, and the higher scale above £100. All the County Courts now possess the powers of the Court of Chancery in suits and matters not exceeding £500. On the lower scale, "instructions to sue or defend," a sum of 10s. will be allowed, and on the higher scale 15s. To an attorney attending court and conducting a cause where no counsel is employed the fee on the lower scale is £1 10s., and on the higher two guineas; and where counsel is engaged, the sum to be allowed is £2 on the lower and £3 on the higher scale. There are "occasional costs" and other costs to be allowed on taxation. The Lord Chancellor has sanctioned the scale.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

THE sacrifice of county members to the more or less golden calves has been going on briskly. Not a few of them have gone through a process of namby-pambyfication when attempting to talk beatitudes at that critical moment when the indignation which is inevitable after a dinner at a farmers' conviviality gives its earliest symptoms of approach. The greatest gatherings have been in Huntingdonshire and in Hertfordshire. In the former all the members for the county and the chief town were begged for the occasion and, truth to tell, there never was such a set of representatives with at least three of them bear in mind that the reputations which they had been accumulating in the country as well as in the county. Although each of the three might not be prejudiced on the subject that most members are willing to admit, however modestly they may put their pretensions, when they have had discussion on agriculture they have certainly an immense advantage—and that is that no man present can look more like a farmer than himself. A more gentlemanly man than Mr. Fellowes is hardly because of, and not in spite of, a plainness of demeanour and speech, which in almost any other assembly seems studied and there is a certain ruggedness in his delivery of his sentiments, which at once tells the hearer that he has been which are the characteristics of his public speaking; but his person and features are exactly of that kind which tell that he was born to be a country gentleman. Although he is not the squire of the parish, he is the squire of the county, and he is the squire because the British farmer to be the type. Doubtless he succeeded to the seat for the county Huntingdonians with a sympathy begotten of the same blood as that which, as he always takes not only commonsense but that species of common-sense which is adopted in his audience, he must be a sorcerer. On all occasions, whether in Parliament or speeches, in returning thanks for the Army and Navy he contrived to slide in a minim or two of pathos—a quaver—which showed that he knew how to take of the speech, and in order to "cut," and to which the constituents to be sure, as he sits for the borough—the horse-breeders that their shoe was not as good as it ought to be. Now, looking to the former pursuits, no doubt with peculiar mention added that a county which had produced a Derby winner ought not to be without a borough. He made, with a strong protest against one of Lord Robert Montagu's feeble attempts at originality, and floated into the region of politics and social reformer's novel idea, namely, that a man should be well moved, that the losses of cattle-dealers by the existing disease should be compensated out of the public purse, which was the contribution to the excitement of the day. Mr. Thomas Baring was grandly sensible and genial, and, in order to show that he was not a mere sensation—which, as a commercial man proper, he need not unless he liked—laid down the theory that land could not be considered as the basis and manufacture could take the wings of a bill of exchange and transplant themselves to any country in which they were likely to settle down. From Mr. Fellowes there proceeded exactly what was to have been expected, and therefore he was a most satisfactory.

Without, as we have before intimated, any special necessity to do so, some borough members have been airing themselves a little more talking. For instance, Mr. C. Buxton, of Coventry, the new member for Exeter, has appeared in the city he represents, but on no such opportunity would all his constituents be present as at the late election—that it was at a distribution of certificates to the students who had undergone middle-class examinations, and that he had to say to the boys of the Blue Coat Horticole on educational subjects which may have been unthinking, but was not difficult. Mr. Cave has been at the celebration of a borough member at Cheltenham, where the Conservatives had to step passed by a victory gained by the Liberals at the last election. Everyone one locally informed knows, that since Cheltenham was created a borough by the Reform Bill of 1832, the Conservative party has exercised a predominant power and preserve appertaining to the Berkeley Castle as a political, not to say a social, power of a most despotic demesne. A son or a brother of the regnant family of Berkeley must be sent the place. But at the last election, when Mr. Berkeley, whose most apparent claim to the suffrages of the electors is that he was educated at the same time as the present Duke of Beaufort, was put up to keep the seat at once from Liberalism and Berkeleyism. Hence the feast at which Mr. Dowdeswell, the member for Tewkesbury, presided, and Sir George Jenkinson, who squabbled with Mr. Long about the seat for North Wilts, and the minister's son of class of Mr. Berkeley, who backed especially by a loquacious parson, who talked local politics with singular gibberish and not a little bad taste. Cheltenham has always been the home of Conservatism, and to speak to the walls of the discretion more than the valour of the Berkeleys at Hannockburn, and which has been the line of conduct at the elections. The triumphant tone which was adopted was not without warrant; for—looking to the city of Gloucester, and that Colonel Berkeley will not seek re-election. Gloucester, and that Colonel Berkeley was soundly beaten at Cheltenham, which results in the fact that there is now only one of the two seats for the county instead of the three or four who have always represented the earldom in the Commons for many years—a fact which may be taken as a sign of progress towards political freedom in Gloucestershire.

If the practical, sensible member, such as Mr. Henley, on what he would call his own dunghill, finds it hard to discourse at the meetings now prevalent for the promotion of pure sentiment, the difficulty of a poor attempt at Bolwerian rhapsody, he spoke in the most ordinary language with a straight the most dismal fellow, when you come to talk to humorous with a strength of sympathy equivalent to their weight. In considering this speech of Mr. Bright's, it is necessary to under- In considering this speech of Mr. Bright's, it is necessary to understand how it is in the Parliamentary period between 1831 and 1841, stand how it is in the Parliamentary period between 1831 and 1841, stand how it is in the Parliamentary period between 1831 and 1841, he was a conspicuous failure in the house, and that he was not and to his imagination and sentiment by the fact that he was not. He is wisely adopted that system of elaborate preparation in its most effective mood some which renders any of us, who have had a long session of a Session, and perhaps not the less because they are nearly, if not altogether, himself. When one has had his address to the electors of Birmingham the impression left is as nearly the same as possible as that produced by the speeches of his colleagues, Mr. Scholefield, Mr. Henry Cowper (the new member for the county), and that is precisely nothing. It was kind of the Bellwether in trouble, and the sheep of his pen to have his name, but after the first throb at beholding it the sensation was nought.

At Croydon, the other day, where the East Surrey Agricultural Association was held, Mr. Leveson-Gower, M.P. for the county and Association was held, Mr. Leveson-Gower, M.P. for the county, was the principal supporter of the meeting (Reigate) is in the county, was the principal supporter of Mr. Locke King, on an occasion when the Liberal and Conservative members were especially in request. For a more depressed and depressing speech was never addressed to an audience which most probably had come to Croydon in the hope of being cheered by the words of the supposed wise. Everything seemed to Mr. Locke King to be in a bad way. There was a great and unique opportune moment for the advent of the cattle plague; there was not a patient of a cure for the disease; the wholesale slaughtering of the animals was a fearful thing, and it was melancholy to behold no show of stock; in short, the whole prospect was dismal. He urged no show of stock; in short, the whole prospect was dismal. He urged that he had never in his own person suffered the discomfort of a tattered shirt. In fact, this honourable gentleman looked upon the letting some of that discomfort of the victimisation of county members, in which he had been included, when all the rest equally feel but the cattle plague.

The grand cross of Austria's Order of St. Stephen (in right of the Hungarian crown) has been conferred on Count Walewski and M. Drouyn de Lhuys.

M. Leverrier has announced to the French Academy the appearance of a new comet in our horizon. It rise scarcely the light of a star of the fourteenth magnitude. The new comet is recognised as the comet Faye, discovered in 1843, the time of whose revolution is about seven years and a half.

In the course of last month a portion of the fifty-second parallel of north latitude was measured at Orel. This operation has been undertaken by Russia, Germany, Belgium, and England, in order to determine accurately the form and dimensions of the earth. The luminaries of this important work is due to the late M. Struve.

THE MAGAZINES.

Now that the cloak of the weather has begun to take things a little more coyly, there is no danger in reading even the magazine stories. The paper-knife is no longer in blisters, one is no longer exercised by the mere cutting of leaves, and a final catastrophe does not produce a white heat. The lounger, therefore, at the seaside or in the country may now, in his more leisurely moments, be will be here, to please if he do not find satisfaction in the Cornhill. For the portion of "Wives and Daughters" is interesting: amusing affecting the portion of "Armadale" is in the author's best style; and of the miscellaneous articles, that on "Sensation Novels," that on the Ground of Insanity," and "Maori Sketches," can be particularly recommended. Mr. Collins, in "Armadale," proves that he is an expected character as a person with a lingering suspicion of a conscience; otherwise she could have no instinctive career of conscience; otherwise she could have no instinctive career of crime, and strengthen the idea which every world's a stage," the author suggests, that not only "all the men and women merely players," but that the stage is arranged in a plot, either as perpetrators or victims; that nearly every living creature is trying to arrive at some end by the path of crime. Even the inferior animals men and women act might be well named, "Masks and Faces." Moreover, the author suggests that, at a period of every man's history, the author's picture of life be true, you see a sad greenhorn, and must be the ugly or beauty victim of "Armadale" consecutive with a paper on "Grote's Plato," which may be profitably read before or after an article in the Cornhill upon "The Historical Doctrine of Ideas," and ends with an essay upon "The Literary Life of Isaac Taylor," who is considered to have been "an accomplished English-man" and "not a Coleridge." The rest of the magazine is made up of a most remarkable instalment of "Framley Parsonage," in an essay somewhat sensational instalment of "Framley Parsonage," in an essay somewhat sensational instalment of "Framley Parsonage," in an essay somewhat sensational

BUYING CAMLETS IN A SHOP, YOKOHAMA.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

MEETING OF THE BELGIAN NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION AT BRUSSELS: THE TARGETS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

SHOPPING AT YOKOHAMA.

In the sketch we have engraved this week, as an illustration of the social life and manners of the people of Japan, our Artist and Correspondent at Yokohama has delineated a scene of every-day occurrence in the shops of that busy city. The draper and his assistants, who are not less eager than their fellow-tradesmen in London or Paris to effect a sale, have unrolled a piece of camlet, and are showing it, with voluble commendations, to a purchaser, who is feeling the cloth with both hands to prove its texture, and inspecting its appearance with a dubious eye. His companions are looking on, meanwhile, and probably assisting his judgment with a word or two of advice.

THE BELGIAN NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

THE annual meeting of the Belgian riflemen at Brussels, to which English volunteers were also specially invited, was opened by his Royal Highness the Comte de Flandres on Sunday week, and closed on Tuesday last. Our Artist, who attended the meeting, has furnished several Illustrations, which appear in this Number—one being a general view of the shooting-ground; another, which is the Engraving on our front page, showing the kind of boxes or stalls from which the marksmen had to fire; while the third Engraving shows the line of circular paper targets, fixed in iron frames, with a paved and brick-walled trench, running the whole length in front of the targets, for the accommodation of the markers and of the spectators who chose to go there, as many ladies and gentlemen did with perfect safety, the bullets passing overhead.

On these occasions at Brussels all the shooting is done under cover of a large brick building, which is generally known as "Le Tir." The interior of this building is about 200 ft. long, and 30 ft. or 40 ft. broad. On one side are thirty-six little "pens" or boxes for the shooters, each box opposite a window for the competitor, which is shown at the firing-point by a large figure "1" standing for an outside shot, "7" for the next, and so on to "5." For a bull's eye, a red flag showing when a "carton" is made, the value of which depends upon its closeness to the centre. There is no time lost, for the competitor has only to get his ticket for a series, to write his name and address upon its "coupon," and to enter at once the place set apart for the series. Every box or "pen" is fitted with a rack for the rifles, and shelves. No "wrong targets" can be made by the firers, for boards are so placed on each side of the line of sight from the windows that only one target can be seen. Fixed screens effectually protect the shooter and the sights of the rifle from the sun. The range is 225 metres or 246 yards. Opposite the shooting-boxes are refreshment-counters, places for cleaning arms, and the box for the council, the president of which, M. E. Dailley, is generally present during the shooting. The marking at the targets is excellently arranged. The target-frames work on an axle, two to each frame, which is balanced by a heavy weight. On the target being struck a small disc points out the spot, a string is pulled which raises a number showing the value of the shot, and the balance being turned the target with the hole in it disappears and a second rises in its place. While the first target is thus turned down the marker pastes a piece of paper over the hole made by the shot, and it is then ready to take the place of the other when it is struck. The shooting goes on very rapidly, and every half hour the cartons and bull's-eyes of each target, which are dropped into a box numbered the same as at the firing-point, are brought up by a clerk and shown to the registrar of shots.

The competition at this meeting was for prizes amounting, in the whole, to 70,000f., and was open to "any rifle" and to "military weapons." The only qualifications for military weapons were that they should have neither telescope nor aperture sights, and be capable of carrying a bayonet or sword-bayonet. The rifles which enter as military weapons in Belgium are different from the English notions of a military weapon, having fine head fore-sights, and exquisitely finished back-sights, capable of the finest adjustment. These rifles are mostly small bores, and the charge of powder is so light as to allow the shooter to balance his rifle on the tips of his fingers, which gives him the advantage of resting his left elbow on his side; while the pull of the trigger is as light as he chooses to have it.

During the meeting at Brussels the English volunteers received every kindness from the authorities and the different societies. Their uniform admitted them to all festivals held in the city; and most of them accepted the cordial invitations given them to the grand balls given at the Rue Madeleine, by the Société Harmonique, the Société Royale Militaire, and the Société Réunion Lyrique. On entering the ball-room of the Société Royale Militaire, the band struck up "God save the Queen!" and the other guests saluted the English visitors in the most cordial manner. It should also be mentioned that the Belgian Government had made arrangements for a reduction of fifty per cent in the railway fares charged to English volunteers coming to Brussels on this occasion. It is only to be regretted that more time was not given for the circulation among English volunteers of the very friendly invitation issued by the Belgian committee; but several metropolitan and some provincial corps were well represented—members of the London Scottish, Queen's Westminsters, 20th Kent, 28th Middlesex, 1st Surrey, Manchester, 1st Leicester, and others being present.

MEETING OF THE BELGIAN NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION AT BRUSSELS: GENERAL VIEW OF THE PRACTICE-GROUND.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

19th Hussars: Lieut. H. T. Lowe to be Lieutenant. 20th: Lieut. M. S. Saunders to be Lieutenant. 21st: Lieut. S. Rhodes to be Captain; Ensign W. S. Burley to be Lieutenant. 2nd Dragoons: A. C. Gilchrist to be Ensign. 5th Dragoon Gds.: J. Beckford to be Lieutenant. 7th: W. Richardson to be Ensign. 9th: Ensign H. Reece to be Lieutenant. R. C. Welch to be Captain. 10th: Lieut. and Adjutant Hon. H. Hamilton to be Captain. 11th Hussars: Cornet Hon. Hardress V. H. Gerard to be Lieutenant. E. W. Field to be Ensign. 16th: Ensign R. E. Baddeley to be Lieutenant. Cornet G. W. Yallowley to be Ensign. 17th: Major and Lieut.-Colonel Nowell to be Major. The Hon. C. H. Dutton to be Lieutenant. 18th: W. J. Cross to be Captain. 19th: Lieut. H. Cramer to be Lieutenant. 21st: Ensign G. E. Parry to be Lieutenant. 2nd Foot: Lieut. H. Cramer to be Lieutenant. 3rd: Lieut. Lord Lucas to be Lieutenant. 5th: Ensign J. Bowden to be Lieutenant. 6th: Lieut. and Adjutant Boyle J. de Montmorency to be Major; Lieut. W. J. Frampton to be Captain; Ensign L. E. Bayly to be Lieutenant. 7th: Ensign Hon. H. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 8th: Lieut. H. Owen to be Lieutenant. 10th: Capt. and Lieut.-Colonel Hon. A. Gough to be Major, and A. Staff Asst. Surg. A. Scrafton to be Assistant Surgeon. 19th: Capt. J. Lumley to be Major.

Royal Scots: Lieut.-Colonel Hon. Sir Alexander Gordon, K.C.B., to be Colonel. 1st Foot: Capt. C. F. H. Delmotte to be Captain; Ensign W. S. Burley to be Lieutenant; Quartermaster-Sergt. J. Cooper to be Ensign.

Coldstream Gds.: Lieut. Hon. H. H. Jones, and G. G. C. Sargent to be Colonels. Scots Fus. W. Sitwell and J. Holland to be Lieutenants. Rifle Brigade: Lieut. and Captain H. Bentley to be Major; Ensign and Lieut. C. Hamilton-Russell to be Captain.

ADMIRALTY.

W. Rathie to be Surgeon in her Majesty's Fleet. H. Dodds to be Chief Engineer and H. Loudon to be first-class Assistant Engineer in her Majesty's Fleet.

The vacancy in the Military Knights of Windsor has been filled up by the appointment of Major Dodsall.

Major Frederick Hamilton, Assistant-General for Richard Airey, K.A.B., to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the city and garrison of Gibraltar.

An examination for direct commissions will be held at Chelsea Hospital on Monday, the 6th of November next. The number of candidates will be limited to one hundred.

In consequence of Mr. Purkiss's death, the Lord President of the Council has appointed Mr. Merrifield to be Keeper of Printed Books in the School of Naval Architecture for the next session.

The Second medal of the Royal Humane Society has been presented to Mr. John B. Cooke, Assistant Paymaster of H.M. ship Basilisk, for having saved the life of a boy on the 15th of July last, while the vessel was on board the St. Vincent.

The distribution of the award for services against pirates in the China Seas, between Dec. 12, 1861, and Jan. 3, 1864, by her Majesty's ship Magicienne, the vedette (Pinnace), by command of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty General of the Navy, Admiralty, Somerset House.

The distribution of the second portion of the Lucknow prize-money, being the share of the officers and men of her Majesty's and Royal Artillery, of her Majesty's ship Shannon, between June 29, 1857, and Dec. 31, 1858, by command of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, Admiralty, Somerset House.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge arrived at Aldershot, on Tuesday, his annual tour of inspection in the south-eastern districts. Having journeyed by railway stationed at Wokingham, the Commander-in-Chief proceeded along the Bath road to Dover. At half-past two o'clock the Royal Duke and his staff arrived at the Aldershot station, and were met by Major-General Lysons and others on the route of the troop announced the arrival. His Royal Highness partook of luncheon with Major-General Lysons and the officers of the 2nd Artillery Brigade then present. Soon after three o'clock his Royal Highness, accompanied, with his Staff, proceeded to the review-ground adjacent to the Basingstoke road, where the Royal Artillery Brigade, consisting of the 2nd battalion 6th Royal Rifles, and the 20th (Dorsetshire) Regiment were drawn up. The troops were put through a variety of manœuvres, and performed the ordinary military proceedings occupying the entire afternoon. On Wednesday his Royal Highness held a review of all the troops encamped on the Long Valley chiefly, at the Round Down, midway between Dover and Folkestone, after which he inspected the camp at Shorncliffe.

The following farewell divisional order has been issued by Sir John Fenwick Crealock, Commander of the forces in the Presidency of Fort William:—"The Commander-in-Chief cannot allow Aldershot without one word of farewell to the troops. For three years he has had the honour to command, and received his Aldershot Division from Lieutenant-General Keating, in a high state of efficiency, discipline, and order. He has now handed it over to another, and in the same condition, as well as to give full effect to the numerous improvements which have been made in the barrack accommodation, in the sanitary and camp arrangements, in the establishment of the Royal Hibernian Military School, and in the Royal Military Asylum at Chelsea. The Commander-in-Chief has recorded in these objects, it is to be attributed to the support and assistance he had received from the general officers; the officers of the Staff, regimental, in all the departments, each according to his temperament and knowledge of what is best for the high state of efficiency and discipline which is held among the non-commissioned officers and soldiers. The Lieutenant-General requests the general officers, the officers of the Staff, and the troops, to accept his best thanks for their conduct, and his cordial wishes for their future honour and prosperity."

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The annual battalion prize competition of the 20th Middlesex (Finsbury) took place at Harrow, on Saturday last. The first prize, never very valuable in guineas, presented by Henry Holland, Esq., to which was added a silver medal, presented by Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander Sergeant Wilson, was secured, £10, presented by Lieutenant-Colonel Wilson, by Private Sirguard; the third, £6, presented by Major Burgess, by Corporal Coughlin; the fourth, a clock, presented by E. J. Thompson, Esq., by Lance-Corporal Grouner; the fifth, five guineas, a subscription prize per Mr. Hamilton, by Private Pride, with the highest aggregate score. A prize given by the staff sergeant was won by Private Kitchen.

The 3rd competition of the eighth (Broadwood) company of the Queen's Westminster Rifles took place at Wormwood Scrubbs last week. The various prizes were competed among others, the challenge cup, value twenty guineas, presented by Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander, to be won three times by the same person, was won by Sergeant Mason, with the score of 49 out of a possible 60. Private Cook won the Broadwood cup. The other prizes fell as follows:—First series prize, value £5, won by Private Cook; second, £3, by Sergeant Anderson; third, by Private Anderson; fourth, by Sergeant Looe; fifth, by Private Mitchell; sixth, by Sergeant Wm. E. J. Thompson; seventh, by Lance-Corporal Grouner; the fifth, five guineas, a subscription prize per Mr. Hamilton, by Private Pride, with the highest aggregate score. A prize given by the staff sergeant was won by Private Kitchen.

The 3rd competition of the eighth (Broadwood) company of the Queen's Westminster Rifles took place at Wormwood Scrubbs last week. The various prizes were competed,

OBITUARY OF ELIMENT PERSONS.

LADY BAGOT.

The Right Hon. Georgiana, Lady Bagot, was the third and last surviving daughter of General Henry Beauchamp Lygon, fourth Earl Beauchamp, by Caroline, daughter of Frederick, fifth Duke of William, second Earl of St. Germans, and was sister of Henry, fifth and present Earl Beauchamp. Her Ladyship was born July 30, 1802, and was married, Sept. 25, 1826, to Richard Bagot, Viscay, second and present Lord Bagot. By this union Lady Bagot leaves four sons, of whom the eldest, George Fitzroy Henry, a godson of the King of Hanover, is in his ninth year. Lady Bagot was confirmed of her youngest son on the 8th of August last, at the town house of the family—14, Great Cumberland-street—and had removed to Waterden a short time since to recruit her strength, and there her premature and deeply-lamented death occurred on the 26th inst.

VICE-ADMIRAL SIR T. T. THOMPSON, BART.

Sir Thomas Railes Trigge Thompson, second Baronet, of Balcombe, in the county of Hants, Vice-Admiral of the Royal Navy, who died last month, at Balcombe-place, Sussex, was born on the 26th ult., was (by his mother, Anne, daughter of Robert Bailes, Esq., of Balcombe-place) the only son and heir of Admiral Sir Thomas Boulden Thompson, G.C.B., created a Baronet in 1806, for his brilliant services in the Baltic and Copenhagen, and was born April 21, 1804. He entered the Royal Navy at an early age, and in 1824 was made Lieutenant; in 1837 Commander; in 1841 Captain; and Vice-Admiral in 1863. He succeeded his father as second Baronet in 1828. He married, Oct. 20, 1831, Frances, youngest of the Rev. Thomas Napier Bailes, Vicar of Loughton, in the county of Gloucester, and leaves issue another son and two daughters—the eldest son, now Sir Thomas Bailes Thompson, the fourth Baronet, a youth in his fourteenth year. This family is of long high standing in our naval service. The grandfather of the Baronet just dead was a Captain in the Royal Navy; and his father, who commanded the Leander at the Nile and Copenhagen, was Governor of Greenwich Hospital, obtained knighthood and a baronetcy for his prowess, but was further rewarded with his pensions, amounting to £700 a year, and the noble reservoir of Greenwich Hospital.

MAJOR-GENERAL MACDUFF, C.B.

Major-General John MacDuff, C.B., lately commanding the Cork division, Lucknow, who died at Newmills, near Forres, on the 23rd inst., in his sixty-fifth year, was the second son of Alexander MacDuff, Esq., of Westwood, the representative of one of the oldest families in Forfarshire, and was born in the Army, as an Ensign in the 92nd Highlanders, when only fifteen years of age. Exchanging afterwards into the 13th Light Dragoons, and subsequently into the Queen's 39th, he served with this gallant regiment in Upper and Lower Canada, through the desperate campaigns in the Peninsular and Orthez in 1841-2, and was engaged at Candahar, Ghuznee, and Maharajpore. In 1849 he was appointed to the command of the Queen's 39th Regiment, and when transferred to the 74th Highlanders, then engaged in the last Kaffir War at the Cape of Good Hope. On its return home, in 1850, he took up his quarters at Madras, and held important brigade commands in Southern India until the outbreak of the Mutiny, when he was selected by Sir Colin Campbell to serve under his General Whitelock, and was present at the siege of Lucknow, in command of the Dilkoosh and Caiper field force in the successful attack on the enemy's position at Sultan-ka-Bagh, in the operations on the north side of the city, and in the final assault upon the Kaiserbagh, and the capture of the enemy. He had four medals for his conduct in the campaigns in India and at the Cape. He was also a C.B., and a Knight of the Bath, and the officers receiving rewards for distinguished services. He became a Major-General in 1858. He was attended with every mark of respect on his death, and he came home so shattered from long exposure to an Indian sun and from protracted toil in the discharge of various duties of high trust, that he never was able to regain his strength. His gradual decline and death have caused much grief to his many friends, among whom he was universally and conspicuously an army, by whom his memory will long be generously cherished.

COLONEL VAUGHAN WATKINS.

Colonel John Lloyd Vaughan Watkins, of Pennoyre and Rhodridy, Brecknockshire, and Hensol, Glamorganshire, D.L., J.P., and formerly Lieutenant of the county of Brecknock, who died at Brecon, on the 26th ult., was the last and representative, in the male line, of the ancient and distinguished house of Vaughan of Golden Grove; and was the only son to survive his father, of the Rev. Thomas Watkins, LL.B., J.P., for many years rector of Llandefaelog and Llandefaelog, by his wife, Susanna Bleasdale, only daughter and sole heiress of Richard Vaughan, of Golden Grove, Carmarthen. He was born Feb. 22, 1802; and was educated at Harrow School, and Christ Church, Oxford. He was Colonel of the Brecon Militia, and was returned to Parliament for the borough of Brecon in 1832, and retained his seat for that place until the dissolution in 1841, when he declined to be a candidate. The Colonel was an earnest and consistent Conservative politician, and was deservedly respected. He married first, June 22, 1843, Sophia Louisa Henrietta, third daughter of Sir George Pocock, 3rd Baronet, of Hardwell, in the county of Durham, which lady died, May 27, 1851. He married, secondly, in 1852, Eliza Lucinda, daughter of Dr. Hay Cameron, Bishop of Bangor, and widow of Hughes, C.B., which lady is deceased. Colonel Watkins has had five sisters, four of whom have been married—viz., Mrs. Bevan, of Llandefaelog; Mrs. Arthur Frederick; Mrs. Harris, of Hayne, in the county of Devon; and Mrs. George Leveth.

ARCHDEACON BARTHOLOMEW.

The Ven. John Bartholomew, Archdeacon of Exeter and Archdeacon of Barnstaple, died at his rectory, Monkleigh, near Bideford, on the 24th ult. He was a good and faithful parish divine, and was much regarded in the neighbourhood where he lived, and in the city of Exeter. The Venerable Archdeacon took his degree of B.A. at Oriel College, Oxford, in 1808, and that of Master of M.A. in 1820. He was ordained in 1817, and was successively Incumbent of Withycombe Raleigh in 1817, Rector of Bishop's Nympton in 1820, and in 1831 became a Prebendary of Exeter Cathedral in 1831, and he was the same year preferred to the rectory of Monkleigh, Devon. He was appointed Canon Residentiary of Exeter Cathedral in 1840, and Archdeacon of Barnstaple in 1847. He was the author of various sermons and other publications, and he had published several sermons, one of them being that preached at the consecration of the present Bishop of Exeter in 1861.

THOMAS FARNCOMB, ESQ.

Thomas Farncomb, Esq., for many years Alderman, and Lord Mayor of London in 1849, died, on the 22nd ult., at his residence, Rose Hill, Surrey, at the advanced age of eighty-seven. Mr. Farncomb was a native of London, the descendant of a family several members of which have been for many generations large proprietors of land, and have filled the office of magistrate for the county. When young, he came to London and applied himself to commercial pursuits, becoming at length a merchant of note in the Canada wharfs on the Surrey side of the Thames, which he occupied for about half a century, carrying on the business of a wharfinger and corn factor. He was likewise a merchant and shipowner, and one of the earliest promoters of the Commercial Docks, and was elected a Director of that undertaking when the city of London and others took it up. He was long in the Common Council for years he was a magistrate for Surrey and Sussex. In 1840 he was elected one of the Board of London and Middlesex, his colleagues being Sir John Key, Alderman Gibbs; and in the following year he was chosen Alderman for the ward of Bassishaw. In 1849, being then senior Alderman, he was elected Lord Mayor; and during his year of office he dispensed the hospitalities of the Mansion House with princely munificence. As an Alderman he presided most sumptuously, in the year of preparation for the Great Exhibition, the Mayors of all the principal cities and towns of the kingdom were invited, and were entertained and respected, and had made a host of friends among his fellow-citizens by his agreeable manners and unbounded liberality. He resigned his aldermanic gown in 1855. Mr. Farncomb was never married.

BENJAMIN OLIVEIRA, ESQ.

Benjamin Oliveira, Esq., J.P., whose death occurred on the 28th ult., was the son of Benjamin Oliveira, Esq., a distinguished member of the bar, who died in 1830. He was M.P. for Penryhrn from 1831 to 1837, and while in Parliament he devoted himself chiefly to questions relating to the administration of the law, and to the reclamation of the waste lands in Ireland. Mr. Oliveira was himself extensively engaged in the latter undertaking, and was the owner of large estates in Portugal. He was connected with the directorship of several railways, and was a magistrate for Middlesex, and for the county in which he had various landed possessions. Mr. Oliveira married, first, in 1809, Philadelphia, daughter of J. Bele, Esq., and, secondly, in 1840, Emma, daughter of William Hunt, Esq., of Malford, Derbyshire.

The German journals announce the death, at the age of eighty-four, of M. D. Wilmsen, last surviving son of the celebrated poet Wieland.

The Board of Trade returns for the month and eight months ending Aug. 31 have been issued. The aggregate value of the exports of British and Irish produce during the month was £7,000,000 sterling, against £6,414,000 sterling in 1864, and £6,106,000 in 1863. In the eight months the exports were £52,600,000 sterling, against £50,716,000 in 1864, and £49,351,000 in 1863.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W. H. TAYLOR.—It admits of a second solution, beginning 1. Rt to Kt8 (double ch.), &c.

R. G. R.—Sometimes too simple, except to very young players.

R. T.—The position is interesting, though not sufficiently remarkable for publication.

J. P. MANDY.—Correct. Gossip appreciated, but altogether defeated in point and anticipated by solution.

A. R. and G. B.—It is not a well-known fact, but a ridiculous failure, that Boncheppelle once undertook to play the Knight's Tour backwards and forwards. He was undoubtedly an ambidexter.

J. C.—Your problem has not yet been received. It is quite possible that it may prove correct, but it is very young since. We especially like the manner in which the defence achieved by Le Beaudemont. That a player once so distinguished should be now almost forgotten is a striking illustration of the fickleness of fame. Many thanks for your kind wishes.

E. T.—There does not appear to us to be any forced mate in the Bishop-tournament play, up to this time. In our next we shall probably be enabled to report upon it more fully.

C. K. B., Dundee.—Received with thanks. They shall have immediate attention.

PAPPA, Bengal.—The game shall be examined and reported on speedily. 2. The new game to which you allude is Dr. Ayre's Indian problem, prize to the value of £5.

MOORE, Torquay, or PRACTICE.—Correct.

The Chess Tournament at the Metropolitan last week, in Eastern No. 1884, the position of next of Black's Pawns was given as at Queen's Rook's 2nd.

PROBLEM No. 1128.

By Mr. W. COATES.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to move, and mate in three moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

An excellent Partie between Mr. SUBNITZ and Mr. BURDEN.

(Vienna Opening.)

WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. B.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to Q B 3rd	P to Q B 3rd

(Kt to K B 3rd is considered preferable.)

3. P to Q 4th	P takes P
4. Kt takes P	P to Q 4th

(Black has never been thoroughly analysed, and, therefore, has probably yet to be discovered.)

5. P to K 4th	P to Q Kt 3rd
6. P takes K P	P to Q 5th
7. Q Kt to Q 2nd	Kt to K 2nd
8. P to Q 3rd	Kt to Q 2nd
9. P to K B 4th	P to K 3rd
10. P takes B	Q to Q R 5th (ch)
11. B to K Kt 2nd	R to Q 3rd
12. Kt to K 4th	Q to Q 2nd

(Well played, with the view still to move the R to Q 3rd.)

13. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to K 5th
14. B to Q 2nd	P to K B 4th

(At the first glance Black appears to have a formidable attack by playing the Q to K 7th; but, upon consideration, this move proves untenable, as White can then push the Pawn to Queen's 8th. Bygone.)

15. Q to K 2nd	Q Kt to K 6th
16. P takes Kt	P takes P
17. B to K 3rd	Kt to K R 4th

(Kt takes B would have been a blunder, as White could then take the Kt with the Q.)

18. P to Q 5th	P to K 5th
19. B to Q 2nd	B to K 3rd
20. R to K 2nd	Kt to K 5th (ch)
21. K to Kt sq	Q to K 3rd
22. Q to Q R 3rd	Q to Q R 3rd
23. Q to Q B 3rd	Q to K 3rd
24. Q to Q R 3rd	Q to Q R 3rd
25. Q takes Q R P	B to K 2nd
26. K to Kt sq	P to K B 5th
27. B to K B 4th	P takes B
28. R to K B 2nd	R to K 3rd
29. R to K 3rd	P takes B (ch)
30. K to Kt sq	P to K 6th (ch)
31. K to B 2nd	P to K 7th (ch)
32. K to B 3rd	P to K 8th (ch)
33. K to Q 2nd	P to Q 7th (ch)
34. K to Q 3rd	P to K 6th
35. K to Q 4th (ch)	P to K 7th
36. R takes P (ch)	K to Q 2nd

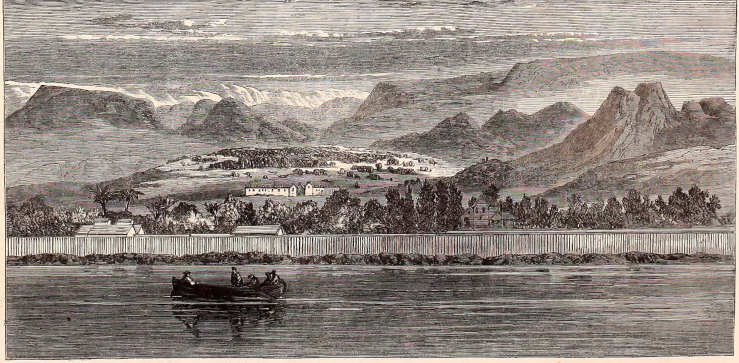
(Good and agreeable! But for this dreadful stroke Black might still have come off victorious. The game was finished in the following manner:—)

37. Q takes P (ch)	P takes R
38. R takes R	P to K 8th, becoming a Queen
39. Q takes Q	R to K 8th (ch)
40. K to Q 5th	R to K 5th (ch)
41. P to Q B 4th, and Black resigns.

A good Game between the Rev. W. WAYTE and the Rev. C. E. RAIKES.

WHITE (Mr. W.)	BLACK (Mr. R.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. P to Q 4th	P takes P
4. P to Q 5th	B takes Q Kt P
5. B to Q B 4th	Kt to Q B 3rd
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd
7. P to K B 3rd	B to K 3rd
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
9. P to Q B 3rd	P to Q Kt 3rd
10. Q to Q R 4th	B to Q 2nd
11. Q to Q Kt 3rd	B to Q Kt 2nd
12. Q to Q 3rd	Kt to K 2nd
13. Q to Q B 2nd	Castles
14. Q to Q 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
15. P to Q 6th	P takes P
16. Kt to K 5th (ch)	K to Kt sq
17. P takes B (ch)	K takes P
18. Kt to K B 3rd	Q to Q 2nd
19. Kt to K 4th	Q to Q 2nd
20. Kt to K 5th (ch)	K to Kt sq
21. B to Q Kt 2nd	Kt to K 4th
22. Q Kt to K 4th	Q to K 3rd
23. Q to K 3rd	Q takes Q
24. Kt takes Q	Kt to K B 3rd
25. Q R to K sq	Kt to K 5th
26. Q to K 2nd	Q R to K sq
27. Q to K 3rd	Q R to K 4th
28. Q to K 2nd	Q R to K 3rd
29. Q to K 3rd	Q R to K 4th
30. Q to K 2nd	Q R to K 3rd
31. Q to K 3rd	Q R to K 4th
32. Q to K 2nd	Q R to K 3rd

VIEW OF ARICA, PERU.



THE STATUE OF VERCINGETORIX.

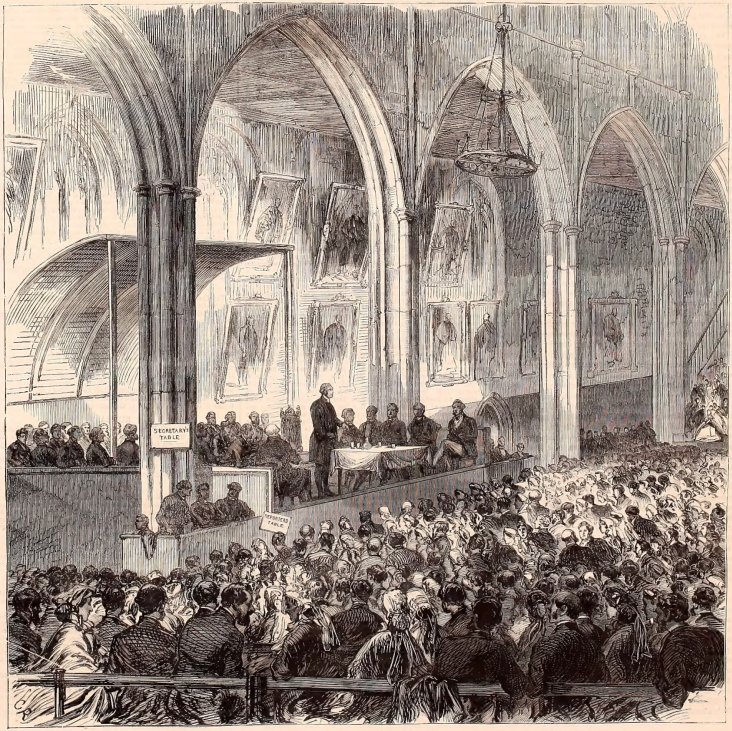
One of the most remarkable works of art shown at this year's Exposition in Beaux Arts, in the Palace of Industry, at Paris, was the colossal statue of Vercingetorix, which has since been erected, at the expense of the Emperor Napoleon, in the little town or village of Alise, in the department of the Côte d'Or, the supposed site of a battle fought, by that chief against the Roman invaders. It may be remembered that, on the conquest of Gaul by Cæsar, Vercingetorix, by his warlike qualities and indomitable energy, succeeded in maintaining a partial resistance, till, after several battles, Cæsar captured Bourges, and subsequently besieged Vercingetorix in Alesia, where he was obliged to surrender after an heroic conflict. It is in the last moment of despair that the artist who designed the statue (M. Millet, of Paris) has sought to represent the Gallic chief. The statue has been ably reproduced in metal by M. Aubert, who has been rewarded with the compliments of the Emperor, the gold medal of the Imperial Commission, and his election to a membership of the Société des Sciences, Belles-Lettres, Arts, et Industries of Paris. The very successful execution of this statue in cuivre repoussé is calculated to bring about important changes in the art of sculpture, especially in its application to public monuments in the open air. The idea of this process, to which the name of chalcoglyphy has been given, originated about ten years since in the mind of M. Casson, a working blacksmith at Montpellier (the subsequent instructor of M. Aubert), who has superseded the chisel by the hammer, and the marble by plates of copper, which he beats into the forms prescribed by his models. In these chalcoglyphic productions the copper, from its softness, can be transformed by the hammer into any shape, and in less than half the time required for the execution of works chiseled out of marble; the difference both in the cost of production and in the diminished weight of the statue or monument is very considerable. Besides, there is no necessity for the model to be of the size required for execution: the proportions alone are required; and the chalcoglyphic artist can even produce his statue, of any required size, from a drawing pointed to scale; the different plates being hammered in, and consequently also driven out, till the desired effect is obtained.

M. Aubert's interesting statue, including the base upon which the defender of Alesia stands, with his two hands tightly holding the hilt of his sword, is 27 ft. in height. The entire work is a perfect triumph for both the artists employed in it; but the head especially, and the muscles of the face, indicate admirably the strength, energy, and agitation of the despairing hero.

THE TOWN AND PORT OF ARICA.

As the seaport town of Arica, near the southern extremity of Peru, was lately the head-quarters and base of operations of the revolutionary faction in that distracted Republic, we give two Views of the place, from sketches made last April by Mr. F. E. Winsor and Mr. J. N. Dutton, officers of H.M.S. Shearwater, when lying in that harbour of the Pacific coast. The first is a View of the port, with its fortifications on the top of the cliff named the Morro Arica, and with a couple of the rebel ships and the British man-of-war in the port at anchor—namely, the Yomber gun-boat on the right, the Shearwater on the left, and the General Azundi in the centre. The Morro Arica is about 490 ft. high, a bold-looking cliff, making a noble contrast with the dull sandy hills in the background. The fort at the top is built of sand-bags, and its armament consists of ten 32-pounder guns, with one antiquated-looking gun which was raised from the wreck of a Spanish ship some twenty or thirty years ago, and has stood on the top of the hill since that time. The second View includes the railway station and workshops of the line running to Tacna, a city about forty miles inland. The station is the first building on the right; the centre buildings, which stand on the other side of the line, are flour-mills; the workshop is the farthest building on the left; and the building which is seen at the back of the View is one which stands in the cemetery of Arica, on the Zapa plain. The Zapa valley is very pretty, the green bushes making an agreeable contrast with the sandy hills which surround them. The trees in the foreground are chiefly cotton. It is a very pleasant walk along the line with this rare verdure on each side. About a quarter of a mile to the left of the station is the Water Battery, a battery of three guns, one of which is a large 16-inch American gun, and the other two 32-pounders. Altogether, the place is tolerably well fortified; and the fort on the hill commands the entire town, so that it would be difficult to land hostile troops without a considerable loss.

THE RAILWAY STATION, ARICA, PERU.



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1338.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE.

SHEFFIELD TRADES AND THEIR EFFECT UPON LIFE.

THE annual congress of the Social Science Association, held this year at Sheffield, under the presidency of the venerable Lord Brougham, may fairly claim to be regarded as the prominent event of the week. The Church Congress at Norwich would, perhaps, consider itself entitled to precedence, but the entire range of its discussions lies out of the sphere of this Journal. Even with regard to the first-named organisation, while cordially sympathising with its general objects, we watch its proceedings with an interest not wholly devoid of fear, for in the scientific investigation of all sorts of social evils with a view to their abatement and removal there is almost sure to spring up a healthy, more or less marked, to resort to functionarysm as the handiest instrument for rooting up pernicious and inveterate practices and habits. On the whole, however, we must do the association the justice to confess that the practical upshot of its proceedings has seldom shown much to justify our apprehensions, and that the benefits it has conferred on the community very largely outweigh the mischiefs which have hitherto resulted from the popularity of some of its less cautious members to over-legislation.

MEETING OF THE CHURCH CONGRESS IN ST. ANDREW'S HALL, NORWICH.—SEE NEXT PAGE.—SEE PAGE 363.

Sheffield, which this year acts the part of host to the association, furnishes also one of the most interesting of the topics of discussion. It is usually accounted churlishness in a guest to call his host to account whilst enjoying his hospitalities; but the etiquette of private life hardly extends to public visitations; and, if it did, Sheffield could have received no better proof of gratitude from the members of the body generously entertained than a kindly admonition to take better care of its health. The advice was timely, for the report of the Children's Employment Commission has recently attracted the attention of the public to the subject. It was also needed, for custom has so hardened that portion of the population engaged in deleterious occupations that the most frightful facts have ceased to horrify them, and the simplest precautions are for the most part neglected. And it was presented, as was most fitting, by a Sheffield man—a circumstance which should preclude all suspicion that it was invidiously meant. Mr. Sutherland, senior physician to the Sheffield Public Hospital, introduced the matter by reading to the Health Department of the association—over which Dr. Lankester, the Coroner, presided—a remarkably able paper on "The Effects of Certain Deadly Trades on Life and Health," in which the facts and suggestions set forth in which we proceed to call the attention of our readers. We shall limit our remarks to this single topic, the rather because a really serviceable résumé of the general proceedings would require more space than we can devote to it, and because the subject we have selected strikes us as being a specially apt one for illustrating the kind of work which the association most usefully performs.

The river town of Sheffield, numbering above 200,000 inhabitants, does not by any means suffer from unfavourable sanitary conditions. Of the brilliancy of its atmosphere, it is true, its foolish inhabitants would scarcely venture to boast; for, to the last extent common to large manufacturing towns, the air which they breathe may be characterised as "cacheniferous." As a set-off, however, to this disadvantage, they are supplied with abundance of pure water; and, although the drainage of the district is such as to occasion, here no considerable improvement, Sheffield does not lag far behind its neighbours in this respect. Its workpeople earn a high average of wages; the means of subsistence are cheap, and house accommodation for all classes is fairly good and ample. And yet the rate of mortality in Sheffield, according to the return of the Registrar-General, mounts up even now to 32 in 1000; or, to state the fact in words that will be more easily appreciated, there are 2000 deaths in a year in Sheffield over what there would be but for abnormal causes. Those causes exist in certain of the manufacturing processes carried on in the town and in the reckless contempt of health and even of life displayed by the operatives engaged in them.

Take the file-cutters, for instance. It is difficult to conceive a more vivid illustration than this class of workmen furnish of slow suicide by inattention to easy precautions against danger. During the process of cutting, the file rests upon a bed of lead, and every time that the chisel is struck by the cutter's hammer fine lead dust may be seen to rise. The consequence is that the people are poisoned by it. They have only to wash frequently, and to change their working dress when they leave the factories, to protect themselves against the evil to which they are exposed; but scarcely one in a thousand does it. So careless are they of the danger which their daily are but too familiar that they will eat their dinners in the workshops, with unwashed hands; and, as if predetermined to give their deadliest foe the best possible chance, will indulge in the perfectly gratuitous habit of ever and anon licking the finger and thumb with which they hold the chisel. The scissors and razor grinders are exposed to even greater danger, especially in what is called dry grinding. The "hulls" in which they work—old two or three deep—are filled with an atmosphere laden with the dust thrown off by the stone and steel, the inhalation of which produces the "grinders' disease" and inevitably ensures premature death. Most of these workpeople "miserably perish," says Dr. Hall, "before the age of thirty." Boys are sent at an early age into the grinding-hulls, and that, moreover, by their own parents, with the terrible certainty of becoming enfeebled in mind, and dwarfed, decrepit, and often deformed in body. The constant cry of "Any files to grind?" at grinder in a hull would obviate, if not completely, yet to a very large extent, the mischief which hurries these poor creatures to the grave. Few of them, however, provide themselves with the simple means of protection, and, when provided for them by their employers, the smallest amount of trouble in setting it to work will suffice to prevent their use of it.

Upon whom, then, is the blame of this unnecessary, because preventible, mortality to be charged? The means of prevention are within easy reach of the workpeople themselves; and what can be said of men who, having them, deliberately choose to neglect them? We have, however, to bear in mind that these people, for the most part, have been brought up from tender years in the very midst of the perils which hourly assail them. Set to work, many of them, before education has formed their minds, they remain mere children in character to the end of their days. They have never known what reflection is. Their forecast seldom extends beyond the end of the week when they receive their wages. Their alternations of toil and intemperance disqualify them for a reasonable appreciation of healthful life, and a thorough recklessness in regard to the future is almost characteristic of the class. It becomes a question whether their moral defects challenge our censure more than our pity. Are the masters, then, most to be blamed in this matter? It is impossible to withdraw them from responsibility, and yet their share of the guilt may have been—at least, in a large number of instances—almost unconsciously contracted. It is only of late that the relationship of employers to employed has been recognised as imposing obligations beyond those which are purely economical, and the ordinary motives to go beyond them are greatly weakened in cases where the duty enjoined is to take care of workpeople who cannot be induced to take care of themselves. No one can one wholly acquit public opinion in Sheffield, for, surely, if it were not somewhat dulled and perverted by familiarity with the wrong of which it cannot but be cognisant, so great a scandal and a sin would not long be permitted to exist.

It is of much less importance, however, to apportion blame amongst those to whom it is due than to point out an appropriate remedy. Undoubtedly the first step in the authority of law to secure ends which ought to be guaranteed by individual responsibility, it becomes necessary at times to do by means of the former that which is left undone by the inertness of the latter. In some instances, as in the following impertinence, for example, to fix by law the rate of speed at which vehicles may be driven through the streets; but when the drivers of omnibuses or cabs choose to indulge in racing along a public, and, it may be, a crowded thoroughfare, regardless of the manifest danger of their own necks, of the lives of their passengers, and of any man, woman, or child who may chance to cross the road on foot, it is imperatively demanded by common-sense that the protective law should be called into operation for the relief of the nuisance. In like manner, where the competition of trade is so keen as to become wholly negligent of health and life, it becomes expedient for a higher power to step in and enforce precautions which shall secure the safety of all. Here especially is this felt to be the case when others, such as women and children, are sacrificed to an authority which they cannot resist. We hope, therefore, to see the frightful state of things we have so imperfectly described as connected with some of the Sheffield trades brought under the notice of Parliament and legally suppressed. It can be done without abridging any man's gains or injuriously infringing upon any man's individual liberty. And done it must be, whatever may become of our economical theories; for the premature death of 2000 human beings, in a population of not more than 200,000, every year cannot be permitted to continue after having been fairly brought to light without publicly declaring it to be the misdemeanour of the nation which suffers it. "Salus populi suma lex."

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our own Correspondent.) PARIS, Oct. 12.

THE Empress Eugenie, accompanied by her Majesty's Ambassador, visited the Cathedral of Chartres, and were received by the Emperor and Empress on the steps of the Villa Eugenie. After a promenade in the grounds and a drive through the environs of the town, the Royal party breakfasted together. At seven o'clock the King and Queen left for Bordeaux, accompanied, as far as the railway station at Negresse, by his Excellency Lord Cowley, who left the following night for Paris on Wednesday evening, and drove at once to the Tuileries, where the Travelling Equipages of their Majesties were in readiness.

The season of "les bains" and of "la petite campagne" is fast drawing to a close. Already many fashionable families may be observed among the host of commoner vehicles which daily navigate the ever-crowded streets of the Boulogne. Many golden fortunes, late-waggons make their way into Paris in all hours from various points of the suburbs, and, in a week or so, Paris will have awakened to a new life. Soon, the Champs Elysées here, and the old boulevard and many of the grandees of the hour will be passing the autumn at their châteaux. Still, the living current will flow strong, and a tone to Parisian society will have returned to their favourite hive. The little social circles which each spoke has formed will be left for the winter, and the various improvised watering-places have returned to their humble state. The élite of society can say that "it is all over with Dieppe for this year. The plage is given up to the sea-gulls and the fishwomen. The town is covered with linen and herring-nets. The etablissement is making melancholy efforts to show that all is not quite over, in the shape of a terrace concert for the children every week; but the tidal boats have ceased to run, the excursions are at an end, the hotels are closing for the winter, the Casino shall presently be nothing off at a great reduction, and upon every house is the well-known yellow bill announcing apartments to let." The poor landlord indeed is madame, the lodging-house keeper, now! "You would not know her for the same individual you encountered in July, when she was come 47 or 48 a week for her few little rooms. She is now anxious to let them for the mere honour of keeping you. She assures you that there is excellent society in Dieppe during the winter months, and that it is very gay. It must be, during that sloppy part, amid the herring barrels, the dripping fishwives, the gloomy coast-guard blue officers, and the blue-hosed crew of the Newhaven steamer lounging about with their hands in their pockets! I happen to know what Dieppe is in January; so the lodging-house keeper would only have wasted her breath on me. Dieppe is dreadful in the winter, and had every opportunity of enjoying Dieppe in the frost—Dieppe, when all the big ponds are thick and bordered up, and the sea-gulls are sense given over to tar, and fish, and mud; when the howling east wind shrieks through the deserted streets; and the sea, as the horizon looks warm is the red breeches of the sentry, perched up on the castle terrace. The English are few there, the Dieppe, and there are no Parisians. By the 15th of October the Parisians are all on their way from the seaside, either to Paris or to their châteaux. The Dieppe people have recovered their grande decoction, or octoi, as the care may be, to sat brown bread at famine prices in the moist cabin at Pourville, or the Café des Voyageurs (which is a converted washed wall. The valley of Arques is left to the herons. The daily market is reduced at a fourth, the weekly market, and the ivory-carvers have little hope of disposing of even another napkin-ring. So Paris is filling again, and people, casting away their seaside hat and feathers, the suit-at-barges, and the sand-shoes, are thinking of ordering their stock of firewood and of "organising" their winter toilettes.

It is now no secret that cholera has been, if not rife, at any rate, unpleasantly active, in Paris during the past two or three weeks. In the short space of time the medical journals inform us that 300 persons have been attacked, about half of whom are believed to have recovered. The stereotyped explanation of the appearance of this fearful malady among us is, of course, given. We are told that it is only in ill-drained, ill-ventilated quarters, and among a class of the population prepared either by poverty or excesses to be its victims, that the disease has taken any hold. But this is poor consolation to modern Paris, who knows how various are the influences at work which are likely to cause this scourge to spread. It is quite true the present has been an exceptional season. It is true that, owing to the recent drought, Paris and a considerable portion of its suburbs have had to put up with the inconvenience of a scarcity of water, arising from the subsidence of the waters of the Seine. The authorities, we know, have done their best to remedy this evil, having gone to the length of even putting the public fountains on short time. Let me ask Mr. Bidez, Minister of Public Works, and Mr. Dronyn de Lhuys, the Emperor recommending a diplomatic conference of the representatives of the various European Powers for the organisation of sanitary measures in the East to check the advance of cholera among the Hadjis, if the Seine is not to be well filled, as it now is, by directing attention to the beam in your neighbour's eye to see to the removal of the one still existing in your own?

On Sunday last a statue of Buffon, the celebrated French naturalist, whose writings have delighted and beguiled almost as many generations as those of Defoe, was inaugurated at Montbard, in Burgundy, just after the waters had been set flowing for the first time from the new reservoir which now supplies the public fountains of the town. A public holiday was declared, and such rejoicings on the part of the assembled populace. The statue—which has been executed on the terrace of the château where Buffon resided, and only a few steps from the entrance to the cave in which he wrote his books—is from the work of M. Dumont, who has represented the celebrated naturalist in his characteristic costume of the ancien régime rather than that of savant—attired in an embroidered Court suit, with rich lace ruffles, holding, however, a roll of manuscript in his hand, as though to indicate his connection with the ranks of literature.

The Papal chancellerie has recently manufactured numerous historical articles in the French papers, wherein the wholesale excommunication thundered from the Palace of the Quirinal is not only treated as a dead letter, but made the mark at which no small shafts of ridicule are aimed. Who, I asked, "is a good citizen of Paris to do? General Mellinet, who is Grand Master of the Masonic order in France, is also General-in-Chief of the National Guard. If you obey him, you are excommunicated; if you don't, you are liable to the guardhouse, which is certainly the more inconvenient alternative of the two."

The etymology of the word "Fenian," which early engaged the attention of some of the learned members of the press, has been traced to the satisfaction of the Parisians. "Fenian" and "feignant" are pronounced precisely similar, and the latter word being a synonym for fainéant, which signifies a lazy, good-for-nothing fellow, the elucidation is looked upon as settled to a nicety.

One star in the Paris firmament has ceased to shine for a time. I allude to the notorious Mdlle. Théresa, the so-called divinity of the Alcazar, a well-known establishment in the Champs Elysées, whose portrait, forming a frontispiece to her memoirs, waylays you in every bookseller's shop-window. She is anything but a handsome-looking woman, with a somewhat masculine cast of countenance, and possessed of a powerful voice. Her popularity is the result of a certain class of songs—one or more written in a rude patois, the descriptive points of which she gives with great action. For months past she has been the rage here; and now, all of a sudden, her voice is no longer heard, and Mdlle. Théresa remains invisible in the balmy evening air. Mdlle. Théresa, tempted by some golden offer to star elsewhere, has left the cabin quitted the realm where she reigned supreme, and lounges cannot help feeling that she has left behind her something like a void.

ITALY.

The King has appointed thirty-two senators.

Garibaldi's address to the Romans in reference to the approaching elections is contained in a letter dated Caprera, the 1st inst., which has been published. The following are the words:—"I do not interfere, nor do I wish to do so, with the elections. Italy is no longer a minor. It is for the people to elect their deputies. Woe to them and grief to us if the choice be bad."

AUSTRIA.

The Austrian Gazette states that the conclusion of the new loan may be regarded as an accomplished fact.

The Prince Primate of Hungary has published a sort of manifesto in reference to the approaching meeting of the Diet, in which he calls upon the electors to exercise the influence placed in them by the Emperor by choosing as their representatives men "not animated by passion but by a patriotic and practical prudence and fairness," and, "above all, by an earnest desire for reconciliation."

The Emperor has authorised the recruiting of volunteers for the Mexican army among the Italian troops in order to fill up vacancies caused by the death or departure of other Austrian soldiers in Maximilian's service. The number of the new levy will not exceed 2000.

Baron Bibra has received his appointment as Austrian Ambassador at Rome in succession to Baron Bach.

PRUSSIA.

The Crown Prince and Princess returned to Berlin from their trip to the Harz mountains.

The Minister of Trade and the law officers are engaged in a consideration of the usury laws with a view to their abrogation, or at least modification.

SWEDEN AND NORWAY.

The opening of the Legislative Assembly of Norway (the Storthing) took place, on the 2nd inst., at Christiania.

The committee instituted by the King to modify the system of the national defences has published the results of its labours. It proposes that the army shall henceforth consist of 50,000 men in time of peace and 70,000 men on a war footing; that the capital and the towns of Carlskrona and Carlskrona shall be fortified; and that a fortress shall be erected at Norland and another in Gothland, and different works of defence in the port of Gothenburg.

RUSSIA.

The authorities of Warsaw have received a notification that the state of siege in the kingdom of Poland is to conclude with the present year. They are therefore instructed to make out a scale of legal punishments for offences to be introduced by the police tribunals.

The St. Petersburg Gazette states that there has been an immense consumption in the last year of Taganrog.—Taganrog.—Odessa government of Samara, and that 278 houses had been reduced to ashes.

GREECE.

The Ministers of War, Marine, and Justice have tendered their resignation. The Ministry has therefore been modified, as follows:—M. Cumoundros, President of the Council and Minister of Finance; M. Lorgendes, Minister of the Interior; M. Bralis, Minister of Foreign Affairs; M. Lazaretos, Minister of War and Marine; M. Caliga, Minister of Justice and Public Worship.

UNITED STATES.

Mr. Secretary Seward had issued a notice that lists of claims against foreign Governments, including claims for compensation for the depredations of the Alabama and other Confederate cruisers and of Confederate raiders from Canada, are to be sent to the State Department, in order that they may be preferred for settlement.

The Alabama Convention has repudiated the whole Confederate debt. The Massachusetts Democratic State Convention has indorsed the President's reconstruction policy.

The South Carolina Convention had passed resolutions embodying the opinions expressed by the deputation from the State in their interview with the President—namely, that the people having been defeated it was not wise to continue the contest, and that the restoration of the Union was now the paramount object to be sought. The Convention accordingly repealed the Secession Ordinance, decreed the abolition of slavery, and passed other measures in accordance with the President's views, and then adjourned.

The trial of Wirtz still goes on; but he is sinking fast, and it is not believed that he will live to hear the sentence. "The defence," says a correspondent who has formerly said all he can for the prisoner, "will have hard work of it. Nothing that can be brought forward in extenuation of Wirtz's atrocities can counterbalance the mass of damning evidence against him. Yesterday he was subjected to the ordeal of personal identification by the witnesses. He was compelled to stand up in open court; and, after inspection by the person giving evidence, he sank down and fainted away. A physician constantly sits by his side, in the court-room, and is in hand necessary to administer either frequently in order to keep life in him through the day's sitting of the Court."

A large Fenian meeting has been held at the Cooper Institute, New York. The speeches denounced the British Government and solicited contributions in aid of the Fenian organisation.

In a speech by President Johnson, addressed to a newly-accredited Brazilian Minister, Mr. Jonquim de Araujo, we find these words:—"Our wish is not to weaken new American States, but to strengthen them; we are more disposed to aid with a generous confidence than to feel jealous at their prosperity or to cavil at their form of government."

Intercontinental cables have been severely felt all along the Gulf coast.

The Panama Star announces that the commander of the British war-steamer Clarence, lying at Acapulco, on the receipt of information of the depredations of the Shenandoah, immediately started in pursuit of her, asserting that, if he overhauled her, he should treat her as a pirate.

MEXICO.

An Imperial decree has been published declaring Mexico open to emigrants from all countries. Every emigrant will receive a piece of land, with an authentic and immutable title, will be exempt from military service for five years, and will enjoy all the privileges which are the source of some of indecisive actions between the Republican and the Imperial forces.

INDIA.

The Bombay mail has brought correspondence and papers from Bombay to Sept. 8.

Sir Hastle Frere had held a Durbar at Poonah and addressed the chiefs in their own languages, boldly telling them of many of their shortcomings and deficiencies.

There had been an insurrection in Chajalpore, and the Nawab had been forced to take to flight.

Mr. Kinlock Forbes, the Judge of the High Court of Bombay, died, on Aug. 31.

The rainfall has been abundant, and the crops were looking well.

The Papal conduct of the Goa Church Pandemonium Mary has been completed and formally opened.

The Eagle Royal, which sailed from Port Canning for Mauritius on the 26th of August last, having on board 467 coolies, was lost at the mouth of the Matlah, and 328 coolies are believed to have perished.

Intelligence had been received of the loss of her Majesty's steamer Hugh Lyndsey, off Bussidore.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

The Melbourne Chamber of Commerce had passed a resolution to open a mail service between that port and Galle.

Intelligence had reached Melbourne from New Zealand that a pah with an unintelligible name had been captured by the colonial forces, without casualties, and that ninety-eight Maories were taken.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, with Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and the members of the Royal family, have returned to Balmoral Castle.

On Tuesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse and Princess Helena and attended by the gentlemen in waiting, drove to Loch Callater. Princess Louis and Prince Arthur, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. C. Grey, Major Elphinstone, Mrs. Grey, and Miss Grey, rode out. Prince Leopold took a drive.

On Wednesday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louis and attended by the Marchioness of Ely, drove to Loch Buig, returning to the castle by Invercauld. Princess Louis of Hesse and Princess Helena took a drive.

On Thursday week the Queen held a Council at the castle, which was attended by the Prince of Wales, the Duke de Bedford, Lord Wood, and the Right Hon. E. Cardwell. Mr. Harrison officiated as clerk of the Council. Subsequently her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, took a drive. Later in the day the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and attended by Lady Churchill, drove out. Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and Princess Louis, attended by gentlemen and ladies in waiting, walked in the Glairnshiel. The Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Hilda of Anhalt, and Prince John of Holstein-Glücksburg dined with her Majesty.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse, Princess Helena, and Prince Arthur, drove to Abergeldie Castle, on the side of the River Dee, and thence through the Slogan Glen, towards Ben-a-Bourd. The Royal party then proceeded on foot through the crest of the mountain, returning to the castle in the evening. Prince Leopold, attended by the Rev. W. Leask, drove to Bull, near the Lynn of Dee. The Right Hon. E. Cardwell had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales and Princess Helena, drove through Glenmuick to the Falls of Garrienslie and to Glen Ey. Lieutenant-General Knollys and Mrs. and Miss Knollys had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Sunday the Queen and Royal Princesses attended Divine service in the parish church of Crathie. The Rev. Dr. Boyd, of St. Andrews, officiated. The Right Hon. E. Cardwell had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by the Marchioness of Ely, left the castle on Tuesday on a visit for three days to the Duchess Dowager of Athole at Dunkeld. Her Majesty travelled in a carriage and four, proceeding via Braemar, thence over the Cairnwell and by the Spittal of Glenshee. Her Majesty lunched at Bunkeen about a mile south of the Spittal. The journey was afterwards resumed, via Blairgowrie, to Dunkeld.

The Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, travelling under the title of the Count and Countess Staufenberg, arrived at Inverness on Saturday last.

The Right Hon. E. Cardwell has succeeded Sir Charles Wood in attendance upon the Queen.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Abergeldie Castle.

On Thursday week the Prince, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse, Prince John of Glücksburg, and Major Rig, was present at a deer drive in the forest of Inverenzie, and in the Balochbuie. The drive was commenced at the highest peak of Craigen Taggart. The Prince brought down a fine stag. Subsequently the Royal party rode, and ended the day's sport.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess, and Prince John of Glücksburg, attended Divine service in the parish church of Crathie.

It is stated that the Prince and Princess will entertain the Earl and Countess of Derby with a visit at Knowsley Park, after their Royal Highness's visit to the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe, at Floors Castle.

PRINCE ALFRED.

His Royal Highness Prince Alfred, attended by Lieutenant Haig, arrived at Dover, yesterday week, in the Government steamer Vivid from Ostend, and disembarked at the Admiralty Pier. The Prince left Dover by the eight o'clock mail-express-train upon the South-Eastern Railway, arriving at Charing-cross at thirty-five minutes past ten. His Royal Highness was received at the station by Sir John Rowell, K.C.B., Mr. J. P. Knight, superintendent of the South-Eastern line; and Colonel Cockburn, superintendent of police, who, with a guard, drove immediately to Buckingham Palace. His Royal Highness afterwards visited the Duke of Cambridge, at Gloucester House. In the evening the Prince honoured the Princess's Theatre with his presence. On Saturday evening his Royal Highness honoured the Olympic Theatre with his presence.

On Sunday evening the Prince, attended by Lieutenant Haig, left Buckingham Palace en route for Scotland. His Royal Highness passed through Edinburgh, on Monday, en route to Balmoral, on a visit to the Queen, previously to his departure on an extended European cruise in H.M.S. Racoon.

His Excellency Lord Wodehouse (the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland) and Lady Wodehouse have left London for Dublin.

The Duchess Dowager of Athole arrived at Dunkeld yesterday (Friday) week from visiting Mr. and Lady Anne H. Drummond-Moray at Abercairny, their seat in Perthshire.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde have arrived in town from Morden House.

The Marquis of Carmarthen has arrived at Thomas's Hotel, Berkeley-square.

The Countess of Leicester and the Ladies Coke have left Farnham's Hotel for Holkham Hall, Norfolk.

The Countess of Lucan has arrived at the Alexandra Hotel from Harrogate.

Viscount and Viscountess Chelsea have left Ashdown Park for a tour in Norfolk.

The Right Hon. J. E. Denison and Lady Charlotte Denison have arrived at Ossington, Notts, from Baby Castle, after a tour of visits in Scotland.

The Right Hon. T. Milner Gibson has left town for Theberton House, Saxmundham.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Archbishop of York began his primary visitation on Monday. The charge was delivered at the close of the morning service in York Cathedral.

Dr. Vaughan, the Vicar of Doncaster, has appealed to his congregation to increase the pecuniary income of that living by voluntary subscription.

The archdeaconry of Barnstaple, vacant by the death of Archdeacon Bencraft, has been conferred by the Bishop of Exeter on the Rev. Henry Woolcombe, Canon Residentiary of Exeter and Vicar of Honiton.

In the parish of Woodland, not far from the foot of Coniston Water, the Bishop of Chester consecrated the new church and burying-ground of St. John the Evangelist on the 18th ult.

The Rev. Thomas Leighton, Incumbent of St. Clement's, Manchester, has been presented by the ladies of his congregation with a set of robes and a purse. This is the first instance recorded of the kind, we presume, in men during his incumbency of St. Clement's.

On Wednesday week the council commenced the use of a special form of prayer for the removal of the cattle plague and the preservation of the public health. The prayer was read at the close of the morning service in most of the churches last Sunday.

On the 29th ult. the parish church of Shipton Moyne, Gloucestershire, was reopened for Divine service by the Bishop of the diocese, after having undergone a thorough restoration, during which time it has been entirely refitted, at the expense of the Right Hon. Lord Sherborne (formerly Mr. Henry W. E. Wyndham Knatchbull).

On the 28th ult. a very successful choral festival was held at the handsome church of Denbaugh, in the parish of Passenham, Northamptonshire. The services, rendered by the choirs of Denbaugh, Stoke Bruerne, and the parishes of Wicken Passenham, Grafton Regis, Furtescopy with Yardley, Hackleton, and Cosgrove, were conducted by the National Society's school in the last-named parish.

On Wednesday week the Lord Primate of all Ireland began holding the triennial visitation of his province at Armagh, in the cathedral of that city. The object of the visit is to see into the condition of the clergy, on the succeeding days, when his Grace was attended by the Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore, the Bishop of Kilmore, and the Archdeacon of Armagh, and other dignitaries of the Church. The visitation was opened by a charge delivered to the clergy, especially the right of meeting in Convocation; and the Primate's address was listened to with much attention by the assembled clergy.

Dr. Pusey writes as follows to the Guardian in reference to a rumour that a "reconciliation" had been effected between him and Dr. Newman:—"I have not seen Dr. Newman since 1845, nor, I think, any private feelings, but the statement which you copied from the Times is entirely untrue. We have never ceased to love and respect each other, but we have never been separated. We intensely pained that I cannot help myself. The statement is that Dr. Newman and myself were 'reconciled after twenty years.' We have never been separated, and therefore have not been reconciled. Has never been in the least overshadowed. His bearing as was one of the deep sorrows of my life. I have not changed in any one of my views or determinations of election.—E. B. PUSEY, Christ Church, Oxford."

The following list of ecclesiastical appointments have recently been made:—Rev. B. Lenard, Rector of Winterbourne, Wilts, to be Rural Dean, Chippenham. Rev. J. Bowstead, Vicar of Ellesmere, Shropshire, to be Surrogate. Rev. E. Hurlstone, Vicar of Ellesmere, Shropshire, to be Surrogate. Rev. E. Hurlstone, Vicar of Ellesmere, Shropshire, to be Surrogate. Rev. E. Parker, to South Stoke with North Stoke Rectory, Oxon. Rev. T. Johnson, Vicar of Ellesmere, Shropshire, to be Surrogate. Rev. E. Hurlstone, Vicar of Ellesmere, Shropshire, to be Surrogate

AN EXPLORING PARTY ON THE WEST COAST OF NEW ZEALAND.

FLOATING DOWN THE RIVER TERAMAKAU.

THE west coast of the Middle Island of New Zealand, where the most recently discovered gold-fields have attracted within the last twelvemonth a population of ten or twelve thousand persons, was an almost unknown region in the early part of the year 1863. The auriferous district watered by the rivers Teramakau and Okotiki, lying in that part of Canterbury Province next the southern boundary of Nelson, though distant less than a hundred miles from the settled and civilised country around Christchurch, had scarcely ever been visited, except by Mr. Brunner and another traveller, eight or ten years ago, and by a few casual adventurers, who gave but a very imperfect account of its situation. Three gentlemen of the colony—namely, the Messrs. Walker, brothers, and Mr. M'Farlane—in February and March, 1863, were the first Englishmen who thoroughly explored the coast between the Teramakau and Wanganui rivers. There had been several previous expeditions, but they had all failed to get so far south as the Wanganui. It was this party which first brought back the certain information of the existence of gold in that region which now promises to surpass the richest gold-fields of Otago, Victoria, or New South Wales—the Messrs. Walker having found a Maori at work making a sluice-box for gold-washing in a small stream which runs into the Teramakau, when they visited that district two years and a half ago. We have been favoured by Mr. Albert Walker, now in England, with a few sketches of the romantic scenery and of the incidents of travel in the wilderness, through forest and mountain pass, along the sea beach, or by the channel of a broad and rapid stream, which he and his companions found wearing the primitive aspect of nature, before those places had been converted into the highway of an eager crowd of gold-hunters, "prospecting" far and wide for the coveted abundance of precious metal in the sands and rocks of the district. Mr. Walker read an interesting paper on this subject before the British Association at their Bath meeting in 1864, and again before the Royal Geographical Society in London this year; some passages of his journal had already been published in the Leyteller Press in April, 1863. We may extract so much as will serve to explain the four sketches from which our Engravings in this week's paper are made. "The party having started from Double Corner, in the Christchurch plain, on the 3rd of February, with a pack-horse carrying a load of flour, oatmeal, tea, tobacco, and sugar, and a few other necessaries, stopped at Mr. Taylor's station, on the shore of the Lake Tekapo, and remained some days by the wet weather. On the 13th, having packed their provisions in the form of "swag," to be carried on their own backs, they set forth, leaving the horse, and walked over the "saddle," or "col," as it would be called in Switzerland, leading through the Alpine range of mountains which forms "the backbone of the Middle Island." They soon came down into the Tarnaman valley. The most alarming adventure here was that, on the second night, they had the misfortune to burn their tent down. Mr. M'Farlane, who was close to sleep with an end of the tent canvas wrapped about his head, could not get himself disentangled, when he woke up and ran away in a fright, but dragged the blazing canvas with him a certain distance, and was rather badly burned. Mr. A. Walker thus resumes his narrative:—

CROSSING THE RIVER TERAMAKAU

AN EXPLORING PARTY ON THE WEST COAST OF NEW ZEALAND.

ENCAMPMENT IN THE TERAMAKAU VALLEY.

MOUTH OF THE WANGANUI RIVER.

"We arrived at the spot, following the course of the Tersmakan, where further progress is stopped by the valley being blocked up by a low range of densely wooded hills; here the river enters a very narrow cut of gorge, the banks being nearly perpendicular for 20 ft. to 80 ft. high, and the river running with great rapidity. As there was no room on either side to follow the stream up, we were here obliged to construct a machán, on which to float down the river. We had first to collect a quantity of the flax-bushes, which grow to about 15 ft. long, 1 in. in diameter, and porous, like a cork. We cut bundles sufficient of these to make about twenty-five, which bundle I ft. in diameter, 10 ft. long, and tapering towards one end like a cigar. Our next step was to place a number of these bundles side by side, tying them strongly with flax. Then we cut down a tree 30 ft. long, 1 ft. wide at the stem, something in shape like a ships' dingy. We again had to collect more of these rafts, and placed a row of the one we lashed all three strongly together, and, when finished, it stood 3 ft. high. With this hastily-built machán we intended to have our swag carried along by the swift and rapid current to the sea—a distance of twelve miles. At one time we were caught in a whirl, and were run ashore spinning round and round."

Our second Illustration shows the scene in which Messrs. Walker and M'Farlane, with a Maori guide, contrived to wade across the River Tersmakan, about half a mile from its mouth, the water being, at no point, up to a man's breast, but the chief danger was that the guide could not swim. The advantage of their all holding on by one stick is therefore quite apparent, as any one of the three would be able to gain support from the others. At high tide the water here was 7 ft. or 8 ft. deep. In other places the river was shallower, and one of the party had a narrow escape from drowning.

The subject of the two remaining Illustrations was taken from the picturesque scenery of this district; one being a place on the banks of the Tersmakan, about twenty miles below the Lake Tekapo, and the other a range of mountains, where the party encamped on their homeward journey; while the other is a View of the mouth of the Wangawai, on the west coast. This name was the Maori appellation for what another Wangauni, a settlement on the shore of Cook's Strait, in the Northern Island, between Wellington and New Plymouth. Mr. Walker says, "The scenery at the mouth of the Wangauni is very peculiar. On the one side it appears to be a high mountain range, covered with bush right in bright, covered with trees and shrubs to its summit; this is joined to the mainland, which is also high and hilly, but is not covered with bush land, also covered with trees and shrubs. There is also a good-sized sand island just at the mouth of the river. It is large enough to have entrance on either side, and ever to render it of any use for vessels. From this neighbourhood we could see the highest mountain in New Zealand, Mount Cook, which is near 13,000 ft. in height. We conjecture that the Wangauni takes its rise from somewhere in the neighbourhood of that mountain."

Now ready,

PRICE ONE SHILLING, BEAUTIFULLY PRINTED IN COLOURS,

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR 1866, containing GREAT EXHIBITION BUILDINGS by Charles Whitley, Printed in the Highest Style of the Chromatic Art, by Leighton Brothers, with an Interesting description of them by Mrs. Lankester. Twelve Fine-Art Engravings; Astronomical Diagrams of Remarkable Phenomena, with explanatory Letterpress; and numerous Wild Flowers as headings to the Calendars.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK years after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has been placed in circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK for 1866 will be without cover, printed in colours by the same process as the Engravings, and issued in time for the Christmas demand for drawing-room table.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

BIRTHS.

On the 24th of August, at St. Helena, the wife of James M. Gideon, Esq., of a daughter.

At Dublin, the Hon. Mrs. Chaloner-Ogle, of a son.

At Dublin, the Hon. Mrs. Fitzgerald, wife of Right Hon. J. D. Fitzgerald, of a daughter.

At Fairlawn, Surrey, Boynton, the Hon. Mrs. A. Swift, of a son.

At Ireland-gate, the Countess of Strathmore, of a daughter.

On Aug. 31, at Mercara, Coorg, India, the wife of Capt. Drummond, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 2nd inst., at Cloughton, the wife of George Brownell, Esq., of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 11th inst., at the parish church, Exeter, Manchester, by the Rev. Samuel Hughes, M.A., Vicar of Wrentham, Northumberland, assisted by the Rev. H. M. Harrap, M.A., Incumbent of Christ Church, Exeter, Edward Hall, Esq., of Ashfield, in Hornsea, only daughter of the late Samuel Thackwell, of Doddington, Manchester, and Ashfield.

On the 5th inst., at St. Peter's Church, Pimlico, John George Milner, Esq., only son of John S. Milner, Esq., of Cowthorpe Oaks, Yorkshire, to Mary, youngest daughter of the late John Martin, Esq., of Hippingrove House, Huntingdonshire. No cards.

On the 11th inst., at the parish church, Millbrook, Hants, by the Rev. T. Haintree Sawbridge, Rector, J. Sewrington Alexander, Esq., of Ashton, to Agnes Downing, youngest daughter of G. Downing Fripp, Esq., M.D., of Burnfield, Millbrook. No cards.

On the 26th ult., at St. Thomas's Church, Dorchester (father of the bridegroom), Rev. George Bull, Vicar of Arreton, Isle of Wight, to Caroline Frances Mary, W. Boyd, Esq., of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and Miss Diana Hawks, only daughter of Thomas Hawks, Esq., of Dorchester. Isle of Man.

DEATHS.

On Aug. 31, at Mangon Castle, Bombay, Goolbye, a beloved daughter of Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, Bart.

On the 13th inst., at Station Hall, Manchester, Jane Elizabeth, wife of Colonel Sir Thomas Reynell Brandreth, Knight of Hanover, and Knight of the Guelphic Order, aged 57.

On the 13th inst., at Upper Grosvenor-street, Augusta Sarah Sutton, sixth daughter of the late Hon. and Rev. Henry Sutton, Rector of Mells, Somerset, and sister of the late Rev. William Sutton, Vicar of the same parish, and for many years the preceptor and friend of the Crown Princess of Saxony, then Princess Carola Vasa. Friends will please accept this intimation.

On the 5th ult., at Malaga, Dolores, eldest daughter of Mr. John Clement, after a lingering illness, borne with the most Christian resignation, aged 23.

On the 30th ult., at Clive House, Beckenham, Kent, Lieut.-Colonel Henry Alexander, late 90th Foot, in the 71st year of his age. Relatives and friends will kindly accept this intimation.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 21.

SUNDAY, Oct. 15.—Eighteenth Sunday after Trinity. Birth of Allan Ramsay, Scottish poet, 1686. Death of John Foster, essayist, 1843.
MONDAY, 16.—Execution of Marie Antoinette, Queen of France, 1793. The British Houses of Parliament burnt, 1834.
TUESDAY, 17.—St. Etheldreda (or Audrey), queen and virgin. Surrender of the Admiral and army at Saratoga to the Americans by General Burgoyne, 1777.
WEDNESDAY, 18.—St. Luke the Evangelist. Henry II. at Waterford received the homage of the Irish chiefs, 1171.
THURSDAY, 19.—Death of King John, 1216. Another eclipse of the sun, 9m. 57s. p.m.
FRIDAY, 20.—Battle of Navarino, 1827. New moon, 9h. 57m. p.m.
SATURDAY, 21.—Battle of Trafalgar, 1805. Surrender of Ulm to General Mack and the Austrian army surrendered to Napoleon I., 1805.

SATURDAY, Sept. 30.—Battle of Assaye, Deccan, 1803. Death of John Philpot Curran, orator, 1817; and of Charles R. Horn, musical composer, 1841.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE, FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 21.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
11 11 m	0 0 m	0 49 m	1 37 m	2 25 m	3 13 m	4 1 m

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 10′ 47″ W.; Height above sea, 24 feet.

Oct.	DAILY MEANS OF							THERMOMETER						WIND.		RAIN
	DAY.	Barometer reduced to 32° and Sea Level	Dew Point	Humidity	Ozone	Solar Radiation	Terrestrial Radiation	Maximum in the Sun's Rays	Minimum on the Grass	General Diurnal	Maximum in Shade	Minimum in Shade	Range	General Diurnal	Miles per Hour	Inches in Depth
		Inches	°	°	0–10	°	°	°	°	°	°	°	°			Inches
4	Wednesday	29·749	49·2	·72	3	0·0	0·0	58·0	42·0	S. ESE.	56·0	46·0	10·0	S.	3·6	·000
5	Thursday	29·638	47·7	67·4	0·0	0	40·6	60·5	38·5	ESE. E.	56·0	43·0	13·0	SSE.	3·6	·000
6	Friday	29·737	47·2	67·1	0·0	0	40·6	60·5	38·5	ESE. E.	56·0	43·0	13·0	SSE.	3·6	·000
7	Saturday	29·909	47·9	67·9	·02	0	42·0	60·5	38·5	E.	56·0	43·0	13·0	E.	3·6	·000
8	Sunday	29·917	47·3	67·2	·02	0	42·0	60·5	38·5	E.	56·0	43·0	13·0	E.	3·6	·000
9	Monday	29·912	47·2	67·2	·02	0	42·8	60·5	38·5	E.	56·0	43·0	13·0	E.	3·6	·137
10	Tuesday	29·959	47·9	64·7	·03	0	48·3	64·0	SSW. 8.58.1		56·0	43·0	13·0	E.	3·6	·229

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, at 10 o'clock in the morning:—

Barometer (in inches) corrected ... 30·033 | 30·073 | 30·034 | 29·926 | 29·938 | 29·971 | 29·938
Dry Bulb ... 51·0° | 51·0° | 57·0° | 57·0° | 54·0° | 54·0° | 54·0°
Temperature of Evaporation ... 49·0° | 50·5° | 57·0° | 52·0° | 51·0° | 49·0° | 49·0°
Direction of Wind ... S. | S. | S. | S. | S. | S. | S.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Managers, Messrs. E. Falconer and F. B. Chatterton.—MONDAY, OCT. 16, and Every Evening during the week, the Grand Spectacular Drama of ARABIAN NIGHTS, with the Original Scenery, Dresses, Properties, and Effects. Characters by Messrs. Phelps, Belmore, Meadows, Neville, Tilbury, Pringle, and Vollaire; Mesdames Vining, Poynter, Fitzgerald, and Saburyby. Mr. Phelps; on Wednesday and Thursday, Mr. Belmore; on Friday, Mr. Meadows; on Saturday, Mr. Neville. Mr. Barnes, Mr. Bigwood, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Barrett, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Harcourt, Mr. Barnett, Mr. J. Neville, Mr. Macready, Mr. G. Warde, Mr. Vollaire, Miss Vining, Miss Atkinson, Miss Poole, Miss Augusta Thomson, Miss F. Falconer, and Miss Kate Saburyby. Preceded at Seven o'clock by the Comedy of THE WIFE'S SECRET. Doors open at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven o'clock. The performances commence at Seven o'clock.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr. CHARLES MATHEWS Every Evening, after his recent remarkable and most triumphant performances in America, Australia, and India, will appear in his Entertainment of AT HOME, which he has given in the English provinces, and which will be repeated during his original engagement at the Haymarket Theatre. Mr. Charles Mathews, sole Proprietor and Manager. Mr. Buckstone, Lessee. Commence at Seven o'clock. Doors open at Half-past Six. Stalls, 7s.; Dress Circle, 5s.; Pit Stalls, 3s.; Upper Boxes, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Places may be secured at the Box-office daily, from Eleven till Five.

GOURLAY'S SCOTTISH CURIOSITIES.—Genuine Success. Every Evening, at Eight, a Lecture, with Songs, Anecdotes, &c. Admission to Single Entertainment, 1s. Stalls and Boxes, 2s.

THURTON'S "OLD FOLKS" and "PERSH FACES." Every Evening, at Eight, "Come on 'The Queer Dog,'" and "Mind the Back Door," at 8, Crown-street, Soho. Admission, 6d. Mr. Thurton's Hall, Bradford, Monday, Oct. 16; Halifax, 17; Wakefield, 18; Pontefract, 19; Leeds, 20.

CHRISTY MINSTRELS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.—Every Evening at Eight. Saturday Afternoon at Three. The only Original and Veritable Legitimate CHRISTY MINSTRELS (Messrs. Henry, Harrington, Wilson, Clarke, and Pell) in their Entirely New and Original Entertainment, entitled THE CHRISTY MINSTRELS' CARNIVAL, which has been received with the Greatest Enthusiasm by the Crowded and Fashionable Audiences that have assembled to witness the Drolleries of the Original Band. Each Evening will be produced the Original Burlesque Opera, entitled THE CHRISTY MINSTRELS' CARNIVAL, by Harry Clarke, Esq. Every Saturday Afternoon at Three, GRAND MATINÉE. Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets may be secured at the Box-office daily, from Eleven till Five.

ST. JOHN'S WOOD.—THEATRE OF MYSTERY, EGYPTIAN HALL.—On MONDAY NEXT, OCT. 16, Colonel Stodare will, at his 1865 representation, introduce his Entirely New Entertainment, THE SPIRIT OF MYSTERY, the most marvellous discovery ever witnessed in the magic art. Also, at each representation, the Wonderful Illusion of the Spectral Bride, Mdlle. Adelaide. Also, the Mysterious Phenomenon of the Spectral Head, Mdlle. Adelaide. Also, the Wonderful Illusion of the Drilled world. Bazalgette, the Cleverly-gentleman boxer, and the unapproachable Ventriloquist, Mr. Stodare. Commence at Eight. Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Doors open at Seven. Stalls, 3s.; Seats, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets may be secured at the Box-office daily, from Eleven till Five.

MONDAY NEXT, OCT. 16, Colonel Stodare will, at his 1865 representation, introduce his Entirely New Entertainment, THE SPIRIT OF MYSTERY, the most marvellous discovery ever witnessed in the magic art. Also, at each representation, the Wonderful Illusion of the Spectral Bride, Mdlle. Adelaide. Also, the Mysterious Phenomenon of the Spectral Head, Mdlle. Adelaide. Also, the Wonderful Illusion of the Drilled world. Bazalgette, the Cleverly-gentleman boxer, and the unapproachable Ventriloquist, Mr. Stodare. Commence at Eight. Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Doors open at Seven. Stalls, 3s.; Seats, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets may be secured at the Box-office daily, from Eleven till Five.

MDME. TUSSAUD'S EXHIBITION, Established Thirty Years.—THE ROYAL FAMILY GROUP.—NEW ADDITION.—MODELS OF THE LATE PRINCE CONSORT, and the Children of the Prince and Princess of Wales, taken in England.—ROYAL FAMILIES of Europe, Napoleon I. and Napoleon III., Statesmen, Warriors, Poets, Philosophers, Celebrities of the Day, Murderers, &c. Open from Eleven a.m. till Ten p.m. Admission, 1s.; Children under Ten years of age, Half-price.

ROYAL POLYTECHNIC.—Professor Pepper on Polarised Light.—New Semi-Comic Ghost Story (J. H. Pepper and Henry Dircks, jointauthors), entitled THE GHOST'S MISTAKE, or the Bottle Imp. Dissolving Views. Musical Entertainments. Open from Twelve till Five and Seven till Ten.

THE EXHIBITION of PORTRAIT MINIATURES at the SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM, will CLOSE on SATURDAY, OCT. 21.

The Gallery will be Closed to the public, for cleaning and repairs, on Monday, Nov. 6, and Inspects on Saturday, Nov. 11.

NATIONAL PORTRAIT GALLERY, 29, GREAT GEORGE-STREET, WESTMINSTER.—Open on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, from Ten to Four.

The Gallery will be Closed to the public, for cleaning and repairs, on Monday, Nov. 6, and Inspects on Saturday, Nov. 11.

ROYAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—EXHIBITION OF DAHLIAS, FRUITS.—WATERER and GODFREY'S prized and descriptive DAHLIAS, FRUITS, and FLOWERS, in Pots, Baskets, and Cut Blooms, are the most worthy of cultivation, as well as some new and very beautiful kinds exclusively in their possession, which will be found to surpass in every respect those generally admired in Autumn now last year.—King-hill Nursery, Bromley, Kent.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—OPEN DAILY, WET or DRY.—Monday Popular Concerts and Afternoon Promenade, Half a Crown. Brilliant Open-air Fête Every Saturday. Performances by Celebrated Band, Half-past Two and Half-past Seven. Open Gymnasium. Open Theatre. Open Circus and Gun. Open Swings. The extensive collection of all kinds of goods. Fine Arts Courts, Fiction Gallery, and the thousand and one other attractions of the Crystal Palace, &c.; the Shakspearean, and the thousand and one other attractions of the Crystal Palace.

Attractions daily, specially for children. Thinker's Enchanted Animated World, the Fairy Queen, Punch and Judy, Performing Dogs, Monkeys, Donkeys to Lease, Swings, Roundabouts, Circus, Ball-playing, Bandsmen, Sandy Jack.

Purchase this cash combined attractions and convenience.

DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, 1865, Under the Special Patronage of her Majesty the QUEEN.—This Exhibition remains each Day Week-day, and in the Evenings of Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, until Ten.

Admission, One Shilling.

RAILWAY ARRANGEMENTS.

Return-tickets to and from Dublin are issued at the principal Railway stations in England and Scotland, at considerably reduced rates.

Excursion-trains run frequently, at very low prices.

For full particulars see the Railway Companies' Announcements.

THE ALEXANDRA.—This magnificent Saloon Steamer will commence her Trips from Sandon Dock, Liverpool, after Wednesday the 18th inst.

Saloon Steam Packet Company (Limited), 21, Eastcheap, E.C., Oct. 11, 1865.

By order, JOHN SMITH, Secretary.

GRATUITOUS EXCURSION.—The Directors of the Saloon Steam Packet Company (Limited), as a grateful acknowledgment of the kindness and hospitality shown to the Officers and Crew of the Steam-ship ALEXANDRA, have determined to give a GRATUITOUS EXCURSION to upwards of ONE HUNDRED CHILDREN from various parochial and other schools and philanthropic societies, without regard to sect, on board that vessel, from her moorings in the Sandon Dock to Crosby, on THURSDAY, the 19th inst., to-morrow, round the Great Eastern Steam-ship and back. The Alexandra will leave the Sandon Dock at Ten o'clock, and return at about Four.

Applications from Schools and Societies must be made immediately, by letter, to E. Saunders, Esq., Secretary, Saloon Steam Packet Company.

GRAVESEND.—The GREAT EASTERN STEAM-SHIP, the ALEXANDRA, and the ALEXANDRA, Second, the ALBERT EDWARD, Second, and Bridge Wharf Daily Steamers (calculated at a Quarter past Ten a.m., for Rosherville and Terrace Pier, Gravesend, and Hourly from Blackwall Terminus, returning from Gravesend (calling at Rosherville) at Half-past Four o'Clock p.m.

Fare from Blackwall ... Single (Return Ticket Same Day) ... 1s. 6d.
Ditto (Return) ... 1s. 9d. | Ditto (Return) ... 2s. 6d.
From London-bridge ... From London-bridge and Back ... 2s.
Fare Saloon ... From Gravesend round Great Eastern and Back ... 1s.
Fare Saloon ... Children under Ten Years of age, half prices. ... 1s. 6d.

Offices, 45, Eastcheap.

THE LONDON SURGICAL HOME (founded 1858) for the Reception, Treatment, and Education of Destitute Sick and Suffering Boys Curabis Surgical Diseases, Stanley-terrace, Stanley-hill (near St. Johns Church).

Patron—The Right Hon. the EARL of BRADFORD.

The Home contains thirty beds, twenty-six of which are appropriated to patients, who are admitted on the payment of Two Guineas per Quarter, and four are reserved for poor patients recommended by Governors. Full particulars can be obtained of the Secretary.

Bankers, Messrs. Coutts and Co., Strand. Treasurer, Frederick Hill, Esq., Hyde-park.

Subscriptions and Donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, Mr. J. Rathbone Pyne, Esq., at the Western Branch of the Bank of England, Burlington-gardens; or by the Matron, at the Home, and will be duly acknowledged in the columns of the Times and Daily Telegraph.

GALE'S PROTECTED GUNPOWDER COMPANY (Limited).—NOTICE is hereby given that the APPLICATION LIST for Shares in this Company WILL BE CLOSED on Wednesday, the 18th inst.

By order of the Board, DAVID KERR, Secretary (pro tem.).
Temporary Office—13, Graham House, Old Broad-street, Oct. 10, 1865.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE ASSOCIATION, 10, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, S.W. DAVID KERR, Secretary (pro tem.).
Waterloo-place, London, S.W. ARTHUR S. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in places not represented.

NOTICE.—NORTH-WESTERN and NORTH LONDON Railway.—Extensive Goods Warehouse, Cattle Lairs, and Coal Depôt, Chalk-farm-road and Broad-street (Hay).—For Advertisements, apply to the Goods Superintendent, J. WILLIAMS and CO., 30, Great Russell-st., W.C., and 30, Broad-st., Broad, W.C.

NOTICE.—METROPOLITAN RAILWAY, FINSBURY PARK.—NOTICE is hereby given that the Directors of the Metropolitan Railway Company intend to apply to Parliament in the next Session for Powers to make an Extension of the Railway from the Metropolitan, North-western City Extension, North London, Hammersmith and Richmond, and Great Western Railways, at or near Finsbury Park, to the Great Northern Railway, London, Tilbury, and Southend Railway; and Agents for Contingencies Railway Company, Limited, to purchase Lands and Houses, and to make Arrangements with the Owners and Occupiers of such Lands and Houses.—J. Wilding and Co., 30, Gray's Inn-road, W.C., and 7, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

TO INVENTORS.—The GENERAL PATENT COMPANY (Limited), 71, Lombard-street, City, undertakes the Sale of Patents, Patent Rights, and Inventions generally. Unusual facilities afforded. All intending Patentees should peruse the Company's Circular, to be had Gratis on application.—By order, JOHN SMITH, Secretary.

MONEY ADVANCED, at 5 per cent, without unnecessary publicity or delay, on Reversionary Interests, Life Policies, and other personal security, for short periods or terms of years.—Mr. MORRIS, 31, Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane.

QUADRANT EXCHANGE BANK, 69, Regent-street, W. Noblemen's, Officers', and other bills discounted immediately. BENJAMIN, Manager.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE. Established 25 Years. For Pedigrees, Family Histories, Sketch, Book, or Manuscript Engravings, Painted or Sculptured, and executed on Seals, Dies, Rings, Brasses, Monumental Tablets, Hatchments, Plate, Furniture, Carriage Panels, Liveries, Steel Dies, Arms, and Crests of Heraldry, &c.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and PRESSES, Parochial Common Seals, Presses, Book Plates, Engravings and Vote of Thanks; Executors, Wedding and other Cards.—FOUR BROTHERS, Artists, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

FOR FAMILY ARMS, send Name and County to Mr. CULLETON, Genealogist, &c., 25, Cranbourn-street, Leicester-square, for the arms of man and wife blended together, &c.; the proper heraldic colours for painting, 5s.; if plain sketch, 2s. 6d.; if traced from Peerage, 1s. 6d.; Crest, Motto, or Badge, 1s. each; Book of Crests and Mottoes, containing 1,000 Engravings, 5s.; Manor, estate, grants, and monograms engraved on seals, dies, and book plates, ready, 5s. 6d.—CULLETON'S Heraldic Office, 25, Cranbourn-street, Leicester-square, W.C. Hours, 10 to 5. Cranbourn-street corner of Newport-market.

MONOGRAMS designed, 1s.; great dies cut, 5s. No charge for engraving crest, address, or monogram die if an order is given for a case of stationery. Steel Dies, Arms, Crests, Monograms, and Address Plates engraved.—T. CULLETON, Stationer, No. 25, Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

VISITING CARDS.—A Card-plate, engraved in the best style, and 100 best cards, for 4s. Arms, Crest, or Initials, 2s. extra. Wedding and invitation notes printed inside, all for 10s. 6d., post-free.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street, corner of St. Martin's-lane.

MARK YOUR LINEN with CULLETON'S ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE MARKING-PLATES, for use on Home, Yacht, or Steamer. Name, 2s. 6d.; Set of Numbers, from 1s. to 6s. 6d.; Crest Plate, 3s.; with directions, post-free.—T. CULLETON, Stationer, No. 25, Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

CROQUET (INDOOR) at PARKINS and GOTTO'S, for the Table, from 21s. 6d. or Carpet from 9s. By far the largest and best manufactured stock in London of the Newest Designs and Patterns. Illustrated Price-lists forwarded by return of post. Parkins and Gotto, 24, Oxford-street, London, W.

WRITING CASES.—A Card-plate, engraved in the best manner, and 100 best cards, for 4s. Arms, Crest, or Initials, 2s. extra. Wedding and invitation notes printed inside, all for 10s. 6d., post-free.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

MARK YOUR LINEN with CULLETON'S ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE MARKING-PLATES, for use on Home, Yacht, or Steamer. Name, 2s. 6d.; Set of Numbers, from 1s. to 6s. 6d.; Crest Plate, 3s.; with directions, post-free.—T. CULLETON, Stationer, No. 25, Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

CROQUET (INDOOR) at PARKINS and GOTTO'S, for the Table, from 21s. 6d. or Carpet from 9s. By far the largest and best manufactured stock in London of the Newest Designs and Patterns. Illustrated Price-lists forwarded by return of post. Parkins and Gotto, 24, Oxford-street, London, W.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, and 64, Cross-street, Manchester, are supplying, with all the latest improvements, the best and simplest sewing-machines. For Family Use they are unrivalled, as they will execute every description of work, from the finest muslin to the strongest canvas, with beauty, rapidity, and economy. Each machine is tested, and, if not found perfect, may be returned, and another exchanged, or any necessary alteration made without charge. Instruction gratuitous. Illustrated Pamphlet, containing numerous testimonials, sent free on application.

FRENCH MODERATOR LAMPS, the Newest and Best Patterns.—Cornices, Chandeliers, and all other Lamps and Gas Fittings at the lowest possible prices. Pamphlets and Lists free.—F. and C. Osler, 45, Oxford-street, London, W. (corner of Princes-street).

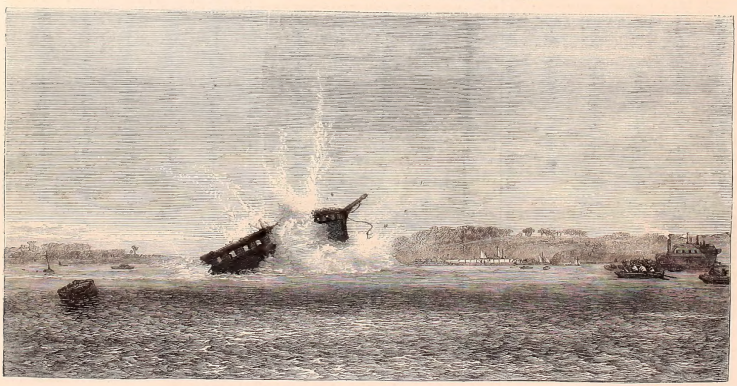
NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the ARCHDEACON GLASS, for Theatres, Races, Sporting purposes, and Tourists, are most suitable for the above purposes. Their extraordinary light and portable character, and their extreme power, are unrivalled. The Archdeacon is very good."—Vide Times. "Lord Lovat's Glass is very good, and wonderfully powerful, for so very small a size."—Lord Lovat. "Remarkably fine."—Rev. Lord Sandwich. "Approves of it."—Lord Ducie. "Very good."—Lord Leigh. "Very good."—Lord Ashburton. "Very good indeed."—Lord Carington. "Is delighted with it."—Lord Hill. "Very good."—Lord Ebrington. "Is very much pleased

RENÉ FAVARGER and FRANK MORL.—Classes de Piano et de Chant, Pianoforte Classes, Choral Meetings, Private Lessons.—76, Arundel-gardens, Kensington Park-road, W.; and 36, Somerset-street, Portman-square, W.

MALVERN COLLEGE.—The VACATION will begin on WEDNESDAY, DEC. 20, and END with REASSEMBLE for the following WEDNESDAY, JAN. 31. For information, apply to the Rev. Arthur Hill, M.A., Head Master; to the Rev. Charles M'Dowall, M.A., and the Rev. F. B. Dewe, M.A., Boarding-house Masters; or to Henry Aldrich, Esq., Secretary.

EDUCATION.—GERMANY.—The ROSSLEIN LADIES' SCHOOL. Its unrivalled facilities for German is recommended a first-class

EXPERIMENTS
WITH THE AMERICAN TORPEDO-SHELLS AT CHATHAM.



THE first use of submarine explosive shells for the destruction of hostile ships of war is attributed by the Americans to Mr. David Bushnell, of Connecticut, who, about 1777, contrived a machine in which the operator, with air enough to breathe for half an hour, could dive under the bottom of an enemy's vessel, and fasten to it a box of powder, which was afterwards to be fired by means of a gunlock and a long cord. This machine, which took its name from its shape resembling the American turtle or torpedo, was tried without success against the British squadron in New York harbour and in the Delaware. Twenty years later Robert Fulton, the author of steam navigation in America, devised a method of applying submarine bomb-shells, which he laid before the British Government. It was discountenanced by our naval authorities, but found some favour with Mr. Pitt, who on one occasion witnessed near Walmer Castle the blowing up of the brig Dorothea by means of a 180-pounder torpedo—that is, an explosive shell, the name being now transferred from the original diving-machine to the immediate instrument of destruction. Fulton's shell was provided with clockwork to set the gunlock in action and fire the powder, after the lapse of a given time. The whole subject, however, seems to have lain in abeyance till the Russian war of 1854, when the channels leading to Cronstadt were defended by sunken magazines of powder, held by buoys at a certain depth beneath the surface; the intended method of ignition, when the enemy's ships passed over, was by the breaking of a small glass tube, containing sulphuric acid, which would then flow down a long flexible tube, containing at its bottom a preparation of chlorate of potash, so as to produce a flame communicating with the magazine. These Russian torpedos, however, did not prove very efficient, and were harmlessly fished up by our exploring boats.

EXPERIMENTS WITH TORPEDO-SHELLS AT CHATHAM: EXPLOSION OF A 440-POUNDER.

The late civil war in America has occasioned the practical application and modification of those engines of warfare in a great variety of forms. They were extensively used by the military and naval engineers of the Southern Confederacy, the most successful example being shown by the destruction of the Tecumseh, at Mobile, in August, 1863, of torpedo diving-boat, with steam-engine and screw-propeller, and with two vanes, like the fins of a fish, to regulate its upward or downward motion, was constructed by them at Charleston, and another at New Orleans; but in these instances the torpedo-shells are employed by the Southerners, were to be thrust forward at the end of a long arm or spar, so as to be placed in direct contact with the bottom or side of the ship to be destroyed.

The principle, which seemed fatal to the usefulness and convenient applicability of the invention, has been entirely superseded by the new kind of torpedo exhibited last week at Chatham. The merit of the novel combination, in its present shape, is shared by Mr. W. W. Wood, Chief Engineer of the United States Navy, and Mr. G. W. Beardslee, of New York, inventor of the magneto-electric telegraph, which had already been employed with remarkable success for military and engineering purposes on land. Without going into a description of Mr. Beardslee's invention, which supersedes the galvanic battery as well for the transmission of messages as for the explosion of mines or magazines, at any distance, either on land or under water, and sunk at any depth, it may be stated that the magneto-electric apparatus, requiring no acids or plates, is carried in a small box, as portable as a writing-desk; it may be worked very easily upon an open telegraph wire on land, or a wire, in the water, insulated by a coating of vulcanised india-rubber. In August, 1864, when Mr. Beardslee's apparatus was experimentally applied to the ordinary line of telegraph wire between New York and Washington, a charge of gunpowder at Washington was fired in an instant by the operators at New York, and vice versâ, at a distance, of 240 miles; whereas in former experiments of this sort with Grove's galvanic batteries, the combined power of no less than 150 pairs was required to ignite powder by means of burning a platinum wire, at Baltimore, forty miles from Washington. Mr. Beardslee employs a patent fuse or cartridge, for mines and torpedos, which is so ingenious that we must call particular notice. It consists of a small wooden cylinder, about three quarter of an inch in diameter, and 3 in. long; at one end of the cylinder is cut a groove in which the conductible wire is confined only by pasteboard or membrane, so that, when ignited, it will blow straight out when the heat of the principal charge, which is one wire of electric circuit, entering at the other end of the cylinder, terminates upon the little wooden disc which forms the bottom of the cylinder, so that the end of one wire is about a quarter of an inch from the other; the electric circuit is completed by means of a little disc with a blacklead-pencil across the tiny space of the wooden surface connecting the two ends of wire; and the fuse is then charged. It is the property of blackleaf or plumbago to burst into flame when reached by the ordinary spark; hence, by sending a current through the circuit thus composed, which may have wires of any length, the pencil-mark lying in the track of the current, and consisting of a few diametrical strokes of plumbago, the infallible result is that each mark infallibly set fire to the whole charge of the fuse, and of the torpedo or mine. The use of such a fuse is of course universal, and the method of producing ignition by platinum wire, which involves a great waste of electric power. Torpedoes have been fired by this fuse at a depth of 600 ft. or 600 ft. under water, in the oil-wells of Pennsylvania. At the Military Academy, West Point, a mine was last, on 11-inch shell, at the depth of 370 ft. beneath the ice of the Hudson, were exploded from a mile of wire. By the above explosions, at a depth of 20 ft., the ice was torn up in an extraordinary manner, at the same place, when, under similar circumstances, on 1st April, sixty shells of that size, arranged in three groups or circuits, were exploded at the same instant of time. The utility of such a process for submarine engineering was shown, in February, 1864, by the speedy removal of the massive piles which the Southerners had placed to obstruct the entrance of Hitchell's River, Florida. Lieutenant Donald M'Kay, the extensive shipowner, of Boston, who has interested himself in the introduction of Beardslee's fuse, has lent it and Beardslee to the Governments and public of Europe. Mr. Beardslee himself had been loaned for a week before the late explosions operations at Chatham; and on the Saturday previous to this exhibition he had exploded, at a depth of 140 ft., by the fuse, a mine of 400 lb. of powder, off Gillingham Point, at the entrance to Chatham Harbour. The depth of water at high tide was 36 ft., and the mine was moored by only a pole being a red flag, the wire attached to the torpedo being kept by a float on the surface. The Admiralty yacht having taken up her station a few hundred yards from the mine, on which Mr. Beardslee and his assistants were stationed with their electrical apparatus for igniting the shells, the word was given to commence. A boat's crew was dispatched from the operator's barge to establish electrical communication with the sunken shell. The order to be fired through a length of two miles of wire. This preliminary completed, and the train all ready for firing, the word was given there rose from the placid bosom of the river high into the air a huge column of water, in the form of a cone, exactly resembling those great waterspouts occasionally witnessed by sailors in mid-ocean, and to which, though they have not been seen, people do their best to give a wide berth. The splendid volumes of snow-white feathery spray soared quickly to a height of little less than 200 ft., and then fell gently again in exquisite accordance with the vortex whence they had risen, leaving no trace of themselves behind, save a slowly-expanding circle of foam, indicating, from the muddy, yeasty aspect of which showed that the river had been stirred to its inmost depths. The explosion was one which will give some idea of the appearance of that huge column of water. The explosion of the next torpedo—also a 400-pounder—exploded at 2 ft. below the surface—produced effects but slightly differing from those just described, except that it was accompanied by a more powerful report, while fragments of the cylinder were sent spinning high above the heads of mouths of delicate, fastidious ears. The great beauty of the toe-transient display was more strongly contrasted with the after turbulence of the seething waters. Several other experiments of a similar nature followed, the third torpedo, of 400 lb., being suspended 15 ft. below the surface; and the fourth, of the same size and charge, suspended in 30 ft. of water, rested on the mud at the bottom. They were fired through wires one third of a mile in length. The last of the 400-pounders lifted an enormous mass of water, which seemed as if scooped out of a hollow 100 ft. in diameter and hurled into the air to a height of little less than 300 ft., and the report which it was awfully grand.

EXPERIMENTS WITH TORPEDO-SHELLS AT CHATHAM: BLOWING-UP OF THE TERPSICHORE BY A 75-POUNDER.

"THE FOSTER SISTERS," BY JOHN HOOPER, IN THE MANCHESTER EXHIBITION.—SEE PAGE 356.

Preparations were now made for destroying the Terpsichore, 18-gun sailing-frigate, which had been placed at the disposal of Mr. Beardslee by the Admiralty in order to put the destructive powers of the torpedo to the most practical test. Although a torpedo charged with only 50 lb. of powder would, according to Mr. Beardslee's statement, be sufficiently powerful to destroy a vessel of the largest class, should he had proposed, with a view of obtaining the fullest possible effects, to use a full charge of 400 lb. in the Terpsichore. As it may be remarked, to destroy the largest vessel in the British Navy. It was, however, considered that to investigate the effects of such a fire on a comparatively small an object would be attended with results not exclusively local, accordingly a couple of 400-lb. torpedos were taken, in the small boat, close alongside the Terpsichore and, having, being just the distance from her, left the boat. As the tide was running very strong, but one of the two torpedos had its proper place, as we have said, within easy reach of the explosion; the other, being carried aside as much as 10 ft. or 12 ft., could have no material effect. The boat with Mr. Beardslee and his men was off a short distance. The two torpedos' charges, exactly the stilled report of both the torpedos at once, and the Terpsichore suddenly rose at her berth to the full length of her and heeled over on her starboard side, while great masses of water burst up from her decks, her whole frame was shaken and heaved as with agony, till she began to settle down rewards. In another moment her masts were seen to quiver, and her bow sank deeper and deeper. Not a fragment, however, of her timbers was seen to be detached from her sides, not a piece of splinter had been shot up into the air or had fallen off into the water, and she seemed to be going down as gently as a lamb. The motion received would seem to be a broken back; for she still continued to go down by the head, until, in about five minutes after the first movement, she lay fast aground in the Medway mud on an even keel, with the tide, now at three-quarters ebb, up to within a few inches of her portholes. She was not then enough under water to cover her. She was left there till last Monday, when the wreck was lifted and towed into the dock at Chatham. On Tuesday morning the water was pumped out of the dock, and the frigate having in the mean time been shored up, the whole of her hull was examined with the following careful examination to be made of her bottom by the dockyard officials. The effects produced by the torpedo explosion were found to be very local, slightly shaft the fore chains, the port side of the bottom showing no injury whatever, with the exception of the loosening of a few of the sheets of copper. The full explosive force of the torpedo appears to have caught the frigate about 8 ft. upward from her keel, blowing in her timbers and planking, the opening thus effected being about 16 ft. square. A close examination shows that few of the timbers are broken off, the separation being at their points of junction. Proceeding on board the frigate, the effects of the explosion are still more apparent, the planking of the main deck for a length of above 20 ft. being ripped up, while the deck beams are broken in various directions and forced upwards and aft. The mizen mast, from the explosion not sunk her, the tremendous shock she sustained would have rendered her useless, while terms idea of the effects of the shock may be formed from the circumstance of the whole of the iron knees on the port side, which carry the upper-deck beams, being wrenched and broken off. The frigate has been inspected this week by a large number of persons, including several of the officers of the Royal Engineers.

We may give some further illustrations of the torpedo-shells and of their destructive effects in our next Number.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

SOMEBODY (I have not a collection of historical anecdotes with me and cannot be more precise) said of somebody (I have left my encyclopædia in Australia) that he was born and died upon the Bank of Memory, for fear my last account there should be in arrears. Somebody else, I think, was somebody who thought she had been to a feast of languages, and had picked up the scraps. The individual who has been over the water to "Belfast" for the Journal has been a guest, during the past fortnight, at a feast of information, and municipalities of the most varied description, and his wallet is filled with scraps—not of the somebody somebody, but of statistics, a scrap of leather, and a mutchkin of whisky, with an Irish cutlery thrown in by the bargain. Belfast is a place of which Queen Street, The which signifies that I went from Glasgow to Edinburgh; and Edinburgh, as the reader knows, is Auld Reekie, and therefore second, by a very swift and comfortable steamer (the Roe) to Belfast; and Belfast, as the reader knows, is Queen's College, Belfast, which is also upon Dublin—to find Dawson-street delicious, and Morrison's Hotel the best of hotels, and of multitudinous guests who have flocked over to be in at the death of the Dublin Exhibition, and who are all shouting for refreshment at the same time.

I took the liberty of hinting when I arrived in the Irish metropolis that, after a railway journey of a hundred and fifty miles, I should like some dinner. It was about six p.m. "Let's have a beefsteak with your tay do" asked the good-humoured but gasping and all but exhausted waiter. Milly was there. "I think I'll have a beefsteak, too," she said à-la-fit ou," murmured the waiter, "will get it for ye; but I've the misfortune to be out of it for the day." "Then I'll have a beefsteak with their breakfast in the morning." He is still alive, however, that waiter, and flourishing.

I spoke of a beefsteak just now. This reminds me that a friend of mine, whose name I will not mention, once ordered a beefsteak at a beefsteak at an hotel, was told that his demand could not be complied with, for that all the fillets of beef within the vicinity of boucheries were bought up for the use of the Duke de Luynes, who had a grand château in the neighbourhood. It seems to me that all the Frenchmen in England have been bought up by the Duke de Luynes of late. They have gotten a few demented, half-starved creatures to write letters from Paris, describing the Emperor as a tyrant, and a tyran-Yankee captain or two; but what a bonne bouche is this most delicious story of the Duke's monopoly of beef! It is worth a year to the English newspapers! By all respectable Irishmen—Irishmen who have been respectable for generations—Dublin was just laughed to scorn. It is to be hoped that the Government will be pleased to take the hint, and that the Exhibition building will be dignified into martyrs even by a life-long sentence of penal servitude.

Cervantes laughed Spain's chivalry away, and Sheridan Knowles seems quite prepared to laugh High Treason out of their minds. Emmett and the Sheareses in Ireland, Despard and Thistlewood in England, were martyr plus ultra-heroic, and Sheridan Knowles, in full as a kind of terror; but there is no element save that of comicality in the contemplation of Mr. Pigott and his confederates in treason.

About the time when the Prince of Wales was opening the Dublin International Exhibition, the Emperor Napoleon III. was opening an International Exhibition at Algiers, the capital of French Northern Africa. The subscriber being in attendance on his Imperial Majesty, did not hear the speech, but he read it. It was a fine one, and was read at once, necessarily missed his Royal Highness and the Dublin Exhibition. I have seen it, at last, however. "Those who come late to the banquet," says the Emperor, "only get the dregs." But this does not hold good with the charming congress of art and industry at Algiers. The contrast between the splendour of the Dublin Exhibition bid fair to be its brightest ones. A building which, in the Irish capital, was all but lighted by Moliere aright we should visit it by the pale moonlight. Now, if you would see the Algerian Exhibition building at its best, you must come and in its most glorious bloom, you should go there at night. The building is a long one, and is lighted with gas all round the walls, so that it is nearly eleven before the visitors can be persuaded to tear themselves away from the splendid display of exquisite display of sculpture the great hall of exhibition itself, all made up with a view to beauty and symmetry I have seldom seen equalled.

The solid, indeed, is not to be found at all up to this time, I believe, no marble nymphs have turned black in the face, and no Apollos have caught cold in the throat under the influence of gas. Military bands discourse music, sonorous if not sweet, at these nightly receptions; and the Duke of Malakoff presides over the whole in tremendous. The young ladies of Dublin are, you know, the prettiest in the world, and the young ladies of Algiers are not far behind.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The finance of the late East London Working Classes Industrial Exhibition turns out satisfactory. The expenditure was £371 4s. 7d., the income £477 14s. 8d.

The Pneumatic Railway between Holborn and the Euston-square station of the London and North-western Railway is complete, and was opened on Tuesday by the passage of two trucks, which ran the distance—about a couple of miles—in five minutes.

A return has been published of the persons bitten by dogs within the limits of the metropolis and treated at the hospitals during the present year up to the end of June. The total is 154, and the authorities of the Royal Free Hospital state that many trifling cases brought to them were not registered. Only two cases terminated in death from hydrophobia.

Thomas Morse, a brewer's drayman, after delivering some barrels of beer in Ratcliff Highway on the 24th inst., chose a beershop wherein for refreshment. In opening it, the cork flew out and struck him in the eye. He was in such pain that he went to a hospital—Inflammation and delirium tremens supervened, and he died yesterday week.

The Commissioners of Metropolitan Public Works, a number of men are employed removing the plants which have been the ornaments of our parks during the preceding summer. In addition to the value of the work, the roots of these plants are to be distributed among the poorer classes of London, through the instrumentality of the clergy, the managers of ragged and other schools, and hospitals, in the hope that the working classes may be induced to make an effort to carefully preserve them during the winter, thereby developing flower shows of window-plants.

The report of the executive committee of the Conservative Land Society, presented at the fifty-second quarterly meeting of the members, at the Norfolk-street (Strand) offices, on the 5th inst., shows that during the year ending Sept. 30, 1865, were £50,269, one of the largest ever received by that society. The reserve fund was £7,000. The total amount paid into the society since its formation was £826,640. The 450 shares issued were 29,703, representing £1,146,250. Subscribed capital £1,000,000, and the deposit bank is indicated by the withdrawals, which, since September, 1851, reach £200,286. The society has acquired seventy estates, by purchase, gift, and the sale of land to Michieliman was £415,850. The sales on the old and new properties had been unusually great for the last twelve months in the various districts. Five new estates, at Stafford, Hereford, New Ferry (opposite Liverpool), St. Austells (Cornwall), and Ipswich, will come into the market.

A special general meeting of the subscribers to the Printers' Pension, Almshouse, and Orphan Asylum was held on Saturday, at the rooms connected with the printing trade—we held last Saturday, at the London Tavern, and was well attended, several noblemen and gentlemen connected with journalism being present. The Pension Society, mainly sustained by the contributions of the trade, has been in existence for twenty-seven years; the Almshouses have stood twenty years, and the Orphan Asylum has had separate committees and officers. At a special meeting of the subscribers to the two societies, held in July, 1864, it was resolved to amalgamate the three, for the purpose of obtaining a Royal charter of incorporation in the interest of both societies. While the application for the charter was pending, a general institution, promoted by the journeymen, sprung up in the trade—namely, the Orphan Asylum—and, as the progress of the charter was opposed by the employers, it was deemed advisable to include the proposed asylum in the scheme of incorporation, and amalgamation the three societies under the name of the management. This was done, and the charter was applied for and obtained in the name of the Printers' Pension, Almshouse, and Orphan Asylum. A committee was then appointed to draw up a code of laws, subject to the provisions of the charter; and the consideration and approval of the new rules and regulations by the committee occupied the whole evening of the meeting on Saturday. T. B. Harrison, Esq., was called to the chair. Mr. Bellows, Jun., the secretary, then read the rules and regulations which were discussed and ultimately adopted with a few verbal alterations. The following resolutions were then moved and carried unanimously:—"That the by-laws and regulations which have been submitted to and approved of by this meeting become the laws and regulations of the Printers' Pension, Almshouse, and Orphan Asylum Corporation." That the committee of management of the three societies be requested to submit to a special meeting by-laws and regulations as approved, and consider the same to be forthwith embodied in the charter of incorporation, and become the requirements of the charter."

"LAW AND POLICE.—Twenty-licensed victuallers have been fined by the Westminster magistrates for using deficient measures.

A boy, eleven years of age, was brought before Lord Mayor last Saturday, charged with stealing a half-crown from his master. When asked what he had done with the money, he said, "I bought some sweets." Why, I spent it in sweets and riding on horses.

Alice Evans was brought up at the Southwark Police Court, on Tuesday, charged with attempting to commit suicide. Her story was rather a strange one. She said that she had been in service at a gentleman's house, but had left it because her mistress had ill-used her. Her mistress denied the charge, as the girl always reading instead of doing her work. But of a place, she would not go. She had been walking the streets all night under the arches of London Bridge. Then, she says, a young man said to her if he were dressed in decent clothes he could get her a place. He took her went to a secondhand clothes shop, and changed her clothes for a man's suit. But still she did not get employment. She became quite desperate in despair when a policeman saved her life and took her to the station-house. The magistrate gave her up to her friends, and discharged her.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Archibald Davidson, Esq., Advocate, has been appointed Sheriff of Kincardineshire, in the room of A. G. Stewart, Esq.

The foundation-stone of a new gaol, which is to cost £57,000, was, on Monday, laid at Hull by Mr. Alderman Wilkinson, M.P.

Mr. Hinchmarch, Q.C., has been appointed Recorder for the city of York, in the room of C. H. Bailey, Esq., deceased.

The Liverpool Corporation, under the powers of a new local Act, are about to provide a series of lectures on art and science, to which the public will be admitted gratis.

The Queen has approved of Don Francisco Acuna as Consul at Newcastle, in room of Don Juan Ezra y Villamil, Consul to Corpus, for her Majesty the Queen of Spain; and of Mr. Edwin Lumber as Consul at Bristol, for the United States of America.

Surrey County School was opened, on Thursday, by a public procession. The school is situated on Norwood Hill, and is a handsome Gothic edifice for the sons of the middle classes. The establishment is capable of receiving 150 boys. The foundation-stone was laid.

At Pembroke Dock, on the 4th inst., a couple whose united ages reached 164 years were married. The bride was Mrs. Elizabeth Powell, aged eighty-four, who had been married four times, and the bridegroom was Mr. T. Wade, who is only four years younger than the bride.

An Ayrshire paper says:—"For the last month there has been great mortality among fowl in Cloyne. They drop suddenly, without any sign of inflammation. Last week a large flock belonging to a farmer in this place have suffered severely.

The annual presentation of prizes gained in the Oxford and Cambridge local examinations by pupils at the Liverpool Institute and Day Schools took place, on Monday evening, in the Philharmonic Hall, Hope-street. Mount-street. The presentations were made by Mr. Thomas Hughes, M.P., who delivered an address.

A heavy gale blew along the north-east coast on Monday night and Tuesday morning. The Mersey, the Humber, the Tyne, the Wear, and numerous other shipping districts are recorded. It is, however, gratifying to add that the life-boats of the coast-guard stations were on the alert to prevent loss of life.

In our number of the 30th ult. we gave an illustration of the inauguration and naming of the Hayling Island new life-boat by the Bishop of Chichester on the 18th inst. The boat was named the Alice, subscribed to by the Queen, Princess Alice, and other members of the royal family. Preceded by the band of the 1st Hants Rifles, the life-boat was drawn through the principal streets of the town in a procession of persons taking part in the proceedings. The boat was subsequently taken to Southsea, and the Bishop and party were launched in it amid a large number of persons.

At Salisbury, on Monday morning, as a bullock was being driven along, it suddenly turned round and darted into the house of a grocer; and, being unable to turn in the passage, owing to the size of the itself, the animal proceeded up a staircase to the top of the house (three stories high), and then ran into a bedroom, where it was shot by the police. Several hundred persons congregated in front of the house, and the greatest excitement prevailed during the time the animal was in the premises. It was proposed to shoot the bullock in the street, but it was feared the house and a gun procured for the purpose; but it was afterwards found that if the first shot should not prove fatal a scene of an alarming nature would ensue, to say nothing of the disagreeable inconvenience of making a slaughter-house of a store filled with cheese. It was next suggested that if the window could be got open the poor brute would, in all probability, jump out, notwithstanding the great height, and be killed. No one, however, seemed inclined to run the risk of mounting the ladder and being tossed off again in order to meet the bullock on the staircase. The window was opened by means of a grappling-iron let down from the roof. The bullock, however, instead of immediately breaking its neck, as was expected, continued itself by forcibly squeezing a large tray and a number of pots through the window, and, jutting its head out of the window, quietly surveyed the spectators, to the intense amusement of the assembled boys. Another proposition was ultimately made, which proved more successful, and that was to knock a hole through the wall of an adjoining room and goad him with sticks. This was done, and by a violent effort the bullock, after knocking down and trampling on the cheese, got round and forced his way down stairs again into the street, where he was secured, driven to the slaughter-house, and killed directly."

LAW.—Feniansim still supplies some incidents, and Government is attending to the action. Last week Nathaniel Gallagher, editor of the Nation office and registered proprietor of the Connaught Patriot, and Martin Brennan, a printer, were arrested, under writs of attachment issued on a solicitors article in the Patriot. Joseph Jude, son of the proprietor of a public-house in Dublin, was arrested on Tuesday, on a charge of treason. The brothers of Jude, the proprietor of the house, were also arrested, charged with endeavouring to seduce soldiers from their allegiance, has been committed for trial. Mr. Jude's son, a lieutenant in the militia, had allowed to go on bail after informing against another person, named M'Manus, his brother-in-law. The latter has been committed for trial in Dublin for high treason. Two persons have been arrested at Ballybrien, and one at Inniss, and sent for trial to Cork. Another person was arrested at Ballyhooly, a flagrifle, a gardner, charged with having, on a recent Sunday, headed a mob who were drilling in the fields, and marched them to the chapel-yard, decorated with a green velvet cap having a gold harp in the centre. Francis Hackett, a farmer, has been arrested at Ballyhooly, charged with having offered Mr. Justice Keogh, on Saturday last, a treasonable document, a letter written by the prisoner was produced tending to establish his connection with the Fenian conspiracy. Another Fenian prisoner, a servant of a tavern had been arrested in Clonmel and one in Tuam, were also brought before Mr. Brenan and remanded for a week. Further arrests have been made at Cork, Drogheda, and other places—the fresh batch of prisoners including a young man named Hinchin, the son of a woollen manufacturer at Glenmire, near Cork. At Dublin, on Tuesday, eight were brought up for examination; a man who had been arrested on suspicion of treason-felony, was on an affidavit of Federal sway, who had been arrested on landing from America, was discharged, the magistrate remarking that the evidence was insufficient to warrant his detention. Mr. Justice Keogh, at Cork Assizes, and another were committed for trial, two more were remanded, and the other four, who were arrested on Saturday, were discharged by the same magistrate. On Wednesday thirteen prisoners were brought up at Cork, and some current documents, among which was the Fenian Army regulations, were produced against them.

John Bellew, a seaman man, residing in the Grange, Edinburgh, murdered his mother and sister with an iron bar on Thursday week. Death was immediate. The murderer was apprehended.

Some stack-fires at Salford, near Windsor, which for a time defied police ingenuity, have been traced to the work of the magpies. Two nests of these stacks were burnt. The incendiary, Mary Robson, is only sixteen, and is described as "a girl of the worst character." Her mother, Thompson, has also confessed that she wilfully caused the fire on the farm of her master, Mr. Stevens, Bromley-common, Kent. Both mother and child are to be committed these incendiary acts are not disclosed. A rickyard at Chapel Haddlesey, near Selby, was destroyed by fire on Saturday night. The property was the property of Mr. Thomas Hall, of Hillam, and the loss is estimated at £1,000. Burngullied has been traced to the farmer's son, but it is believed to have been the result of accident. The Queen's Bench Master has ordered in this instance, value £700.

A fire occurred on Thursday morning at Maidstone, for the murder of his commanding officer, Major De Vere.

THE NEWMARKET SECOND OCTOBER MEETING.—MONDAY.

Handicap Plate.—Hippolyta, 1. Lizard, 2. Turcobazee, 3.
Handicap Sweepstakes.—Hastings, 1. Wild Dayrell, 2. Sweetpea, 3.
Sweepstakes of 200 sovs.—Lass O'Gowrie, 1. Miretta, 2. Flatterer, 3.
Duke of Grafton's Stakes.—Lord Clifden, 1. Prince Thompson, 2.
Handicap Sweepstakes.—Kingborn, 1. Rose Chief, 2. Bagman, 3.
Post Handicap Sweepstakes.—Sweetbriar, 1. Lady Valentine, 2. Quaker, 3.
October Produce Stakes.—Ross walked over.
Post Handicap Sweepstakes.—Lady Valentine, 1. Pilgrim, 2.
Renewal of the Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—La Fortune walked over.
Interrupted at 7.30 on account of the darkness.

TUESDAY.

Town Plate.—Orlieff, 1. Turgot, 2. Sweetpea, 3.
Selling Handicap Sweepstakes.—Lass Lodes, 1. Fanny, 2. No Name, 3.
Handicap Sweepstakes.—Lord Clifden, 1. Chromometer, 2.
Handicap Sweepstakes.—Hastings, 1. Kingborn, 2.
Cesarewitch Stakes.—Salpiniere, 1. Gratitude, 2. John Davis, 3.
Sweepstakes of 100 sovs.—Sister Mary, 1. Lady Bingham, 2. Sparrow, 3.
Royal Stakes.—Tuckleton, 1. Jack o' Lantern, 2. Spitphillimore, 0.

Select Stakes.—The Duke, 1. Wild Agnes, 2. Le Mandarin, 3.
Welter Handicap.—Lizard, 1. Wild Dayrell, 2. Lass O'Gowrie, 3.
Bedford Stakes.—Magician, 1. The Zingyal, 2. Hobo, 3.
Handicap Sweepstakes.—Lord Clifden, 1. Fanny, 2. Quarrel, 3.
Troy Stakes.—Lord Lyon, 1. Mr. Pitt, 2. The Primate, 3.
Maiden Plate.—Lass O'Gowrie, 1. Miss Gibside Lady, 2.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Indian Star, 1. Indigestion, 2. Fanny, 3.
Sweepstakes of 50 sovs.—Lord Clifden, 1. Mr. Pitt, 2. Lass O'Gowrie, 3.
Sweepstakes of 50 sovs.—Marmion, 1. Wild Agnes, 2. Le Mandarin, 3.
Sweepstakes of 50 sovs.—Fortunatus, 1. Hobo, 2. La Gormania, 3.
Sweepstakes of 50 sovs.—Lizard, 1. Hippolyta, 2.

THURSDAY.

Sweepstakes of 100 sovs.—Liddington walked over.
Plate of 10 sovs.—Rapello, 1. Spriphillimore, 2. Fratus, 3.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Fanny, 1. Vesta, 2.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Indigestion, 1. Venus, 2.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Marmion, 1. Mr. Pitt, 2.
The Oaks.—Geneva, 1. Rizziania, 2. Peeress, 3.
Sweepstakes of 50 sovs.—Quarrel, 1. Lass O'Gowrie, 2.
Handicap Plate.—Tancredo, 1. Edinburgh, 2.
Sweepstakes of 50 sovs.—Lizard, 1. Fanny, 2.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

NOTWITHSTANDING that the transactions in the Stock-market have been on a very moderate scale, both for Money and the Account, prices (on the demand for accommodation last night) were generally steady, and a further improvement would have followed had more stability imparted, and dealers generally have shown more confidence as regards the future position of affairs. The supply of money on offer is limited, and the demand fair for the time of year.

The supply of money on offer is large; nevertheless, the lowest rates for the best paper are as follow:—

Thirty days bills	... 7 per cent.	Four months'	... 8 per cent.
Two months'	... 7 ,,	Six months'	... 8 ,,
Three months'	... 8 ,,

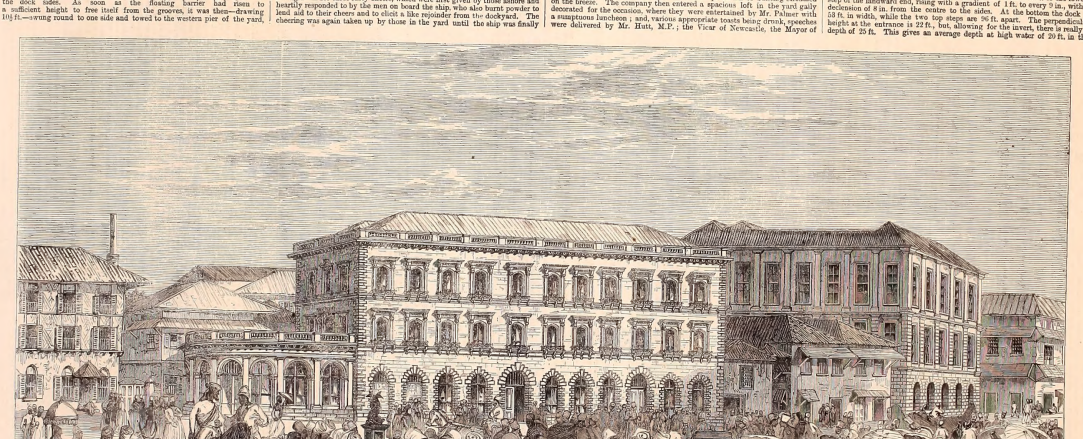
On Saturday last the directors of the Bank of England raised their quotation for money to 8 per cent., at which rate it remained until Thursday, when it was reduced to 7 per cent.

On the Continent money is becoming dearer, as will be seen from the following:—

	Bank rate.	Open market.		Bank rate.	Open market.
	per cent.	per cent.		per cent.	per cent.
Paris	3	3	Vienna	5	5
Berlin	5	5	Trieste	5	5
Frankfort	5½	5½	Madrid	6	6
Amsterdam	4	4	Hamburg	6	6
			St. Petersburg	6	6

Several parcels of gold have arrived from America, and about £200,000 has been sold by the Bank of England, which has also received £100,000 from Australia, and £100,000 from the Continent. The total amount of bullion in the Bank of England is £19,000,000.

There was a slight improvement in the Consol Market on Monday, and the quotations for Money were 90¼ for the Account, 90½ ¾ for Cash, 90¾ for Money, and 90¾ ⅞ for Account next Settling Day. On Tuesday, Consols were 90¾ ⅞ for Money, and 90¾ ⅞ for Account next Settling Day. On Wednesday, Consols were 90¾ ⅞ for Money, and 90¾ ⅞ for Account next Settling Day. On Thursday, Consols were 90¾ ⅞ for Money, and 90¾ ⅞ for Account next Settling Day. On Friday, Consols were 90¾ ⅞ for Money, and 90¾ ⅞ for Account next Settling Day.



The Bank Directors have been occupied in the week for Foreign Securities.

The Bank Directors have been occupied in the week for Foreign Securities.

The Bank Directors have been occupied in the week for Foreign Securities poured into the dock, a dirty puddle, and gradually the water streamed to the southern end, until about 9½ ft. of water was registered on the caisson sides. Then the barrier began gently to float on the grooves, and the band struck up "Rule Britannia" with all their might. At the time the water was turned on, there was a depth inside the caisson of 11½ ft., and by three o'clock the caisson floated, the water at this time being 12½ ft. at the dock sides. As soon as the floating barrier had risen to a sufficient height to free itself from the grooves, it was then—drawing 10½ ft.—swung round to one side and towed to the western pier of the yard, where it was made fast, so as to allow of the entrance of a fine steamer—the last built by the firm of Messrs. Palmer, and called the Sabrina. More cannon chains, brought the noble ship to the entrance of the dock, when, to the strains of the band, she was gently towed into the middle. Here Mr. MacIntyre acted as fugleman for three lusty cheers, which were first given by those ashore and heartily responded to by the men on board the ship, who also burnt powder to lend aid to their cheers and to elicit a like rejoinder from the dockyard. The cheering was again taken up by those in the yard until the ship was finally made fast for settling down on the graving blocks, if that were deemed necessary. This ended the outdoor proceedings, which lasted not quite three quarters of an hour. As is shown in our Illustration, the ship was "peacocked" from stem to stern, and from almost every available pole or prominent object in and about the yard an endless profusion of bunting streamed on the breeze. The company then entered a spacious loft in the yard gaily decorated for the occasion, where they were entertained by Mr. Palmer with a sumptuous luncheon; and, various appropriate toasts being drunk, speeches were delivered by Mr. Hutt, M.P.; the Vicar of Newcastle, the Mayor of Tynemouth, and other gentlemen, who expressed their good wishes on behalf of an enterprise so important to the trade of the Tyne.

With regard to the new dock itself, a brief description of its chief features will suffice. Its area extends southerly from the river 411 ft. to the lowest step of the landward end, rising with a gradient of 1 ft. to every 9 in., with a declension of 8 in. from the centre to the sides. At the bottom the dock is 53 ft. in width, while the two top steps are 96 ft. apart. The perpendicular height at the entrance is 22 ft., but, allowing for the invert, there is really a depth of 25 ft. This gives an average depth at high water of 20 ft. in the dock itself. There are the usual graving-blocks—solid blocks of stone 7 ft. by 3 ft. by 2 ft. 6 in., each having a coping of wood. On these the keels of vessels will rest. The dock entrance measures 70 ft. in width between the stonework and 30 ft. from north to south, and in grooves at the sides the caisson fits. A spacious engine-house, for the reception of the pumping machinery, boilers, &c., has been erected on the east side, in close proximity with the pump-wells, which are 15 ft. square and 27 ft. in depth, the surrounding wall being 5 ft. thick for about half way up from the base, and 4 ft. thick for the remainder of the height. The wall-facings all round are of hewn granite of great thickness, all the blocks being firmly cemented together. Then there is a solid mass of concrete, several feet in thickness, surrounding the masonry, this being succeeded by a puddle-wall round both sides and south end, the whole being backed with gravel, clay, &c., to the top of the coping, forming on the surface a large area of spacious wharfage for the purposes of the dock. One slight variation from this occurs on the east side, owing to the formation of the pump of two piers similarly constructed to those at the entrance of the locks at Northumberland Dock. Long wooden piles have been driven into the bed of the river at short distances from each other, which present an almost unbroken surface, and curve outwards. These are to be planked over the top, so at the Northumberland Dock, making convenient landings on each side. The whole work in iron plans furnished by Mr. J. F. Ure; the contractor being Mr. W. Jackson, of York.

THE NEW ORIENTAL BANK AND SHARE-MARKET, BOMBAY.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE LATE MR. J. F. HERRING.

EVERY class of painting may be said to have its "representative man;" and, as regards racehorse and purely farmyard subjects, Mr. Herring was unrivalled. Stubbs, Marshall, Gilpin, and Sartorius were not so accurate in their drawing, and coarser in their colouring; and Morland's scenes were on a much smaller scale, and rather good pig than general farm-stock studies. Mr. Herring was born in Surrey, A.D. 1795, and was of American-Dutch extraction. He was bred to his father's business in the City; but, in the course of his trade journeys for the house, he learnt from a good whip (Richardson) to drive four in hand, and taught himself drawing by stealth in his bedroom, after the family were gone to bed, with his brother Frank aiding and abetting him, till he at last achieved a horse and cart in oils. Their father, of course, found them out; but the sight of the sketches partially mollified him, and he consented, with some reluctance, that his son should have lessons. John proved, after one attendance, to know more than his master, and the latter had the grace to confess it. An early marriage, during his father's absence in Holland, and the dread of a scene on his return, caused him to leave his home and seek his fortunes in Doncaster, where he arrived about race time, in 1814. William was the St. Leger horse of the year; and Colton, Tranby, and Altcar Lodge were other races during the week. He tried hard to reproduce the St. Leger race, but his powers were not yet ripe, and he failed. Another chance opened up as he strolled along the town, and finding a painter making a dreadful mess of a white horse on a coach panel, he called for him, and so delighted the proprietors that they made him their crest-painter in ordinary.

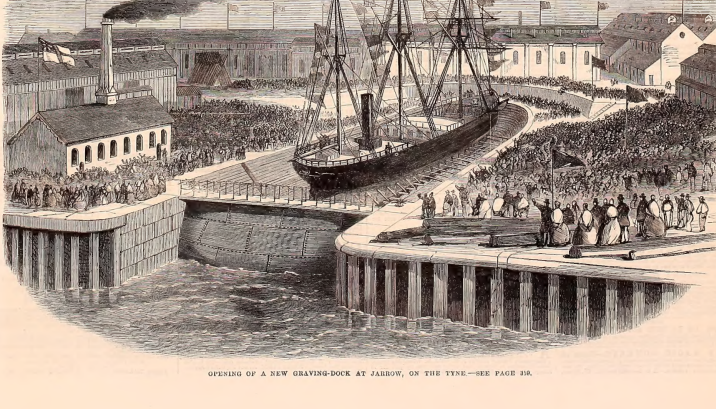
A Coach and Horses, and divers other inn signs, soon began to crop up all over Doncaster, and his name rose in the district. Still, he had not quite enough to do; and with his old love of driving burning within him, and feeling, rightly enough, that as "the painter coachman" he would become still better known, he accepted office, and drove a coach or mail on the North-road rather more than four years. Before he descended from the box he had received many commissions for coaching pictures, one of which brought in 50 gs., and he had also commenced, with Filho da Puta, that series of St. Leger winners, which soon led him to fame. For thirty-three years he painted them, first for Messrs. Brookes and Hatfield, of Doncaster; then for Messrs. Fuller; and, finally, for Messrs. Baily, on a larger scale. He began the Derby series in 1829, and continued it, with some breaks, up to 1851, when he finished with Teddington. The greatest finishes of the day—Antaeus v. Memnon, Priam v. Augustus, Bay Middleton v. Elis, Charles XII. v. Euclid, Emperor v. Alice Hawthorne, Flying Dutchman v. Voltigeur, and others, were all placed on canvas by him; and single portraits of stud cracks were followed up by the sires and dams of great winners, which gave great scope to his powers of grouping and foreshortening. The latter formed, with the "Stable Scenes," part of that "Herring Gallery" which has been recently sold by Messrs. Fores to Mr. Bruton, and of which the start for Orlando's Derby was the centre piece. It also included four racing scenes, the last he ever gave to the world, and in point of drawing and finish infinitely his best. It might well be said of the number of such works that he had "gained a position on the turf almost as official as that which Mr. Clarke holds in the chair, or Messrs. Weatherby over the Match Book."

Still he was not content to stand on them alone, and his "Frugal Meal," in the Vernon Gallery, his "Heroes of the Sea," "Members of the Temperance Society," "Feeding," "Refreshment," "Interior of an English Homestead," and others, were only a small portion of the general works which the grave's art has made familiar in all lands. His "Maternities," "Hunting Scenes" (in which the men and hounds were not equal to the horses), and "St. Giles and St. James" were also very popular; and whether it was a horse, or rabbits, or a brood of young ducks, the British Institution, to the very last, hardly ever opened without something from his hand. Many of his best works were exhibited in Suffolk-street; but, like Haydon, he had a strong anti-Royal-Academy feeling.

He did not leave many pictures behind him, but among them are a large Horse Fair, and Cattle Fair, and "The Forge." The finished single portraits of celebrated racehorses and sires number about thirty, from Orvile down to Stockwell, in whose day he ceased to take journeys (one of which was to Chantilly, for the late Duke of Orleans) expressly to paint them. When he removed from Camberwell to Meopham Park, near Tonbridge, about that date, horses were sent in turn to him; and the three studios which he made of a Royal Arab, with different backgrounds, to submit to her Majesty before painting the picture, form a pleasant feature of his portfolio. It is very largely stocked with every kind of sketch, racehorse and pastoral, as well as studies for the panorama of the Overland Mail, which was so popular some years since. He worked a little daily till within four days of his death, and a horse's head was the last thing he touched. For three or four years he had been a great sufferer from asthma and dropsy, and nothing but the most indomitable love of his profession enabled him to paint on. Although he had turned seventy, his skill suffered no decline as far as horse drawing and painting went; but, after the death of his third son, Charles, whose peculiar forte was figures, he did not attempt that higher range of subjects (in which Cavaliers and Roundheads occasionally played their part) for which he was once so famous. Charles died in 1856; and on Saturday (Sept. 30) his father was laid beside him, at Hildenborough Church, close to the high road between Tonbridge and Sevenoaks. A widow, and five children by his first wife—viz., two sons, John Frederick and Benjamin (both well-known animal-painters), and three daughters, one of whom is married to Mr. Harrison Weir, the excellent wood-draughtsman—survive him.



His paintings and sketches will, we understand, be sold in London, at Messrs. Christie's, in the course of the winter.

THE LATE J. F. HERRING, ANIMAL PAINTER.

THE NEW ORIENTAL BANK AND SHARE MARKET, BOMBAY.

The new building of the Oriental Bank, at Bombay, is situated in Bazaar-row, and faces what is called the Esplanade of that city. The style of architecture is Italian; but, while the lower portion is wholly built of stone and rusticated, the upper stories are of painted brick, and this is the only building in Bombay in which that material is used ornamentally. It has been erected from the design of the late Mr. William Tracey, civil engineer, of Bombay. The building on the right in our Engraving is the one which was temporarily occupied by the Bank of Bombay. The drinking-fountain in the foreground is one of the numerous fountains presented by Cowasjee Jehanghier, a wealthy and most beneficent Parsee merchant of Bombay. The Share Market is held in the vicinity of the Oriental Bank, which is the most suitable locality, not only because it is contiguous to most of the banks, but also because here the crowd or mob of brokers, composed for the most part of Hindoos of the Banian caste, have ample space to indulge in the violent exhibition of various passions excited by the chances of a business in which gigantic fortunes have lately been won and lost with the most astonishing rapidity. The scenes, indeed, that were daily enacted in the Share Market till the crisis of speculation a few months ago—the fighting, scrambling, shouting, and yelling, almost always inseparable from Oriental bargain-making, presented a great contrast to the quiet, business-like mode of transacting matters of this nature in our own Stock Exchange. It appears from the latest accounts that the Parsees are giving place to the Hindoos in the Bombay market.

OPENING OF A NEW GRAVING-DOCK AT JARROW, ON THE TYNE.—SEE PAGE 370.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

DR. HAROLD. By Mrs. GASCOIGNE. Author of "Temptation," &c. 3 vols.
OSWALD HASTINGS; or, The Adventures of a Queen's Ale-de-Camp. By Cecil W. W. KNOLLYS. 3 vols.
THE LIFE OF MAN BERKELEY, Author of "The Life of Edward Irving." 2 vols. [Nov. 20.
ANDREW HAMSAY OF ERROL. By the Author of "John Arnold," &c. 3 vols.
THE LADY OF WINBURNE. By ALICE KING. 3 vols.
BURNT AND BURIED. Published, 13, Great Marlborough-st.

Just published.

BAD SPELLING IS FATAL TO SUCCESS. The Secret of Spelling Correctly, post-free for seven stamps. Published by N. PRIOR, 91, Windsor-street, Brighton.

In a few days, in crown 8vo, cloth extra,

LIGHTS IN ART: A Review of Ancient and Modern Works. With Critical Remarks on Colour, Light, Treatment, and Preservation of Oil Paintings. By an Artist. [Edited by WILLIAM F. NIMMO.] London: Hamilton, Adams, and Co.

On the 1st of November will be published, in royal 8vo, cloth gilt, price 21s., a new and enlarged edition of EXTINCT, DORMANT, AND SUSPENDED PEERAGES. By the late SIR HARRIS NICOLAS. Edited by WILLIAM COURTHOPE, Rouge Dragon, Pursuivant of Arms. Illustrated by Steel Engravings of the principal Arms. In this new edition the history of each title is continued to the present time, and the various dignities are traced down to their existing representatives.

HARRISON, Bookseller to the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 59, Pall-mall, London.

NIMMO'S EDITION of the POETS is the cheapest, the most correct, and the best adapted for presentation. Price 3s. 6d. each, elegantly bound in cloth; or 5s. 6d. in red morocco. Sold by all Booksellers.

NIMMO'S POETS.—LONGFELLOW. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—SCOTT. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—BYRON. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—MOORE. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—WORDSWORTH. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—COWPER. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—MILTON. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—THOMSON. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—BEATTIE and GOLDSMITH. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—POPE. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

NIMMO'S POETS.—BURNS. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

UNIFORM with NIMMO'S POETS—The CABINET OF GEMS. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

UNIFORM with NIMMO'S POETS—The CHILD'S GARLAND'S Presented to Good and HOLY WAR. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

UNIFORM with NIMMO'S POETS—The ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS, 3 vols. price 5s. 6d. each. Illustrated.

UNIFORM with NIMMO'S POETS—The COMPLETE WORKS of WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, 3 vols. price 5s. 6d. each. Illustrated.

UNIFORM with NIMMO'S POETS—The LIVES of the BRITISH POETS, with Specimens of their Writings. Price 3s. 6d. Illustrated.

ONCE A WEEK.
Price Sixpence. Every Wednesday, Price 6d.

SANS MERCI: or, Kestrels and Falcons. By the Author of "Guy Livingstone," in new publication in BLACK & WHITE.

NEW STORY by the Author of "Guy Livingstone," now commenced in No. 328 of ONCE A WEEK. Bentley and Co., 8, Burlington-street, and all Booksellers and Newsvendors.

Now Ready, by the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," &c.

SIR JASPER'S TENANT.
In Fourth Edition. This day at all Libraries.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

NEW SONG BY MR. FRED. ROMER.—MY JOHN. On Monday next, in one vol., price 6s.,

PAUL PEABODY.
By the Author of "The Sailor Crane," &c.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

In two, price Sixpence,

NICE.—Contains: 1. Situation and Climate, 2. Social Aspects, 3. Walks, Drives, &c. 4. History. 5. Route to Nice. 6. Routes into Auvergne. Published by the Proprietors, Hetal Company, by GOODBAN and SONS, 5, Paternoster-row.

Price 1s.,

THE RESTORATION OF NERVOUS EXCITION. By JOHN HARVEY, M.D. Price 1s., HOW TO CURE GOUT and GOUTY SORE THROAT, Price 1s.

NEW AND FASHIONABLE WORK FOR LADIES.

TATTING in BRAID and SILK.
Outlines, 3s. each; Commenced, 5s. 6d. Brass fitted with materials for the beautiful work, 9s. 6d., 7s. 6d., and 5s. 6d. Sold nearly at WM. BANNARD'S, 93, Cornmarket-street, Oxford.

BAGSTER'S BLANK-PAGE BIBLE. Bagster's Bible with more convenient plan for MR. NOTES. Sent Price 7s.

At all the principal Booksellers; and at 15, Paternoster-row, London.

GLENNYS GARDEN ALMANACK
Is the most complete of publications—thoroughly practical, and exactly impressed; WILL BE READY NOV. 1. Price 1s.
C. F. GLENNY, 1, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row. No Advertisements after the 25th of October.

Now ready

THE COTTAGER'S PENNY ALMANACK for the Year of our Lord 1866, with Twelve Illustrations, and Hints for Reading the Weather; containing the Sunday Lessons—A Scripture Text for Every Day in the Year—Rules for Finding Easter Day—Table of Calendars—A Description of each Month, with Observations on the Kitchen and Flower Garden—Various Hints on Practical and Useful Subjects—Birthdays of the Royal Family—Remarkable Days—Fairs, Markets, with Historical and Explanatory Notes—Days of Meeting of the Courts—Duties on Servants, Horses, and Legacy Duties, &c. This Almanack is so unassuming and interesting, and so useful, that it cannot fail to become a favourite with every Cottager.
THE COTTAGER'S SHEET ALMANACK for the Year of our Lord 1866, with Twelve Illustrations, and Hints for Management, Economy, and Amusement, and illustrated. This Almanack may also be had with the upper portion blank, so as to admit of the insertion of local title and embellishment.
THE COTTAGER'S CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE. Repository. 73, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields, W.C., & Royal Exchange, E.C.; 16, Piccadilly, W.; and by all Booksellers.

Just out,

THOS. DE LA RUE and CO.'S PATENT PLAYING CARDS. The New Patterns for the Season are now ready, and may be had of all Booksellers and Stationers.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Boons of Fairies and Blessings of Mortals go through their extraordinary antics and lively adventures in this Comic Tale. The 2nd and 3rd post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 338, Strand.

NEW MUSIC.

BENEDICT'S NEW SONG, "The Bird that first sings in the Spring." Sung by Miss Edith Thirlwall, with great success, at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham; also by Miss Poole. Price 3s.
AUSBORNE and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S VALSE DE 3 FASCINATION. Just published. One of the most brilliant and effective waltzes of the season. Solo or duet. Illustrated. Post-free 18 stamps.—AUSBORNE and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S CHANT DES OISEAUX. Just published. A most charming and attractive piece, in Sydney Smith's best style. Solo or duet. Illustrated. Post-free 18 stamps.—AUSBORNE and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S MAYPOLE DANCE. Just published. A quaint and thoroughly characteristic piece, Illustrated. Price 3s.
AUSBORNE and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S NEW WALTZ. Just published. Sung by Miss Wilford Morgan, at the last Promenade Concert, Her Majesty's Theatre. Illustrated. Price 3s.
AUSBORNE and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

KUHE'S EXTRAVAGANZA FOR THE PIANOFORTE. May be had of every Musicseller in Great Britain and the Colonies.
AUSBORNE and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA, 3s. On the universal "Rage." Sung, I hope here we are again." The most successful song, price 3s. Sung by all the principal serio-comics. Illustrated. Post-free 18 stamps.
AUSBORNE and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP, 3s. Is the same tune as "Jolly Dogs" Polka, but more effective. An enormous success wherever played. May be had of every musicseller. Illustrated. Post-free 18 stamps.—AUSBORNE and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST of NEW SONGS.
SILVER BANNS. Music by CLEMENTS-SHERRINGTON with the most successful ballad in the Opera, "Lucy Lockit," sung by Miss LIVERSIDGE. Price 2s. Post-free 13 stamps.
THE BRIDAL MARCH. By OLIVIER QUADRILLE. 4s.
THE BRIDAL DANCES for the Piano, by J. F. Barnett. 3s. Bridgeday QUADRILLE. 4s. Ditto. Ditto. WALTZ. 4s. GALOP. 3s.
UNITED SERVICE QUADRILLE. Band Parts. 3s. Full Orchestra staves for practice. 2s.
THE LAST FAIRY. Sung by Miss Robertson. Words by CHARLES SPELL. Music by J. L. ROECKEL. Price 2s. Post-free 13 stamps.
O! BE FREE. Sung by Miss Lemmens-Sherrington with the greatest success. Words by CHARLES MACKAY, LL.D. Music by Hollis Lidgbird. By H. S. Roberts. 2s.
I WILL A HUSBAND CHOOSE (Anne Pricket). For Piano. By Brinley Richards. 3s.
HAPPY BE THY DREAMS. Sung by Mr. Rawlinson (Christ Church). Price 2s.
SACRED MUSIC for SUNDAY EVENINGS (Voices and Piano). Selected by CHARLES HALLE. Price 2s.
SACRED SONGS for the CHILDREN. By W. T. WRIGHTON. Vol. 1, COME DESCENDING, and 'TIS SO. Per Piano. W. S. Rockstro. Each 2s.
TA CI DAREM, and DI TANTI PALPITI. For Piano. By W. S. Rockstro. 2s.
Songs for last piece, with Piano Accompaniment, by Mr. Frederick Hamilton's Piano Tuition. 42nd Edition. 4s., free for 28 stamps.
Hamilton's Catechism. 74th Edition. 1s., free for 13 stamps.
Hamilton's Dictionary. 77th Edition. 1s., free for 13 stamps.
Hamilton's Modern Instructions. 104th Edition. 4s., free for 28 stamps.
London: Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street, W.
Agents for Essex, Hertford, and Middlesex—Duncan Davison and Co.

ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS QUADRILLES, for the Pianoforte, a beautiful set of Quadrilles on Jacques Offenbach's popular Opera. Illustrated. Price 3s.
London: Brewer and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

100 FAVOURITE ENGLISH MELODIES, Airs, Ballads, Songs, and Duets, from the Works of the most CELEBRATED COMPOSERS. Price 6s., full music size, post-free for 42 stamps.
London: Brewer and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

100 GERMAN AIRS, selected from popular Operas, Transcribed for the Pianoforte by WILLIAM SUTTON CALCOTT. Price 6s., full music size, post-free for 42 stamps.
London: Brewer and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

100 WELSH AIRS, Transcribed for the Pianoforte by WILLIAM SUTTON CALCOTT. Price 6s., full music size, post-free for 42 stamps.
London: Brewer and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

100 ENGLISH MELODIES (Second Series), Transcribed for the Pianoforte by WILLIAM SUTTON CALCOTT. Price 6s., post-free for 42 stamps.
London: Brewer and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STANDARD ELEMENTARY MUSICAL WORKS for the PIANOFORTE.—Brewer and Co.'s Edition for the Pianoforte, 16th Edition, 3s.; Forty Instructions for the Pianoforte, 3s.; Rudiments of Music, 1s.; Catechism of Music, 1s.; Catechism of Harmony, 1s. These works have received the highest approval from many people. The publishers confidently invite the attention of teachers to the above list of works, which they have no doubt will in all elementary works for the pianoforte.
London: Brewer and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST may be had in Six Numbers, 2s. 6d. each, or complete, in cloth. Catalogue of contents forwarded free on application.
London: Brewer and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

Tenth Edition.

THERE IS NO LOVE LIKE A MOTHER'S. Ballad. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Rapidly gaining popularity. Price 2s.
London: Brewer and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

SEVEN GLOVER Songs always sung by Mrs. Sunday and safely Music shall free. 8th Edition, 2s. 6d.; The Sailor's Grave, 2s. 6d.; Mother! come back from the Grave, 2s. 6d.; Over the Summer Wash, 2s. 6d.; Mother! you are the Glory to Me, 2s. 6d.; Ben Bolt, 2s. 6d.; Sweet Spirit, hear my Prayer, 2s. 6d. Post-free for half price in stamps. "Mr. Glover's Ben Bolt is the best. Our Bark is on the Shore, by Mr. Stanislaus and Shadows, by Mr. Glover, are the two bright Pianos." Vide Court Journal, Oct. 7. Two merry Alpine Duets, by Mr. Glover, 7s. the two. Over the Summer Wash, Mr. Glover's new Song, 2s. 6d. Post-free for half price in stamps. Sung by Miss Poole at the Surrey Theatre, by Mr. Glover's desire.
London: Brewer and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

GALOPS OF THE SEASON.—GUNG'L'S SOLDATEN LIEDER. Played (by command) at the State Ball at Buckingham Palace. Price 3s.
GUNG'L'S WALTZ OF THE CAMELIAS. Price 3s.
A. HAMMOND and Co. (Jullien & Co.'s Type-street, Regent-street, W.

PRESTON'S LA MARIA D'ARCADELLI. Played with very great success at the Promenade Concerts. Price 3s. Also, PRESTON'S LA MARIA WALTZ. Played with great success at the Promenade Concerts, and was received with unexampled enthusiasm. Post-free for half price in stamps.
A. HAMMOND and Co. (Jullien & Co.'s Type-street, Regent-street, W.

MENDELSSOHN'S LIEDER OHNE WORTE.—EWER and CO.'s new and cheap Edition contains all the 8 Books of Lieder ohne Worte, in the only complete edition published in Europe. Price 4s.
EWER and CO., 390, Strand, near Exeter-street, London.

EWER and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY. Subscribers may enter daily. Prospectus gratis.
Ewer and Co., 390, Strand, London.

LADIES' NEW COMIC SONGS. Illustrated by Gilbert. "The Ticket on the Door," sung by Miss Emma Heywood at the Alhambra Music Hall, nightly, and always encored. "Oh, my Mamma's Gone Out," sung by Miss Lydia Thompson. "Oh, why do you tease us?" "You were, bottle-nosed," &c., sung by Miss Bella. Either free by post for 18 stamps.
ASHER, HALFORD, and CO., 27, Holywell-street, Strand.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S GREAT COMIC SONG, "Uncle's Gone Out," sung by the Jolly Coves, "A Thing you're a Bother," sung by J. H. Stead, in Invincibly funny. Both Illustrated by Cubwell, and either post free for half the stamps.—London: C. SHEARD, 192, High Holborn.

NEW MUSIC.

LA MURSKA VALSE. This elegant and fascinating Valse, composed and dedicated to Mdlle. Titiens de Murska by C. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the Scots Fusilier Guards, is now being performed nightly by the Band of the Prince Imperial, Paris, a photograph kindly furnished by bandmaster for 24 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR, Romance for Piano. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales. His renowned Romance has already run through 20 Editions. Price 3s.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

THE GREAT FYCHOW GALOP. By C. GODFREY, Composer of La Murska Valse. The admirable piece, beautifully illustrated, Portraits of Chang, Ward, Burgevine, Gordon, and Chang-Sing, the Tartar Dwarf, from photographs, by permission, of Messrs. Mayall, Photographers to the Queen. Price 3s.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

WINGS.—Dolores' charming Song, arranged for the Pianoforte by WM. KUHE. Price 4s.; post-free for 24 stamps.
London: J. Williams, 123, Cheapside, Bow-church-yard.

SIX POPULAR SONGS, by DOLORES.

The Brook	...	...	3s. 6d.
Wings	...	...	3s. 6d.
Green grows the willow	...	...	3s. 6d.
Such Beauty your feet	...	...	3s. 6d.
Flush	...	...	3s. 6d.
I love him! I dream of him!	...	...	3s. 6d.

London: J. WILLIAMS, 123, Cheapside, Bow-church-yard.

NEW, POPULAR, and STANDARD MUSIC, at HALF PRICE, by post, one stamp per every sixth, eight; a sample. A Catalogue of the above, consisting of waltzes, quadrilles, galops, polkas, operas, songs, duets, pianofortes, harmoniums, &c., at half-price, forwarded on receipt of one stamp.
THOMAS ROBINSON, Manchester, Bolton-st.

CHEAP MUSIC LIBRARY, 21s. per year; 10s. per quarter; 4s. per month, &c., or by town subscription, 10s. 6d. per year. HARRIS, 30, Bainbridge-place, Oxford-street, W. (late Mews Hall-yard).

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by CASELLI, Inventor and Patentee, with all the latest improvements, warranted for fair climates and to keep well in tune, from 3 to 6 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free.
CASELLI, CRAMER, BEALE, and CHAPPELL, 50, New Bond-street.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS. Cornets, Cashoras, Drums, Flutes, Concertinas, &c., in sets, made of the finest Silver Alloy, and fitted with Improvements (Butler's Aerial Model), the manufacturer not produced, with double water-key, 20 guineas. Price-Lists free.—BUTLER, Manufacturer, Improver, and Patentee, 7, Coventry-street, Leicester-square, London.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPÔTS, 56, Cheapside, and 19, Lodge-hill.—Sloane Improved Musical Boxes at 41 per cent. reduction. Lists of tunes and prices gratis and post-free on application.—JAMES CARTER and CO., as above.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPÔT for the Sale of MESSRS. NICOLLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED to 56, Cheapside, and 19, Lodge-hill. A large assortment of all sizes, from Guinea, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and prices gratis and post-free.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, 24, Manufacturers to the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, respectfully invite the public to visit their Show-Rooms, which contain the largest and most varied Stock of Plate and Cutlery, of their own manufacture, and of the best silver-plated manufactures, gold and silver watches, jewellery, and clocks, in the kingdom, and purchasers are sure to obtain the best articles at the lowest prices.
For the use of committees, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of Plate ready for presentation.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best Staffordshire quality. Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 53, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), S.W.

GARDNERS' LAMPS and CHANDELIERS, 49, Moorgate and Furnival's Table Lamps.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 53, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), S.W.

CHANDELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, Gilt or Bronze. Medieval Pillars, &c. A large assortment always on show, at reduced prices. Lustres with Pendants.
D. RUSSET and CO., Manufacturers, 33 and 34, High Holborn, W.C.

GLASS CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c. Glass Dishes for Gas Fittings. Glass Globes and Shades.
Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £3.
Glass Tea Services, for 12 persons, from 25s.
Ornamental Glass for Presentation Purposes, suitable for presents. Maps, Export, and Furnishing Orders, promptly executed.
F. and C. OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and show-rooms, Broad-street.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU of the BEST DESIGNS and WORKMANSHIP, Elegant Lamps, in Bronze, Ormolu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Bronze, and Ormolu. Inspection invited.—DEANE and Co., 46, King William-street, London-bridge.

SLACKS' FENDERS and FIRE-IRONS. Every Steel Fender always in stock, from 5s. to £20.
Black Fenders, 5s. 6d. to 8s.
Bright Steel and Ormolu, 8s. to 12s.
Bright Steel and Ormolu, 8s. to 20s.
Bright Steel and Ormolu, 10s. 6d. to 30s.
Bronzed and Ormolu, 10s. 6d. to 30s.
Improved Coalbasket, 4s. 6d. to 20s.
Improved Fire-Irons, 2s. 6d. to 20s.
Catalogues, with Prices, sent free by post. Engine, grate, or seat post-free. Orders above £2 sent carriage free, per rail.
SLACKS, 336, Strand, and 1, Crown-court, Strand.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-free. It contains Prices and Plans of the 850 Illustrations and Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, Britannia Metal, Table Cutlery, Baths, Lamps, Gaseliers, Tea Trays, Urns and Kettles, Tin Dishes, Table Covers, Fenders, Stoves, Marble Chimney-pieces, Kitchen Ranges, Culinary Utensils, and Bedsteads, with Bedding and Mattresses. The largest Show-rooms, 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1a, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-yard; and 4, Perry's-place, London.

BROWN and GREEN'S KITCHEN RANGES.—"A clear cage with an open chimney" more than ever approved, and only one fuel bar or more. Prospectuses free.—7, Bridgewater-street Within.

CHALMERS' ORNAMENTAL FURNITURE. BALLS, FORHAM, and CO., 170, Oxford-street, have newly imported a large assortment of this beautiful ware, which they have sacrificed to plain figures. Furniture purchased or exchanged.

CHALMERS' CHAIRS, COUCHES, and SOFAS, 27, 28, 29, Berners-street, adjoin the grounds to inspect their Chair Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reasonable rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, and SOFAS, of the best workmanship and materials, especially on view, at 56 to 61, Paul-street, E.C. FILMER and SON, 31, 32, and 33, Berners-street, W. An Illustrated Catalogue sent post-free.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE, 1 and 2, WAUGH and SON, 2 and 3, Goswell-street, Finsbury, Tottenham-court-road, W. Axminster, Aubusson, Persian, Brussels, Tapestry, Pile, Brussels Carpets, Rich Velvet Pile, Tapestry, Chintzes, &c.

CRETONNE CHINTZ for CURTAINS and COVERING of FURNITURE, all 3st Cotton, and dressed like Silk. The Cretonne Chintz is manufactured in the most extensive patterns of this useful and elegant material ever received from the manufactory at Mulhouse (France). Patterns free.—The London Carpet Warehouse, 1 and 2, Goswell-street, Finsbury, and 2 and 3, Tottenham-court-road, W.

JAMES CARTER and CO.

IMPORTED DUTCH BULBS.

THE NEW HYACINTH GLASSES.

PRICE-LISTS GRATIS and POST-FREE.

237 and 238, HIGH HOLBORN.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and much superior to many inferior sherries. Per dozen, 30s. A genuine old Port, 36s. per dozen. Cognac Brandy, 36s. per gallon. Three dozen sent by rail.—W. H. HOLLOWAY, Wine Merchant, 3, Bridge-street, Blackfriars, and 27, Charlotte-street, London-road, Southwark.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY v. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky stands the test, "Public Opinion." Sold by the leading Wine Merchants throughout the Kingdom. Sold by Wholesale, 63, at the Original Establishment, by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale of N. Grosz, 9, Great Tower-street, London, E.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

LEA'S LIQUEFIED ALLSPICE.—The above Ales are now being supplied in the finest condition, in Bottles and in Casks, by A. BARCLAY, 107, Bunhill-row, E.C., Contractor for Bottled Beer to the International Exhibition of 1862, from their Bonded and Export Stores, Nos. 1 and 2, Cumberland-road, Battersea, S.C., and Bonded Stores, 107, Bunhill-row, E.C. Established 1781.

PEPSINE.
MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE,
MORSON'S PEPSINE LOZENGES,
are perfectly reliable remedies for correcting this popular remedy for weak digestion. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 31, 32, 33, and 34, Southampton-row, Russell-square.
Pepsine Wine, in bottles, at 2s. 9d., and 5s. each.
Pepsine Lozenges, in boxes, at 1s. 6d. each.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE.
Nine years since with much difficulty we introduced this Sauce, and it is now admitted by Connoisseurs, all the World, Families and Stars, and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic Cocoa.—The nutritious and delicious properties of the finest cocoa-nut are perfectly preserved, when manufactured by the process of Mr. James Epps, of Threadneedle-street, in which the excess of irresponsible way has been introduced into this country, and which, by the removal of the excess of the oily matter, renders it peculiarly adapted to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied to the public in the shell, or ground in the usual manner. Hence many persons, to whom the finest cocoa was unknown, were induced, in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and the result was the production of a cocoa of unparalleled purity, delicacy, and fragrance, which is in its completeness, and so reduced by the perfect attainment to overcome the process it passes through, that it is only requisite to add boiling water to produce the most delicious beverage. Each packet is distinguished as an unvarying, genuine article, by the name of JAMES EPPS, Homœopathic Chemist, 170, Piccadilly.—Cocoa, Chocolate, and Nibs.—Cocoa contains a great variety of important nutritive principles—every ingredient of value in the cocoa-nut, except the oil. Nibs.—The choicest portions of the cocoa-nut, carefully roasted, either whole or bruised, for tea.—Directions—Two teaspoonfuls of the powder in a breakfast-cup, fill up with boiling water, and add sugar and cream to taste. Chocolate.—Cocoa, sugar, and vanilla, in tablets, for eating, and Chocolate, Fonk packet is labelled "J. Epps, Homœopathic Chemist, 170, Piccadilly." Each packet is labelled, Finsbury Homœopathic Chemist, Manufactory, Euston-road."

EPPS'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing popularity of J. E. Epps's Cocoa and Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of nourishment.
Sold in packets and tins, by grocers.
Attention to cocoa and chocolate as articles of food and sustaining, and it is thus peculiarly adapted for persons who require light nourishment in a portable form.

A PASTABLE AND CONVENIENT FORM.

FRYS CREAMS
are an exceedingly delicious sweetmeat
Prepared by the Proprietors of FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING
Is prepared with extreme delicacy, and is highly recommended by Physicians and Connoisseurs, to whom it is a favourite.
Children, with proper care, are also extremely fond of it.

CHOCOLAT-MENIER.
THE FINEST FOOD FOR INVALIDS.
Yellow Wrapper ... ... No. 84, per lb.
Blue ... ... 3s. 6d.
Pink ... ... 3s. 6d.
Rose ... ... 3s. 6d.
VANILLA PLAIN ... ... 4s. per lb.
Lilac ... ... 4s. 6d.
Orange ... ... 4s. 6d.
Mauve ... ... 4s. 6d.
Gold, White, &c., packets, by all respectable Houses.
Wholesale, 11, Hanover-street, Hanover-square.

DUBLIN EXHIBITION.—French Department.—A MEDAL was AWARDED to MENIER for the CHOCOLATE. Wholesale, 11, Hanover-street, Hanover-square. Retail, 4, Regent-street, Waterloo-place; 30, Haymarket; 42, Hounslow-street, Covent-garden. Sold by all respectable Houses.

CEREALINA, of DR. BROWN'S FARINACEOUS FOOD, for Infants and Invalids. Is the most nutritious and convenient food in existence. Its delicate and slightly aperient is peculiarly beneficial to the digestive and nervous systems. Sold in 1s. packets, by grocers and chemists. Wholesale agents of 2nd, and to meet in seeking in the same manner as Messrs. Fry and Sons, 31, Great Tower-street, E.C.

Sold by all Grocers, &c., and Wholesale by WILLIAM EDWARDS and SONS, 83, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.
Manufactory, Hammersmith, Middlesex.

"MALVERNIA."
A BREAKFAST-CUP FROM MALZE AND WHEAT.—Delicious, Stimulating, and Healthy, in the Morning and Afternoon. Sold by Grocers, Tea-dealers, Chemists, Fancy Repositories, and Refreshment Rooms.
Sole Proprietors, THOMAS and CO., Malvern.

BROWN AND POLSON'S
PATENT CORN FLOUR.
Packets, 6d., 1lb., 2s.
Manufactory, Paisley and Edinburgh.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
Awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Acid and Stomachic Disorders of every kind. Sold by all Chemists throughout the World. Dépôt, 172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

ELLIS'S ROYAL EMBROCATION for RHEUMATISM cures to the Royal and most leading staffs, for Sprains, Bruises, Lumbago, Sciatica, Gout, Neuralgia, Sore throat, Windgalls, and Sweenies; also for broken knees, colds, wounds, sore throat, and all pains in Man or Beast. Sold by all Chemists, in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each.

THE CATTLE PLAGUE and CHOLERA. The HOMŒOPATHIC REMEDIES (with directions) for their successful treatment are sold by JAMES EPPS, Chemist, 170, Piccadilly. Also Homœopathic Medicine Chests, Cases, and Pocket-books, of every description, to the London Homœopathic Hospital.

DR. DE JONGH'S
Light-brown Cod-liver Oil
(Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
Is a pure, safe, and efficacious remedy for CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, COLDS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, GENERAL DEBILITY, and all SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS,
Is incomparably superior to every other kind.
DR. LETHEBY, Medical Officer of Health, and Chief Analyst to the City of London, writes:—"I have, in all cases, universally acknowledged that Dr. De Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has proved itself to be the purest and most efficacious remedy. I have to declare it to be both a pure and unadulterated article."
Dr. LANKESTER, F.R.S., Coroner for Central Middlesex, observes:—"I have submitted Dr. De Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil to analysis, and have found it to be a pure and genuine article, of great therapeutic value, and entirely free from the nauseous taste and smell which render the administration of the ordinary Cod-liver Oil so difficult and disagreeable to patients, especially children."
Sold only in capsuled IMPERIAL HALF PINTS, 4s. 6d.; PINTS, 9s. 6d.; QUARTS, 18s.; by respectable Chemists.
Sole Consignees, ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

THE PLANET JUPITER, when magnified 150 times with the NEW 6-INCH REFLECTOR, and seven times as large as the moon is to the naked eye; and the other wonders of the heavens, may be seen at the Polytechnic Institution at a less fee than usual, which admits you a second time before and time by a shrunk-cloth inch tailor. His interest in gentlemen in writing to perform the which of the shows, and to be equal to the most important reports to telescopes during 4?6. It has 6?5-in. specula, and is mounted on a new and powerful equatorial stand, and all other of which is fitted close rod.—6, and 3, SOLOMONS, 39, Aldersgate-street, Finsbury. Full particulars, as subjoined.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weight, 4 ounces; power, and marvellous in its clearness. Price 25s., sent post-free. This glass is especially adapted for the use of tourists, sportsmen, and all persons requiring a portable glass.—SOLOMONS, 39, Aldersgate-street, Finsbury.

THE REGISTERED ACHROMATIC and POINTED SPECTACLES are easily to be had of S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Aldersgate-street, Finsbury, and are adapted for the sight by Examination, Visional Anomaly, or Test Card of Lewis Wadhouse, Varney, Starbourne, and numerous others. Testimonials from the Scientific Journals.

DEAFNESS.—THE SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits the ear completely, and is entirely concealed from view. Can be obtained of the inventor only, near Guildhall, and at 39, Aldersgate-street, Finsbury.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Aldersgate-street, Finsbury.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING APPARATUS, for the use of Masters and Lecturers, Schools, Families, &c. Dissolving Apparatus, with two lenses, 3? 3s.; ditto, with 3 lenses, a microscope, throwing upon a screen animalcules in water, containing four objects, 5? 5s.; Microscopic Slides, containing four objects, 10s. 6d. per dozen; Oxy-hydrogen Gas Apparatus, 2 and 3? additional; Galileoscope, 3s. Illustrated sheet, 6d.—SOLOMONS, 39, Aldersgate-street, Finsbury.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE. Price 2? 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, Opticians, 6, Coleman-street, London. Illustrated Catalogue sent on receipt of six stamps.

J. M M P R I S S Gold Magnetic and Sand. 1, Pall-mall, 22, Stories-street, late REMOVED to 1, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square.

A FACE OF—An elegant POCKET TIMEPIECE, warranted to denote correct time, with gold hunting-case, richly jewelled, 4-plate movement, for 4?. Free by post. PAUL DAIMON, 24, Brunswick-street, Hackney-road, London.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to the Queen, the Royal Family, and the Admiralty, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Watch and Clock Maker to the Queen

NEW MUSIC.

NEW WALTZ BY D'ALBERT.

HOME, SWEET HOME. New Waltz, by CHARLES D'ALBERT, on the favourite melody of "Home, Sweet Home." Price 2s. net. Illustrated Programme. Price 6d. Extra Copy (of part for 2) post-free 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MAY WALTZ. By ALFRED MELLON. Performed at his concerts at Covent Garden Theatre with great success. Price 4s., or free by post for 24 stamps.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grenadier Guards. Nightly encored at Mellon's Concerts, Queen's Hall. Played by the Composer's Band at the Crystal Palace. The "Graphic" Waltz, so successfully adopted. "Graphic, June 3. "A waltz which bids fair to rival, if not to exceed, the celebrated 'Blue Danube.'" Illustrated. Price for Pianoforte Solo, 4s. net; Solo (or Violin), 1s.; Septet, 2s.; Military Band, 2s. 6d.; Military Band, 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

Just published,

MABEL. A Song, written by Henry Pettitt, adapted to the melody of "The Last Waltz," by GODFREY. Price 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU à L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "Les Huguenots." Arranged for Pianoforte Duet, as performed by the Pianoforte Harmonium, or Organ, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MORCEAU à L'UNISON, from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine." performed every evening at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, Queen's Hall. Arranged for 2 hands for Pianoforte. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. Peter's, Cranleigh, on Easter Sunday, arranged for the Pianoforte by E. VITALIS. Price 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WEARIN' O' THE GREEN.—The only correct Edition of Words and Music, as sung by Mr. Richmond Hill in the Drama of "Arms-in-Arms." Price 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARD'S PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. A new Edition of this large work, now published, containing the Instruction and Exercises, with Examples from the Studies of "The Gamut," "The Gamut Waltz," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive Lessons, thus rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 2s., post-free, 12 stamps.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. Beautifully Pictorially arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BARNEY O'HEA. Lover's favourite Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS.
LE FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. net.
MARINE. Fantasia for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. New series, a Fortnight on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price, Solo, 2s. net; Duet, 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Piano-forte. Price 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S FAVOURITE REPERTOIRE. A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern, carefully edited for the use of musicians, by Dr. MINARDI. Each number contains from four to six pieces, with pedal obbligato, and registration for two manuals arranged expressly with this purpose. No. 1 is now ready, and will be issued in monthly numbers. A complete list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Violin and Flute. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the "Guards" and "Mabel," by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin, and Flute, each 1s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, newly arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each.
No. 1. The Guards' Waltz. No. 4. The Dancing Doll.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz. No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Fairy Galop. No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A GENUINE SUCCESS.—"His pathos is unfailing."—Truth.

CASTLE GRIM. Comic Opera. Composed by ALLEN. Now being played at the Aldwych Theatre. The popular songs. Post-free, at half price :—
The New song in the Lily scene by Miss Gallaher ... ... 2s. 6d.
The gentle joys of married life ... ... 2s. 6d.
The Lily song (the "Lily" scene" song by Mr. Henry) ... ... 2s. 6d.
Ah! I promise (song by Mr. Eliot Grant) ... ... 2s. 6d.
The Opera complete, for voice and pianoforte, 7s. 6d. net.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE WEARING OF THE GREEN. The only correct version of this popular Song. Price 2s. net. Illustrated Programme. "The Wearing of the Green." Galop. By Z. BROWNE. Played at Mellon's Promenade Concerts. Price 2s. net.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ARAH - NA - POGUE QUADRILLE, by JULIEN. Played at Mellon's Concerts. Arah-na-Pogue Waltz. By Julien. All Illustrated. 2s. net.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

TWO NEW SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

A LONG CHORD. THREE ROSES. Price 3s. each. Post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

FULL SPEED! GALOP. By E. AUDIBERT. Played at St. Mary's Concerts, with the greatest success. Illustrated. Price 2s. net. Post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Now ready, price 3s.,

THE CELESTIAL GALOP. By J. AUDIBERT. With Portrait of the popular "Chung" Ching Mysteries of Dublin Quadrille," by the famous Japanese Composer, W.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S Great Comic Song, THE CONTINENTAL BAND. Extensively encored everywhere. Illustrated. Price for Music size, 2s. net; Reduced size, 1s. net. Post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. Founded on the most popular Melodies of the day, and played at the nobility's balls. Illustrated with Portraits of Mrs. Dorè, or Septet, Septuagn., 2s.; Military Band, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE NEW NATIONAL ANTHEM. JOLLY DOGS! with Chorus. Sung by the Great Vance, 12,000 times, at every great place of amusement in London. Free for Silent stamps.—VALOIS, 7, Robinson-place, W.

HARVEY'S "ABERGELDIE." Brilliant Fantasia on Scotch Melodies, performed daily by Willie Pape. Post-free for 30 stamps, from Hale and Co., 10, Baldwin-street, Oxford-street, W.; and all Pianoforteists.

NEW MUSIC.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. This exquisite song is equally effective in the form of a Serenade for the Pianoforte, in the style of "Bonnie Mo." Price 2s. net.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. New Song. The most beautiful of all this Gabriel's compositions. Price 2s. "It has everywhere. Also arranged as a Serenade for Pianoforte, 2s. net, and for the Saxophonician, 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CUSHA. By DOLORES, Author of "The Brook." A new Song. 2s. net.—BOOSEY and Co.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S CANNOT BE SURE (Ne sais pas). Arranged as a Song for the Pianoforte of Charles's last success. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S CHURCH SERVICES, by Smart, Jones, Goss, Stone, on superior paper, price Sixpence each :—
1. JACKSON, in F.
2. JACKSON, in A flat.
3. BOYCE and ARNOLD.
4. KING, in A.
5. ELDON, in C.
The "Te Deum" and other movements, price One Penny and Twopence each.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS. BOOSEY and CO.'S NEW EDITION. Price 2s. net.

ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER. BOOSEY and CO.'S NEW SHILLING EDITION.

WELY'S OFFERTOIRES for the ORGAN, as performed by him at the Inauguration of the Tower Organ, Westminster Abbey, published at 4s. and 5s. each. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS. BOOSEY'S and CO.'S New Edition of the six books complete, price 1s.—Holles-street.

THE CHORALIST, Part 3, Price 1s., contains Hymns and Tunes by Barnby, Dykes, Havergal, Macfarren, Oxo, Schaffer, and other Graesse composers, all with Music Notation, Sanctuary Responses, and Chants, Ancient and Modern Melodies, harmonised from Original Sources, with English words. The above may also be had, for the use of societies, in Penny numbers. BOOSEY and CO.'S New Edition of the Church Psalmodies (the cheapest now extant) may be had, post-free, from Holles-street, London.

CLARIBEL'S 40 SONGS, for VIOLIN, 1s.; Violoncello, 1s.; Flute, 1s.; Cornet, 1s.; Oboe, 1s.; Clarionet's "Airtistes," for Violin, 1s. 6d. All just published by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Quadrilled from the Valse by Coote, arranged for Cornet, Euphonium, Harp, Concertina, &c. HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

WALTER J. TEA SET of TUNES.

THREE GOOD GOLLIES GALOP. By HAGENEUTER. Price 3s. With a famous Chorus. HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

ANOTHER MUSICAL ATTRACTION.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP, price 3s., with Illustrations.
HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

GOLLY! What a Success!

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. 3s. (Eclipses all others.
HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT MELLON'S CONCERTS.

COOTE'S "THE HALF-A-TECHNIC GALOPADE, price 3s., illustrated lightly.
HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, as well the published price, sent post-free for one-half marked price. Catalogues gratis and post-free.
HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street, W.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW and BEAUTIFUL SONG, "Ben." Written by Rosalind. Price 2s. Likely to become even more popular than his celebrated Song, "Woodman, Spare That Tree."
HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! Price 2s. net. Sung by Madame Clara Butt. Signed Mabel by the celebrated Cowboy Minstrel and Descriptive Song, "Rustling in the Corn." Illustrated. Price 2s. net. Also, "Dreaming," and "Telegraph," &c. The greatest song ever composed, both words and music.—HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

A FIRST-RATE SENTIMENT.

PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE. Price 3s. Sung by Miss Lena Ashwell. HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

THE LILIES OF FLEETING FRIENDSHIP; or, Bring thy Shattered Heart to Me. By FRED. GILBERT. Price 2s. net.
"This song, for sweetness of melody, has not its equal."—Review.
HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

THE CELEBRATED FEDERAL GLORIOSO SONG.

JOHN BROWN'S BODY LIES mouldering in the grave, but his soul marches on. Price 2s. net.—HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

NINETY RECORDS.

COME, SING TO ME AGAIN; I have heard great music standing. Price 2s. 6d. "Thy a gem."—Review.—HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

JUST OUT.

EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY, at 10½ by J. MACLEAN. Price 2s. Also the whole of his celebrated Comic Songs and Duets.
HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

CREATES ROARS OF LAUGHTER.

JOLLY CATS THERE THEY ARE AGAIN! Price 2s. 6d. Decidedly encored every night.
HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

SCHOOL OF LONDON.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA LANCERS, on the popular airs of the day. Quadrilled every night at Mellon's Concerts.—HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

THE BOB-O-LINK POLKA. Arranged by COOTE. Played at Mellon's Promenade Concerts with great success.—HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE.

COOTE'S FORREST FIRE VALSE, 4s., is the favourite of the season.
HOWARD and CRAWE, 45, New Bond-street.

Now ready,

THE BIOGSTER HUNT GALOP. By MUNDY. Splendidly Illustrated, price 2s. Post-free at half price, by the Publishers, HALE and Co., Cheltenham.

LANGTON WILLIAMS'S NEW SONGS' "The Royal Wreath Call." 2s.
Sung by Miss Perry.
"The Flower Girl's Song." Price 2s. 6d.
Sung by Miss Evelyn in "The Silver Knights."
"Perfect." "There there then 'tis forgotten." 2s. 6d.
Sung by Miss Ada Crossley.
Composed for Angelus Piano.
W. WILLIAMS and Co., 235, Tottenham-court-road.

NEW MUSIC.

CRAMER'S GUINEA MUSICAL SUBSCRIPTION entitles Subscribers to select and retain at their own property SHEET MUSIC published by Cramer and Co. to the value of FIVE GUINEAS.

This new system is offered to the public under the following limitations, viz.,—

1. It is intended for Private Individuals only.

2. Subscribers may select their five Guineas' worth of Music during a subscription period of One Year from the date of the Subscription.

3. One copy only of any piece can be furnished during the currency of the Subscription.

4. Music cannot be exchanged or returned.

N.B. Cramer and Co. desire to have it clearly understood that this Subscription does not include Vocal Music, as Music only, produced by Five Guineas' worth of their Sheet Music, introduced at the market value.

Subscriptions received at 207, Regent-street, including Postage, 5s.; or Ins. if the Music be sent by post—payable in advance.

CRAMER and Co., 207, Regent-street, W.

IRENE.—Gounod's Great Opera, "Reine de Saba," as performed at the Opera House, now ready. Libretto by Henry Fenna. Vocal and Piano, bound and illustrated, 2s. net. Complete.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

LAST THOU SEEN THE YOUNG DAY BLUSHING? The delicious romance in Gounod's "Irene," as sung by Madame Louise Dalmore. Price 2s. 6d. In F and G.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

O HANDMAIDS OF IRENE!—The charming Serenade from Gounod's "Irene." Sung by the great tenor, Lucien Muratore. Price 2s. 6d.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

HAIR THE ROSE OF LOVE IS BLOWING. The delightful Serenade from Gounod's "Irene." Price 2s. net.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

TRUMPET, BLOW! The grand Chorus, always encored, from Gounod's "Irene." Price 2s. 6d.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

FAR GREATER IN HIS LOWLY STATE is the delightful Romance from Gounod's "Irene," as sung by Miss Lemmens-Sherrington. Price 2s. 6d.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

BEAR HIM FORTH THROUGH THE gates of Heaven." Duet from "Irene." Described by the press as "the most pathetic strain in all the range of modern music." As sung at the Leeds Festival by Madame Albani and Miss Hilda Wilson.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

THE PROCESSION MARCH, Solo, 4s.; Duet, 5s.; Trio, 6s.; Quartet, 7s.; Quintet, 8s.; Sextet, 9s.; Septet, 10s.; Octet, 11s.; Nonet, 12s.; Full Orchestra, 20s. net. Quick Chorus, 5s. 6d.; Slow Chorus, 5s. 6d.; Pianoforte, by Kroger, 2s.; Cramer's Concert Album (3 Vocal Duets "Irene"), 4s.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

DAVID SINGING BEFORE SAUL. This fine Composition, by HOLBORNE, for all voices, in D, C, and E flat.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

NOT ALL FORGOT. The lovely Ballad, as sung by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington. The song of the season, compatibility, 2s.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

PALE FROM MY LADY'S LATTICE. In C, compass, E to E. Sung by HOLBORNE. Price 2s.—CRAMER and Co.

VASHTI. A new beautiful semi-sacred Song, composed by the song of Esther. Illustrated. 2s. Composed by BORDESE.

MEDJE. An Arab Song, just composed, for all voices, in C and D. Price 2s.—CRAMER and Co.

SOLITUDE. An exquisite Pastoral Romance, just composed, for the above voices, by GOUNOD. Illustrated. 2s.

THE SYLVAN ECHO. A very pleasing Echo Song by PINSUTI. Price 2s.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

THE YOUNG GIRL TO HER DOVE. A Waltz by Rosey. Played by the Composer at Queen's Hall. This popular little Ballad will become the most favourite Waltz-song of the season. Price 2s.—CRAMER and Co.

THE LEAVES ARE TURNING RED. Autumn Song, by W. VINCENT WALLACE. Beautifully illustrated. Price 2s. Also arranged for Violin and Pianoforte, 2s.; Violoncello and Pianoforte, 2s.; Flute and Pianoforte, 2s.

EN AVANT. Galop Brillant. FELDER. 4s.

ONDES EN LUMIERE. Caprice. FELDER. 4s.

MA PRIERE POUR TOI. Nocturne. FELDER. 3s.

BRAWLING BROOK. Idyll. FELDER. 3s.

DREAM AT MORN. NOLLET. 4s.

SOUVENIR DE BRIGHTON. Redowa. NOLLET. 3s.

RONDO BRILLANT. NOLLET. 4s.

FLORENCE.—The New Valse, by C. COWARD. Played by Herbert de Solum, to the Levellett waltz of the day.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

THE above charming New Pianoforte Solos published.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

THE AMY WALTZ. By J. LEVY. Played at Mellon's Concerts. Price 2s.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 207, Regent-street.

CRAMER and Co. send ALL NEW MUSIC at Half the Market Price.

ANTOINE COURTOIS' CORNETS-A-PISTON. Prelude, Symphonies, &c., are used by all the most celebrated performers. Sole agent, S. ARTHUR CHAPPELL, 15, Percy-street, Tottenham-court-road, and 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. Price 2s. net.

SECONDHAND BROADWOOD GRANDS.
SECONDHAND BROADWOOD COTTAGES.
SECONDHAND BROADWOOD SQUARES.
SECONDHAND CHAPPELL GRANDS.
SECONDHAND CHAPPELL COTTAGES.—Secondhand Broadwood Grand Pianofortes, from 50 guineas; secondhand Broadwood Cottage Pianofortes, from 35 guineas; secondhand Broadwood Square Pianofortes, from 15 guineas; secondhand Chappell Grand Pianofortes, in rosewood cases, from 45 guineas; secondhand Chappell Cottage Pianofortes, in rosewood cases, from 30 guineas; secondhand Chappell Square Pianofortes, in rosewood cases, from 10 guineas.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that was ever produced, 60 guineas; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. The Model Class of Harmonium for Church and Chapel use. Lists on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two fronboards, and in oak case. Three merchantable instruments are now in stock at this price. Other harmoniums by first-class makers on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, many of real value as good as new, of genuine make, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, 2 manuals, and pedals, worked by the feet of the right hand, in oak case, 65 guineas. Secondhand Harmoniums may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street, W.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, check action, full compass, and all the latest improvements. An immense stock of these and all other instruments at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street, W.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes are manufactured by these firms, and of the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried and purchased on the most favourable terms at the Show-rooms of CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S PORTION PIANINO is the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded at the recent Exhibition. It contains, in small cases, full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Cottages, Schools, Warmer Climates, &c. Prices, 20 guineas, 25 guineas, 30 guineas. Illustrations, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Prize, 35 guineas; 40 guineas; 45 guineas; and 50 guineas. A great variety may be seen at CHAPPELL and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL PIANOFORTES.—The success which has attended these English cases of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfect pianoforte ever manufactured at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as that of the Broadwood and Collard pianofortes, and the touch is equally responsive. The external exterior and interior cases are those which the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in appearance to the more expensive instruments, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited).—Their TRICHORD GRAND SYSTEM OF STRING, by which an increased thickness the property of the tone at the end of that period, is applied to their Cottage Pianofortes, 70 guineas; Cottage Piano, 80 guineas; Cottage, 90 guineas; Cottage Piano, 40 to 70 guineas; Cottage Piano, 45 to 80 guineas; Cottage Piano, 50 to 90 guineas; Cottage Piano, 60 to 100 guineas; Cottage Piano, 70 to 110 guineas; Cottage Piano, 80 to 120 guineas; Cottage Piano, 90 to 130 guineas; Cottage Piano, 100 to

THE CHURCH CONGRESS AT NORWICH.

THE opening of the Church Congress at Norwich, on Tuesday week, has been already mentioned. After the morning service in Norwich Cathedral, and a sermon from the Archbishop of York, the first meeting for discussion took place in St. Andrew's Hall, under the presidency of the Bishop of Norwich. An Illustration of this scene is given on our front page; and we have also engraved a portrait of the Bishop, from the photograph by Messrs. Mason, of Old Bond-street. The Right Rev. and Hon. John Thomas Pelham, D.D., a brother of the third Earl of Chichester, was born in 1811, and educated at Westminster School, and at Christchurch College, Oxford; he was successively Rector of Burgh Apton, Incumbent of Christ Church, Hampstead, and, for two years, Rector of the great London parish of Marylebone, which he resigned in 1857 to accept the See of Norwich, vacated by the resignation of Dr. Hinds. In opening the Congress in St. Andrew's Hall, he merely observed that the success of the meeting would be ensured by the observance of four conditions—first, that it should be comprehensive and contain within itself a fair representation of all the various schools of thought in the Church of England; secondly, that there should be a selection of subjects, not only important in themselves, but of present interest to the public mind of the Church; thirdly, that there should be a choice of right and proper persons to deal with those subjects; and, lastly, and most important of all, that the discussion of them should be conducted in a right temper. He seems to have done his best, throughout the proceedings of the Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, while the deliberations of the Congress went on, to secure the last condition; and, at the conclusion of its business, he received the usual vote of thanks. The Congress next year is to be held at York.

THE RIGHT REV. DR. PELHAM, BISHOP OF NORWICH.

"THE FOSTER-SISTERS."

THE subject of the picture we have engraved can hardly fail to awaken a pathetic interest in the minds of those who cherish feelings of compassion for suffering and admiration of unostentatious loving-kindness. By suggesting a story, too, this scene of a domestic sorrow in a great measure escapes the risk of a charge of objectless sentimentality and obtrusive "namby-pambyism" often preferred against works of the class. The title naturally leads the mind to frame some conclusions to account for the different circumstances of these "foster sisters," now divided by the cold and cruel distinctions of society, and desired, it seems, to be severed by the still colder and more cruel shadow of death, yet still clearing to each other in sisterly affection and sympathy. What a contrast there is between these two maidens, though of the same age, fostered by the same mother's care, nursed in the same bosom, and nourished at the same breast! The one is buxom and strong, her cheek rosy and round; the other is feeble and faint, her cheek wasted and wan, except where tinted with the unearthly hectic flush of consumption. The one is afflicted, stricken indeed unto death; the other has assumed the divine office of consoler, and reads from the Word of Life. The one is now a mere visitor, as we may infer from the mantle, hat, and parasol newly taken off and placed aside, and also, perhaps, from the peaches and grapes she may have brought, as she did, too, the roses on the table, soon to fade, alas! like the human flower near them. Probably she is the daughter of the neighbouring squire; while the poor, afflicted girl may with equal likelihood be the child of the humble cottager—that squire's tenant. But a good heart is not a monopoly of either poor or rich; and, as we perceive, the young lady visitor does not forget the humble friends of her infancy, to whom, perchance, she may owe even life itself. What, however, must be the emotion of the aged couple as they contemplate these foster-sisters and think of the fate that has selected, and will tear from them, their own darling—their own, their only daughter? What must be the anguish of her who has performed a mother's duty to both, and whose ever-watchful care is even now manifested by her seeking to adjust the pillow to support more comfortably that drooping head? There are other suggestive points in this picture which the reader will not fail to observe—such as the caged pet bird placed near the invalid; the brother standing unobtrusively listening in the corner by the chimney; and the grasp arrested instinctively at the doorway, and unconsciously gathering crumbs which may prove like "bread upon the waters."

This picture was painted by Mr. J. Bostock, and it has attracted much attention in the Manchester Exhibition of this year.

THE PRESTON INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

THE Exhibition of Works of Art and Industry at Preston, Lancashire, which was opened on Thursday, the 21st ult., in the Exchange Buildings, Lune-street, includes a picture-gallery, containing several valuable works of Landseer, Turner, Roberts, Frith, Hunt, and others, with a few pieces of sculpture; a collection of specimens of natural history, with scientific instruments and apparatus; mechanical models, machinery in motion; various manufactured products, chiefly of the textile fabrics; and a museum of antiquities and curiosities, mostly of local interest. The exhibition is arranged in the galleries surrounding the area of the Corn Exchange, and in some of the upper apartments; but while the area itself, being required for the weekly corn market, is left clear for ordinary business, a temporary floor has been laid above the area, on a level with the galleries, forming a spacious central hall, where the opening ceremony took place. Our Illustration will give a tolerably correct notion of its interior aspect. The expenses are guaranteed by a fund of £2000, headed by Mr. Joseph Isherwood (the Mayor), Sir T. G. Baskeilé, M.P.; the Hon. F. A. Stanley, M.P.; Mr. R. Towneley Parker, and other gentlemen of local influence and position.

THE SOCIAL SCIENCE CONGRESS AT SHEFFIELD.

THE inaugural address of Lord Brougham at the opening meeting of the ninth annual Congress of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science, on the evening of Wednesday week, appeared in our last Number. An Illustration of the scene at this meeting, which was held in the Alexandra Music-hall, formerly a theatre, but now a handsome and convenient place of assembly for any public occasion, is presented to our readers. We have selected for the subject of another Illustration the meeting, on Friday, of the Educational Department, Mr. Thomas Chambers, M.P., presiding, when Sir Mancokjee Cunetjee, a Parsee gentleman of Bombay, not less distinguished by his liberality and enlightenment than by his wealth and commercial position, made an interesting statement with regard to the improvement of female education in India, of which he has long been a zealous and influential promoter. He described the means by which, two years ago, an institution was opened at Bombay for the education of a limited number of daughters of respectable native families. He had previously tried the experiment in his own family, and it had proved successful. A strong prejudice, however, still subsisted in the country against female education; and, without the co-operation of their European brethren, it was impossible for enlightened natives to accomplish all those changes which they were desirous of seeing carried out. The speech of Sir Mancherjee Cursetjee, which was fluently delivered, was listened to with attention, and appeared to excite general interest. The proceedings of the Congress were brought to a close on Wednesday last.

THE PRESTON EXHIBITION OF WORKS OF ART AND INDUSTRY.

THE FARM.

EXMOOR ooks and ponies still keep up their price. Mr. Knight, M.P., averaged £12 6s. 8d. last month for fifty of the latter, and Mr. Robert Basset's thirty-six ooks, &c., averaged £23 10s. 8d. Nineteen of the number were "Bobbies," and of these the ten best reached £33 14s. Mr. Elliott's auctioneer took a good deal of his price, and the excitement of the sale was concentrated on Sir Harry by Bobby, thirteen hands and a half high, and stinging fly. Mr. Knight, jun., Mr. W. Clark, a well-known Lincolnshire ram-breeder, said 84 gs.; and then Mr. Allen Eaunson, who has always been a good cob, topped him by a guinea, and carried off the light boy with the white snip to Ipswich. Mr. Millward Wall's Rye, a pony, and Devonia, a hack, both by Bobby, and with capital action. Eleven of the lots were under thirteen hands, and one of them, "Little John," of the "old original sort," was there. There were representatives of the Queen from Exmoor fifteen counties, as well as some bidders from Paris. Sir Roger de Coverley's bull-dog-tempered ram Bonaparte, who has also been in at the death of many an Exmoor stag, was put up last. He has seen sixteen seasons, but he jumped the bar in noble style when he rose steadily, crown, after each leap, and went for 42 10s., to carry a boy to hounds in Worcestershire.

The cattle plague quite spoilt the competition for shorthorns at the Keir sale, as people soon declared that they would not remove cattle by railway at present, if they got them at a gift. The proximity of Keir to Falkirk, where the disease was bad at the last tryst, might well confirm them in this resolution. Forth II., a white, from Constant by Earl of Derby (17,410), was not sold; and the highest price was £40 10s. for Knight of the Rock, by Knight of the Forest from Heiress of Killerby, who was knocked down to Mr. Turnbull, of Perth. But for the goodness of the lots, bought by the Scottish lairds here found under the circumstances. There was a very different competition over the Leicester lambs, as forty-five of them averaged nearly £5 a piece, and the highest went, for £12 10s., to Mr. Harris, of Ferox. The total proceeds of the sale were £1191 15s.

Mr. Atherton's favourite Penrels and Fenzellas seem to prosper. Penrels (next Mr. Bolden) and Fennel Bud (of his own breeding) stood first and second recently at the Wirral Farmer's Club, where Fennel Bud was the cup to the best beast in the yard, and both had won before calves locally after their own. Fennel Bud by Lord Oxford 2nd from Fennel 2d) was first in the yearling class, being her third first this year. The two heifer calves by Penrels (Penrel and Fennel 5th, and both by Lord Oxford 2nd. Mr. Atherton has two more heifer calves, one from Wild Rye 27th and another from Sunbeam by Cherry Flower. Lord Cherry by Lord Oxford 2nd from Cherry Empress, Mr. Douglas's bachelor, has been shown in public this season, as the best bull calf at the Manchester and Liverpool and other shows. Atherton's Oxford, a yearling Bates calf, by Lord Oxford, has been sold at a high price, and has joined the Skelmersdale Hall herd. He took for his new owner the first prize in a class of fifteen, and was one of the five which won the challenge cup for the five best shorthorns. Lord Oxford 2nd has had a good 16 guinea season, and has taken a first prize for the best bull and best beast in the yard at the only show he has visited this year. Mr. Roberts, of Kingston Bury, has purchased Lord Oxford 3rd and so many prizes with his Sir Thomas heifers, and sold that bull, for 140 guineas, to Mr. Monkhouse, last year. Mr. Bolden's Bates herd of about 115 animals on Thursday next, the day after the Wirral Show.

The Veterinarian, in whose editorship Professors Varnell, Tuson, and Brown are now associated with Professor Simonds, devotes much to devoted almost wholly to the cattle plague. It records the death of Mr. Priestley, V.S., of Sudbury, Derbyshire, after a most extensive examination of a plague-stricken carcase. He died apparently in an apoplectic fit; but the spread of the virus was so rapid after death that the doctors feared the disease had attacked them. Cases reported in the north for the "natural defence of veterinary surgeons against unjust actions at law for alleged malpractice" are also recommended to during operations, which will at times occur, despite every care and precaution. In a paper of Professor Simonds on anthrax or splenic fever we learn that there is but one V.S. in the Isle of Wight, and that "the island is overrun with quacks of both sexes, who poison the unwary women to have the finest practice in the present crisis. It is to be hoped that the heavy wet which has spoiled the hay crop in general may tend to clear the air and disperse the typhoid symptoms, or whatever they may be. Of the 300 cases reported to Professor Dick since Aug. 1 about 320 have died or been killed, 30 have been recovered, and as many are now suffering. Upwards of seventy horses have been attacked in Edinburgh. The sheep which were kept at the plantation along with diseased cattle were reported on Monday to be still quite healthy. While we may sympathise with the veterinary lectures that the plague is incurable, and that "kill and bury" is the watchword, Mr. Collis Browne, a retired Army surgeon, says that by treating it most successfully, and people are curious to see whether he will be called before the Royal Commission.

The game question has been brought before the public again, and Mr. John Bright has undertaken to advise the farmers upon the point. Lord Southesk has given the history of a preserve of game for sale on his Scottish estate. Two of his Lordship's farmers were so eaten up by it that, when their chance for doing so arose, they at once retained them out of the rent, and invited recovery by legal proceedings. On stating for "a reduction of rent" in the usual manner, with alienation from his tenants, his Lordship, after due discussion with them, came to an arrangement by which they were to have about eight thousand acres, principally woodland, park, and home farm, for his own shooting, and the right will now land it is to farm against hares in East Lothian, read a very searching paper last week on the question at the Social Science Congress. He says that one of the principal resolutions of the Scottish Chamber of Commerce, that hares and rabbits should be expressly excepted from the Bill; and added, that hares ate the young braird to such an extent that, in some cases, the tenants combined with the poachers to snare them.

Following in the wake of Miss Garrett, who has received her license to practise medicine, another lady, Miss Colborne, has passed her preliminary examination, with the view of studying for the profession.

According to a report drawn up by a special committee, the silver standard, which, in Norway, are on the increase, and the annual coinage of ore extracted will soon not suffice to cover the expenses of working.

The Institute of Milan has offered the following prizes for the best essays on the following subjects:—A sum of 1200*l.* for the best treatise on the principles of nationalities in the present state of Europe; 1000*l.* and a gold medal of the value of 200*l.* for a work determining precisely the influences that disqualify a man for military service; and pointing out the best means of preventing them; a similar prize for an essay on the common method of cultivating the vine, and the practical improvements that might be introduced; 960*l.* for a treatise on the best means of founding a mortgage bank for the purpose of aiding agriculture; 640*l.* for the best essay on contagion, and their application to mechanics; and 600*l.* for the best meteorological observations taken in Lombardy or some other part of Italy.

TESTIMONIAL TO A FRENCH ADMIRAL FOR ASSISTING THE CREW OF THE BOMBAY.

THE terrible disaster which befel H.M.S. Bombay, off the port of Batchelors, on the 23rd of December last, when a number of officers and men lost their lives in the burning ship, will not be forgotten by our readers, and the illustration of the sad scene, from a sketch by one of the survivors, having been published in this Journal on Jan. 28. As the disaster took hold on Lord the Victory, at Portsmouth, to inquire into the circumstances of the loss of the Bombay, and those who were rescued from the Bombay, 600 in number, were treated there to Admiral Chaigneau the piece of plate manufactured by Messrs. Widdowson and Veale which is shown in our Engraving. It bears the following inscription:—"Erected by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to M. le Contre Amiral Chaigneau, Commandeur de la Legion d'Honneur, Commander-in-Chief of H.I.M. squadron in the Brazils, as a mark of their high appreciation of his great kindness to the officers and crew of H.B.M. late ship Bombay, after the destruction of that ship by fire on the 14th Dec., 1864."

NATIONAL PORTRAIT EXHIBITION IN 1866.

THE Lords of the Committee of Council on Education have determined to hold a National Portrait Exhibition at South Kensington, in the arcades overlooking the Royal Horticultural Society's Gardens, which will be opened in April next. This exhibition is based upon the suggestions made by the Earl of Derby in a letter dated May 6, 1865. Their Lordships have carried out the recommendations of advisers, consisting of the trustees of the National Portrait Gallery and other noblemen and gentlemen. Mr. Samuel Redgrave, to whose labours the successful formation of the collection of portrait miniatures is chiefly due, has undertaken the special charge of directing the exhibition, and Mr. Scharf, of the art section.

The following arrangements have been approved of for the exhibition:—

1. The exhibition is specially designed to illustrate English history and the progress of art in England. It may be divided into two or three sections, representing distinct historic periods exhibited in successive years, depending upon the number of the portraits received and the space available for their proper exhibition.

2. It will comprise the portraits of persons of every class who have in any way attained eminence or distinction in England, from the date of the earliest authentic portraits to the present time; but will not include the portraits of living persons or portraits of a miniature character.

3. In regard to art, the works of deceased painters representing distinguished persons will be admitted; while the acknowledged works of eminent artists now living will be admitted, whether they be or does not represent a distinguished person.

4. The portraits of foreigners who have attained eminence or distinction in England will also be included, with portraits by foreign artists which represent persons so distinguished.

5. The exhibition will be held at South Kensington in the spacious brick building used for the refreshment-rooms of the International Exhibition in 1862; and these galleries, which are perfectly dry, will be made specially for the exhibition, and patrolled day and night by the police.

6. The cost of the building, and the expenses connected with the exhibition by the committee will be defrayed by the Department of Science and Art.

7. The exhibition will be opened early in April, 1866. The portraits, for the purpose of proper arranging and cataloguing, will be received not later than the second week in February, and will be returned at the end of August at the latest; but should any portraits be required to be sent till that time, any owner who requires the return of his contributions at the end of July will have them forwarded to him at once.

8. In accordance with the usual practice, the Science and Art Department, in the case of loans of pictures, will take photographs of such portraits as may be useful for instruction in the schools of art, and allow them to be sold in the photographic establishment at South Kensington. The profits arising from the sale of photographs, without the owner's express sanction. Two copies of each photograph taken will be presented to the owner of the picture photographed.

9. As was the case at the Exhibitions of 1861 and 1862 (and as is usual at the Royal Academy and other exhibitions), the department cannot be responsible for loss or damage, but every possible care will be taken of works lent; and it may be added that the numerous paintings lent for exhibition in 1862 were collected and returned, by the same agency as will be now employed, free from any injury or damage of any kind.

10. All communications, marked on the cover "National Portrait Exhibition," should be addressed to the Secretary of the Science and Art Department, South Kensington Museum, London, W.

King Victor Emmanuel has conferred an annual allowance of 400*l.* on the son of Giuglini, to facilitate his admission into a naval school.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Dalziels' Illustrated Arabian Nights. (Ward, Lock, and Tyler.) It is but a short time since we had occasion to express wonder and admiration at "The Arabian Nights" of Messrs. Routledge and Sons. Then compactness, neatness, and cheapness appeared miraculous; now magnitude and profuseness of illustration kindle the desire of possession. The text has been revised and amended throughout by Dr. Dalziel; and the illustrations, one hundred in number—engraved by the cunning hands of J. E. Millais, J. D. Watson, A. B. Houghton, John Tenniel, Thomas Dalziel, and E. J. Pinwell, and engraved by the Brothers Dalziel, are almost as good as a picture-gallery. The Arabs are, we believe justly, said to be the greatest of all storytellers (in two senses), and "The Arabian Nights" is supposed to be their greatest collection of stories. The public are, therefore, to be congratulated upon the completion of a work in which the illustrations seem to be worthy of the text.

The Arabian Nights' Entertainments. With Sixteen Illustrations by Houghton, Dalziel, &c. (Frederick Warne and Co.) A scrupulated one-volume edition, "revised, with notes, by Edward Geo. Fyfer Townsend, M.A." We are informed that "the more peculiar purposes adapted to the Family Library edition are twofold," and, so to purify the text that the most innocently-minded maiden may read them aloud to her husband and sisters without scruple or compunction; and, second, to add such short notes as may point out to the youthful scholar that what he reads is not merely romance, fable, and invention; but that there is to be found in the narratives which form the stories an under-current of illustration of Eastern manners, customs, and observances; and that, without all the sources of amusement, he may gather lessons of permanent information and instruction." The peculiar-and-pure theory is vague at the present day; work and play are so intermingled that you can scarcely discern one from the other; amusement and instruction are beaten up together in a literary dish and taken in the form of a light custard, and we have, therefore, no knowledge of anything of the kind. In great demand for the expectation naively confessed in the words, "it is hoped by the editor and by the publishers that a large extension of public favour may accrue to these ancient tales, thus purified and illustrated." This hope may not be shared by everybody, but it is a long or the other," and who in their early days had the unspeakable delight of devouring "The Arabian Nights," is the earnest belief that it was out of date, alas, but nevertheless true, to devote hours and hours to Eastern fairies. But the Social Science Congress has its eye upon the schoolboy; illicit pleasures are fleeting, and very few will soon be forgotten; and the fashionable mixture of truth and fiction, half-and-half, instruction and entertainment, is the very thing to tempt the families of the purchasers who at dinner-time observed to his hopeful son, "Before you help yourself to pudding, Master Jemmy, give me the date at which that useful vegetable was introduced into this country." It is whispered that, in consequence of this edition, there will be school-work nor his dinner. Nevertheless, it must be allowed that Mr. Townsend's notes seem to be to the point, and not unmercifully frequent.

The Wonder Book of Birds. Edited by John S. Roberts. (Edinburgh: W. P. Nimmo.) An excellent edition, with charming illustrations, of a popular work. The biographical sketch by William Gannyon. The editor is anti-Bowdler, and holding the opinion that readers, however young, should know whether they are great poet even when he is a little indelicate than Bowdler even when he is most decorous and proper. The consequence is that little-minded grossness may find comfort in the kindred grossness of a fine mind; and that the latter may sometimes serve to cure the world that they can write as well as Burns (sometimes) wrote.

Men of Mark. (George Routledge and Sons.) This is a book which necessarily, if it is to be of any service, requires to be come to time new editions. Its aim "is to furnish, in as compact a form as possible, a series of brief biographical sketches of eminent characters of both sexes in all parts of the civilised world." It is therefore likely to be a useful book, and we are sure it will be found so for a hearty welcome. Death, however, will o'er bury, will not allow the publishers to rest on their oars; he was dead at the time at which the sheets of this new edition were passing through the press, and there will be found in the book the names of a few who have gone to whose places in the world know them no more, amongst whom are to be numbered Prince Albert, Lord Herbert of Lea, Baillantine, and Joseph Paxton. As President Lincoln's name does appear, President Johnson's cannot reasonably be omitted. Dr. Andrew Johnson was scarcely a "man of the time" until Abraham Lincoln was a man of the past.

Our Favourite Nursery Rhymes. (Frederick Warne and Co.) There is, of course, nothing to be "said," or even "to my knowledge" of jingles; but it has the recommendation of "upwards of one hundred illustrations" by Thomas Dalziel, E. G. Dalziel, and J. B. Pearsall, approved by the Brothers Dalziel."

The Emperor's Vigil, and Other Rhymes. By Charles Hetherington. (Kingston: R. G. A. Knapp). The author speaks so modestly of his own performances that we have unwillingly to leave him after a long hours of illness, that one is prepossessed in their favour; still, one cannot but remark that "Lines addressed to a Lady" would be better written "verses rather than poetry." In at least one instance he has been unhappy in his choice of subject: an ode "to my late" may exhibit the reader's sympathies, but an ode "to my concertina" awakens ludicrous associations. The concertina is so connected in some minds with Ethiopian minstrelsy and nigger melody that one is not more sympathetic towards an ode "to my concertina" than one would be towards an ode "to my banjo," or even "to my bones." An acquaintance with Shelley, moreover, is calculated to make one look at the Ethiopian serenader's instrument with disfavour from him who presumes to write an "Ode to the Skylark."

Gandid Hussein. By Captain W. W. Knollys. (Hurst and Blackett.) A three-volume novel, in the perusal of which they who manage other incidents, but never to conquer a passion, have a fair chance of being filled. It is written in a lively, dashing, letter-sketcher style, and inclines towards scenes where ladies very lightly dress, and frown upon those who would shock their notions of propriety, if it were not that danger or mis-sickness, or both, cover a multitude of sins. The author has a good eye for scenery, and the dialogue, and love and a clandestine meeting in a harem, and the like and unlike between the Grand Vizier and Hassinge's account of their dialogue are the weak points of the story; the former do not engage one's interest, or affection, or hatred in any great extent, and the latter is not remarkable for sense, piquancy, wit, or humour. The famous Change of Air Cure for Consumption is described, and, in the end story, the author makes a statement which is of great importance, and which will not be lost upon the reader or author. Captain Knollys is represented to have said, "Ride for your life, Hastings, and tell Lord Cardigan on no account to pursue further than the guns, and to return at once as the order to that effect has been sent." However, as Hastings did not arrive in time, the order which, we understand, the author has since discovered to be Hassinge's account of the battle, could not prevent the magnificent blunder.

Gulliver's Travels. By Jonathan Swift. With Explanatory Notes and a Life of the Author. By John Francis Waller, LL.D. Illustrated by Phiz. (Frederick Warne and Co.) Whether it be not a little incorrect to state that "no author in the British (sic) language has enjoyed a larger or more enthusiastic popularity than Jonathan Swift, and all his works 'Gulliver's Travels' is that upon which that popularity most securely rests," there is no doubt that Gulliver has and that still deserves to be immensely popular; and that this new edition, quaintly and aptly illustrated by Phiz, and not quite one, will be a favourite possession. There is no date on the titlepage, and therefore it may be a mere illusion when we fancy we had the pleasure of noticing this very edition last Christmas.

Penny Readings in Prose and Verse. Selected and edited by J. E. Carpenter. (Frederick Warne and Co.) The object of this publication appears to be to supply societies who wish to win the labouring classes from the old English custom of spending the evening in drinking and the consequences to the new fashion of attending "readings" (at a cost of "a penny a lot") at assembly-rooms and the like places with such literary fare as is likely to be found palatable by the audience. This little book seems likely to answer the purpose, and can be safely recommended for it.

Book of Information for Railway Travellers and Railway Officials. By R. Bond. (Murray and Co.) A useful little book, interspersed with illustrative anecdotes. Its author is crystal, "superintendent of G. W. Railway," and should, therefore, speak with authority.

FINE ARTS.

DECORATIVE PAINTINGS FOR THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.

Since our last general notice of the South Kensington Museum several important additions have been made which were not alluded to in our more recent account of the Raphael cartoons, on their removal from Hampton Court to the Museum. But of greater interest, perhaps, is the progress of the series of paintings for the alcoves and lunette of the gallery of the South Court, to be executed ultimately in mosaic. These are, perhaps, the most noteworthy public works of mural decoration, after the paintings for the Westminster Palace, now in course of execution. We propose, therefore, to devote attention to them first. Of the very rich and, in general, eminently successful decoration of this court we have already spoken. The upper portion of the walls of the court is divided into numerous alcoves, and for them are being painted by various artists what we may call illustrative or representative portraits of the most eminent men connected with the arts. The artists selected for this purpose are those who are "more on account of their being ornamentalists (or, to use a better word, 'ornamentists'), or masters of design, than painters, and this because they were great painters." Many of the paintings are already in situ, awaiting—subject to approval—execution in mosaic by the pupils of the art-schools. Some of the paintings have been temporarily removed, and others are undertaken by Messrs. J. Philip, R.A.; G. F. Watts, J. Tennant, J. Noel-Paton, Holman Hunt, C. Keene, J. D. Watson, and H. S. Marks.

Broadly speaking, little fault can be said in praise of the paintings already executed; on the contrary, they present discouraging evidences of the fact that English painters are not sufficiently versed in the higher branches of their art, and that little progress has been made in knowledge of the principles which regulate mural decoration intended to combine with architectural masses, notwithstanding the examples and warnings executed at Westminster and elsewhere in fresco. It is true that, owing to the gold background and the small and defined form of the compartments, the artists have been labouring under novel conditions; but this will hardly be accepted as a decided a failure of even some of our experienced mural painters. Unfortunately, modern British painters, unlike the predecessors of the Middle Ages and Renaissance, appear to know little or nothing of the latter arts of architectural painting. Even the old knowledge happens, however, to be essential for the proper execution of mural decoration. Whether the work be executed in mosaic or not, it does not intend their gold background to signify the open air, it is quite certain that the effect of the decorative arrangement of the so-called painted figures very much as the sky itself would do, and for more than an actual means is used to detach the figures from the sculpturesque treatment is therefore primarily demanded, and is the more imperatively necessary on account of the surrounding stained decorating. Then silvered mosaic is used for the architectonic tonal position of the figures—the angle whence they must be viewed from below. In order that they may be seen at their best, the artist would stand), the perspective of the feet must not be rendered as it may were viewed from above. But the most important error that will inevitably appear distorted in the foreshortened view. Two or three detached planes of representation, a single figure, or a group only of a building, for instance, are represented on one side of the composition, are likewise very questionable, according to the natural demands of pictorial and decorative art. Another consideration is forced upon us as regards the colouring by the fact that the gold is not transparent, which, rendering as it does by contrast all cold, grey, and blueish-black tints tenfold more crude and heavy, requires for harmony the warmest, richest, and most transparent tones. To what the writer will find that these leading requirements of the particular locality are satisfied in very few of these paintings, and that some of our other qualities, indispensable under all circumstances—such as sound drawing of the figure, delicate modelling, refinement of form, breadth and simplicity—are also frequently absent.

But to our deficiency of knowledge artists generally we would particularly advert—namely, as regards the treatment of "drapery"—using the word in its signification artistic generally. Of this deficiency cannot be concealed in monumental works. In Geraldine and Fraser "drapery" forms the subject of a special course of study; but it is not too much to say that the works Mr. Dyce was the only painter who perfectly mastered drapery in the way it ought to be. Mr. Dyce, it is true, who fully showed its extreme value and importance in pictorial compositions of a monumental character, in Queen's Robing-room in the Westminster Palace still remains unfinished, and cloud on the general public taste every generation for examples of large mural works, should not fail to study, if he would give due artistic treatment to his draperies, the noble treatment of the noble frescoes left by Dyce in that room. The "style" which distinguishes the magnificent draperies in the same room due to the large and simple arrangement of the draperies—a merit due to foreign study by Mr. Dyce, in addition to his profound knowledge of the quantity of garments and bangings and the application of their folds. The figures are sometimes swallowed up or rendered insignificant rather than impressing by the sumptuary manners in which they are represented. This objection, to a certain extent, applies to the figure of "Nicolò Pisano" in the series already executed in mosaic, which, in the general effect and grand, is heavily cloaked. Moreover, the cloak falls with angular angles from the shoulders, and in the monumental manner which the sculptor examines (too near the face, by-the-way) looks the more insignificant in comparison with the general effect. Nevertheless, this and the "Cimabue" by the same artist, now in course of being reformed in mosaic, are among the most successful portraits hitherto executed for the museum. "Maestro Giorgio," by Mr. Hart, R.A. (like to Nicola Pisano), seems to be scrutinising his sculpture vase with unnecessary closeness; but both these figures are excellent. The objection, to a certain extent, applies to the figure of "Nicolò Pisano" in the series already executed in mosaic, which, in the general effect and grand, is heavily cloaked. Moreover, the cloak falls with angular angles from the shoulders, and in the monumental manner which the sculptor examines (too near the face, by-the-way) looks the more insignificant in comparison with the general effect. Nevertheless, this and the "Cimabue" by the same artist, now in course of being reformed in mosaic, are among the most successful portraits hitherto executed for the museum. "Maestro Giorgio," by Mr. Hart, R.A. (like to Nicola Pisano), seems to be scrutinising his sculpture vase with unnecessary closeness; but both these figures are excellent. By Mr. Ward, R.A., have less adventitious picturesqueness than might be expected from artists accustomed to study in the open air as painters of easel pictures—a manner of which Mr. Ward has not succeeded in divesting himself in the decorations of the new Indian museum corridor. We regret to say that the "Fra Angelico," by Mr. Poynter, does not well sustain that position among the examples as one of our most experienced mural painters. The treatment avoids the common error; the conception of the upturned face of the angelic artist has a hard-featured, commonplace model seems to have been chosen, and from her looks contorted from her face. The "Sir Christopher Wren" would be very good indeed if one were at liberty to regard it as mere portrait, not a monumental figure.

We have to remark that we see not sufficient space to give a detailed estimate of how far each work satisfies or does not satisfy, it appears to us, the true principles of design and purpose; but it will not be difficult to apply the principles already enunciated as regards monumental decoration. There are a few notes, we must add that Mr. Burchett's "William of Wykeham" is unsatisfactory; that Mr. Cope, R.A., would not have been so happy in his "Michael Angelo" and "Raphael" as in the decoration of the Queen's Robing-room; that the contrast between the figures, by which the actually rather small and slight Raphael looks a giant, is unpardonable in a monumental composition; who was not only larger physically, but when we naturally, by comparison, credit with Titanic power and energy. The "Giotto" criticising the "Prisciticho," and also the "Ghiberti" and "Mantegna." There is a sense of grandeur in the "Della Robbia," by Mr. Scott, which promised well; but the colour is rather cold, and strong character and expression in the head have been somewhat unnecessarily sexised upon. The "Albert Dürer," by Mr. Stanfield, with a rather affected air before a part of the Louvre in the background—however, by-the-way by—which is the "Titian" by Mr. Bartholomew. "Peter Vischer," by Mr. W. B. Scott, has the merit, rare in this series, of a warm tone of colour throughout, which harmonises with the golden glow of the background. The head of the "Inigo Jones," by Mr. Morgan, is very agreeably natural. "Phidias," by Mr. Poynter, has something of French classicality, but is otherwise artistic and suitable. "Georgione," by Mr. Prinsep, is heavy, angular and commonplace, lacking the colour and romantic beauty we should expect in the great Venetian.

A far more important work than any of these is, however, in completion—to wit, the decoration of one of the two large lunettes which terminate the west side of the court on each side of the central passage or corridor. A competition for this work having taken place, the designs sent in may now be seen. One or two of these designs would be invaluable to our old friend Punch; but we feel bound to refer particularly only to a sketch which, we believe it is no secret (did not internal evidence prove the fact), has been sent by Mr. G. F. Watts. The subject, as far as we can ascertain (the sketch being extremely slight and all detail omitted), is a kind of semi-allegorical and conventional illustration of branches of decorative art, and is treated by Mr. Watts in the usual literary association of the various groups of figures, after the manner of the great Italian monumental painters. The conception is very remarkable for artistic inventiveness and spirit. The central, principal group, and superb feature of the design is a rich black war-horse, rearing with his fore-legs in the air, and magnificently clothed upon the large gold-ground panel (actually gilt in the sketch), upon which, according to the early practice, the mosaic is to be executed, and which cannot be denied, although so effective a feature could not be spared, that the black mass of the horse's body somewhat detracts from the size of the figures, and there is some emptiness of portions of the design in consequence. But the general composition is very fine, and an increase of the scale of the foreground figures would easily remedy this. In a design so monumental, principally in its treatment of detailment, the figures should have heroic size and importance because they must necessarily be seen from a distance. The effect of this design, should, of course, be calculated for the floor of the court, not the gallery immediately before it. The colouring in the sketch is quite Venetian in its beautiful harmonies and contrasts of rich and subdued colour, this design, if thoroughly carried out, promises to justify more completely, than any of the others, the selection of the artist favoured by unfilled judges of Mr. Watts's capacity as a mural painter.

Mr. W. B. Scott, the Newcastle artist whose picture of "Our Lord Walking on the Sea of Galilee on a Stormy Night" excited ridicule, and the painter of a series of mural works illustrating Northumbrian history in Wallington Hall, the seat of Sir W. C. Trevelyan, is executing a series of pictures on the walls of a staircase in the tower of Penkill Castle, Ayrshire, the seat of Miss Boyle, a most remarkable tower is about 5 ft. thick, and was an ancient peel house of the largest size, having projecting turrets; attached to it is a building dated 1600. The tower, which is circular, contains a winding stone staircase, adapting it for modern use, and built a connecting staircase, which, together with the tower, forms a hall 30 ft. high and 25 ft. in circumference, which is 10 ft. in width. On the walls of the last-named hall Mr. Scott is painting the pictures of "The Days of Chivalry," as related by himself in the quaint poem, "The King's Quair." The compartments are nine in all. We will explain to our readers how we recollect that the future King of Scotland first saw the Lady Jane in the garden beneath his prison-chamber window.

Mr. G. F. Watts has undertaken to prepare designs of the four Evangelists, to be executed in mosaic, in many of the spandrels under the drum of the dome of St. Paul's. Hence Stevens will supply three more designs of prophets of the Old Testament, in addition to the two already executed in that style. It is hoped that the latter artist will be more successful in future designs than he has been in the two already executed. Mr. Watts's method of the subscription decoration fund renders it impossible, we believe, that all these costly works can be executed in mosaic. Mr. Watts has replied very aptly to the remonstrances addressed to him by the Chief Commissioner of Works, and, we believe, has consented to substitute, with reference to the long-delayed, and, it would appear, almost entirely neglected, commission for the Wellington Monument to be placed in St. Paul's.

MUSIC.

The Royal English Opera Company, Covent Garden, have issued a prospectus of their arrangements for the ensuing season, which begins on Saturday next, October 14, with a performance of Auber's Gustavus—Miss Louisa Pyne, Mdlle. Ida Gilliès, Mdlle. Florence Lancia, Miss Rosina Wright, Mr. Harrison, Mr. Swift, Mr. Sherrington, Charles Mr. Miss Leffler and Mdme. Emma Heywood. Mr. Charles Adams, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Mr. David Miranda, Mr. Charles Lyall, and Mr. Henry Haigh will complete the company. Mr. Alberto Lawrence, Mr. J. G. Patey, Mr. Aynsley Cook, Mr. Eugene Dussek, and Mr. Henry Leslie will conduct the principal dances are also named. The orchestra and chorus will be composed of members of the Royal Italian Opera. Mr. Augustus Harris will be stage-manager and conductor of the orchestra; acting manager, Mr. Edward Murray; stage-director, Mr. Wm. Weir; prompter, Mr. Henry Pincott; pianist, Mr. Josiah Pittman; leader of the ballet, Mr. Thirlwall; chorus-master, Mr. Augustus Braham; and Mr. Alfred Mellon. The following are the principal operas promised during the season:—"Don Giovanni," "Le Nozze di Figaro," "Il Barbiere," and others. In one act by Mr. Charles Dedell; Felicien David's "Lalla Rookh," the "Crown Diamonds," Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," Wallace's "Helvellyn," successfully produced last season. Three will, moreover, be given Mozart's "Il Seraglio" and Charlotte Adams' mime. The subscription will be divided into two periods: the first commencing on the 14th inst. and ending on the 31st of December, the second commencing on the 1st of February and ending on the 31st of March. The prospectus promises well, and we may hope for a satisfactory season.

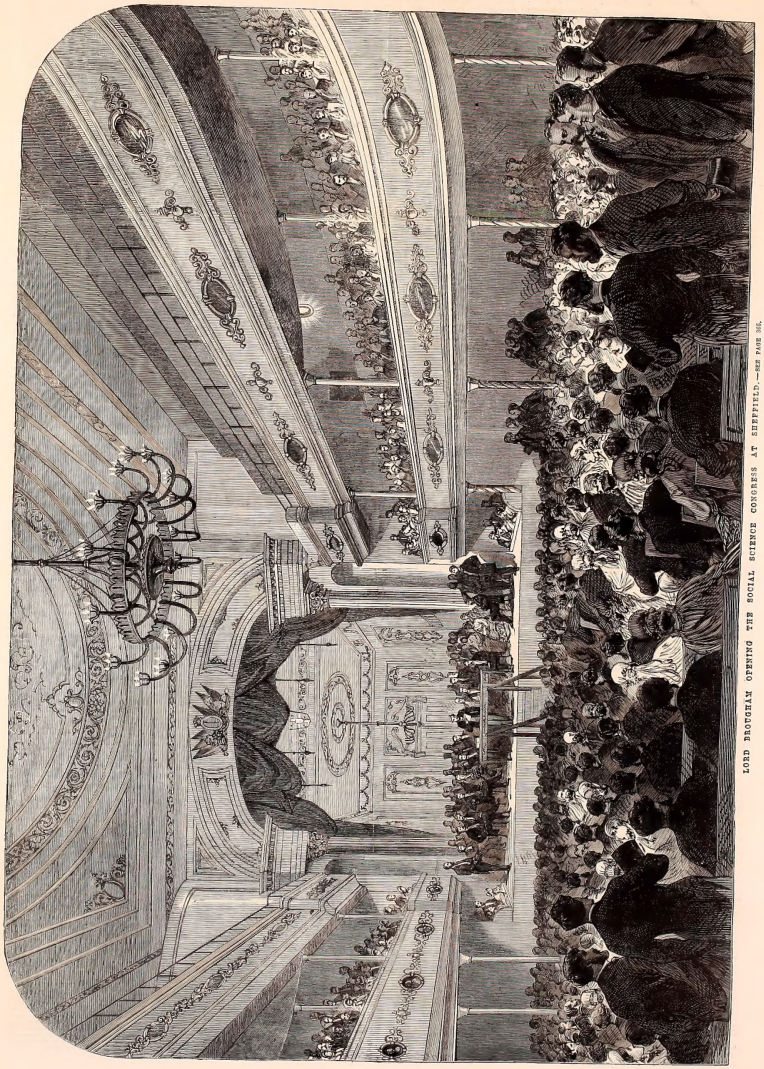
Mr. Mapleson has announced a series of performances at Her Majesty's Theatre, to be called "Operatic Recitals," wherein per formers to fulfil their Continental engagements. The first will take place on Monday, the 23rd of October, and the announced during the series are "Faust," "Fidelio," "Don Giovanni," and the "Puritani." On the 1st November the Countess Marie d'Agoult Ardit) will include Mdlle. Titiens, Mdlle. Sarolta, Mdlle. Sinico, Mdlle. Trebelli, Mr. Sandby, and all the chief stars of Mr. Mapleson's company of last season.

The Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts began for the season on Saturday last, the 7th inst., before a numerous audience. The spacious concert-room in the centre transept was densely crowded, but the most convenient seats were not filled, as is usual, by visitors from the closeness and heat of a London concert-room. Mr. Manns has established his position as an unrivalled conductor of music. He has formed a first-rate instrumental orchestra; and the symphonies and overtures of the great masters are performed, under his direction, in a manner which leaves little to be desired. Mr. Manns's band, like Dusque, His taste and judgment, moreover, are shown by the excellent programmes of the concerts, which are free from the vulgar trash of modern formers. The concert of Saturday included Beethoven's Second Symphony in D, Weber's Overture to "Oberon," Mozart's introduction and Rondo for violin and orchestra, and Mendelssohn's Overture in E minor—a charming selection of music, which was played in a manner worthy of high praise. The violin solo was executed with enthusiasm, and the warmth of its reception will doubtless induce Mr. Carrodus to favour the audience with a solo at the next concert. The mentioned movements form a portion. The singers were Mdlle. Lehmann, Miss Rose Hersee, and Signor Ferranti. Mdlle. Lehmann had been engaged, but was disabled from appearing by an attack of influenza on the way to the Palace. Fortunately, Miss Hersee was in the season with extraordinary success. Though young, she is an accomplished singer, and has studied under the most eminent masters at the Conservatoire of Paris. She is ladylike and prepossessing in appearance and manner, and sings with much expression, feeling, and sweetness, has the youthful freshness which is so great, though short-lived, a charm. She sang Horn's beautiful ballad, "Cherry ripe," with delightful sweetness and expression, though we could have dispensed with several bravura passages (added, we believe, by a foreign composer), which, though well calculated to display the singer's brilliant execution, were at variance with the English simplicity of the air. She also sang, with Mdlle. Lichtert, Mozart's duet, "Sull aria," from the "Nozze di Figaro." They sang it charmingly, and the greatest beauty of their performance was its fidelity to the composer's text, which was given in all its purity, without the addition of a single ornament. The other vocal pieces were Mozart's "Voi che Carino," from "Don Giovanni," sung by Mdlle. Lichtert, and Ricci's "Sulla poppa del mio brick," and Rossini's "Tarantella," sung by Signor Ferranti. The whole concert was thoroughly relished by the audience, the principal pieces being applauded to the echo.

The National Choral Society are to begin their weekly rehearsals at Exeter Hall, on Wednesday next, under the direction of Mr. G. W. Martin. The choir of this society consists of nearly 700 amateur singers of London and the suburbs; and the instrumental band contains many excellent amateur performers. We understand that the application to join the choir for the ensuing season are more numerous than ever. To do so is highly advantageous, inasmuch as every member of the choir has the privilege of attending the weekly rehearsals of oratorios and other great works, under the able personal direction of Mr. Martin. The first performance will be given during the ensuing season, and the names of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Santley have been announced.

"The Abbé Liszt," says the Musical World, "will visit London in May next, for the purpose of conducting his mass, composed expressly for the opening of the new church of the Carmelites at Kensington."

THE THEATRES.

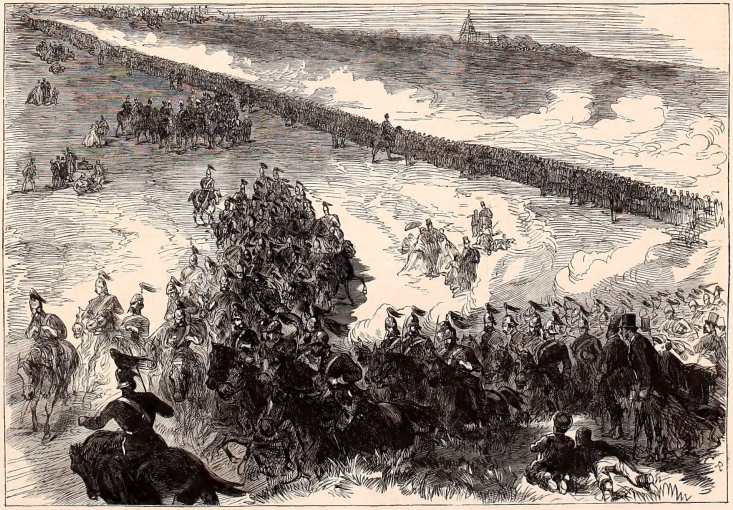


The theatrical season is beginning in earnest, and on Monday the Haymarket will open under the management direct management. The manager also appeared as Sir Benjamin Backbite, in Sheridan's excellent comedy, "The School for Scandal," and surprised his friends with his comic power and his thoroughly healthy enjoyment. The popularity of the character was indicated by the frequent applause which this excellent actor received; and the comedy went off with the greatest success. The company is very good, and doubtless, a prosperous season awaits their exertions.

Astley's also opened on the same evening with a piece written by Mr. Dion Boucicault, entitled "The Child of the Regiment," and designed to be illustrated by the gymnastic attitudes and equestrian skill of the Astley troupe. The piece performs the part of Ivo here, Leon, a creole, who has been reared as a slave, but is the rightful heir to the property of which his master has evilly been enabled to display Miss Menken in her various accomplishments; and, accordingly, we have the usual different characters—the Child of the Regiment, a drummer-boy, a Dumb Page slave, these as the chief of the number. The piece is full of the most extraordinary catches. The scenery is throughout magnificent and redounds greatly to the credit of Messrs. Charles and William Beverley, who have exhausted their ingenuity on every effect, and with success. The piece is admirably acted and has been taken and expended are in vain; for a less interesting drama was never placed on the stage. We have said that Leon is a Creole. He is the son of Don Pedro de Mendez, a wealthy Mexican planter (Mr. Dominick Murray), and grandson of Don Pedro (Mr. Edward Price), his nephew (Mr. Basil Potter). The latter has persuaded his uncle that his wife (Miss Fanny Wright) is dead, and has accordingly married her to his revenge and degraded her offspring. After a long absence, Don Pedro returns, and finds that his wife is alive, and that she proceeds to take Don Pedro's confession. From this he learns that his nephew has deceived him, and Don Pedro has resolved on doing justice to Leon by actually adopting him and making him his own property. Fernando thereupon discloses himself, strangles the old man, and secures the property himself, and, disguising himself as a dumb slave, becomes Fernando's servant—but secretly employs himself in adopting the interests of Leon. In the meantime Fernando Fernando is connected with brigands, and Leon determines on their extermination. In the course, in the course, Fernando represents the brigands' camp, Leon, in escaping from him, falls in with the Comanches and becomes their chief. Leon, in the meantime, has been condemned to be burned at stake. Two subordinate characters, intended to be comic, have an influence in the progress of the piece. Tallman, Mr. Frank Matthews, Mr. H. Corden. These worthies find the papers which establish Leon's birthright, and give them to their owner. Leon falls into the power of Fernando, and is brought to trial for charges made against him by the latter, when the Yankee takes the place of Leon's accuser, and, in consequence from Leon's defence, the documents that declare him to be the son of Don Pedro, but he is found guilty, and Fernando then orders his execution, and receives his death wound from Leon. This wild and extravagant plot is connected with a number of incidents and situations which are full of interest, and which are rendered more striking by the splendid scenery and ballets. In the letter Mdlle. Marie Milet, from La Scala, executes the Highland Fling, Sailor's Hornpipe, and various other dances. Mdlle. Milet's performance was received with much applause. The other characters are equally futile, and the whole drama is its sufficiently tedious and unmeaning.

The Surrey has been opened under the direction of Mr. John Douglass, for the regular dramatic season. Mr. Creswick is engaged, as well, as Madame Ristori, the tragedy of "The Stranger," has proved effective. He is supported by a very respectable company, who fill the other characters of the piece with a degree of earnestness and diligence which cannot but satisfy the crowded audiences by whom the performances are attended. It is announced that Mr. Ryder will soon join the troupe; after which, we believe, Shakespeare will be in the ascendant. The scenery, painted by Mr. Richard Douglass, is remarkably well executed, and is fitted with much taste and with a taste that it meets par ticular attention.

At last Mrs. Howard Paul have reappeared at the Egyptian Hall, with a comic and musical entertainment, consisting of songs and sketches, entitled "Paul and Pry," which, secure to them the popularity which they have so long enjoyed.



The Polytechnic Institution commenced a series of new lectures and entertainments on Monday. The principal lecture is by Professor J. H. Pepper, on "The Gorgeous Phenomena of Polarised Light," which, from the lecturer's well-known reputation as a brilliant new polariscope, is both entertaining and instructive. The Professor's new polariscope is both entertaining and instructive. The Professor's new polariscope is both entertaining and instructive. The Professor's new polariscope

LORD BROUGHAM OPENING THE SOCIAL SCIENCE CONGRESS AT SHEFFIELD.—SEE PAGE 365.

THE SOCIAL SCIENCE CONGRESS AT SHEFFIELD: SIR MANOCKJEE CURSETJEE DELIVERING HIS ESSAY ON EDUCATION IN INDIA.—SEE PAGE 365.

REVIEW AND SHAM FIGHT OF THE DOVER AND SHORNCLIFFE GARRISONS AT ROUND DOWN, FOLKESTONE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

REVIEW AND SHAM FIGHT ON ROUND DOWN, FOLKESTONE.

His Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief reviewed the troops of the Dover garrison and those stationed at Shorncliffe camp on Round Down, midway between Dover and Folkestone, on Wednesday week; and they were put through the manœuvres of a sham fight, of which we present an illustration. The scene of the performance was the range of hills which extend along each side of the valley parallel with the sea, forming at the western end the Folkestone Downs. The troops were formed into two divisions, the infantry brigade occupying the hill on the cliff side, being under the command of Colonel T. K. Palmer, C.B., second battalion 60th Royal Rifles, and composed of the 8oth Foot(the Staffordshire), the Royal Engineers, and the 60th Rifle Regiments; that on the northern hill being commanded by Major-General Hinde, C.B., and consisting of the Dover brigade of Royal Engineers, 69th Rifles, and the 39th Regiment. Two squadrons of the 1st Royal Dragoons and a battery of the Royal Horse Artillery were posted on each hill; and Major-General Sir Robert Garrett, K.C.B., K.H., assumed the command of the entire force, numbering about 7000 men.

At eleven o'clock the Duke of Cambridge rode upon the ground, accompanied by Major-General Lord Fitz Roy Somerset, Colonel Gloucester Gambier, C.B., Lieutenant-Colonel Clifton, and a brilliant staff of officers. His Royal Highness having taken up a position on the southern hill, the troops were formed on the two hills to resist an manœuvre which from the Dover hills. Accordingly the infantry, cavalry, and the 60th opened fire; then falling back, a line was formed on each hill, and heavy firing by artillery and infantry ensued by the main body. The cavalry then made a dash along the hills, and turned the right and left wings of the supposed enemy. The head of the column appeared to be in the direction of Houghton Court Farm, from which the defenders eventually made a rapid retreat for a short distance, and were pursued until they re-formed, and both divisions again threw out skirmishers, and afterwards poured a volley or two into the ranks of the enemy, who, however, continued to advance to the Downs, where a third line of defence, extending right across the hills, was quickly and well formed, and heavy volleys continued to fire simultaneously with the discharge of the field-pieces along the valley. The whole disposition of cavalry combined and made a dashing charge in line, which circumscribed the enemy and ended the sham fight. Colonel Palmer then entrusted on the Downs, and the review was concluded by a "march past." The Duke and his Staff were entertained at luncheon in a marquee on the ground, after which he inspected the citadel and fortifications at Dover.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

The new number of the Annales des Mines contains M. C. de Fecondaux's important report on municipal and sanitary arrangements in Belgium and Rhenish Prussia, with illustrative engravings. The subjects of this report are—Municipal organisation of workmen; and the infection of the general and limited atmosphere, the water, and the soil. This report makes the 2nd volume of Statistics, Commerce, and Public Works, in pursuance of a decree issued in consternity with the wishes of the Consultative Committee of Arts and Manufactures.

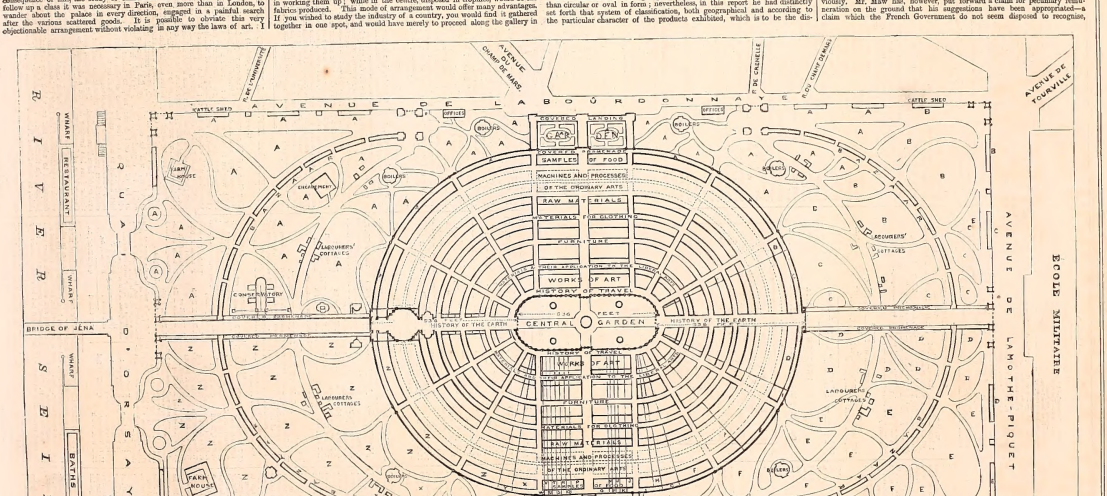
The two scientific quarterlies, the Popular Science Review and the Quarterly Journal of Science, besides the valuable information of the progress of every department (to which the recent meeting of the British Association largely contributes), have each a paper of peculiar and especially interesting. In the Review we would particularly refer to the articles on Animal Electricity, by Mr. R. Hunt; on Sound, by Mr. Bennett Woodcroft; and on the Moon, by Mr. Breen; and, in the Journal, to the papers by Mr. Tyler on Circulation and Communication, and by Mr. Hall on Insects of the Mammals of South America. Mr. Robert Hunt, in his article on British Gold in the Review, refers to Mr. Crooke's experiments, by the Lisbon Commissioner of a certain proportion of sodium with the mercury, the amalgam containing gold ore, under all circumstances, and that the mercury will extract gold from sulphides, and from such other minerals as have been found to contain it. Mr. Crooke's process is now under the consideration of Government, and may eventually decide the question whether British gold can be worked with commercial advantage.

The Great Auk, or the Gare-fowl (Alca impennis), termed by Yarrell, in Vol. II., a very rare British bird, "on account of the difficulty of procuring it at once covered it with the body, and, by the aid of its arms, &c., to the shore. The boat was then pushed off, and the bird, which was still alive, was taken out from the bottom. Many of the birds were killed by the Orkney, the Faroes, and St. Kilda; and the eruption of a submarine volcano in Iceland, by which not one of the third volume of Yarrell's work, and the destruction. In May, 1844, a great sea was caught near the entrance of a number of the birds were killed, and the remainder driven off to sea, where it was easily taken. It lived some time, being fed with potatoes and milk, and fish. It moved, and frequently attempted to walk. It died in May, 1844, but may possibly still exist in secluded parts of Iceland and Newfoundland. A strange variation of this bird, the Little Auk (Alca Alle), has been long converted into subspecies, on an island to the northward of Newfoundland, several feet thick on the surface, in a deposit of fragments of bones, by which the British Museum, in 1834, by the Bishop of Newfoundland.

Mr. William Sowerby, in a letter in the Annals of Natural History for October, describes the singular method adopted by the long-eared bat in capturing its prey. In bats the flying membrane is attached to the hind legs to the tail, forming a large bag or net termed the "femoral membrane," the middle two segments of the tail standing free from the membrane. Mr. Sowerby placed a lively male bat in a wire grass cage, into which he put some flies. The bat immediately commenced the process of "scooping it at once covered it with the body, and, by the aid of its arms, &c., to the shore. The boat was then pushed off, and the bird, which was still alive, was taken out from the bottom. Many of the birds were killed by the Orkneys

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

ADMIRAL STIRLING.



Rear-Admiral William Hoveil Stirling, K.N., who died on the 30th ult., aged seventy-nine, entered the British service in February, 1790, and acted in the North Sea, under Sir A. Dickson; and was afterwards removed, on April 2, 1801, at the Battle of Copenhagen, under Nelson, on board the Monarch, 74, which vessel on that glorious occasion had an enormous number of men and officers (including the Captain, J. B. Mosse), owing to the very exposed position the ship had to take up when attacking the Crown battery. Nielson afterwards proceeded to the West Indies, and was at the taking of St. Lucia and Tobago in 1803; he then joined the Spanish fleet off Cadiz, and remained in it for eight knots while firing at the enemy's batteries off Cape Frio. In 1808, commanded a rocket-boat, and assisted at the capture of Scaligue, and was severely burnt in both hands while attacking an ignited schooner. He was in the Walcheren expedition, which further service, in which he was frequently employed, and which included participating in the French schooner La Chiffonne and cutting four of the enemy's ships from under a battery at Martinique, his rank as Lieutenant dating from that. He was Senior Lieutenant of the Asp, in 1809-10, at the taking of Martinique, at the capture of the French frigate Ile de Ré, and of the Nymphe, at the destruction of the forts and magazines of Port St. Louis, Guadaloupe. He was subsequently employed in the Augusta, Superb, and Hannibal, and obtained his pigeon on the French coast. He, in 1824, was in the expedition against Algiers. He became a Commander in 1825, and in 1826 was appointed to the Imperieuse in the Coast guard at Newcastle, and in the following winter was employed between the police and the Government by his exertions in suppressing riots and extinguishing incendiary fires. He was, in 1841, appointed to the second captaincy of the Queen, 110, flagship of Sir E. W. C. R. Owen in the Mediterranean; and, in the autumn of 1844, on the occasion of Her Devastation, on the same station. He was made a Captain in 1846, and in 1851 was appointed to the command of Portsdue, and made Governor of the Island of Ascension, where he remained until 1858. He was awarded a Greenwich Hospital out-pension in 1849, and obtained his rank as Rear-Admiral on the 10th of June, 1854.

ADMIRAL MAINWARING.

Rear-Admiral Edward Reeve B. Mainwaring, K.N., who died on the 8th inst., at Brighton, aged seventy-seven, was a scion of the ancient and still existing house of Mainwaring, of Whitmore, in Staffordshire, the head of the family which for ages has given valuable officers to the naval and military service of this country. The admiral was the son of the late Rev. Edward Mainwaring, Esq., and great grandson of Sir Henry Mainwaring, Bart., of to have been but one object in view in the arrangement of products—namely, that of presenting an agreeable appearance. The geographical order even has hardly been preserved in the arrangement and grouping of musses, and, as a consequence of this, the study of exhibitions has been a real fatigue. To follow up a class it was necessary in Paris, even more than in London, to wander about the palace in every direction, engaged in a painful search after the various scattered goods. It is possible to obviate this very objectionable arrangement without violating in any way the laws of art. I would have a building which transversely should show the goods arranged according to their respective nationalities, and which longitudinally should show the nature of the products in three great categories. For instance, on the one side would be raw materials, and on the other the machines that are used in working them up; while in the centre, disposed in trophies, would be the fabrics produced. This mode of arrangement would offer many advantages. If you wished to study the industry of a country, you would find it gathered together in one spot, and would have merely to proceed along the gallery in a transverse direction. Should you desire, on the contrary, to study a particular group or class of products, you would then follow it longitudinally, and by this means be enabled to establish a comparison between the industrial results of different nations."

It is evident from the foregoing that the Prince had in view a building other than circular or oval in form; nevertheless, in this report he had distinctly set forth that system of classification, both geographical and according to the particular character of the products exhibited, which is to be the distinctive feature of the Exhibition of 1867. Without denying to Mr. Maw the merit of having suggested a circular or oval form of building, which he may or may not have been the first to do, nothing contained in his paper published in the Builder during February, 1861, can possibly detract from the originality of Prince Napoleon's suggestion made public four years previously. Mr. Maw has, however, put forward a claim for pecuniary remuneration on the ground that his suggestions have been appropriated—a claim which the French Government do not seem disposed to recognise,

Names of Countries.	Space Allotted.	Names of Countries.	Space Allotted.	Names of Countries.	Space Allotted.	Names of Countries.	Space Allotted.	Names of Countries.	Space Allotted.	Names of Countries.	Space Allotted.
A France and French Colonies..	190,312 sqr. ft.	E Other German States ..	24,699 sqr. ft.	I Sweden and Norway ..	6868 sqr. ft.	L Greece	2130 sqr. ft.	P Russia	9564 sqr. ft.	T Africa and Oceania ..	2637 sqr. ft.	X United States	10,276 sqr. ft.
B Holland and Dutch Colonies	6469 "	F Austria	24,699 "	J Spain and Spanish Colonies ..	6378 "	M Ionnian Principalities ..	2130 "	Q Turkey	4922 "	U Mexico and Central America	7146 "	Y Reserved space ..	4810 "
C Belgium	23,786 "	G Switzerland ..	7824 "	K Portugal and Portuguese Colonies ..	3720 "	N Papal States	2130 "	R Persia and Central Asia ..	7130 "	V Republics of South America..	2637 "	Z Great Britain and British Colonies ..	73,467 "
D Prussia	24,699 "	H Denmark	2122 "			O Italy	12,786 "	S Chins, Japan, and Eastern Asia	9027 "	W Brazil	3170 "

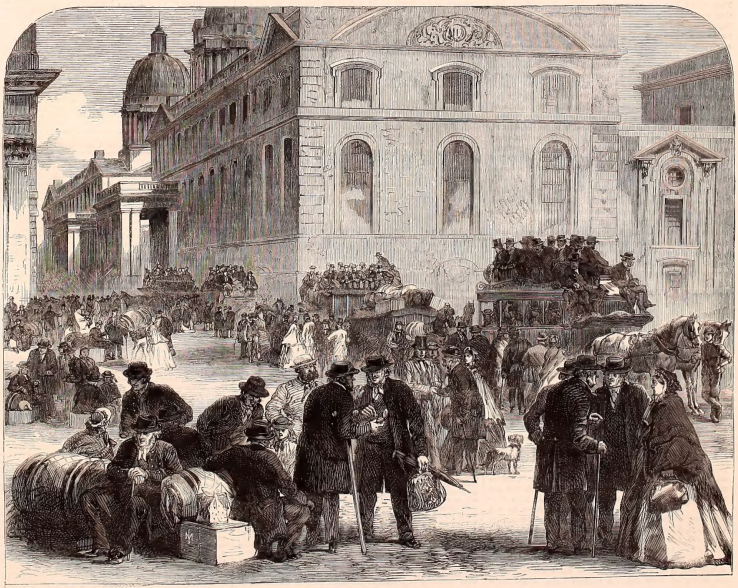
PLAN OF THE PALACE AND PARK DESIGNED FOR THE PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION OF 1867.

although it has been backed up, we are informed, by a diplomatic note from Lord Cowley.

The architect of the palace for the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1867 is Mr. Hardy, a Frenchman, both by birth and education, spite of his undoubted English name. The chief engineer in Mr. Krantz, late chief engineer of the Orleans Railway, who was appointed to his present post by the French Government, without any kind of competition taking place. There will be no general contractor for the entire work, but separate contractors for each particular department. The masonry is, we hear, estimated to cost £100,000; and so strict are the terms of the contract—one of which is that the whole of the works shall be covered in during the winter months—that many large firms have declined to send in estimates. Iron castings, too, if 2 per cent over weight, will not be allowed for; and if 2 per cent under weight, will be refused altogether. A series of experiments with reference to different forms of bolts and new systems of fastening iron beams and girders are now in progress, at Gouda, the great French ironfounder, by direction of the Commissaire-Général of the Exhibition, M. Le Play, Councillor of State.

The following are some of the chief dimensions of the building and of its various approaches:—From the Bridge of Jena to the commencement of the covered promenade is 315 ft. The length of the covered promenade on this side of the exhibition—namely, that facing the Seine—is 820 ft. From the chief entrance of the palace to the edge of the central garden is 536 ft. The length of the central garden is likewise 536 ft. The distance between the central garden and the entrance on the side facing the Ecole Militaire is also 536 ft. The length of the covered promenade leading to the Ecole Militaire is 712 ft. The extreme length of the building is 1696 ft., and its extreme width 1240 ft. The space of ground covered by the building and its accessories, including the surrounding park and covered promenades, is 3153 ft. in length by about 1500 ft. wide.

The arrangement of the park as shown in the official plan is, of course, only an approximate one—liable to be considerably varied according to circumstances; only this is certain, that the ground will be so laid out that farm buildings, cattle-sheds, garden conservatories, model cottages, &c., may be erected thereon; but the precise disposition of those various buildings will depend on the decision of the commissioners when the entire scheme shall have advanced towards something like complete realisation.



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1339.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

FRANCE AND MEXICO.

WHATEVER character the messages from Washington to Paris upon the subject of Mexico may have assumed, and whether they are of recent date or were dispatched at the time when the conclusion of the internecine war gave the United States Government an opportunity of looking round them, there is no doubt that the President, in signifying his displeasure with French interference on the new continent, expresses the feelings of a very large, if not a very intellectual, portion of the American people. It is not, therefore, of the first consequence to be assured as to the exact accuracy of the statement which has just caused considerable sensation in London and Paris—namely, that the President of the States has decided on forbidding the Emperor of the French to dispatch a fresh supply of troops to the aid of the Emperor Maximilian. The probability seems to be that the peremptory message of which we have heard was rather inferred than known, and that we shall learn that, if a very late despatch on the subject has been sent to Paris, the document is not one of a character so offensive as that which has been described. But this is of little consequence, for the reason we have assigned. The Americans have managed to inoculate themselves with an extraordinary conviction that the New World belongs to them, and that Mr. Canning, of England, and Mr. Monroe, of Washington, have told them so, and therefore they view with unconcealed jealousy any attempt at intrusion on the part of Europeans. Whether, therefore, they may be inclined to quarrel with France now on the subject of Mexico, or whether they may be able to nurse their wrath to keep it warm until the empire of Maximilian is able to stand by itself, and France may withdraw, and not be quarrelled with at all, matters not very much. It would, perhaps, be more to the advantage of the Maximilian dynasty that hostilities should be provoked at once, while the honour of France is involved, and her whole mighty force must be brought to the aid of the new Emperor, than that his empire should be left to settle itself, and that it should get into difficulties with the States at a later date. Very good terms and a very good treaty could be obtained from the latter Power at the present time; but later, ne vicris! and who can say that ten years hence France will be inclined to lend aid to the Mexican empire?

But, inasmuch as the hostility of the Americans to this Mexican empire is a fact over which there is no getting, we may venture to believe that, whether the President has sent the menacing despatch or not, the belief represents the feelings of his constituents, and we may be tolerably sure that at some convenient opportunity the States will quarrel with Mexico. They did so before, as we recently pointed out, and the result was a war and an annexation. We will not say what might be the end of a war in which the disciplined and scientific armies of France would encounter the American forces. It is possible that volunteers, even of the high class of which much of the United States Army, now disbanded, was composed, might find a different enemy in the splendid machine called a French army from the gallant volunteers of the South. At the utmost, the Americans have had but four years of military experience, while the French armies have an unbroken succession of such knowledge. It might be that the Imperial Marshals would be an overmatch for the Republican Generals. But, withdraw France from the game, and it is not too much to say that Grant, Sherman, or Sheridan would finish the business of the Emperor Maximilian in a month. Unless France means to have a permanent protectorate in Mexico, or unless good offices exist between the United States Government to a recognition of the new monarchy, we may, without any inclination to be prophets of ill, prognosticate that bad fortune is in store for the Mexican empire. We shall have telegrams for the second edition of the papers some fine afternoon, which despatches will begin with the ominous words, "Rupture between the States and Mexico." What the next will contain will depend very much upon which of the dates is selected for the rupture in question.

OLD PENSIONERS LEAVING GREENWICH HOSPITAL.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

Now, if the United States desire a new annexation, if they have resolved that the stripes and stars shall float over the entire of the southern part of North America, from Canada to Cuba, we can understand the resolution, though we may not admire it. But there are statesmen in the States. The vulgar longing for mere acquisition of territory and addition of population, no doubt, actuates myriads among them, and bids them regard Mexico as a territory to be taken when circumstances may permit, or when any decent pretext can be afforded for the annexation. The same objections which they affect to feel in regard to a monarchical neighbour can easily be made to a democratic neighbour. But we think the statesmanship is not exactly like that of the great Republic. There need never be wanting an excuse for seizing Mexico while the Americans retain their present ideas as to their own destiny; and as to the very frivolous and antiquated character of Old World notions about right and wrong. These persons need be in no hurry. But, as we have said, there are statesmen among them who must be superior to the low feeling of avidity for mere annexation. They must be statesmen because they so many additional millions of acres and fellow-citizens. They would like to increase the Union, no doubt; but they would like to feel that they increased it to their advantage. Men of this class must perceive that at the present time the absorption of Mexico would be a premature step, a foolish blunder. In the anecdotage of New York is a clever story illustrating the error of young hunters. He was tracking a deer, had marked it down, and had his finger on the trigger of his rifle, when he noted a movement in the bush. The next moment he perceived a hostile Indian who was intent on the same game as himself. He swung the rifle not see him, but took fatal aim at the deer. The American transferred his aim from the animal's heart to that of the Indian, waited calmly until the latter had fired the death-shot, and then he threw his own trigger, then sprang forward and took hisking his foe. The wiser men among the Northerners will perhaps do well to take a hint from the wary hunter, at least to the extent of letting their game be brought down by other hands than their own.

Si sua bona norint, the Americans would regard their Majesties the Emperors Napoleon and Maximilian as pioneers who are doing the best possible service to the States. If the Austrian dynasty be allowed to survive, the States will obtain, instead of the worst neighbours they could possibly have, reasonably good and improving ones. Order and law mean commerce and artificial wants, and these can only grow where a strong hand represses the barbarism and disorganisation in the extreme and most resolute manner. No American can need to be told what sort of a chaos of wretchedness Mexico has been for years. Each successive attempt to educe order from it by means of the people has failed, and must fail; and more the demoralisation of that people, and its entire unfitness for self-government. When it has chosen or endured a leader, he has been shoot as bad a man as could be found, even by Mexico, and any better ruler has speedily let the reins. Mexico has at length got the only form of Government which can have any hope of success—the rule of the bayonet. Force may achieve good, but it is certain that nothing else can. If the Americans are wise, they will quietly permit Cunning Monroe doctrines, as they have now chosen to call them (though Canning would have been singularly sarcastic in his retort on anyone who accused him of wishing to make Uncle Sam the king of the western world), to be shelved in the pigeonhole at the White House. They will watch the exertions of the new Emperor, aided by his powerful friend, to bring Mexico into order. Whether the Mexicans like it or not, they will be improved, not greatly signify. He used them some time ago, and we ourselves made protest, not on Monroe grounds, but on the more rational basis of international law, which does not permit subjects to be taken away without leave from their sovereign. If the Emperor wants more Egyptians he will doubtless, obtain them in a regular manner; and we really suggest in sincerity to the Americans that they had better let him do his work in his own way. Let him create for them the orderly and commercial neighbour in Mexico. They cannot be afraid of the influence of example, or that the kings of shoddy and of oil may be inspired to desire a king and an aristocracy of their own. A German Count is not likely to assume a very tempting aspect in the eyes of Anglo-Saxons. We do not think that even Texas will be demoralised, and so far abnegate the rights of man as to ask to be allowed to secede and set up a Sovereign. But what will happen if the Maximilian dynasty receives support from its great neighbour is that the finances of the country will be taken out of the hands of thieves; the laws will be enforced, and not left to be carried out by corrupt functionaries as bad as the culprits who buy them; the Church will be prevented from being, as heretofore, a lever for overthrowing Government; and the unhappy people of Mexico will at length be delivered from the cruelty and rapacity of the dishonest. Then, material prosperity will set in, and the richly-favoured land will cease to be a wonder among nations. When this shall have been effected, an American who really believes in the principles he avows will see that a truly enlightened Mexico must of her own accord seek for admission into the all-perfect Republic. Failing such a brilliant issue from the appearance of anarchy and bloodshed, which would be the result of the overthrow of the Maximilian dynasty. The States which has caused its fall would be bound to take Mexico in hand themselves, and we need hardly point out to a Yankee that it is scarcely in accordance with his traditions to do anything for himself at a great price which he can get another to do for him for nothing. We think that this business-like view of the whole case could commend itself to the American mind, and we are not without hope that it has already done so, and that there is no truth in the statement that Mr. Seward has sent an insulting message to the benefactor of Mexico.

THE EXODUS FROM GREENWICH HOSPITAL.

There appeared in this Journal, about six months ago, a series of illustrations of the Royal Hospital for Seamen at Greenwich, in which, besides the Painted Hall, with its collection of fine old portraits of the Kings and Queens and pictures by Thornhill, the museum of Nelson relics, and other matters of historical interest; our readers were invited to visit the magnificent wards, the kitchens and messrooms and comfort of their cabins, the social ease of their smoking-gallery in the cloisters, the plenty of their kitchen and dining-hall, and the generally satisfactory provision for those poor old heroes' welfare. Yet we remarked at the time, "their life is not a dull one." We have learned without surprise that the majority of the late inmates of Greenwich Hospital have preferred to accept the pension of 10*l*. 10*s*. 0*d*. per annum, and to live and reside wherever they please, and with the opportunity of joining their families or friends, rather than remain in the Hospital, even in view of their earliest childhood, in some remote village, seaport, or inland town, where they have no friends or acquaintances. Age, till we was seized with a passion for the sea. After all, the sailor, who is a tenderhearted old fellow, loves to turn his thoughts to his country; and the hospital at Greenwich, with its shipshape, orderly arrangements, with its cachinnatory Jack Tars, its unceasing yarns and dogwatches, is not the place where a man who has worn the livery of the Naval Service a long half century would naturally choose to unbend and relax the habits of his life. We are told that each ship's company, out of the pensioners, in the course of the week before last, took their leave of the establishment. They left it in batches, with their wives and little children, many of whom are washerwomen or charwomen in Greenwich, Deptford, or the neighbourhood; while some of the old men had secured a home with their son or daughter, or with some brother or sister's children, whose kindness we need not recommend them for the remnant of their adventurous lives. The Illustrations of the Hospital in our Journal, to which we have alluded, be remembered, let us hope, with particular interest by those who may have had an opportunity of observing the last days of the scene above and worthy veteran when he left the Royal Hospital in search of the consolations which only social and domestic affection will bestow.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Oct. 19, 1865.

The news of Lord Palmerston's death, which was unofficially known in Paris until this afternoon, caused, as may be supposed, a great sensation. No English statesman was so well known on the Continent as he was in France particularly he enjoyed a reputation for boldness, firmness, and sagacity of which his own countrymen may well feel proud.

The Emperor has made only two visits to Paris since his arrival from Algeria—the first on the occasion of the inauguration of the Empress, when they visited the Exhibition of Fine Arts applied to Industry in the Champs Elysées; the second, on Tuesday last, when he drove, in a common voiture, through the faubourg St. Antoine and other quarters where the population is densest.

There is no blinking the fact that over here the one subject uppermost in people's minds is the cholera. When Cuvier died, more than twenty-four hours elapsed before, late than a twenty-four hours' stay, the suddenness of their departure gave rise, as may be supposed, to the report that that died of cholera. Even on the day had wound; when it was semi-officially announced that Count Branicki had received assurances from the Emperor of Russia of a despatch recent events, France would still preserve in her policy of non-interference, the Bourse remained unmoved. But "Rente 70 francs" or "Rente price will Prussia eventually be called upon to pay?" when it was known that Count Persigny had controlled the sanitary measures adopted by the Emperor prior to his departure for Rome, and that a telegram had arrived from Marseilles announcing that the cholera was actually filling out to embark the first detachment of French troops from the Papal territory at Civita Vecchia in the course of the next twenty-four hours, the Patrie admitted that the Imperial Government had received a note from Mr. Seward, couched, however, "in the most respectful terms," relative to the project of enlisting black troops in Egypt for service in Mexico. Finally, Paris was startled by the announcement of a fearful case of assassination, almost in the immediate suburbs, the occurrence of which was still at large; it proved barely a nine hours' wonder, for people soon got tired of the topic. But the mystery which still attends respecting the cholera and its ravages, which are just now current among all classes of the French people. Cabinet secrets are not kept from the Corps Législatif, the Senate, or the public press; and when the Minister of the Interior publishes a circular which he considers the advance of the scourge. The disease, we are told, first showed itself in the Department of the Var, and subsequently in the Bouches-du-Rhône, and subsequently in the Bouches-du-Rhône, and subsequently in the Bouches-du-Rhône weight of a cattleshow's breastplate! This breastplate the cattleshow bears only on horseback; whereas the weaker sex dances under that load. Simple folk visiting the Tuileries would wonder how the brave men of old bore and fought in the massive armour on show there, how much greater should their wonder be to see "the weaker sex" dancing under the weight of a modern beauty's complete costume!

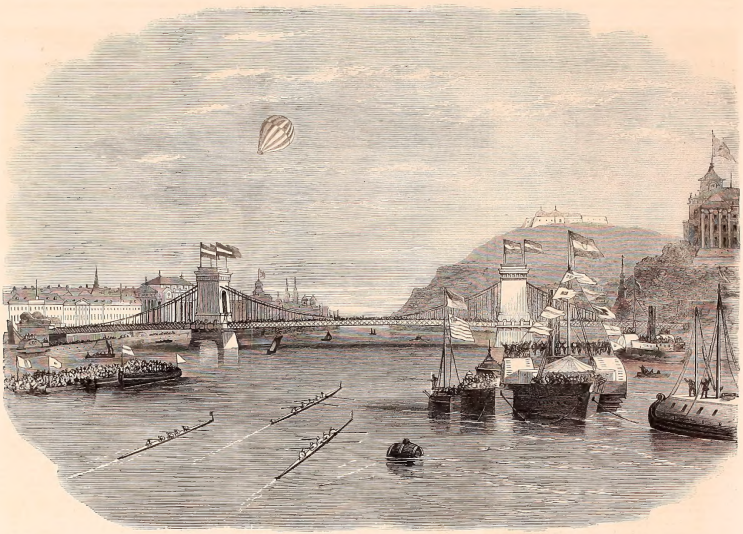
SPAIN.

A Royal decree has been published dissolving the Congress of Deputies and stating that the general elections will commence on the 1st of December next. The Cortes will meet in Madrid on the 20th of the same month.

There is a panic at Madrid on account of the cholera. It is said that 60,000 persons have left the capital from fright, and that electoral operations, which ought to be going on, are paralysed. On one day there were 540 cases and 175 deaths; but successive despatches report smaller numbers. The panic has been so great that soldiers had to be posted to keep order at the railway stations, where the fugitives rushed into carriages without getting tickets.

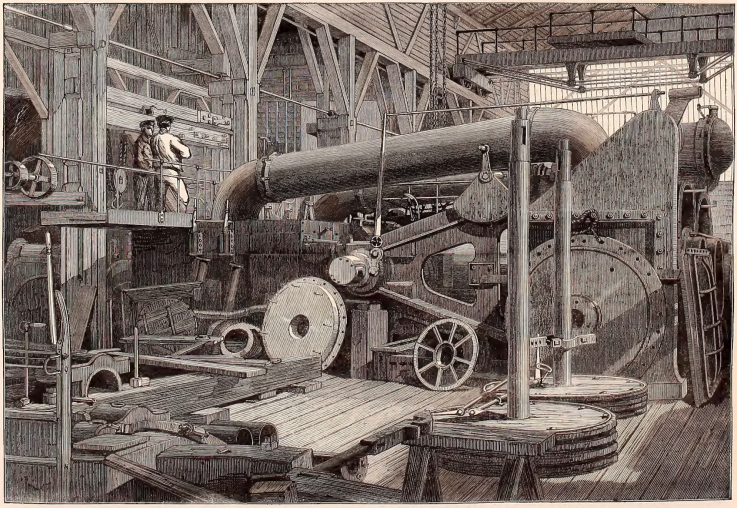
ITALY.

The Pope received the Count de Sartiges in private audience last Saturday morning.



Letters received from Rome state that Mgr. Mérode has resigned the portfolio of Minister of War, and that the post thus rendered vacant has been intrusted to General Artemisio.

A fire broke out in the royal arsenal at Naples yesterday week, but was subdued without much damage being done.



PRUSSIA.

The report of the Berlin jurists prepared for the Prussian Government finds the Duke of Augustenburg has no title to Schleswig-Holstein; that King Christian's title was good, and therefore, having been ceded to Austria and Prussia, is now absolutely theirs to do with as they will.

The municipal authorities of Berlin have recently determined on spending the sum of £1,192,000 on works of public interest connected with the capital, of which £750,000 is to be raised by loan, now provisionally arranging, and once the less to that the annoyance is blessed with a new debt of the people. The rest will be paid out of "a wet sick," and it aptly expresses the position. As I wrote to you before, the revival of a Protectionist movement was the cry at the Conservative elections in the city of Berlin. The Liberal House committed themselves more or less stringently to anti-Free-trade proclamations, and the Administration, of course, had to follow the lead of its Parliamentary supporters—conceded a tariff that was entirely in their views. The Upper House, however, elected as the representative of property and for a term of years, and having by that fact more stake, and, as it were, more blood in a state, and managed with even a scintilla of ordinary tact, the difficulty would have easily been overcome. But the Upper Chamber, more formidable at the outset, has continued to slacken the Ministers themselves having refused to touch the tariff, the anti-commercial progress was so delicately weak that it could easily have been allowed to everprate. As it is, both sides have gone too far, and, in the compromise that must follow, the Free-traders have the very well knowing what the fight is about. It is not likely to last long. The Australian wool trade, largely or look-down, is to be unshackled, but they are infinitely too wide awake to let any set of extemporised politicians destroy their interests at the will of a passing fancy. Melbourne is in one of those rare positions, like Liverpool, Antwerp, New York, and Rio, which are the natural centres of commercial operations. The new tariff has not ruined its trade, or even materially injured it, and it has for years to come the power of levying small duties on what exports are nearly up to the mark, though not quite. There is plenty of money in the Treasury; but, unluckily, those who have the most spent it freely. The Duke of Newcastle is to go to the natural of the Upper Rose to pass the tariff, the Civil Service payments are shifted, and the Queen's load of bread will be lightened. Many hundreds of families are living from hand to mouth, or borrowing money from the Jews on the pay of the Civil Service, in the case are not only deep, but loud. There is a constantly-progressing cry for reform, a storm, and it will be unasked

REGATTA ON THE DANUBE AT BUDA-PESTH, DURING THE VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

PENN'S MARINE-ENGINE FACTORY AT GREENWICH: THE ERECTING SHOP—SEE PAGE 378.

PENN'S MARINE-ENGINE FACTORY AT GREENWICH: THE LARGE WORKSHOP AND ENGINE-HOUSE.—SEE PAGE 378

PENN'S MARINE-ENGINE FACTORY AT GREENWICH.

A DESCRIPTION of the great establishment of Messrs. John Penn and Sons, at Greenwich, illustrated by three Engravings, appeared in the Number of this Journal dated a fortnight ago. Two more illustrations, completing the series devoted to this subject, are now published. The larger Engraving is a view of part of the interior of the extensive "machine-shop and turnery," where are congregated all the steam-engine are brought, from the rough forging or casting, to be shaped and finished with that nice precision which is required before they can be fitted together for use. In the middle of our View, somewhat behind, are seen some portions of the large engines of 1,800-horse power) which have been constructed for the ironclad Northumberland, a sister ship to the Minotaur and Agincourt: these engines are now ready to leave the works. The mighty bulkes, which are shown to the right and left, and the slotting-machine, a little further to the left hand, will at once be recognised.

The other illustration is a view taken in the erecting-shop, which is that part of the factory where the engines are completed, tested, and erected, to test the perfect fitting of their parts before they are sent to the ship for which they are intended. The pieces of machinery which here appear in course of erection belong to the engines, of 800-horse power, designed for the Spanish ironclad Tetuan Victoria, which is being built by the Thames Iron Shipbuilding Company for the Spanish Government; but the two large pistons standing in the foreground belong to the engines, of 600-horse power, for the new steam-yacht Mahrouse, or Bride of the Nile, one of the swiftest vessels yet built, which has just been built by Messrs. Ramsden and Co. for the Pacha of Egypt. Both the present Illustrations are from photographs by Mr. Nelson R. Churcill, of 30, Cornhill, by the permission of the name of casting a great cylinder, in our former Number, was from a sketch by our own Artist.

BIRTHS.

On the 16th inst., at 4?ct-St. Lawrence Rectory, Vincountess Kilcoursie, of a son and heir.

On the 14th inst., at 1, Park-pr.mesnle, The Park, Cheltenham, the wife of Captain Richard Hugh Brothers, Royal Engineers, of a son.

At Dublin, Lady Brooke, of Corkbrook Park, Ravensdale, of a son and heir.

At Rutland-gate, S.W., Viscountess Bury, of a son.

At Ballycastle, the Countess of Antrim, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 2nd inst. (by registrar), Francis Caverley Lonsdale, Esq., of Sloane-street, Belgravia, and of Laval Trelawney, Jamaica, grandson of the late Lieutenant-General and Governor of Barbadoes, to Mary Isabella, second daughter of George and Woodley Lonsdale, to Miss Jane Harriet Wignall, of Royal Avenue-terrace, Leeds, grand-daughter of the late Joseph Wignall, of Bramley, near Leeds. No cards.

On the 14th inst., at the British Consulate General, Hamburg, by the Rev. C. F. Weidemann, M.A., British Chaplain, George Loveday, Esq., of Doctors' Commons, to Caroline Martha, daughter of the late Captain Thomas, Royal Majesty's Charge d'Affaires to the Hanse Towns.

On the 17th inst., at the Priory Church, Christchurch, Hants, by the Rev. Zachary Nash, uncle of the bride, T. W. Masterman, Esq., of The Hall, Rotherfield, Sussex, to Margaret Hannah, second daughter of the late Edward Gurney, Esq., of New Park Lodge, Brixton, Surrey.

On the 17th inst., at Hatfield, Herts, by the Rev. T. Pettitt and the Rev. R. Kendall, Philip George Hall, Dare, of Mark Road, Hackney, elder son of the Rev. Thomas Skipworth, Rector of Bolton and Fairsworth, Lancashire, to Fanny Margaret, elder daughter of the late Thomas Kendall, Incumbent of Armley.

On the 17th inst., at St. James's Church, Piccadilly, Robert Allen, Esq., minister, of Sudbury, Suffolk, to Louisa, daughter of Captain W. H. Whitehead, broker, Liverpool.

On the 19th inst., at St. Stephen's, Bayswater, John Howard, Esq., of the Fyre Hills, Northampton, nephew of Samuel Howard, Esq., of Bromham, Bedfordshire, to Margaret, youngest daughter of the late John Sparks, Esq., Cullen Hall, Cumberland. No cards.

On the 19th inst., at the Swedish Embassy Chapel, Warwick-street, Pimlico, by the Rev. Lauritz Gradenius, Almoner to his Majesty the King of Sweden and Norway, Lars, youngest son of the late Lars Lundgren, Esq., of Norway, to Augusta, eldest daughter of J. F. Bischoffsheim, Esq., of Bow. No cards.

On the 19th inst., at St. John's, Oxford-square, by the Rev. S. Russell Davis, M.A., incumbent of St. Stephen's, Walworth, William Thomas Wilkinson, Esq., of 74, Warwick-square, Belgrave-road, to M'ary Snelling, second daughter of Mr. Jas. Snelling, of Pimlico, and niece of Mrs. Stewart, of 2, Burwood-place, Hyde Park.

DEATHS.

On the 11th inst., at Lowzar, near Pau (France), Christopher Pemberton Rodgson, Esq., formerly H.B.M. Consul at Rio Janeiro, aged 70.

On the 16th inst., at Great Yarmouth, William Arthur Robinson, Esq., of Bulwer-road, and New Road-side, both in that town, aged 39. Friends will please accept this intimation.

At his residence, Belle View House, Darlington, 9, John Dixon, Esq., C.E., aged 68.

On the 17th ult., at San Fernando, Trinidad, from typhoid fever, Syrah Hayle, clerk of the Deputy Postmaster, Mr. Wm. Hayle, formerly of Carnarvon-street, Nottingham. The kind sympathy felt towards Mr. Hall in his sudden bereavement was shown by the numerous funeral which followed, headed by nearly all the principal inhabitants of the borough.

On the 18th inst., at Upton, Essex, Charlotte Rose Lockett, eldest son of Thomas Lockett, Esq., of Upton and Norton Folgate, in his 24th year.

On the 19th inst., at Ramsbottom, in the county of Antrim, Miss Henrietta, widow of the late Thomas Reade, Esq., of the city of Dublin, and only daughter of the late C. A. Keppel Bell, Esq., of the 9th West India Regiment.

On the 19th inst., at Viewbank Trinity, near Edinburgh, Elizabeth Dorothea, widow of Warwick, last Viscount Lake.

On the 1st inst., at Trevilio, Fern, William Blackwood, Esq., native of Belfast, in the county of Antrim, Ireland, aged 70.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 28.

SUNDAY, Oct. 22.—Nineteenth Sunday after Trinity. Death of Sir William Follett, eminent lawyer and parliamentary leader, at the house of Louis Spiers, Gloucester-terrace, Hyde Park, 1845.

MONDAY, 23.—Breaking out of the Irish rebellion, 1641. Battle of Buenos Ayres (the Duke Mauro's great victory over the army of Rosas), 1845.

TUESDAY, 24.—Death of Tycho Brahe, the astronomer, 1601. Peace of Pekin between Great Britain, France, and China, 1860.

WEDNESDAY, 25.—Sir Crispin and Crispianus, martyrs. Battle of Agincourt (Henry V.'s victory over the French), 1415. Foundation of the Royal Horticultural Institute, by the union of the five Academies, 1790.

THURSDAY, 26.—Milton College, Oxford, founded by Walter de Merton, 1237. Death of Dr. Phillip Doddridge, 1751.

FRIDAY, 27.—Birth of Captain James Cook, circumnavigator, 1728. Napoleon I. entered Berlin, 1806. Moon's first quarter, 5h. 55m. p.m.

SATURDAY, 28.—Sir Simon and Jude, apostles. Death of Wilkie Collins, civil engineer, 1792.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE, DURING THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 28.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
3 25	3 56	4 26	4 55	5 23	5 50	6 17
15 45	16 16	16 46	17 15	17 43	18 10	18 37

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 29′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

Date.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.			WIND.		RAIN in 24 hours.
	Barometer reduced to 32° Fahr.	Dew Point.	Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Highest.	Lowest.	Range.	General Direction.	Resultant Velocity.
	Inches	°	°	0-10	°	°	°		Miles.	Inches.
11	29·876	47·8	82·6	9·7	53·3	43·0	10·3	SSW. SW.	3·17	·000
12	29·916	54·8	82·9	9·3	61·3	49·4	11·9	WSW. W.	3·17	·000
13	29·639	49·1	84·9	9·0	54·4	43·4	11·0	W. WNW.	3·6	·000
14	29·995	49·7	89·4	·96	51·2	42·9	8·3	CALM.	1·3	·000
15	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	47·5	42·4	5·1	[illegible]	[illegible]	·055
16	29·966	49·2	87·3	·94	51·0	38·8	12·2	SSW.	1·28	·000
17	29·265	54·3	89·2	·97	61·0	49·0	12·0	WSW. SW.	2·59	·234

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine A.M.:—

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29·974	29·962	29·958	29·962	29·941	29·950	29·320
Temperature of Air	49·7°	52·9°	61·8°	49·2°	50·4°	49·8°	47·0°
Temperature of Evaporation	48·3°	50·3°	51·7°	44·1°	45·5°	41·9°	34·9°
Direction of Wind	CALM.	SSW.	CALM.	NNW.	[illegible]	WSW.	[illegible]

WHOLE-SHEET FINE-ART SUPPLEMENT.

With the No. after of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS for SATURDAY NEXT, Oct. 28, will be issued a WHOLE-SHEET SUPPLEMENT of FINE-ART ILLUSTRATIONS, from the following Pictures and other Works of Art:—

"Antigone." By C. R. Leslie. In the National Collection, South Kensington Museum.

"Esther's Banquet." By E. R. Armitage. In the Liverpool Exhibition.

"Two Yorkshire Bairns." By J. Deffet Francis. In the Wakefield Art and Industrial Exhibition.

Drawings by J. W. M. Turner, in the Farnley Collection: "A Mid-night Storm on Mont Cenis;" "Fall of the Reichenbach;" "A First-Rater Taking in Stores."

"Antigone." By G. F. Watts, R.A. T. T. Lucas.

Statue of the Right Hon. James Wilson, late Finance Minister of India, erected at Calcutta.

Statue of the late Sir James M'Gregor, Bart., Director-General of the Army Medical Department, erected at Chelsea Barracks.

Bust of the late Mr. Bunning, City Architect, erected at the City of London Schools.

The NUMBER will contain the following Engravings:—

Broadlands, Romsey, Hampshire, the Birthplace of Lord Palmerston.

Cambridge House, Piccadilly, the Town Residence of Lord Palmerston.

Brocket Hall, Hatfield, Hertfordshire, where Lord Palmerston died.

Flores Castle, near Keiso, Scotland, visited by the Prince and Princess of Wales.

A Coursing Meeting at Stonehenge, Salisbury Plain.

The Cholera at Malta: Encampment of the 4th (King's Own) Regiment.

The War in New Zealand: Departure of Lieutenant-General Sir Duncan Cameron from Auckland.

The French West Indian Island of Guadaloupe, the Scene of the late Destructive Hurricane (Two Illustrations).

H.M.S. Opossum, with the Squadron of Chinese Junks, preparing to Attack Missowah, in the Red Sea, the Head-quarters of the Abyssinian Relief Mission.

One of the Number and Supplement, Fivepence; Stamped, to go free through the post, Sixpence.

A PORTRAIT OF LORD PALMERSTON, from one of the latest Photographs, is being prepared, and will be published in this Journal.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1865.

LORD PALMERSTON is no more. With little warning, save that which must be ever present in the case of the aged, the Premier has been suddenly taken, without suffering, on Wednesday morning. Had he survived until yesterday, he would have attained the age of eighty-one. With his noble faculties of mind retained to the last, with his wonderful vigour of body maintained nearly as long, in the enjoyment of almost every honour which Sovereigns can bestow, and more admired and beloved by Englishmen than any First Minister has ever been, Lord Palmerston has closed an active life by a peaceful death, and a glorious career by a calm end. He has met as veteran a term of service was ending, the event has come with a certain suddenness. It is difficult as yet to comprehend that the powerful man who has so long and so ably guided the course of the country is no more among us. We had supposed that the parting would have been longer. We had expected his resignation of the great office of state, and perhaps his partial retirement from politics; but it was thought that he would have been spared to be the Nestor of the camp in which he had been the Achilles, that he might have held a seat in the Cabinet without a nominal duty, and that the great years for his unfailing energy and his unrivalled tact would have been at the service of his colleagues in any grave emergency. Dis aliter visum. After but a few hours of real illness the gallant old man succumbed, and his place knows him no more. When the first emotions are over, we may feel that "this parting was well made." He died painlessly, among those with whom natural ties connected him; and, falsely as it has been said among us for years, the chief of the great Liberal Minister, that wherever an Englishman lives there is sorrow.

Such a tribute may be paid without adulation; nor is this an instance in which a great man's greatness is discerned for the first time by the light of the stone as in the sunshiny hour: that he was ever ready to make the will of the nation known, no matter who frowned upon her;—all this was much, and it is this which the historian will tell. But other Ministers have been this and done this, and we do not, forget them. The popularity—and a stronger word were not too strong—which has attended Lord Palmerston for a third of a century has not been based upon a misunderstood nation, or upon a nation misunderstood him, and thus a personal friendship has been formed between the Minister and the people—a friendship which bade us give him our trust and look on fearlessly while he faithfully wielded the tremendous power which the nation places in the hands of her chosen representative.

We leave it to the biographer to tell the long and deeply interesting story of Lord Palmerston's life. He stands out, a figure of command, in the great picture of our time. But, for the moment, we think only of the true, brave, honest friend whom we have lost, and we have small inclination to balance failures against successes, or to point out that he might have been a statesman of a different order, if his antecedents had been other than they were, and his mind had been differently constituted. These commonplaces are well enough in their way, and they are part of the parade furnished by the literary undertaker when a great man departs. We believe that at this time they are less welcome to the myriads who sincerely mourn the loss of Viscount Palmerston than a simple and honest utterance of English feeling. We have lost a very wise and a very faithful friend, who has served us nobly and cheerfully. It would be folly to say that he has been unrewarded, for the honour of holding, for a single month, the most glorious office in the whole world, that of First Minister of Great Britain, might repay the best man of us all for the labour of a life; and Lord Palmerston felt that he was very proud of his position. But in no other sense has he received much reward for his services. The salaries of his places were as hardly earned as those of any of the clerks in the departments. He was overseverely before he left office, perhaps. He might, of course, have had a peerage at any moment, but he preferred to lead the Commons; and he never even sought a coronet for the amiable and devoted lady who—with us, all—we mourn him. He can now to say that Lord Palmerston cared for aught save the honour of serving his country and the conviction that she knew we served her well.

His name, to use the old phrase, is a household word. In our own households it is linked inseparably with the idea of an accomplished and kindly-hearted gentleman, who loved his countrymen, and could be as bold for them in time of trouble as he was generous in the days of prosperity. And no party feeling—he represented all the parties, for he represented all the people. In households abroad it may be that his name has another significance. There is no doubt that in most of the Cabinets where designs are principally laid there will be small grief at the death of one who was more than a match for diplomatic wile, and who had much scorn for tyrants and tricksters. In the homes of the people of the Continent there will be regret, few, little as they know of parliamentary statesmen, there is a widely-spread feeling that we are friends of free institutions, and that the great English Minister's counsels to foreign Kings were on the side of liberty. But he will not be very justly judged, abroad or at home, if he would love cared little for other judgment than that of his own people. That judgment was given when we gave him the premiership for life; and now that he has yielded up his trust, there are few hearts in our islands that do not sadden as we gather to rear his tomb.

DEATH OF LORD PALMERSTON.

IT is with deep regret that we announce the death of Lord Palmerston, which occurred on Wednesday morning, at Brocket Hall, Herts. Although his health had long been failing, it was not until Thursday week that his condition became so serious as to cause any immediate alarm in the minds of his friends. On that day he was confined to his bed, suffering severely from a cold that had recently affected him, as well as from some painful symptoms of the gout. It was judged necessary to telegraph for medical assistance, and on Friday the physicians arrived at Brocket Hall. Telegrams were sent to her Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, at Sandringham, intimating the attack, and the Royal family were afterwards kept constantly informed of his condition. Only on Monday was it rumoured that he was dangerously ill, and the following bulletin was issued to reassure his Lordship's friends on Tuesday:—

In consequence of having taken cold, Lord Palmerston has been seriously affected by it, and although he has had the best medical advice, he has not been able to throw off the attack.

At a late hour the same day the following was the bulletin:—

Lord Palmerston's illness has become worse since the morning.

On Wednesday morning the statement was still more discouraging:—

Lord Palmerston's condition altered suddenly for the worse in the evening of yesterday, and he continues sinking.

Later in the day the melancholy tidings of the noble Viscount's decease were announced in the following terms:—

After the last report Lord Palmerston's strength continued to fail, and at a quarter before eleven o'clock this morning he expired, without suffering.

His Lordship's family were assembled at the bedside—Lord and Lady Shaftesbury, Mr. and Mrs. William Cowper, Lady Jocelyn, and Mr. Evelyn Ashley. He retained his consciousness to the end. His manner was natural and collected, and his death was entirely unattended by suffering. The medical gentlemen in attendance were Dr. Thomas Watson, Dr. Protheroe Smith, and Dr. Charles Deane.

On the receipt of the news in the city and at the various public offices, the Bank, and the Stock Exchange, the death of the noble Lord was the principal subject of discussion, and everyone seemed fully impressed by the great loss the country has sustained.

Many of the ships in the docks lowered their flags, and similar marks of regret were displayed in the dockyards.

At a meeting of the Court of Common Council held, in the afternoon, in the Council-chamber, Guildhall, Charles Salt Meyer in the chair—Mr. Maynard moved the following resolution :—

That this court has received with the deepest feelings of sorrow and regret the melancholy intelligence of the death of the Right Hon. Lord Viscount Palmerston, K.G., First Lord of the Treasury and Prime Minister. That this court regards the decease of this eminent statesman as a severe loss to this nation not to the metropolis alone, and is convinced that in the high administration of his great talents, his manly bearing, and his great administrative capacity, which have so materially increased the power and dignity of this country, it desires to convey to Lady Palmerston its heartfelt and sincere sympathy with her on the occasion of her bereavement.

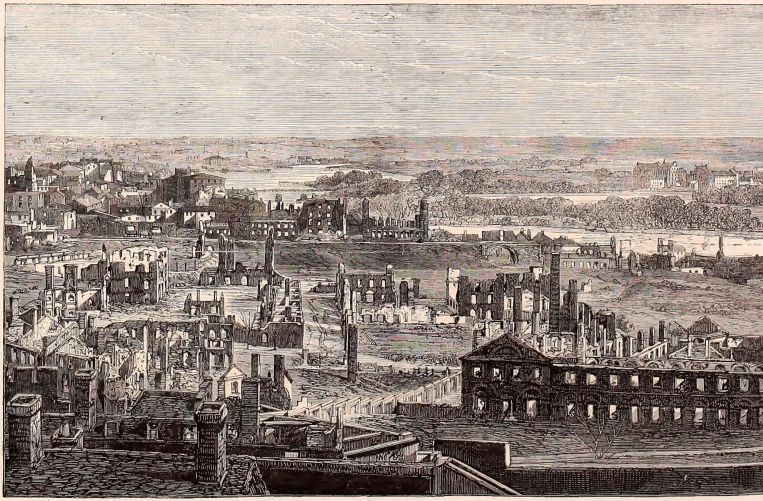
In moving that resolution, he would also suggest that it should not go although the Lord Mayor was being elected for a candidate, but that it should be sent to Lady Palmerston at once. Alderman Salomons, M.P., said it afforded him great satisfaction to second, and, on behalf of the Court of Aldermen, to second the motion. He was glad of their meeting to-day, as it afforded them the opportunity of being the first of the public corporations to speak what they all felt with regard to the great loss both they and the country had sustained by the death of Lord Palmerston. Mr. R. N. Phillips supported the motion, and it was carried unanimously.

From various parts of the country we receive accounts of the universal grief caused by the sad announcement. At Bristol flags were half-masted at some of the public buildings and at the Industrial Exhibition, which Lord Palmerston was to have opened last month. At Liverpool the flag on the Townhall was hoisted half-mast, and the rumours, we are informed, had a considerable effect on 'Changes, the markets being depressed.

A portrait, accompanied by a memoir, of Lord Palmerston will be given in this Journal.

THE COURT.

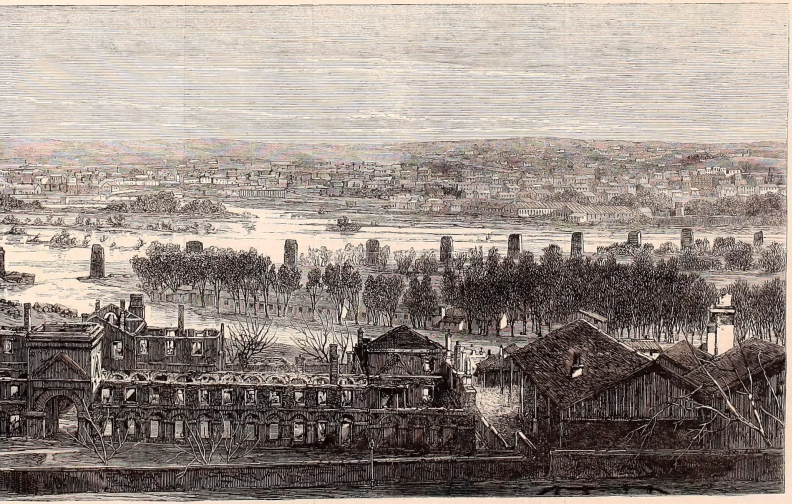
THE Queen, with the Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle, in the enjoyment of good health.



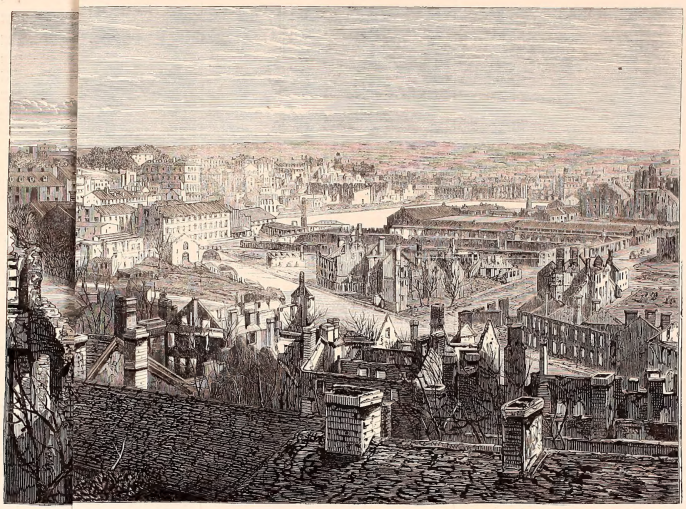
On Tuesday week her Majesty, during her stay at Dunkeld, accompanied by Princess Helena and the Duchess Dowager of Atholl, visited her Grace's model farm at St. Colme, and afterwards inspected the byres at Dunkeld.

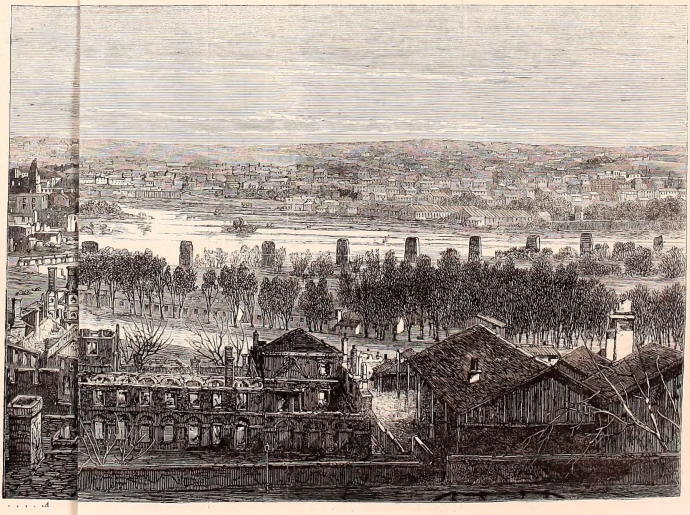
On Wednesday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, the Duchess Dowager of Atholl, and Miss MacGregor drove round the Loch of the Lowes, through Dunkeld, to the Falls of the Braan, at the Bunrilling Bridge, and thence to the Hermitage, where the Royal party partook of ice, returning to Dunkeld by the same route by six o'clock.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and the Duchess Dowager of Atholl, drove to Loch Ordie and had a sail upon the lake. On the landing of the Royal party Princess Helena presented carter-de-visite of her Majesty and of herself to the wife of the keeper of the lodge.

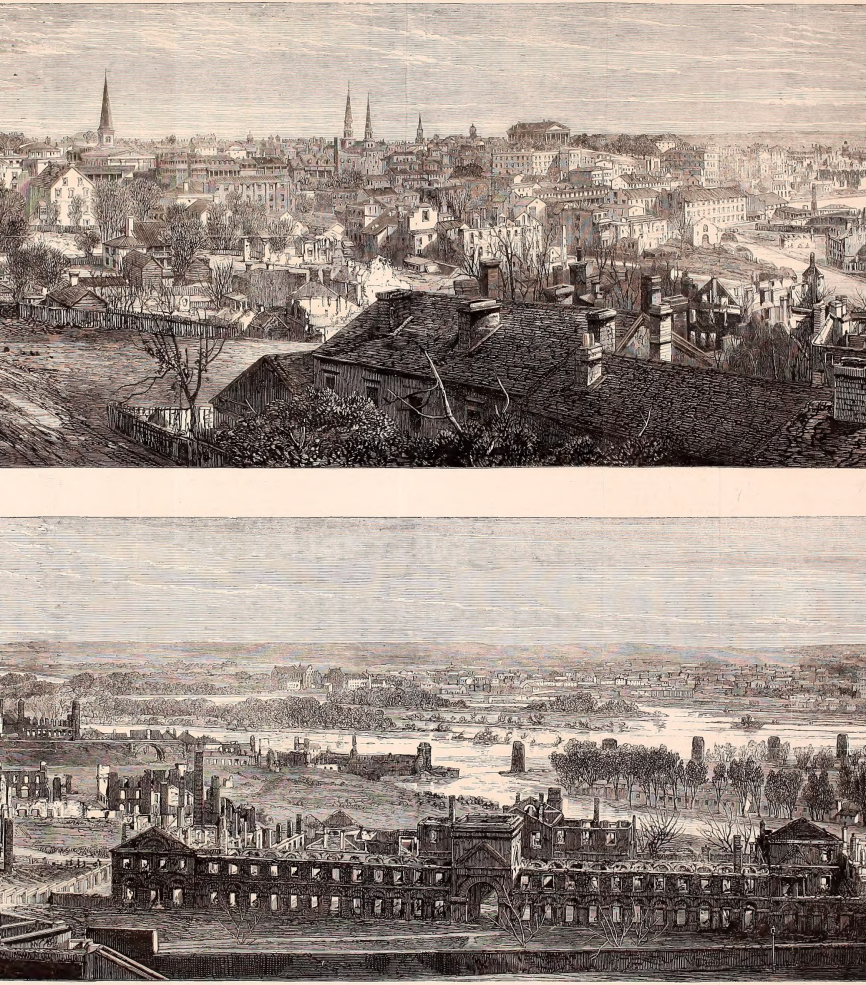


Yesterday week the Queen planted a tree (a cedar Atlantica) in the grounds of Dunkeld House in commemoration of her visit. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and the Duchess Dowager of Atholl, and attended by the Marchioness of Ely, Lieutenant-Colonel General the Hon. Charles Grey, left Dunkeld House at ten o'clock. By command of the Queen, an order had been previously issued that the widow of the inhabitant of Dunkeld would be admitted within the grounds to witness the departure of her Majesty. Nearly 3000 persons assembled to witness the departure, and the utmost decorum was preserved. The guard of eight men who had kept watch, two on each gate, and two on the lawn, in front, was drawn up at the door. Her Majesty graciously bowed to the men, and rewarded one named Williams, a stalwart Highlander, to approach her. The Queen remembered the veteran as one of the gamekeepers on her previous visit to Dunkeld with the late Prince Consort. Her Majesty conversed with the man a few minutes, and then proceeded to the carriage, a pair-horse phaeton, with the grey Highlanders to the footboard. The Queen, with Princess Helena, was attired in a riding-habit. Her Majesty very graciously acknowledged the silent though loyal demonstration of the people, and immediately after the carriage had passed the vast assemblage broke into cheers for the Queen and Princess Helena. For several miles along the route the people were assembled, and warmly greeted her Majesty, who kindly acknowledged the salutes. Upon arriving at Crieff on the horses were changed, and the journey was continued by the same route, at which place the Queen and the Atholl took leave of the Queen and returned to Dunkeld. Her Majesty and Princess Helena proceeded through Crieff, and overtook the Queen and Princess Helena, who had





PANORAMA OF RICHMOND, VIRGINIA, AF



ITS CAPTURE BY THE FEDERALS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

S.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

PANORAMA OF RICHMOND, VIRGINIA, AFTER ITS CAPTURE BY THE FEDERALS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

THERE is an old gentleman who keeps a bookstall under an archway close by the Bibliothèque Impériale, in the Rue de Richelieu, Paris; and who, in addition to rare old books and pamphlets, vends literary "curios." You may see there an autograph of Napoleon, a death-warrant signed by the members of the Committee of Public Safety, a commission made out by our Charles II. in favour of a Cavalier captain, and, in particular, a neat collection of assignats—the never-redeemed paper money of the Reign of Terror. These once notable "flimsies" have grown quite yellow now, but to me they always seem to possess a grim tinge. How terribly suggestive is the assignat of one of those "Le Los perds de mort le contrefacteur"—the law punishes the forger with death! The assignats were never worth much, for, like Dr. Guillotin himself, they were "short lived" (bobsguerre guillotined) say that he paid fifty francs (in paper) for a petit verre in the year '93. They are now cheaper now. You need not give more than fourpence for a promise of the Republic, One and Indivisible, to pay five hundred francs. Well, that old gentleman, with his successor, under the archway, may soon be enabled to add some fresh "curios" to the collection. At how small a discount, I wonder, will Bank of England notes five years hence? The Times correspondent in New York has sent home a most graphic sensible picture of the Federal Government during the In left-hand top corner is a harp, in the right a shamrock; then "61," and the figure of Hibernia in the centre. Then there is a big wet-thistle into cash "ninety days after the establishment of the Irish Republic" are redeemable by——one Blank. This is politician. In the left-hand bottom corner there is a "burst of sunbeams." Poor Fenians! Are they, indeed, the "beetlebury bondsmen" whom Daniel O'Connell bade us to feel sympathy with?

It is worth noting that these shadowy shin-plasters are said to be engraved by the American Continental Bank Note Company, a very wealthy corporation, doing an immense business. They have in their employ some of the very finest line engravers living, and their skill and proofs, which I have seen, contains some really magnificent specimens of chalcography. But the subjects on which the Bank Note Co. has employed form a most wonderful salmagundi. The banks in the United States may be counted by thousands; every bank is ambitious to have a decorative and original form of note for its issue, and the result is a perfect chaos of ships in full sail, steam-engines, bonkives, "banks of industry," star-spangled banners, continents, cornucopias, mermaids and faces, and allegories of commerce, confidence, and Columbia. Sometimes the president of the bank appears on the note, and has to be engraved on the face of the note (as Messrs. Lincoln and Chase had them on their greenbacks); sometimes a view of the bank premises, and has her effigy inscribed on the document. For the rest, the Continental Bank Note Company seems quite equal to the execution of any engrave notes for Canada, New Brunswick, Mexico, or the empire of Brazil, as blithely as for their own republic.

A monument to one of the most illustrious captains of our great Napoleonic wars is to be unveiled at Chester on the 25th of this month. On that day the ancient city will be crowded with an equestrian statue, executed by Baron Marochetti, of the late Field Marshal Viscount Combermere, G.C.B., Governor of Ireland, Constable of the Tower, and Colonel of the Scots Fusilier Guards, in the Tyrol, with the Masonic body of the province over which the gallant veteran presided as Grand Master of Cheshire, are to be present at the ceremony; and an appropriate address is to be delivered by General Sir Edward Cust. It is the last accomplished Peninsular of our campaigns should aid in the inauguration of a memorial to the valiant commander now gone to rest with the brave.

In the admirable letters written by Mdme. Calderon de la Barca from Mexico during the embassy of her husband to that wildest republic, and published at the instance of the late Mr. Prescott, the historian, you may read that when Mdme. Calderon was at Puebla de los Angelos she went to a concert, given by a renowned guitarist and violinist, the Senor Vicente Wallace. That concert took place nearly a quarter of a century since, and to-night I heard that poor Vincent Wallace is dead. Yesterday! Why, it seems but the day before yesterday that I went to the pit of Drury Lane to hear the first performances of "Maritana," and listened with all a stripling's delight to its delicious melodies. A great artist, full of learning as well as genius, was Vincent Wallace. He has died like Wilkie, "too young for friendship, not for fame. He leaves a widow and two children, who, it is to be feared, not too well provided for. If need there be, the family of this gifted British composer should have a strong claim on the generosity of the public—ay, and of the State. Long may it be ere we put grandsons, canteens of in devious arte, come and impotune the Government for a pension to those whom Wallace has left to mourn his loss. Had he been a Frenchman, a German, or an Italian he would have died decorated, pensioned, and satisfied. Literature gets up to grandsons, and with good cause, when, out of the twelve hundred annual pounds flung at their heads by Parliament, a big slice is appointed as a loisture for the widow of a late Consul at the Dry Tortugas, or as a provision for the nieces of a defunct Registrar-General; but no voice would be raised in complaint. I fancy, were a place found in the literary pension list for the widow and children of Vincent Wallace.

Coming back to London I found another death to record—that of Dudley Costello. I am tardy in throwing my humble wreath on his tomb; but I cannot let the passing away of this pleasant, clever, kindly gentleman I knew ever since I was a child occur without word of mine. He was one of the men who always seemed to be there; a man who had no enemies, who had no vanishing ambition or lord-voiced pretension; one who laboured assiduously, wrote many, and sought in his honourable vocation. In newspapers and magazines Dudley Costello had been writing almost incessantly for at least thirty years. Younger and more demonstrative men passed him on the road; but he went on writing, contentedly and unpretendingly. Mr. Costello was originally a commission in the Army, and was the brother of Miss Louisa Stuart Costello, well known as a novelist, when novels were not precisely of the description of which Miss Braddon is Queen.

Do you remember a little story I told you some weeks since about an old lady who kept a bookshop in Maiden Lane, and was annoyed her fears that the plague or the cholera would be the result of the architectural demolitions and improvements which are now making up of old foundations? It is strange—very strange—that the two cities in France which have been most severely visited by cholera this summer and autumn are Paris and Marseilles, where architectural demolitions have been carried on with the greatest activity. I don't want to theorize; especially at this moment, when everybody is theorizing to his neighbour manure, sheet anchors and the Times. And while we are quaking in apprehension of the coming of this dismal scourge, the October sun has been smiling as though we were in mid-May. Lord Mr. Titus Lewis must be a happy man once more, and with his compliments a punnet of strawberries, grown in the open air, at St. Quentin, Cowleigh, Cowleigh, and Wales. That cottage is to be South Wales; it must be in Arcadia. October, however, has now begun to weep in good earnest.

The King of Wirtemberg is very angry with the officers and soldiers of the garrison of Stuttgard because they occasionally neglect to salute him and the Princes and Princesses of the "direct line" when his "Egregious Transparency" attends the Opera. The officers and soldiers plead that they are sometimes unable to recognise his Majesty and the Royal family; and to obviate this, "the most Egregious representations" of the Egregious Transparencies are to be hung up, at the regimental halls to all the guardsmen. Does the King of Wirtemberg read English? If his Majesty is inclined that way, I beg to commend to his notice the subjoined stanza from a very old English poet:—

The glories of our birth and state
Are shadows, not substantial things;
There is no armour against fate;
Death lays his icy hand on kings.
Sceptre and crown
Must tumble down,
And in the earth be equal laid
With the poor crooked spithe and spade.

And, as I close these Echoes, there comes one that has a trumpet sound. Royal in the earth "with the poor crooked scythe and spade" is now laid the portfolio of the Prime Minister of England. John Henry Temple, Viscount Palmerston, K.G., died at Brocket Hall on Wednesday morning at eleven o'clock. Was it not at this same Brocket Hall that Lord Melbourne closed his earthly career? It is not my province to descant on the public services and the personal worth of the illustrious statesman who, after a wonderfully vigorous and green old age, has paid the debt which you and I and all the world must pay. Elsewhere, a more eloquent and a more appropriate tribute will be paid to his memory.

PANORAMA OF RICHMOND, VIRGINIA, AFTER THE CONFLAGRATION.

SEVERAL Illustrations have been published from time to time in this Journal showing the ruined condition of some of the public buildings in Richmond, Virginia, lately the capital of the Confederate States, as they appeared soon after the evacuation of that city by the fallen Government and its remnant of an army, whose retreat was accompanied by an act of wholesale incendiarism, causing the destruction of a great many offices, factories, shops, and dwelling-houses. It may still be worthy while, as a permanent memorial of one of the most terrible instances of the destructive fury of a civil war, to present our readers with the accompanying panoramic view engraved, which displays the whole extent of Richmond as it was in the first week of April last, when it was entered by the Federal troops, whom President Lincoln followed next day—but a week before his death by the assassin's hand.

The city of Richmond, which was, until the war of secession, one of the most beautiful in the United States, had a population in ordinary times of 40,000 persons, with a fair trade in tobacco, wheat, and flour, sent to New York, Baltimore, or Philadelphia, for exportation abroad. It is picturesquely situated, occupying the north bank of the James River, where the Lower Falls mark the limit of inland navigation. The streets, also, are laid out at right angles, and named after the letters of the alphabet, were rather neat than picturesque; but, on Shockoe Hill, West Side or fashionable quarter of the city, were several fine buildings, of which the Capitol, shown in our Illustration, is the most conspicuous, and has fortunately escaped destruction. This edifice, which stands on a square of eight acres, is adorned with a portico of columns in imitation of a fine marble statue of Washington, and other works of art. The official residence of the Government is a large mansion at the north-west corner of the Capitol Square, standing facing the river, in the same part of the city, is seen not far beyond. The good, the excellent Mr. Ellmaker, whose will was made to point asylum, and the armoury (shown in one of our former Illustrations), with several colleges, and about thirty churches, were the other public buildings of Richmond, not to reckon three or four banks, insurance offices, four-mills, iron-factories, and other establishments of industry or commerce. The revival of its trade may be expected, from its great advantages of water-power above the city for manufacturing purposes and the navigable river below. On the south side, connected with Richmond by three bridges, are the suburban villages of Manchester and Spring Hill. The Capitol of Petersburg, so stoutly defended by General Lee, is twenty-two miles to the south. It is to be hoped that the peace and prosperity of Richmond will not again be disturbed, for this unfortunate place has nearly suffered enough.

THE SPOT ON THE SUN.

THE attention of our astronomical observers has been much directed to a very remarkable spot which has been visible during the last fortnight on the surface of the sun; and, as it is expected to remain in sight (weather permitting) two or three days longer, we present an Illustration of it, drawn expressly for us by Mr. James R. Christie, Arundel-gardens, Notting-hill. Another gentleman, Mr. F. Brodie, of Uckfield, Sussex, writes on the subject as follows, under the date of the 30th inst.:—

"The apparent shape of this spot this morning was somewhat of an oval, but as it is situated on a sphere, and is not very far from the edge of the disc, it is seen much foreshortened. On calculating the amount of this foreshortening in connection with other micrometrical measurements, I found that the true shape of this great solar crater was tolerably circular, the upper end of the crater (or of the penumbra) had a mean diameter of 36,000 miles, and the lower 28,000 (or the umbra) about 16,000 miles. Two long promontories of luminous matter projected from opposite points in the penumbra across the umbra; one was about 4200 miles in length, the other about 3200 miles; in about three hours' time the whole of this latter promontory was separated, and moved away from the penumbra, breaking up into detached portions. Clouds prevented further observation of the wonderful forces in active operation in this solar crater, but no observer then with advantages of good telescope is required. The telescope used in these observations is an equatorial of 8½ in. aperture, and 11½ ft. focal length."

The town of Taschkend (in Turkistan) has been taken by the Emir of Bokhara, with the Russians' consent.

Mr. W. C. Burder, the well-known meteorologist, died on Wednesday, at his residence at Clifton, aged forty-three. He was the director of the meteorological stations established in April, 1861, and one of the large centres of Zone and Day, 1861.

Mr. George Brown, photographic artist, of Greenwich, has published a series of photographs of various groups of the old sailors and their friends, assembled at the Greenwich Hospital on the Saturday evening within the precincts, on the day of their departure, which is the subject of one of the Illustrations of last week. The photographs are remarkably characteristic portraits of some of those familiar figures.

It is proposed to add to the exhibition of the works of the industrial classes of both town and country during next year at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. The special features of the exhibition will be the encouragement of skilled workmanship, amateur productions, facilities for the sale of articles exhibited, lectures on manufactures, lectures on popular subjects, manufacturing processes in operation, prize essays, conversations of masters and workmen, free admission of schools, free training, prizes for evergreens, &c., in pots, and a small garden.

At the meeting of the Board of Works, yesterday week, a report was read from Dr. Letheby disclosing a new danger to health from the overcrowding of the burial-grounds in the metropolis. In consequence of a question at an increase of salary to the engineers of the Board was again brought up, and, after a good deal of discussion and the rejection of several amendments, it was agreed to increase Mr. Bazalgette's salary from £1200 to £1500, and the salaries of the three assistant engineers from £300 to £400 a year, with £200 for additional services.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

An Excursion in the Peloponnesus. By the late Right Hon. Sir Thomas Wyse, K.C.B. Edited by his Niece, Winifreda M. Wyse. (Day and Son.) Two fine volumes, finely illustrated. The illustrations, which are numerous, "have been etched by Mr. A. Severn, from drawings by Signor V. Lanza and by Sir Thomas Wyse." It may seem to many persons that we have had enough of travels in the Morea, successive in the Peloponnesus, researches in Greece, and similar works; but they will probably alter their opinion when they know the circumstances under which the valuable journal under consideration was composed. The late Sir Thomas Wyse was H.B.M.'s Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Athens from 1849 to 1852; and in 1858 he returned, as a special object, to visit to the Peloponnese. For, after the occupation of Athens during the Crimean War, there was appointed a Financial Commission to "inquire into the Resources of Greece," of which Sir Thomas was president. Hence the tour and the journal. Sir Thomas found that the latter necessarily touched upon many subjects of general interest, and he therefore resolved on the task of publishing it. His death delayed the publication; for the author died before he had completed the preparation of the work for the press. The editorial task, therefore, devolved upon his niece, who found the duty no difficult one. She has not only anticipated, and done, with, as it seems to us, but little reason, claims indulgence on the score of inadequate performance. She has, at any rate, contributed some very useful notes. The object of the commission already mentioned "was to examine whether the resources of the country sufficed for payment of interest of the loan guaranteed by the three protecting Powers—a question always desired by the Greek Government, and, up to that period, advanced a century a year by those who were in search for work of fulfilling their engagements." The point of view, then, from which Sir Thomas must have regarded the Peloponnesus in his tour will be manifest, for he had in his eye a special purpose; and the advantages of his official position, as well as his service gave him the best opportunities as few can command for giving trustworthy information upon general matters. The consequence is that his niece has been able to give to the world two volumes which the theme may not be every one's novel; but in which the treatment of the theme has some touch of novelty, which is full of information, and without labour; and which should therefore receive more than ordinary attention.

Rural Rhymes, Odes, and Ballads. (John Russell and Co.) Whether there was in literature a gap to be appropriately filled by these two books, the public will be decided in the course of a very short time; but, however, it is always attractive, though it may not be always profitable, to take a lesson to readers. Such a work must from the nature of the case be a compilation; but the compiler of a work of this class is one of those to whom sometimes inclined to wish that in the present case he had been given to John-sonian sententiousness and inflation. No doubt the poesie is a great boon, and Sir Walter Scott would have a sad time without one; but a bad king should; but why should the useful root be spoken of peripharastically, as the Greeks would have veiled it? The compiler must have been puzzled to make up his mind at what date he should commence, and he has therefore evidently pitched upon a point that it is difficult to say upon what plan he proceeded; it might have taken up how much time he pleased with Joseph and Benjamin, or even with Solomon and the strange women, and so work round by the road of profane history to the point where he begins his lesson, as he styled at Mrs. Jordan; at any rate, he seems to have acted somewhat arbitrarily, and to have violated the principle of selection for the inquirer will find in the index neither the names of Fair Rosamond, nor of Jane Shore, nor of Cardinal Wolsey, nor of innumerable other Royal favourites who fall under the volume. The volume, by contain memoirs of only a few of the gorgeous moths and gay butterflies who have ringed their names on the historical round Royal Constellation, we been chased and captured whilst fluttering in Royal gardens. The volumes are not unpleasantly handsome novelties, and the latter is at the beginning of the first volume, instead of, as is usual, at the end of the second.

Meditations. By Henry Alford, D.D. (Alexander Strahan.) The Dean of Canterbury has acquired a name as a poet, essayist, translator, and critic; and though one may not be justified in saying of him that "he has left nothing undone which he has attempted," still he has enlisted on his side so many admirers that this collection of sermons preached by him in Canterbury Cathedral is not likely to go unread. The subjects are "Advent," "Lent," "Easter Eve," and to "Providence;" and have, at least, the recommendation of being tolerably free from prolixity. Some may sometimes deem them pearls for so great a dignitary; and one cannot help thinking that the custom of the Church of England to read from the pulpit when he wrote, "our clothing is not only for shelter and decorum, but it is also for ornament." Whether the statement be in accordance with the teaching of Scripture and (in the case of dress) with the canons of true art, we think many may be left to the theologians, tailors, hatters, and artists in general.

A Selection from the Works of Robert Browning. (Edward Moxon and Co.) Another volume in the series of Moxon's Miniature Poets. There is no need to praise the interior, and the exterior will tell its own tale to those interested in the eyes of those who admire shop-windows. Those, however, who like plenty for their money will be glad to learn that there are no less than sixty-two pieces.

Readings in English Prose. (William and Robert Chambers.) This volume is one of Chambers's Educational Course, and a few specimens of English writers, in verse as well as prose, from the earliest times to A.D. 1558, pieces of prose and poetry from the writings of authors as early as Sir Philip Sidney and as late as William Makepeace Thackeray. The volume appears to be admirably adapted for its purposes, which is to introduce into the upper classes of schools a reading-book which will what the appetites of the readers and incline them to desire more than the mere task-work.

Verses by the Way. By John Page Hoppe. (Whitfield, Green, and Son.) The author is a gentleman noticeable for more than verse than the spirit of poesy; lowfelt there flashes forth now and then a ray which proves that he is occasionally a philosopher, possibly as of the wind which "in the leafy month of June" keeps vigil and "to the woods doth merry company invite."

Faith Gartney's Girlhood. By the Author of "The Gayworthys." (Sampson Low, Son, and Co.) A one-volume novel by a new novelist of the author. It deals with scenes from the New World; its tone is fresh and wholesome; it wears a pleasant, domestic air; and it contains a style of writing which promises to be unpretentious, but withal quaint and vigorous. There is, moreover, evidence of thoughtfulness, and there is a healthy tone throughout which is pleasant. If there be familiarities with and strange adaptations of Scripture, the writer is believed to be a lady, and merely follows the fashion of custom of the country.

Lord Kepel's Tenant. By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret." (John Maxwell and Co.) The author has seldom or never written with more power and clever, readable, to a certain class of minds, irresistible; and "Sir Jasper's Tenant" teaches, in three volumes, many of the tricks and evil points for which its predecessors have been remarkable. Its plot rests mainly upon an impersonation of one person by another; and the idea, that a by impersonation of one person by another; and the idea, that a by the means employed, is a clever observation be confined to the author's own novels, is carried out certainly not with consummate art. There is the old story of the heir-at-law and the lower born her knowledge, a mean spirit, whilst failing to plentiful a story, would make small jokes about small details or condemned to pitiful pleasantries. Bobb and his friends are probably painted to the life, but they are simply nauseous; and as for the lieutenant of marines, whom Bobb calls his "friend in the space," it must be concluded that he belonged to the horse-marines. The best character in the book is, as is not uncommonly the case in this author's novels, the worst. The tricks to which recourse is had sometimes for creating a sensation may be imagined from the following sentence (vol. i. p. 11): "Sir Jasper's daughter fell pretty upon the spot, whereon the country people were wont to point triumphantly to the blood-bespattered traces of the murdered cavalier." She might just as well, for all that comes of it, have fallen into the dustbin. On the whole, the novel must be pronounced clever, but most unpleasant.

FINE ARTS.

SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.

OUR active, last week, of the mosaic decorative paintings in course of execution for the South Court of this museum having received our unwilling, we were compelled to postpone mentioning (as promised) the accession to the various courts and galleries since our last enumeration. Before doing so now, we would remark that in the review of the paintings we were represented, by an error of the press, to say of one of them what, besides being highly unmeaning, might be understood as unjust—namely, that "there is a sense of grandeur in the 'Della Robbia,' by Mr. Moody, which, examined well;" instead of which we wrote "which promises well." The "promise" was founded upon something still existing, for we had not seen the work long before; and, last any doubt should arise from our elliptical expression, we would add that we regard it as affording the amplest evidence in the work itself that Mr. Moody possesses a sense or conception of grandeur which, being one of the prime qualifications of genius in mural painting, necessarily promises well, although at present (in the painting in question) attended by, as it appears to us, drawbacks, which we, without any hesitation, point out to remedy.

And now let us commence our specification of the more recent, or not by previously-mentioned, additions to the museum, with the casts from celebrated sculptures—placed for the most part in the spacious North Court. Among the most interesting of these are casts from the following:—The panels in high relief by Giovanni Pisano from the lost sides of the original pulpit in the Cathedral of Pisa, which we learn were damaged but not destroyed in the great fire of 1595, and are preserved in the vestry of the Cathedral, where they are generally seen by tourists. This fact should be mentioned in Murray's "Handbook for Northern Italy," for, though we have not read it, we confess we were unacquainted with the existence of these most interesting sculptures till we learnt that casts were being taken from them for the Department of Art. Our readers may see in these small scale portions of Giovanni's masterpiece are preserved in the present pulpit. There is a cast, also, of the fine bronze door of the Baptistery, which escaped the fire: it contains numerous archaic and rude reliefs. The famous pulpit, or engaged pulpit-ambo—of the Church of Ambrogio, at Pisa, resting on mystical lions and decorated with the elaborate reliefs of Nicolo Pisano. Each subject is treated in a manner that is remarkable for lifelike energy. The antique colossal statue of Antigonus in the Louvre. "St. George and the Dragon," in a court-yard of the palace of the Kings of Bohemia at Prague—showing a version, if not interview, pleasant to see. The gold altar-frontal of Aix-la-Chapelle, as restored, containing some of the small mediæval religious subjects on the very ancient panels. The well-known monument of Sir John Hawkwood, in the Duomo at Florence, with four kneeling knights supporting the angles of the canopy over the sarcophagus effigy, which is supported on the mantle of the deceased—a design said to have been borrowed from one at Beda, and which occasion used in the Middle Ages to bear the effigies of one or two-horse chariot, in that hall of the Vatican to which it gives its name. Five of the bronze doors of the Basilica of Constantine to the Archduke Charles of Austria. Stone carvings of the Minstrels' Gallery, Exeter Cathedral. Fragments of the Rood Screen, with additions to the instructive collection (in the "cloisters" of the North Court), illustrative of Early Italian sculpture. Several of these are new to us, but we content ourselves with a mere notice of the fine bas-relief of "Christ in the Sepulchre," ascribed to Donatello. There has been noted a series, numbering upwards of twenty, of Italian and Spanish architectural decoration in carved wood, lent by the Office of Works. Considerable additions have also been made to the Spanish ecclesiastical section, and particularly to the series of casts of Gothic ornaments from various churches in Norfolk and Suffolk—namely, Cawston, Aylsham, Sherborne, Lanceaster, Nantwich, Orcott College, Boston, and other places. Many of these casts are from screens, and from the stalls and misereres, under the schools of art, where are also a number of cases, with new or newly-arranged specimens of the diverse kinds. Numerous modern Italian and other terra-cottas, ivory carvings, bronzes, medals, and bronzes, have likewise been added. The outcome of the competition of models for the new Government buildings on the Victoria Embankment, which we have also noticed, is also exhibited—i.e., Mr. Birch's "Wood Nymph." We regret to say that this design is not to be found in the position of "elevated character than some of the preceding works by the sculptor." The forms are too conventionalised, and the drapery is "wiry." The models also afford a "pretty" drawing-room statuette, when reduced, to parian; and little more can be said in its favour.

The miscellaneous additions are far too numerous to particularise. Suffice it to say that they comprise many new examples of the beautiful illustrations of ceramic art of various kinds, including Dresden, Chelsea, and Oriental china; another piece of Henri-Deux ware; Limoges enamels; Palissy, Majolica, Persian, Rhodian, Hispano-Moresque, and other wares; Greek earthenware and Japanese vases; church and other furniture; jewellery; specimens of the finest modern ornamental work in the base and precious metals, and casts of the same; watches, coffers, Venetian and other glass, specimens of Oriental enamels on many kinds, Indian embroidered fabrics, lace of various countries and dates, specimens of stained glass, and a most interesting and a large number of objects presented by the Rev. R. Brooks, of Selby (in addition to those previously presented), as ivory figures, carvings, and an astronomical clock, both presented by Mr. R. Goff; a model in cork of the museum, presented by Captain Scott, and a few specimens from the Fortnallis sale. Among the more recent contributors of objects on loan are Sir H. Edwards, the Hon. Ashley Ponsonby, Sir Thomas Neville, Count Lichtenberg, Mr. Gambart, Mr. Lucas, Mr. Messer, A. Barker, C. W. Reynolds, G. A. Morland, Heywood Hawkins, and T. C. Lucas.

Mr. Winston's drawings from ancient stained glass are still on view. In addition to the stained glass contributed by the Royal and Architectural work in the base and precious metals, and casts of the same; watches, coffers, Venetian and other glass, specimens of Oriental enamels on many kinds, Indian embroidered fabrics, lace of various countries and dates, specimens of stained glass, and a most interesting and a large number of objects presented by the Rev. R. Brooks, of Selby (in addition to those previously presented), as ivory figures, carvings, and an astronomical clock, both presented by Mr. R. Goff; a model in cork of the museum, presented by Captain Scott, and a few specimens from the Fortnallis sale. Among the more recent contributors of objects on loan are Sir H. Edwards, the Hon. Ashley Ponsonby, Sir Thomas Neville, Count Lichtenberg, Mr. Gambart, Mr. Lucas, Mr. Messer, A. Barker, C. W. Reynolds, G. A. Morland, Heywood Hawkins, and T. C. Lucas.

Mr. Winston's drawings from ancient stained glass are still on view. In addition to the stained glass contributed by the Royal and Architectural Museum, we have noticed a fine example of the modern German glass-painting so extensively introduced in the cathedral of Cologne, the rage for which is now unfortunately declining before the improving English manufacture, and as the decorative qualities which should be sought in glass for the mere material are better understood. The example to which we refer is a memorial window recorded for presentation to Gloucester Cathedral, at present inserted in the large aperture on the first landing of the main stairs leading to the picture-galleries. The design, by M. Max Ainmuller, has propriety of composition and harmony of colour—distinguishable—evidences of art-training we would be the last to underrate; yet those excellent qualities have given place to a more comprehensive, academic rigidity, of a character, in short, at variance with the free, romantic genius of Gothic architecture, and inconsistent with the playful effects proper to stained glass. Then the effort at expressing relief is unquestionably carried too far, and consequently rather than leading us to forget the deficiencies as regards admitting the rendering of modelling, of the light transmitted through the glass, makes the artist can do in that direction will only excite a feeling of curious pleasure, as an unexpected illusion, but will not satisfy, which is unlike the noble pleasure which it is the object of all good art to convey. Moreover, the thin superficial enamelling of the glass will almost constantly last comparatively but a few years, while it is in colour that M. Ainmuller, with the whole Munich school of glass-painters, is so strong. Very far more to our taste are the glass-manufacturers from rivalling the lustrous ruby, glowing amethyst and crysoloite, and deep, mellow sapphire blue of the old glass in the interiors of some of our English minsters. And it is not too much to say that there is not one passage of colour in the whole of the magnificent thirty large window which will satisfy an eye familiar with the colour qualities, the gorgeous splendour, of the old mediæval cathedral glass windows of the Mediæval and Early Renaissance periods.

We have already mentioned that Mr. Bell, by his munificent Bell's bequest to the nation, the replica of Ross Bonheur's "Horse Fair," has found its way to the portion of the National Gallery at South Kensington; and that the fine portrait of Sir David Brewster, by the late Sir Watson Gordon (the painter's last work) presented by the artist's brother, has likewise been hung. The reader may, perhaps, need to be reminded that the exhibition of miniature portraits will close on the 31st inst. We trust that the experience gained in this exhibition will not be lost in organising the forthcoming National Portrait Exhibition, to open early in April of next year. We hope the collection will prove carefully selected and thoroughly representative, rather indiscriminate in quality and comprehensive in scope; and that the catalogue will be something more than a costly, cumbrous, and almost useless compilation. Let it be steadily kept in view that an obviously very bad, and therefore probably not trustworthy, portrait of a great man will be of little interest or value; and that, on the other hand, none but more than ordinarily fine portraits by the greatest masters can judiciously be considered entitled to admission if the person represented is of little consequence or some great unknown.

That most valuable and admirably conducted institution, the Art-Library, attached to the museum, is growing rapidly both as regards its contents and in public estimation, though still hardly so widely known and appreciated as it deserves to be. The accessions to the books, pamphlets, and periodicals relating more or less directly to the fine and industrial arts have been numerous, and the list of readers and visitors was upwards of 10,000, exceeding by 2000 the number of the preceding year, a fact which is regarded as highly satisfactory by the special character in the country. The art-library of the Royal Academy's Academy, though possessing a valuable collection, is only to the exclusive policy of the Academy in this as in other matters it in which the public can obtain any access to it, except by the Academicians, members, and associates. The art-portion of the otherwise most excellent London Library, St. James's-square, is perhaps its poorest section. Even the British Museum is inferior in art-literature to the South Kensington library, by reason of its not receiving the numerous important foreign works, especially German and French, which the authorities of the Art-Department make it a special object to acquire. The number and excellence of the foreign, as compared with British, art-publications, afford a strong proof of our continued backwardness in general art-education. The growth of the art-library at South Kensington library is so rapid that increased accommodation for the books and readers will soon be required. The want is already felt. The liberal regulation which allows a single admission (at the trifling charge of 6d.) to the whole of the museum, including the library, on any day, Sundays excepted, is surely worthy of imitation by other public non-lending libraries.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Queen has approved of Don Juan Richardson Francis as Vice-Consul at Swansea for the Emperor of Mexico.

Mr. George Hudson, once so well known as the "Railway King," is now in the Queen's Bench Prison. The growth of the amount for debt since the general election.

Lord Carlisle has presented to Viscount Monck on his return, temporarily, from Canada, on Tuesday, as his seat near Ruuskerry, and in the immediate vicinity of the residence of the late Lord.

Mr. Montagu Chambers, who was defeated at the recent election for Hull, has been appointed Recorder of Hull on Tuesday by the Liberal electors of that place.

The Town Council of Edinburgh have unanimously resolved to co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce in memorialising her Majesty's Government to appoint a commission on the subject of telegraphic communication with the north of Scotland.

Yesterday week many of the citizens of Edinburgh presented the Lord Provost with a handsome testimonial, in the form of a marble bust, in commemoration of "the distinguished manner in which his Lordship has discharged the duties of chief magistrate of the city for three years."

Magee College, at Londonderry, an institution which has been established for the education of young gentlemen for connexion with the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, was formally opened on Tuesday week.

On Tuesday, the commencing of sittings in the Court of Session, and Dr. Russell, the Historian of the General Assembly, delivered an address.

The Lord Provost of Edinburgh, Mr. Lindsay, has issued a circular to the public last Saturday, on which day the number of persons admitted was 1,500. The Lord Provost has appointed a committee for the building presented a very cheerful and animated appearance. On Thursday the closing ceremonial took place.

The Weymouth and Portland Railway, a line belonging to the London and South-Western Railway, was opened on Monday for public traffic. This railway is constructed on the broad gauge, is 4 miles 70 chains four miles in length, and is provided with broad and narrow gauge rails.

On Tuesday, at the meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, Captain Hosking, late of the Macedo, from Liverpool, was presented with a handsome testimonial, in the shape of a chronometer by Dent, in recognition of Privy Council for Trade on account of his gallant conduct in rescuing the crew of the ship Ann Hay, of Liverpool, on the 27th of July. Mr. Hosking, when that vessel was wrecked off Cape Hatteras, on March 26, 1864.

The Rev. Dr. Livingstone has addressed a letter to the Earl of Clarendon, in which he states that he has received a letter from Dr. Kirk, of Zanzibar, to another effect, that Livingstone was alive and well on the 1st of May last, at Nyangwe, on the Lualaba River, which flows into the Tanganyika Lake.

The Duke of Northumberland has presented to the Northumberland Militia the trade was held last Saturday, when seventeen men, deputed from the different trades of the city, met in the Guildhall, and appointed a committee for the conference, which lasted three hours. Masters and men, at the close of the conference, which lasted three hours. Masters and men, at the close of the conference, which lasted three hours. Masters and men, at the close of on each side. The space between the buttresses is incised to form private offices for business, to the number of twenty, and both the interior and exterior walls of these offices are substantially built, so as to carry the weight required. At the end nearest the archway, there is, as before stated, a gallery, approached by a back entrance, and a suitable staircase, and it is intended to place in this an organ adequate to the dimensions of the building. Ample provision has been made for ventilation, lightning, and warming. Under a portion of the building is a store-room. Between the Corn Exchange and the general market is a kitchen, scullery, and butler's pantry. There is an office let with the wine cellars under the market, and a tap for the sale of beer or liquors. The general market, in the rear of the building, extends along the side of the new road, 46 ft. wide, already mentioned. This building is 112 ft. by 61 ft., and is covered in with slate and glass. The roof, consisting of three spans, is supported by iron columns 14 ft. high, with ornamental brackets, the clear height being 22 ft. Three pairs of ornamental iron gates afford an entrance from the road. Along the side nearest the road are ranged four blocks of stalls for vegetables, forty in number, and behind these an equal number of butchers' stalls. There are two gangways extending the length of the building, and four transversely. Under the general market spacious vaults have been constructed, which are all let.

OPENING OF THE NEW CORN EXCHANGE AT AYLESBURY.

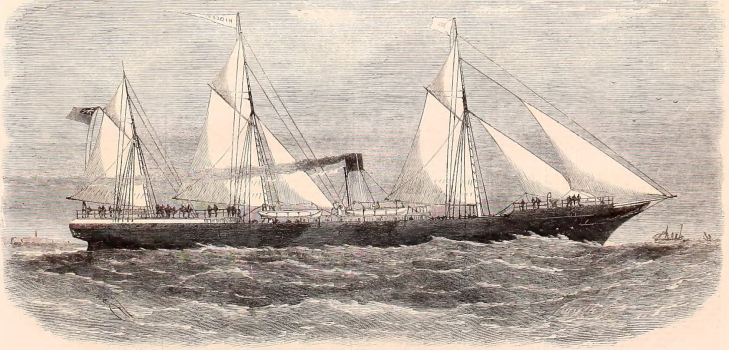
THE NEW PROMENADE PIER AT ABERYSTWITH.

The new pier at Aberystwith, built by a limited liability company, was opened with a simple ceremony, performed by Mrs. Dawson, on the 16th ult. This pier has been constructed from the designs of Mr. Birch C.E., the engineer of the Brighton, Margate, Blackpool and other piers; the contractor being Mr. Dawson, of London. It is 800 ft. in length, by 20 ft. wide, except at the entrance and at the head, which are 120 ft. in width, so as to afford space for fancy bazaars and a refreshment saloon. Along the entire length of promenade seats are contracted, capable of accommodating 2000 people, whilst handsome and durable lamps, to the number of sixteen, are erected at short intervals, giving a cheerful and graceful effect to the whole. The pier is supported on cast-iron pillars, as our Illustration shows, braced diagonally, longitudinally, and transversely with wrought-iron rods. The columns at the circular head are strongly braced with wrought iron in every direction. There will be three landing-stages at the head for pleasure-boats and steamers, so as to suit all states of the tide. The entrance to the pier, which is in a line with the principal street of the town (Pier-street), is protected by gates. The pier is one of the greatest improvements that the town has yet known.

THE NEW PIER AT ABERYSTWITH.



THE ALGUADA REEF LIGHTHOUSE, CAPE NEGRAIS, ON THE COAST OF PEGU.—SEE PAGE 390.

THE SCREW-STEAMER HIBERNIA.

THE screw-steamer Hibernia, of which we give an Illustration, is the last vessel that the Dundee, Perth, and London Shipping Company have added to their fleet. Her dimensions are as follow:—Length over all, 235 ft.; keel and forerake, 216 ft.; breadth, moulded, 28 ft.; depth, 17 ft. 6 in.; horse-power, 180. Full poop and forecastle, the former handsomely fitted up for forty first-class passengers. This vessel has made the most rapid voyages between Dundee and London that ever have been made; running from Dundee to Gravesend in thirty-one hours and from Gravesend to Dundee in thirty-one hours and a half. This vessel, like all her sister ships—the Anglia, Scotia, and London—was built, and furnished with her engines, by Messrs. Gourlay Brothers and Co., of Dundee. One of these vessels is occasionally employed to bring the earliest fruit of the season from Patras to London, and, when so employed, has generally succeeded in making the most rapid voyage of the season. It is now about twelve years since the Dundee Shipping Company introduced screw-steamers to carry on their trade, and the above-named vessels have taken the place of the paddle-steamers, the London, the Dundee, and the Perth, so long and so favourably known on the east coast. The last survivor of these vessels—viz., the Dundee, is upwards of thirty years old, and is still plying at Marseilles. These paddle-vessels were supplied by Messrs. Napier, of Glasgow, and gave great satisfaction to all concerned. The company's screw-vessels appear to be worthy successors, for they have run over stormy coasts in all weathers for the last twelve years, and never had a single accident to their machinery.

There are vessels plying to many places built from the same lines as the Hibernia, and they have all obtained a reputation for great speed.

THE DUNDEE SCREW-STEAMSHIP HIBERNIA.

THE FENIAN PROSECUTIONS.

Seven more Fenians were brought before the magistrate at Dublin yesterday week, and were committed for trial. The prisoners were mostly from Clonmel and the neighbourhood, and a new informer appeared on the scene—a man named Power, who had been among the number of the arrested, and afterwards offered to give evidence.

Some prisoners brought up for examination at Cork and Queenstown were also committed for trial.

On Saturday last six additional prisoners were brought before the magistracy, at Dublin, charged with being implicated in the late Fenian conspiracy—viz., Maurice J. Magrath, described as a clerk, residing at 3, Lower Gardiner-street; Mortimer Moynahan, described as a Irish People office; Joseph Deasy, tailor; James O'Connor, James Byrne, and Daniel F. Gleeson, labourers. Gleeson was identified as having received £50 cash for a bill of exchange at the European Bank in Cork-street on the 15th in his favour on Messrs. Rothschild, of London, by their New York agent. In his lodgings were found a shell-bit, two revolvers, a bowie knife, and a photograph of Colonel Kelly, which he admitted was his own property. Byrne was found in communication as Captain in the American army and other documents. Deasy, who was also identified in the house occupied by James and Daniel O'Connor, and Daniel F. Gleeson, there were discovered concealed in a chimney two bayonets, and in another part of the dwelling was found a drill-book. Mr. Strange committed Magrath, Moynahan, and Deasy for trial, and, as to the other three prisoners, on whose part an application to admit them to bail was made, he said there was a prima facie case against them, though not a strong one. He would remand them for the present, and any application to admit the Attorney-General to have them allowed to stand out on bail.

On Saturday, the prisoners charged with Fenianism at Queenstown, Mr. O'Driscoll, the Town Councillor, whose "call taking" it was said, alone got him into trouble; Mr. J. Mooney, of Limerick; John Murray, and Thomas Rhoades, were brought up before the magistracy and remanded. The three latter were allowed at liberty on entering into their own recognizances in £100 each, and on giving bail, himself in £100 and two sureties in £50 each, to appear when called upon.

On Monday, at the Cork police-court, which on the previous day was charged with illegal marching, and otherwise inciting the crowd to attempt a rescue, they were remanded.

Further arrests have been made in Clare, Limerick, and other counties.

On Friday evening the gun-boat Nightingale stopped the United Kingdom, a large vessel trading between Glasgow and New York, in Lough Foyle, in order to search the passengers and their luggage. Fenian papers were found on one person only, a lady, who was travelling in company by the police to Glasgow.

The Attorney-General for Ireland, in a prominent place on one of the Dublin bridges, lately addressed a Fenian, and attracted some attention. It ran:—"As the chiefess—that goddess of the amiable greatness, Hibernia—with crowned heads who wish to get rid in a quiet way of the surplus, or money, or inconvenient people of their subjects—is now close upon us, to behove Irish Nationalists to be extremely watchful. The British Government, no doubt, chuckles at the idea of its effect in this country, presuming that it would be conducted exclusively to the lower orders, or, in other words, to those having more elegance, manners, and refinement. She would set up a Government on the model of the grand Government of Ireland, and, when all was ready, be burned up in the fold and the wool, and the sheep and the pourhouse, and made away with on the shortest notice, unless the Government—assisted plague in question—by burning plenty of gunpowder and a few towns or cities to clear the atmosphere, and hanging a few dozen Nationalist rascals, and those respectable scoundrels who stick in the mortality of the house, industrious, and loyalists, at present citizens of the Irish people.

A standard is current in Dublin, and generally believed, that two votes of £1000 in gold have arrived from the United States to keep bodies of the prisoners in the hands of the Queen's counsel—Messrs. Brett, Bowe, and Sidney, who are among the leaders of the Irish bar. Neither, however, have actually been retained by the prisoners against whom the major charge is preferred.

Two men were brought before the Dublin police-court on Monday for using seditious language in the streets. One swore at the police, declaring "he had come from Fenian, had seven revolvers, and would blow their brains out;" another witnessed a crowd, said "he did not like to have a fine rebellion, and we are the boys will make them run;" another witness was under the impression that he had been remanded.

The last of the Dublin Fenian cases were disposed of on Wednesday. George Hopper was sent to prison for three months for connecting him with the Irish People, and also with the receipt of money from America. Hopper, a member of the Fenian, and alleged that his connection with the Irish People arose out of friendship for those confined, and to keep from their trade dealings with him. Writes, a fire-brigade man, accused of drilling, and Thomas Rhoades, of Callagan, said to have enlisted many members, were also sent for trial.

A meeting of the National Association took place on Wednesday evening, Mr. Gray in the chair, when a letter spoke highly concerning the intentions of the Government in respect of education, and of the Protestant Church. The Bishops took immediate the Fenian conspiracy.

A NOBLE LIFE-BOAT.—The following is an account of the most important services rendered in a period of wind by the Ramsgate life-boat, in conjunction with the lesser steam-tugs, in saving life and property from the Goodwin and the neighbouring sandbanks, during the past eleven months:—The brig Wilhelmina and her crew saved; the barque Queen of the Tripe and her crew saved; Prussian brig from her steamer; the barque Mercator and her crew saved; six lives saved from the Swedish barque Ceres; eight lives saved from the Swedish barque Ceres; eight lives saved from the Swedish barque George Forster; sixteen lives saved from the barque Liberty; the brig Bishop Auckland and her three crews saved; eighteen lives rescued from a Portuguese brig; the schooner Wave and her crew saved; the schooner Sultana, ditto; barque Martha, ditto; brig Quickstep, ditto; four lives rescued from a boat; the brig Sea Boy; seventeen lives saved from the Spanish brig Rumbitaire; the schooner Omnibus and her crew saved; the schooner Jane, ditto; nine lives rescued from the Swedish barque Ceres; seven lives saved from the barque Alert; the brig Brazilian and her crew saved; the barque Cereal, ditto; the brig Shooting Star and her rescued from the ketch Mary; the brig Maria and her crew saved; 120 lives saved from the ship Faulcon; nineteen lives rescued from the brig Amazon; seven lives saved from the brig Royal Theirle; five lives rescued from the brig Cyrus; the barque Clayton and her crew saved; and eleven lives saved from the brig La Tres Hermanos. All this, that, in addition to the many lives rescued from actual destruction, this valuable life-boat has, in consequence of her presence, been the means of the Royal National Institution, and was invented and built by Mr. James Beeching, of Great Yarmouth. She was bought of him by the Harbour Commissioners of Ramsgate, and transferred by them along with the harbour to the control of the Trinity Board. The Trinity Board have now further service fund in the to be replaced by a magnificent life-boat, the gift of the people of Ramsgate, the National Life-boat Institution having undertaken, by the Messrs. Forrests, and is expected to be on her station about Christmas. Much of the success under Providence, of the Ramsgate life-boat is undoubtedly due to her gallant and devoted crew, who have never faltered for a moment, during the fiercest midnight storms, in going about in the boat—when the huge waves were rolling like mountains over the sands, and when they could not see a yard before them—to the assistance of the vessels in the whirlpool. It is a remarkable fact that the coxswain has never been from the life-boat. Pilot John Captain Martin, acting under the Harbour Commissioners, and Captain Walker, H.C.G., of the Board of Trade, and Captain Shore, the present harbour-master at Ramsgate, have always been indefatigable in their efforts in making the Ramsgate life-boat establishment complete.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

ALTHOUGH the quantity of stock afloat is still very moderate, and prices are well sustained, the business has been less active than in the previous week, and additional fluctuations have not been realised, and prices have not been generally improved upon. The cessation of the settlement has tended to the inactivity which has so long prevailed in this department of the Stock Exchange. The Unfunded Debt has undergone no change.

The supply of money at the Bank of England Discount Market is large.

The imports of the previous weeks have been very moderate, but the exports have been on a very extensive scale. The returns for this week are not yet published.

The Bullion Market is quiet, but steady. The demand for gold is moderate, and prices are well supported. Gold is still on the move from the Continent to the East. Gold to the value of £1,000,000 has been sent to Egypt, and £1,000,000 to Constantinople, and £1,000,000 to Alexandria.

On Monday Consols gave way 1 per cent, with a heavy demand. Bank Stock, 215 to 217; Reduced, 90½ to ¾; New 3 per Cents, 90½ to ¾; Consols for Account, 90½ to ¾; New 3 per Cents, 90½ to ¾; India Stock, 216 to 218; India Five per Cents, 104 to 106; India Bonds, 1865-66, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, 1866-67, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, 1867-68, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, 1868-69, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, Annuities, to 1874, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, Annuities, to 1875, 1 to 3 pm; Exchequer Bills, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, Long Bills, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, Small, 1 to 3 pm; Bank Stock, 215 to 217; Reduced, 90½ to ¾; New 3 per Cents, 90½ to ¾; Consols for Money, closed at 90½; Ditto, for Account, 90½ to ¾; New 3 per Cents, 90½ to ¾; India Stock, 216 to 218; India Five per Cents, 104 to 106; India Bonds, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, 1866-67, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, 1867-68, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, 1868-69, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, Annuities, to 1874, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, Annuities, to 1875, 1 to 3 pm; Exchequer Bills, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, Long Bills, 1 to 3 pm; Ditto, Small, 1 to 3 pm.

On Tuesday Consols were dull, and prices in a very moderate extent. Agra and Masterman's Bank, 31 to 33; Australasia, 87 to 89; Bank of Egypt, 12 to 14; Bank of London, 30 to 32; Bank of New South Wales, 18 to 20; Bank of South Australia, 20 to 22; Chartered, Hong-Kong, 10 to 12; Colonial, 84 to 86; Commercial of India, 30 to 32; Commercial of London, 12 to 14; Imperial Ottoman, 12 to 14; Mercantile of Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 23; Metropolitan, 122; Metropolitan of Canada, 10 to 12; National of India, 10 to 12; National Provincial, 40 to 42; New South Wales, 18 to 20; North Borneo, 2½; North Western, 20; South Australian, 20 to 22; Union of Australia, 31 to 33; Union, South-Eastern, 70 to 72; Union of London, 30 to 32.

On Wednesday Consols were dull, and prices in a very moderate extent. Agra and Masterman's Bank, 31 to 33; Australasia, 87 to 89; Bank of Egypt, 12 to 14; Bank of London, 30 to 32; Bank of New South Wales, 18 to 20; Bank of South Australia, 20 to 22; Chartered, Hong-Kong, 10 to 12; Colonial, 84 to 86; Commercial of India, 30 to 32; Commercial of London, 12 to 14; Imperial Ottoman, 12 to 14; Mercantile of Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 23; Metropolitan, 122; Metropolitan of Canada, 10 to 12; National of India, 10 to 12; National Provincial, 40 to 42; New South Wales, 18 to 20; North Borneo, 2½; North Western, 20; South Australian, 20 to 22; Union of Australia, 31 to 33; Union, South-Eastern, 70 to 72; Union of London, 30 to 32.

On Thursday Consols were dull, and prices in a very moderate extent. Agra and Masterman's Bank, 31 to 33; Australasia, 87 to 89; Bank of Egypt, 12 to 14; Bank of London, 30 to 32; Bank of New South Wales, 18 to 20; Bank of South Australia, 20 to 22; Chartered, Hong-Kong, 10 to 12; Colonial, 84 to 86; Commercial of India, 30 to 32; Commercial of London, 12 to 14; Imperial Ottoman, 12 to 14; Mercantile of Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 23; Metropolitan, 122; Metropolitan of Canada, 10 to 12; National of India, 10 to 12; National Provincial, 40 to 42; New South Wales, 18 to 20; North Borneo, 2½; North Western, 20; South Australian, 20 to 22; Union of Australia, 31 to 33; Union, South-Eastern, 70 to 72; Union of London, 30 to 32.

On Friday Consols were dull, and prices in a very moderate extent. Agra and Masterman's Bank, 31 to 33; Australasia, 87 to 89; Bank of Egypt, 12 to 14; Bank of London, 30 to 32; Bank of New South Wales, 18 to 20; Bank of South Australia, 20 to 22; Chartered, Hong-Kong, 10 to 12; Colonial, 84 to 86; Commercial of India, 30 to 32; Commercial of London, 12 to 14; Imperial Ottoman, 12 to 14; Mercantile of Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 23; Metropolitan, 122; Metropolitan of Canada, 10 to 12; National of India, 10 to 12; National Provincial, 40 to 42; New South Wales, 18 to 20; North Borneo, 2½; North Western, 20; South Australian, 20 to 22; Union of Australia, 31 to 33; Union, South-Eastern, 70 to 72; Union of London, 30 to 32.

On Saturday Consols were dull, and prices in a very moderate extent. Agra and Masterman's Bank, 31 to 33; Australasia, 87 to 89; Bank of Egypt, 12 to 14; Bank of London, 30 to 32; Bank of New South Wales, 18 to 20; Bank of South Australia, 20 to 22; Chartered, Hong-Kong, 10 to 12; Colonial, 84 to 86; Commercial of India, 30 to 32; Commercial of London, 12 to 14; Imperial Ottoman, 12 to 14; Mercantile of Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 23; Metropolitan, 122; Metropolitan of Canada, 10 to 12; National of India, 10 to 12; National Provincial, 40 to 42; New South Wales, 18 to 20; North Borneo, 2½; North Western, 20; South Australian, 20 to 22; Union of Australia, 31 to 33; Union, South-Eastern, 70 to 72; Union of London, 30 to 32.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, Oct. 16.—Only a moderate supply of English wheat was on sale here to-day, receipts and by rail-carriage; but the demand ruled dull, and prices were 1s per qr lower. Foreign wheat was in fair request, but only equal to last week. There was a fair demand for fine foreign barley, at last week's prices. Malt was in good request, and prices were fully supported. Oats were in full supply, and buyers at extreme quotations. Rattling barley changed hands freely, at 1s per qr advance. Beans and peas were in moderate request, at 1s per qr advance. Flour was in fair demand, at last week's prices. Wheat, per qr: English Green Gold last week—Wheat, 39s 11d; barley, 40s 10d; oats, 26s 8d.

Ireland.—Our next table the demand rules steady, and late rates are well supported.

Scotland.—Our market is quiet, but steady, at late rates. Oats were scarce, and were mostly 1s per qr dearer.

Wales.—Our market is quiet, but steady, at late rates. Oats were scarce, and were mostly 1s per qr dearer.

Cattle.—The transactions are on a moderate scale, at about previous rates. Beasts, 13,370 coast wise, 4,310 from last year. Sheep.—Very little change has taken place to-day, and the demand is steady, at late rates. Sheep, 29,200 coast wise, 2,200 from last year. Calves, 200 coast wise, 200 from last year.

Provisions.—The butter market is steady, as last week's quotations. Pork is in fair request, at late rates. Bacon is in moderate demand, at barely late rates. Hams are in fair request, at late rates. Lard is in good request, at late rates.

Potatoes.—The supply is moderate, and the demand is steady, at late rates. Potatoes, per ton: Yorkshire Regents, 110s to 120s; Scotch Regents, 110s to 120s; Scotch Champions, 110s to 120s; Scotch Cups, 110s to 120s; Scotch Rocks, 110s to 120s; Scotch Whites, 110s to 120s; Scotch Reds, 110s to 120s; Lincolnshire Regents, 110s to 120s; Lincolnshire Champions, 110s to 120s; Lincolnshire Cups, 110s to 120s; Lincolnshire Rocks, 110s to 120s; Lincolnshire Whites, 110s to 120s; Lincolnshire Reds, 110s to 120s; Kent Regents, 110s to 120s; Kent Champions, 110s to 120s; Kent Cups, 110s to 120s; Kent Rocks, 110s to 120s; Kent Whites, 110s to 120s; Kent Reds, 110s to 120s; Essex Regents, 110s to 120s; Essex Champions, 110s to 120s; Essex Cups, 110s to 120s; Essex Rocks, 110s to 120s; Essex Whites, 110s to 120s; Essex Reds, 110s to 120s; Irish Regents, 110s to 120s; Irish Champions, 110s to 120s; Irish Cups, 110s to 120s; Irish Rocks, 110s to 120s; Irish Whites, 110s to 120s; Irish Reds, 110s to 120s; Scotch Regents, 110s to 120s; Scotch Champions, 110s to 120s; Scotch Cups, 110s to 120s; Scotch Rocks, 110s to 120s; Scotch Whites, 110s to 120s; Scotch

NEW MUSIC.

ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS QUADRILLES, by J. FRIEDLAN. A brilliant set of Quadrilles, founded on Airs from Offenbach's popular Opera, Illustrated. From 24. London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

100 FAVOURITE ENGLISH MELODIES. Edited, Transposed for the Pianoforte by WILLIAM HUTCHINS CALLCOTT. Price 6s., full music size; post-free 48 stamps. London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

100 GERMAN AIRS, selected for pianoforte practice by WILLIAM HUTCHINS CALLCOTT. Price 6s., full music size; post-free 48 stamps. London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

100 WELSH AIRS, Transcribed for the Pianoforte by WILLIAM HUTCHINS CALLCOTT. Full music size. Post-free for 48 stamps. London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

100 ENGLISH MELODIES (Second Series). Edited, Transposed for the Pianoforte by WILLIAM HUTCHINS CALLCOTT. Price 6s., full music size; post-free 48 stamps. London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STANDARD ELEMENTARY MUSICAL WORKS by J. T. STONE.—Elementary Instructions for the Pianoforte, 2s. 6d. net. Rudiments of Harmony, 2s. 6d. net. Rudiments of Singing, 2s. 6d. net. Just published, Rudiments of Musical Science, 2s. 6d. This pianoforte tutor has been carefully revised and corrected by the author, and the new edition is published at half the price. It would be well to bring one of the old editions to the music-seller in exchange for the new one. Sold by all respectable music-sellers and all elementary works for the pianoforte.

BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST may be had, in Six Volumes, bound in cloth, price 18s. each, a Collection of Voluntaries, Interludes, and Concert Pieces. London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

Tenth Edition.

THERE IS NO LOVE LIKE A MOTHER'S. Ballad. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sung with immense popularity. Price 2s. 6d. London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

WINGS.—Dolores' charming Song, arranged for the Pianoforte by WM. SMITH. Price 3s.; post-free 19 stamps. London: C. JEFFERYS, 9, Soho-square.

SIX POPULAR SONGS, by DOLORES.

The Shadow	3s. 6d.
Wings	3s. 6d.
Down where the willow	3s. 6d.
Death bounds your feet	3s. 6d.
Ah, me!	3s. 6d.
Sweet is a change of time!	3s. 6d.

London: C. JEFFERYS, 9, Soho-square.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S GREAT COMIC SONG, "Cock-a-doodle-doo, the Song of the Jolly Cocks," is "it" in every company, sung by J. H. Stead, the Great Vocalist. Sent Illustrated in Colours. Either free by post for 18 stamps. London: C. JEFFERYS, 9, Soho-square.

LADIES NEW COMIC SONGS, Illustrated in Colours.—"The Ticket on the Leather," sung by Miss Kenrigg at the Alhambra Music Hall nightly. 3s.; "The Vicar's Daughter," sung by Miss Wilton at the Canterbury, 3s.; "Ah! my dear," sung by Miss Lydia Thompson, 3s.; "Is, sung by Mrs. Brian. Either free by post for twenty-four stamps. London: C. JEFFERYS, 9, Soho-square.

PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS. Dissolution of Partnership.—In consequence of the retirement from business of Mr. Alexander Debain, the Manufacture of Harmoniums, the extensive stock of PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS will be sold at a considerable reduction. The opportunity is a good one for obtaining instruments of the first instrument as regularity is a good one for obtaining instruments of the first instrument as regularity is a good one for obtaining instruments of the first instrument as regular

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S "AFRICAINE"—as per-formed at Her Majesty's Royal English Opera, Covent-garden—is now published by CHAPPELL and CO.

The following Songs, Duets, and Pianoforte Arrangements are now ready:—

The Opera complete (with English, Italian, or French words) ... 42 0
Selection of Airs for Pianoforte 4 0
Separate, each (four sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington) ... 3 0
Slumber Song—Hush! or the big sweep by Mdme Lemmens Sherrington 3 0
Bright night from heaven. (Duet, sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington and Mr. Charles Adams) 3 0
Go framing (the latest Spanish Air of Admantor) sung by Mr. Alberto Lauranza 3 0
Ah! mon fils (the ocean ridge) sung by Mr. Charles Adams) 3 0
What fell (the of my sublimest Dust, sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington and Mr. Charles Adams) 3 0
Pray for me (the Hermit's Prayer, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington) 3 0
With mail (the, for thee broken) 3 0
So free! by faith, by love thine heart (sung) by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington 3 0
Tis by all (Brindisi—Grand Song, adapted from the celebrated Brindisi) 3 0
Pour (the) 3 0
The purple valley of mara (sung by Miss Louisa Pyne) 3 0
The Overture ... ... Solo, 3s. Duet 4
Grand Triumphal March 4 0
Entr'acte Gavotte 3 0
Cramer, H. Becquerel de Meudon 3 0
Godfrey, Charles 3 0
Godfrey, D. 3 0
Gollcott, W. H. Favourite Airs. In 3 Books, each 3s. 6d. each
Of 3 6
Callcott, W. H. Hereward's Vision. For Piano, Harmonium, ... 3 0
Parker, George, Fairytale 3 0
Parker, Beauties of the "Africaine." Nos. 1 and 2, ... each 4 0
Rimbault, Dr. Pianoforte Album 4 0
Somers, H. A. Sweet Dreams 3 0
Ouvy, Miles. Grand Fantasia 3 0
Benedict, Sidney. March Indienne 3 0
Benedict, Sidney. Brindisi: Symphonique (the celebrated Drinking Song) 3 0
Rimbault, Dr. Album of Airs Arranged as Duets 4 0
No. 1. Scenes of the Opera. No. 3. The Slumber Song.
No. 2. Favourite Airs. No. 4. Airs from Duet.
3. Trios. 5. Additional Duet.
4. The Grand Duet. 6. Admantor et moi! each.
Engel, Carl. Three Characteristic Pieces 4 0
Benedict, Sidney. Reminiscences and Pianoforte 4 0
Mori, N. Fantasia for Violin and Pianoforte 4 0

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW WALTZ BY D'ALBERT.

HOME, SWEET HOME. New Waltz, by CHARLES D'ALBERT, on the favourite air of "Home, Sweet Home." Played at Mellon's Concerts. Price 4s. Illustrated, Brass Band, 2s. Pianoforte Duet, 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grenadier Guards. Nightly encored at Mellon's Concerts. Mr. Godfrey's new waltz, "Mabel," promises to rival his popular "Gracie" Waltz," so universally admired."—Times. Aug. 8. "Mr. Godfrey's Waltz, 'Mabel,' is a very pretty composition."—Daily Telegraph. Aug. 8. "Mr. Godfrey's popularity."—Daily Telegraph. Aug. 8. Solo or Duet; Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 2s.; Brass Band, 2s. 6d.; Military Band, 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL. A Song, written by Henry SMART, and sung by the author at Mellon's Concerts. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte by KUHE.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. James's Hall by Mr. Godfrey and Band. Solo, arranged for the Pianoforte by F. VITALIS. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM.—A new Edition of this highly popular work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," "Lucrezia Borgia," "Lucia," "Rigoletto," "Il Trovatore," "Martha," and the Bohemian Girl" also, revised and fingered by Brinley Richards. Price 4s., post-free. Volume II. also revised and best Vocal extract, Price 4s., post-free.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVE. Beaucitti's Favorite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BARNEY O'HEA. Lover's favourite Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO:

A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, arranged for the Pianoforte, and fingered for the use of amateurs, by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Each voluntary contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one composed expressly for the work by Brinley Richards. Each number, price 1s. net, or in two volumes, each containing six numbers, half bound in cloth, price 12s. each. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Violin and Flute. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the "Grenadier Guard" Waltz," by D. Godfrey, Arranged for Violin, and Flute, each 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by R. S. KNIGHTLEY. Price 1s. each.
No. 1. The Grenadier Guards' Waltz. No. 3. The Guards' Galop.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz. No. 4. The Marguerite Waltz.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

I HAVE A LITTLE FAIRY BOAT. New Song. Written by Mr. F. Enoch; composed by G. A. MACFARREN. Price 2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NOTICE—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for penny stamps or Post Office order. Catalogues gratis.

HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street, W.

CRYSTOPHONE FOR MOLLAND'S CONCERTINAS.

COOTE'S ECHOES OF LONDON LANCERS, &c., as the Popular Airs of the day, crushed in forte.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BOB-O'-LINK POLKA. Arranged by the COOTE. Price 4s. With the Bird-call. Concerts with great success.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE.

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE, 4s., is the favourite of the season.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE, 4s. Crushed with the best set of Values by this popular composer.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

WALTER J. TEN SEN or THE

THREE O'CLOCK GALOP. By HAGGERSTON. Price 3s. With a Reveux Chorus.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

ANOTHER MUSICAL ATTRACTION.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP, price 3s., with Illustration of the Game.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

GREAT HIT.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP, 3s.
Rollicked all over.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S "AFRICAINE," in English, as performed at the Royal English Opera, Covent-garden, is now published by CHAPPELL and CO.

The following Songs, Duets, and Pianoforte Arrangements are now ready:—

The Opera complete (with English, Italian, or French words) ... 42 0
Selection of Airs for Pianoforte 4 0
Separate, each (four sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington) ... 3 0
Slumber Song—Hush! or the big sweep by Mdme Louisa Pyne) 3 0
Bright night from heaven. (Duet, sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington and Mr. Charles Adams) 3 0
Go framing (the latest Spanish Air of Admantor) sung by Mr. Alberto Lauranza 3 0
Ah! mon fils (the ocean ridge) sung by Mr. Charles Adams) 3 0
What fell (the of my sublimest Dust, sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington and Mr. Charles Adams) 3 0
Pray for me (the Hermit's Prayer, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington) 3 0
With mail (the, for thee broken) 3 0
So free! by faith, by love thine heart (sung) by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington 3 0
Tis by all (Brindisi—Grand Song, adapted from the celebrated Brindisi) 3 0
Pour (the) 3 0
The purple valley of mara (sung by Miss Louisa Pyne) 3 0
The Overture ... ... Solo, 3s. Duet 4
Grand Triumphal March 4 0
Entr'acte Gavotte 3 0
Cramer, H. Becquerel de Meudon 3 0
Godfrey, Charles 3 0
Godfrey, D. 3 0
Gollcott, W. H. Favourite Airs. In 3 Books, each 3s. 6d. each
Of 3 6
Callcott, W. H. Hereward's Vision. For Piano, Harmonium, ... 3 0
Parker, George, Fairytale 3 0
Parker, Beauties of the "Africaine." Nos. 1 and 2, ... each 4 0
Rimbault, Dr. Pianoforte Album 4 0
Somers, H. A. Sweet Dreams 3 0
Ouvy, Miles. Grand Fantasia 3 0
Benedict, Sidney. March Indienne 3 0
Benedict, Sidney. Brindisi: Symphonique (the celebrated Drinking Song) 3 0
Rimbault, Dr. Album of Airs Arranged as Duets 4 0
No. 1. Scenes of the Opera. No. 3. The Slumber Song.
No. 2. Favourite Airs. No. 4. Airs from Duet.
3. Trios. 5. Additional Duet.
4. The Grand Duet. 6. Admantor et moi! each.
Engel, Carl. Three Characteristic Pieces 4 0
Benedict, Sidney. Reminiscences and Pianoforte 4 0
Mori, N. Fantasia for Violin and Pianoforte 4 0

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW WALTZ BY D'ALBERT.

HOME, SWEET HOME. New Waltz, by CHARLES D'ALBERT, on the favourite air of "Home, Sweet Home." Played at Mellon's Concerts. Price 4s. Illustrated, Brass Band, 2s. Pianoforte Duet, 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grenadier Guards. Nightly encored at Mellon's Concerts. Mr. Godfrey's new waltz, "Mabel," promises to rival his popular "Gracie" Waltz," so universally admired."—Times. Aug. 8. "Mr. Godfrey's Waltz, 'Mabel,' is a very pretty composition."—Daily Telegraph. Aug. 8. "Mr. Godfrey's popularity."—Daily Telegraph. Aug. 8. Solo or Duet; Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 2s.; Brass Band, 2s. 6d.; Military Band, 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL. A Song, written by Henry SMART, and sung by the author at Mellon's Concerts. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte by KUHE.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. James's Hall by Mr. Godfrey and Band. Solo, arranged for the Pianoforte by F. VITALIS. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM.—A new Edition of this highly popular work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," "Lucrezia Borgia," "Lucia," "Rigoletto," "Il Trovatore," "Martha," and the Bohemian Girl" also, revised and fingered by Brinley Richards. Price 4s., post-free. Volume II. also revised and best Vocal extract, Price 4s., post-free.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVE. Beaucitti's Favorite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BARNEY O'HEA. Lover's favourite Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO:

A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, arranged for the Pianoforte, and fingered for the use of amateurs, by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Each voluntary contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one composed expressly for the work by Brinley Richards. Each number, price 1s. net, or in two volumes, each containing six numbers, half bound in cloth, price 12s. each. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Violin and Flute. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the "Grenadier Guard" Waltz," by D. Godfrey, Arranged for Violin, and Flute, each 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by R. S. KNIGHTLEY. Price 1s. each.
No. 1. The Grenadier Guards' Waltz. No. 3. The Guards' Galop.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz. No. 4. The Marguerite Waltz.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

I HAVE A LITTLE FAIRY BOAT. New Song. Written by Mr. F. Enoch; composed by G. A. MACFARREN. Price 2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NOTICE—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for penny stamps or Post Office order. Catalogues gratis.

HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street, W.

CRYSTOPHONE FOR MOLLAND'S CONCERTINAS.

COOTE'S ECHOES OF LONDON LANCERS, &c., as the Popular Airs of the day, crushed in forte.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BOB-O'-LINK POLKA. Arranged by the COOTE. Price 4s. With the Bird-call. Concerts with great success.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE.

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE, 4s., is the favourite of the season.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE, 4s. Crushed with the best set of Values by this popular composer.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

WALTER J. TEN SEN or THE

THREE O'CLOCK GALOP. By HAGGERSTON. Price 3s. With a Reveux Chorus.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

ANOTHER MUSICAL ATTRACTION.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP, price 3s., with Illustration of the Game.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

GREAT HIT.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP, 3s.
Rollicked all over.
HOWGOOD and CRAWE, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

HARVEY'S "ARBERGELDE." Brilliant Fantasia on Scotch Themes, performed daily by MADME. JAELL-TRAUTMANN, at her Morning Concerts, St. James's Hall, Piccadilly. Oxford-street, W., and all Musicsellers.

Now ready,

THE BIGESTER'S HUNT GALOP. By MADME. Splendidly illustrated, price 4s. Post-free 24 Stamps. DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-st., Corner of Newman-st.

ANTOINE COURTOIS' CORNETS-A-PISTONS, Trombones, Euphoniums, &c., are used by all the principal Bands and Performers. Prize Medal, 1862. 220, Regent-st., and 23, Denmark-st., Soho. Illustrated price-lists may be obtained.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE ROOMS, 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND HAND BROADWOOD GRANDS, SECOND-HAND BROADWOOD COTTAGES, SECOND-HAND ERARD OBLIQUES, SECOND-HAND ERARD COTTAGES.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE ROOMS.—Second-hand Broadwood Grand Pianoforte, in rosewood case; second-hand Collard Grand Pianoforte, in rosewood case; second-hand Grand Pianoforte, in rosewood or walnut cases; second-hand Broadwood Cottage Pianoforte, in rosewood cases; second-hand Collard Cottage Pianoforte, in rosewood cases.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A LEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 20 guineas; other models at 15 and 10 guineas. Illustrated Catalogue of Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with two octaves of pedals, and 8 stops. These instruments are known in price and reputation to all other makers. Illustrated Lists sent on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND HAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices. CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

A LEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION A MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, 2 octaves of pedals, price 60 guineas. This instrument is the most powerful and complete that may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, with trichord treble, full metal, and all the latest improvements. An immense stock of these and all other instruments at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. Do you wish to purchase a Pianoforte by either of the newest kinds by these celebrated makers, may be tried side by side and hired, with CHAPPELL'S arrangement at the new Rooms at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S CORINTHIAN PIANINO the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded; a very elegant Cabinet Pianoforte, with the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms. Testimonials from Professors and Purchasers. Price 50 guineas. Lists sent post-free. Pianofortes, with check action and all the latest improvements, for SALE or HIRE.

Price, in rosewood or walnut, 16 and 18 guineas. A great variety may be seen at

Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL GRAND PIANOFORTE.—To ensure perfection in the truly English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the Right Hon. the EARL OF ELGIN has most satisfactorily patronised it, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as in the Cottage Pianoforte, and the touch is equally elastic. The strings are arranged in the most perfect manner to produce the utmost tone. In elegant rosewood case, with full iron, similar in every respect to the Cottage Pianoforte, 60 guineas, price 70 guineas in walnut, or 80 guineas in rosewood.

Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANOFORTE, in rosewood, 7 octaves, trichord, French action. "We have had occasion to examine a new description of Pianoforte, manufactured by Messrs. Boosey and Co., which, for the purpose of its adaptation to the requirements of small rooms, is admirably suited. When heard it creates much surprise as would be caused by a child speaking with the voice of a man. The touch is very good, and the tone, although small, is full, rich, quite strong enough to fill the largest drawing-room; and the whole mechanism of the instrument is very firm and substantial. We please to say that these instruments are before been promoted to the public."—Vide Illustrated London News, May 13, 1865.

BOOSEY and CO., 24, Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO. Check-action, in a highly-finished elegant case, with every modern improvement, and suitable for any drawing-room. The touch is elastic, and the tone of that pure rich quality that especially characterises the productions of this firm.

BOOSEY and Sons, 24, Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be desired. It is of elegant rosewood case, has the compass full bound, as well as the great improved check action.

BOOSEY and Sons, 24, Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S COTTAGE HARMONIUM, price 7 guineas, in glass case, polished; or handsomely carved, 8 guineas. Illustrated Lists sent free on application to BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 10-GUINEA HARMONIUM (The School) has 4 rich, full tone, suitable for class-singing or a single voice. Illustrated Lists sent free.

BOOSEY and Co.'s Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS, at 10 guineas, 15 guineas, and 20 guineas, with 2 rows of vibrators, and 2 octaves of pedals, are the most powerful and perfect for their respective prices. Catalogues of all Harmoniums upon application. All of the very best English manufacture.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S PIANOFORTES are manufactured expressly for the public, at prices intended to meet the requirements of the times. Every system of purchase will be arranged on comparing these Pianofortes with those of other makers. Lists sent free on application.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL. Full Compass, with all the latest improvements, including the Tremolo, Sostenente, and Harp Stops. Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.

LACHENAL and CO., 20, New Bond-street.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and other OPTICAL GOODS.—The new and choice "Portative Pancratic" Binocular opera small windows (an entire novelty), and Night and Day Field Glasses, the "Pancratic Field of Curvature;" "The monochrome is very good."—Earl of Caithness. "Excellent."—Sir D. Brewster. "Very good."—Sir J. Herschel. "Very good."—Professor Wheatstone. "Very good."—Professor Airy. "Very good."—Professor Stokes. "Very good."—Professor Miller. "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £2 2s."—Captain Smyth. "Very good."—Professor Tyndall. "Very good."—Professor Faraday. "Very good."—Professor Owen. "Very good."—Professor Huxley. "Very good."—Professor Hooker. "Very good."—Professor Bell. "Very good."—Professor Allman. "Very good."—Professor Rolleston. "Very good."—Professor Acland. "Very good."—Professor Rankine. "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £2 2s."

ASCENT OF MR. COXWELL'S GREAT BALLOON.

ASCENT OF MR. COXWELL'S GREAT BALLOON FROM THE CRYSTAL PALACE GROUNDS.

MR. COXWELL'S great balloon, named the Research, having been restored or reconstructed since the perilous adventure of July 4, when it carried off Mr. Rouge, a passenger from Belfast, who had a narrow escape of being drowned in the open Atlantic or dashed upon the rocks of the Irish coast, made a successful ascent from the Crystal Palace on Monday week. It carried ten persons in the car, and ballast equal to the weight of twelve persons more; Captain T. Leslie, of the Guards; Captain Woodgate, Mr. Boswell, Mr. Dumas and friend, Mr. C. Spencer, and Mr. Dale being among the party. It had rained heavily during the afternoon; and at half-past four, when the balloon rose, Mr. Coxwell remarks, "the lower cloud, one widespread mass, hung heavily over the Crystal Palace, and the tops of the towers were partially obscured before we left the grounds. In less than one minute we were lost to sight. The balloon rose slowly until it entered a stratum of leaden-looking vapour, which was visibly darker than that which we had passed through. No sooner did the top of the Research enter this nimbus than water poured downwards in a circular sheet, and from its apparent distance from the car it was just the semi-diameter of the balloon. Previously the rain ran down the sides of the balloon and covered us by shooting down the neck; so that here, in one of the darkest clouds I had ever passed through, it was evident we had entered the very fountain of rainfall. Knowing that the weight of the balloon would be increased a hundredweight or two, I requested six gentlemen to be prepared with ballast-bags; but before taking a turn we struggled upwards 500 ft., according to two excellent aneroid barometers, and during that passage the temperature decreased 4 deg. We soon began to descend rapidly. The visitors in the palace grounds could perceive the balloon before we obtained a glimpse of the earth, and they feared we should come down to the ground; but after Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 had respectively delivered their sand, the tremendous weight of water encountered was equipoised to a nicety, and we were brought to a standstill. I found that we were now only 200 ft. from the earth, and that the balloon had performed a complete circle from the place of starting. The North Tower appeared to be the axis upon which we had turned. Again we rose, and, on entering the line of dark cloud, I requested the passengers to be motionless, as I observed a peculiar vibratory motion of the balloon and car, such as accompanies its passage from still air to an aerial wave of wind and storm. I inferred that we were either entering a fresh current or moving upwards with a spiral motion; and, when we again descended and found that we had made another sweep round the North Tower, it was clear that a miniature cyclone prevailed, and that we were wearing away in circles, and not in the customary straight course of movement. The first gyration took us in a north-westerly direction—at least, we found ourselves in that line when we sighted the earth, as we were going in the lower current towards the West-End. On making the second descent, we were over Forest-hill, moving to the north-east. We again charged the drenching cloud and broke through it at 1700 ft. high, where a greyish uniform fog prevailed, which shed minute drops of rain. On getting 3000 ft. elevation we decided that, as there was little enjoyment to be had, it was better to cast about for a landing-place. When we dipped again into the dense rain-cloud and received bucketsful of water, no one was sorry when the falling water, like falling sand, dissipated itself into those moderate-sized particles such as surrounded us before starting. I have frequently noticed that under opposite states of cloud-formation rain begins high up in fine drops, and a coalition appears to take place before it reaches the ground; but on Oct. 9 we were deluged at 1500 ft. high, and at 500 ft. over Sydenham hills it altered to small by degrees, and then beautifully less. We alighted very gently on the grounds of Mr. Peter H. Dewrigtus, at Lewisham." That gentleman, it appears, gave Mr. Coxwell and his companions a most hospitable and kindly welcome. Our illustration shows the ascent of the balloon from the Crystal Palace grounds in front of the centre transept.

It may be recollected that when, after the disaster of last July, the Island of Islay, it seemed to have been almost cut to pieces; the sea and the sand had found an entrance through its severed sides; and, as the tide ebbed, the remnants were collected, and it was soon known to whom the property belonged. On being returned to Mr. Coxwell, at Tottenham, the pieces, amounting to more than two hundred, completely covered a field of two acres near the aeronaut's residence; but, as it had been very beautifully decorated, and embellished, moreover, with stars of gold, Mr. Coxwell determined to attempt the work of reconstruction. After two months' laborious exertion, the balloon was re-made, and, during its recent exhibition in the concert-room of the Crystal Palace very few traces could be detected either of the work of destruction or of restoration. The Research is composed of fifty gores, each gore being 44 in. wide at the centre and 105 ft. long. It contains about 112,000 cubic feet of gas.

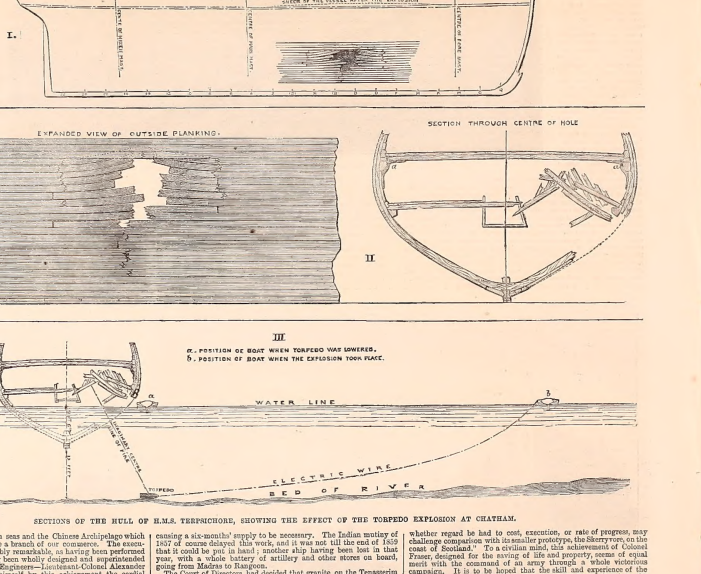
FUNERAL, ON SUNDAY LAST, OF SERGEANT DRANSFIELD, R.E., INSTRUCTOR TO THE 1ST TOWER HAMLETS ENGINEER VOLUNTEERS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

FUNERAL OF SERGEANT DRANSFIELD, INSTRUCTOR TO THE 1ST TOWER HAMLETS ENGINEERS.

THE melancholy accident, a few days ago, in Victoria Park, where Sergeant Dransfield, of the Royal Engineers, while performing his duties as instructor to the 1st Tower Hamlets Volunteer Engineers, was killed by the premature explosion of a mine, has been duly noticed. His funeral, last Sunday, in the Tower Hamlets Cemetery, Bow, was attended with military honours. The corps assembled on parade at the militia barracks, Globe-street, Mile-end, in full-dress uniform, with their band—the drums muffled. Every member of the corps wore a band of crape on the left arm, midway between the shoulder and the elbow; the grenade on the busby and the ornament in front of the crossbelt were also covered with crape. The officers wore a black sash, a band with a rose of crape round the busby, black gloves, and the grenade and sword-knot covered with crape. The arrangements were carried out under the direction of Lieutenant John A. Coffee, Commandant; and Captain and Acting Adjutant Thomas R. Conyn. The coffin was conveyed to the grave on a gun-carriage, drawn by four black horses. It bore the inscription, "William Lewis Dransfield. Died Oct. 6, 1865. Aged years." On being removed from the armoury and placed on the carriage the coffin was covered with a black pall edged with white; over this was spread the union jack. The regulars were represented at the funeral by detachments of the Royal Engineers quartered at Chatham and Woolwich, under the command of Colonel M'Cloud, and by the recruiting staff of the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th Dragoon Guards; the 10th, 14th, 15th, and 19th Hussars; the 12th Lancers, and the 4th Carabiniers. The militia was represented by the recruiting staff of the Middlesex militia. As might have been expected, the volunteer force was very strongly represented, almost every metropolitan corps sending its complement. The procession wended its way through Peel-grove, Bethnal-green, to the Mile End Gate, thence down the Mile End-road, and to the cemetery, a distance of nearly three miles. The route was lined by thousands of spectators. On arriving at the cemetery the procession was met by the Rev. G. M. M'Gill, M.A., of Christ Church, Watney-street, Chaplain to the corps, who led the way to the grave. The body was immediately lowered into it, and, the friends of the deceased having alighted from the mourning-coaches, a circle was formed, and the Rev. Mr. M'Gill read the burial service. A military salute was fired by a company of deceased's comrades, and a brief but impressive address from the clergyman ended the funeral proceedings.

H.M.S. TERPSICHORE, AS DAMAGED BY THE AMERICAN TORPEDOES.

Two illustrations of the very striking experiments with Mr. Beardsley's submarine torpedoes, or explosive shells, exhibited on Wednesday, the 4th inst., in the River Medway, before the Duke of Somerset and other Lords of the Admiralty, were given in our last Number. By favour of the naval authorities, we are now permitted to give a reduced copy of the official drawings, made for their information by Mr. P. Thornton, Master Shipwright of Chatham Dockyard, showing the exact amount of damage that was inflicted upon the hull of the old 18-gun frigate Terpsichore by the explosion of the two 75-pounders, of which only one was so placed that its effect could reach the vessel.



The Engraving No. 3 on this page shows the relative positions of the ship, the torpedo, and the boat from which it was fired by an electric wire: the figure 4 representing the place where the boat lay when the torpedo was lowered from its side; while the figure 5 shows the place to which the boat had been removed before the signal for firing the torpedo was given. The depth of water beneath the keel of the ship was a few inches more than 12 ft.

The Engraving No. 1 shows the general longitudinal lines of the ship, with the hole made by the explosion of the torpedo, as it appeared on the 11th inst., when the Terpsichore, having been floated and hauled into dock at Chatham, was carefully examined by the officers appointed for that purpose. An enlarged view of a portion of the outside planking around this hole is given in No. 2.

The Engraving No. 2 presents a cross section of the vessel, showing very minutely how her timbers were shivered. In the parts marked i the knees are seen as broken through the throat—viz., two on the starboard and four on the port side.

THE ALGUADA REEF LIGHTHOUSE, ON THE COAST OF PEGU.

THE building of the lighthouse just completed on the Alguada Reef, a few miles to the southward of Negrais, the south-west promontory of Pegu, near the Bassein entrance of the great Irrawaddy River, is one of the most important works ever projected for the benefit of that navigation in the Indian seas and the Chinese Archipelago which is now becoming so lucrative a branch of our commerce. The execution also of this work is doubly remarkable, as having been performed by coolie labour, and having been wholly designed and superintended by an officer of the Royal Engineers—Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander Fraser—who has won for himself by this achievement the cordial thanks and congratulations of the Governor-General of India in Council, and who certainly deserves a special token of commendation, likewise, from the military authorities for having performed, with extraordinary promptitude and ability, a kind of service never before intrusted to a member of the scientific corps of her Majesty's land forces. The illustration which we publish, from a photograph taken by Lieutenant J. M. M'Neile, R.E., gives an excellent view of the lighthouse, which stands, a few miles from shore, on a spot most dangerous and difficult of access, the rise and fall of the tide being about 9 ft. The Alguada Reef is two miles in length, with the Phaston Shoal and Diamond Island to the north of it, extending some nine miles altogether, and the tides setting directly across it. Except in the very calmest weather, the sea is always breaking over these rocks, and it is certain destruction for a vessel to be cast upon them. Being situated right in the track of vessels proceeding from Calcutta to the chief ports of British Burmah, Rangoon and Moulmein, as well as those passing on some occasions to or from China by the Strait of Singapore, the establishment of a warning beacon at this dreaded locality had long been most earnestly desired. Lord Dalhousie visited the place in 1853, just after the last Burmese War, landed on the reef, and determined that a lighthouse should be built; but no officer could be found at that time to undertake the work. In 1856 Lord Canning was induced, by the loss of an emigrant-ship with 200 passengers, of whom fourteen only were saved, to take up the matter; and Lieutenant Alexander Fraser, then stationed at Prome, was sent to make a survey, in consequence of which he was instructed to come to Europe, in order to make himself acquainted with the construction of lighthouses in analogous positions on the coasts of England and Scotland. He did so, and then returned to India, fully convinced that he could not adopt a better model than the celebrated lighthouse, the Skerryvore, off the coast of Argyleshire, in a very similar position. The Alguada Reef Lighthouse has, therefore, been built on this model, with alterations to suit the site. It was necessary to have it of great height, in order to warn ships in time, and also to allow of room for the large establishment which the climate requires, with sufficient space for stores and provisions within the lighthouse; the difficulty of approach and landing in the south-west monsoon causing a six-months' supply to be necessary. The Indian mutiny of 1857 of course delayed this work, and it was not till the end of 1859 that it could be put in hand. Another ship having been lost in that year, with a whole battery of artillery and other stores on board, going from Madras to Rangoon.

SECTIONS OF THE HULL OF H.M.S. TERPSICHORE, SHOWING THE EFFECT OF THE TORPEDO EXPLOSION AT CHATHAM.

The Court of Directors had decided that granite on the Tenasserim coast, reported of good quality, should be used for the building; and the quarry for the work was formed at Callagouk, an island about thirty miles below Amherst and 200 miles from the reef itself. The stone, however, was found to work very badly, though the material was in itself good; while the great difficulty in obtaining skilled labourers, who had to be brought from China and Madras, rendered it still more expensive; and to such an extent did this become manifest that it was decided to abandon Callagouk and get the remainder of the stones from Pulo Obin, near Singapore, which is distant no less than 1200 miles from the site of the building. In January, 1863, the work of cutting out the foundation was commenced, and was completed during that season, the rocks being unapproachable, in the south-west monsoon, for work or landing materials. On Feb. 14, 1861, the first stone was laid, and, with inconceivable difficulties in regard to labour, the building steadily arose, till, on April 23, 1865, a first-class revolving bivalvular light, by Messrs. Stevenson, of Edinburgh, brothers of Alan Stevenson, builder of the Skerryvore Lighthouse, was kindled aloft in the lighthouse of the Alguada Reef, 144 ft. above high-water mark, and visible, in clear weather, from a distance of twenty nautical miles. The work is now done in spite of the difficulties of every kind, the foundations of the intended lighthouse being cut in the solid rock to a depth of 2 ft. below high water at spring tides, with the sea breaking over and filling the pit, and a very little wind being enough to stop the work. Materials, workmen, provisions, fresh water, all had to be brought from a distance, and each landing on the reef was a battle to be fought with the elements; yet not a life was lost. Only two Europeans—viz., Colonel Fraser and his assistant, Lieutenant M'Neile, and only two of the natives, stuck to this hard job from beginning to end, the working establishment being usually composed of new men at the beginning of each season. The minute of the Governor-General in Council, dated Simla, June 12, commends, in the highest possible terms, "the zeal and judgment, the forethought, resource, energy, and perseverance" of Lieutenant-Colonel Fraser in this work; remarking, "it is seldom that it falls to the lot of any individual, in India especially, to carry through a work of such magnitude, extending over so long a period. The work itself is unique, certainly in the East, and, whether regard be had to cost, execution, or rate of progress, may challenge comparison with its smaller prototype, the Skerryvore, on the coast of Scotland." To a civilian mind, this achievement of Colonel Fraser, designed for the saving of life and property, seems of equal merit with the command of an army through a white victorious campaign. It is to be hoped that the skill and experience of the Engineer officers concerned in this matter will be employed for the construction of other lighthouses much wanted in that part of the world. The lighthouse on Double Island is now completed, and that on Cocon Island will be ready next year; but the Oyster Reef of Akyab, and the Khrishna shoal at the mouth of the Rangoon River, demand a similar provision. It is likewise a matter of regret that no steps have yet been taken to erect a lighthouse on the Banca, off Ceylon, which is an object claiming the immediate attention of the Peninsular and Oriental and other great steam-boat companies interested in the safe navigation of the Indian Seas.

The Bombay Times of Sept. 15 states:—"Among the passengers from England who arrived in the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Bonaira, on the 11th inst., was Dr. Livingstone, the celebrated African traveller. The Doctor is about to engage in another exploring expedition into the interior of Africa, and, as usual, he is going entirely alone. The object of his explorations will making some preliminary preparations. The scene of his explorations will be the country between the region which he has already explored and that discovered by Captain Speke. He will commence his travels by following the course of the River Rovuma, which is in about 10 degrees of north latitude, and ascend to the Lake Nyassa, and then towards the south to the Tanganyika. Dr. Livingstone has already explored the Rovuma for about 150 miles; but from that point towards the west the country is totally unknown. The object of the Doctor's expedition is partly to open up the country for the purposes of commerce, and partly to carry out the wishes of the Geographical Society of London by exploring the watershed of Zambesi and the Rovuma, and thereby aiding in the solution of the geographical problem, the estimation of the geographers at home, and the information of the public entertaining whether the lakes discovered by Speke, Grant, and Baker are not supplied by water flowing still further from the south than from any sources yet discovered. The party composing the expedition will be a small one, and in all probability will be composed almost entirely of natives. It is not unlikely, indeed, that the Doctor may select a few of the natives of this country to accompany him, but this will be determined by circumstances. It is expected that the party will start about the end of October. Dr. Livingstone had an interview with his Excellency the Governor of Bombay; and, although the nature of it has, of course, not transpired, yet there is little doubt that every facility will be offered to the Doctor to carry out his project to a successful issue. The Doctor, who is the guest of R. L. Tracy, Esq., proceeds to Mumbai in the course of a day or two, and afterwards to Poonah, where he will stay for some time."

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

A RESULT of the late election is, that when one speaks of members out of Parliament one often finds it necessary to use that phrase in a double sense. In the few political and numerous agricultural gatherings of classes which are prevalent just now, many a gentleman tours up in a private, though, perhaps, not undistinguished, character, who this time last year was a servant of the State and of a certain number of existing passages called electors. An ex-M.P. does not, like the proletarianical faculty attributed to the donkey on the eve of its dissolution, of disappearing from human ken, and we augure no little pluck when one of these deposed functionaries takes a place, which is not the place, in the midst of an assemblage of his friends and foes and doing what he did, when the character in which it had been allotted to him had melted away, we hope for he said that he had been sold (at the election) with his engagements—the taking the chair on this occasion being one of them. There was a tinge of pleasant malice in the advice which he gave to the new member for the C. Russell and Colonel Lindsay; for, though he spoke jocularly, he made out the very worst case for the electors that ever a disappointed neophyte—talking about drudgery and hard work, and self-denial, and the hauling of visions of glory in a way many a candidate would alarm the fire-gentlemen members whom he was patronising. There was a very fair response to his address from the new member, who was affectable, and Mr. Benyon, the former member, and Sir C. Russell both took care to make it appear that they had always been the right-hon. elected Mr. Walter's qualifications for representing the county, and seemed to imply a little wonder how it was that they succeeded in putting him out—a thing which, of course, they never had the least idea of. Indeed, it is more than probable that there was no such expectation, but that the force of the Conservative feeling was directed against the other Liberal candidate, Viscount Ullington and Mr. Somerset, who never had any chance, and who were simply throwing their own pretensions too far, to injure Mr. Walter in the discomforts which finally overtook the latter three, as the results of the return for Berks one of the few Conservative triumphs of the general election, if one might judge from the cheering at the close of this meeting, supposing he is inclined again to sit in the Lower House, and does not, as the phrase runneth, "go abroad" for a change of air instead of Mr. Walter being again returned on the first opportunity.

There are now two Colonels Fane in Parliament. One of them is, of course, the lusty, very competitive gentleman-member for Oxfordshire, who has kept in the palpable obscure of the house, and who at county gatherings appears to be quite unaware that there is such a proceedings by indirectly saying ditto to Mr. Henley, in a clumsy and inconsequent manner. The other is the very well-known and respectable South Hants, in the place of Mr. Ralph Dutton. It was the fortune, if, as the good, of this gallant officer, to be present at this festive occasion not long ago at Portsmouth, where he had to return thanks for the county members; and very well he seemed to know how to be watched when they are ringing their wings before they begin to fly in Parliament, one could not but see that he was the right man selected for South Hants. Although only a Colonel of Militia, he has been a Major of Dragoons, and his talk was especially homely; but if he rides as well as he talked, it might have been said of him that no member of his may have been called to lead when he was in the service. To be sure, there has never been any adequate reason for the Parliamentary captain of horse was not a good trooper; and, as the description of the soldier is that he has been killing people all his life, and that he has had of the gallant member for South Hants, perhaps injustice may be done to the party by any insinuation that he is not equally good at making and his military qualities. Any way, contrasted with the latter-day list of Francis Burdett, it would be a pleasant thing to know a man, who came to bid his old constituents farewell, and the glib, confident talk of Serjeant Gaselee, who, on the occasion of his first appearance, the Colonel shewed with an originality the merit of which no one is inclined to dispute with him.

If it be true, as is reported, that the Lord Lord Enfield will exchange the under-secretaryship to the Poor-Law Board for the more dignified post of Civil Lord of the Admiralty, he will be sure of the suffrages of the electors of Middlesex anew; and his recent appearance amongst them, in connection with the Hendon and Hanbury, was in a manner the beginning of a fresh canvass. To be sure, he said not much outside of his subject of the Poor-Law Board; but those who know how Lord Enfield utters commonplaces will understand the reputation for wisdom which he has earned amongst people who do not care to look beneath the surface of a face which, young in features, is always serious in its expression, and which had of the gallant member for South Hants, perhaps injustice may be done to the party by any insinuation that he is not equally good at making and his military qualities. Any way, contrasted with the latter-day list of Francis Burdett, it would be a pleasant thing to know a man, who came to bid his old constituents farewell, and the glib, confident talk of Serjeant Gaselee, who, on the occasion of his first appearance, the Colonel shewed with an originality the merit of which no one is inclined to dispute with him.

If it be true, as is reported, that the Lord Lord Enfield will exchange the under-secretaryship to the Poor-Law Board for the more dignified post of Civil Lord of the Admiralty, he will be sure of the suffrages of the electors of Middlesex anew; and his recent appearance amongst them, in connection with the Hendon and Hanbury, was in a manner the beginning of a fresh canvass. To be sure, he said not much outside of his subject of the Poor-Law Board; but those who know how Lord Enfield utters commonplaces will understand the reputation for wisdom which he has earned amongst people who do not care to look beneath the surface of a face which, young in features, is always serious in its expression, and which had a ring of Civil Lord of the Admiralty is being kept open until such time as it may suit Lord Enfield to exercise his seat for Middlesex in a more responsible manner than he has yet done. Mr. Hanbury, given to its duties by Mr. Stansfeld and Mr. Children, doubts may arise in the minds of financial reformers with regard to the sincerity of some of the Ministry.

It might, perhaps, not be injudicious in some of the members of the Conservative party who contemplate with a certain degree of appearance of the famous reaction by protulatory meetings, if they would follow the example of Mr. Disraeli, and occasionally speak on political talk, when he is obliged to talk in public. Why, at Aberdeen, the other day, he could not refrain from saying a word. Mechi used to bestow on his visitors at Tiptree Hall; and one could not help observe a certain amount of affability, between the leader of the Opposition and the agricultural Alderman, one seemingly being as deeply imbued with knowledge of the subject as the other; and this by saying a good deal. Then there has been another leader developing himself, for the second time in a fortnight or so, before his enemy the public, and speaking rather on bullocks and such like, except that this time Sir Bulwer Lytton evidently much prepared for an effort, and the consequence was some sentences even when he was talking practical protests against Lord Clarendon's and Professor Gamgee's "cure" for the contagious disease of cattle suffering from the pestilence. It may be remarked of Sir Bulwer Lytton's speech that it was remarkable for nothing, or anything, it ever head in the way of defence of the existing purse laws, yet it might be suggested to him that he is late in the day if precautions are taken to ensure a good supply of partridges and pheasants, and who is a determined angler, that in order to preserve that section of sport in which fishing is included it is sometimes necessary to preserve streams, and that an illegitimate catcher of trout is designated a poacher as much as an emissary of those birds, which lawyers still call "fere naturæ."

The Leichhardt search expedition was at the latest dates far advanced into the interior of Australia, being not far from Mantuble. Dr. Murray, the officer in charge, in a late letter transmitted to Melbourne announces in a sanguine manner, and not for the first time, his company vie with each other in the discharge of their respective duties.

MUSIC.

It is with deep regret that we have to announce the death of William Vincent Wallace. After suffering many months in Paris, under a lingering disease, he went, by the advice of his medical attendants, to the south of France, and died, on the 12th inst., at the Château de Bagen, in the Pyrenees. He leaves a widow and two young sons. He was a native of Waterford, and was born in 1813. His brilliant musical career is well known. The author of "Maritana," "Matilda of Hungary," and "Lurline" will hold a high place in the annals of English dramatic music. As a man, he will be sincerely lamented by those who have known him.

The musical world has sustained another heavy loss in the death of the celebrated violinist, Ernst, who died, on the 8th of this month, at Nice. He was born at Brunn, many years ago, in a family which entirely dissented him from the exercise of his profession. Ernst held the very highest position as a violinist, and his character in private life made him the object of general love and esteem.

The first of Mr. Aguilar's interesting and instructive performances of chamber music took place last week at his residence in Westbourne-square, on Wednesday, the 11th inst. The following was the programme:—Trio in E flat (Op. 1), Beethoven; Quartet, Aguilar; seventeen Variations Sérieuses—Mendelssohn; "Evening" and "Last Look," two romances—Aguilar; "Variations pour la Danse"—Weber; Sonata, quasi Fantasia, in C sharp minor—Beethoven; Lieder ohne Worte—Mendelssohn; Barcarola on "Last Look"—Aguilar; "La Résolution" and "Frolic"—Alfred Holmes; "Dream Dance" (Op. 6), Aguilar; Song without Words—Aguilar. Mr. Aguilar's sonata and his fantasia on "Lucia," as well as his two romances ("Evening" and "Last Look") were warmly applauded. The rooms were quite full. The next performance of this interesting series will take place on the 8th of November and 6th of December.

Mdme. Adelaide Kemble has arranged a series of pianoforte recitals in the provinces, the first of which is to take place at Leamington on Monday next. The accompaniments of the tour are under the management of Mr. George Dolby.

We read the following in the Worcester Chronicle of the 11th instant:—

A meeting of gentlemen interested in the maintenance of our triennial festivals was held at the Guildhall, Worcester, on Tuesday last. The Bishop in the chair: A. R. Reyds, Esq. (High Sheriff); J. D. Perrens, Esq., Mayor; the Rev. T. Lea; Messrs. Cooke, R. Padmore, W. Done, W. Amphlett, Thomas Southall, Esq. (Sheriff of the city); the Rev. John Fenner; and J. Whitehead, Esq., Jun., were appointed a committee, with the chairman, "That this meeting, desirous that the necessary steps be adopted for forthwith securing the Worcester Festival for next year, resolves itself into a committee for that object, and at an essential preliminary declares its opinion that the committee should be empowered to engage the use of their cathedral and college hall for that purpose, and join the committee." Prior to the Rev. J. Fenner's departure, which prevented his committee on the consent of the Dean and Chapter to the use of the cathedral for the festival, and the college hall for the band. The Rev. J. Fenner's letter was read, and the meeting adjourned.

The Liverpool Mercury, in a notice of the recent concert of the Philharmonic Society, says:—

Mr. Sims Reeves achieved a triumph in Bishop Richards's ballad "The Chieftain's Wife," the song is founded on a tragic and deeply-affecting incident in the Highlands of Scotland, where a chieftain's wife loses her beloved wife Anita and a few faithful followers. His little band scattered, himself wounded and his wife dead, he is discovered by Donald Roy, from whom Anita died from exhaustion. Garibaldi could not stay to perform the last sad office of burying his wife, and Donald Roy undertook the duty, which was cared for by the rude peasantry of the district, who scarcely recognised in the poor stranger the great warrior of the age. Mr. Sims Reeves made he sang this pretty ditty could scarcely fail to gratify those who could appreciate a refined melody, and the singer was encored in the last verse of the ballad, with which Mr. Reeves readily complied.

The Rev. Sydney Smith, in a letter to Lady Tamberlik, the celebrated tenor, a Knight of the Order of Charles III.

The suspension-bridge over the Wien, at Vienna, has just received the name of the Stadion Bridge, in honour of the well-known theatrical manager who introduced Mozart's "Zauberflöte" to the Viennese public. Stadion, however, was also, in his younger days a needy and unprincipled adventurer, who, having obtained from Mozart the libretto of the "Zauberflöte," sold it, altered by its performances, while the composer never received a farthing.

Mozart's opera, the "Entführung aus dem Serail" (known on the Italian stage as "Il Seraglio"), which was produced in Vienna with the most brilliant success, the characters of the hero and heroine being performed by Adamberger and Mdme. Hofer, Mozart's sister. It is strange that this charming opera should be so utterly neglected by our London managers.

Mdme. Rudersdorff is engaged by the Musical Society of Cologne to sing in Handel's oratorio "Semele," next month.

A new organ, built by Messrs. Foster and Andrews, has been erected in the Kinsaird Hall, Dundee. Its opening was inaugurated by a concert, on the 5th inst., wherein its powers were developed by the able performances of M. Lemmens, the celebrated Belgian organist. It is probably the most comprehensive instrument in Scotland. Its compass is from CCC to A, with all the most recent improvements in the construction of the instrument. An excellent selection of music was performed on the occasion, the principal performers (in addition to M. Lemmens) being Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mr. Santley, Mr. Cummings, and Mr. Thomas. There was a crowded assemblage, and the concert went off with great éclat.

THE THEATRES.

The reappearance of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mathews at the Haymarket Theatre, on Monday last, was welcomed. The piece selected is "Used Up," a version of "L'Homme Blasé," in which Mr. Mathews has recently made a Parisian reputation, and obtained a new and original character. Mr. Mathews is the original representative of the character, Sir Charles Coldstream accordingly, on Thursday week, appeared as an entirely new personage, and was received with enthusiasm; and Mr. Charles Mathews came before a London audience as an actor who had won a reputation elsewhere. He was received with renewed spirit and vigour, and with an additional verve which surprised even his most sanguine friends.

A new novel by Miss Braddon has been dramatised for the St. James's, under the title of "Caught in the Toils." The adaptation has been made by Mr. Augustus Dubourg, the subject is to be found in the story of "Only a Clod." Mr. Broughton has chosen to select his subjects from the works of Miss Braddon, Miss Mulock, and Miss Herbert has undertaken to interpret all the mysteries of Mrs. Henry Wood's novels. It is to be hoped that in this accomplished actress throws into the character all the resources of her art; and that she will not, through a vain effort to render an essentially repulsive rôle attractive. Miss Herbert, indeed, does wisely, in contenting herself with the present project adapting the novel to the stage, but not transcribing it, for Mrs. Henry Wood's language is more descriptive than dramatic. Mr. Walter Lacy has migrated to this house, and here sustains the part of "The Toils," a character which, in the hands of Mr. Lacy, is invested with those points which make the character so interesting in Miss Braddon's pages. Mr. Lacy is the part of Sebastian Trent better, and received from Mr. Frank Matthews such copious illustration that it will form the chief feature in the performance.

The fortunes of Sadler's Wells and the legitimate drama are looking up. The tragedy of "Macbeth," with Locke's music, was originally acted on Monday; and Mr. James Bennett gave such an impression of the ambitious Thane as we have seldom witnessed. He seemed thoroughly to understand the superstitious and poetic character of the man, and brought both out with such effect that the audience responded in a manner that proved they had been electrically moved. We have since seen his "Richard the Third," which was remarkably good, being carefully elaborated and powerfully sustained.

A new piece at the Prince of Wales, entitled "Dinner for Nothing," is founded on an odd idea—that of bringing together a number of foreigners, on gratuitous invitations, to an Englishman's table, who can speak nothing but bad French. We can imagine the confusion and perplexity; but the dramatic value of the situation is not very great. A number of the burlesque of "Lucia di Lammermoor" is strong enough of itself to attract crowded houses.

We have already mentioned that Mr. Creswick is drawing good houses at the Standard. On Monday "Othello" was performed. Mr. Ryder sustained the part of Iago.

Mr. Elliot Galer, the vocalist, has made his debut as a dramatist at the Grecian, in a piece called "The Folly Fete; or, The Days of Dragons," which contains the usual amount of fun. The burlesque is elegant and the plot ingenious, though not in a novel degree. The drama is exceedingly well acted and much applauded.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE hard-won victory of Salpiniere in the Cesarewitch was, like the meeting in general, very disastrous to the ring. His owner is said to have won over £20,000 by the event, who has "pocketed" a very "good thing" from Lyttleton are, according to all accounts, Sir Frederick Johnstone and Mr. Swindells. The result will give a lift to Trumpeter, two lucre of Wines stock, Pistol and Hero, were runners in the course of the week. It is rather remarkable that the two own sisters, Gratitude and Lancelina, should have been placed second for the Cesarewitch, the one in 1864-5 and the other in 1863. The Duke had nothing but bad luck at Doncaster, and Buccaneer pulled up in the earlier mild snatch in which he was to give 70 lb. to Saffron of the same race. A match between Mr. Merry's Jim Bludyer and Mr. Rowley Mile would be a very sporting affair. Owing to Breadalbane's penalty, they are now equally handicapped in the Two Thousand and Cambridgeshire; but the hope of Breadalbane's stable seem to rest entirely on Fitzroiver. The Troy Stakes was rather a remarkable one for Troy, as they fairly ran themselves to bed. The Primate, who was on 4 lb. worse terms with Mr. Fitt than when he had him at Newmarket, ran the latter to a neck for second place; while King Hal, the favourite, could only get third. Primate's sire beaten a head from The Primate; and Robin Hood, the summer conqueror of Doncaster, was unplaced. Mr. Merry's Jim Bludyer, Lord Lyon, and Rustic at the top of the Derby poll, we are likely to have a lively victory. The Autumn Handicap has been won by Mr. Robert Liddington and Chattanooga as between Chatham and Attila two-year-olds, the latter having the best of the difference but will not actually face each other at the post and then compromise. Mr. Merry has won the Great Yorkshire Stakes with "Chas"; Mr. Pearce walked over for the £400 forfeits, and Mr. Naylor's horse returned to the stable of Mr. Merry's half-sister Lucy, while the Bretby Stakes very easily the same afternoon; and, although Klarinska could not quite give Gomera 7 lb., the Nor Nerumscket Oaks, she easily repulsed the challenge of Mr. Merry's Lucy Glitters. The Great Yorkshire Derby 30 to 1 was laid on Gladiateur, who frightened the Duke out of the field, and Mr. Merry's Jim Bludyer, ridden by Jeffy, by Lord Lyon's Longdown a dead heat with his conqueror for third place in the Prendergast. Mr. Merry's Rustic suffered a severe contusion into something new and strange." A more indefatigable St. Leger than Mr. Merry has not been known for many years. His lot has fallen in a bad year, but he has been twice crowned in the Leger and the Derby, and although there are some sceptics, it would seem from the betting that he is certain to have the Cambridgeshire with Fitzroiver. Mr. Merry's more than any three-year-old ever carried in that race before; Subjectes carries 6st. 10 lb. for that race, or 3 lb. more than he did for the Derby, which, and John Scott's Cambridgeshire with 8 lb. less, while the Derby winner gives the Oaks winner 20 lb.! It is said that Thalestris, the winner of the Oaks, has gone amiss, and broke down at exercise, but the weights were published this autumn.

Lord Derby's decision, announced from the turf is announced on authority, but it is good hearing that his Lordship keeps his brood mares, of which he has a considerable number, at Knowsley. His son is declared, it is said, a confederacy with Captain Machell, and their joint stock will be kept at Knowsley. Mr. Merry's Jim Bludyer, by Mr. J. G. Fott, late of the 11th Hussars, who raced under the title of Mr. Wallace, and Mr. Merry's Lucy Glitters, by Lord Lyon, out of sister of his friend Mr. Sharpe, of Ruckhill.

Mr. Blenkiron's Derby candidate number nearly a hundred, or only a short stone of what the late Sir Tatton Sykes kept at Sledmere, has just purchased eleven. Blue Ribbon and Al each fetched 700 gs., at Newmarket last week, while the Marquis of Hastings sent to the other for Sir Joseph Hawley. King Arthur has gradually dropped from 3000 gs. to 1000 gs., and Jim Bludyer, who is by Lord Lyon, and to Gemany, Gazza, a 200-guinea Royal yearling of 1864 only made 600 gs.; and Mr. Merry's Rustic, notwithstanding his fall in the sale, was brought in at 500gs. A curious story is told of May Bell, the dam of Salpiniere. She had a very high bill at one time, and fractured her leg severely on pulling up. As her trainer could not preserve her, he had to shoot her as well as he could, and thus put her till she grew better. Among her produce is a two-year-old sister to Spectator, Fille de L'Air will, it is rumoured, go to the stud next season, at Dungo.

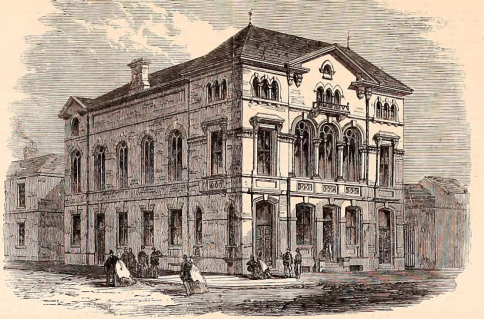
Ground so hard that it was impossible to ride, heavy rains, fogs, frost, rains succeeding each other, and, in short, every unusual accent, were the successive characteristics of the last hunting season at Melton. Even the Quorn country, generally in the most equal order, and very few lodgings are valet in the town. Mr. Bolter-Johnstone, M.P., and Mr. Chaplin, M.P., have taken two of the new comers; Sir Frederick Johnstone and Mr. Chaplin have taken Coventry Grange; and Mr. Bolter-Johnstone has taken Mr. Wilson's house, at the Harbors' Arms. Lord Wilton has built ten additional boxes at the Leeches, where he has been shooting for about four years. The late Mr. Callander had not been a regular Melcombian for two or three seasons past. He was a fine horseman, and a good sort of man. He always considered a very judicious and forward rider, especially when he was on the black, Belvoir, which was the best of his lot. He was a thorough sportsman in every work; and Mr. Meadowcroft, of Shoreham, went right away from Mr. Sharpe, on Swinhtail, and their walk a few days after the death of their host. Mr. Sharpe's masters, without a check. They found at Breeding Chalk Pits, across Another Bottom, Bramber Common, Jenny Farm to Pond Brow, thence to Thunden Barrow and Southwick, and killed, on Mr. Gardner's farm, near Southwick.

Thirty-five puppies were put in the slips for the Scottish National St. Leger, which took place on the 5th inst., on Mr. Lamb's Dean's ground, near Abington. Mr. Gibson, who ran half a dozen, won with Rosanna by Mr. Lamb's ticked dog Cæsar, but sustained no light loss in the accident to his dramatic Master, who had got a bye and was two courses before the others began. The contest, in consequence, was made a match for Mr. J. L. Ewing (who is quite a Lord George Bentinck of the Scottish leash as regards entries) ran eight puppies, but none of them were in the first course. Mr. Wilkinson's Dr. Burke by Carbrachoe who won the third prize, is an own brother to Tom. Mr. W. Grahm's dog Cæsar, by Mr. Lamb's ticked dog Cæsar, and the Douglas Cup, and was third in the latter with Analogon. Owing to the difficulties of the ground, there were no open cup ticket, and Lord Binning's Black Lead won; Marshal Forward, who is now in his third season, running up.

A series of sheeks of earthquake has been experienced in the Val Pusina, near Botzen, Tyrol.

Mr. Richard Wood, our Consul-General in Tunis, and Mr. Donham, Consul-General at Algiers, have been made companions of the Bath.

The New York Tribune of Sept. 29 states that 500 post offices had been reopened in the southern States since May last.



The Director of the Science and Art Department in Pekin has reported favourably on the proposal to introduce railways in China.

A cheese 4000 lb., in weight, and said to be excellent in quality, was lately shown at an agricultural exhibition in New York. The cheese came from a Canadian dairy.

It is generally understood that the new Parliament will not meet till the third week in January, when the first business will be the election of a Speaker. A week will be allowed for the swearing in of members.

THE WORKMEN'S HALL, BIRKENHEAD.

THE Birkenhead Workmen's Hall, which was opened by Lord Stanley, on Thursday, Aug. 3, is situated in Claughton-road, a leading thoroughfare, near its junction with Conway-street, in the immediate vicinity of the General Post Office—a most central although not prominent position, having streets on three sides of it. The building is large and imposing, the design of the company being to provide such a one as would create a desire on the part of the working men to frequent it in lieu of the public-house, and which would give them all the comforts of the clubs now in the metropolis in use by the upper classes, comparatively speaking. The company also desired to provide accommodation for the various clubs and friendly societies who might choose to remove from the various public-houses where they now hold their meetings. It was thought that many of them would be glad of the accommodation, and that many additional members would join the different societies, knowing that they could attend their meetings without the necessity of the temptation of the public-house. The building is most substantial, being brick and stone, no cement in imitation of stone being used. The accommodation consists of a well lighted and ventilated coffee and reading room, 34½ ft. by 21 ft.; a smoking-room, which will also be used for chess draughts, bagatelle, and other games, the same size; two club-rooms for ordinary meetings; one lecture-room, which is so arranged as to be used as a room for extraordinary club-meetings; a lavatory; a bar, or attendants' room, from which the members will be served with refreshments; a spacious kitchen, with apparatus sufficient to cook a public dinner; pantries, larders, and apartments for the hall-keeper. On the upper floor is a large, lofty, well lighted and ventilated room, intended for concerts, public meetings, lectures, soirées, and other entertainments, having seating-room for from 500 to 1000 persons; spacious orchestra to accommodate about 100 artistes, retiring-rooms, and every convenience, with suitable approaches easy of ingress and egress. A lift is provided from the kitchen department to this room, for the purpose of public dinner or tea parties, or soirées. The directors propose to provide tea, coffee, cold meats, and other provisions at the very lowest possible cost, on the same charges as in similar establishments now existing in other towns in England and Scotland. The building has its principal front to Claughton-road, with a side elevation to Kendal-street, and rises to a height of 50 ft. to the top of the main cornice, the style adopted being Italian, freely treated by the architect. The ground floor is entirely appropriated to the purposes of a workmen's hall or club, and is made as compact and suitable to the object intended as possible, the architect having visited and examined several buildings of a like nature already in existence in other towns. The entrance to this portion of the building is in the centre of the façade to Claughton-road. The entrance to the lecture-room is from a side door in Kendal-street, which door is also the approach to the ecclesiastical retiring-rooms. The entrances to the upper rooms are from the front, on the right and left of the façade, so that any entertainment, either in the upper hall or lecture-room, can be effectually conducted without in any way affecting the workmen's club. The architect was Mr. James Fisher, of Duncan-street, Birkenhead; the contractor for the building, Mr. Thomas Laud, of Tranmere; the contractor for the gas-fittings, Mr. Hinson, of Argyle-street; and for the internal fittings, Mr. Wright, of Tranmere. The total cost, exclusive of land, was about £2850.

THE WORKMEN'S HALL, BIRKENHEAD.

SCENE FROM "NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND."

THAT interesting drama of modern social life founded upon Mr. Charles Reade's popular story of "Never Too Late to Mend" is likely to engage for a long time the sympathies of the crowded audiences nightly gathered in the Princess's Theatre. We have already criticised the merits of the composition and performance of the leading actors. Our Illustration gives a view of one of the most effective pieces of the appropriate scenery designed and painted by Mr. Lloyd for this play; it is the night scene in the ravine, somewhere in the Australian gold-fields, where, by the light of a torch, the party of diggers are engaged in sifting the sands of the river in search of some grains of the precious ore.

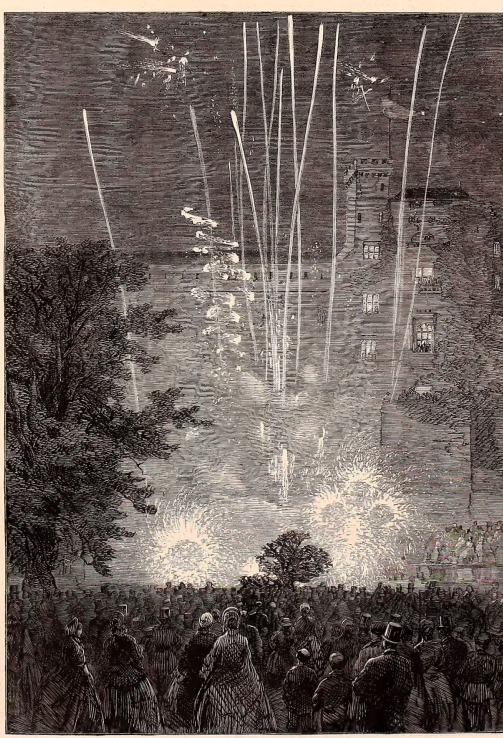
SURREY COUNTY SCHOOL, CRANLEY, NEAR GUILDFORD.

WITHIN the last few years more than one successful attempt has been made to found schools which will supply a very general want, and which, as everyone seems agreed, should have been supplied long ago,

SCENE FROM "NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND," AT THE PRINCESS'S THEATRE.

Parents of the "middle class," or, to express ourselves more intelligibly, persons of moderate incomes, whatever may be their station in life, can no longer send their sons to reap the benefits of the old educational endowments. Those endowed schools are many of them exceedingly expensive, and even where, as at Winchester, the cost is defrayed out of the school property, the whole system of education is adapted exclusively to youths who will continue their studies till they are grown up, and will probably complete them at one of the Universities. But such an education as this is a luxury which can be enjoyed only by the rich. The professional man or tradesman of but moderate income cannot afford to keep his sons on his hands longer than is absolutely necessary, and he wishes for them such a training as may fit them, at the age of sixteen or seventeen at the latest, for the duties of active life. What is required for such lads is a school in which the expenses shall be moderate, the teaching not occupied chiefly with Latin and Greek, and the system and spirit as much as possible those of the old public schools, whose influence is often shown in the strong character and habits of self-dependence and self-control which are among the best gifts education has to bestow. As we have remarked, several attempts have lately been made to secure such advantages as these for the sons of the middle classes. The rich, who now enjoy the benefits of endowments which were not intended for them, have shown, by liberal contributions, that they think themselves bound to do something in this matter for the class whom they have disinherited. The latest effort of the kind was brought to a successful issue by the opening, on Thursday week, of the Surrey County School, at Cranley, near Guildford. We are informed that the very natural inference which has been drawn from the title—that this school is intended mainly, if not exclusively, for the county of Surrey—is, nevertheless, erroneous. The large sum which has already been raised for the buildings, has, indeed, been contributed chiefly by landowners and other gentlemen of the county; but until the number of applicants for admission exceeds the accommodation provided, Surrey boys will have no special advantages. Experience has already shown that a school of this kind may be entirely self-supporting where the buildings and furniture are provided gratuitously and the charge for board and instruction is fixed at the moderate sum of £30 a year. The council have accordingly appointed this rate of payment, and are making great exertions to raise the remainder of the amount required for the buildings and furniture. Of the necessary £11,000, about £7700 has already been subscribed; and a gentleman, who withholds his name, has promised the munificent donation of £2000, if the remaining £1300 be forthcoming by Christmas.

The school will now accommodate 150 boys; but it is intended hereafter to complete the architect's design, and to render it capable of containing 300. The gentleman appointed Head Master—the Rev. J. Merriman, M.A.—is a man of University distinction and a Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. He brings with him great experience in the work of education, having been for some years Second Master of St. Andrew's College, at Bradfield, in Berkshire. The Second Master is also a clergyman and a Cambridge M.A.; and we believe it is intended, as far as funds will permit, to secure the services of other graduates from the Universities. In the course of instruction a prominent place is given to the English language and literature, Latin and French, drawing, and vocal music are also taught. Provision is made for giving lessons in Greek, German, and instrumental music; but these are optional, and involve an additional charge.



THE SURREY COUNTY SCHOOL, CRANLEY, NEAR GUILDFORD.

The proceedings on the opening day commenced with Divine worship at Cranley Church, followed by a special service in the chapel of the school, where the Bishop of Winchester preached an appropriate sermon. At half-past one a public breakfast was served in the dining-hall; the company, which numbered about 200 ladies and gentlemen, being presided over by Mr. J. Bradshaw, High Sheriff of the county. Among the guests were the Earl of Carnarvon, Lord Wantage, the Hon. Mr. Brodrick, and other persons of distinction. The toast of "Prosperity to the Surrey County School" was proposed by the Earl of Carnarvon and seconded by the Hon. Mr. Brodrick; the health of the Council was proposed by Mr. C. Buxton and seconded by the Ven. Archdeacon of Surrey. All the speakers expressed their cordial appreciation of the objects and plans of the new institution, and their confidence that, with the present judicious management, it would achieve the best results.

FESTIVITIES AT KILKENNY CASTLE.

THE coming of age of the young Marquis of Ormonde, on Thursday, the 5th inst., was celebrated in the neighbourhood of Kilkenny by a series of festive entertainments, which seem worthy of a particular record, the Dowager Marchioness, who resides much at Kilkenny Castle, and who is greatly esteemed, having made preparations on the handsomest scale for signalising this event. On the previous Tuesday, his Lordship had visited his estate and mansion of Dunmore, not many miles distant, and there met a number of the local tenantry, with whom he dined, receiving their hearty congratulations on the prospects of his opening manhood. On the Wednesday, a grand dinner took place at Kilkenny Castle; the Mayor and Corporation of Kilkenny, who came just before dinner to present an address to his Lordship, being among the invited guests, with the Lord Lieutenant of the county; the High Sheriff, Colonel the Right Hon. W. F. Tighe; the Earl of Enniskillen, who has been trustee of the Ormonde property during the minority; the county and city members of Parliament, and other persons of note; the whole company numbering about one hundred. The dinner, provided by Messrs. Gunter, of London, was laid in the picture-gallery, which was very beautifully arranged for the occasion, the lighting in particular being admirable. This was produced from the gas manufactured in the new private gas-works in the castle grounds, lately erected by Mr. Alexander Keith. A most striking feature of the dinner ornamentation was the grand service of gold plate, worth many thousands of pounds, which was very attractively displayed. The eye, however, rested with greatest interest on the paintings which adorn the magnificent apartment, and especially on the portraits of many illustrious men belonging to the House of Ormonde in times past. The Marquis, presiding as host, gave the health of the Mayor and Corporation next to the loyal toasts, and expressed his own strong attachment to his native city. The Mayor (Mr. Smithwick) and the city High Sheriff (Alderman Potter) returned thanks, and the health of the Marchioness, as well as that of her son, was duly proposed and responded to. Lord Enniskillen, Colonel Tighe, Lord Tyrone, and Sir John Gray, M.P., were among the speakers; while the Marchioness, with other ladies, sat in the room to listen. On the next day, which was the young Lord's twenty-first birthday, the streets of Kilkenny were gaily decorated with banners and evergreens; the church bells rang merrily in the morning, and many parts of the city, especially St. John's Bridge and the streets leading to the castle, were illuminated. There was a grand display of fireworks on the castle lawn, provided for the Marchioness by Mr. Kirby, pyrotechnist, of Dublin; but the subject of our Illustration is another exhibition of the same kind, which took place next evening in the college-lawn, by arrangement of a committee of the citizens. It was supplied by Mr. J. Lawrence, of Dublin, and consisted of various water-rockets, fire-fountains, and other devices; also a beautiful horizontal wheel, displaying coloured stars in every direction. The whole was placed on a raft in the river, with wonderful effect. The aerial fireworks included jackets of every possible description, shells, rockets, and coloured stars. The whole concluded with a magnificent monument displaying the words, "Long live the Marchioness," formed by large letters of fire, which changed colours as if by magic. Our Illustration shows the effect of the fireworks in the college-lawn, with the castle in the background and the river in the middle distance.

FESTIVITIES AT KILKENNY CASTLE ON THE COMING OF AGE OF THE MARQUIS OF ORMONDE.

We understand that the Marchioness of Ormonde gave an order for the distribution of £5. and 8 lb. of beef to every labourer on the Ormonde property. Her Ladyship also sent a gratuity of £1 each to the inmates of the Ormonde Hospitals.

LORD HOUGHTON ON ART-EDUCATION.

LORD HOUGHTON, on Monday evening, addressed the students at the assembly of pupils of the Government Scotch District School of Art at Liverpool. The ceremony took place in the theatre of the Liverpool Institution, which was filled in the presence of a large audience.

A vote of the condition of the school having been made by the secretary, Lord Houghton said he supposed he had been honoured by the request to address them because he was known to be a lover of art, and especially of the pictorial element in all the arts; and he had been asked to say what was said on one of them, they probably thought he might naturally take an interest in the others. He had always felt that the cultivation of a nation was that which most of all developed the higher and purer portion of the soul of man—and it was done away from the difficulties, the struggles, and conflicts of daily life, and gave him a certain religion of art to which he might betake himself in times when other emotional resources failed him. He supposed to direct his observations more particular to pictures. One of the wisest men who lived—the great Goethe—had said that the best way he should like every man, if possible, every day of his life, to see some good picture, some good piece of music, and to read some good verses, or to say some wise things. The first part of the advice was the most difficult when it was expressed, very vital and impracticable, and yet it might almost be realised by every citizen of any large British town in the midst of which he then stood. Having traced the rise of popular art-exhibitions since 1830, and glanced at their influence upon the taste of the country, he said that the schools of design instituted some years ago, and their comparative failure, and observed that he knew no instance in which the love of design had ever retained great eminence apart from a general notion of art. He thought the best way of schools of art should be to connect themselves with the study of the natural talent of the pupil bride away from design, and shovel their study ready to rise to higher value of art, in which the love of design and the love should receive all the instruction that could be given to it. Art, and the love of art, was a thing which, in the midst of the hurry and the excitement of a people who had not yet who were not yet sufficiently conscious of nature, or made those great deductions from the glories of nature which formed so high a part of the culture and the delight of modern life. He would not speak of the religious influences and relations of art, which came more within the province of the preacher; but the pupils of that school to would say a few words. Let these who had studied design not think that study unimportant; but they might find it, through practice, that it was a very good step to something higher—pure art. He drew attention to the value of design in the commerce, as a means of giving employment and producing wealth, and liberty. He discouraged all who were not possessed by an overmastering love of art; for its own sake, from entering the profession. In design, in the hope of becoming great artists. He advised the pursuit of art, and especially of painting, as a profession that required a great deal of money, a great deal of time, and a great deal of patience. He urged the importance of competition among buyers, not out of merit in artists and their pictures. More good would be done by distributing money in the general encouragement of the cultivation of art in the country.

His Lordship then delivered the prizes.

SALUTES IN WURTEMBERG.

An order has been issued in Stuttgart for the guidance of compelling military officers and men to pay proper respect to Royalty by formally saluting the King whenever they meet or thought to be. The following are the principal rules:—

1. It has been observed with displeasure that when his Majesty enters the box in the Court Theatre the officers generally salute him with the left upon one side later than upon the other.

2. Officers are reminded that when the Queen enters the Royal box after the King, her Majesty is to be saluted separately.

3. As salutes have occurred in the theatre during the absence of their Highness Prince Frederick, attention is directed to the fact that the salutes prescribed for the Royal Personages of the Royal House of Wurtemberg are to be delivered not before Prince Frederick only, but wherever his Royal Highness and your gentlemen accompanying him, or Her Highness Princess Princess Catharine. To avoid error, in case their Royal Highnesses should arrive post-haste together in a closed carriage, the salute is to be given if the noise is seen to the nearest by raising his arm.

4. A salute to a soldier has established in the prescribed salute from ignorance of the King's person will no longer be allowed.

5. Officers and men are to salute in his Majesty's person. For this purpose, exact descriptions of his Majesty are to be distributed to the regiments, and hung up in the barrack-rooms.

6. The excuse that the prescribed salutes to their Majesties were omitted because, being in a close carriage, they were not recognised by the passers by, cannot be admitted. Soldiers are advised, in cases of doubt, to deliver the prescribed salute before every closed Court carriage.

An extraordinary general meeting of the Atlantic Telegraph Company has authorised an increase of capital, the amount not to exceed £2,000,000, in the shape of 100,000 new shares of £5 each, each new shares to be entitled to a preferential dividend, at the rate of £12 per cent per annum.

In the course of the recent civil war, which lasted for the space of four years, the town of Winchester, Virginia, was occupied forty-eight times by union troops, and twenty-seven times by confederates. The town was also occupied by both sides in battle, making seventy-six times in all.

The Royal Mint have been fraternising with the Merseyside men of Bergen. At a recent banquet in that town, on the occasion of an industrial exhibition, the Icelanders joined with their hosts in an enthusiastic demonstration in favour of a united Scandinavia.

The Commission of Public Education at Warsaw has prohibited the transfer of the subjects and objects of public instruction from one to the streets except their books. Some of them have been seen carrying packets which aroused the suspicion of the police, and consequently the breaks the new rule will be expelled from his seminary.

The pilgrims of Geneva have lately been excited, by means of a piece of velvet offered for sale to several private persons, a clue which has unfolded their long hands on a whole load of Bibles, which, on examination, found a trunk containing 120,000f. The man named Bocca, who destroyed himself at Versailles, is supposed to have been the depositary.

A new political element has appeared in America in the efforts made by the working men to establish what is now called a co-operative work. They are holding mass conventions in all parts of the country, and in many places have announced that they will vote for no candidates for office who do not faithfully labour for the eight-hour system.

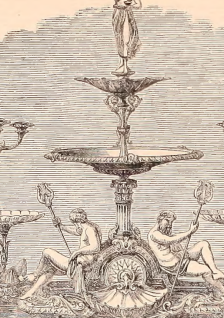
Her Majesty's Emigration Commissioners have chartered the Fearless, 1064 tons, belonging to Messrs. Dixon and Wynne, Liverpool, for the conveyance of emigrants to Adelaide, South Australia, from the Victoria station adult. The Fearless is appointed to receive her passengers at Birkenhead on the 15th of November next.

Some doubt having arisen as to the precise scope of Earl Russell's proposal that a commission should be appointed to inquire into the means by which the English and American Governments should agree to refer to it, a semi-official statement has been made explaining that the scheme has been put by the Alabama and other vessels of the same character would be excluded from the jurisdiction of such a commission.

Sir George Bowyer takes advantage of an opportunity which had been afforded him to contradict in the Times the commonly-believed statement that Archbishop Cullen "distinguished himself by writing against the carding creation." Archbishop Cullen, he says, never wrote anything of the sort. The only foundation for this often-repeated error is that some foolish person dedicated to the Archbishop a book attacking the Copernican system. The Papal champion adds that the Roman Observatory, directed by the learned Jesuit Professor Secchi (well known for his observations of double stars and his photograph of the moon), is not surpassed in any way by any observatory in Europe. In this observatory astronomical observations according to the most recent discoveries and the most advanced data and principles of the science.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.



11th Hussars: Cornet A. E. S. Brooke to be Lieutenant, vice Hodges, 2.D. H. Stewart to be Cornet.

Royal Artillery: Major-Gen. T. O. Hingeston to be Colonel-Commandant; Lieut.-Cols. E. Price and J. W. Donnellan to be Colonels; Capts. H. A. Smyth, R. S. Sandford, and F. W. Hingeston to be Lieutenant-Colonels; Lieut. and Capt. C. E. Hall to be Captain; Lieut. and Capt. the Captain Lindo, C.B., A.D.C., R. G. Fletcher, and H. Adderley to be Second Captains; Lieut. F. Brudley to be Lieutenant; Second Capt. F. G. Brownlow to be Lieut. and Capt.

1st Dragoon Guards: Cornet F. Lettsom-Sclater to be Lieutenant.

Coldstream Guards: Ensigns and Lieut. the Hon. E. A. Hamilton, Bart., to be Lieutenant and Captain; Lieut. and Capt. Hon. E. Stanley to be Captain and Lieutenant.

3rd Foot: Paymaster C. Craig to be Paymaster, 10th: Lieut. T. W. Carlton to be Captain, vice Hon. A. Gough, who exchanges; Lieut. C. Hamil

TESTIMONIAL TO MR. W. JACKSON, OF BIRKENHEAD, FROM THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE FLORENCE AND PISTOIA RAILWAY.

A MAGNIFICENT silver dessert service, of the value of 2000 guineas, has been manufactured by Mr. Joseph Mayer, of London-street, Liverpool, for presentation to Mr. William Jackson, of Birkenhead, M.P. for South Derbyshire. It is the result of a subscription among the shareholders of the Florence and Pistoja Railway, an undertaking to which Mr. Jackson has rendered some important services. The gift consists of a plateau 8 ft. long with borders of classic design, and ornamented at intervals with wreaths of laurel; on this stands a very beautiful centrepiece, with six fruit-stands and two flower-stands. The centrepiece acts as a rose-water fountain, and, by a mechanical contrivance in the body of the piece, the water is made to flow from the jug into the cup held by a figure of Hebe, and thence into the two basins beneath, producing an effect at once pleasing and novel. At the base are seated two male figures, or river gods, emblematic of the Po and the Arno, rivers of North Italy. The fruit- and flower stands are formed of richly-chased scrolls, supporting engraved and cut-glass dishes; and on the base of each are several beautifully-modelled figures—Psyche, Venus, and Ceres—copied from the works of some of the most eminent Italian sculptors, thus giving an artistic and local interest to the entire composition. Accompanying the above pieces are two candelabra of nine branches each richly chased in scrolls, and with figures to harmonise with the rest of the plate. On the plateau are engraved the arms and crest of Mr. Jackson and the inscription, which is as follows:—"Presented to William Jackson, Esq., M.P., by the English shareholders of the Maria Antonia Railway (Florence to Pistoja), as an enduring acknowledgment of their appreciation of his long and valuable services as chairman of the company.—J. M. Wright, Chas. Morrison, members of London Committee; T. S. Cuthill, secretary."

Another ascension of Mont Blanc, being the thirty-fifth this year, has been accomplished by a young English lady named Brevoet.

Earl Russell has published in the Gazette an alleged cure for the cattle plague. It has been sent from St. Petersburg by our Ambassador, who received it from a farmer in the interior of Russia. Briefly stated, the cure consists in putting the affected animal into a vapour bath and then wrapping it up most carefully.

Don Prospero Barberini Colonna di Sciarra, Prince of Rovlano, a distinguished member of the Roman aristocracy, recently died in the Papal city. He leaves £400 to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith at Lyons, and the remainder of his fortune, which amounts to £12,000, to a similar association at Rome. The deceased was the proprietor of the famous gallery which numbers among its treasures Raphael's "Violin Player."

Some time ago the shopkeepers of Warsaw were ordered to hang out signboards in the Russian language, in addition to the Polish ones, which they might retain if they chose. They have now been informed by a decree of the General in command of the police that the many orthographical mistakes occurring in the spelling of their trade in Russ must be amended, or they will be liable to be fined. The police are ordered to submit to the inspection of the authorities an exact copy of all boards offending against the Russian Murray.

The German Shakspeare Society met at Weimer on Sunday, Dr. Ulrici, the president, read a report of its proceedings during the past year, from which it appears that the efforts of the society to promote the cultivation of the English language and literature in German universities and colleges have been very successful. The number of the members is 415, and the funds have been considerably increased by contributions from the Grand Duchess of Saxony, the Crown Princess of Prussia, and the King of Saxony. A Shakspeare library is being formed, and the first part of a Shakspeare annual has been issued. The second part, which is in preparation, contains articles on "Shakspeare in Germany," "Shakspeare's Sonnets," "Hamlet in Shakspeare," "Shakspeare and Spenser," "Shakspeare and Calderon."

A special commission, chosen from amongst the members of the episcopal synod of Comnil, is engaged in investigating the charges recently effected in the Constitution of the Helvetic Republic. Letters from Berne give an idea of the proportions addressed to that body from different quarters. The Society Helvetia has drawn up its own, which are generally approved of, in which it demands that the Jesuits be driven out of the country, and that the completely independent of any religious confession. No constraint to be put on anyone in matters of religion. The registers of the Civil State shall be drawn up in by officers throughout the country, and not by ecclesiastics. Equality of rights and liberties is guaranteed amongst citizens of all the cantons. The Federal exercise of their functions is maintained throughout the whole extent of the Confederation. Patents to that effect, valid in all the cantons, will be delivered by the Federal authority. 2nd. Every citizen of a canton is a Swiss citizen, and exercises, under that title, his rights and political duties in Federal and cantonal matters in the canton where he resides. 3rd. The affairs of the commune, he exercises his rights in the canton where he resides, are regulated by the commune, without, however, being admitted to participate in the communal resources nor affected to enterprises of public utility, 4th. The punishment of banishment is abolished. 5th. The right to marry is guaranteed. 6th. At all times, when 20,000 Swiss citizens or six cantonal governments shall demand it, the question of the rejection of a law or of a Federal decree shall be submitted to the voting of the people. The same disposition is applicable to international treaties which the delay to be fixed by the Federal authority."

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

C. LAURET, Paris.—A reply to the communication made to you on the subject of "Le Palamède Français," a few days since, will be thought a decoy.

T. B. W., New York.—Two letters have been forwarded to your club within the last three months. Your other of them remitted you.

C. BUTLER, Dublin.—The Honorary Secretaries of the Dublin Chess Congress, we have received a number of the most interesting games contested in the tournaments, and the best of these we purpose publishing as opportunity serves.

 The majority of our notices to chess correspondents are unavoidably postponed for want of space.

PROBLEM No. 1130

BY MR. C. BURNS.

One of the competitors to which the second prize was adjudged at the late Pyrshire Journey in Force.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

THE DUBLIN CHESS CONGRESS.

Almost at the moment of going to press with this portion of our Paper we are informed that the first prize of the chief tournament in the International Chess Gathering of Ireland has been gained by Mr. Steinitz, and the second prize in the same tournament by the Rev. G. Macdonnell. The contest between these two gentlemen was a most interesting one, and some of their games will be drawn and the other, which we have the pleasure of appending, was scored by Mr. Steinitz.

DECISIVE GAME FOR THE FIRST PRIZE.

(Philidor's Defence.)

WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. M.)	WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. M.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	27. P takes P	P takes P
2. Kt to K B 3rd	P to Q 3rd	28. B to Q 4th	R to Q 3rd
3. B to B 4th	B to K 2nd	29. B to Kt 3rd (ch)	K to R 2nd
4. P to Q B 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd	30. R takes R (ch)	Q takes R
5. P to Q 3rd	P to Q R 3rd	31. Q to Q 2nd	Q to Q 3rd
6. Castles	B to K 3rd	32. Q to K R 2nd	Q to K 3rd
7. P to K R 3rd	P to Q Kt 3rd	33. Q to K 2nd (ch)	K to R 3rd
8. Q to K 2nd	B to K 2nd	34. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 2nd
9. B to Q Kt 3rd	Q Kt to Q 2nd	35. Q to K 6th	P to K B 4th
10. Q to K 2nd	Kt to Q B 4th	36. P to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 4th
11. B to Q B 2nd	Kt to K 3rd	37. B to K B 6th	R to Q 2nd
12. P to K Kt 3rd	P to K Kt 3rd	38. B to K 4th	B to K 5th
13. P to B 4th	K Kt to K sq	39. Q to K B 2nd	B to Q 6th
14. Kt to Q 2nd	Kt to K B 2nd	40. Q to K 2nd	P to K 5th
15. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K B 3rd	41. B to Q 6th	R to Q 3rd
16. P to K 5th	P to K B 2nd	42. B to Q 4th	K to Q 2nd
17. P to K 6th	P to K B 3rd	43. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
18. P to K 4th	P to K Kt 4th	44. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
19. Kt takes Kt P	P to K sq	45. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
20. R to R sq	K Kt to R 2nd	46. Q to K 2nd	B to Q 5th
21. Kt to K B 3rd	Q R to Q 2nd	47. Q to K 3rd	P to Q 6th
22. B to K 3rd	R to Q 3rd	48. R to K B 6th (ch)	K to B 2nd
23. B to K 4th	B to K 2nd	49. P to Q B 4th	Kt to Q B 3rd
24. B to K 3rd	P to Q 4th	50. P to Q B 5th	B to K 4th
25. Q to K Kt sq	K B to K 2nd	51. P to Q B 6th, and White wins.

A pleasant Game between the Rev. W. WAYTE and another Member of the Ex. George's Chess Club.—(Le Arte Opening.)

WHITE (Mr. W.)	BLACK (Mr. —)	WHITE (Mr. W.)	BLACK (Mr. —)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	12. Q takes Kt	P to Q B 3rd
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd	13. K to B sq	K to B sq
3. P to Q B 4th	P to Q 3rd	14. P to B 4th	Kt to K 5th
4. P to Q 4th	P takes P	15. R to K Kt sq	R to K Kt sq
5. P to Q 5th	P to Q 3rd	16. Q to Kt 3rd	P to K B 4th
6. P takes P	Kt to K B 3rd	17. B to B 4th	P takes P
7. P to Q 6th	Castles	18. R takes P	P to K Kt 3rd
8. B to Q 3rd		19. P to Q Kt 3rd	Q Kt to Q sq
(To preserve his centre Pawns unbroken.)		20. Q to K Q sq	Q to Q 4th
		21. P to K B 4th	Q to Kt 4th
9.	B to K Kt 5th	22. Q to K Kt 3rd	R to K Kt sq
10. Kt to Q B 3rd	P to Q Kt 3rd	23. Q R to Q 3rd	P to Q Kt 4th
11. P takes B	Kt takes B	24. Q to K R 4th	P to K R 3rd
	B takes Kt	25. Q to K R 3rd	B to K B sq and White mates in two moves.

Game played at Bath between Mr. THOROLD and the Rev. W. WAYTE.

(Lewis's Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. T.)	BLACK (Mr. W.)	WHITE (Mr. T.)	BLACK (Mr. W.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	22. Q to K B sq	P to K B 3rd
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd	23.	B takes P
3. K B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th	(By giving up the Rook for the two Pawns
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B to Kt 3rd	Black has obtained a very strong position,
5. P to Q B 3rd	Kt to Q B 4th	but he would have lost more than an equi-
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd	valent as at
7. P to Q 4th	B to Q Kt 5th	23. Kt takes P	P takes R
8. P takes P	P takes P	24. Kt takes B	P takes Kt
9. P to Q 5th	B to Q Kt 3rd	25. R to K 3rd	B takes P
10. P to K 5th	Kt to K 4th	26. R to K 8th (ch)	K to Kt sq
11. Q to R 4th (ch)	P to Q B 3rd	27. R to K 3rd (ch)	K to R 2nd
12. Q takes Kt	P takes Kt	28. R to K 3rd	B takes R
13. Q to her 2nd	P to K B 3rd	and Black has the better game.)
14. B to Q R 3rd	B to K B 4th	29.	R takes P
15. Q to K 3rd	B takes Q Kt	30. R takes R	P takes R
		31. Q takes P	K to R 2nd
(Necessary before castling, as White		32. Q to K B 4th	B to Q 2nd should play Kt to Q B 3rd, and Black		33. Q to K B 3rd	B to K B 3rd should reply Kt to Q B 4th, as in previous		34. Q to K B 4th (ch)	K to R 2nd (ch)
move, instead of attacking the Queen.)		35. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 2nd
		(It would have been better to play the Q
16. Q R takes B	Castles	to Kt 3rd.)
17. P to K 6th	P to K Kt 3rd	36. Q to K Kt 3rd	Q to K 2nd
18. P to K Kt 4th	P to K R 3rd	37. Q to K 4th	Q to K 5th
19. P to K B 5th	Kt P takes Kt	38. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 6th
20. P takes P	P to K 4th	39. Q to Q Kt sq	Q to K 5th
21. R takes P	Q to her 2nd	and Black mates in four moves.

CHESS IN BERLIN.

An instructive Game between Messrs. ANDERSSEN and NEUMANN.

(Muzio Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. A.)	BLACK (Mr. N.)	WHITE (Mr. A.)	BLACK (Mr. N.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	14. P to K 6th	Kt to K sq
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P	15. B takes R	B takes P
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 4th	16. P to K 6th
4. B to Q B 4th	P to Kt 5th	(This is very subtle.)
5. Castles	P takes Kt	16.	Q to K 3rd
6. P to Q 4th	P to Q 3rd	(If Black had ventured to take the Pawn
(The canonical move everybody knows is		with his Queen on very natural move, and to play to K B 3rd, but this variation has		then played Kt to Q 2nd, he would have been played without danger.)		lost the game.)
7. P to Q 5th	Kt to Q B 3rd	17. Kt to K 4th	B takes P
8. Q takes P		18. Q to K 6th (ch)	K to Q 2nd
(The natural move everybody knows is		19. Kt to K 5th (ch)	Q to K Kt 3rd to play to K B 3rd, but this variation has		20. Kt to K B 3rd	Q to K 3rd
been played without danger.)		21.	B to K 3rd
7.	P to Q 3rd	22. Q to K R 3rd	Q to K 2nd
8. Q takes P	Kt to Q B 3rd	23. B takes B (ch)	K takes B
9. B to K Kt 5th	B to K 2nd	24. Kt to K B 6th	P to K Kt 4th, and
10. Q to K 3rd	Kt to Q 5th	wins.
11. Q to K B 3rd	B to K Kt 5th
12. B to K 2nd	B takes B
13. Q takes B	P to K B 4th

Some highly satisfactory experiments have lately been made at Stockholm with a new ordnance, invented by M. Hagström. It fires ten shots in a minute, the barrel even perfectly clean after one hundred shots. It is to be introduced into the Swedish army.

Mr. Harrison Weir, of whom mention was made in the memoir of the late Mr. Herring in our last Number, is a member of the Institute of Water Colours, and his paintings of animals, birds, and fruit are held in high estimation.

A committee has been appointed by the Russian Government to inquire into the agricultural and mineral products of the regions in the Caucasus lately acquired by Russia, and likewise into the various metals, an extensive coal-field, and a magnificent forest of fir-trees, have already been reported.

NEW BOOKS.

BOOKS for the SCHOOL-ROOM and NURSERY.
THE PEEP OF DAY; or, a Series of the Earliest Religious Instruction the Infant Mind is capable of receiving. Sixth Thousand, 18mo.
Red Edition, cloth sealings, 1s.
Cloth Extra, gilt leaves, 1s. 6d.

WORKS BY THE SAME AUTHOR FOR THE LAST STAGE OF INFANCY.
MORE ABOUT JESUS. With 20 Illustrations. Nineteenth Thousand, 18mo, cloth, 2s. 6d.
LINE UPON LINE; or, a Second Series of the Earliest Religious Instruction the Infant Mind is capable of receiving. Part I., with Ten Illustrations. Sixth Thousand, 18mo, cloth, 2s. 6d.
LINES LEFT OUT; or, Some of the Histories left out in "Line upon Line." The two part stories events in the lives of the Patriarchs and the Judges. With Illustrations. Tenth Thousand, 18mo, cloth, 2s. 6d.
NEAR HOME; or, The Countries of Europe described to Children. With Anecdotes. Illustrated with numerous Wood Engravings. Fifth Thousand. Fcap. cloth, 4s. 6d.
FAR OFF, Part I.; or, Asia Described, With Anecdotes and Illustrations. Twelve Engravings. Fourth Thousand, 18mo, cloth, 2s. 6d.
FAR OFF, Part II.; or, Australia, Africa, and America described, with Anecdotes and numerous Illustrations. Seventeenth Thousand. Fcap. cloth, 4s. 6d.
REASONS ABOUT STORIES. A pleasant Mode of Learning to Read. With numerous Illustrations. Fcap. cloth, 2s. 6d.
STORIES ABOUT ST. PAUL. By EMILY G. NESBITT, Author of "Mamma's New Bible Stories." Square 16mo, cloth, 1s. 6d.
"A companion volume to 'The Peep of Day.' We cannot give higher commendation."—Our Own Fireside.
"I like it much."—By the same Author.
LITTLE ARCHIE'S CATECHISM. Square 16mo, cloth, 1s. 6d.
London: SEELEY, JACKSON and CO., 54, Fleet-street.
Booksellers to H.R.H. the Princess of Wales.

Now Novel, by the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret." An
SIR JASPER'S TENANT.
By MRS. HENRY WOOD, Author of "East Lynne," "The Channings," &c.
In 3 vols. [Next week.

NEW SONGS DUE BY MR. FRED'K H. ST. JOHN.
PEACE BY.
By Author of "The Sailor Dream." 1 vol., price 6s.
JOHN MACKLAY and CO., 192, Fleet-street.

Now ready, in crown 8vo, cloth extra, price 5s.,
LIGHTS IN ART: A Review of Ancient and Modern Processes, with Critical Remarks on the Present Position, Treatment, and Preservation of Oil Paintings. By AN ARTIST, Author of "Lights in Literature." Edited by C. ROBINSON.
London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT, commonly Illustrated in a series of 21 Plates, by W. and A. CRUICKSHANK, from Designs by the late GEORGE CRUIKSHANK, is now ready, price 5s. plain, or 7s. 6d. coloured, according to size of paper, free to all parts of the United Kingdom. Detailed prospectuses and specimens forwarded post-free.
London: S. and T. GILBERT, 4, Copthall-buildings (back of the Bank of England).

ROBERTS'S (the late DAVID) SKETCHES IN THE HOLY LAND, SYRIA, IDUMEA, ARABIA, EGYPT, and NUBIA, with 247 beautiful Plates, and Interpresses by the Rev. G. CROLY, LL.D. Published at £7 7s., for £3 3s. cloth; or £4 4s. bds.; now reduced to £2 12s. 6d. 2 vols. 4to, and 24 Nos. Carriage-free to all parts of the United Kingdom. Detailed prospectus and specimens of print gratis and post-free.
London: S. and T. GILBERT, 4, Copthall-buildings (back of the Bank of England).

Price 3s.,
THE RESTORATION of NERVOUS FUNCTION. By JOHN HARVEY, M.D. Price 1s., HOW TO GET WELL AND HOW TO KEEP WELL.
London: JAMES EPPS and CO., 48, Threadneedle-street.

Now ready,
PRICE ONE SHILLING, BEAUTIFULLY PRINTED IN COLOURS,
THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK FOR 1866, containing GEMS OF SCENTCULTURE, Poetry by Charles Wesley Farquhar, and the HIGHEST STYLE OF THE CHROMATIC ART, by Leighton Brothers, Printers in Ordinary to the Queen. Also, THE ROYAL FAMILY, THE LAW COURTS, THE BOOKSELLERS' ALMANACK, and all the Useful and Universally Treasured Privileged and Monopoly Portfolio Appointments. Also, a Chronological Account of the Principal Events, Political and Imperial, of the Year. Curtains, Jewish, and Ecclesiastical Calendars. Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water; Post Office Regulations, and a variety of other useful and interesting information, forming altogether a most valuable and unique repertory of facts, forming a complete ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE. LONDON ALMANACS for many years past have been the favourite publications of the season, but the Illustrated London Almanack is unlike any other. It is not merely a literary or drawing-room table, whilst it is universally acknowledged to be the most useful Almanack ever published.
The Illustrated London Almanack is recommended as the best Almanack ever after your stockinger the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for the Almanack a circulation second favourable as that which has hitherto placed the circulation second to none. The Illustrated London Almanack for 1866.
The Illustrated London Almanack is issued in a handsome wrapper, printed in colours by the same process as the Gems of Scent-Culture, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.
The Shilling Illustrated London Almanack is published at the Office of the Illustrated London News, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

Now ready,
THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK for 1866, containing Twelve Original Designs emblematic of the Months, humorously Engraved on wood from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licenses; Eclipses, Remarkable Days, Anniversaries, Fairs, Sovereigns of Europe, and other interesting Information. Price 1d. unstamped; 2d. stamped. C. Cleaver and Co., Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row; and G. Vickers, Angel-court (17), Strand.

GLENNY'S GARDEN ALMANACK for 1866, containing Lists of indigenous and exotic Plants in flower every month. Price 6d. Ready Nov. 1. Post 7d.
G. W. Glenny, 170, Oxford-street, Paternoster-row. By Advertisements after the 20th of October.

THE COMMENTARY WHOLLY ORIGINAL. Three volumes, 8vo, price £2 2s.
SAMUEL BAGSTER and SONS, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS. By ORDER of HER MAJESTY, 16, Piccadilly, Manufacturer of Ormolu Statues for the Boudoir, Toilette, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES in russia or morocco, of the best make, with every improvement, 2, Piccadilly, W. Also, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at 31, Redcross-st., E.C. Finsbury, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DESPATCH-BAGS, with silver or steel fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Cigar Cases, &c. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, with Patent Elastic Leaves and Corners, to contain portraits, cartes, vallets, and ornamental. Albums for monogram, crests, and presentation. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of Heraldic correctness and elegance, and impressed on paper, envelopes, or the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING-CARD PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Ball Programmes, and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

Just out,
THOS. DE LA RUE and CO.'S PATENT PLAYING CARDS. The New Patterns for the Season are now ready, and may be had of all Booksellers and Stationers.

FACT.—2s. 6d.—An Elegant POCKET A TIMEPIECE, warranted to denote correct time, with gilt Rectangles, gilt cases, guard, &c. Free by post for 32 stamps. PAUL BARNUM, 28, Brunswick-street, Hackney-road, London.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GREAT CHANG POLKA. By MARQUIS CHIBOLM. Played at all Levées at the Tuileries Ball. Shaking hands with everybody within reach—and the giant's reach is long—is the tune of a very gentle polka, composed by Marquis Chibolm. Performed everywhere.—VICK, Theatre, Sept. 24. Sent for 18 stamps.
DUFF and HODGSON, 21, Oxford-street.

